TO RECOGNIZE RUSSIAN SOVIET

FALLS MORE THAN FIVE MILES AFTER BREAKING WORLD RECORD; MIRACULOUSLY ESCAPES DEATH

AMENDMENT IS REFERRED BACK TO OKLA. HOUSE

Senate Passes Measure But Eliminates Emergency Clause of Bill.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 25.—The fate of the federal suffrage amendment is again in the hands of the lower house of the Oklahoma legislature today. That body has under consideration the question of concurrence in the senate's action, taken late yesterday, when it adopted the ratification resolution, but eliminated the emergency clause which would have made it immediately operative.

The measure, with the emergency clause, originated in the lower house where it was adopted and sent to the senate. That body, yesterday, failed to abide by the house example, the vote on the emergency clause being 21 to 17, nine under the necessary two-thirds vote. The ratification resolution, however, was adopted by a vote of 25 to 13.

Following the action of the senate, Governor J. B. Robertson announced the ratification lacked only his signature to be completed. Anti-suffrage leaders, however, declared that, with the emergency clause killed, the measure would refer to the people by petition and in no event could become operative short of 90 days.

Governor Robertson contended there was no way the ratification could be referred, under its status after adoption by the legislature and having received his signature.

Adjournment is expected tonight.

BUSINESS COUNCIL DISCUSSES CAMPAIGN FOR WELFARE FUND

Several matters of importance were taken up at the meeting of the business council of the chamber of commerce Friday evening.

Following the opening of the session by Chairman B. F. Johnson, a discussion was started relative to the campaign of the welfare council, which is scheduled to open next Wednesday. The workers are to go after $10,000 subscription for use in charitable works in this city.

A distinction was made by one of the members concerning the connection of the welfare council with the chamber of commerce. The organization, it was stated, is the outgrowth of a combination of all local charitable organizations under one head, and while it has the support of the chamber of commerce, it is not connected with it.

DAYTON, O., Feb. 28.—Major R. W. Schroeder, chief test pilot who yesterday mounted that in two minutes, after shattering the world's altitude record, miraculously escaping death, lies today in the army hospital near here, recovering from severe injuries sustained when he made another ascent into the heavens at the first opportunity.

Major Schroeder climbed yesterday to a height of 36,020 feet, then plunged downward, more than five miles when he lost control of his machine after his oxygen supply was exhausted. While still 2,000 feet above the ground the aviator, retaining his presence of mind, righted the plane and sailed down to make a graceful landing on McCook field.

When attendants rushed to the flyer's machine after he had landed they found his sitting erect in the plane, blinded and unconscious. His eyeballs had been frozen, the temperature at the height to which he had ascended being 67 degrees below zero.

Tells of the Climb. At the hospital last night Major Schroeder told of the climb to heights never before attained, in the face of a cold, wind and lack of air, and of his determination to mount 40,000 feet above the ground, his objective when he took the air yesterday.

"I was thinking only of my desire to climb 40,000 feet when suddenly my oxygen stopped flowing," he said. "Then all at once, I saw that an explosion took place inside my head. My eyes hurt so that I could not open them and I knew I was falling. I guess I pulled hard on the stick for I knew I must straighten out for a side. The plane rose and I opened my eyes again for a moment and when I opened them I saw Wilburn Wright Field. I knew I could not land there because of the hangars, and tilted my machine for a climb, intending to make sure of a good altitude and then jump with my parachute. But at that instant I saw McCook field and landed." Major Schroeder took the air yesterday forenoon. He climbed above the clouds, but the exhaust gas from his plane, freezing in the frigid temperature, caused a cloudlike formation resembling the tail of a comet to hang in the sky. As the plane was not visible from the earth thousands of Dayton citizens who stood gauging the formation during the noon hour believed it to be the tail of a comet.

"Visitor from Mars." Some of the witnesses inclined to the belief that a strange body was coming to earth with a message from Mars. These beliefs were dispelled, however, by Prof. William Beck, astronomer at St. Mary's College, who observed the airplane through a telescope.

