

SHIPPING BOARD HAS THE MOST DIFFICULT AFTER-WAR PROBLEM

SECTIONAL LINES FIGURE LARGE LY IN MAPPING OUT PROGRAM

"LOG ROLLING" IN EVIDENCE AS THE WORK PROGRESSES

Board Composed of One Member From Each Section of the United States.

By MARK SULLIVAN National Political Correspondent of The Wichita Daily Times. (Copyright 1921 by The New York Evening Post.)

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The job that the new shipping board has is by far the most difficult of our after-war problems. The first of many difficult decisions on fundamental policy which they must make is whether this institution shall be conducted from a national point of view or from a sectional point of view.

Many things done by congress have the tendency to express the aggregate of various sectional interests. They are one variation or another of the process called "log rolling." The shipping board, as it has been organized by act of congress, has this sectional point of view. One member must come from the north Pacific coast, one from the south Pacific coast, one from the Gulf coast, one from the south Atlantic coast, one from the great Lakes, and one from the interior.

This sectional distribution of personnel is merely expressive of something deeper. What was wanted by the interests which came together in congress to pass the act was that the ports of the various parts of the country should be adequately cared for. The point of view was not national, but sectional. It was not to achieve the most direct and economical management of the shipping business, but to care for all the ports of the country. The new shipping board must determine whether they are to fall in with this policy or to make a concession to the institution from the purely national point of view. The method which takes care of all the ports of the country is of course the most expensive and is the one which puts us at the greatest disadvantage in competition with other nations.

It is recognized that the prosperity of the smaller ports of the country is a proper thing to nourish and stimulate, not merely as a concession to local pride and local power in congress, but from the broadest point of view. In order to do this, and at the same time not suffer the awkwardness and expense involved in such a policy, a suggestion has been made to the new shipping board from such a quarter that it may well save weight with them.

This suggestion is that if local ports want to build their own shipping and want to establish ocean routes they should be encouraged to do so on their own initiative and under their own direction. Concretely, the suggestion is this: Shipping board owns a great many more ships than it can, under present conditions, sell at almost any price. In fact, many ships which were sold a year or two ago on the installment plan are now falling back on the shipping board's hands. It is proposed that this surplus of ships shall be put at the disposal of each of the various sections of local pride and self-interest want to develop the importance of their ports.

Will Donate Vessels. In working the plan out the chamber of commerce and similar organizations of a city would be told that the government is willing to donate ships outright if the chamber of commerce will organize an operating company with local capital. By this plan the government would provide the ships and the local communities would take all the responsibility of operation. It would be hard to imagine a fairer proposal to any city which is ambitious to build up its shipping and to sell its local products in foreign markets. It is surely a better plan than for the federal government to assume all the awkwardness and the inherent waste involved in the present point of view.

It can be taken for granted that so far as possible under the control of a law and a congress which is sectional in its point of view, the policy of the new shipping board will be national. The conception which has influenced President Harding has not been a shipping board which shall merely manage ships. His conception has been a board which shall have as its fundamental duty the marketing of America's surplus abroad in the most effective and economic way. It is a merchandising organization on a national scale rather than merely a transportation organization.

MORE THAN A HUNDRED NEW HOMES IN ELECTRA

ELECTRA, TEXAS, June 2.—In addition to being one of the best oil towns in Texas, Electra is a home town. Since January 1 of this year, more than one hundred new homes have been built in Electra, which represents an increase of approximately ten per cent during the first four months of the year.

On Friday of last week Dickinson & Gillette of Minneapolis opened their sale of residence lots in the Southland addition to Electra, offering these lots at prices ranging from $247 to $375 each. More than one-half of these lots have already been sold, and it is interesting to know that a majority of the purchasers are buying these lots for homes rather than for speculation. There are now twenty residences in this new addition ranging in cost from $2,500 to $25,000 each.

A petition signed by property owners has already been presented to the city commissioners requesting incorporation of the Southland addition to Electra.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR INDUSTRIAL WASTE UPON MANAGEMENT

ENGINEERING COUNCIL FINDS MANAGEMENT RESPONSIBLE FOR WASTE

HOOVER'S COMMITTEE MAKES ITS REPORT

Declares That Organized Labor Should Develop a Policy For Increasing Output.

ST. LOUIS, June 3.—Responsibility for more than 50 per cent of the waste in industrial processes, which is causing enormous losses to the nation, can be placed at the door of the management and less than 25 per cent at the door of labor, declared a report of the American Engineering Council's committee on elimination of waste in industry made public today at a meeting of the council's executive board.

The report showed that the margin of unemployment amounted to more than a million men; that billions of dollars were tied up in idle equipment; that high labor turnover was a rough index of waste in manufacturing; and that waste of time and energy and money through duplications and estimates on bids in building trades ran into millions annually.

icy regarding public health should be fostered and encouraged; the national program for industrial rehabilitation should be encouraged and should offer opportunities for education and placement to those having physical defects as well as those handicapped because of industrial accidents; a nation-wide program of industrial standardization should be encouraged in conjunction with industrial interests; the government should recognize the necessity for a revision of such federal laws as interfering with the stabilization of industry; a body of principals should be accepted which could be developed for the adjustment and settlement of labor disputes.

Public support for the movement, the report said, should be brought about through public recognition of a greater stabilization of style to lessen the demoralizing effects of seasonal fluctuations, as well as a more even distribution throughout the year of public demand. The chambers of commerce, the report said, should inaugurate anti-waste campaigns and collecting purchasing agents should educate the public in better methods of buying.

Both employer and employee responsible for increasing output, it was stated. "The attitude of opposition or indifference to proper standards for production should be changed to a frank and aggressive insistence on such standards; there should be a constant examination for the basis for wages, certain rules should be modified in regard to machine operation, apprentice and craft works, discharges which result in decreased output; individual workers should realize their responsibility for waste resulting from ill health and disregard of safety measures."

Declaring that the annual economic loss to the country through preventable diseases and death amounted to $2,000,000,000, the report urged a more general use of safety methods already perfected. It was asserted that 85 per cent of the death and serious accidents in industry could be thus prevented.

Time Lost.—In regard to the number of days lost, the report said: "Forty-two million persons lost 350,000,000 days from illness and disease and non-industrial accidents annually; 43 per cent of the waste of ill health is preventable; in 1919 there were 3,000,000 industrial accidents resulting in an economic loss to the country of about $333,000,000; industrial accidents are caused by the carelessness of the workmen and a lack of ordinary safeguards."

