WHAT HAPPENED TO THE FAT GUY IN THE SILK HAT?

You really have to be about thirty-eight or forty to even remember the fat guy in the silk hat. All the cartoonists used to show him every Labor Day, back in Calvin Coolidge's time, shaking hands with a brawny young fellow in a blacksmith's apron. The fat guy wore striped pants and a diamond stickpin along with his silker. He was supposed to be "Capital", and on every other day except Labor Day these same cartoonists showed him and "Labor" (the blacksmith) whanging each other over the head with knobby clubs. On Labor Day "Capital" and "Labor" were supposed to love each other. But it was like showing a Georgia planter shaking hands with General Sherman.

We haven't seen the fat guy around lately. Might be because silk sats are out of style. But the real reason is probably because things are much, much different these days.

Bankers still finance business. But then they turn around and get the money to do it by selling stocks and bonds and such to insurance agents and apple growers and school teachers and others and fellows with union cards like the young man here who wears a tee-shirt to work instead of a blacksmith's apron and plays golf in it on Saturdays. Capitalists are just people nowadays and if you own one share of AT&T or a life insurance policy or even a Series E bond you are a capitalist.

This, of course, is just one of the amazing facets of the revolution that's happened here in the USA since 1925 or so. Workers and capitalists and consumers and even managers are turning out to be the same fellow with a different suit on. Joe Workman buys stock to finance a plant expansion that will eventually raise his take home pay. That same plant expansion is necessary because he himself is buying so much of his company's product that three new assembly lines are needed. That in turn means a call for more foremen, supervisors and managers and so he (or his kid or his brother) goes to night school and maybe ends up in Sales or Engineering.

So maybe that's why Labor Day parades aren't as big or popular as they used to be. Joe Workman is out of town, driving his Mercury or Buick Century or else he is too busy putting the finishing touches on his new recreation room, complete with hi-fi and TV. We're kind of glad it's that way. We never did like fat guys in silk hats.

VIEWS and NEWS

from our Congressman BOB POAGE

August 25, 1961

Dear Friends:

All of my life I have been taught that the Blackland belt of Central Texas was an especially rich and favored area. I still believe that it is, but I recognize that in recent years we have suffered a serious decline in our agricultural productivity.

We can offer many different explanations of this situation, but the fact remains that agriculture is absolutely basic to Central Texas. We have done very well in the development of industry. We have the Alco plant at Rockdale, the American Desk Company at Temple, the General Fire plant at Waco, and a whole lot of smaller plants. We have been most fortunate in securing government financed operations.

We have the largest military post in Texas at Fort Hood. We have the training ground for the National Guard of the Southwest at Noth Fort Hood. We have one of the very few remaining flying training schools at James Conley Air Force Base. We have a tactical base at Gray Air Force Base and a special weapons depot at Killeen Base. We have the Air Force Solid Missiles Plant at McGregor operated by Rocketdyne. We have the operational headquarters of 12th Air Force at Waco. We have one of the five regional Veterans' headquarters at Waco and more Veterans' Hospitals than any other Congressional district in Texas at Waco, Marlin and Temple. We have the headquarters of the Soil Conservation Service at Temple and are moving the headquarters of Farm Home Administration there. We have Lake Whitney in Bosque County, Lake Belton in Bell County, are building Lake Waco in McLennan County and expect to start on the Stillhouse Hollow Lake in Bell County soon. We have hundreds of miles of federally financed highways and numerous flood prevention projects. Our district is served by seven local Electric Co-ops and has the headquarters of the Brazos Electric Power Cooperative and of the Brazos River Authority. We cannot blame any lack of progress on the failure of the Federal Government to recognize our district.

If business is not all that we would like, it must be due to our agricultural stagnation. While our cotton production per acre in Central Texas has remained nearly stationary, much of West Texas has doubled its per acre yield. While we have been returning $150 per acre farm land to grass, East Texas has been transferring land worth not more than $30 to equally good pastures.

I do not feel that our situation can be blamed on our farmers. They need help from both government and local business. Our research agencies must develop new crops and new techniques for handling existing crops. Heretofore, there has been a disposition to assume that the Blacklands were so rich that there was no need for such work. At last our agricultural people are beginning to recognize the problem. There will be an important meeting at A & M College early in September. The new Administrator of FHA, Mr. Cappelman, has assured me he is going to give special attention to the problem of the Blacklands. I am asking other agencies to concentrate on this "problem" area. I believe that if we all recognize the problem and work at it that we can make Central Texas again the most productive part of Texas. Newsom's niece.

ANTIGUA - Jewel of the Leewards

CALYPSO CLOWNS—On the island of Antigua in the West Indies, visitors are often greeted by these gaudily dressed, masked clowns who do a calypso routine that means "Welcome to Antigua." And a welcome to Antigua is an invitation to all the pleasures found in the land of sun, sea and sand, where superb fine-sand beaches that ring the island are washed by the blue-green waters of the Caribbean Sea under an ever-present sun. Discovered by Columbus in 1493 and named after a church in Seville, Antigua is one of the jewel-like string of islands that stretch in a gentle crescent from the north coast of South America to just below the tip of Florida. The growing numbers of visitors who arrive by the frequent prop-jet service of British West Indian Airways from either Miami or New York also find a complete diversion from sea, sand and sun at Nelson's Dockyard on the south coast. Hours can be spent roaming through the 16 buildings that comprise an eighteenth century English naval base, including the Admiral's House where Admiral Horatio Nelson lived while stationed at the Dockyard.

