

CARRANZAS' ANSWER UNDERSTOOD TO PAVE WAY FOR AMICABLE SETTLEMENT OF MEXICAN CRISIS

WITHDRAWAL SUGGESTED, BUT IS NOT DEMANDED

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 4.—A note to the United States from the de facto government of Mexico reached Eliseo Arredondo, Mexican ambassador early today and probably will be delivered to the state department tomorrow. The communication is described by persons close to the embassy as conciliatory in tone and desirous of offering the basis of an amicable settlement of the differences between the two governments.

It is in reply to both the last two notes sent to the de facto government by Secretary Lansing and is said to bring the issue between the two governments down to date.

There is said to be no specific renewal of the demands for recall of the Pershing expedition or threat of attack but at the same time the request of Secretary Lansing for statement of intentions is met by a general discussion of the situation rather than by a direct announcement of purpose.

The Mexican government states that it has accepted in principle the suggestion of mediation by other American republics and invites the United States likewise to record itself. It adds, however, that direct negotiations between the two governments concerned should bring more satisfactory results than conciliation.

Promises to restore order in northern Mexico and to protect American territory from raids are renewed with the suggestion that the presence of American troops on Mexican soil is largely responsible for the trouble and that their withdrawal would go far towards removing the difficulty.

Officials here believe General Carranza himself framed the language of the note as it seems to be much more diplomatic in terms and tone than that in the recent Mexican communication.

Secretary Lansing was told informally of the arrival of the note and what was understood to be its contents. He seemed to be highly gratified pending its delivery to him.

Mr. Arredondo left the embassy soon after the note arrived to spend the independence day holiday at a summer resort. An embassy employee had been directed to give out such information as it was desired to make public before the ambassador should call at the state department.

RUMORS OF WITHDRAWAL STIR BORDER, ARE NOT CONFIRMED

By Associated Press.

El Paso, July 4.—Bowlidement as complete as it was undisguised filled the border today after opportunity had been given thoroughly to digest the significance of the latest developments in the Mexican situation.

While the uninterrupted stream of national guardsmen that is being rushed to border points encouraged those who believe a break with the Carranza government is near, rumors of the imminent abandonment of General Pershing's punitive expedition did much to soften their asserion.

The latest withdrawal rumor came from Columbus and although unconfirmed was given much serious consideration as it is said to have come from the expedition itself. According to the Columbus report, Carranza's forces will be withdrawn as soon as the disposition of national guardsmen along the line is complete.

To avert Carranza's intervention, it is reported to see in the division of the border authority among the Generals Funston, Pershing and Bell, and the possibility that a commanding officer would be named to direct the movements along the border, and indication that the government had no intention of abandoning the Pershing expedition. In this connection it was pointed out to El Paso, anticipation of trouble here began to lessen with the arrival of the first guardsmen and disappeared entirely with the announcement that a brigade of field artillery will be organized here. In Juarez everything is reported peaceful with officials hopeful that the first chief will find a way to placate the United States.

Interest was high in a statement given out at Chihuahua City last night by General Trevino, who cited instances of the de facto government's campaign against banditry and the disposal of his troops to crush out lawlessness as proof that his government means to comply with the conditions set forth by the United States as necessary to the withdrawal of the punitive expedition. The fact that the statement was given out at a time believed to be opportune to affect the government at Washington was believed to be a part of General Carranza's plan to avert war.

Extra precautions were taken by civil and military authorities here to preserve peace on Independence Day. El Paso will have an eminently "safe Fourth" but no chance will be taken that any unlighted case of too exuberant Americans will mar the peaceful status quo.

No announcement has been made by army officials of the observance of the Fourth outside of the usual call to the colors.

Corporal Frank Cooke of the Tenth cavalry, survivor of Carrizal, who was brought to Juarez yesterday, was turned over to the American military authorities here. Cooke's transfer passed almost unnoticed. Lieutenant C. Moore, aide to General Bell, met an aide of General Francisco Gonzales at the international bridge, took over the prisoner and returned to El Paso and placed Cooke in an ambulance that took him to the Fort Bliss hospital.

