

SELF PRESERVATION DEMANDS STRIKE UNION CHIEFS SAY

AWAIT FURTHER ACTION OF BOARD BEFORE GIVING NOTICE.

STRIKE FAVORED BY OVERWHELMING MAJORITY

July 1, Date Set For Walkout Shopmen and Maintenance Of Way Workers.

By Associated Press. CINCINNATI, June 16.—R. M. Jewell, president of the railway employees department of the American federation of labor was authorized today by chiefs of the railroad shopmen and maintenance of way workers for a joint conference. Joint action between the rail men in their threatened strike with the miners who have been on strike since April 1 will be discussed if Mr. Jewell's request is approved by the miners' officials.

Public announcement of the conference between the rail and mine union chiefs was made by Mr. Jewell at the afternoon session of the American federation of labor convention. He said the conference would be called on the arrival here of Mr. Lewis and that only subjects to be discussed would be those permissible under the alliance agreement.

By Associated Press. CINCINNATI, June 16.—Rail union chiefs were considering today serving formal notice on the railroad labor board that an overwhelming majority of the 1,235,000 shop crafts and maintenance of way employees were voting in favor of a strike.

The notice to effect would formally come to the board the public statement issued here last night by the union heads which asserted that the board in its recent decision had reduced living standards that the strike becomes an act of self-preservation.

Decision as to the dispute of the board's action on further reductions affecting 350,000 station employees, clerks, expressmen, signalmen, firemen and others and train dispatchers.

With the more than $60,000 coal miners' strike a second of the country's basic industries. No claims have yet been made as to the possibility of a strike in the American federation of labor convention closes the rail union executives will leave for Chicago on June 21 as a canvass of the strike vote.

The strike would not include members of the "red" transportation brotherhoods, whose members are engaged directly in moving trains.

Before the close of the convention the rail executives may ask the federation endorsement of a strike by way of support for the union executives will leave for Chicago on June 21 as a canvass of the strike vote.

More Strike Votes Regarded As Certain

By Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 16.—On the eve of another railway wage slash expected to top $20,000,000 from the railroad's annual labor cost covering 2,500,000 employees, gossip in rail circles centered today on the question whether a strike ballot would actually be taken.

Reports from headquarters of the railway employees department of the American federation of labor said the ballot on the question whether a 100 per cent vote was expected and that the indications thus far were that it would be overwhelmingly in favor of a strike.

Added to the shopmen's vote was the ballot now being cast by 600,000 maintenance of way laborers. Both votes are to be completed before July 1, when the $100,000,000 slash for those two classes goes into effect.

Wage cuts for other classes of workers were regarded as certain forerunners of more strike votes. Executives of eleven unions decided in Cincinnati to meet on the eve of a strike ballot immediately on announcement by the board that the pay of their men would be decreased. With this new decision looked for tomorrow, three more classes—clerks, signalmen and station firemen—are expected to add their ballots to the deluge.

CHILEAN-PERUVIAN CONFERENCE NEAR DEFINITE BREAK

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 14.—Indications that the Chilean-Peruvian conference would take a wide scope or else come to a definite break developed today coincident with a visit to the Chilean minister by Chilean Ambassador Mathieu.

After the ambassador's talk with Secretary Hughes there were indications that the two delegations have about reached the parting of the ways but that the American state department was seeking a means for some new method of effecting reconciliation.

REPUBLICANS WANT DEMOCRATIC HEADS IN THE TREASURY

SIGN PETITION THAT WILL BRING FRESH OUTBREAK BLAIR-DOVER CONTEST.

NAME 150 DEMOCRATS TO RECEIVE THE AXE

Alleges That They Hold Key Positions and Are Not Loyal to Administration.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Charge in a statement circulated among members of congress in connection with the Blair-Dover controversy in the treasury that key positions in the treasury department were held by democrats was declared by Secretary Mellon in a formal statement to be "no false and for the most part so ridiculous" as ordinarily not to require notice.

The statement which made its appearance today at the same time it became known that 150 house members had signed a memorial to the speaker praying Assistant Secretary Der of his resignation.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The list of Secretary Mellon's Treasury threatened to break out fresh today when it became known that a petition had been circulated among republican members of congress asking President Harding to uphold the policies of Mr. Der.

The petition, it was learned, has received the signatures of about 150 members and is being made to present it to the president within the next 48 hours.

Circulated with the petition was a document giving the names of almost 150 officeholders in the treasury and internal revenue bureau who were declared to be democrats occupying key positions in the department. The list of names included officials in the office of Secretary of the Treasury, Mellon, the office of Commissioner Blair of the internal revenue bureau and the different units of the revenue bureau as well as Under Secretary Gilbert who was described as an active democrat politician who took the stump for Governor Cox in the campaign of 1920.

Commissioner Blair, when informed of the petition and document, said he would make no comment for the present while Secretary Der is in the work. It was considered probable that the matter would come up at today's cabinet meeting.

Mr. Harding as president of the United States, said the document, "he became aware that he was not entitled and upon investigation he found that the democratic ring was in a complete control of the treasury department. In order to correct this situation and to effect a reorganization along party lines, he has decided to resign."

Mr. Harding as president of the United States, said the document, "he became aware that he was not entitled and upon investigation he found that the democratic ring was in a complete control of the treasury department. In order to correct this situation and to effect a reorganization along party lines, he has decided to resign."

This committee was given explicit instructions and delivered its report to the president on the eve of the internal revenue carrying authority for the special work assigned by David H. Blair.

In furtherance of the reorganization Mr. Hoover prepared a list naming for key positions to form the nucleus members of this committee and other known loyal republicans. Mr. Hoover recommended their approval. This was not approved and within the last 30 days every member has either been removed or transferred to widely scattered points without having been given the least preference as to the location.

The income tax unit of the seven men demoted and transferred, there were four members of George Washington post No. 1, the American legion, who served their country in her extremity in the world war.

"It is not believed that the president or any loyal American would countenance the degradation and humiliation to which these men have been and are being subjected, in that they are being shadowed by and might like common criminals and their former associates have been warned not to associate with them or in any manner communicate with them, and they are losing their positions, notwithstanding the fact that those who have been transferred are still officers of the government and which is still in control of the bureau."

The above removals and transfers, it was understood, were suggested by the democratic ring which is still in control of the bureau.

The treasury secretary said the democrats retained had been guilty of partisan activities as charged in the statement. The statement making the charges was in the hands of every republican member of congress today but carried no signatures, and efforts to ascertain its authorship was unavailing.

AS THE RURAL GENT SAID ON VIEWING HIS FIRST GIRAFFE

FIRST COAL MINED IN ILLINOIS SINCE STARTING OF STRIKE

By Associated Press. HERRIN, ILL., June 16.—Guarded by two lines of armed men with machine guns, sixty men began the production of coal at the Lester and Sherman strip mine, six miles east of here, today. It was the first coal mined in Illinois since the strike in Illinois since the strike effective April 1 and armed sentries guarded the roadways to the mine.

Crowds of striking miners gathered on corners, discussing the situation while other crowds went from town to town "feeling out sentiment." Miners' officials cautioned against demonstrations, telling the strikers any outbreaks would react to the discredit of the union.

The men who began work today were said to have been imported from the Chicago district.

COAL DEALERS AGREE ON PLAN TO PREVENT ADVANCE IN PRICES

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Secretary Hoover has secured the agreement of the National Coal Association and the National Retail Coal Merchants' association on a plan for preventing fluctuations in coal prices.

Following a conference yesterday announcement was made by Mr. Hoover that anthracite coal operators had agreed not to advance prices of stocks held above ground beyond the levels of the past week which, he said, were lower than at the beginning of the strike. Bituminous fields where no price basis has yet been established, Mr. Hoover said the operators, according to reports, had agreed to reduce selling expenses for spot coal to the Gulf price, plus additional necessary to cover increased costs in individual cases.

