OVERRULE MOTION TO DISMISS JURY IN THE MAYFIELD CASE HALL-MILLS MURDER MYSTERY SOLVED, OFFICIALS REPORT HIGH SCHOOL HUMBERS ELECTRA; FIRST VICTORY SINCE 1916

CHARGE JUROR SAID MAYFIELD OUGHT TO BE SENT TO 'PEN'

WITNESS TELLS OF MEETING OF KLAN NEAR KERENS FRIDAY NIGHT. ALSO REPORT HOLDING 'DEMOCRATIC MEETING'

CORNICANA, TEXAS, Oct. 21.—The overruling of the defendant's motion to discharge the jury on account of R. J. Bank's alleged disqualification and the insistence of Marie B. Mayfield, the domestic nominee for senator, that she had once belonged to the Ku Klux Klan, Saturday today's hectic session of the court in the Mayfield ballot injunction suit.

The motion to discharge the jury was overruled by Judge Scarborough after he had heard Bank, whose disqualification as a juror was alleged by W. H. Brewster, who swore to the charges from which Bank's disqualification was sought.

The other eleven members of the jury were out of the court room during the evidence and argument of opposing counsel. The Ku Klux Klan took a prominent part in the proceedings attending the motion to dismiss the case.

It was brought out by Brewster's testimony that there was a meeting of the Cornicana Ku Klux Klan near Kerens last night and the Mayfield ballot injunction was discussed. There was a "democratic meeting" in this vicinity last night, it was also testified to by Alfred R. Young of Cornicana, who admitted he was a member of the Klan.

After considerable discussion by attorneys for both sides Judge Scarborough ruled that the attorneys could talk to Bank during the recesses in the presence of the sheriff and away from the other jurors.

UNITED STATES HOLDS FOUR BILLION MORTGAGE ON FRANCE

TWO HUNDRED DOLLAR SHARE TO EVERY FAMILY IN AMERICA WITH INTEREST AT RATE OF $6 A SECOND

Frank G. Carpenter Describes the Security Back of Our Loan—The Richest Republic of Europe and Its Vast Colonial Possessions—Motor Car Views of the Farms and the Roadways—A Crazy Quilt of Agricultural Wealth—Trees which Earn Their Own Living—How the Foresters Are Kept—Graphic Snapshots of One of the Thriftiest Peoples on Earth.

CARPENTER'S WORLD TRAVELS
(Copyright, 1922, by Frank G. Carpenter.)

PARIS, 1922.—I begin my explorations of the New Europe with France. This country has a pocketbook interest to us. We have a mortgage of almost four billion dollars upon it. The actual sum, in the early part of this year, was just about thirty-eight hundred millions, including the interest then due; and, if not paid, that interest will go on adding to this four billions for all time to come.

At five per cent it will amount to two hundred million dollars a year, almost four million dollars a week, over half a million dollars a day, almost twenty-five thousand dollars an hour, and four hundred dollars a minute, year in and year out. You watch to your ear and listen to the ticks. Six good hard dollars should be dropping from the pockets of France into the United States treasury every time the sound strikes your eardrum.

2200 Per Family.
But this is more than a question of Uncle Sam's pocket. It is a question of your pocket and mine. You and I really hold the mortgage. We raised the money, some of us by bitter privations, when we each put out savings into Liberty bonds. We are paying taxes for those bonds today, and we shall continue to do so until one national debt is paid off. This means that every one of the twenty million families in the United States has on the average a $200 share in this mortgage on France. If you had a $200 mortgage on a lot or a farm in your neighborhood, would you not want to look at the property, and know something about the man or woman to whom you gave the loan? That is just your position as to France. You are the lender, and that is what I would have you remember in reading these letters on the France of today.

The French Republic.

In the first place, what is France, by and large, and just where does it lie? I shall first take up the republic in Europe, for that is the heart of your mortgage. The vast colonial possessions outside will be treated of later. France in Europe, with Alsace-Lorraine and the other patches it got by the war, measures a little more than two hundred thousand square miles. It is just about equal to Ohio, Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana and Missouri put together. It is more than one-fifth as big as the main body of the United States and it is a very respectable part of all the dry land on the globe. The scientists have measured the globe, and I figure that if all the dry land were gathered together into one block and divided into two hundred and sixty-acre farms, one acre of every one of those farms would belong to the French. This is on the basis of France owning nothing outside her own boundaries.

Enormous Colonial Possessions.