He was flogged at the fort and his broken arm fractured. Cooke made a statement in which he charged that Mexicans fired the first shot at Carrizal. The story of his adventures after the battle follows:

"I was shot down in the very beginning of the fight. I crawled back, with my arm dragging, to a ditch. There I met Corporal Moore and he helped me. I didn't intend to surrender. I intended to fight my way out. I had a bandage around my arm. I then went back to where the horse-holders had been and made a fire. I then went out for the place where we had camped the night before.

"I didn't even know the place where the rancid interventionists purported to see in the division of the border authority among the Generals Funston, Pershing and Bell, and the possibility that a commanding officer would be named to direct the movements along the border, and indication that the government had no intention of abandoning the Pershing expedition. In this connection it was pointed out to El Paso, anticipation of trouble here began to lessen with the arrival of the first guardsmen and disappeared entirely with the announcement that a brigade of field artillery will be organized here. So long as that flag shall bear aloft its glittering stars, bearing them amidst the din of battle and waving them triumphantly above the storms of the ocean, so long shall the rights of American citizens be preserved safe and unimpaired.

WICHITANS MARCH FOR PREPAREDNESS, NOTABLE DEMONSTRATION IS STAGED

More than 1500 Wichitans—old and young, male and female, black and white—displayed their patriotism and their demand for preparedness this morning, in a parade which formally opened the Fourth of July celebration here.

Hundreds of marchers and scores of decorated cars took part in the demonstration, which compared favorably with similar affairs in other cities. In spite of a burning hot sun, there was no lack of enthusiasm and participation was on a large scale.

Marchers to the number of more than 400 tramped the line of the parade with their various organizations, headed by the Rotary Club. Behind these came scores upon scores of decorated cars with schemes in which beauty, vigor and patriotism were blended in a most effective way. The uniforms of the Boy Scouts, the Women of the World in line, the uniform rank of the Woodmen was in evidence and presented an inspiring spectacle. Of the labor unions the painters and the glass workers were most in evidence, while the railroad men turned out for a good showing, though far less than some of them had hoped. Numerous candidates for office were also present.

Of automobiles there were several more than 100, with a great variety of decorations. A big battery of Wichita trucks, some of them destined for Europe and other foreign lands brought up the rear.

The negroes made good with their promise of a parade, there being about 150 of all ages in line, headed by a band. The negroes received much applause as they marched.

Among the cars were those of Harold Carpenter, a Chalmers designed to represent a submarine; a military car of the Boy Scouts with an airplane and machine gun; a beautiful red, white and blue car of C. W. Reid with Uncle Sam and Columbia; a boat by the Merchants' association, showing Uncle Sam guarding the flag. There was, even a caliche, not a real one, but one couldn't tell the difference by listening to it.

Many preparedness and patriotism songs were followed in the designs on the cars and boats, and the decision of the judges was difficult to reach. The first prize for the most patriotic, decorated car went to C. W. Reid, second to the car occupied by S. P. Sproule and the Boy Scouts. Mrs. Cullinan's car, in which she and a number of ladies, attired as Red Cross nurses, were seated, received honorable mention. Miss Kemp's car, a beautiful arrangement in purple and white, won the prize for the most prettily decorated car. The second prize in this class went to Misses Tempe and Abbie Thompson, the painters and paperhangers won the first prize among the unions and the bricklayers were second.

The movement for a preparedness parade was started about a month ago, but definite action was not taken until about two weeks later, when the Chamber of Commerce became sponsor for the affair and agreed to take care of the necessary expenses. Since then plans have been proceeding steadily and rapidly.

GERMANS OFFER STOUT RESISTANCE TO ALLIES

British Retain Gains With Difficulty But French Are Able To Consolidate

The Associated-Press summarizes European war operations as follows:

Halting after their initial rush, the British and French are busy consolidating their positions in the field of their new offensive on the western front. The Germans seemingly have given the French ample opportunity to accomplish this object, but the Teutonic attacks on the British lines further north have been heavy and frequent.