FIRST WHITE HOUSE OF CONFEDERACY DEDICATED

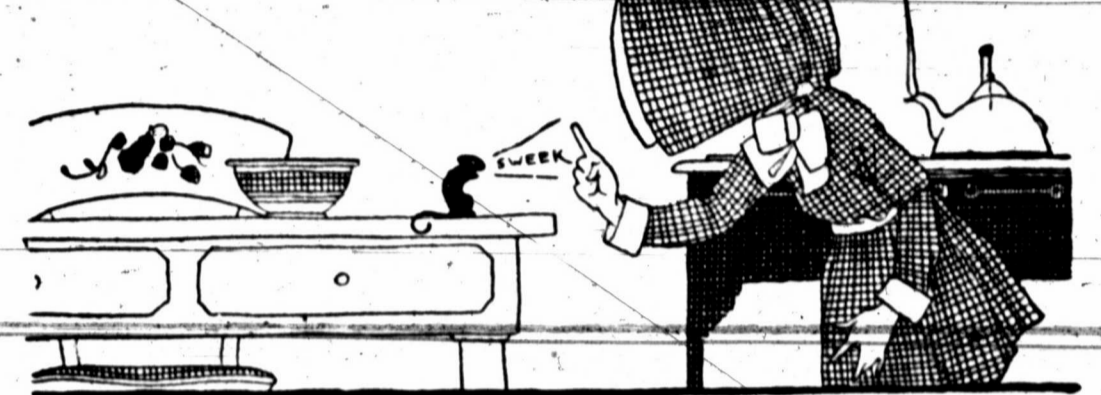

MONTGOMERY, ALA., June 3.—The south of the states and its children dedicated here today one of its most precious shrines, the first white house of the Confederacy. Representatives of the states that in 1861 withdrew from the Union and sought through four years of war to maintain the Confederate States of America participated in the reopening and dedication of the old mansion in which Jefferson Davis as president of the Confederacy first took up his residence. Prominent among those present were men who, wearing the gray, sought to make permanent that government and to establish without question of right the course decided on by Davis and his associates. Descendants of Jefferson Davis and General Lee, many of whom now live in northern states, had been invited to attend the dedicatory exercises as guests of honor. Governors of all southern states also had been invited. The ceremonies attendant on the dedication consisted of a parade of civic organizations to the state capitol where Davis took the oath of office. This was followed by an address by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi. Other exercises of a historical nature were set for tonight at a hotel located on the spot where Davis held his first cabinet meeting and where decision was reached to fire on Fort Sumpter.

FINDING OF BODY REVEALS UNSUCCESSFUL FIGHT FOR LIFE

BOSTON, June 3.—A lone man's unsuccessful fight for life in an open jolly at sea with little food and no fresh water was disclosed here today when the fishing schooner Wathrum brought his body, picked up yesterday 25 miles east of Highland Light. The body was found in the bottom of a dory that was riding the waves as tight and tight as if under a fisherman's hand. In the stern stood a bamboo pole with a piece of red attached to it, a marker of distress. The body was badly emaciated, indicating many days of starvation, it was said. By its side were the bones of several fishes plucked clean.

THE MERRY JOURNEYS OF MARY JANE

"Why can't you behave yourself?" Mary Jane asked Tommy Tippetoe

Mary Jane and Tommy Tippetoe—the Mouse

TOMMY TIPPETOE was a little brown mouse that lived behind the wall of the kitchen cupboard in Mary Jane's house. Mary Jane's mother scolded Tommy Tippetoe often, especially when he would eat a big piece out of the cake, or nibble the cheese. But he always kept coming around. One day Mary Jane's mother said to Tommie Tippetoe: "Now, listen to me. You and I are going to be very bad friends if you don't turn over a new leaf, and quit bothering folks. Why can't you behave yourself?" Tommy got pretty red in the face, and he curled his tail up. But finally he said, "I'll tell you what I'll do. You give me a can of that delicious Mary Jane Syrup, all for myself, and I'll take it away out in the woods, and won't ever bother you again." And Mary Jane's Mother did, and he went away. So everybody is happy now. And they have Mary Jane Syrup with their waffles, pancakes and corn bread and bread and butter every day. And sometimes Mary Jane and the girls have the greatest fun making taffy, and the most delicious candy you ever tasted with Mary Jane Syrup.

BELIEVE YOUTH WAS DOPED AND ROBBED BY TWO CHAUFFEURS

IS FOUND IN DAZED CONDITION AT RHOME AFTER BEING MISSING TWO DAYS.

BROUGHT TO THIS CITY WHERE MOTHER RESIDES

Gays He Remembers Nothing After Taking Drink of Root Beer in Oklahoma Town.

Members of the city detective department were endeavoring Friday to clear up the circumstances surrounding the robbery and poisoning of Jack Wisdom, a clerk in a Duncan, Okla., hardware shop, who was found wandering in a dazed condition at Rhome, Texas, Wednesday morning. The man is now at the home of O. H. Randle, 1302 Ninth street, under the care of his mother, who lives at the Randle residence.

According to stories told by the police, Wisdom was drugged by two service car drivers who were sent out from Duncan early last Sunday morning and after being robbed of $200 he was taken to Rhome or to that vicinity, and apparently thrown from the car.

Wisdom left Duncan Sunday morning enroute for Wichita Falls, where he planned to take dinner with his mother and two sisters, but the last he remembers was taking a drink of root beer at a soda fountain in Comanche, Okla. He had telegraphed his mother that he would be in the city Sunday if possible, but when he failed to arrive it was believed that business had detained him and that nothing unusual had occurred. Monday morning, however, when he failed to appear, an investigation was started which brought no results until Wednesday when a telegram from Rhome stating that he was very ill, was received by Mrs. Wisdom in this city.

She immediately left for the former place and brought her son to Wichita Falls, where he is now being treated.

The only reports which the man could give were that he had been in a service car in charge of two men, at a soda fountain and after drinking a root beer, which he now remembers tasted queer, lapsed into unconsciousness. He awoke in Rhome Wednesday morning and was found on the porch of a hotel, conscious, but unable to tell anything of value.

He was sufficiently under medical treatment to direct the sending of a telegram to his mother. Police were endeavoring Friday to learn what service car drivers left Duncan Sunday morning, hoping in that manner to be able to trace his movements and to learn where he went from Rhome Sunday morning.

Wisdom was found in an unconscious condition in certain police say, at Rhome, but 14 miles from Wichita Falls, Okla., his starting point, is 20 miles north of the river in Oklahoma.

Search is also being made for the watch, which together with $200 in cash was said to have been taken from his pockets.

Wisdom's condition was reported to be satisfactory by Dr. Stinson, who is attending him, Friday afternoon and it is thought that he will be entirely recovered from the effects of the drug administered.

The camps are planned to build a reserve of men with basic military training that should enable them to qualify for commissions in time of war.

TYPICAL HIGHWAYMAN NOT BOLD OR DARING, ONLY WEAK-MINDED

CHICAGO, June 3.—The typical highwayman is not bold or daring—only weak minded—according to a report today by Dr. William Hickson, head of the psychologist laboratory of the municipal court.

"Ideas gained from sensational literature contain an entirely wrong picture of the highwayman," says the report. "According to the dime novel a robber is a mature person with an average intelligence."

This description does not fit any hold-up man outside of the realm of detective fiction.

The report stated that out of 6,000 cases it was found necessary to send 2,620 men to the psychopathic laboratory and that 15 per cent of those brought into court more than once were mentally defective.

PAPER MILL WORKERS ACCEPT CUT IN WAGES

GREEN BAY, Wis. June 3.—The strike of 250 employees of the Northern Paper company's mill of this city was settled at a conference of mill officials and union officials last night, according to an announcement today.

The men agreed to accept the wage cut of 16.2 per cent proposed by the mill. The Northern Paper company agreed to recognize the union scale of working hours, according to C. H. Sample, general organizer of the International Paper Workers' union.

He said that the men would go back to work Monday morning.

PAPER MAKERS STRIKE EXPECT PEACE SOON IN

NEW YORK, June 3.—F. A. Boyer, of Warsaw, president of the American Pulp and Paper Mills Superintendents, told today that he was confident that peace would soon come to mills affected by strikes.

The two great problems that confront the paper industry, he said, are wood for the manufacture of paper and labor.

"In many of the mills the superintendent is not consulted regarding general policies followed by the company toward its employees and the policies are forced upon him without giving him a hearing as to the justice or practicability of their application."

