

COX GAINS; McADOO LEADS

PREDICTIONS McADOO VICTORY CAUSE OPPOSING FACTIONS TO STRENGTHEN THEIR LINES

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—Balloting for a presidential candidate was resumed when the democratic national convention today. Two ballots were taken before adjournment last night without any candidate receiving more than about one-third of the requisite two-thirds vote to nominate, but the delegates assembled for what is expected to be the final session of the convention, predictions were made that a nomination would come without a protracted struggle.

Just as Harding's name filled the air as the probable republican nominee three weeks ago this morning on the final day of the republican convention, so William G. McAdoo appeared to be in the ascendancy as the delegates assembled today with this difference, that the Ohio candidate had been agreed upon by the elements in control of the situation at Chicago, while the New York man's supporters here had still to fight a stubborn opposition with no definite assurance of success.

Opposition Leary. Friends of Attorney General Palmer and supporters of Governor Cox took into careful account the elements of strength of McAdoo, but expressed no fear that he could win the nomination in the face of the strong opposition of some of the party's old-time leaders and Cox as they entered the convention would concede nothing, but claimed they would pick up many delegates from the scattered candidates who are expected to rapidly van-

McAdoo men admitted their candidate had the opposition of certain leaders, but pointed out its strength and organized and therefore not effective in holding down what they call the constantly gathering strength of the former secretary of the treasury. McAdoo, Palmer and Cox were the leaders in the two ballots taken last night. One, the first McAdoo, had 265 votes; Palmer, 256 and Governor Cox 124. Governor Smith of New York had 109 of which his own state gave him its full quota of 90 votes. On the second ballot McAdoo received 253, Palmer 254, and Cox 129. Smith's vote dropped to 101. Reports that New York would throw most, if not all, its strength to McAdoo were heard early today. Leaders in the Empire state delegations, however, would not discuss this except to say they would stick to their governor, until further notice.

Another big crowd was on hand to watch the delegates pick the party's nominee, the final act of the convention which has been in session six days. SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—The grand cleared of preliminary ballots and a rolling administration in the platform fight, the democratic national convention re-assembled this morning at 9:30 o'clock to conclude the work of selecting a presidential nominee.

Predictions of a McAdoo victory on an early ballot filled the air and they were accompanied by a desperate stilling of resistance against his nomination. McAdoo or Cox and McAdoo and Cox were the leading predictions, coupled with talk of McAdoo and Meredith. On the other hand, the forces pitted against McAdoo pointed out in answer to the claims of a racial movement toward President Wilson's son-in-law that he had failed in the two ballots already taken to make the gains that were claimed for him; that Cox made greater accessions to his support than had McAdoo, and that so far there had been no tangible evidence of the McAdoo landslide his supporters have been predicting.

The Palmer people made no particular claims but although in the one day balloting they gained 100 votes, they lost more than that in the original delegate and replenished the loss from their reserve. Big Three Claim Victory. As the convention went into what promises to be the final phase of the battle, the McAdoo forces reiterated of early victory and the Cox people, apparently confident declared they would not only hold their lines, but would make accessions and demonstrate that the McAdoo strength would stop short of the necessary two-thirds for his nomination.

The night was given over to conference and planning among the field marshals of the opposing forces. Efforts to find a Harding for the San Francisco convention has been unavailing, but despite the fact that the movement of opposition to McAdoo had failed to produce a rallying point or to "coalesce" as its enemies declared, the opposition was still there, seemingly of formidable proportions. While it did not seem to offer no slate for beating McAdoo, still it continued to occupy a position where the McAdoo forces had produced no tangible plan for defeating it.

There the situation lay for the convention to take it up and fight it out in the battle of the ballots when it resumed today. One consideration which seemed to make it difficult for the anti-McAdoo forces to make progress was that the standard where the Democratic platform, turned the convention almost upside down late this afternoon, and started one of the greatest and noisiest demonstrations that the assembly had yet had seen.

When Bryan had concluded his reply to the advocates of a wet plank, the demonstration cut loose on the floor and wholly unaided by the speaker or the organ, or any of the other instrumentalities which had been effectively used to keep other demonstrations going, it proceeded spontaneously and headed all efforts to get the convention back to order.