But now let us take in addition the colonial possessions, including those France got by the war. Put these together, and they equal more than five million square miles. They are about one-eighth of all the earth's land, so that if the division were made into five-acre farms, France would own one acre in every such field. Our mortgage grows better and better. It is true some of these colonies are not of much value. I have set my foot upon nearly every one of them and much of the land is not worth more than a sand spit on the ocean. The desert of Sahara, although it has coasts which combined are equal to the state of Ohio, is for the most part barren; and the jungles of the French Congo and the overgrown lands of Cambodia at the mouth of the Salween river are not very much better. But there are large tracts of fertile soil everywhere. France has in Asia alone a country more than ten times as large as South Carolina. She has in Guiana on the north coast of South America and in the West Indies more land than in ten states the size of Pennsylvania, and her little islands in the Pacific Ocean are larger than Massachusetts and Rhode Island combined. Her biggest possessions are in Africa, where she has, including the vast tracts she got from the Germans, almost one-third more territory than is comprised in the whole continent of Europe, and more than one and a half times as much land as we have in the United States, not including Alaska. However, most of the soil of these colonies is in such a condition and is so encumbered with people, black, brown and yellow, that I should not like to see Uncle Sam take the colonies in lieu of his mortgage. Besides, they are scattered far and wide over the world, with stormy oceans between.

The Tenderloin of Europe.

It is different with this France when I am writing. Indeed, if the gods should order a banquet feast and serve up old Mother Earth as the piece de resistance, France would be the best slice of the tenderloin roast. She is protein all the way through. She is one of the great cloths of cream on the skimmed-milk of the globe. Moreover, her position is such that the cream can be easily gotten and made to bring easy money. Situated here at the crossroads of Europe, with England just over the way and perhaps to be joined by a tunnel under the channel, with Holland, Belgium, Scandinavia and Germany as customers, and Switzerland, Italy and Spain ready to buy at the south, she is only six days from America on the main highway to the ocean. And now let us test the cream for the butter it contains. It is so rich that I could fill a column of France had fine roads before America was discovered, and today her improved highways, if joined together, would extend clear 'round the world. Nearly every mile is lined with trees, which pay a profit, and the roadside grass crop is usually harvested.

France is now raising enough meat to feed almost her whole people, and that before the war she had some for export. She is rapidly getting back to her pre-war condition. She has only a half million less horses than at the beginning of the German invasion and her cattle, which then numbered about fourteen millions, are now only about one million short. I see fine oxen hauling carts over the roads, and am told that Brittany has recorded cows which produce from five to seven pounds of butter per week. I have not had a bit of bad butter during my travels in France.

The World's Finest Farms.

And now take a look out of the tail of your eye as we fly in our motor-car through some of the farming lands of the devastated regions. In a future letter we shall go leisurely, stopping the automobile at every mile, through the country. This is just a snapshot. We are riding at something less than one mile per minute, through what I believe to be the most wonderful agricultural display on the face of the globe. I have seen nothing like it in other parts of Europe, or in North America, South America and Asia. The country is one great blanket of crops, with out fences or weeds or any marked divisions to separate the fields. The patches of wheat, oats and hay are blessing each other, and the colors alone show where one crop ends and the next one begins, and all seem to be equally rich. Every patch is like the best of one of our agricultural experiment stations, and this is so for hundreds of miles on each side of the roadway, and of fields small and large. Indeed, if only the soil of France is to be considered its people will have no trouble in lifting our mortgage.

The Thriftiest Nation of Europe.

And this brings me to a very important item in figuring the value of these French obligations. This is the thrift of the people. There is no nation that gets more out of its soil. The French lead the world as good farmers. Every crop they produce grows more to the acre on land of the same character than in any part of the United States. I have not the average wheat yield before me, but I believe it is double that of America. And then the thrift that one sees everywhere as he goes through these farms. Not a square inch goes to waste. I rode 250 miles yesterday, and I could number on my fingers and toes the fences I passed. This wipes out the waste of our fence corners, and the wide uncultivated spaces on each side. I believe that if France had the land of our fence corners she could raise enough from it to pay five per cent annually on the vast amount she owes us. Even the roadways are made to yield money. There are no brush nor weeds lining the highways. In the reconstructed regions I see no cattle running at large and this is the condition throughout the republic. The grass on the roads is cut with a scythe, and nearly every road grows a tree of one kind or another, each of which is made to earn its living. On some roads are ap-

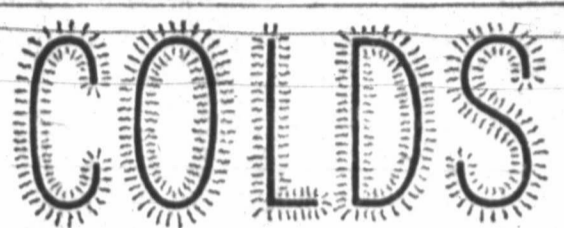

four-horse teams in America. France is issuing bonds for making these roads, on the basis that it pays a nation to have debts and prosperous farmers, rather than to have no debts and the farmers expend so much to get their goods to the markets that they are kept poor. Indeed as Tristram Shandy would say: "They do these things better in France."