The mark set by Major Schroeder again gives him the record which Roland Roblis won from him July 30, 1919, with an official altitude of 30,300 feet, and later increased in a second flight to 31,000 feet. It also breaks the record of Adjutant Casale, a French pilot, who was credited with an unofficial record of 33,137 feet.

Major Schroeder was dressed heavier than any Arctic explorer who ever set forth. He literally was wrapped in flexible electric heaters. His flying suit was lined with fur of Chinese mink and dog, and between the fur and outer lining flexible electric heat units, connected with the dynamo of the engine, heated the entire suit. His headgear, gloves and moccasins were heated in like manner.

LONDON PAPERS FEATURE NOTES OVER ADRIATIC

Some Refrain From Comment and Others Sharply Criticize the President.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Correspondence between the allied premiers and President Wilson relative to the Adriatic settlement is given much prominence in this morning's London newspapers, but several refrain from commenting on the situation.

"So ends the attempt of Premiers Lloyd-George and Clemenceau to coerce the Jugo-Slavs," says the Times, which throughout has supported President Wilson. "Neither of them has reason to be proud of his effort to bully this small people, which Mr. Wilson has virtually forced them to drop. Mr. Lloyd George and Premier Millerand have rushed into the true path into which the American president has driven them. We imagine he will continue to shepherd them along it, perhaps with a somewhat grim smile."

Mr. Lloyd George and M. Millerand are credited by the Express with "frank sincerity" in conceding Mr. Wilson's point, and the newspaper thinks "the best hope and the best guarantee of peace lies in Italy and Jugo-Slavs reaching a settlement by mutual agreement."

FRENCH WORKERS ORDER A GENERAL RAILWAY STRIKE

Railroad Situation Throughout That Country Considered Near a Crisis.

PARIS, Feb. 28.—Orders for a general railway strike have been issued by the National Federation of Railroad Men. Reports were current last night that this action had been taken, but confirmation could not be obtained until late this afternoon.

Railroad strike conditions throughout France were considered near a crisis this morning and belief was expressed that a breakdown of the strike movement and paralysis of the nation's railway system would ensue during the day.

Operating conditions on the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean line and other roads affected by the walkout of employes seemed to be slightly improved last night.

BANK ROBBERS SHOOT AND KILL PLANO OFFICER

Bandits Obtain Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps—Search for Men.

PLANO, TEX., Feb. 28.—G. W. Rye, city night watchman, was shot and fatally wounded early today in a clash with two robbers whom he encountered as they left the Plano National bank after robbing it.

Rye, who was shot in the stomach, lived 15 minutes. He said the robbers numbered two, but could not say whether they were white men or negroes. The shots aroused the town and search for the bandits was immediately instituted.

Loot obtained by the robbers consisted of Liberty bonds and war savings stamps taken from the deposit boxes of individuals and their value had not been ascertained up to noon. Nearly $50,000 in bonds and stamps had been sent to Dallas by the bank after the recent robbery of a Murphy bank.

FORECAST FOR EARLY ACTION BY UNITED STATES AND THE ALLIES IS MADE BY LEADERS IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States in the near future was predicted today by Senate leaders. Senator Hitchcock, administration spokesman, declared resumption of relations with Russia is "very near."

Senator Borah, Idaho, Republican, predicted recognition of Russia by the allies within 10 days and action by the United States soon afterwards. All sides declared the situation rapidly brought to a climax by the free people of the United States, now throwing out a resolution directing the President to extend friendly relations to Russia at once is pending in the Senate foreign relations committee, but members doubt if any action would be taken at once. They prefer to give the administration a free hand. Senator Francis, author of the resolution, declared, however, that he would press for a hearing at the earliest possible date.

"I believe that the European nations will recognize the Soviet government before the Senate does," declared a European statesman played on our emotions and used them to further their own purposes when they feared Bolshevism. Now that they see Russia is out to form a coalition with Germany and realizes she offers tremendous opportunities for trade, they want to find a way to capture these markets.

It was a blunder for the allies to lose Russia. If the new Russian government had acknowledged responsibility for the bonds held by France there never could have been such anti-Bolshevik feeling in Europe. That was the big mistake the Bolshevists made and I think they should make Europe with something to gain from Soviet Russia, now views the situation from a different attitude. The temper of the Senate has also changed somewhat on this question.