Bryan, standing smiling in the limelight at the edge of the speaker's platform, and with tears of emotion courting down his cheeks, reviewed a procession of prohibitionists enthusiastic who tore up state standards and started moving a column of delegates about the hall.

Wheat and oats in the Panhandle is yielding from eight to 10 per cent more than expected, and the congress today placed the yield at from 17,000,000 to 18,000,000 bushels. Farmers were urged to store grain as adequate transportation facilities were declared lacking.

Forage crops are making good growth and rice, sugar cane and sweet potatoes are making progress, the report continued. June corn and sorghums are still being planted in many parts of the state. The Irish potato crop was described as poor. Boll weevil were reported doing some damage in southwest and central Texas.

The tomato crop of east Texas was estimated at 1,500 cars valued at $1,000,000 or more. The Rio Grande valley reported good tomato and watermelon crops but poor yields of other truck.

The pecan crop was reported a failure owing to web worms, an April freeze and hail.

Harding has held up the final drafting of his speech of acceptance so as to include a reply to the democratic platform adopted last night. He preferred to withhold comment until his formal speech.

TEXAS 1920 CORN CROP TO BE BIG YIELD

DALLAS, July 3.—The Texas corn crop approximating last year's yield of 200,000,000 bushels seems assured, according to a report today by the Texas industrial congress.

Farmers, pushing their work from dawn to dark, are overcoming the labor shortage, the congress said. Seasonal rains have practically "made" the crop. It was reported that wheat and oats in the Panhandle is yielding from eight to 10 per cent more than expected, and the congress today placed the yield at from 17,000,000 to 18,000,000 bushels. Farmers were urged to store grain as adequate transportation facilities were declared lacking.

CONSTRUCTION SHACK AT KEMP HOTEL TORN DOWN

A wrecking crew yesterday made short work of tearing down the construction shack on Scott avenue in front of the Kemp hotel. Before nightfall every timber and board in the structure had disappeared, and only a small pile of bricks remained. Today laborers are removing the bricks. With the destruction of the unsightly shack, the hotel compares splendidly with its sister skyscrapers, and Scott avenue and Eighth street now presents a real "big city" appearance.

"This is a purpose and nothing can defeat it," the president asserted. The message, which was in reply to one of appreciation and greetings from the convention follows: "The Telegram. 'Hon. Homer S. COX MAKES RAPID GAINS; McADOO LEADS FIELD, COX SECOND AND PALMER THIRD

AUDITORIUM, SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—Two big breaks to Cox marked the seventh ballot in the Democratic national convention. New York and New Jersey both gave the Ohio governor big contribution from their delegations, sending the Cox boom upward to the great delight and demonstration of the forces opposed to McAdoo.

The changes on the seventh ballot showed Cox gained one hundred and one-half votes, McAdoo gained fifteen and a half votes, and Palmer gained two. This put Cox in second place for the first time. All the gains were made from the field. Between the seventh and eighth ballot the Virginia delegates went out of the hall to caucus and decide if they should leave Glass and to whom they should throw their 24 votes. The McAdoo forces were waiting and hoping for the block. The invincible combination against McAdoo got a great deal of satisfaction over the gain of Cox but was forced to concede that McAdoo still was leading.

Iowa was expected also to break up on the next ballot, throwing a majority from Palmer to Cox and some votes probably for McAdoo. The delegation started out for Meredith, Iowa delegates at the conclusion of the caucus said they would stand solidly for one more ballot for Palmer. Anti-McAdoo leaders did not want any break to that candidate. The eighth ballot showed the first loss McAdoo has sustained. Cox during the whole balloting has shown a steady rise from one hundred and thirty-four on the first to three hundred and fifteen on the eighth and his supporters were jubilant.

The Virginia delegation which had about decided to break or somebody decided not to "because conditions did not justify it." After the sixth ballot the delegates got a welcome chance to stretch their legs and rest while the organ played and a tenor sang "Dear Old Pal of Mine." The real reason for the pleasant recess was to give several delegations an opportunity to caucus and decide what they would do on the seventh ballot. All three of the leaders at the beginning of the seventh were stronger in votes than they had been at any time since the balloting began, Palmer having more than picked up his loss of the fifth ballot.