NO AGREEMENT REACHED CONFERENCE IN ENDED

ALBANY, N. Y. June 3.—The conference of representatives of 4,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers and the International Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers' union, who have been on strike since early in May, ended today without any peace being concluded with the employing companies.

GRIFFIN RANCH HAS OIL SHOWING FROM SAND AT 1830 FEET

The Herbert Griffin ranch, five miles southeast of the K. M. A. district is the scene of the newest local oil development. At 1830 feet the Arledge Drilling corporation struck a good sand, and there was a good showing of oil after the core-barrel had been run three feet into it.

The 6-inch casing is now being set and a test of the sand will be made. This is thought to be the same sand as was struck in the Dundee oil and gas company's well, 2,200 feet to the southward; the latter well is a small producer.

Philip Lesh, who was an attractor on the original Burk-Waggoner well, has acquired an 80-acre tract in the Dundee shallow field and has organized a company known as Lesh Bros. The company is drilling operations have already been started.

The Fletcher Oil syndicate, composed of the following members: J. C. Martin, J. M. McQuigg, Jr., are looking for the company's interests here.

DISAGREEMENT ON BORAH AMENDMENT IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Disagreement in the house over the Borah amendment to the naval appropriation bill to conference.

When Representative Kelly, republican, Michigan, in charge of the bill made the routine conference motion, Representative Garrett, Tennessee, a long democratic leader, declared the house conference should be instructed to agree to the Borah amendment, broadened to include instructions for disbursement negotiations with other powers besides Great Britain and Japan. Republican application contended that the conference should be given free rein.

Representative Mondell, the republican leader, characterized the Borah proposal as "naive," rejected and unsatisfactory. He said the house should insist on broadening its provisions, but thought it a mistake to instruct conference in advance on the question.

TEXAS CHAMBER COMMERCE FAVOR RECOGNITION OBLIGATION

DALLAS, June 2.—The Texas chamber of commerce went on record as favoring the recognition of the present agreement of Mexico by the government of the United States, according to a petition of the state chamber's advisory committee here today.

Recognition of the present agreement of the United States with the government of Mexico is urged upon the grounds that such a step would do much to cultivate trade relations between the two countries.

During the past nine months no less than five trade excursion delegations have crossed the Rio Grande between Texas and Mexico, and a feeling of good will exists which should develop into a great commercial intercourse between the two countries.

THE ADVENTURE OF THE SPECKLED BAND

Copyright, 1921, by Harper & Bros. Published by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The story thus far. Early one morning Helen Stoner came terrified to Holmes for help. She said she lived with her stepfather, the last survivor of one of the oldest families in England, the Roylotts of Stoke Moran. He was a physician who had taken up practicing after having been an assistant to a surgeon in India. Helen's mother, who had died not long after returning to England, and Helen and her sister had since lived with him. Helen's mother left all her money to her husband until her daughters should marry.

He developed a violent temper. He would live on the run-down estate which he had inherited from his father. And he was the terror of the neighborhood. Two years before her father, who had just become engaged to a young girl, one evening, complaining of the smell of tobacco in her room, which was next to her own, she went to Helen's room, and told her that each night she heard a low whistle which she had never heard before. She returned to her room and locked the door. A few hours later Helen heard her scream out in terror and rushed to her. She found her father lying on the floor, and shortly died in agony. Helen herself had recently become engaged to Mr. Percy Armitage, and she felt that she was herself in danger. Some repairs had been started in her room, and Dr. Roylott asked her to occupy the room in which her sister had died. There in the silent solitude of the night she had heard the low whistle which had heralded her sister's death. Her stepfather had told her that the noise was a "cat" which had been put in the room to frighten her. She had been told that the noise was a "cat" which had been put in the room to frighten her.

"But what harm can there be in that?" "Well, there is at least a curious coincidence of dates. A ventilator is made of wood and a lady who sleeps in the bed dies. Does not that strike you?" "I cannot see any connection." "Did you observe anything very peculiar about that bed?" "No." "It was clamped to the floor. Did you ever see a bed fastened like that before?" "I cannot say that I have." "The lady could not move her bed. It must always be in the same relative position to the ventilator and to the rope—for so we may call it since it was clearly never meant for a ball-poll." "Holmes," I cried, "I seem to see dimly what you are hinting at. We are only just in time to prevent some subtle and horrible crime."

"Subtle enough and horrible enough. When a doctor does go wrong, he is the first of criminals. He has nerve and he has knowledge. Palmer and Pritchard were among the heads of their profession. This man strikes even deeper, but I think, Watson, that we shall have to strike deeper still. But we shall have to hurry, for the night is over, and the goodnes' sake let us have a quiet pipe, and turn our minds for a few hours to something more cheerful."

About nine o'clock the light among the trees was extinguished, and all was dark in the direction of the Manor House. Two hours passed slowly away, and then, suddenly, just at the stroke of eleven, a single bright light shone out right in front of us.

"That is our signal," said Holmes, springing to his feet. "It comes from the middle window."

As we passed out he exchanged a few words with the landlady, explaining that we were going on a late visit to an acquaintance, and that it was possible that we might spend the night there. A moment later we were out on the dark road, a chill wind blowing in our faces, and one yellow light twinkling in front of us through the gloom to guide us on our lonely errand.

QUESTIONNAIRE BEING SENT TO THE FARMERS

Want to Determine What is on Mind of Producer on Questions of National Policy.

DALLAS, TEXAS, June 3.—The farmers' "sixteen points" will be sent out for the consideration of every farm bureau member in Texas and referendum "yes" or "no" votes will be taken by the more than 100 county farm bureaus in the state. It is announced by C. O. Moser, executive secretary of the Texas Farm Bureau Federation. The purpose of this questionnaire, which is being conducted by the American Farm Bureau Federation throughout the United States, he said, is to determine what is in the mind of the American farmer on questions of national policy.

County farm bureau leaders will call meetings of the entire membership, read the "sixteen points" of the program to be voted, and submit the program to a referendum vote. A poll will be taken and the tally made on the official referendum sheet, and the completed questionnaires returned to the National Farm Bureau offices by June 15.

These are the sixteen questions submitted to the farmers:

1. Do you favor commodity financing based on bonded warehouse receipts?
2. Do you favor the development of a general rural credit system with proper safeguards?
3. Do you favor live stock financing based on proper pledges of animals and feed?
4. Do you request that authority be granted the Federal Reserve Board to classify redemptives, as to give paper certificates to loans for basic production of all kinds?
5. Do you favor increasing the limit on Federal Land Bank mortgage loans from $15,000 to $25,000?

PLACE A BAN ON "DRIVES" PROMOTED BY NON-RESIDENTS

VERNON, TEXAS, June 3.—The activities of organizers and promoters of drive organizations outside of Vernon will hereafter not be sanctioned by the local chamber of commerce, according to an announcement of the manager yesterday. The chamber of commerce will take the position that if individuals in Vernon care to make donations to the funds to be raised they may do so of their own volition, but the project will receive no sanction from the chamber. This decision was made because of the efforts of an individual representing the China famine fund, who attempted to organize Vernon to make a drive. The office of the chamber of commerce was sought in order to stimulate the campaign, and when these were refused, the promoter became highly indignant.