The free people of the United States should welcome the people of Russia as creators of another republic."

As to the much-discussed secret pact of London, the note invites Wilson's co-operation. It insists that this secret agreement by which Italy was to be given valuable concessions in the Adriatic before entering the war on the side of the allies, was necessitated by the military situation at the time it was signed.

Calling the president's attention to the urgency for an early settlement of the dispute the premiers again point out that in event Italy and Jugo-Slavia are able to reach a voluntary agreement, Great Britain and France will again face the Italian demand for enforcement of the London agreement.

The sessions of the council will be continued through next week, it was announced officially.

Premier Nitti, who was reported to have decided to return to Rome today, will remain in London, it was announced. Premier Millerand, who was forced to return to Paris because of the French railway strike will return at the earliest possible time. The council intends to divide its work in two parts. The premiers with their expert advisers will take up unsettled economic and financial problems while the ambassadors and former ministers will continue work on the Turkish and Hungarian treaties and the Adriatic problem.

Some observers saw significance in the conference between Lloyd George and M. Pavlov, former premier of Serbia and one of the leaders in the Jugo-Slav nation. They believed, in view of reports yesterday, that the two leaders may have discussed the reported decision of Italy and Jugo-Slavia to settle the Adriatic dispute by mutual agreement.

NEVER INTENDED TO ACT FINALLY ON THE ADRIATIC

Premiers Disclaim Any Idea of Closing Matter Without Consulting Wilson.

ABSENCE OF AMERICAN AN INSURMOUNTABLE OBSTACLE

Sessions of Council Will Be Continued Through Next Week, Announced.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The Franco-British premiers never intended to act finally on the Adriatic dispute between Italy and Jugo-Slavia without first consulting the United States they assert in their reply to President Wilson's latest communication. The reply, dated February 25, agrees with Wilson that any settlement mutually agreeable to Italy and Jugo-Slavia would be the ideal adjustment. It expresses the willingness of the council of premiers to withdraw its proposals of December 9 and January 29 and again points out that the absence of an American representative in the allies deliberation has proved an insurmountable obstacle.

As to the much-discussed secret pact of London, the note invites Wilson's co-operation. It insists that this secret agreement by which Italy was to be given valuable concessions in the Adriatic before entering the war on the side of the allies, was necessitated by the military situation at the time it was signed.

Calling the president's attention to the urgency for an early settlement of the dispute the premiers again point out that in event Italy and Jugo-Slavia are able to reach a voluntary agreement, Great Britain and France will again face the Italian demand for enforcement of the London agreement.

"I Want My Boy to be an American!"

—Countess Stanislaw Slepownek

"Absurd!" Said the Count, and so His Very Fascinating Countess Who, as a Hospital Nurse, Learned to Admire the American Fighters During the War, Has Given Up Everything, Including Her Husband, to Raise Her Boy Over Here.

Countess Stanislaw Slepownek, from a Photograph Taken When She Was the Pet of Fashionable Paris Society.

By Helen Hoffman

ALL fashionable Paris is agape at the precipitate plunge taken by the charming Countess Stanislaw Slepownek. Her wealthy and aristocratic husband belongs to one of the proudest and oldest titled families in Poland and the countess has given him up together with the enjoyment of a great estate of 12,000 acres near Warsaw, Poland, a magnificent winter villa at Nice, a smart town house in Paris, wonderful jewels, gowns, motors and every other luxury which an annual income of a quarter of a million dollars can afford.

She has renounced everything. Why?

"Because," and these are the countess's own words, "I want my boy to be an American."

"My boy" is the countess's 7-year-old son Charles, who was born abroad and has gravitated back and forth between Poland, France and Italy since he was a baby. In seven years he has acquired some of the characteristic veneer which distinguishes the highly polished European aristocrat from—well, for instance, from the manly, square-shouldered, but unvarnished American youth who marched northward through France by hundreds of thousands driving an invading enemy before him less than two years ago.