BULLETIN. AUDITORIUM, July 3.—McAdoo led the gains on the first ballot of the day but the predicted slide to him failed to materialize. Most of the original votes stood fast. The unofficial total for the three leaders was: McAdoo 323 1/2; Cox 177; Palmer 252 1/2. Unofficial McAdoo gain was 34 1/2; Cox 18 gain, and Palmer showed a loss of 11 1/2.

North Carolina furnished the first break to McAdoo, as for delegates swinging from Senator Simmons. The change was expected. Unofficial total; McAdoo 323 1/2; Cox 177; Palmer 252 1/2.

AUDITORIUM, SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—The chiefs of the McAdoo, Palmer and Cox forces conferred constantly throughout the night and during the early morning, almost up to the hour of the meeting of the convention. At 9:30 o'clock, the hour of reconvening, the emphasis of the convention hall reflected the sleeplessness of the night for leaders and delegates, for all were slow in arriving.

Despite that it was the last day of the convention, it did not seem to carry, and everyone was trying to speed up, it was a slow start. The band and organ filled in during the wait, and the delegates seemed to be "in Forever Blowing Bubbles."

Everyone of the enthusiasts seemed to feel that the air was particularly appropriate for the other fellow. There certainly was a crop of bubbles being blown in the convention for some body, but nobody was wise enough to forecast whose bubbles were going to be the longest.

Floor Leaders Confer. There was conference after conference on the floor as leaders and delegates came in, but they apparently were fruitless and to all outward evidence the convention stood exactly where it did at the close of the second ballot last night. There was not a man on the floor who could show any evidence to support his prediction of what was going to happen today.

At 9:45 o'clock Chairman Robinson was on the platform with other convention managers and most of the delegates. The total of the last ballot of yesterday was: McAdoo 283; Palmer 264; Cox 159, with no others figuring prominently.

The air ballot as officially announced follows: Total vote cast 1091. McAdoo 368 1/2; Cox 195; Palmer 265; Cummings 20; Owen 35; Smith 98; Edwards 3; Davis 28; Glass 27; Marshall 13; Clark 7; Cobly 1. During the calling of the ballot, New York caucused and a big break to Cox from the delegation was forecast. New York did break to Cox with 68, throwing him 25 from three blocs that had been cast solid for Edwards. It threw the convention hall into a tumult again. "He'll beat Harding in Ohio," was the cry that rang through the convention hall. Three of New Jersey's votes went to McAdoo.

PLATFORM CONSIDERED GREATEST DEMOCRATS HAVE EVER WRITTEN

By L. C. MARTIN. SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—Veteran politicians today declared the platform adopted yesterday by the democratic national convention one of the best in the party's history, from a vote getting standpoint. Satisfaction with the platform was general among democracy's hosts, except for those who were defeated in their efforts to amend it after the resolutions committee had completed it. The overwhelming defeat by the convention of all proposed amendments and the equally emphatic approval of the committee's report, was clear evidence, party leaders said, that the democrats are lined up strongly behind the Wilson administration. The platform, leaders insisted, is in all its essentials, a "Wilsonian" platform.

So pleased are leaders they intend to take every opportunity of comparing the platform with the republican platform, declaring it will inevitably be to the advantage of the democrats. That the president's influence was paramount in the framing of the platform was disclosed today by Senator Glass, when he explained why he and other administration leaders counseled silence on the liquor question. That was done, Glass said, so that nothing should be permitted to cloud the issue nearest President Wilson's heart—the league of nations.

That the league issue is now clear and unmistakable, the election will constitute the "solemn referendum" which President Wilson in his Jackson Day dinner letter demanded, there is no longer any doubt, party leaders said. They declared treaty planks adopted by the republicans at Chicago and the democrats here put it squarely up to the American people whom they will follow—Senator Lodge or Woodrow Wilson.