It was informed that the local business men have been "driven to death" that besides being called upon to contribute to funds raised in their immediate community, they have been the objects of solicitation from every imaginable charitable organization. It was pointed out to the stranger that Hon. Long, local laundry proprietor, assisted by a letter from the chamber of commerce, had organized several times the local business houses, and contributions to the famine fund, and

JAPANESE IS NOT SUPERMAN WRITES CHARLES RUSSELL

DOES SOME THINGS WELL BUT IS EXCEEDINGLY CRUDE IN MANY WAYS.

WILL GENERALLY ADMIT BLUNDERS HE HAS MADE

No Occasion For Hysteria Confronted Many Times When Country is Discussed.

By CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL, Special Correspondent Wichita Daily Times.

(Copyright, 1921, Wichita Daily Times.)

TOKIO, June 3.—Where do we get this stuff about the Japanese as a superman? We seem to have reached a point of hysteria in which we are blind each to a Japanese aggression upon eternal deities and strangely equipped to carry them out despite opposition and with a more fantastic invention. The Japanese is no superman. He is just an average ordinary human being who does well, some things most exceedingly ill, he can and does make mistakes 60 miles an hour, he is no more than a man of a brown complexion, of medium build and more than a little of the same old, same old traits he does possess in a greater degree than some of the rest of us, but it is a thing wholly inconsistent with the character we have imagined for him. He will generally admit his blunders, he will make no attempt to sidestep them and try with every appearance of good faith to correct them. All of the things in Japanese foreign policy that have been most assailed elsewhere and twisted into evidence of deep laid Machiavellian villainy have been things a Japanese administration has done in imitation of the historic methods that have made European nations great. This is the fact of the record, whatever else you may have been told about it, and nobody has been so much assailed as the Japanese statesmen when they learned that what has been deemed highly laudable in men of white skin is done by men of brown skin.

As to the frank admission of errors committed, three of the most prominent Japanese statesmen of this day and several others of less mark, have of their own motion acknowledged to me, in conversations about the Chinese situation, that the twenty-one demands were a colossal blunder. One of them was a blunder in which the address of Yuan Shih Kai led the Japanese administration, but he was not the less severe upon the administration for that reason. These men said in the frankest possible way and spirit that the demands were a blunder but asked what else the Japanese could do, China being a weak nation. I thought it would be a question we had better leave to the Japanese better in America, with the same freedom of intelligent Japanese admit that it was an error to back or seem to back with guns or the threat of guns the just and reasonable movements of Japan for economic expansion. They admit that they got hold of the Korean stick by the wrong end, that they do not know much about colonialism, that they have not worked out effectively nor completely the peculiar problems of their raw materials, that the South Sea islands seem unlikely now to pan according to expectations. But in all these experimental things and others, they have had always European models before their eyes, never one of their own devising. With the exception of their strange notion of establishing Japanese schools in the Marshalls I don't know of one original idea.

As to their readiness to correct their errors, there is often about that something naive, ingenuous and extremely taking. I know the school of thought that holds we must hate and suspect everything the Japanese do will say this is merely clever play acting to mask original sin and innate depravity. I can only say that if they will talk with the Japanese officers charged with the making of these corrections they will find it hard to maintain that there ever was a few illustrations gathered in Korea.

The Koreans have an ancient but most unpleasant method of disposing of the bodies of the dead. They scrape a shallow hole in the ground, about a yard, put in the body and raise over it a mound. Before the Japanese came the country used to be swept with terrible epidemics, mostly of cholera, 1200 deaths a day from it in Seoul alone was no unusual record. The Japanese, loyal students of what we are pleased to call our medical science, became convinced that the Korean burial methods must be dangerous, particularly in epidemic time, and the coup-d'etat government issued an order that burials should be in controlled and regulated cemeteries.

They could not have hit Korean sensibilities in a tenderer spot. The Korean, like the Chinaman, passionately desires to have his family buried in front of his front window where the spirit can be seen to be in and out of the house. Bitter, therefore, was the resentment when he heard that the precious privilege had been taken from him. When the governor general heard about this he summoned the central council, an advisory body of Koreans, to talk over the matter with him. The result was that he frankly admitted a mistake had been made and rescinded the order, fixing up a compromise by which graves are to be more than six inches deep.

The first Japanese administration in Korea laid strict and oppressive limits on the press. Some enlightened Japanese objected, pointing out that the world elsewhere had passed or believed it had passed beyond the stage of press-muzzling. The next Japanese administration admitted the error and removed the onerous restrictions. When the Japanese arrived their idea was to fill the administrative offices, so far as they could, with their own countrymen and, for the rest, pay Koreans at a lower rate of salary. When this was assailed as unfair, Baron Saito, the present governor general, said he thought so too, and made an order putting Koreans and Japanese on the same basis in the public service. At first the Japanese offices and representatives in Korea, even to school teachers, adorned themselves with uniforms and swords. This was denounced as ridiculous. The wise governor general said he thought so too and made an order abolishing the practice.

In the beginning the general Japanese purpose was to govern Korea as England has governed India. When it became apparent that the Koreans resented the iron heel and required something else the Japanese tried to give it to them. They haven't succeeded, but I think they have tried honestly and in accordance with their rights. The governor general has instituted a system by which seven secretaries go about the country openly conferring with leading Koreans as to desirable measures and reforms. This is regarded as an important concession to the principle of popular sovereignty and one that ought to keep the people still and happy; honestly so regarded, for the thing is meant in perfect good faith.

Nineteen in twenty intelligent Japanese will tell you that the long stretched out control of the government by the militarists was a blunder and rejoice that it has been corrected. They will tell you that the armed invasion of Siberia was a military blunder and the suggested retention of Shantung another and rejoice in the prospect that both will be corrected. The Japanese system of government is bad enough, Heaven knows, I detest it and do so every other American who becomes acquainted with it. But it is not bad in the way it is represented to be; it is bad through its attitude, surviving feudalism and a centralized monarchy, not through wilful intention nor because of satanic cunning setting out to conquer the earth. No other country in the world, so far as I know, not even France, is so much the victim of misrepresentation. Take this matter of Shantung, for one instance. The Germans grabbed it first as pretended reparation for an alleged murder and then forced from the Chinese a long lease. When Japan entered the war her first business necessarily was to put Germany out of the Orient and she took Shantung. There was every European precedent for her to keep it, at least until the expiration of the lease. Who in America knows that disregarding the examples of Hong Kong, Wei-hai-wei, Indo-China, Liaotung, Japan has tried three times to open negotiations with China for the return of Shantung and has failed through no fault of her own.

"Nevertheless," said Viscount Kaneko to me, "we will return Shantung. We have said that we will and we will. It will again become Chinese territory. We shall ask for some reasonable concessions for joint railroad operation and for free ports open to the world, but there will be no annexation. Japan has been strangely misrepresented in this whole matter." "It most assuredly has and there ought to be searching inquiry as to the reasons for this."

DOROTHY DIX'S TALKS

By DOROTHY DIX
THE WORLD'S HIGHEST PAID WOMAN WRITER

REMORSE

WOMAN writes me: "I am suffering the torments of the damned because I feel that I virtually murdered my husband whom I dearly loved. He was of a delicate and sensitive disposition, and I know that I hastened his death by my exactions, and selfishness, and bad temper. What shall I do to find peace?"

The best remedy for remorse is atonement. Of course we can do nothing to make up to the dead for the injury we have done them, but we have the living with us, and we can pay our debts to those who have passed beyond our reach by making life easier and pleasanter to those about us.

Perhaps there are very few men and women who ever bend above the coffin of their widows and husbands without being torn by the pangs of conscience. They may not have sinned the big sin, but they have been guilty of the little ones that made the road that might so easily have been made soft and pleasant, so hard to travel.