Countess Slepownek saw hundreds of these Americans during the war. She met some of the officers in Paris. As a hospital nurse at the front she tended many a wounded doughboy, administering to his wants and admiring his grit. She had, in brief, an excellent opportunity to study Uncle Sam's boys and to form a woman's opinion of their value as representative types.

A Firm Resolve

And then she made up her mind that when her own little son, Charles, grew up he should be as much like a real American as education, environment and daily association with Americans could make him. She and the count would take him to the United States at once and have their son educated there as an American boy. And he would surely develop into a strapping, manly youth just like the Americans she had seen in her beloved France.

Count Slepownek listened to the countess and said the whole thing was simply absurd. He didn't propose to give up his estate, title and social aspirations and emigrate to America just to gratify a foolish whim of his wife. He didn't see why their son Charles, who some day would be a Polish count with vast estates, riches and a coat of arms, should be dragged away from all of this and from every refined influence with which it was possible to surround him, and turned loose in a land overflowing with red Indians, buffaloes and two-gun men. It was unthinkable. It couldn't be done and so, of course, the countess would have to give up the idea.

"I will not," replied the countess. And then, with a promptitude characteristic of an emotional nature, she took the plunge. That was five weeks ago.

Eight days later the countess arrived in New York. She brought young Charles with her and she has placed him in a school where he is learning to become an American. The count was left behind in Paris.

"Ah," sighed the big blue-eyed countess, whose vivacity and high spirits would seem to deny the responsibility of motherhood which she feels so keenly, "it is something very fine to have an ideal, for that I would give up everything, everything."

Happy Pre-War Days

When the Polish count, whose income is conservatively estimated at a quarter of a million dollars annually, met and wooed Mile. Gaby Marcy, eight years ago, she was at the height of stage popularity, being counted one of the most beautiful and talented French actresses, and her admirers were many.

Then her little son was born and every other interest was abandoned for the benefit of the child.

"Ah," she reminded, "a mother's love is the most wonderful thing in the world. For that a woman will do everything."

Following her marriage the countess led a life full of vivacity and color, fitting from one to another magnificent home of the count; from his villa near Nice to the great family estate of 12,000 acres near Warsaw, admired and petted wherever she went by society and peasant alike.

Then the war broke upon this life of sunshine and happiness. With all the ardor and intensity of her race, the young woman threw herself and her fortune into the gigantic struggle. Her wonderful jewels she sold and pawned, for the work she carried on always seemed to make enormous and ever-increasing demands on her fortune.

She organized a mobile hospital of six autos with nurses and doctors, and won fame as a nurse and high patriot of her country. And later in this work came the great revelation of another life, another world, another people, and finally, as the countess herself puts it, an ideal to be realized. The ideal centered around her little son.

"I am a very determined young woman," she explained in her broken English. "I make up my mind quickly. I do the thing."

And those who know this young woman best declare that it is useless to place one's will against hers. It would be a waste of time, and even her husband knew better than to interfere when she announced a few weeks ago at their beautiful home in Paris, that she had decided to take her small son to America to be educated and reared as an American.

"What, you lose your senses?" demanded the irate husband.

"Not at all," she replied. "I only make up my mind. I leave next week."

The count, though of Polish family, has always lived in France, and often laughingly refers to himself as a Frenchman. His horror of long-distance travel is quite typical of the people of his adopted country.

The American Influence

Once his friends urged him to accompany them to England for the great Derby, where one of his thoroughbreds was entered for the race.

"Cross the channel!" he exclaimed, surprised at the suggestion. "It is much too inconvenient. When I can go to England in the tube, ask me, but not till then."

Because of this antipathy for travel his wife's announcement was all the more amazing.

"What," he asked angrily, "you risk my son to the dangers of this travel to a foreign country?"

But the American influence on this sensitive young woman's mind during the war could not be got rid of.

"Ah, I dream of those wonderful Americans I nursed in France. So handsome, so, what you call it, manly? They are superb. Ah, how they can dance, and such bravery!"

"I remember one evening sitting in a fashionable cafe after the war with my husband and another gentleman. Many people were dancing. Up to our table strode a handsome American officer and without formality he asked me to dance with him."