The agreement reached with representatives of the retail association, Mr. Hoover said, was that they should cooperate in securing other things, that all coal is sold by retailers "at cost plus a reasonable selling charge."

VAN KARNABEEK GIVES UP TO PRESS ADMITS REPORTERS

By Associated Press. THE HAGUE, June 16.—Foreign Minister Van Karnabeek of Holland displayed the white flag to the newspapermen today and the Carnegie Peace palace, seat of the international conference on Russian affairs, capitulated to the press without a renewal of yesterday's battle for the admission of the correspondents here to report the sessions.

A half hundred correspondents from all over the world presented their press credentials at the palace gates before the 11:00 o'clock session today.

The press cannot be admitted, guards announced.

This was quickly followed, however, by the appearance of an emissary from the palace begging the journalists to have patience and announcing that plans were being perfected to care for newspapermen.

There apparently was great anxiety lest yesterday's onslaught by the correspondents upon the press without a renewal of yesterday's battle for the admission of the correspondents here to report the sessions.

There were indications that the smaller nations should have large representation on the sub-committee and carried through an amendment to have the membership of each committee increased to 13 from 11, as arranged yesterday at a private meeting of the council of the "big six."

By Associated Press. THE HAGUE, June 16.—The Hague conference, in the absence of the dominating political figures who guided the course of the investigation, seemed destined to bring into the limelight another and younger group of leaders representing the great powers.

They include Sir Philip Lloyd-Graeme of England; M. Beollet, France; Baron Avascano, Italy; M. Janin M. Gaillet, Belgium; and M. Van Karnabeek, Holland, and already they have begun their efforts to shape the course of the conference. Their initial private meeting last night they decided upon the scheme of a main Russian commission with three sub-commissions which would give detailed study to the technical questions of credits, debts and treatment of private property owned by foreigners.

Meanwhile the war between press correspondents and Dutch officials' demand over the right of the former to enter the peace palace is affording great amusement to the visitors here, as well as a good laugh to many phlegmatic Hollanders who, like the people of other lands, like to see bureaucracy beaten obstinately. The newspapermen won the first engagement but another battle seemed likely today.

COMMITTEE ORDERS SHIP SUBSIDY BILL FAVORABLY REPORTED

REJECTS AMENDMENT THAT WOULD DENY SUBSIDY TO SHIPS SELLING LIQUOR.

REPORT ORDERED BY STRICTLY PARTY VOTE

Proposal to Extend Volstead Law to All Ships Was Not Considered.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Without a record vote the house merchant marine committee today rejected the Blackleg amendment to the ship subsidy bill providing that no government aid should be allowed ships on which liquor was sold.

The Edmonds proposal which would extend the Volstead law to the sea by fining all ships of any registry touching American ports on which liquor selling was permitted, was not acted on and the committee ordered the bill reported by a straight party vote.

New Element Introduced.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church injected a new element into the discussions ranging about the sale of liquor on American ships today by making public a letter written last November by D. E. Brundage, then advertising manager of the shipping board, which stated that the shipping board's attention was called by Chairman Lusk Wednesday in reply to Anheuser Busch company.

RESOLUTIONS BEING DRAWN BY A. F. OF L.

CINCINNATI, June 16.—While no definite program faced the American federation of labor here today, all committees were working on resolutions. President Samuel Gompers called a roll of all committees, but found none indicated an early report on any of the more important public questions under consideration.

The executive council of the federation also held a meeting for its last perusal of its report on the supreme court decision in the celebrated Coronado case. The council held a labor union, liable for damages under the Sherman anti-trust law. The council decided to propose no program for overcoming the decision, leaving this question for a special policy committee considering a congressional veto of the court's decision.

The decision was said to subject unincorporated unions to greater liability than incorporated organizations. The council decided to propose a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Ernest, republican, Kentucky, which would provide for a special measure, its sponsor said, is designed to put the responsibility of enforcing the prohibition laws upon one man.

Mr. Garner is a candidate for reelection and may continue in office pending the hearing of his appeal in the court of civil appeals.

HEAD OF LEGION ADDRESSES A. F. OF L. AT CINCINNATI, OHIO

CINCINNATI, OHIO, June 16.—Organized labor and organized veterans of the world war have "as common enemies those who seek to divide the legions," declared Samuel Gompers, commander of the American Legion, in addressing here today the American Federation of Labor convention.

"The legion knows no sex, no class of any kind except between constructive and destructive forces," declared Gompers. "It must be that we see that the legions of our day are fair, straight, tolerant and American."

Mr. Gompers referred casually to legislation pending in the senate to pay adjusted compensation to world war veterans, and in this connection he thanked the federation for its endorsement last year of the bill. Mr. MacNider said that the legion was not in politics, but that it looked upon the federal government as a "square deal." He added that "every bit" of legislation adopted by congress affecting the veterans had been brought forward by the legion and for the legion's endorsement.

The legion's legislative program since the war, Mr. MacNider said, had been supported by President Samuel Gompers of the federation.

As Mr. MacNider concluded, the delegates broke loose in a demonstration, their applause continuing for several minutes. In response to the address reiterated his statement that the relations between the legion and the federation were kindly and mutually harmonious.

Before hearing Mr. MacNider, the convention in effect rejected for a second time in two days "the one big idea" by voting down a resolution proposing adoption of a universal label. The convention's previous action was a flat rejection of the "one big union" in one industry.

EVACUATION OF IRELAND BY BRITISH BEING RESUMED

DRAFT OF CONSTITUTION IS APPARENTLY WELL RECEIVED IN IRELAND.

ELECTION BEING HELD IN SOUTHERN IRELAND

Coalition Panel of Candidates Apportioning Representation Is Presented.

LONDON, June 16.—A Dublin dispatch to the Daily Mail says the evacuation of British troops from Ireland is being resumed.

Electing Irish Parliament.

DUBLIN, June 16.—The voters of southern Ireland went to the polls today to elect an Irish parliament as provided in the terms of the Anglo-Irish treaty.

Under the recent agreement between the factions favoring and opposing the treaty, a coalition panel of candidates was presented apportioning representation in the parliament at approximately the same ratio as shown in past tests of strength in the daily elections. A number of independents have entered the field in an attempt to overturn the panel on the treaty issue and it was expected that the struggle that interest mainly centered.

Estimates were that at least 150,000 voters would be successful with the anti-treaty party losing ten and the pro-treaty five seats.

Publication last night of the draft of the Irish constitution on which the new parliament must pass was not expected to influence the vote. The committee of the bill, which newspapers today is mostly favorable to the constitution. The Freeman's Journal says:

"The draft of the constitution—described in our country under the name of the 'draft of the constitution'—is a document which the people of Ireland derive from the people. Let the people vote today by the fearless, conscientious and prudent exercise of their franchise, and the people are worthy repositories of that supreme power."

The Irish Independent says: "On the whole, the new constitution is democratic, conceived in the spirit of the people, with simplicity and skill. The framers have contrived to bring every interest into the service of the nation."

The Independent high taxation levied in our country under the British regime was due mainly to the cost of war from which we derived no benefit. Our position is that we should have a nation with a distinct citizenship."

British Press Comment

By Associated Press. Commenting on the draft of the Irish constitution, the Times expresses the belief that if the government officials who have been formed by the Anglo-Irish treaty is justified, one of the most serious obstacles in the path of Irish peace will have been successfully surmounted.

Mr. MacNider thinks that a "very thin safeguard indeed" is provided for the protestant minority.

Says the Daily News: "Nobody is honestly willing to see autonomy granted Ireland can well quarrel with the terms of the constitution. The general principles laid down are wholly admirable."

The Morning Post, irreconcilable as ever, comments: "When the constitution is adopted, the business is gross mockery, we need hardly scrutinize the provisions of a constitution, which, like the treaty, is a lie and deception in its very nature."

