THE MOSTEST"

Little 'g' gatesville, Texas

Now that it's all over, and we can get back to work, at least, til the Rodeo, June 9-10-11, and then, come July 1, we might have a little time to do a little work.

From Elston Brooks' Star-Telegram column, we quote this: A Ft. Worth grocer told his minister the other day, "I know that we're here on earth to help others. But, what are the others here for?"

Here's another quote. "Plain Talk, from Cheer, April '60, house organ of E. C. Palmer & Co., Dallas, and it reads like this:

"All of us have at birth an abundance of time before us. When we attain maturity, most of us are willing to work 8 hours a day. The competition for 8-hours-a-day jobs is, therefore, tremendous, and the rewards are correspondingly meager.

"Eight-hour workers seldom get anywhere. How can they, when the rest of the world is willing to do much their efforts? A hundred million men lined up, fairly started, and limited to a 3-mile-per-hour speed will in 8 hours cross the finish line 24 miles away exactly even.

"Eight hours a day is a mental time that most of us set upon our success efforts. As a matter of fact, that is the minimum when we are without any objective save existence. Those who are going anywhere have no time limit, but have no objective.

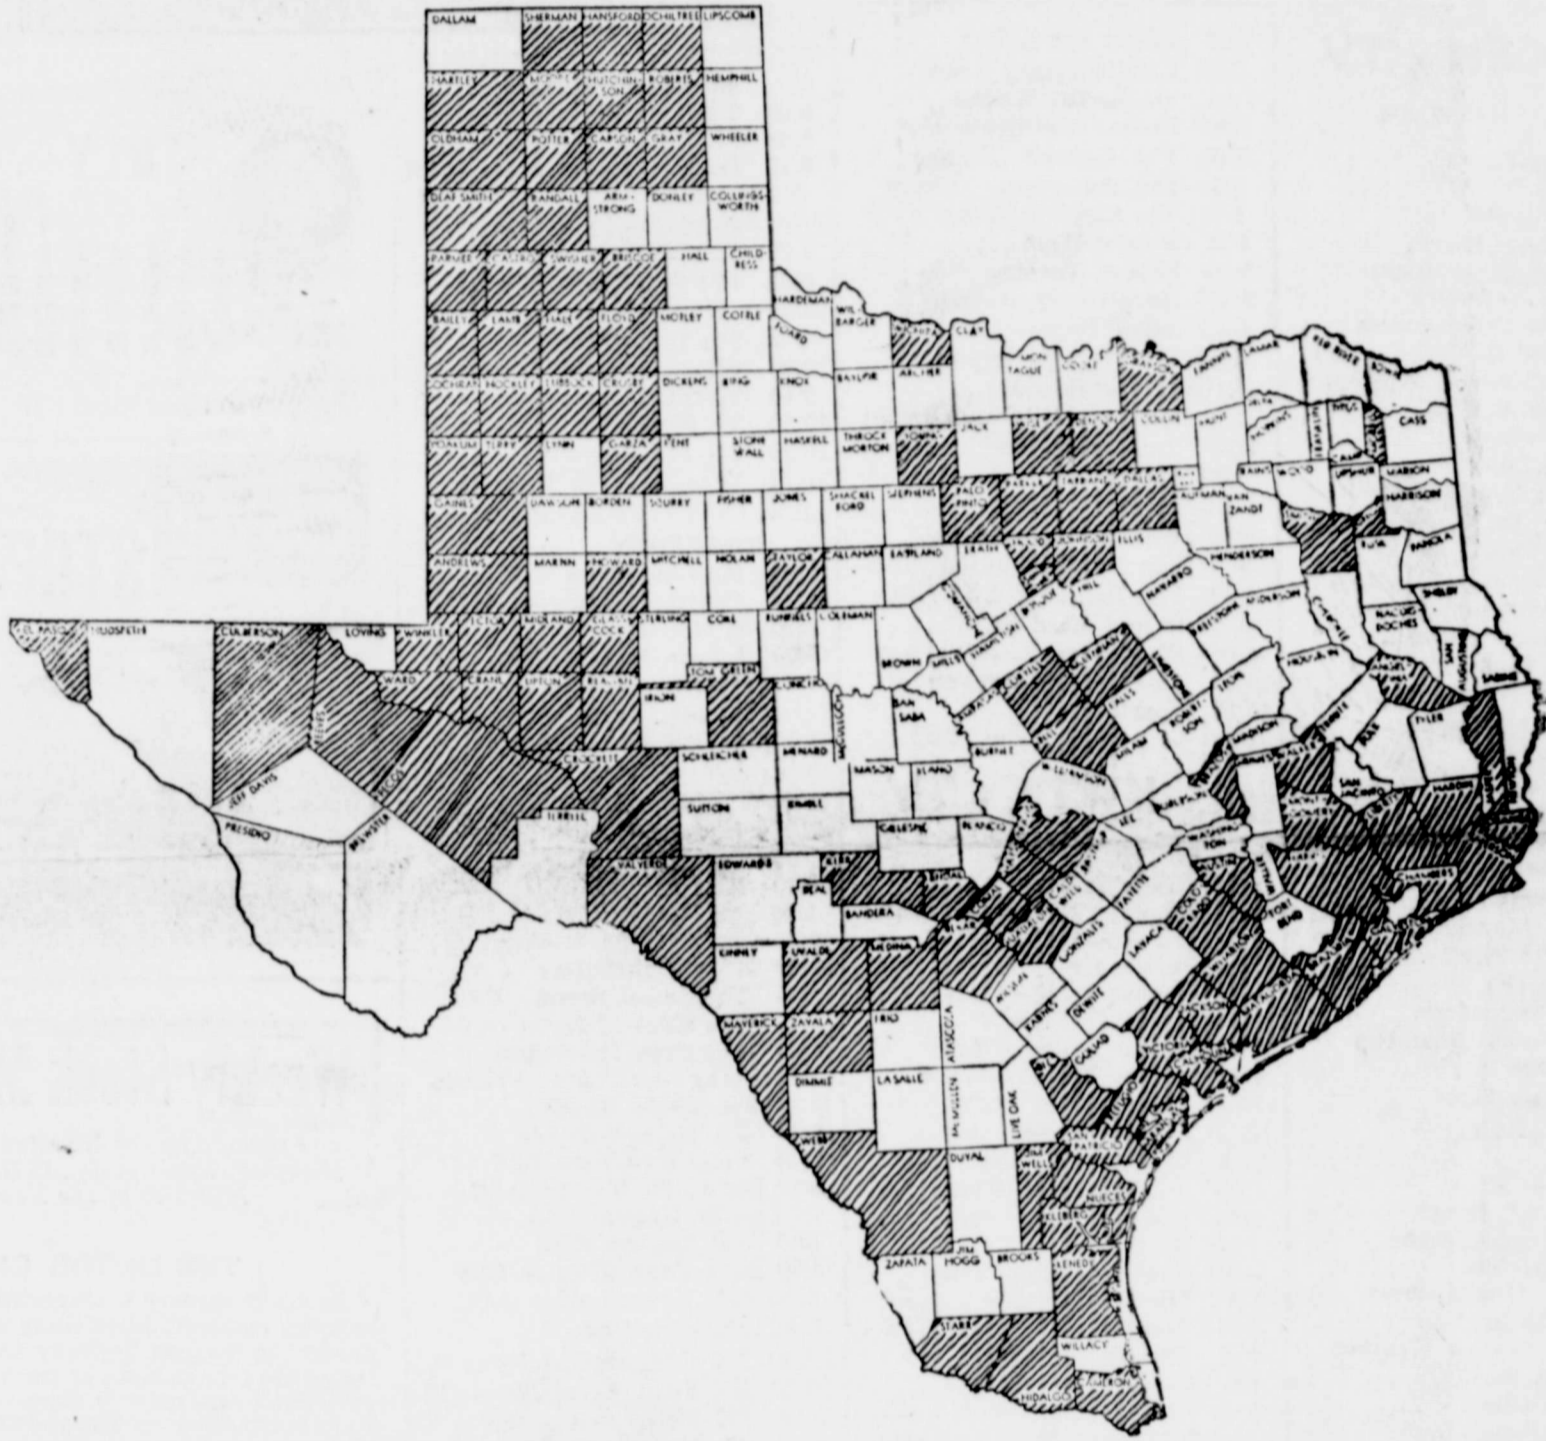

"The use we make of time determines whether we live a life, or never really live at all. Time properly used makes the impossible possible. Used time changes all circumstances and alters all environments."