"Ah, la, la! I do not know the man. It is not done in France. A stranger asking a woman to dance when she is with her husband. Mon Dieu! My husband is amazed. I find it jolly. He was a wonderful dancer. The Frenchman? Oh, he does not know how to dance. I know now why that is. He is too lazy to learn and is not keen on exercise, and this is the reason why he does not like athletics."

"The American man is dashing. He is like myself. He makes up his mind quickly to do something. It is done. That is my temperament. That is because we are athletic. I want my son to be like that. I want him to grow up to be like a splendid American. What more could a mother wish?"

"I have heard said that American mothers are the best in the world. That is not true. The French mother is an excellent mother, but she does not have the same authority over her children. It is the husband and father who can say what they must do and how they shall be educated."

And this right, the count feebly attempted to assert in the case of his own son, but all his protests were futile.

"You take a child who speaks only French to a foreign country! Bah, it is ridiculous!" he exclaimed.

"But my child now speaks English. He learns quickly," said the countess. "The other day with his governess he goes to the park. He talks with a little girl there, and comes home and tells me all about it. Isn't that wonderful? Ah, he is on the way to make a fine American."

Meanwhile, the count in Paris is debating how he will meet the extraordinary situation with which he is confronted in the loss of wife and child.

"He may divorce me if he will," says the countess with vigor. "I do not care for his title, and besides I have already consulted a lawyer. If he wishes a divorce so be it, but I shall stay in America, where I am tremendously happy, and my little son loves it, though we have been here only a few weeks."

What of the Future?

And that will explain why the social world that centres around Paris is stirred by the very unusual step taken by the beautiful countess. While some of her friends may disapprove of her manner of leaving her country, especially after her splendid war services, many others are outspoken in their admiration of her courage.

The count, they say, will never follow his son to America; first because of his pride, and secondly because he dislikes to travel. If in later years his son returns to him more an American than a man of his own country, will the count regard him with the favor to be shown only to an accepted son and heir?

His family is one of the few from which, for centuries, the kings of Poland were chosen before the partition of that country by Austria, Russia and Germany. The count is a stickler for the old traditions and customs of his beloved Poland. But will he be able to forget his wounded pride and recognize his son as the heir to his vast fortune and estate?

These are the questions which Paris is asking itself today.

Things Made of Wood

AN elaborate exhibit of the unique uses of forest products is a part of the display of the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse, in its campaign to educate the people of the state to the necessity of preventing waste of the forest areas of New York.

Here are some of the strange uses made of wood and its by-products seen in this exhibit: "Silk" socks, made from wood fibre, which look like silk, feel like silk, but are far cheaper than the real thing.

Sawdust sausage casings, in which wood, converted by chemical processes into viscose, is used instead of the old type of sausage casings, produced from the by-product of the slaughter house.

Wood-flour phonograph records, compressed under enormous power, to help make music from sawdust.

Tanbark whingles, made from the waste hemlock bark, after it has been through the tannery. Paper milk bottles to help fight the high cost of living, by saving the breakage of enormous quantities of glass bottles in the kitchen and by the dairymen.

All of these unusual commercial articles are made from what was once waste of the sawmill, and their display is part of the campaign of the New York College of Forestry, to show how close utilization of wood will help to cheapen articles of commerce and at the same time end the enormous waste that has accompanied practically all the operations of lumbering.

Three Are Tied for First Place Friday At Gun Club Shoot

Claude Woods, Deatherage and C. P. Sheldon tied for high gun at yesterday's shoot with 44 out of 50. The shooting was done in a regular dust storm and the wind coming from the east and beating the targets to the ground, made shooting difficult.

F. P. Williams, who broke 95 out of 100 last week finished in second place with 43. He did great work in the double-target event, breaking 32 out of 48. He hit 12 out of the first 24, and succeeded in nailing 20 out of the next bunch. Adams and Deatherage were tied up for second with 25 out of 50.

With Charles Greenberg as a running mate, Williams also cleaned up in the team race. Williams broke 43 and Greenberg 36 out of 50. Pate and Nabb, the opposing combination, finished 13 targets behind, Pate made 35 and his partner 31.