Getteth Pleased

By Associated Press. LONDON, June 16.—Arthur Griffith before leaving London tonight made a statement in which he said:

IMPERIAL "PUTSCH" IMPENDS IN GERMANY SOCIALIST PAPER SAYS

By Associated Press. BERLIN, June 16.—The Independent socialist newspaper Die Freiheit features a sensational communication from a well informed source announcing that a pan-German "putsch" is impending. The writer states that the various military parades, such as the Von Hindenburg celebrations which have been going on throughout Germany were not merely theatrical displays, but serious preparations for monarchist coup d'état, which he says is to be preceded by a sort of St. Bartholomew night in which all persons whose names are entered on a special blank list will be given short shrift.

The writer declares the ministry of defense and the police are implicated in the movement. Resolutions warning of probable demonstrations set for June 28 were adopted yesterday by the directors of the majority socialist party, the socialist Vorwarts announces. It says the nationalist association, with German officers and ex-soldiers, are reported as intending to hold demonstrations throughout the country on June 28, the anniversary of the signing of the treaty of Versailles. These demonstrations, it is declared, have always degenerated into militaristic and monarchistic displays. The directors therefore recommend that the socialist party be on guard and call meetings where such as are needed in this connection.

Egypt's Great Pyramid Noah's Ark of Bible Declares Egyptologist

LOS ANGELES, June 16.—Noah's ark built to save human and animal life from the flood of ancient biblical times, is still extant for all to see, 30,000 years after its construction. This is the belief of Dr. E. C. Getzinger, Egyptologist, now visiting here. His conclusion is based, he declares, on recent discoveries following 25 years of research work on the results of which he described in an address before the Friday morning club of Los Angeles.

Dr. Getzinger is convinced that the ark of Noah was not a ship; that it was the great pyramid of the Cheops in Egypt. Recent discoveries prove that the pyramids were under the sea for thousands of years, he said. Near the top of the pyramids a same level is a high water line where a deep niche has been cut into the rock by the lashing of a long forgotten surging flood which inundated the ancient biblical world, he declared. Dr. Getzinger said research showed the inner passages of the pyramids to be thickly crusted with salt which chemical analysis proved was sea salt.

Dr. Getzinger is convinced the pyramids were built thousands of years before the reign of the Pharaohs. The legends merely repaired them, he said. He is also convinced that the pyramids stand today a living monument to an old and noble philosophy, a civilization greater than any the human race has since attained.

Obviously, since modern science cannot account for the means used to transport and place the great stone slabs used in the construction of the pyramids that ancient race must have possessed knowledge and power lost to us of the present day, Dr. Getzinger argued. His explanation of the feat performed by these ancient engineers is that they were of a race infinitely more spiritual than modern man, that their power lay in greater understanding of the universe and its laws.

Going further into detail about his research work in the pyramids, the Egyptologist stated there were three chambers within the great pyramid which "conform to God's directions to Noah for the building of the ark, and these three chambers, named for the three sons of Noah, Shem, Ham and Japhet, represent three strata of life and intelligence."

It is already known, Dr. Getzinger continued, that the flood of Noah's time did not submerge the whole of the present known world, but included only the ancient lost continent of Atlantis and Egypt. Atlantis has never reappeared, he said, but Egypt, after 12,000 years under the sea, proved by the evidence of sea salt encrustations to a height of 475 feet on the great pyramids and the sphinx arose as a beacon light to mankind and when the flood subsided Egypt was re-peopled by immigrants from other lands.

MEMBERS CONGRESS WOULD DISRUPT U. S. SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Declaring that some members of congress had forgotten themselves as to abuse the supreme court, Senator Dial, democrat, South Carolina, denounced in the senate yesterday recent attacks which he said had been made on the south and its industries for employing children in mills. The senator asserted the criticism had thus far come from persons "who wanted to disrupt the government."

WHOLE BARREL OF LIQUOR FOUND ON RIVER NEAR VERNON

VERNON, TEXAS, June 16.—City officers Tuesday discovered a barrel of liquor concealed beneath a barn on the edge of Pease river, a short distance north of town, and although no arrests have been made a "thorough" investigation is being made by both county and federal officers. Developments in the case are expected Friday.

THE RED DANCER CANNOT BE PLAYED AT NANCY

NANCY, FRANCE, June 16.—The mayor of Nancy has forbidden the performance of "The Red Dancer," a play dramatizing the career of Mata Hari, the Italian actress, who was executed during the war for her espionage activities. The mayor feared the performance would cause disorders tomorrow and Sunday during the visit here of Marshal Foch.

NEXT DOSE CALOMEL MAY SALIVATE YOU

It is Mercury, Quicksilver, Shakes Liver and Attacks Your Bones.

Calomel salivation is horrible. It swells the tongue, loosens the teeth and starts rheumatism. There's no reason why a person should take sickening salivation when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic—a perfect substitute for calomel. It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Calomel is a dangerous drug, besides it may make you feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tonic instead and you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tonic acts better than treacherous calomel your money is waiting for you. (Adv.)

Line Party at Kemp Home Most Enjoyable Affair

With the beautifully kept lawn of the J. A. Kemp home converted into a colorful garden spot by means of dozens of crepe-covered lights strung its length and breadth, one of the prettiest garden parties imaginable served as entertainment Thursday evening for the women visitors to the T. W. P. A. convention here.

Members of the chamber of commerce and the City Federation of women clubs were hosts to about 150 and 200 people were present. The guests occupied chairs on the lawn placed at the base of the house, from which the evening's program was given. Mrs. Genie Griffin, wife of San Saba, opened the program with a plant arrangement. Mrs. J. G. Groves, Harry Smith, E. Bartlett, Ray Miller, Harry Harrison, Frank, and Edie, Clarence Dodge, J. P. Fryer, J. V. Quinn, C. Shuppell, J. H. Sides, W. G. Bentley and Fred Woolsey. The meeting was the last one of the club for the summer and during the summer Mrs. Dodge, as secretary, read a message given her in the heart of a pretty pink rose bearing a farewell to the members for the next few months.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS COMET-LEGS ENLISTS HELP IN FIGHT AGAINST HELPS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

He knocked at the door.

Comet-Legs, enemy of Mr. Peabody, about the Man-in-the-Moon, was always up to mischief. And he never seemed able to catch him. I don't suppose Comet-Legs was really wicked. He was jealous of the Moon-Man, that was all, and besides he thought he could manage things much better.

Mr. Peabody was trying to please folk all he could, but Mr. Peabody Comet-Legs wasn't satisfied. Comet-Legs could get around places too much better than the Moon-Man. He would straddle his shooting-star, take a good hold with his bow legs, and off he'd go. The night after he meddled with the handles, the Moon-Man ran the moon with Comet-Legs went to the Weatherman's Star nearby. He was awfully over to the house of the Nuisance Fairies lived in (or rather where the Weatherman had them locked in) and knocked on the door.

"The key's outside," answered a dozen voices. "It's hanging on a nail." Comet-Legs reached up and got it and turned the lock. Such a hullabaloo as there was then, all the Nuisance Fairies crowding around and saying how-do-you-do and how-was-he-any-way. There was Jack Frost and Howly Thunder and Jumpy Lightning and Sizzly Dry Weather and Old Man Flood and a lot of others. "Say, boys," said Comet-Legs, "need your help. Old Mr. Peabody has sent a couple of children after me. They've got a shaker with magic powder and if it touches my legs they'll get straight as poker, and then I'm done for, because I can't ride my star."