Who, at such a time, has not looked at the shut eyes and remembered how little gladness he or she has brought into them, and how often a stinging speech has filled them with tears? Who has not looked at the pale lips, narrowed into smiles, and wished that he or she had kissed them into smiles often? Who has not gazed upon the folded hands, and wept to recall how much needless labor he or she had imposed upon them?

It is proverbial that second marriages are almost always happier than first; that there are no husband-splitters who remember, and that the man who has been harsh and niggardly, and tyrannical to his first wife, is lavish to his second wife and putty in her hands.

It would amaze these Number Two husbands and wives to know that they are reaping the fruits of remorse, and that a conscience-stricken woman or man is trying to square herself or himself with the dead, but such is often the case.

When we do wrong, it is just that we should suffer for it, and wholesome to the soul for us to clothe ourselves in sackcloth and put ashes on our heads, but repentance is a virtue only in so far as it makes us do better.

All beyond this is sheer morbidity. After all, what is done, is done. That cannot be changed, and to spend one's life deploring a sin, or regretting a mistake, or wishing that one had acted differently is a wickedly futile employment.

Women are particularly given to this vice. They crucify themselves on the cross of their imagination, and blame themselves for things that have never happened. They weep to think that if I had taken my husband to Colorado or Maine; if I had had him operated on, or hadn't let the doctors persuade me to have him operated on, perhaps he would not have died. If I had been firmer with my children, instead of being so devoted to them; if I had been more loving instead of trying to discipline my children, perhaps they would have turned out differently.

You hear women constantly mourning like this and blaming themselves for things for which they are in no wise responsible since almighty wisdom did not vouchsafe them.

Possibly they did make mistakes, but to dwell on our mistakes is morbid madness. The wise thing to do, and the right thing to do, is to put the past behind us and go on to the future, striving to make that big enough and good enough to offset the errors we have made.

The only good in being sorry for a thing you have done, is to keep you from doing it again; yet there are people who would say things to you that sound you to the quick, and tell you that they are sorry for having hurt you, and then do it again the next day. You hear women say that they regret their extravagances and know that they are working their husbands to death, yet who keep on running up big bills.

We have all seen a man, who has been a cold and neglectful husband, agonize over his wife's sickness when he thought she was going to die, when she got well, resumed the indifferent attitude towards her.

This remorse that works no cure in the sinner is a kind of spiritual nostrum with which many seek to drug their consciences.

Sometimes, women have always been of the opinion that there is some peculiar merit in remorse, and that they can wash their slates clean if they only shed enough tears upon them. That is why you find women weeping over their mistakes instead of trying to correct them.

That is why the woman, who has had a past, salts it down in brine and keeps it handy, where she can always take it out, and look it over, and weep a little more over it; instead of putting it behind her, and forgetting it, and learning from the bitter lesson she has had to be a nobler and more compassionate woman than the woman who has never sinned.

That is why a woman sits before her typewriter, or her bungled sales slips, or her ill-typed letters, and weeps over her failures, instead of learning how to do her work better. That is why the mother of unruly children cries over them instead of disciplining them.

Tears are the high-water mark of incompetency and futility, unless they wash one's eyes clear and give one the straight vision. Repentance is weakness unless it leads to reform.

Instead of spending your time in being sorry for what you have done, use it in planning to do better.

To-Day's Jewel Color Flower
By MILDRED MARSHALL

BEVEL

THE talismanic stone for today, the bevel, is said to assure its wearer of protection against unhappiness caused by the waning love of husband or wife. Arnolus Saxo, who wrote in 1130, declared that the bevel had the power to re-awaken love and to maintain domestic happiness in the home of the husband or wife who wore it.

Today's natal stone is the aquamarine, whose powers are concentrated on the health and well-being of those born on an anniversary of this date. It promises them freedom from small cares and worries, and the power to maintain an even mind even under the most trying conditions.

The color for today is dark blue, which is symbolic of constancy and happiness. It brings serenity to its wearer, and the ability to think clearly.

The Jonquil is today's flower. In some countries it is the symbol of the plighting of a troth; in others it is said to be prophetic of the announcement of an engagement.

"What's In a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts About Your Name; Its History; Its Meaning; Whence It Was Derived; Its Significance; Your Lucky Day; and Lucky Jewel.

HILDA.

OF SPLENDID old Norse lineage is Hilda. The chief of the Valnir was Hilda, and the chief of the Derivatives, Whence It Was Derived, is Hilda. Hilda was given to signify "battle" by a literal translation, which probably means "warlike spirit" under a broader interpretation.

The Teutonic world claims the name and insists that it means "support," giving it to one of their principal war maidens. The real origin seems difficult to settle upon, but it is generally conceded that Hilda and peace are not synonymous.

For a time Hilda was one of the commonest terminations to feminine names in the Teutonic world and gradually the word came to mean "maiden" and was used interchangeably. It was much used in the north of England also, where the Danish princess, Hilda, became the holy abbess, Hilda of Whitby, succeeding St. Becca and leaving a reputation for sanctity.

The Clara de Clara could not see it, a vision of the holy abbess can be seen under certain conditions of light in the Whitby chapel today; the ammonites which are believed to have been serpents turned to stone at the prayer of the abbess are also there. Around Whitby, Hilda is still the most popular of feminine names, in honor of the holy woman who bore it.

Mickey exhibited that highest type of courage, the courage which neither hears nor hopes for praise, which is not buoyed up by applause nor supported by the expectation of reward.

Goethe, who wrote wonderfully of many things, said "Courage and modesty are the most unequivocal of virtues for they are of the kind that hypocrisy cannot imitate."

What is Courage and why once in a great while do we do something truly courageous?

Courage is of two types. The physical, which braves bodily pain. The mental which rises above all opinion.

Physical courage is shared alike by man and beast. The bull dog, the game cock, scores of varieties of both beast and bird will fight against tremendous odds and yield only when nature ends their struggles. That is courage without logic, neither very lofty nor inspiring.

Man alone of all creation may let courage and reason, each exercising its proper influence, determine action.

DRESS

By ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Aprons Attached to Separate Girdles Gain in Power for They Are Used to Support the Upper Skirt By Creating an Irregular Hem Without an Awkward Effect.

The present fashion for aprons should be given far more consideration by the world that selects its own clothes and does not buy what is suggested.

The idea comes from the Second Empire along with the new decorative and the insistence upon the fuller skirt. What have aprons to do with Empires or Empresses? It is the first question put by those who believe all royalty to be seated on gold thrones holding scepters. The answer is that they had quite a part in the life of one Empress, Eugenie of France, whose period of fashion was now only a faint memory.

Some say she did not bring such fashions into power through her Spanish inheritance, but that an Englishman, named Worth, inaugurated these clothes and she was merely a powerful and beautiful exponent of them, handing them down to posterity through portraiture.

Well, one thing is certain, that Worth did not inaugurate the fashion of house aprons for her or any other person of Royalty. Fashion, like many another Queen, was carried not to say Parisian, she insisted upon these frock protectors even at her own luncheon, table in the Tuilleries. Her intimates wore them when they were house guests.

The French dressmakers, knowing this eccentricity of the Empress, brought into the present fashions an apron de luxe, successfully disguised as over drapery. You can see it on several of the best models of the season. It is a side apron and it falls to protect it is merely ornamental. It is dependent from a girdle of the material or made of a brilliant galloon or braid.