Williams and Nabb took the special doubles match from Deatherage and Adams, 56-50. Nabb had a 23, which with Williams' 22, gave them a total of 56. The other two split a score of 50.

The shooting in all events was very difficult. The high wind beat the targets down almost as soon as they flew from the trap. This and the dust make yesterday's scores high. The scores:

He has participated in state and southern tournaments before but never weathered the semifinals. Yesterday Hunt eliminated Davidson Herron and Charles Dexter while Rotan was disposing of Nelson Whitney and Louis Jacoby. The weather is threatening for the first time this week.

EDHOBBY,--A New Railroad Town in the World's Greatest Oil Field

Will be opened to the public in a great sale of Lots MONDAY, MARCH 1st

EDWIN HOBBY. Treasurer, and a Director of the Wichita Falls, Ranger & Fort Worth Railroad, for whom the new town of Edhobby was named.

THIS new oil fields town is on the line of the Wichita Falls, Ranger & Fort Worth Railroad, now building through the entire extent of the Texas oil fields. Track laying began at Ranger February 10 and trains are expected to be running into Edhobby by the date of the opening.

Edhobby is in the busiest part of the northern extension of the Hogg Creek oil field. It is even now entirely surrounded by producing wells and there is greater drilling activity in its vicinity than in other parts of Eastland and Erath counties.

Real estate has ever been the most stable and profitable investment in the world. Some of the most colossal fortunes of all times have been made in real estate. The chance presented in the opening of Edhobby is such as comes but-once in a lifetime.

Its invitation is to the person who would take advantage of opportunity that knocks once and passes on. Edhobby is a business center that appeals to the enterprise of the forward-looking man or woman. It offers a place in the beginning of an oil field metropolis that can be had for a pittance now and which the experience of a score of less favorably situated towns in the Texas oil fields shows will be multiplied hundreds of times.

Sale of lots will open on the townsite March 1 and will continue from day to day, the prices of the lots being fixed on the plats of the town, which will be available at the office of Hamon & Kell on the townsite. Thirty per cent of the purchase price of lots is payable at the time of sale, the remainder in seven equal monthly installments.

A Financier's Opinion. Edwin Hobby, Vice-president and Cashier of the Security National Bank of Dallas, one of the largest banks in Texas, says: "I believe the new town of Edhobby will be a greater town than Ranger."

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel." (Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1920. Good and evil stars contend this day, according to astrology.

Ill-omens multiply at this time since fair judgment is beclouded and human nature inclines toward selfishness and greed.

Tendency to exaggerate the value of material things will be apparent at the very time when something of the spiritual consciousness is apprehended.

Envy and jealousy may be prevalent in all classes during the next six months. Women as well as men may be infected by the poison of bitter ambition.

There is a prophecy that this year will make plain the futility of hope that is based on false premises and that in the future even political progress will be measured by new devices.

This is a most unfavorable direction of the stars for all who would invite the approval of their fellow men. It is not a lucky day for the first appearances of actors or for the introduction of new orators.

Messages of grave meaning may be received while this rule prevails. It is not an auspicious time for any sort of negotiations, whether they be commercial or diplomatic.

According to ancient lore this should be a fortunate time for the hiring of men servants, since they are likely to be faithful, loyal and industrious.

High honors for a woman of Jewish ancestry are prognosticated. Organization will be the watchword in domestic as well as business affairs, for complex living conditions will compel systematic work, the seers declare. New Orleans has the forecast of great events in its commercial history.

Persons whose birthdate it is should safeguard the health during the coming year. Changes will not be satisfactory.

Children born on this day may be extravagant and fond of the good things of life. These subjects of Pisces usually succeed best when employed.

GOODFELLOW RETURNS WITH TWO PRISONERS. Bob Goodfellow, assistant police commissioner, has returned from a meeting of the executive committee of the Texas Law Enforcement Association. Coming back by way of Fort Worth he took charge of the man and woman who were arrested in connection with the alleged theft of several thousand dollars from the two Italian merchants and brought them to this city. The other man who had been arrested by the Fort Worth police as an alleged "highlander" is being held by them on account of several cases they have against him in the courts of that city.