"Well help," they all cried. "Who are the children?" "Nancy and Nick," said Comet-Legs. (To be continued.) (Copyright, 1922, NEA Service)

RECORD-NEWS AND TIMES ENTERTAIN T. W. P. A. GUESTS

The Record-News and Times were hosts to the visiting women of the T. W. P. A. Thursday noon at the Wichita club at a very attractively appointed luncheon. Covers were laid at a T-shaped table for thirty-two guests, and a five course menu served under the direction of Mr. Doyle. The table was centered with a big basket of roses, daisies and larkspur, and the place folders were pretty flower box holders, which held salted almonds. The menu comprised fruit cocktail, head lettuce and tomato salad with thousand island dressing, chicken à la king on short bread, June peas in timbale, lettuce, strawberry ice cream and marshmallow cake.

Mr. Fitzgerald of the Record-News acted as toastmaster, and called on several of the visitors and town guests for talks. The guests included Messrs. and Mesdames H. N. Fitzgerald, Ernest Frechette, Paul Larkin, Hubert Harrison and Fred Barron; Mesdames Phoebe K. Warner of Claude, J. M. F. Gill of Burkburnett, Barrett of Hunsville, Mamie Wynne Cox of Dallas, Fred Robinson of Waco, Magruder and Buchanan of San Angelo, Genie De Wolfe of San Saba, W. E. ## MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

The average man isn't overjoyed to learn that with his wife he is acquiring a large following of in-laws. But in Poland is different. In the marriage contract the man does not inquire what a girl's portion is, but how many relatives she has, as each one may be relied upon for a gift. It is not unusual for the woman to propose a match, through her parents.

CARD CLUB CLOSING YEAR WITH PRETTY PARTY

Mrs. E. J. Eschbold was hostess to the Elks "40" club Thursday afternoon at her home, when tables were arranged in the prettily decorated living room suits for four sets of players. Sweet peas and nasturtiums were used, and the American flag was hung conspicuously in remembrance of Flag Day the day before.

CHAPTER LXIV—BILLS, BILLETTIS, AND JACK SAYS WERE BANKRUPT.

Instead of helping Jack, as I had planned my magazine privilege rather quered him with the very people I wanted for my friends.

The bills for my party proved heavier than I intended them to be. I had to rent so many things most of the other girls possessed.

With the party bills came the one for the fox scarf. It was $127.50. As the weather was terrifically hot the bill for hats was naturally and I began to hate that article.

I was perfectly astonished to find how my milk bill had mounted in months. In fact, I never had paid it since the first month after my honeymoon. I discovered.

PARFET-BIVENS WEDDING THURSDAY AFTERNOON

The ceremony, performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Rowe and witnessed by half a hundred relatives and friends, was said by Rev. Dr. Groselous of the Floral Heights Methodist church. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Rowe, and the groom had for his best man his business partner, Leslie Martlew. The living room suite of the attractive home was beautifully decorated in flowers and gilded plants, and the bride looked very lovely in her afternoon gown of blue tulle with gray lace-trimmed collar and sleeves.

TODAY'S BEST STORY.

An infidel farmer wrote a letter to Horace Greasy, who was my editor of the New York Tribune. "Sir—I have been trying an experiment. I have a field of corn which I plowed, planted and cultivated on Sunday. I harvested the crop on Sunday and hauled it to my barn, and I find I have more than my neighbors, who would not work on that day because of conscientious scruples."

OUR FIRST YEAR

CHAPTER LXIV—BILLS, BILLETTIS, AND JACK SAYS WERE BANKRUPT.

Each month, as it came in, I had put it out straight as my desk. Some of the envelopes I hadn't opened because I knew what they contained and the sight of them made me nervous.

One morning a collector came around and I gave him a check for part of the total. The collector was very nice and told me how to fix the thing up. I promised to pay him a certain sum weekly.

I certainly was relieved to find this way out. It was decidedly better, I thought, than letting Jack know how careless I had been.

But it happened that Jack was at home when another man called early in the morning to shut off the electricity.

COUNSEL FOR JAFFE WILL TAKE CASE TO HIGHER COURT

Counsel for Harry Jaffe, against whom a jury in the 39th district court returned a damage suit verdict at 5 o'clock Thursday evening, immediately stated that the case would be taken to the higher court on appeal. Motion for new trial was filed immediately after the verdict was received.

PROPERTY OWNERS WILL JOIN CITY IN SUIT FOR CROSSING

Lamar street property owners will join the city council in attempting to condemn right of way for the proposed new crossing at Lamar and Jalonic, for the city county paved highway, it was learned Friday. They have employed counsel for that purpose.

In the meantime, outfits employed by Lamar street property owners continue working on Fort Worth street, getting that route ready for the pavement. This is being done, it is understood, so as to have that route in readiness in the event the city is unsuccessful in condemning the new crossing.

It appeared Friday that prospects for avoiding the "mesquite flats" route of the city were considerably improved.

GOODS STOLEN LAST WINTER RECOVERED ARREST 3 NEGROES

Women's ready-to-wear articles, stolen last winter from the McClurkin and Colonna stores here, have been located, and three negroes have been arrested in connection with the theft. The clothing, valued at about $2,000, has been sought for by the city detective department ever since it disappeared.

SAFE STOLEN FROM MILL STREET STORE, LATER FOUND INTACT

A medium-sized iron safe was stolen sometime Thursday night from the establishment of John Prang, 311 Mill street, and was found intact about 50 yards from the store. It had not been opened, though there was evidence that efforts had been made to force the combination.

The safe contained a considerable sum of money. Entrance to the office was effected by someone reaching through a broken window and operating the night latch on the door. The thieves had then rolled the safe to the vacant lot.

Officers expected to make an arrest in the case sometime Friday.

Let us not be weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.—Galatians 6:9.

Patience is the key to Paradise.—Turkish Proverb.

DO YOU STAND ON THE EDGE OF THINGS?

Are you one of the kind of folks who stand on the edge of things? It's a pretty fair question to ask yourself.

A nice thing about an Irishman is that he never does. He strikes out for the middle. Of course, he sometimes gets involved a point or two more than seems necessary, but that is far from being as characteristic of the Irish as cartoon traditions would have people believe.

There are those, however, whose interest or habit, or morbid curiosity will always take them just about to the edges of anything, and there they stop. You have seen them at church. They don't always come in late, but they always sit on the farthest seats from the preacher. They sometimes stroll by the edges of a revival meeting and stop to catch a few words. They dip an oar into affairs of the day, and gentle lie down in the boat. They have the nucleus of big ideas, and sometimes the initiative to start them, but they lack the interest to go ahead. Sometimes it looks as if they were just born green, not hardly ready, in the development of normal human instincts, to get into real life. Just sort of getting their feet wet for another plunge in a future re-incarnation.

Peter stopped on the edges one time, and it was probably the bitterest moment of his life, for Peter was a doer. He "stood afar off" while Christ was being Crucified, because he had lacked the courage to confess his association with the Master previous to the trial.

We all stand on the edges at times, and we are usually heartily ashamed of the moral cowardice that prompted the action. But occasional "edging" is just as reasonable an error as any other wrong-doing. It is the habitual edger who is not hardly fit for the demands and responsibilities of life, and who should either be waked up or put to sleep definitely before his disinterest affects others with whom he is associated.

If you have been slipping into a disposition to stand on the edges, for any reason whatever, get to thinking it over. It's mental and physical paralysis.

OLD-TIME JOYS

Along about this time of year, back yonder in the past, the drowsy congregation pricked up its ears as the preacher announced:

"There will be an ice cream social on Banker Stoneheart's lawn Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Aid Society. All are cordially invited to attend. Bring the little folks. A silver offering will be taken."

"Amen," was still ringing in the church air when the young bucks made their rush for the door to line up outside and spring the conventional, "May I see you home?" on the white-frocked damsels, preparatory to arranging "dates" for the social.

People on the sunset side of 30 can look back to the old-time church entertainments with considerable satisfaction, knowing that, having participated in same, they have not lived in vain.

The church "social"—or "sociable," as you prefer—was "big doings." If you and your girl arrived early in your side-bar buggy, before dusk had departed and the Chinese lantern candles were lighted, there was time for a few rounds of old-fashioned golf—croquet.