The sketch shows such a frock as it was worn at an afternoon walking reception. It is of black charmeuse with gathered side panels caught to a belt of ornamental silver ribbon. These panels, like the full sleeves, are of silver dotted Georgette.

When the wearer desires a change of contour or wants to make her dress appear to be of one color, she merely unhooks her apron, dropping off all the glory of the gown and appearing in a plain chemise frock of black satin. France is full of these present-day aprons.

It is amusing and interesting to see how the fashion of aprons has changed. One keeps the original frock as a foundation for whatever can hook on to it. Such trickery carries us back to the age of innocence when women devised a party frock out of an afternoon frock by adding a new fabric. The multiplicity of fabrics is again exploited in the dress-room.

The cartoonists have seen the delightful part of this revival of an old fashion, and the Paris artists are making a series of sketches of one woman in one frock, but, oh, how different in each assembling of the different parts!

Several of the most wearable of these gowns have the girdle and apron of the same material without ornamentation. Crepe de china and Canton crepe are used and pleatings constitute the drapery.

There is no doubt that the idea was evolved as a clever way to compromise between the long and the short skirt. These side-pleatings bring the skirt to the ankles.

Gown of black charmeuse worn at afternoon walking reception which shows new fashion of adding an apron effect to a girdle of contrasting and ornamental fabric. It hangs in fullest at each side and is of silver-dotted Georgette.

An O. HENRY Story

The Lost Blend

By O. HENRY

TON LANTRY worked on the sober side of the bar in Kenaly's cafe. You and I stood one-legged like geese, on the other side and went into voluntary liquidation with our week's wages. Opposite danced Con, clean, temperate, clear-headed, polite, white-jacketed, punctual, trustworthy, young, responsible, and took our money.

The saloon (whether blessed or cursed) stood in one of those little "plaza" which are parallelograms instead of streets, and inhabited by laundries, decayed Knickerbocker families and Bohemians who have nothing to do with either.

Over the cafe lived Kenaly and his family. His daughter Katherine had eyes of dark Irish—but why should you be told?

But Con, in the presence of women, was tongue-tied and scarlet. What was he before Katherine? A trembler, with no word to say for himself a stone without blame, the dumbest lover that ever babbled of the weather in the presence of his divinity.

There came to Kenaly's two sun-burned men, Riley and McQuirk. They had conference with Kenaly, and then they took possession of a back room which they filled with bottles and siphons and just as the druggist's measuring glasses. All the apertures and liquids of a saloon were there, but they dispensed no drinks. All day long the two sweltered in there, pouring and mixing unknown brews and decoctions from the liquors in their store.

Riley had the education, and he figured on reams of paper, reducing gallons to ounces and quarts to fluid drama. McQuirk, a morose man with a red eye, dashed each unsuccessful complete mixture into the waste pipes with curses, gentle, husky and deep. They labored heavily and untiringly to achieve some mysterious solution like two alchemists striving to resolve gold from the elements.

Into this back room one evening when his watch was done sauntered Con.

Down the back stairs came Katherine with her smile like sunrise on Gweebarra Bay.

"Good evening, Mr. Lantry," she said. "What is the news today, if you please?"

"It looks like r-r-rain," stammered the shy one, backing to the wall.

"It couldn't do better," said Katherine. "I'm thinking there's nothing the worse for a little water."

"Blt down," said Riley to Con. "And I'll tell you."

"Last summer me and Tim concluded that an American DDT in this nation of Nicaragua would pay. There was a town on the coast where there was nothing to eat but quinine and nothing to drink but rum. The natives and foreigners lay down with chills and get up with fevers; and a good mixed drink is nature's remedy for all such tropical inconveniences. We had a fine stock of wet goods in New York, and bar fixtures and glassware, and we sailed for that Santa Palma town on a lime steamer. When we gets within five hours of the country that we was going to introduce our drinks, last month change the captain calls us over to the starboard binnacle and recoils a few things.

"I forgot to tell you, boys," says he, "Nicaragua slipped an import duty of 48 per cent ad valorem on all bottles of liquor last month. The President took a bottle of Cincinnati hair tonic by mistake for tobacco sauce, and he's getting even. Barreled goods is free."

"Borry you didn't mention it sooner," says Con. "And the bottle of two forty-two gallon casks from the captain, and opened every bottle we had and dumped the stuff all together in the casks. That 48 per cent would have ruined us, so we took the chances on making that $1,200 cocktail rather than throw the stuff away."

"Well when we landed we tapped one of the barrels. The mixture was something heartrending."

"But the other barrel," says bartender, "did you ever put on a straw hat with a yellow band around it and go up in a balloon with a pretty girl with $4,000,000 in your pocket all at the same time? That's what we did."

Ambition, courage and persistence, those three are the greatest factors in a successful life. Ambition is worthless without the other two. Courage is useless unless there is something to which it may be definitely and expressly applied. Persistence without ambition and courage is like a railroad track which has no destination named upon it. It will take you somewhere but you do not know where.

A good many men of talent, of genius, of knowledge, of every sort of possibility have died obscure and unknown because they did not have courage. They could do but they could not DARE.

The kind of courage that Mickey had could both dare and do. He faced his duty, as duty seemed to him, and went through to the end without faltering or fear.

Somewhere, some time, perhaps there will be a temple erected to every-day heroes: men and women and boys and girls who in their common activities, their every-day lives, face and master with unflinching resolution the duties and tasks that they encounter.

Somewhere among the tablets in that temple Mickey's name will be inscribed. You could not have a worthier ambition than to have yours beside it.

thirty drops of it would make you feel like it. It was the color of gold and as clear as glass, and it shone after dark like the sunshine was still in it.

"Well, we started up business with that one line of drinks, and it was enough. The plebeian gentry of that country stuck to it like a hive of bees. If that barrel had lasted that country would have become the greatest on earth. When we opened up of mornings we had a line of Generals and Colonels and ex-Presidents and revolutionists a block long waiting to be served. We started in at 40 cents silver a drink. The last ten gallons went easy at 45 a gulp. It was wonderful stuff. It gave a man courage and ambition and nerve to do anything; at the same time, he didn't care whether his money was tainted or fresh from the Ice Trust.

"'Twas by accident we discovered this, and it will be by good luck if we strike it again. For ten months we've been trying. Small lots at a time, we've mixed barrels of all the harmful ingredients known to the profession of drinking. Ye could have stocked ten bars with the whiskeys, brandies, cordials, bitters, wine and vinegars and Tim-haves-wanted-a-glorious drink like that if he'd been denied the world! 'Tis a sorrow and a loss of money. The United States as a nation would welcome a drink of that sort, and pay for it."

All the while McQuirk had been carefully measuring and pouring together small quantities of various spirits, as Riley called them, from his latest penciled prescription. The

LAST NIGHT'S DREAMS; WHAT THEY MEAN

DID YOU DREAM OF KEYS?

SOME of the mystics dream a dream in which keys appear in many varieties and a warning that you will have to practice strict economy. Others, however, take a more cheerful view of the matter and insist that it is a most excellent omen to dream of finding a key, or a bunch of keys, and that such a dream is of especially good significance for domestic happiness. All seem to agree that to dream of losing a key is a sign of some totally unexpected event leading reference to yourself which is sure to occur. As some say: "Things unredeemed of will cross your path."