Under the German pounding the British, while able to hold the captured town of Laiselle, lost a position of the defensive position south of it. Still further down the line they captured a wood and some prisoners, besides war material.

Meanwhile the Germans are keeping up their attacks on Verdun. Six successive assaults were launched upon the Thiamont works which the French recently recaptured but Paris declares that possession of the entire position was retained. For their part General Nivell's troops made progress near Fumini wood and Damloup works.

On the eastern front Petrograd announces a severe defeat for the Austro-German forces southwest of Lutsk.

PEACE MOVE INAUGURATED BY LABOR MEN

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 4.—Labor leaders of the United States and Mexico today believed that they had started a popular movement to avert war with Mexico by assisting each to understand the difficulties of the others.

The movement was launched by issuance of a statement signed by officers of the American council of labor and representatives of organized labor in Mexico urging people of both nations to make strenuous efforts to avoid war.

The labor men proposed that the governments of each nation appoint a "commission to be composed of high minded citizens, fully representative of our nation, to consider differences that have brought our nations to the verge of war and to make such recommendations for adjustment as shall benefit our rank, express the highest ideals of the great rank and file of the citizenship of the world.

MOBILIZATION OF NATIONAL GUARD CONTINUES STEADILY.—NO REPORTS OF FURTHER ARE RECEIVED EARLY TODAY.

OFFICERS SKEPTICAL

Do Not Credit Unconfirmed Reports of Early Withdrawal of Pershing Expedition and Consider Such a Step Unlikely.

San Antonio, Tex., July 4.—As yet not in receipt of orders to relinquish any part of his command, General Funston continued today the direction of mobilization of national guardsmen from the Gulf of Mexico to lower California.

The usual routine reports from General Pershing are from commanding officers along the 1500 miles of border line continued to arrive and from the desk of the chief of staff went forth the customary batch of orders. Early morning information reaching General Funston indicated an early withdrawal of General Pershing's troops.

Army officers were frank in their skepticism concerning the reports that the administration is planning an early withdrawal of General Pershing's troops. The reports are regarded as mere indications of preparation for war that of any yielding to demands for withdrawal.

The sentence was suspended by Judge Bonner pending the good behavior of defendant.

SIGNIFICANCE OF FOURTH OF JULY

TODAY IS 130TH ANNIVERSARY OF
AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE DECLARATION.

STORY IS RECALLED

Some Discrepancies Have Been Found
In Connection With Famous Document.

Today is being observed throughout the 48 states of the American Union, in Alaska, Panama, Hawaii, the Philippines and wherever the American flag waves, as the 130th anniversary of American independence. In this connection something of the history of the occasion may prove of interest.

July the fourth is now a holiday commemorating the birth of a nation, for on that date in 1776 the continental congress of the thirteen colonies of America adopted the declaration of independence which proclaimed them free and independent states, absolved from all allegiance to the British crown.

The original of this "birth certificate," written by hand on parchment, is now, much worn and faded, is preserved carefully in an airtight and light proof case in the library of the department of state at Washington. Only facilities are available for the original being far too precious a document to risk in the light and air.

History of Drafting.
A facsimile of the declaration is on exhibition in the division of history in the older building of the national museum at Washington, where there are also preserved personal relics and mementos of several of the signers of the second continental congress who signed this great resolution.

The history of the origin and drafting of the declaration is of interest in the second continental congress, which was meeting in Philadelphia, Richard Henry Lee of Virginia on June 7, 1776, introduced the following resolution, which was seconded by John Adams:

Resolved, That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved.

That it is expedient forthwith to take the most effectual measures for forming foreign alliances.

That a plan of confederation be prepared and transmitted to the respective colonies for their approbation.

Agreed to on July 4.
Consideration of this resolution was postponed, and on June 11 Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Sherman, and R. R. Livingston were appointed a committee to prepare a declaration to serve as a preamble to this independence resolution.