The ice cream was always made in the church basement, under the direction of some woman who specialized in this line. All you could eat for a dime—including luscious cake baked by housewives who considered it sacrilegious to mix up a cake without using at least 18 eggs.

The ice cream social—now nearing extinction—was the pinnacle of entertainment for young unmarried people, though hard-working fathers inclined to the chicken dinners where a whole wash tub of choice eatables could be stowed away for 25 cents. Of course, a quarter was a lot of money in those days, but every one agreed that the church chicken supper was worth it.

Those old-time gatherings, in the last analysis, were for the purpose of mating the young folks in a wholesome atmosphere.

They were characteristic of clean, virile, sensible ante-jazz days.

After all, though, people do not change much. The same women always stayed behind to wash the dishes after the old-time ice cream socials and chicken dinners, just as the same women now have to handle all the arranging and cleaning-up after social gatherings.

And a good many men who are nauseated with movies, jazz bands and synthetic gin would give a lot to turn the clock back and experience another ice cream social or even a croquet game—in patent leather shoes, red necktie or tightly-wrapped choker, straw hat with an inch-thick brim and white, starched linen duck trousers, with maybe a watch-chain made of braided shoestrings.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE WAY YOU LOSE. Ofttimes those who fall—win. No one ever wins all the time. But many of those who fall, win—in time.

There is something infinitely big and fine and inspiring about a good loser. The three hundred brave men at the Pass of Thermopylae who saw certain failure rushing fast upon them and driving them to their death, never flinched, never faltered. They lost—but only to win on into the centuries and to inspire millions to big deeds and great sacrifices when their names and their deed had become ancient history.

No one ever wins all the time. Baseball is one of the greatest sports of all times. Mighty poor in something vital is the man or woman who doesn't appreciate this game. And daily on the baseball diamonds there is revealed as fine a bunch of good losers as ever walked or breathed. For one side has to lose every game that is played.

No one ever wins all the time. It's the way that you lose that counts.

So be a good loser always. Smile it out. Grin it out. Your chance will come again. Perhaps the very next time you will be a winner—because of the very thing you have learned by losing this time.

Everybody has been a miserable failure at some thing—or would be. The happy man is he who is a success at something that he can do well. You can smile, anyway. And if there is one thing that this old world needs, it is a great international army and navy of smilers. So remember—

No one ever wins all the time. It's the way that you lose that counts. (Copyright, 1933, by George Matthew Adams.)

EMERGENCIES

By DR. R. H. BISHOP

No one should go camping without some knowledge of emergency treatment. Red Cross first aid book is a mighty handy thing to have when some body breaks a leg, sprains an ankle, or suffers from a cold or influenza or other physical misfortune.

An elementary knowledge of what to do, however, until the doctor comes, will save a lot of grief, and well right inside your own head.

One who has had a fall or other accident resulting in shock should be kept warm and comfortable. Place this patient on his back, cover him up, move him to the best place of shelter at once and, if possible, apply external heat by means of blankets, hot water bottles or hot bricks. But be careful not to burn him. Hot water, tea or coffee are useful stimulants.

In heat exhaustion the skin will be cold and clammy, other conditions must be ascertained in short. The same treatment will be required.

The body of a sun-stroke victim should be kept cool. Rub the head, hands and feet with the coldest water. Cold should be applied to the neck and body, especially along the spine, from the head downward. This treatment should be renewed frequently. Application to the head of cracked ice in a towel is good.

If an arm or leg is broken use splints composed of folded newspapers, pieces of board or heavy paste-board. Bind into position with bandages or handkerchiefs. If the arm is broken, place it in a sling. A couple of men's ties knotted together will do temporarily. If a leg is broken tie the legs together if no splint is available.

Don't try to set broken bones. Straighten to relieve pain, then apply splints.

Don't allow fractured limb to dangle.

A good treatment for poison ivy inflammation is a wash of boric acid solution mixed with water, followed by a coating of zinc oxide ointment smeared on the skin. The wound then should be covered with a thin piece of cotton cloth. A thick heavy cloth will break the heat and increase inflammation. Washing the inflamed area with common soap—laundry soaps is good if nothing else is available.

On Wings of Wireless

By ARTHUR B. REBVE

CHAPTER XI. The Noises of Space.

It was early in the morning when Garrick awoke. He turned into the driveway of Glenn's house at Nonawantuc.

"Any word of Vira and Ruth?" queried Glenn.

"Not yet. But there is something you can do. Have you had your breakfast? Then come along."

At Defoe's boathouse-laboratory Garrick looked at Glenn and said, "Now, look here, boy—if you love Vira and want her back, guard this place as you would your life." Garrick had assumed a rather stern tone; he knew he must impress Glenn. "Inside and out," he added seriously.

"It's like to be with you hunting the girls," returned Glenn promptly, "but if sticking here will help me, depend on me. I'll be a stoker all right. Only for heavens sake, get them out of here."

Dick grasped his hand and Garrick slapped his back encouragingly. With one last look to see that no one had been disturbed, Dick grabbed up a small oak case and some other portable paraphernalia and hurried out to the car.

"Never can tell," he said to Garrick, "but I think you'd better get some money for an outfit, I can't see."

Garrick made the club his headquarters and he felt he would like to start the day there.

"Cast thy sword upon the ether and they shall return unto thee after many days," laughed Garrick as he looked over his mail. "I suppose now for a week I'm going to be bombarded with mail from where they find time to write all the letters." Say—here's one, though. Read that. A postcard—postmarked "Northport."

Dick who was familiar with the ways of the radio listeners, read the card:

"Your message was good and clear—by what did you suddenly stop when you began to tell us your suspicions?"

"I don't approve of photograph selections in radio broadcasting, anyhow. I can buy records."

"Someone on a cruiser or motorboat was watching us," he wrote Garrick. "I like your radio fraternity, Dick. They certainly do take an interest in one another and go out of their way to help each other. Dick—was that a typo? You should see my mail! Why if they don't like a thing they almost take it as a personal insult—for a free service."

"He had come down to the boat-house considered Garrick. "Now what does he mean? I didn't stop—I went right on to the end. And the photograph record—that's what I was talking about. Garrick in his room, having without avail tried to find out the identity of the person who had come to the club, called the Customs House in New York and requested the looking up of the number in the motor boat registration under the federal law. He waited.

"Just what I expected," fidgeted Dick. "Marooned—away from a radio for no other reason than that I was the first thing I laid my hands on. Got the receiving apparatus—all but the antenna. Oh, very well—we'll get it."

Dick snapped in place small clips which connected the bed springs of Garrick's bed—and put the headphones like a telephone receiver to his ears.

"Bed springs—the iron fire escape—the gas and water pipes—the telephone wire—," he remarked, as he listened. "There was that great thing may serve as an antenna in a pinch."

The room telephone rang for Garrick. It was the Customs House calling. "We find," reported the clerk, "that K 903 is registered by Patrick Devins, Bridgeport, Connecticut, a forty-foot cabin cruiser, named 'Lassie.' Want a description?"

Garrick had just finished copying it when a loud exclamation came from Dick. "By Jove—Garrick!"

"Here, here, here," repeated twice—here, I scribbled it on this book."

"Please give this to the newspaper-developer that Jack Curtis, who attempted an elopement yesterday with me has a wife—Mrs. Rae Larue Curtis. That is all now. Tell my mother I am safe and that I will be the first chance I can swim ashore. Ruth Walden."

The two men gazed at each other. "Looks like she's a prisoner," acknowledged Dick. "The first chance I can swim ashore!"

"Yes—but man, she's safe—somewhere. Her mother?"

Somewhat Ruth had cleverly contrived to communicate with the outside world by radio. Together the two hurried down the long corridor and up a flight of stairs to Nita Walden's room. Dick's heart was pounding, he felt, as loud as his knuckles on the door. He had heard from Ruth!