Much comment was caused today by a change made in the platform after Senator Glass read it to the convention. The change was made in the plank relating to disabled soldiers, which reads in part: "The fine patriotism exhibited by American soldiers, sailors and marines constitute a sacred heritage of posterity, the worth of which can never be recompensed from the treasury and the glory of which must not be diminished by any such expedients."

The change consisted in elimination of the words "by any such expedients." Senator Glass explained that the words had been left in by mistake in copying the platform. Some delegates, however, construed the change as a precaution to prevent the party being too baldly committed against a cash bonus for soldiers. Defeated advocates of an Irish plank declaring for the recognition of the Irish republic were openly swearing vengeance today on both the republican and democratic parties. Women suffragists, the League of Women Voters, and other organizations of women, were frankly pleased when the treaty accorded them.

BRYAN, DESPITE HIS YEARS MADE GREATEST EFFORT OF HIS CAREER

By MRS. KELLOGG FAIRBANK
Written for the United Press
SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.

Platform submitted, and a fight on Mr. Bryan within 10 feet, opening the minority report, mellow voiced and mellifluous.

The crowd is so glad to see him that it is difficult for him to start, but once he is off, stillness. He reads his recommendations.

He is followed by Mr. Bourke Cockran, who seizes this opportunity to make a last desperate plea for light wines and beer. He is brilliant and powerful and gifted, with a rich flow of eloquence muddled by the essential earthiness of his argument.

After him Mr. Bryan is like a large placid lake, absorbing and purifying all little streams.

Mr. Bryan, great-hearted, human, clean-minded, plausible, sentimental and wise as a dove. He is speaking with an expense of vitality which leaves him breathless, and makes one realize that he is getting older.

Getting Old.

Getting old, yes, but swaying the facile emotions of men, and getting shamed-faced, defiant New Yorkers on their feet to testify amid cheers, that they are glad the saloon is done forever.

He is the most lovable public man in the world. One may question his wisdom but never his essential honesty of soul. One may agree with him or not—today, mostly not—one may think him inspired or misled, but one may concede that his people love him.

A roar of affectionate applause swells out as he finishes, and presently the states begin to march. One by one, they bring their standards to him on the platform, and he takes "Nebraska" and stands with the staff in his hand.

They come on—first the dry states, then slowly but inevitably the others. Through it all, Mr. Bryan, still a little breathless, with smiling eyes that keep a keen watch on states, stands waiting. He never forgets what he wants in the excitement of his great oration.

He is followed by the secretary of state who speaks as if he were at a banquet, instead of standing on the prove of the platform, overlooking the hungry and clamorous crowd. He makes his points with great precision and a fine use of humor. His wit is like a rapier and it leaves a keen wound.

Voice Fagged.

The senator from Virginia comes next, opposing the great orator, and getting away with it. He has already read the platform and the convention's exhaustive performance in itself, and he and the other men who have been working on it have not slept for three days; his voice is fagged, but he is not; he is a bantam, dressed in white and with a drum slung to her side was lifted to the speaker's table and this was the only sign of a pre-arranged effort at a demonstration.

Mr. Bryan came again and again to the edge of the stand, to wave to the crowd below. His face was shining and the spot lights made the tears that rolled slowly over the deep furrows of his face, sparkle like jewels. He was moved deeply and showed it, but his eyes went always to that silent group of delegates which yielded no jot to the tide of feeling that swept down from the galleries.

It took desperate pounding of the gavel to quiet the storm. It died slowly only to swell up again. Finally Bainbridge Colby chose to answer for the administration on the league issue.

Colby Strikes.

Colby, President Wilson's spokesman, struck at once at the emotional appeal Mr. Bryan had made. He dismissed the great effort of the Nebraska on prohibition almost without notice, approached his own topic with lightness of touch that brought laughter at times and with consummate skill sought to turn aside the rush of feeling Mr. Bryan had counted upon. He also was according a reception and demonstration, this time with the noise and cheering support by hand and organ, but the crisis was over.

It hardly needed the effort of Senator Glass, a platform committee chairman, to assure the full and complete victory for the administration forces and the committee draft platform which followed. Even the crowd in the galleries appeared to expect it, for despite the tribute it had paid to Mr. Bryan, a chuckle of amusement and a spatter of handclapping greeted the volley of tremendous "noes" which sent the Bryan plank to defeat.