This committee, known as the Jefferson committee, submitted a draft of the declaration on June 28, which was laid on the table for later consideration. On July 1 congress, sitting as a committee of the whole to consider the resolution respecting independence, agreed thereto and reported it to congress.

On July 2 the resolution itself was adopted by congress and the declaration was considered by the committee of the whole, being again taken up the next day, July 3.

On July 4 the declaration, which included the first paragraph of the resolution, was agreed to by the committee of the whole, reported to congress, and adopted.

Independence Declared.
The independence of the United Colonies was thus declared, and thereupon congress immediately ordered that the declaration be authenticated and printed under the supervision of the committee previously appointed to prepare it, and that copies thereof be distributed to all state assemblies and to the commanding officers of the army.

In accordance with the above order the declaration was issued as a printed broadside on July 5, with the heading: "In Congress, July 4, 1776. A Declaration by the Representatives of the United States of America in General Congress Assembled."

It bore the name in print of John Hancock, president of the congress, and was attested by Secretary Charles Thomson, but bore no other names.

On July 19 it was resolved in congress: "That the declaration passed on the 4th be fully engrossed on parchment, with the title and style (style) of the unanimous declaration of the thirteen United States of America," and that the same, when engrossed, be signed by every member of congress.

Discrepancies Are Shown.
It could not have been headed "Unanimous" on July 4, for the New York delegates had not been authorized to agree to it, and it was not until July 15 that it was announced in the continental congress that the assembly of New York had approved the declaration and thus made it unanimous.

On August 2, 1776, the Declaration of Independence, being engrossed and compared, was signed by the members; those who were not present on August 2 affixing their signatures at later dates, all but one signing before January 15, 1777.

It had been ascertained that of the fifty-six signers, more than one-fourth were not present on July 4, 1776, and seven of them—Thomson, Williams, Rush, Clymer, Smith, Taylor, and Ross—were not members on that date. On the other hand, seven members on that date—George Clinton, John Adams, R. R. Livingston, Henry M. Visser, Thomas Willing, Charles Humphreys, and John Rogers—had not the privilege of becoming "signers," for the membership of all but one had ceased prior to August 2.

Four Copies In Existence.
The first official issue of the declaration bearing the names of the signers was printed as a broadside in Baltimore under the resolution of January 18, 1777, ordering that copies be sent to each of the United States. There are only four copies of this issue now known to exist, one of which is in the library of congress at Washington. It is authenticated in writing by John Hancock as president of the congress and attested by Secretary Thomson.

Contrary to popular opinion therefore, it is seen that the declaration was not signed on July 4, the day it passed, but between August 2, 1776, and January 15, 1777, after it had been engrossed and compared, and then only by fifty-five members, all of whom were ordered to do so by the resolution passed July 15, 1776.

The name of Thomas McKean, which does not appear among the signers in the printed copy, was added later possibly not until 1781, making the fifty-sixth signer.

Little has ever been done to perpetuate memory of these fifty-six early Americans, only a few of whom are well known, but it is interesting to know that the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, in cooperation with the Society of Descendants of the Signers, is locating the graves of those patriots and preparing a memorial volume to include a biography of each individual.

The collections in the national museum include relics pertaining to the lives of those who signed. They are John Hancock, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Matthew Thornton, Oliver Wolcott, Charles Carroll, Benjamin Franklin, Elbridge Gerry and Samuel Chase.

San Johnson Favors Barring Pinch Hitters and Relief Pitchers in Games.

By Associated Press.
New York, July 3.—That the big league baseball magnates are studying ways and means to make the game still more attractive to its patrons is evidenced by several suggestions and innovations now being discussed in order that the casual and national circuits. The Cleveland club of the American League has just inaugurated a system of numbering the players in order that the casual attendant at the games may have no difficulty in identifying the different members of the team.

President E. B. Johnson is openly advocating the elimination of the pinch hitter and the system now in vogue of shifting pitchers upon the slightest pretext.