Burkburnett: Tourist are coming through, but rough roads. Ranger: All roads bad and given to mudholes; but passable; detour around Strawn. Southward points to Waco: Passable, rough, rutted and some mudholes. Northward points: Tourist report they travel to Oklahoma line. Wichita Falls: Passable generally; with loads; Jacksboro passable. Some precipitation is probable over the above routes next 36 hours. Forecast against 20 to 30 degrees north and east, 32 to 35 degrees south. Fred Hamner, local observer.

NEW YORK STOCKS. NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Gains outlasted here at the opening of today's stock market but the undercurrent indicated further diversions of speculative sentiment. This was shown by the fact that many of the stocks which had advanced in the previous week were subjected to realizing sales or bear pressure. Stock prices were again a conspicuous feature, advancing to a new high level for the current movement after an initial decline of 14 points. Motors, oils and shippings also strengthened at the outset but steel and equipment were moderately weaker though rallying within the first half hour.

WILSON NOT CRAZY—HARVEY. After analyzing the Wilson-Lapsing correspondence, together with statements by Secretary Lane and William C. Redfield bearing on the President's actual knowledge that Informal Cabinet meetings were being held while he was incapacitated, Colonel George Harvey concludes that President Wilson has not gone crazy. He advises persons who jumped to that conclusion to put the idea out of their minds, for, as the Colonel is convinced, "Mr. Wilson is himself, his old self, his true self."

THE HUNT FOR HAPPINESS

Fulfillment! When we look for it least—it is ours. Doubt clogs our reason. Despair casts its damp, dark shadows across our pathway. "The Blue Bird is not for me," sighs the weary Huntress. "Fate is in a conspiracy to deprive me of my birthright soul. Bad luck snaps at my heels like an ill-tempered and persistent puppy. I shall never know happiness." We hear it, forsooth, this plaint of Huntress all forlorn. Almost we are inclined to lend believing ears. It seems, in very truth, the Blue Bird takes peculiar joy in eluding a certain seeker. It lures her by this road, by that trail, flashing in and out among trees, only to disappear at length in the black forest of disappointment. "Look!" cries the Huntress. "It is gone, my beautiful bird of promise. I have sought it feverishly, night and day. I have followed the chase regardless of body, brain or soul. My feet have never faltered. I am doomed to be always unhappy." So the Huntress flings her bow far from her, breaks her arrows over her shaking knees and shouts defiance: "I will take from the world what soever of pleasure I can get." "Yes," nods Conscience. "But pleasure is only a hollow substitute for happiness. Unless you find the Blue Bird you never will have really lived." Happiness a Story. "There is no Blue Bird," says the Huntress. "Happiness is a fairy story spun for fools and children." "It is a blessed truth," says Conscience. "Some there are who find it. Why not you?" "I tell you I am doomed," says the Huntress. "The cross of unhappy destiny is drawn indelibly on my brow." "Nonsense," retorts Conscience. "Happiness belongs to you. It belongs to every one. You have not hunted in the right places. You have not used the right weapons. Your guides have led you astray. Your companions of the hunt have given you false scents. Try again." "I'll try," sighs the Huntress. "But how? Where?" "Over in that direction, in the region of faith and flowers, lies a sunny meadow, says Conscience. "Seek it, and you will find the Blue Bird nesting there." Swiftly the Huntress takes the trail. A little while and she is in the region of faith and flowers. There she finds, waiting to crown her with a wreath of orange blossoms. The opportunity. He has nothing to offer her but himself and the orange blossoms. She looks about. Another opportunity is waiting. He cannot offer her faith, but he can give her fortune and the rarest orchids. Merrily she mocks the one. Gayly she hangs around her throat jewel ropes of fortune, snatching the while to gather in petal orchids. A peal of laughter, frozen with fear at its finish. Even as they touched her flesh the jewel-ropes lost their lustre. As she would have broken them from their stems and crushed them in her vandal palm, the orchids became great living spiders with horrid spotted bodies and ballet stinging eyes. The other opportunity. An oak.