A Land of Fine Trees.

Another thing they do better in France is to plant trees. In our motor car rides we go for miles between stately poplars, some of which are as big around as a flour barrel and as high as a four-story house. The branches of the trees meet together above us, shading the roadway, and we can look on and on through these two walls of green to the patch of blue sky in the distance. Japan prides itself on its wonderful avenue, fifteen miles long, which lines the road to the beautiful temple of Nikko. That road is shaded by giant cryptomerias. France has hundreds of miles of avenues quite as wonderful, many of which recall to me the rows of royal palms in Rio de Janeiro, and especially those of its botanical gardens. The damage to these trees by the shells of the German, makes one's heart swell as he rides through the battlefields now again under crops. The trees with their safety good condition for quite a distance, when dead stumps ranging in height from that of your head to the top of a telegraph pole—break the symmetry of the line and form scars on the landscape. The tops of the dead stumps are like gigantic toothbrushes, the wood having been torn apart and pulled off by the shells so that each fibre stands out. The Forests of France. But see! It has darkened! We are flying in our automobile over roads where the trees shut out the sun. There are woods at the right and the left, and the only breaks are long alleys or roads cut at regular intervals. We are passing through one of the great forests of France. How beautiful it is! How well kept! And how thrifty! There are no leaves on the ground, and the undergrowth of young trees is rich. Each one seems to be nursed. There are no broken limbs, and no logs cumbering the soil. France has vast tracts of such forest, and square mile for square mile far more timber than the United States, notwithstanding the fact that the eastern part of our country was covered with forests not more than a hundred years ago. We have been wasting our timber as a drunken sailor wastes money during his few hours on shore. France has been saving hers. She plants more trees every year and allows none to be cut until it is just right for the market. She will probably have a good wooden breast-plate when Uncle Sam's head is as bald as an egg.

STORAGE DAM EMBANKMENT REACHES HEIGHT OF 32 FEET

Contractor Is About To Win $180,000 Bet Against Flood at Storage Damsite

When E. S. Heyser, general manager of the W. M. Callahan Construction company, was figuring his irrigation project bid a year ago, he decided that it wouldn't rain to amount to anything during the crucial period of construction work.

Having so decided, he proceeded to bet $180,000 that he was right; that is, his bid on the storage dam was that much lower than the next bidder, who made allowance in his figures for loss occasioned by damaging floods.

It is beginning to look as if Mr. Heyser had won his bet; the addition of a few more feet to the height of the dam will clinch it for him. The $180,000 gamble is already won to all intents and purposes, as it would take an exceptional flood within the next few weeks to cause any serious damage.

Embankment Grows Steadily

The earthen embankment is now almost 32 feet high, not far from its total height. The dam is growing at the rate of six inches a day, and that rate, maintained steadily, would complete it by next February, if everything runs smoothly; the dredge company expects to finish its part of the work by May 1 at the latest, and it looks now as if the date will be earlier.

The dam gets narrower toward the top, giving less surface for the dredge discharge to cover; however, the increase in height, offsets this, so that the rate of six inches a day is considered very nearly uniform until the structure is completed.

Spillway Work Progresses

Material is now being assembled for another important phase of the work at the storage dam, the construction of the service spillway. Excavation for this outlet has been under way for some time and is now at a stage where it is expected that pouring of concrete can start in 30 or 40 days.

This spillway will be semi-circular in form, with the flat side practically flush with the earthen embankment. The curved side, about 600 feet in length, will bulge upstream into the main body of the lake. The structure might be compared to a saucer, split in half, 300 feet in diameter and 40 feet deep. The lowest point of the spillway will be 10 feet below the present river bed.

Water will be discharged through this spillway, in times of flood, at capacity of 500,000 feet per second. In other words, it would take a rise like that of June, 1915, to test the capacity of the structure. The top of the spillway will be 15 feet below the crest of the dam embankment, so that it will start releasing water before there is any pressure on the top of the dam.

Additional Safeguards

This spillway will not be the only safeguard against excessive flood; further to the north will be two emergency spillways, of earth and concrete, giving a total capacity of 250,000 feet per second, three times as much water as was present in the river's greatest recorded flood; these spillways will probably never be used, but they will be in readiness should necessity ever arise.

Elsewhere on the project, constant progress is being made. Work is being resumed on concrete structures along the south canal, and additional power shovels have been installed at the diversion damsite.