There appears to be a strong sentiment among the fans in favor of the plan of numbering the players. It is surprising how few of the average spectators can point out with absolute certainty the various players upon the field, especially the members of the visiting club. Certain stars, such as Ty Cobb, Johnny Evers, Benny Kauff, Walter Johnson, Grover Alexander and others of similar calibre are easily distinguished when the team is in the field. Players of lesser fame, however, are frequently mixed by those spectators who do not attend games regularly, and the numbering of each member, both regular and substitute, should increase interest in the game.

Certain close followers of baseball have already suggested that the numbering innovation be extended to include the distribution of free score cards containing concise rulings for keeping a box score, in order that every spectator be encouraged to follow the play with a keener understanding of what is transpiring on the diamond.

There is not the same unanimity regarding the proposed rule to eliminate the pinch hitter and relief pitchers as there is among the fans. The idea with certain limitations would improve the game while others are equally positive that it would remove some of the most interesting features of baseball—strategy—which has been developed to a high standard in the big leagues.

To those who derive pleasure from the surface of the national sport the battle of wits between managers and players is keenly appreciated. The watching of baseball is a mental effort into sport as well as business.

The announcement by Rube Oldring that he is through with baseball marks the passing of another Philadelphia Athletics player who helped make the Philadelphia Athletics famous in a few years. Oldring who is 32 years old, began his baseball career with a semi-professional team at the age of 20 and later was sold to the Athletics by the Montgomery Club of the Southern League. In 1909 he was drafted by the New York Americans and the following season awarded to the Athletics where under Connie Mack he played for a period of ten years.

During his first year with the Athletics he played third base after which he was moved to the outfield where he became a fixture. His best batting year was in 1910 when he hit .303. During his connection with the Athletics he helped in the winning of four American League championships and three world's championships.

The crusade inaugurated by the officials of the New York American League Baseball Club against the habit of certain spectators in retaining foul balls knocked into the stands has come into their possession in satisfactory results. The example made recently by the arrest and fining of a few spectators who refused to return foul balls into their possession has proved salutary and the club is now using fewer balls than was the case before the effort was made to curb the practice.

The officials state that they were forced to take action as a result of the number of baseballs lost during every game. While the loss is on the grounds, it is estimated that close to 3,000 balls are used during the season and at $1.25 each they represent an outlay of more than 3,500 each year. A considerable percentage of these balls are lost in the manner described. While the loss is on the road, no difficulty is experienced in this direction as the parks of other cities are guarded by regular police and not special officers such as in the case in New York.

It was necessary to throw the ladies to the smokers in order to find room for these. C. L. of college players who have made good on variety diamonds this season. While the antics of the various leagues have been rather liberal in their recommendations it is not likely that many of these youngsters will be able to successfully make the leap from the college team to the big league combinations. Both the Philadelphia Athletics and the New York Giants are at present trying out several of the more promising of the variety recruits and it may be that one or two will stand the test.

The Giants will give Pitcher Geo. Smith of Columbia, Pitcher Way of Yale and Second Baseman Stafford of Tufts a try out and hope to develop at least one of the trio before the season closes. Connie Mack has a team mate of Stafford's in Carroll, former catcher for Tufts, and Pitcher Johnson of Duquesne working with the team. Other clubs have added a collection of two to their rosters within the past week or two but owing to the closeness of the race in the two leagues are loath to use them in the play at this time.

Wichita Falls boys who have joined the New Mexico national guard and who are now on duty at Camp Furlong, near Columbus, are making good and have little of which to complain, according to First Lieut. W. W. Noe, who writes The Times about them.

Lieut. Noe says the parents of the boys need suffer no uneasiness. Such things as candy and tobacco will be welcomed by the boys, the lieutenant's letter says, and patriotic Wichitans who wish to provide these comforts for the boys will have an opportunity to do so, as The Times will shortly undertake to collect a substantial amount to be sent to them.

Camp Furlong, Columbus, N. M., June 30.—We arrived in camp Friday, June 16 at 5:30 p. m., and found supper awaiting us. We rested up two days and then our physical examination began.