SMALL FIRE LOSS MAKES CREDITABLE SHOWING FOR CITY

The average cost to the insurance companies of the fires that happened during 1919 came to around $500, or $2,124.45 damage in a total of 133 alarms. This damage represents about 24 per cent of the money paid in premiums as the total amount of money derived from premiums on fire insurance reported by local insurance agents comes to $343,236.93 and is considered a very good showing by Fire Chief McClure. Every time the fire department responded to an alarm during the past year it has been figured it cost the city $128. This mark was determined by taking the total outlay for expenses, salary, fuel, depreciation of equipment, etc., during the year and dividing this by the number of fires made.

RAPID DEVELOPMENT IN COUNTIES ALONG NEW OIL BELT ROAD

RANGER, TEX., Feb. 28.—Development of the territory along the line of the Wichita Falls, Ranger and Fort Worth railroad, through Erath, Eastland, Stephens, Young and Archer counties is making such rapid progress under the stimulus of the new railroad that there is probably no other region in the southwest to equal the showing. Primarily the oil industry is responsible for this development, but long neglected agricultural opportunities that were not available owing to lack of railroad facilities are awakening to the touch of the steel rails. The fertile lands of this section that have for the greater part never been cultivated are such that they are coming to attract attention under the stimulus of the new railroad and there is marked increase in demand for farm lands all along the line.

Soil Good Quality. From the southern boundary of Stephens county north to Wichita Falls the valley lands are of black or chocolate loam and covered for the greater part with mesquite timber such as always has indicated to the Texas that the soil is of deep and of first class quality. Owing to the remoteness from railroad transportation these lands have for the greater part never been reduced to cultivation. They have been in pastures and their grass has afforded forage for cattle since the days when this part of the state was range country.

The townsite of Frankell is on such land and so is the next townsite north of there and the country in between. Last season cotton from this territory was hauled 35 miles to Albany to a gin, there being no gin nearer to the farms there.

Breckenridge Section. Breckenridge is surrounded by excellent farming land and all the country between Breckenridge and Wichita Falls is good. The percentage of valley lands north of Frankell on the Wichita Falls, Ranger and Fort Worth railroad is greater than that south, and the farming opportunities in all that region are excellent. Slightly to the west of the line of the new railroad Throckmorton county offers one of the most favorable opportunities for making farm homes that remains on

First Attention to All Orders For the Sick

There remain large ranches in Throckmorton county that are but awaiting the plow to add immensely to the food, feed and forage crops of Texas. Development of the oil industries in the 150 miles of territory between Dublin and Wichita Falls along the new railroad is also leading to development of farming and to improved stock and there is a new area of good country that is gaining more rapidly in population and wealth than any other region in Texas.

REINSTATE LICENSE OF LONGVIEW FIRM DALLAS, TEX., Feb. 28.—The license of H. H. Watson of Longview, Tex., to deal in corn has been reinstated, effective Feb. 18, 1920. This license was revoked by food administration order Sept. 13, 1919, effective until further notice.

The attorney general took the position that he was not empowered to reinstate the license. However, the power to issue licenses was transferred from the food administration to the attorney general, and that the food administration is without power at the present time to restore said license, the matter of reinstatement was considered. The attorney general being of the opinion that said license has been withheld a sufficient time, and receiving satisfactory assurances of Mr. Watson's co-operation in the future, has restored said license.

Why Should A Bank Advertise?

If all banks offered exactly the same sort of service, advertising would be wasteful. If we didn't believe we could offer you distinctive banking facilities, we wouldn't spend money for newspaper space.

"A PROPHET IS NOT WITHOUT HONOR SAVE IN HIS OWN COUNTRY" This is often so but we don't feel that it applies in our case, as our coffees are widely used and highly praised in Wichita Falls—However there are some people who seem to think that their home town cannot produce a first-class article. Some merchants are included in this class. We know of nothing in the climate or environment of Wichita Falls that would be any handicap to industry and intelligence applied to the production of a good article. We do know that we have devoted as many years in a careful, painstaking effort to develop superior cup quality in our coffees as most any one in America. Our coffees are roasted fresh daily. If your grocer don't handle them ask him why. If he tries to sell you something else ask him why again. I thank you. BERT BEAN COFFEE COMPANY Telephone 35 Ohio at Sixth