"Creditors have better memories than debtors; they are a superstitious sect, great observers of set days and times.—Franklin."

"Puzzle: Without giving any of your friends a chance to figure it out, suddenly spring this 'catch' question on them, and likely everyone will give the wrong answer.

"If a man and wife are the parents of 10 sons and each son has a sister, how many boys and girls are there in the family?" (You don't have to wait until next edition for an answer; turn the paper upside-down, and there it is, yeah, there it is).

P-TA OFFICERS NAMED FOR '60-61 SESSION; TREE DEDICATED

The final May 11 meeting of the P-TA was treated with a program of group singing and music by the Jr. H Band, directed by C. W. McClellan. Corsages were presented to retiring teachers, Mrs. Will Schloeman, Mrs. Will Brum-

"Nearly everyone will answer '20', but there are only 11 children, 10 boys and 1 girl who is the sister of each of the 10 sons."

Officers installed: Mrs. Steve Kopec, president; Mrs. Roy Phillips Jr., hospitality vice president; Mrs. Norris Smith, program vice president; Mrs. Joe Boone, membership vice president; Mrs. Curtis Davis, high school chairman; Mrs. Norman Storm Jr. Hi Chairman; Mrs. Chas. Smith, elementary school chairman; Mrs. Bill Scoggins, secretary; Mrs. Louis Bone, treasurer; Mrs. H. K. Jackson Jr., Parliamentarian; Mrs. R. D. Foster Jr., reporter; Mrs. Alvis Stovall, historian; Mrs. W. F. Stiles, pianist; C. H. Hereford, song leader.

The P-TA planted an oak tree on the grounds, and there was a tree ceremony, the Jr. Hi band playing Festival March. Mrs. Oscar Bratton, program chairman, told of the purpose: "The oak tree is the emblem of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the planting of a tree is a fitting memorial for outstanding workers of P-TA. The tree, a landmark of which the community will be proud will give beauty and character to the locality and the citizens will gather, and the youth will congregate in happiness and security, gaining, mean-

Weekly Stock Market Round-Up

Prepared by the Investment Research Department of Hemphill, Noyes & Co., 15 Broad Street, New York 5, N. Y. Members of the New York Stock Exchange

THE MOTOR CARRIER INDUSTRY

Basically modern transportation is currently achieved by four primary methods. First there was water, next rail, then air, and finally the modern highway truck. The highway truck was the last of the four methods of transportation to emerge as a gigantic force in our economy. The growth of the trucking industry has been extremely strong since World War II. The reasons for this are many, but there appear to be four major reasons: first, the flexibility of the motor carrier, offering door-to-door service; second, the fact that industry has moved to suburbs and consequently has become less centralized; third, the imponderable factor, management; and fourth, the rapid growth of the interstate and defense highway system.

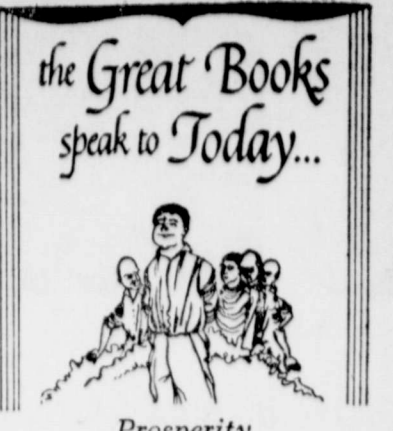

That the motor carrier has become increasingly important to the geographical diversification of industry is attested to by many accomplished facts. More and more plants and warehouse outlets are appearing in locations that can only be served by trucks. The modern plant built today is very seldom over five stories tall. Generally speaking it is a one-story plant geared for an efficient automated, assembly-line operation. Employee parking, room for modernization and expansion, all emphasize the need for land adjacent to such a plant to such an extent that paying city realty taxes and prices is out of the question. An increasing number of plants are constantly moving to the small towns and cities of our country, towns and cities that would have never heretofore received any attention. These plants are afforded sound transportation of their end products by the motor carriers. An example is the growth of industry in the towns and cities along Route 128 in the Boston, Massachusetts area, not only attributable to lower realty taxes offered the companies which built plants strategically on this major motor artery, but also to the fact that those companies located on this route are afforded quick and efficient over-the-road transportation by the motor carrier who is readily accessible to them. There is no question that the availability of reliable and efficient transportation by truck using this modern highway was a major factor in the rapid growth of the area. Factory growth in the Southeastern part of the United States is another similar example of industry locating in a favorable trucking area.