"We have had it mighty easy so far, with very little drilling. We took the oath and were mustered into the federal service at 7:15 p. m., June 21 and I am proud to say that not a man showed the white feather; all held up their right hands and we all became United States soldiers on that date.

"We are fed well, and the treatment is good, with shower baths, medical attention, etc. We go on outpost duty every fifth night; we have about 25 prisoners to guard at the guard house and four outposts stations southeast of town on the border.

"We have all been vaccinated against smallpox and inoculated against typhoid and typhus fever. Some of the boys have sore arms from same, outside of that there is no sickness, all are learning to soldier, and getting tanned from the sun.

"We hear reports of bands of Mexicans or some other rumor every day but none of them has been proved true, they being only idle rumors. We have no idea how long we will remain here, but all are eager to receive orders to go across the border.

"I will say to the parents of these boys that they need not have any uneasiness about their sons; they are all fine and doing well, and will return home in a few days.

"The boys all appreciate The Times. I have been allowed the privilege of making some appointments of non-com officers and will treat the boys from Wichita Falls fair in these appointments of course, and efficiency count."

cently was that of J. L. Ogden and family of Harris county, enroute to see relatives in Nebraska and following the Meridian highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden and their seven-year-old son, "Billie," traveled in a Hudson, with a trailer in which their extra clothing, food and gasoline was carried.

When sight came and caught the tourists on the road they picked out a convenient spot, unrolled the canvas tent and set the pegs, no poles being necessary.

It required about two minutes, Ogden said, to set up a big, roomy tent. A gasoline cook stove was used for preparing meals. Mr. Ogden said that he and every one of the family he gained appreciably in weight since they left home nearly three weeks before reaching here.

lishmen who were in their hearts more loyal to the crown than were half the residents of England. Few of those men realized until independence was declared that they had cut themselves off from the mother country. They were in no sense Americans. Other wars have been much the same. Even in the war between the States there were concerned more than a cent of men of foreign and mixed birth, even leaving out of consideration the levies who fought on the Union side for love of money only. Men of foreign birth have been the backbone of the armies of the United States in the days of the Revolution. They have furnished the money and the brains that kept the ship of state on her way and many a foreigner has been averted through their deep knowledge of financial affairs. Many of these men were the skilled mechanics who built the ships, the millwrights who made the machinery, the gunsmiths who made the arms, the blacksmiths who made the tools, the carpenters who made the buildings, the masons who built the walls, the bricklayers who laid the bricks, the painters who painted the houses, the plumbers who fixed the pipes, the electricians who fixed the wires, the mechanics who fixed the machines, the farmers who raised the food, the laborers who did the heavy work, the soldiers who fought the battles, the sailors who sailed the ships, the pilots who steered the vessels, the engineers who designed the machines, the inventors who discovered the secrets of nature, the scientists who studied the laws of the universe, the philosophers who sought the truth, the poets who sang of the glories of the past, the historians who wrote the books of the future, the statesmen who guided the nation, the judges who interpreted the law, the lawyers who defended the innocent, the doctors who healed the sick, the nurses who cared for the dying, the teachers who educated the young, the parents who raised the children, the friends who comforted the sorrowing, the neighbors who helped the needy, the citizens who made the nation what it is today.

ment of the troops, especially the militia; to the protection of their good health; and to immunize them from the grave climatic dangers which will confront them. No such lengthy preparations were necessary seventy years ago, when the first Mexican war was fought. But if there is to be a real war at this time, it will not be such a struggle as that of 1846. Eight thousand soldiers are not going to sweep through Mexico like a deluge of destruction, carrying all before them, and storm the heights of Chapultepec in less than a year from the time the shot is fired. While it will not be a war of extermination, it will not be a war of annihilation, and while it will not remotely resemble a struggle with a great power, there will be some very serious obstacles to be encountered and there will be many thousands of lives lost before the inevitable and foreordained victory is accomplished. These all other considerations consistent with winning the final victory will be subordinated to the preservation of the lives of the American soldiers in a foreign conclusion; and from this point of view the services of black troops would be of special value, since they could withstand tests to which white men, particularly those from the colder states of the North, would necessarily succumb in much larger numbers. This much may be said however, in discussing a problem which is at the best conjectural, that the negro has always proved his worth as a fighting man and that doubtless he will continue to do so. Something is really due him by way of affording him the opportunity to avenge the black heroes who gave lives for their country, away down there in the "land of tomorrow."—Kansas City Journal.