The vote on the dry plank was overwhelming, a roll call having been demanded by Mr. Bryan, and it went down with almost three to one against it. In the succeeding votes on his proposals, the thunder of the negative almost blotted from memory the fact that a scattering, feeble murmur of eyes had preceded it in every case.

OPPOSITION OPPOSES M'ADOO VICTORY

of the platform was finished and he took the stand amid cries of "Bryan, Bryan, Bryan" to present the planks for which he proposed to fight, the old leader was keyed for the effort of his life. Against him, he knew, were giants of debate. For that reason he divided his time, swiftly presenting the outline of his case, then yielding to others who would pave the way for the climax he had planned for himself.

It was plain that it was the bone dry plank on which Mr. Bryan would center his effort to sweep the convention off its feet.

He had something to say for the league of nations' program with reservations which he proposed. On this he flatly differed with the president at the Jackson Day dinner in Washington to set going the struggle that ended yesterday in sweeping victory for the president.

He paid lavish tribute to Mr. Wilson's place in history and to his leadership, he talked forcefully of three lesser issues he had brought to the convention for decision, but it was the dry plank on which he had staked every vestige of magnetic power over men's hearts he possessed.

In the 20 minutes of dramatic appeal which closed his crusade, he reached new heights of fervor. His audience was swayed until it seemed that he played upon its emotions at will. When he hurled his last defiance at the liquor traffic with a prediction that when the roll was taken, when the women of the nation were given full political liberty through the ratification of the suffrage amendment by other states, the audience of children would be found battling for the cause he championed, a great shout went surging up into the vaulted dome of the roof in an endless sea of sound.

Texas Delegate.

It urged into action a Texas delegate who pulled the state standard from the floor and drove through the aisle to the platform. A score of state standards joined to form a hedge along the platform front. A battle was fought around the California standard and it was smashed to fragments. A woman delegate from California finally was carried up to the speaker's platform waving frantically a tattered remnant of the state emblem. Another woman, dressed in white and with a drum slung to her side was lifted to the speaker's table and this was the only sign of a pre-arranged effort at a demonstration.

Mr. Bryan came again and again to the edge of the stand, to wave to the crowd below. His face was shining and the spot lights made the tears that rolled slowly over the deep furrows of his face, sparkle like jewels. He was moved deeply and showed it, but his eyes went always to that silent group of delegates which yielded no jot to the tide of feeling that swept down from the galleries.

It took desperate pounding of the gavel to quiet the storm. It died slowly only to swell up again. Finally Bainbridge Colby chose to answer for the administration on the league issue.

Colby Strikes.

Colby, President Wilson's spokesman, struck at once at the emotional appeal Mr. Bryan had made. He dismissed the great effort of the Nebraska on prohibition almost without notice, approached his own topic with lightness of touch that brought laughter at times and with consummate skill sought to turn aside the rush of feeling Mr. Bryan had counted upon. He also was according a reception and demonstration, this time with the noise and cheering support by hand and organ, but the crisis was over.

It hardly needed the effort of Senator Glass, a platform committee chairman, to assure the full and complete victory for the administration forces and the committee draft platform which followed. Even the crowd in the galleries appeared to expect it, for despite the tribute it had paid to Mr. Bryan, a chuckle of amusement and a spatter of handclapping greeted the volley of tremendous "noes" which sent the Bryan plank to defeat.

The vote on the dry plank was overwhelming, a roll call having been demanded by Mr. Bryan, and it went down with almost three to one against it. In the succeeding votes on his proposals, the thunder of the negative almost blotted from memory the fact that a scattering, feeble murmur of eyes had preceded it in every case.

Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn, who is investigating the case, said that the woman sustained slight bruises about the arms. The case has been reported to the traction company and a thorough investigation is being made, it is said.

No complaint has been filed in court against the street car conductor due to the fact that his identity has not been definitely established by officers, Justice Gwinn said.

WILSON HEARS NEWS OF BIG CONVENTION

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Maintaining silence on all questions affecting chances of various democratic presidential aspirants, the White House today was keenly interested in all convention facts and rumors.