Ryder Systems derives revenues about equally from truck leasing and common carrier operations. This factor not only offers a degree of safety through diversification, but, in our opinion, an increased growth aspect.

Another attractive commitment in the trucking industry is Coop Jarrett. At current levels, stock yields close to 5%.

Spector Freight is another attractive issue in the motor carrier industry. The stock at 13 is selling less than eight times 1959 earnings and yields 5.2%. At current prices, Spector is attractive for income and capital gains.

Prosperity

Men scrutinize with keen eyes the recent elevation of their fellows and demand a temperate use of prosperity from none more rigorously than from those whom they have seen on a level with themselves.

The other day I received a letter from Bob Stanowski of Maine. He asked some questions, which, if answered thoroughly, would end up in a novel. However, I will try to answer them as completely as I can in a few chapters.

According to fish biologists' reports, fish have the ability to hear sounds and vibrations but do not have external ears as we know them. Fish are said to have "sensory pores" which act as ears. In some fish the air bladder is connected by a series of bones to the ear capsules which act as resonant chambers for vibrations. Therefore, when you're sitting in a boat, fish can hear you scrambling through your tackle box or scraping your feet on the bottom of the boat. The Evinrude Boating Foundation suggests that you wear rubber-soled shoes, such as boat-soled shoes, whenever fishing from a boat. Yes, it's true that fish sleep. Fish don't have eyelids and seldom appear to be sleeping, so to be more accurate fish rest at regular intervals. Some fish "sleep" on their sides on the bottom of the lake while others might "sleep" against rocks or lie motionless while suspended in the water. Many schooling fish disperse at night and rest only to reassemble in the morning.

You are right Bob, fish are very interesting aquatic creatures with unusual habits interesting to all. It is unbelievable as to the number of fishermen, many of them veteran anglers, who know very little about their catch. Happy boating... and fishing, too. Rudy

COUNTY H-D AGENT WASHING PILLOWS

If you've been dreading the job of washing pillows, here is good news. They can be laundered successfully in your automatic washer.

Wash two pillows at a time for a balanced load. To be sure that no feathers fly, examine ticking carefully and mend any tears or open seams. Wet pillows before placing them in the washer—otherwise, they will float. To do this, make a two-inch opening on each end, then close it with a loose basting stitch. This allows water to enter but prevent feathers from escaping. Place the pillow in a pan of water and knead gently until it is thoroughly soaked. Wash in warm water for about five or six minutes, then allow the washer to complete the rinse cycle.

You can follow the same procedure in washing foam rubber pillows. But they must be washed in a case. Close the end of the

NO RELIGIOUS ISSUE

When Kennedy won so decisively in West Virginia, the "Religious Issue" was supposedly put on ice, where many said it should have been from the first. I submit that the real religious issue hasn't even been faced!

Somehow we have confused a candidate's religion with his church. Saying he is Congregational, Catholic, Presbyterian, Quaker, or Whatnot tells us very little any more. A sad fact of our time is that a man's church does NOT mean enough to make a difference.

Yet his RELIGION, or lack of it, can make all the difference in the world, as witness Nikita Khrushchev. The most important thing to know about any man is the state or his religion! Not what church he belong to, but what god he serves!

Does he believe force can do the works of love? How much respect has he for the rights, dignity, the freedom of individuals? How much integrity, how much loyalty to his country's ideals, how much stability of character? Most of all, what does he believe about the relation between God and Caesar? Has Caesar perhaps become his god?

These are questions we don't even ask! These are questions that are not answered by the name of a man's church. These are the questions...