The last few weeks have been busy days for the national congress, with the prospect that the next few weeks will be no less busy ones. Legislation of the utmost importance is being formulated and pushed through congress. The great majority of the members are remaining in their seats in order to facilitate this legislation and are letting their personal campaigns for re-election or re-election take care of themselves. In ordinary times it is right and proper that congressmen should return to their districts to present their records and their views to their constituents. But in times like the present there can be no criticism, and rather ought they to be praised, if they elect to remain in their seats in order to further the legislative program of the administration.

NOT A NATION OF AMERICANS

Once in a speech before a representative "American" audience one of the most noted orators of the country asked, "Is this a Christian nation?" He answered it in the same breath. What he was implying upon his hearers was that the Jews have done much more than their fair share in the building of America.

NEGROES FOUGHT NOBLY

The history of America's "Tenth Legion," may not be so replete with the glories of historic splendor as was that of Caesar, but it has written some illustrious pages in the volume of American heroism and has proved that there is no cold line in bravery. The black men in the ranks will have their names written in the records of the army side by side with the heroic officers of the Tenth Cavalry who took part in the Carrizal ambush. The demand which was made for the release of the prisoners taken at Carrizal was for the release of men whose skins are black but whose valor is as "white" as that of any man who ever wore the uniform.

REPORTS ON REVISION OF JEWISH PRAYER BOOK

By Associated Press. Wildwood, July 4.—At today's session of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, Rabbi Phillips, of Cincinnati presented the report of the committee on revision of the Union Prayer Book. It was reported that the committee has made considerable progress in the revision of the Sabbath service and the service for the evening of the three high feasts. A number of prayers which are now lacking in the prayer book are being supplied, and the committee is aiming to provide for a fuller participation by the congregation in the various services than is the case in the present prayer book. The revision of the new Bible translation is being used for all biblical selections in the new book. The committee reported that the entire work might require three years, but it is hoped to have at least the first volume of the new prayer book ready for submission to the conference next summer.

MANY PRISONERS TAKEN BY BRITISH

One Entire Prussian Battalion Surrendered—Considered Satisfactory

By Associated Press. Headquarters in France, July 4.—An entire battalion of the 186th regiment of Prussian infantry recruited from the upper Rhine surrendered yesterday to the British near Fricourt. The prisoners numbered 20 officers and 1,000 men. The battalion had been assigned for duty only a short time before to replace heavy casualties. The British fire was so heavy and the trench occupied by the Prussians was damaged so badly that the men refused to fight longer.

Early Celebrants Carried It too Far of Independence Day

"Did you have a good time?" asked Judge Whitlaw in city court today preparing to fine a party who had just pleaded guilty to being in a state of intoxication. "I guess I did," was the reply. The prisoner also assured the judge that he would not see him again for another year.

Cantrell was lodged in jail to await action of the grand jury.

WELL, I certainly introduced myself to the alert bargain seekers of this town. They saw the Birth of a Notion in Clearance Price Cutting and the way they went after these money-saving snaps; the manner in which they appreciated the economies makes me believe that every clothes buyer in town will like my notions when they once become acquainted with the benefits. If you were not one of "wise ones" that got here Opening Day, "wise up" now because this is by far the greatest bargain event in thoroughly reliable and fashionable apparel that this town has ever seen. I am moving this stock of good clothes and it is going to keep moving until I wind up the entire stock. What's the use of waiting for the other fellow to "pick the plums" when you might just as well get in on the choicest things yourself. Act and benefit—delay and regret! Come in and have a look anyway.