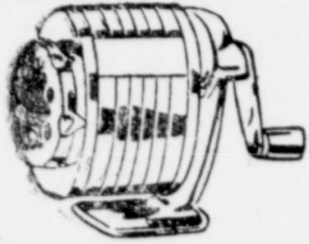

Maui is one of the four major resort islands in the Hawaiian chain.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

In what is undoubtedly the most comprehensive survey ever undertaken of Main Street sentiments on taxation problems, the National Federation of Independent Business has completed and sent to the White House, Congressional Committee's, Treasury Dept. and other governmental agencies a 240 page report.

The district chairmen of the Federation were asked to vote on the ten parts of the President's proposed tax program, and invited to make additional comments.

Approximately 1,000 of the total number of district chairmen replied. Each of them are engaged in independent business or professional practice covering the entire field of commercial activity from manufacturing, wholesaling, retailing and services. The returns from 50 states and the District of Columbia were about in ratio to their populations.

54.9% expressed favor of the proposed tax incentive program which would provide for a different method of depreciation write-offs to encourage business to expand.

Yet only 22.3% were in favor of the proposal to levy a withholding tax against interest and dividends, and only 18.4% favored the repeal of the provision that now permits the first $50 in income from dividends and interest to be tax free, and the additional credit of 4% on dividend income in excess of $50.

In volunteered comments, there is expressed considerable and often quite bitter resentment over U. S. policy on foreign matters. 71.3% voted for the proposal to compel U. S. firms with foreign plants to pay U. S. taxes on the undistributed earnings of these plants. And likewise, by a majority of 57.6% the president's proposal that such tax be deferred on U. S. plants operating in so-called "under-developed" countries was voted down.

While 54.2% voted against the president's proposal to change the ruling on capital gains from the sale of depreciable property by having the profit computed on such a sale on the actual original price rather than the depreciated value, 93.4% are in favor of the President's recommendations to tax cooperatives.

Although by time survey was tabulated, Congress had already voted a one year extension of present corporation and excise tax rates, only 39.3% favored such a move.

Of the ten tax proposals, half were favored, the other half not favored.

While the Federation is not committed on these votes, as it requires a vote by the full national membership of the organization, it is quite probable that these district chairmen, closely in touch with the independent business sentiments in all parts of the country, voted in much the same way a full membership ballot would turn out. But one thing seems obvious. There will not be much employment supplying expansion of the nation's vast independent business complex until there are substantial reforms in the crazy-quilt tax laws.

100 Years of Reunion 1861 - 1961

THE CIVIL WAR CENTENNIAL

By Dayton Kelley

Mary Hardin-Baylor College
Just 100 years ago, on July 21 1861, the Northern and Southern armies met in the first full-scale battle of the Civil War. The meeting took place at a little-known spot in Virginia called Manassas, and in the South the battle took its name from that little town.

In the North, however, the battle came to be called Bull Run, a name derived from Bull Run Creek, the small stream which meanders through the battlefield area.

Just 100 years later, on July 22, 1961, the non-profit First Nanassas Corporation sponsored a re-enactment of that first full-scale land battle before the first of a crowd of spectators numbering more than 70,000.

The re-enactment was the first ces planned during the centennial of the dozens of grand observan- years of the War and cost upward of $200,000. It required the participation of more than two thousand uniformed men 24 horse drawn cannon, dozens of wagons and caissons, and hundreds of other items of authentic paraphernalia used by both Union and Confederate soldiers.

The re-enactment began with uniformed Confederate and Union regimental units, passing the stands in a grand review.

Only the more important incidents of the battle were re-enacted and perhaps the most colorful of these was the "Bee Incident," during which Confederate General Thomas J. Jackson received his nickname of "Stonewall." The name was given him by General Barnard E. Bee and General Jackson has been called "Stonewall" ever since.

The afternoon phase of the Battle was highlighted by an artillery duel which saw the Union guns captured by Confederates who were mistaken for Federal troops. The commander of one of the Union batteries, seeing gray-clad troops moving toward his position ordered his guns trained upon them. They chief of artillery who happened to be present, countermanded the order in the belief that the gray-clad troops belonged to the 14th Brooklyn Regiment who also were wearing gray.

The Confederates, who were really members of the 33rd Virginia Regiment were allowed to get within 70 yards of the Union batteries and a single volley decimated the Federal troops and allowed their capture.

Later in the afternoon of the one-day battle the batteries were recaptured by the Federals but Confederate reinforcements arriving on the field turned the tide and Union troops retreated toward Washington leaving the South as the victor in the first big battle of the War.