FARM PROFIT

New Chemicals Clean The Corn Rows

Corn farmers take note. Weeds between hills where the cultivator can't get at them could be costing you one-fourth of the corn yield you would be getting if the weeds weren't there.

And there's a new way to get rid of them, according to a Massey-Ferguson research report.

Two new chemical weed killers have proved that either of them can kill both broadleaved weeds and grasses with one application and keep them in check for six weeks or a full summer, depending upon the amount used. They are called Atrazine and Simazine.

Three years of research in Illinois proved that weeds in rows can sap away a fourth of the yield.

When Atrazine was applied to a corn field on Fred Schneider's farm near Jerseyville, Illinois, it completely eliminated all weeds, Massey-Ferguson researchers found.

Atrazine and the other new chemical, Simazine, cost more than 2,4-D; but the cost can be kept to a minimum by spraying a 12 to 14-inch band over rows instead of spraying the entire field. Band treatment costs about $3.50 to $4.50 an acre.

There are a lot of advantages to using chemical weed killers besides the advantage of higher yield. Your cultivator will cause less root damage, for you won't have to set it so close to the rows. You won't have to worry about weeds choking your young plants if the field is so wet you can't drive your tractor in it. And, you can harvest your hay at its peak feed value instead of waiting until you have finished cultivating. And hay is a money crop, too.

The only major differences between Simazine and Atrazine are that Atrazine dissolves more fully in water and probably is more effective in dry soil.

Practically every agricultural college in the United States recommends Simazine. Weed specialists also are praising Atrazine this year.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

EVERY WHIT WHOLE

A man stood silently on one of the hills of Judea. Standing below and gathered around him was a large group of people. They had come from all walks of life—the rich, the desperately poor, the elite and the lowest dregs of human society. This strange assortment of humanity was drawn together by a common bond, a terrible and desperate need.

The man stood quietly, tall and straight, clean and strong, towering above the throng that jostled about him. As he looked about, his gentle eyes took in the panorama below.

A child, weak, wasted, emaciated, was held by its father while its tearful mother stood close by. An, old, crippled, white-haired man muttered meaninglessly to himself while his grandson tried uneasily to quiet him. Some of the people had been in deep sin; some were criminals. Young wives were there whose husbands had become wild and wicked in their ways.

All kinds of people were gathered around the man. Some were cynical and hard; some were proud and doubting; some believed and respected him—but all were desperate in their misery.

The man said to himself as he looked, "These people don't have what I have; they are sick, filled with mental stress, frustration and fear; they are burdened down with sin; they need a touch from God." And the Bible says that as Christ saw the multitude's need, he was moved with compassion and he healed them.

I can see him as, suddenly, he strides purposely down the mountain to the child and says, "The Lord doth make thee whole."

Then he turns to the old man, who is still muttering to himself as he waits for the touch of the Master's hand. "Sir, thy faith hath made thee whole."

Soon the entire multitude is rejoicing as the old man throws away his crutches and begins hopping and leaping away. Mothers and fathers clasp each other in their arms and give glory to God. Christ has made them "every whit whole."

Jesus Christ is standing today over the battlements of heaven looking down into this narrow valley of the earth and sees you and me. He sees through us and sees the need for strength, health and spiritual life in us.

Standing there he says, "They don't have what I have." And he is moved with compassion. He strides among us today reaching out his hand to heal, to give health, speaking with a triumphant voice of abundant life and eternal life saying, "Be in health; be made every whit whole."

Justice to Minorities

"Thou shalt not oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of thy strangers that are in thy land within thy gates." Deuteronomy 24:14