Mrs. Walden opened the door. She was afraid. What did the sudden rapping mean? Her worried and worried face searched Dick's eyes.

"About Ruth? Tell me, Dick?" Dick hurried to get the news, what awful people! "shuddered Mrs. Walden. "But Ruth says, attempted elopement—that means Ruth is all right. It didn't succeed. But—can you do now? The first time my telephone ringing again."

She turned from the room phone bewildered. "It was that Rae Larue girl—calling me. Oh, but there was hate and spite and jealousy in her voice! The little vixen!"

"But what did she say?" called Garrick.

"I can't begin to repeat the flood of words. Why, you'd think that I, Ruth's mother, had tried to frame up something against her! She said, 'I have you know that Jack Curtis is my husband! I married him in Chicago two years ago! I won't have that daughter of yours coming between us, and I've told him so. I'll equal—I'll hand the whole bunch over, first!'"

"Bully!" interrupted Garrick to Nita's astonishment. "Got 'em fighting among themselves. Hell hat no Fury—and all that—that you couldn't want a better guardian for Ruth than that woman scorned! And I'll bet you she'll do something—the first chance she gets. How about waiting for any comment from the surprised Nita, 'let me have the wire. Central—' where did that last call to the club come from? Can you trace it?" He put his hand over the transmitter and said, "In the city you can't trace a thing. But out in these little Long Island towns these kick telephone girls

"It's a sort of wired wireless," he explained, "based on a discovery, invented and perfected by a regular shark at this thing. Major General Squier."

While they waited for the doctor a raft of inconsequential stuff filtered through. The doctor came, was pacified professionally, and was just finishing a lecture on asepasis.

"Another message!" interrupted Dick.

"From Vira—and Ruth?" brightened Glenn. "Yes, thank you." He hung up. "From the Gravel Works at the mouth of the harbor!"

"I'll be darned—our harbor!" exclaimed Dick.

"You'll be something else," quickly from Garrick. "Your boathouse!"

"I hadn't thought of that. We'd better get down there."

"Well, I thought of it. That's why I left Glenn. You don't need to ask me. I know you're nervous and all upset. Yes, I think doing something, anyway would do you good. Have McKay drive us all down. And hurry. We're not going to make a call."

They were coasting down from the top of the hill a few hundred feet from the boathouse when McKay jammed on the brakes—and an instant was a rowboat with a girl and fellow in it, the girls' hair blowing in the wind.

They seemed to be struggling. The rowboat was a three-foot flash of a motion picture and puff of smoke, black wreckage of the boat, and a girl who had split second before, the two had struggled overboard or leaped. Then came the deep report, echoing and reverberating among the Nonawantuc hills.

"Glenn!" exclaimed Garrick. "McKay released the 'brakes' and rolled down like a roller coaster the rest of the way."

They were in time to see that the boathouse was unharmed. A little speed boat which had not noticed the accident, was headed toward the mouth of the harbor. A black object, Glenn, struggled feebly in the water. By this time Dick had run down the dock—and plunged off, almost unheeded by that time.

When Garrick pulled them both out and had Glenn sufficiently revived to find that there were no broken bones, he had begun to get the story.

Glenn, it seemed, had been on the road-side of the boathouse from which he had expected a noise—when he had MAGGIE MALONEY, with her skill at the kitchen range, and Mark Hanna, with his knowledge of the weak spots in human nature and his aptitude in finding them, made the strongest combination American politics has ever known. The late President, Maker did not rely on an organization in the sense that term is generally applied in the vote-getting game. He played on men, who could get him what he wanted, with the adroitness of a master plucking the strings of a harp. And Maggie Maloney, "may her shadow never grow shorter!" She, with her skillet, was the strenuous. She sang no loving songs. She decked herself in no gauds, not she. In gingham, and, with a face flushed by the ardor of her range, she worked her wiles. Kings and noblemen, in their degree, came when the smoke from her hearth fire ascended.

In her day and the hour of her power Maggie Maloney and her corned or roast beef hash could, and did, stop the wheels of government. Presidents ate of them and forgot the cares of state; princes of the house of Mammon temporarily transferred their love for the yellow metal to the gold of her waffles.

Now, a full man is a general man, and a general man is amenable to reason. As his guests became, as a body might say, malleable, Mark Hanna worked his wiles, turning defeat into victory or massing his forces for a crushing onslaught on his foes. Moll Pitcher, by taking a man's place at Bennington, saved the day and Maggie Maloney, by sticking to her post at the kitchen range, cooked many a man into and out of political preferment while she and the President Maker were in Washington a couple of decades ago. Ah, Maggie, you and your skillet, were a power in the land in those days.

SINCE the death of Mr. Hanna, Maggie Maloney has been missing from the public prints. Only recently, when the widow of the Ohio political boss who put McKinley in the White House and groomed many a good man for high office passed away, the name of Maggie Maloney again came into public view and re-awakened memories of bygone days.

functions of Maggie Maloney in the well-regulated kitchen.

Folks, big and little, would come to the Hanna home in Washington and partake of Maggie's cooking. They discussed her and her talents with that seriousness that is manifest only in the most important conferences of state. "Statesmen who ruled the world's policies, financiers who guarded the world's purse—all have, figuratively, bowed down in worship before Maggie," a writer of the day said in telling of Miss Maloney's achievements.

MARK HANNA'S home was a popular one in Washington. Whether this was due to his prestige in the political world or to his knack in landing jobs for office-seekers is a matter for history to record. But all are agreed that the cooking of Maggie Maloney turned more invitations from the rejected class to the acceptance class than one can imagine.

The story still goes the rounds in Washington that on two different occasions Mark Hanna had some difficulty in getting two Presidents to come to his home for dinner. They pleaded pressure of business. "But you will have some of Maggie's corned beef hash," was the late Senator's trump card. The Presidents had dinner at the Hanna home.

A well-known European diplomat once

"Bully!"

HERE is the way Maggie Maloney prepared roast beef hash for Theodore Roosevelt: Brown in a saucepan two onions with one ounce of butter; add one pound of cooked (but underdone) well-chopped roast beef and one pint of mashed potatoes; moisten with two gills of thick chicken broth; season with half a pinch of pepper and a third of a pinch of nutmeg; stir well and then cook for fifteen minutes. Serve with two poached eggs. That is the kind of roast beef hash that Theodore Roosevelt liked. Try it some day.

life. Many of his friends have said that upon the subject of Maggie's famous hash he gave the best exhibition of his undoubted oratorical powers."

Maggie's admirers were legion. There was the late lamented McKinley, the late Thomas B. Reed, Admiral Dewey, John Hay and Philander C. Knox. Among the living there are still Chauncey M. Depew and Uncle Joe Cannon who can attest to Maggie's prowess in the culinary art. Then there were hundreds of Mark Hanna's friends from the country districts. All knew Maggie Maloney and her cooking.

For each of these Maggie had an especial dish who was coming in to dinner, Maggie would scratch her memory to try to remember what dish the favored one liked most.

"By George, this is good," Roosevelt announced when he first tasted of Maggie's roast beef hash. "How does Maggie make it?" he asked Senator Hanna.

Apple dumplings was the delicacy that President McKinley had a falling for. Mark Hanna knew it and so did Maggie. Many is the time that Maggie made apple dumplings for the martyred President.

IT IS said that Maggie accumulated enough money to retire, but the call of the kitchen and her fondness for the Hanna family were too much for her. Wherever Mrs. Hanna would go, Maggie, too, would go. Once Mrs. Hanna decided to spend the winter in New York City. She selected quarters at the Hotel Gotham. Maggie insisted on coming also, but what could Mrs. Hanna do with a Maggie Maloney in her suite with no kitchen in sight? The hotel management settled that point in a jiffy. A private kitchen was constructed near the main one, and there Maggie prepared her meals for the Hannas during their stay in the big city. The family had their Christmas dinner in New York. Here is the way Maggie prepared the feast:

It consisted of turkey with stuffed chestnuts, giblet and cranberry sauce and mince pie. The chestnut stuffing was prepared thusly: peel chestnuts, then carefully select and boil until mealy; then strain and blanch, after which wash thoroughly. The stuffing should contain nothing else.