Garlington, local Saxon dealer, yesterday received a telegram from the Ray-Rose Company of Dallas, announcing that in the test started at that place Saturday in connection with the general Saxon test over the country, their car made 24 miles on one gallon of gasoline. The same car for the 300 mile non stop run averaged 21 3/4 miles per gallon, while six cars over the same course averaged 20 65-100 miles per gallon of gasoline.

It was explained that the trip was made over country roads at a time when traffic was heavy and the Dallas company, of course, very much gratified at the result, as also to Mr. Garlington the Saxon "winner" at this place.

not made the little family aware of his station in life, is sent remittance from home; so he goes to live in his father's quarters in the city, taking little Meena's heart with him. Then Meena's father dies, and she goes with all her fortune in a telescope box, to live with her wealthy aunt who lives in New York. Her ruling passion of wanting to have everything scrupulously clean, makes her undertake to scrub the front steps; and here she meets von Ritz, the time coming to pay court to Meena's cousin. He renews his attentions to little Meena, quite ignorant that she is wealthy. But the passing of his country's ambassador reminds him that he should not marry out of his rank. Feeling that he cannot marry her, he still invites her to come with him to a road house outside the city; and there he inveigles her into a private room. But seeing her ignorant of his intentions and trusting him implicitly, his conscience troubles him, and he goes downstairs to fight it out with himself. The outcome of this mental struggle furnishes some of the best moments in a refreshingly human film.

AT THE THEATRES

The Empress... Alice Brady in "The Ballet Girl" is the feature offering; at the Majestic today in addition to this feature one of Bray's cartoons will be shown. "Alice Brady is a most beautiful creature, and we could not watch her by the hour without caring what the play was about or anything else." So writes Hugh Hoffman, the New York critic in a Metropolitan Journal, and every spectator of the World Film Corporation successes in which this charming young emotional actress has appeared, such as "The Race," "The Show," "As Ye Sow," etc. will cordially agree with him. Seldom if ever, in fact, has Miss Brady appeared to such striking advantage and in a role so admirably suited to her charm and dramatic genius as that in which she is seen in "The Ballet Girl" which Lewis J. Selznick, vice president and general manager of the World Film Corporation announces as the latest release of his company. "The Ballet Girl" is a radical departure in the photodrama, presenting an entirely novel side of life. Screen

BAPTISTS DEFEATED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Winning Streak is Broken, as Fore-ordained—Pitcher Strikes Out 12 Men.

That 1000 per cent dream of the Baptist Sunday school league team went up in smoke Monday afternoon when they met defeat at the hands of the Presbyterians. The Baptists got the lead over the Presbyterians in the first inning but the pitcher for the winning team, Arthur Fontaine, pitched ball that was invincible. Fontaine fanned 12 men and was strong in the critical stages.

This was the first defeat of the Baptist aggregation and the first victory for the Presbyterians, who have played three games in the league series. The lineup follows:

Baptists: Soderland, c; Haney, 1b; E. Whitley, ss; Campbell, 3b; Hercher, cf; J. Whitley, 2b; Morgan, rf; Patterson, p.

Presbyterians: Whorton, c; Butts, 1b; Berry, ss; Ward, c; Good, cf; Urban, 1b; Fontaine, p.

THE ART OF BLENDING TEA!

The whole art of successful Tea blending being to combine body and pungency with some particular and distinct flavor in order to please a majority of that portion of the public for whom the Tea is specially prepared, and at the same time to arrange its constituent parts in such a manner that this most desirable result may be obtained at a more moderate cost to the consumer than that of any single higher priced variety. But it must be understood that all combinations of Tea as a rule must depend upon the general character, grade and flavor, most in demand in the particular section or district for which they are intended.

This being the case DON'T IT STAND TO REASON that the best results are to be obtained by the blender who knows the likes and dislikes of his public and the character of the water in which his teas are to be drawn?

Our local experience in Tea blending covers a period of twenty-seven years. We carry a complete line of New Seasons importations and feel we are in a position to meet your most exacting requirements.