Following adoption of the democratic platform last night, a feeling of elation was very apparent among White House officials, although they refused comment on the convention action.

President Wilson went to bed when it became apparent the platform framed by administration supporters was going through unchanged. It was generally taken for granted that the platform is acceptable to him in every way.

Throughout the day United Press dispatches from the special wire into the White House were carried to Wilson, but no direct word came from him as to his thoughts on the convention doings.

ELWELL KNEW SEVERAL "MISS WILSON'S" IS REPORT

NEW YORK, July 3.—More than one woman known to Joseph B. Elwell, slain whisky expert, was introduced to servants and friends as "Miss Wilson," authorities were informed today.

Miss Viola Kraus, who knew Elwell for eight years, according to a statement made by District Attorney Swann, denied quarreling seriously with Elwell.

Ann Kane, former housekeeper, declared she heard a woman known to her as "Miss Wilson" threaten to kill Elwell if he should spurn her.

Officials believed that if they could locate the "Miss Wilson," who was accused by Ann Kane of threatening the gambler, they would obtain aid in solving the mystery.

THE COTTON CROP.

A recent survey of the cotton crop situation in ten Southern states, made by correspondents who covered 732 counties in the cotton-growing region, estimates the condition at 89.3 per cent of normal, compared with 65.4 per cent on May 25, with an indicated yield of 11,500,000 bales. The area planted to cotton is reported to be about one per cent greater than in 1919, while the condition is but a trifle lower than the ten-year average. Since this survey was made, weather conditions generally have been favorable, and if they continue so the actual yield may exceed the present estimate considerably; but it is pointed out by intelligent observers that June prospects in the past have been disappointed by unfavorable weather in July. Furthermore, it is reported—from the Texas fields, particularly—that the boll weevils are very active and are doing much damage.

From practically all portions of the cotton belt the report is that the crop is from a few days to as much as six weeks late, and continued dry and hot weather is necessary for its development, as well as for keeping down the ravages of the weevils. In many places the cotton is grassy, and farm labor is scarce; but the plant is receiving attention even to the neglect of other crops where conditions demand it. It will be noted from the foregoing that great stress is being placed upon the weather reports, which are always subject to variation and only reliable as temporary indications. Expert opinion is that even if the present estimate of the cotton crop should be exceeded somewhat, the crop would fall below the normal demand for consumption, because the world is not producing enough of the staple to meet its needs, and the recent downward tendency of prices has not been warranted by actual conditions.

For the four years directly preceding the world war, the American cotton crop averaged about fifteen million bales; since then it has been considerably less than twelve million. The world needs more cotton now than it ever needed before, and will pay a good price for it if the crop be marketed with judgment and deliberation. Instead of in the usual haphazard way of pushing it upon consumers faster than they want it, and so feeding the speculators and manipulators. Growers know what that means; but will they profit by what they know?

Saturday, July 3, 1920.
This is not a fortunate day, according to astrology. Mercury, and Neptune are in evil place, the planetary influences being especially unfavorable.

It is not a lucky day for journeys, accidents and disappointments being foreshadowed.
While Neptune is in an aspect boding ill for ocean travel, there is also a sign read as threatening for railroads.
Mercury gives warning of libel suits and the publication of news that is altogether untrue. Care should be taken to watch both the spoken and the written word while this configuration prevails.
Letters should be penned with caution, for there will be one or two exposures of correspondence that will cause heartache, resentment and even retaliation.
Persons who earn their livings as writers may meet with disappointments at this time, owing to some unforeseen and extraordinary circumstance.
Resorts of every type that offer surcease of city conditions should prosper exceedingly during the next three weeks.
Landlords and proprietors of hotels are subject to many cares and anxieties. They will make much money, but at great sacrifice of personal convenience.
Some movement toward the simple life appears to be foreshadowed and the autumn may bring a campaign of peculiar significance to persons of all vocations.
At least two great plays are prophesied for next season when a woman star of exceptional talents will be introduced to the public.
An autumn of unusual gaiety is prognosticated for Washington, D. C., and Chicago, Ill.
Decline in wage standards may be apparent before this configuration.