Uncle Joe's Pumpkin Pie

CUT a two-pound piece off a sound pumpkin; peel it well with a knife, remove the seeds and soft parts and then cut it into twelve pieces; place in a saucepan with three quarts of cold water, leave pan on a hot stove and let cook for twenty-five minutes. Take from fire, put pumpkin in a drainer, leaving it for one hour, then press out water thoroughly with hand and rub it through sieve in another vessel. Add two ounces of powdered sugar and break into it three whole eggs, add a tablespoonful of ground cloves, another of ground allspice and half as much salt and cinnamon. Mix all together for two minutes and then pour into half pint of cold milk, mixing well again for one minute, then strain through sieve into another vessel and use preparation to fill up pie plate which has previously been prepared. Lay carefully in a moderate oven and bake thirty minutes. Serve sprinkled with powdered sugar.

Admiral Dewey was fond of Maggie Maloney's sucking pig and apple sauce. She thoroughly cleaned the interior of a small, tender sucking pig (reserving liver); draw well. Season interior with two pinches of salt, one good pinch of pepper and a third of a pinch of grated nutmeg. Chop up liver very fine and fry in a saucepan, with half an ounce of butter, for five minutes. Stuff pig with this and forcemeat. Have roasting pan ready and sprinkle into it half cup of cold water, then lay pig so it rests on four legs. Completely cover all around with buttered paper, put in a moderate oven and let cook for two hours. Baste frequently while cooking with its own gravy. Remove it to hot dish, untie, skim fat from gravy and strain remainder over pig. Serve with apple sauce.

Maggie's mince-meat pie consisted of the following ingredients: beef, salt, tongue, apples, raisins, currants, beef suet, portions of orange peel, spices and brandy.

Or all her dishes the greatest demand has been for Maggie's waffles. It is to be remembered that in the early part of this story mention was made that J. P. Morgan once missed an appointment with the Secretary of the Treasury because of Maggie's waffles. Here is the way she made them:

Put half pound of wheat flour into a bowl and break in three whole eggs. Add one ounce of powdered sugar and mix well, adding half a pint of sour milk or buttermilk, pouring it in very gradually. Continue mixing for five minutes. Butter waffle iron and beat well. Pour batter into iron and be sure you have hot fire. When waffles are golden on both sides, take them from iron and serve at once. Do not let them stand or brown. Both things are apt to happen then.

tablespoonful each of allspice, ground cloves, cinnamon and half that quantity of nutmeg. Knead well with hands, so that the ingredients are thoroughly incorporated, which will take ten minutes. Boil water in a saucepan capable of holding pudding. Butter and flour a cloth and lay on a large colander, which will answer for the hollow mold; pour mixture into it, then hold the four corners together and tie it firmly, allowing sufficient space for it to swell.

Plunge the pudding into the boiling water and let cook, leaving it half covered. The water must boil steadily for five hours. Every hour turn it over and then prepare the following sauce: Put in saucepan one ounce of butter, two drams of flour, three drops of lemon juice, a small sliced rind of a quarter of a lemon, two teaspoonfuls of salt and half an ounce of powdered sugar. Moisten with a gill of port wine; place pan on stove and stir well until it comes to a boil. Remove from fire and strain through

Maggie was a good cook, but her fame spread through the world on the basis of her technique in the preparation of corned beef hash. She made this dish famous. She elevated it from a vulgar delicacy to a position which commanded the attention and appetite of princes and rich men and statesmen and diplomats and Presidents. Her corned beef hash represented the last word in the art of culinary genius. Ordinarily, corned beef hash is "a gastronomic monstrosity," as one writer recently put it, but "in the hands of Maggie Maloney it rose to exalted heights."

IT IS the hope of the world that Maggie Maloney will not cast aside her tools to spend the rest of her days in peaceful abandonment. The world needs Maggie Maloney. It has too many people of ease—too many rich people, but sad to relate, it has but few good cooks. It is indeed fortunate, therefore, that the best traditions of affairs de cuisine have been preserved by Maggie Maloney for the present generation.

Maggie Maloney for many years—perhaps thirty—had been in charge of the Hanna larder and kitchen. Maggie was the supreme arbiter of what should and what should not be prepared for the Hanna table. She was the czar of the kitchen—an autocrat with unlimited authority. Mark Hanna knew his bounds, and he nor any member of the family dared interfere with the chronicler of the day says, a neat Roosevelt's enthusiasm for Maggie's hash:

"Roosevelt time and again announced that nothing, not even the presidency, was equal to Hanna's Maggie's roast beef hash. Roosevelt was known to break into eloquent moments of praise for the dish when in the middle of a discourse upon the strenuous

ONE of the most remarkable and awe-inspiring phenomena of the ocean is the waterspout, a lofty column composed of tons of water, whirling upward, lifted by the mighty force of the wind. From a distance the formation of a spout is an interesting sight. In my own observations there has generally been a low-lying bank of dark, lead-colored clouds, seemingly of cloud, was seen to drop, and in a very few moments an attenuated pillar rose from the water directly beneath it. The water appeared to meet, and the alliance consummated, the lofty column moved over the surface of the water.

It is the general impression that if a waterspout touches an object, or is struck, its form is broken, and the water descends, but this is not always the case. Imagine such a column at night coursing over the ocean, its shape outlined against the darkness in phosphorescent light, and an idea may be gained of the magnificent spectacles which may be seen on rare occasions.

The southern oceans in certain places often swarm with plants whose nuclei are luminous, and these minute light-givers, when borne aloft in the spout, produce a most remarkable and striking scene. In color these luminous columns are yellow, of different shades, according to the numbers of diatoms present. The naturalists of the Challenger found that P. pseudo-noctiluca was always present, and often existed at the surface in vast numbers in the tropics and sub-tropical regions, where the temperature was between 68 and 70 degrees, and the most beautiful exhibitions seen during the cruise were due to these little forms. They have been observed in the Bay of Funchal all the year around. The light was equally brilliant in each species, and in each, when disturbed several times in succession, the phosphorescence perceptibly diminished, and finally disappeared, but after an hour's rest it reappeared as brilliant as before.

One of the most familiar exhibitions of vegetable luminosity is seen in the "touch-wood" or "fox-fire," which many a school-boy has employed in the perpetuation of a practical joke. It is found about old decayed trees, and is simply rotten wood permeated by the mycelium of fungi which is luminous in the dark. This simple luminant is often quite sufficient to enable one to read large print, and is often the cause of laughable episodes among camping parties. A friend of the writer, in building a campfire in the deep woods, hauled an old log to the door of the tent, and there broke it up, making a fire, about which the men slept. In the night, after the fire was extinguished, one of the party awoke, and with a shout aroused the rest, who sprang to their feet, believing that they were lying among coals, as all about were masses of wood seemingly at a white heat, but which investigation showed to be "fox-fire."

This luminous decayed wood often rolls out from trees in the forests, to the astonishment or alarm of animals unfamiliar with fire. Perhaps the most remarkable exhibition of fox-fire is recorded by the Rev. M. J. Berkeley, who says, "A quantity of wood had been purchased in a neighboring parish, which was dragged up a very steep hill to its destination. Among them was a log of larch or spruce, it is not quite certain which, twenty-four feet long and a foot in diameter. Some young friends happened to pass up the hill at night, and were surprised to find the road scattered with luminous patches, which when more closely examined, proved to be portions of bark or little fragments of wood. Following the track, they came to a blaze of white light.