Each of the incidents was re-enacted with appropriate sound effects including rifle firing and loud cheering to lend authenticity. Both the review and the re-enactment were covered by a professional commentator who, speaking from a prepared text, gave a running account of events for spectators.

One important incident connected with the Battle of First Manassas, however, was not re-enacted. That is the stampede of high government officials and their wives who had driven out from Washington to the battle of 1861.

YOUNG FARMERS IN EVANT ORGANIZE CLUB

The Young Farmers organized members of the Liberty Ladies Club on its 40th anniversary, Thursday, it was August 21st, 1921 - that the club was organized. Nine ladies met on the front porch of the Elam Ranch home to organize a Home Demonstration Club. The meeting had been called by Mrs. La Feck, under the instruction of the county's first Home Demonstration Agent Mrs. Georgia Latwell, of Evant, (now Mrs. Curmean of Hico). Those present were Mesdames W. N. Elam, Ma Feck, L. C. Perryman, J. D. Hedgpath, Joe Glaze, Lillie Jeffers Blair, Kate Parrish, Bess Brown, and Miss Grace Elam. Seven of these members are still living, one each in California, Stephenville and Gatesville. Of the four still living at Liberty, 3 were present. The Liberty Club has quite a record. It has never disbanded during its 40 years.

The club did Home Demonstration work for 31 years. It discontinued this program when the District Agent forbade the County Agent crossing the county line into Coryell. About half of our members were in each county. Rather than divide, and form two clubs the group decided to go social - As such a club, Liberty is still going strong.

The ladies were very happy to have with them their first presidentam, Chickamauga, Chattanooga and other minor skirmishes and battles.

dent, Mrs. L. C. Perryman, who is convalescing from a recent illness. Mrs. Perryman has missed very few meetings, and she has served as president longer than any other three members.

For Mrs. Parrish, each lady pieced a colorful tulip quilt block.

The meeting will be with Mrs. Clovis Belvin, September 12.

Sandwiches, cookies and iced tea were served to Mes. Belle Laxson, Clivis Belvin, Herbert McCarver, L. A. Brefer, L. C. Perryman, Gayle Calhoun, J. O. HORNETS HANG 14-0 DEFEAT ON LAMPASAS

A tough defense and the running of fullback Jerry Gilcrest boosted Gatesville's Hornets to a 14-0 victory over the Lampasas Badgers here Friday night.

The Hornet defenders were double tough, limiting the Badgers to five first downs and only 34 yards rushing.

Meanwhile, Gatesville was racking up plenty of yardage of its own. With Gilcrest and halfback Sammy Petty supplying most of the punch, the Hornets ground out 344 yards rushing and 21 first downs.

The game was decided in the first half.

Gilcrest scored Gatesville's first touchdown of the 1961 season in the first quarter, bursting off left tackle for 21 yards. It capped a drive that covered 58 yards in seven plays.

Petty added the two-pointer with a plunge through the line.

The Hornets wrapped it up in the second period. Again, Gilcrest got the six-pointer, slicing off left tackle for six yards. Stanley Everett's kick was no good but Gatesville had its final 14-0 margin.

Lampasas didn't make a serious threat until the fading minutes of the game and then with a flurry of passes from Badger quarterback John Bush, the visitors moved to the Gatesville 17-yard line.

Gatesville threatened again in the third period when they drove to the Lampasas 15 before losing the ball on downs.

Lampasas 140 pound linebacker Bill Perry was the defensive star for the visitors while center Charles Allen paced Gatesville's defense.

Paul Harney Shows Pitching Technique

Proper stance for a short pitch to the green is demonstrated by Paul Harney, one of the top money winners on the professional golf circuit.

Harney recommends placing the right elbow near the hip, hands in front of the clubhead and the feet close together in an open stance. He suggests a five to eight iron, depending on lie and distance to the green. Paul demonstrates how to overcome this and many other difficult situations on the course in a 15 minute color movie, "Trouble Shooting with Paul Harney," produced by the Miller Brewing Co. of Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

For a brighter student tomorrow...

Check your child's home study light tonight!

Homework is easier and less tiring when there is plenty of good light at the study table. Good study light reduces eyestrain and fatigue . . .

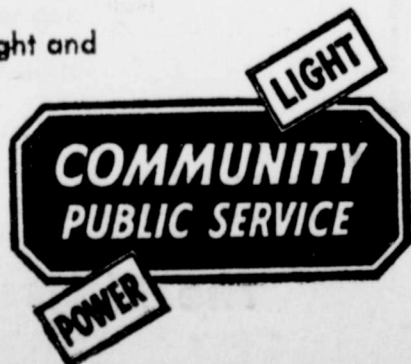

aids concentration and helps students make better grades in school.

For best light from a study table lamp, use a 150-watt bulb. The lamp should be tall enough to spread light evenly over the work area and properly shaded to conceal the light source from the eyes.

A diffusing bowl is recommended to soften the light and prevent glare. Check your child's study light tonight . . . help him be a brighter student tomorrow!