One of the significations of a dream of losing a key is set down by a few of the oracles as being in the nature of a warning against hatred and anger to which you are liable to give way yourself or which may, perhaps, be aroused against you. A majority of the mystics set down any dream of keys as signifying that the dreamer makes excellent progress in knowledge and as also an omen of explanations to be made. Many, also, see in a dream of losing a key nothing more than an omen of perplexities to come, and in a dream of finding a key an omen of fortune and love coming to the dreamer.

Lyrics of Life

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE ANNUAL ATTACK.

Oh, what disease is this, or these, affecting woman's fate?

What can it be, the malady that drives them here and there?

From floor to floor, from door to door, they keep us on the run;

Once faithful wives make sad the lives

Of husband and of son.

Through every room, through close gloom,

From floor to floor they go;

From attic high they madly fly

To basements far below.

They alter, change and re-arrange

The places where we dwell,

Each cherished thing to which we cling

Burn, give away or sell.

With faces worn, their dresses torn,

Their hands the tint of coal,

They never speak but what they shriek

At some unhappy soul.

But do not think it's due to drink,

For ladies neverouse;

Each raving Jane is not insane—

She's merely cleaning house.

The Housewife's Economy Calendar

DO YOU KNOW HOW—?

The other day at a college reunion a group of graduates who had all abandoned hopes of other careers to follow the way of marriage and housewifery were commenting on the courses they had had in college that had proved the most useful since graduation. More than one of these women expressed the opinion that certain courses that are seldom found on college curriculums would have proved more useful than advanced Greek prose or Anglo-Saxon, for instance. One of the women suggested that no woman's education ought to be regarded as complete until she knew enough about practical electricity to renew a burned-out fuse.

But really one does not have to go to college to learn these things. It is simply a matter of making up your mind you will know them and then asking some one who does know to show you.

Something to Think About

Mickey, the Courageous

By F. A. WALKER

WE SHALL call him Mickey for the very good reason that that was his name. His mother called him that, and his little sweetheart called him that, and to those two the name will always be sacred. He was a worthy namesake of him with the flaming sword.

Mickey gave his life for another. When he might have saved himself he did not falter in doing what he thought to be his duty in saving the life of his playmate.

The falling grider he might have watched from a standpoint of safety but if he had he would have seen the object of his boyish affection mangled and killed. Rather than that he chose to risk his life for her safety and risking he lost it.

There will be no monument to Mickey. A little marker is all that will tell where he is buried. No eulogies will be written to recite his virtues, no songs to sound his praise.

Yet Mickey evidenced and displayed that quality of which it is said, "greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Mickey exhibited that highest type of courage, the courage which neither hears nor hopes for praise, which is not buoyed up by applause nor supported by the expectation of reward.

Goethe, who wrote wonderfully of many things, said "Courage and modesty are the most unequivocal of virtues for they are of the kind that hypocrisy cannot imitate."

What is Courage and why once in a great while do we do something truly courageous?

Courage is of two types. The physical, which braves bodily pain. The mental which rises above all opinion.

Physical courage is shared alike by man and beast. The bull dog, the game cock, scores of varieties of both beast and bird will fight against tremendous odds and yield only when nature ends their struggles. That is courage without logic, neither very lofty nor inspiring.

Man alone of all creation may let courage and reason, each exercising its proper influence, determine action.

Katherine was just going up the stairs.

"No news yet, Mr. Lantry," she asked with her teasing laugh.

Con lifted her clear from the floor and held her there.

"The news is," he said, "that we're to be married."

"Put me down, sir!" she cried indignantly. "or I will—Oh, Con, where, oh, where did you get the nerve to say it?"

SULLIVAN KNOCKED OUT RYAN IN FIRST CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT

Somebody Stole Ryan's Clothes After The Scrap and He Was Flat Broke.

The coming Dempsey-Carpenter battle for the world's heavyweight championship recalls records of the former title holder and the manner in which he was defeated by the present defender.

The first of the modern clash officially advertised as of heavyweight championship importance took place February 7, 1882, at Mississippi City, just across the Louisiana line from New Orleans. John L. Sullivan was the victor, whipping Paddy Ryan with bare fists.

The bout lasted nine rounds. There were only eleven minutes of fighting, however. In those days a round could be anything from an emphatic gesture to a day's work.

There were important fights long before then, even far back as the one-round encounter between Cain and Abel; but the sport record books count time from the collision at Mississippi City.

Sullivan, born in Boston, weighed 150 pounds, and Ryan, a native of Tipperary, was 140 pounds.

Underneath a cross-belt of rights and lefts in the ninth round and his seconds tossed up the sponge. The Irishman's left jaw had been broken in two places by Sullivan's smashes.

Paddy staggered to his dressing quarters to discover that while he had been taking a sound thrashing, some rascal had stolen all of his clothes and the $200 they contained. He was flat broke, for the winner got the entire purse.

News of the Boston youth's victory set off a big celebration among the sports of his home town.

"The boys were out in full force," said a newspaper account of jubilation, "and the fight was freely discussed. Money and wine were free as water, for the winners were heavy."

SPORT SHOTS

By Paul W. Larkin

They wound up their southern trip as they started it—with a loss.

Still, six wins out of thirteen from first division clubs are not to be sneered at.

The Salmites are not out of the running yet, but this home stay which includes 18 games, will tell the tale. They'll have to take the big majority to remain in the battle. Their backs are up against the wall now.

And they'll never take the big majority by playing as they did yesterday.

Maybe they wanted to get all the bad baseball out of their systems before performing for the benefit of the local fans. Hoop so.

Will Gray came in ahead of the rest of the club and stated that Bob Becher will improve the club's work about 50 per cent. Bob is a demon on the paths yet and will say he should tear them up at Athletic park where the ground is hard.

Walter was a bit worried when the club hit the road for fear Danny Gross would not be able to stand the gaff, but he's more than satisfied now. Danny's work between second and third was the one big feature of the trip. He showed up the entire infield.

Several fans have wondered how the Spudders were getting away with the number of new they are carrying. They are apparently 18 men on the roster while the limit is 17. Walter is allowed to carry a man to fill Tanner's vacancy while Ruth is being carried on the suspended list.

"Red" Johnson has persisted in refusing to report to the Memphis club and it's now up to the Spudder management to kick in with the cold cash for Marshall and Bischoff. "Red" and gratitude must be perfect strangers.

The boys are getting their fill of the southern clubs. They started playing them May 9 and won't finish until July 2. The only break is the present series with the Gassers. If the southerners were as weak this year as last year it would be plain sailing.

CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT WILL NOT BE STAGED FOR MOVING PICTURES

Kearns Sets Skeptic at Rest by Offering to Sell Interest in Movies.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 3.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight, announced today that he would consider an offer for the sale of his interest in the motion pictures of the Dempsey-Carpenter championship contest.

Dempsey and Kearns will have a fourth interest in the pictures, another fourth will belong to Deschamps and Carpenter, while Tex Rickard, promoter of the contest, reserves the rights to the other half.

Kearns' offer to sell the "right of Dempsey and himself is taken to mean that Dempsey intends to visit as quickly as possible. It further removes foundations for rumors that the contest will be a picture fight in which the contestants would box several rounds in order to make the films lengthy enough to be financially attractive.

Kearns suggested that a picture be made of Dempsey and Carpenter in their training stunts and the preliminary scenes at the arena be incorporated with the pictures of the actual fight. This suggestion has met with the approval of both Deschamps and Rickard, Kearns said.