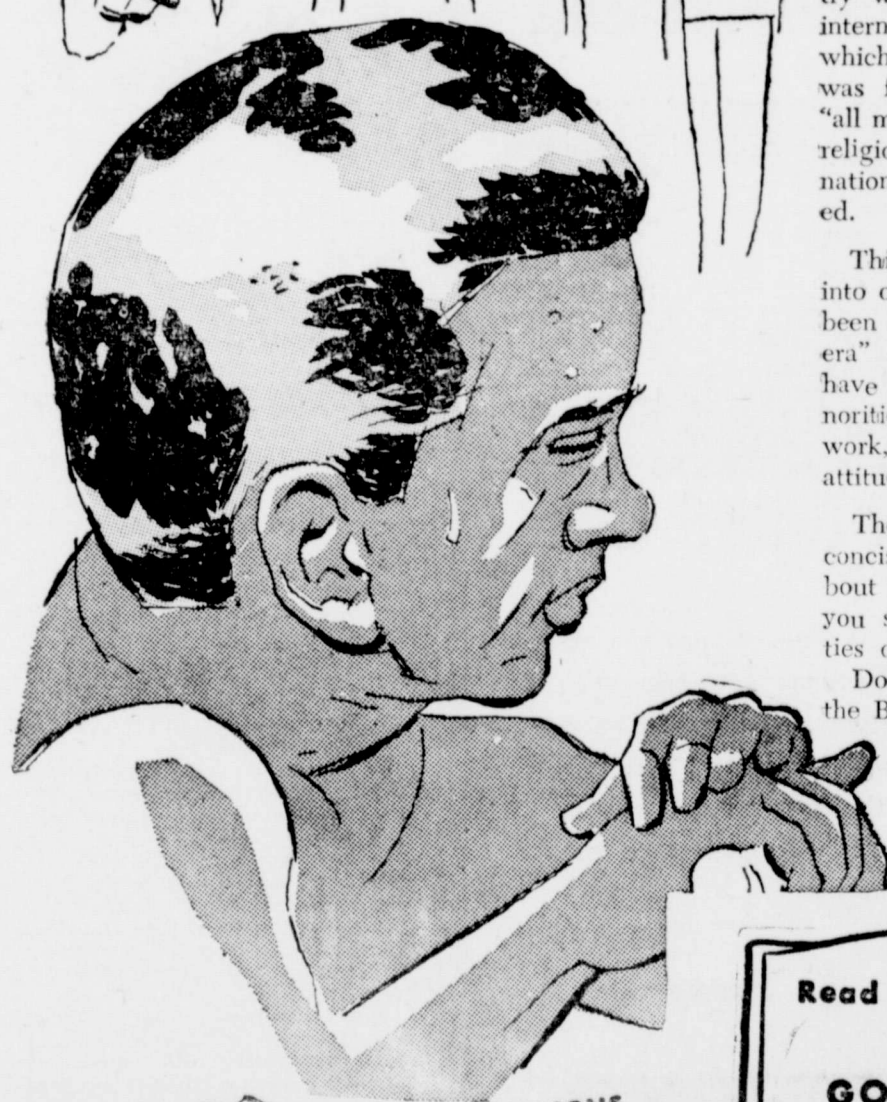

Since the founding of our country we have continued to have internal strife over minorities, which is ironic since this country was founded with the idea that "all men are created equal." Yes, religious minorities, races and nationalities have been persecuted.

This internal strife continues into our modern world which has been termed the "enlightened era" of mankind's history. We have civil laws that protect minorities, although not all of them work, but no law can dictate our attitude.

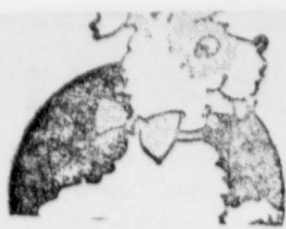

The quotation above is clear, concise and uncompromising about attitudes toward minorities: you shall not oppress the minorities or strangers in your land.

Do you practice this law from the Bible?

April E and H Savings Bonds in Corvett County totaled $12,018 according to H. Wade Sadler, chairman of the County Savings Bonds Committee.

Sales for the first 4 months are $69,595 or 38.7 of the quota which is $180,000. Texas sales for the first 4 months were $57,482,776 or 34.7 percent of the '60 goal of $165,500,000. Corvett County, then, is above average.

THE AMERICAN WAY

Well?

PER CENT OF FOOD DOLLAR SPENT FOR BREAD AND PER CENT OF NUTRIENTS CONTRIBUTED IN DIETS

Source: Unpublished data from Household Economics Research Branch, Agricultural Research Service, Food Consumption Surveys, 1948.

Enriched white bread, representing 85 per cent of all bread consumption in the United States, is the best possible nutrition buy, Dr. Robert S. Harris, Massachusetts Institute of Technology health authority, told a wheat marketing seminar held recently in Highland Park, Ill.