"On examination it appeared, that the whole of the inside of the bark of the log was covered with a white mycelium of a peculiarly strong smell, but unfortunately in such a state that the perfect form could not be ascertained. This was luminous; but the light was by no means so bright as in those parts of the wood where the spores had penetrated more deeply, and where it was so intense that the roughest treatment scarcely seemed to check it. If any attempt was made to rub off the luminous matter, it only shone the more brightly; and when wrapped up in five folds of paper the light penetrated through all the folds on either side as brightly as if the specimen was exposed. Again, the specimens were placed in the pocket, and the pocket when opened was a mass of light. The luminosity continued for three days. Unfortunately we did not see it ourselves till the third day, when it had been somewhat impaired, but it was still most interesting, and we have merely recorded what we saw ourselves."

Any one who has wandered among old tree-trunks in search of insects, or been a careful observer in underground nooks and corners, must have seen the white tangles, often of beautiful shape, which constitute the forms of some fungi. They are frequently to be seen under old boards in frost-like designs of great delicacy, and many of these are supposed by some to have a certain relation to luminous woods. Around old tree-stumps, the decayed arms of the oak especially, long cylindrical, flexible branches with a bark covering are often found. When freshly broken, the interior is pure white, later changing to a more or less deep brown tint. The white, succulent extremities form the mycelium of the fungus known as Rhizomorpha subterranea, one of the most interesting of the luminous plants. Its mycelic light is often seen in caves, where the rootlets have made their way, gleaming with a soft phosphorescence.

In coal mines, this plant is quite common, and has been especially observed near Dresden. Ehrenman speaks in enthusiastic terms of these "vegetable glow-worms," as he calls them, which he observed gleaming on the walls and in the crevices of Swedish mines.

In Bohemia the caves are not uncommonly illuminated by this interesting cryptogam, and, according to Phipson, sufficient light has been emitted in English coal mines from this source to enable miners to read ordinary print.

M'Kinley Apple Dumplings

SIFT one pound of flour on the table; make a hollow in the center, laying in it half a pound of butter; mingle it slightly with fire for five minutes. When this is done make another hollow in the center; pour into it a half pint of cold water and two ounces of powdered sugar; mix all together for five minutes longer; it will then be a firm dough. Roll it together with the hands and put it in a cool place for five minutes. Peel and core six medium-sized apples; sprinkle table lightly with flour; lay batter on it and roll it out until it has the thickness of a silver dollar. Cut into six equal sized square pieces. Arrange the apples upward in the middle of each piece. Mix together two ounces of granulated sugar, with one teaspoonful of ground cinnamon, and fill cavities of apples with this. Break one egg into a bowl; beat it well, adding two tablespoonfuls of cold milk. Mix well and moisten the edges of pieces of dough, afterward folding them so the apples are entirely inclosed. Lay them on the baking pan and with the rest of the beaten egg over the surface of the dumplings. Place them in a moderate oven for thirty minutes, and after they are a nice golden remove and dress them on the dessert dish, leaving them to rest in open oven for twenty minutes. Then serve with hard sauce.

HOOVER TRYING TO KEEP A LIMIT ON SOFT COAL PRICES

NO SIGN OF AN EARLY TERMINATION OF STRIKE

Estimated Present Production is About Sixty Per Cent of Normal.

By MARK SULLIVAN, National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and Wichita Daily Times. (Copyright, 1922, by the New York Evening Post.)

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Whether Mr. Hoover's plan to keep the price of coal somewhere within reason during the strike is to be completely successful is now in the balance.

SULLIVAN

When the strike began there was the usual cry for protection to the innocent third party. Namely, the public. The federal government, however, had no authority to intervene and any authority that might now be given by Congress would necessarily be of such a nature that it would involve court proceedings and delay so long that it could do no present good.

GROCERY and MARKET DEPARTMENT

Don't Waste Sour Cream—Use It

With sour cream you can make:
Salad dressing.
Frosting.
Cookies.
Cakes.
Of course it's annoying to find the cream sour for the breakfast coffee, but sour cream means all sorts of good things.

Salad Dressing.
One cup sour cream, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1-16 teaspoon mustard.
Whip cream till stiff. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add lemon juice slowly and beat in dry ingredients.

Frosting.
One cup sour cream, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup nuts, 1-16 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.
Cook cream, sugar, nuts and salt in a double boiler till a soft ball is formed when sirup is dropped in cold water. Beat till cool. Add vanilla.

Cake.
Two cups brown sugar, 4 eggs, 1/2 cup butter and lard mixed, 1 cup sour cream, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 cups flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon cloves.
Cream shortening and beat in sugar. Mix and sift flour, salt, soda and spices. Add alternately to first mixture with sour cream. Beat till smooth. Add eggs last, well beaten. Bake in a loaf in a moderate oven.

Cookies.
Three-quarters cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup sour cream, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg.
Cream butter. Add sugar slowly. Add yolks of eggs, well beaten. Mix well and add cream. Mix soft sift flour, soda and nutmeg. Add to first mixture. Mix smooth and add the whites of the eggs, beaten till stiff and dry. Add more flour if necessary to roll, but handle the dough as soft as possible. Roll as thin as possible, cut with a cookie cutter and bake on a buttered and floured baking sheet in a quick oven.

Iced Tea for the Hot Summer Days

There is no more refreshing drink for a hot day than freshly brewed iced tea.
Plain "green" tea does not make good iced tea. A mixture of green and black teas makes a very acceptable drink and any good black tea can be used.
Iced tea must be brewed as carefully as hot tea. Too strong tea, allowed to cool and weakened with water, tastes no more like properly made iced tea than this same concoction, reheated and served hot, would taste like freshly brewed tea.
Tea.
Four tablespoons tea, 4 cups boiling water, cracked ice.
Put tea in tea ball. Pour boiling water in teapot to heat thoroughly. Pour out water and hang tea ball in "pot." Pour over freshly boiling water. Let stand five minutes to steep.
Fill glasses with cracked ice. Pour tea gently upon ice.
Tea made this way is clear and fragrant as hot tea. When tea stands to cool the infusion becomes cloudy and loses its sweetness.
A sirup is economical to serve in place of sugar with iced tea. Sugar dissolves slowly in a cold liquid.
Many delicious drinks are made with iced tea as basis. Lemonade made with half water and half tea is more refreshing than plain lemonade.
Tea and gran juices, tea and ginger ale, tea and orange juice, tea and fruit juice combined with lemon juice—all these combinations are refreshing and economical.
Small crisp cookies or tiny plain bread and butter sandwiches are suitable to serve with a simple drink on a warm afternoon.

Apple Dumpling

For this recipe you need:
Eight small apples.
Two cups flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon baking powder.
Three-fourths cup thick sweet cream.
Butter.
Sugar.
Nothing will add more zest to an evening or holiday meal than good old-fashioned grandmother's apple dumplings.
Here's how to make them—in the real old-fashioned way:
Slice apples, stem and baking powder into mixing bowl. Cut in cream with a knife. This dough should be as stiff as pie dough.
Roll about one-fourth inch thick. Cut in squares. In the center of each square pile apples which have been pared, cored and cut in quarters.
Sprinkle lightly with sugar, dot with bits of butter and bring the four corners of the square together over the top of the apples.
Bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes. The oven should be hot when the dumplings are put in and the heat reduced slightly as the crust bakes.
After the first 15 minutes of baking baste with one-quarter cup boiling butter. Just before dumplings

Apple Dumplings

Use water and one tablespoon melted butter. Return to oven for five minutes.
Serve warm with sugar and cream.
The covering for the apples may be of pie dough not quite as short as for pie.
To make this crust use two cups flour, one-half cup lard, one-half teaspoon salt and enough cold water to make a dough.
Roll and use as in preceding rule.
Apple dumplings make a hearty dessert and should follow a light meal.