"I shall consider any reasonable offer to sell our interests in the pictures," said Kearns. "There have been ugly reports that Dempsey intends to leave for Europe along for several rounds to make the pictures good. Nothing could be further from the truth. If the opportunity presents itself for the champion to win by a single punch, the public can rest assured that the fight will go no further than that punch. Dempsey is representing America and in this fight with the European title holder will endeavor to make his victory as quick and decisive as possible."

Kearns announced that beginning Saturday Dempsey will resume his training.

ILLINOIS FAVORED TO WIN CONFERENCE MEET

CHICAGO, June 3.—The 21st western track and field meet will begin this afternoon at 2:30 p. m. when preliminary tryouts in the dash events will be run in order to cut down the entry list to a number which can be handled in semi-finals and finals Saturday at the meet proper.

Thirty to fifty men are entered in each of the dashes and middle distance runs. More than 200 athletes will take part in the meet. A score of schools will be represented, their entries making a total of more than 600 in the 15 events, many men entering three or four contests.

Illinois, with an unusually large and well balanced team which has run rough shod in the past, is expected to carry a good chance. Illinois, however, is considered sure of a large number of third, fourth and fifth places, even if losing first and seconds, and expects to carry through to victory with its large number of good performers.

Contrary to the usual custom, five places will be awarded in each event. The first place counting five points, second place, four; third place, three; fourth place, two, and fifth place, one.

The 15 events included in the program are as follows: 100-yard, 220-yard and 440-yard dashes; 880-yard, one-mile and two-mile runs; 120-yard high hurdles; 220-yard hurdles; high jump; 200-yard dash; shot put; hammer throw; discus throw and javelin throw.

All of ten western conference schools entered large teams and in addition the following schools have sent their stars: Missouri, Ames, Nebraska, Ohio Wesleyan, Western State Normal, Michigan, Notre Dame, Butler, Cincinnati and Grinnell.

BOY SCOUTS BEGIN TWO WEEKS OF FUN AT SUMMER CAMP

COTS AND TENTS FAIL TO ARRIVE BUT HARSHIPS ARE CHEERFULLY ENDURED.

75 ARE TAKING PART IN ANNUAL OUTING

Dady Sunburn by Wearing Bathing Suits at All Times—Are Being Well Looked After.

With the arrival late Wednesday afternoon of the main body of scouts, the second annual summer camp of the Wichita Falls boy scout organization got under way in the Wichita mountain forest and game preserve four miles north of Cache, Okla. Seventy-five boys, three officers and one cook made up the delegation, which plans on a two-week period of fishing, hiking, swimming, scouting and general outdoor activity.

Failure of a supply of army tents and cots to arrive from Austin necessitated a real "back to nature" movement on Wednesday and Thursday nights, all but half a dozen, who were provided with hammocks, being forced to roll up in their blankets and use the ground for a bed. But the knowledge that this was real camping and that no true woodman's education was ever complete without such hardships tempered the discomfort.

Bathing suits were voted standard costume for the present at least, and the majority of the scouts present are appearing around camp in their aquatic gear, playing baseball and defying the scorching rays of the sun. Scout officials are allowing the unconventional attire until the camp is completely organized, after which the regulation scout uniform must be donned.

A plentiful supply of wholesome food has been laid away, a competent cook engaged and everything else that could add to the pleasure of the local boys provided for. Splendid swimming facilities are present, hiking and mountain climbing has already been enjoyed and the youngsters are looking forward to two of the most lively weeks they have ever had.

They are under the direction of Scout Executive H. E. Taylor and Scout Masters Chester Powell and St. Merriam, all three of whom are experienced woodsmen. No pains are being spared to provide for the safety of the boys. Taylor, having provided for all emergencies which may arise.

WHOLESALE FORM CREDIT ASSOCIATION OFFICERS ELECTED

Representatives of a score of wholesalers and jobbers met Thursday night at the chamber of commerce rooms and organized the Wichita Falls Association of Credit Men. Officers elected were: George Keith, president; J. W. Hult of the Wichita Mill, vice-president; M. P. Rogers of the Goodner Grocery company, treasurer.

The organization will affiliate with the National Association of Credit Men, which was represented at Thursday night's meeting by Vernon Hall of Dallas. Another meeting will be held next Tuesday night at 7:30 at the Kemp.

Miss Stella Holt will teach summer class of piano pupils. Pupils may enroll June 1 to 6. Phone 243. 20-21p.

TARIFF PETITIONS BEING CIRCULATED BY LOCAL OIL MEN

Petitions urging congress to enact a protective tariff on crude oil were in circulation Friday among local oil men, who feel that there is a fighting chance to secure such a tariff if it is shown that public sentiment is strongly behind it. The petitions are being circulated through the Mid-Continent Oil & Gas association, and read as follows:

"We, the undersigned oil producers and employees, supply houses, chambers of commerce and all times of business affected, respectfully petition the congress of the United States for an adequate import duty on petroleum for the following reasons:

First—The flood of petroleum from Mexico has so demoralized the oil industry in the United States that the market price of crude is below the average cost of production.

Second: Many thousands men have been thrown out of employment and many thousands wells, now being operated at a loss must be abandoned, unless the market conditions improve.

Third: The shrinkage of over two million dollars a day or at the annual rate of more than three quarters of a billion dollars in the receipts from oil produced in the United States is showing a steady demoralization of all business in the producing districts throughout the entire country. We therefore petition congress to enact a protective tariff on crude oil to relieve this intolerable situation."

Small Boys Man New Enterprises Throughout City

Anyone who questions whether vacation has come has but to take a ride over the city and lamp the new business enterprises coming into being. Cold drink stands, manned by small boys, are springing up in front yards, on corners and on vacant lots throughout the city.

An old furniture crate, a few odds and ends of lumber, or a dry goods box are all that is needed for a business home. These, a small amount of capital for the original invoice of drinks, a home-made sign and a lustrous voice are sufficient, provided the youthful purveyor can conquer the temptation to drink up all his profit.

AMERICAN LEGION TO HAVE A BARBECUE AND RODEO AT CLARENDON JULY 4 AND 5

CLARENDON, TEXAS, June 3.—American Legion, Aubyn Clark Post 126, met in the chamber of commerce Thursday morning to formulate plans for having a barbecue and rodeo at Clarendon on July 4 and 5. A big barbecue and rodeo are among some of the amusements for the day.

Clarendon was visited with another good rain Wednesday afternoon of a half inch or more. All of these rains are coming when they are very beneficial for the farmers. Some hail fell, but no damage was done.

EXPECT $4,000,000 IN INCOME TAXES IN JUNE PAYMENTS

Approximately $4,000,000 is expected to be collected in north Texas between now and June 15, in second installments of 1920 income tax payments, according to an estimate from the Dallas office. Notices were sent out from the Dallas office Thursday, but failure to receive them does not excuse taxpayers from making remittance.

Although Scott Reed has resigned as collector for the northern district, he has not yet been relieved from duty, so all checks should be made payable to Scott Reed, collector, and mailed to the collector of internal revenue at Dallas.

More than $9,000 taxpayers in the second, or north Texas district, pay their income taxes on the installment plan.

As soon as he is relieved of duty, which may not be for some time, Mr. Reed will enter the practice of law, forming a partnership with T. B. Love and W. J. Rutledge, Jr., at Dallas.

A Hartford Fire Insurance Policy that covers the full value of your property is an anchor of safety. And full value means today's value, not the value of 5 years ago. There's a difference.

If your policy bears the name Hartford, you will get promptly reimbursed. If it covers the present value of your property you will get returns that match such value.