"A dietetic miracle happened in 1941 when enriched white bread and flour became the law of our land," Dr. Harris said. "Penny for penny, enriched white bread, farina, macaroni and spaghetti are the best nutritional buy. A government study shows that the people spent 4 per cent of their food budget for bread in 1948, and with it bought 10 per cent of their nutrition."

In a nutrition test of 45 most popular breads in 18 bread-eating countries, Dr. Harris found that enriched white bread leads all types of white bread and breads made from partially refined wheat. Only one bread, a semi-white bread of Finland, containing 12 per cent milk, had a higher overall nutritional rating. The breads were analyzed for 22 nutrients.

"Few of the foods competing for space in the stomachs of the American people are as nutritious as enriched bread and other enriched cereal products," Dr. Harris said.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

If the just released annual report of the Senate Small Business Committee is any criterion of legislative scheduling, it now appears certain before this session of Congress adjourns, the Federal Trade Commission will be put very squarely on the hot seat.

Some time ago a member of this committee, Sen. Hubert Humphrey was quite explicit in an exchange of words with Earl Kintner, FTC chairman. Through his fearless foray into the world of the disc jockey Chairman Kintner now shares top billing with Elvis Presley in matters of rock 'n' roll. Sen. Humphrey inquired why FTC did not get off dime on vital small business matters.

This line of reasoning is taken up in the report of the full committee submitted by Sen. John Sparkman, chairman. In addition, the committee includes the following other Senators, Geo. Smathers, Alan Bible, Jennings Randolph, Clair Engle, E. L. Bartlett, Harrison Williams, Jr., Frank Moss, Everett Saltonstall, Andrew Schoepel, Jacob Javits, John Cooper, Hugh Scott and Winston Prouty.

The report goes into some length on the situation in the food marketing industry.

By 1957 the Senate committee found, 20 of the nation's largest food chains account for 35% of the nation's food sales. In some markets, four chains account for 60% of food sales.

© National Federation of Independent Business

The report also called attention to the growing trend of the big chains to enter into the manufacturing end of the food business stating that the 20 big chains operated 90 of these captive manufacturing plants which accounted for over a billion dollars in sales last year, with 85% of the products of these plants sold through the chains' outlets.

The report also indicated by strongly worded language that when a few firms account for a relatively large share of sales, there seems to be quite a relation between competitors. Then the report says:

"Contrary to its resolution directing the current study of concentration in food marketing, and in spite of the ample evidence available, the FTC appears reluctant to extend its inquiry into matters relating to collusive pricing and unfair competitive methods. Your committee expects to see increased interest along this line during the second session of the 86th Congress. It plans to conduct a full study of the final FTC report."

It appears quite vital that the Senate Small Business not be diverted in its announced aim to investigate FTC actions in field of food marketing to find out why police sleep while depredations in the market place go on.

Thus it would seem quite important that anyone concerned with the growing, processing or handling of food support their Congressman in a real fact finding probe, because as one observer put it in jest "Food is rapidly becoming too expensive to eat."

Red in the morning, sailor take warning.

Red at night; the sailor's delight.

Few persons are more weather conscious than the boatman. He has to know what to expect in the way of wind and water so he develops the habit of looking at the sky, studying cloud formations, reading barometers and becoming familiar with local weather peculiarities.

To keep up with the present weather situation the skipper should always have a radio aboard. Many weather reports give the five-day outlook. If you're unable to get the five-day report over your radio station a check-in with your newspaper may give you all of the information you need.

The weather can change as fast as the flick of a switch. That's why a good skipper will keep his eyes on the sky and his ears peeled for anything that comes over his radio.

High clouds traveling across the sky in the opposite direction from lower clouds mean unsettled weather. Small, dark, oily-looking clouds are a sign of rain and an increase of streaks and patches of white clouds on the horizon, after a stretch of nice weather, means a change with wind and rain.

These are some of the generalities of the clouds and the significance of their formation.

Books have been written about the weather yet there is nobody who can predict the weather with 100 per cent accuracy. For this reason it is always wise to play it safe.

Happy boating . . . and fishing, too.