SPECIAL VENIRE OF 150 MEN WILL REPORT MONDAY

A special venire of 150 men has been summoned to report to Judge E. W. Napier of the 76th district court Monday morning at 9 o'clock when the murder case against C. M. Waggoner, ex-police officer is scheduled for trial.

The defendant is charged with having killed J. W. Webb on August 21, 1921, and fully fifty witnesses have been subpoenaed by both the defendant and the state to testify in the case.

The case has attracted considerable attention and it is anticipated that a large number of interested spectators will be on hand during the progress of the trial. This is the first of four murder cases which have been set for trial, one each on the Monday of the next four weeks.

Waggoner at the time of the alleged killing was a member of the city police force but at the time of the shooting was not on duty as an officer.

Waggoner resided just across the street from J. W. Webb, the man who was killed. The shooting took place on a Sunday morning and ac-

MURDER CASE OF C. M. WAGGONER SCHEDULED FOR TRIAL IN 76TH COURT, CHARGED WITH KILLING J. W. WEBB YEAR AGO

Nearly Half a Hundred Witnesses Have Been Subpoenaed to Testify in Case.

According to several state witnesses the deceased and one or two neighbors were engaged in an effort to shoot a cat in the back yard of the Webb home.

There are several conflicting stories told about the incidents of the shooting affair which ended when Mr. Webb fell in the arms of a neighbor wounded, having been shot several times in the body from scattering shot gun shots. He died a few minutes later, before a physician arrived.

Waggoner was placed under arrest immediately after the shooting and lodged in the county jail where he was held a prisoner for several months without being granted bail bond.

The grand jury of the 30th district court in special session returned a bill of indictment against him charging murder on September 3, 1921. Following a habeas corpus hearing the defendant was granted bond in the sum of $10,000 which he perfected and was released from custody.

VERNON MAN RECOVERING FROM INJURY SUSTAINED

VERNON, TEXAS, Oct. 21.—A. H. Murchison, who has been suffering with a sprained ankle, is very much improved and is able to be out again. Mr. Murchison was gathering some wild flowers on the side of the paved road east of Vernon about two weeks ago when a car came by and struck him before he noticed the approaching car. The parties who were in the car seemed not to know they had struck Mr. Murchison as they never stopped their car to render assistance. The number of the car could not be read on account of the rate of speed they were traveling, and the parties are unknown. The accident was not serious but caused considerable discomfort and loss of time from Mr. Murchison's business.

How Do You Like Your Hair Cut?

Why is it that some men will walk 10 blocks to sit in a certain barber's chair for a hair cut that lasts only 10 days, when in the same breath the same man will drop into any old hat store and select a block that he is going to wear for 6 months?

In cutting hair as in selling hats—what is left on is more important than what is taken off.

Besides lots of stock and plenty of mirrors—our hat men have the supreme nerve to tell a man whenever a hat looks awful.

Little Kiddies Get Warm, Nourishing Lunches at Austin School Cafeteria; Everybody Proud of New Institution

It was a rainy day Friday and the usual hundred and twenty-five little customers of the Austin school cafeteria were augmented by at least half a hundred more. The long line of little folks began coming in in orderly procession, at 11:30, and the last "shift" appeared at 12:30.

Just watching the children, from the point of vantage of a comfortable seat near the window, the visitor is bound to be impressed by what they eat, especially a visitor who hears an impromptu Red Cross child health lecture several times a month from the indefatigable Wichita Falls workers.

"Milk" whispers a wee little lady of not more than eight years. Her pretty little miniature, jammed tray is gripped tightly with both hands and squeezed into security against her tummy by both little elbows.

And "milk" is the order from at least eighty per cent of the children. Good, fresh, sweet milk, in little half-pint bottles. My! But Wichita Falls mothers and children are educated; out in the world-at-large less than forty per cent of the children drink milk.

For dessert there is good brick ice cream in individual, waxed paper-wrapped bricks, with one or two little tin spoons inside. Little wholesome cakes, and a fruit salad that also serves as dessert.

Children help. A lot of children help in the cafeteria—a different group from each week. These are chosen from among the good scholars who can read and write.

Children's eyes require utmost care. Faith Optical Co., 418 Scott—Adv.

Hallowe'en and Homer Promise Sufficient Entertainment Variety For Wichita Falls the Coming Week

If she shall find her lover's name is writ in apple curl, she may be sure of it. His wife she'll be before the leaves are lit Beneath the Yule log of the second year.

Which must have been awfully encouraging to all of the credulous lassies of the early Hallowe'en period, since it is no difficult matter to discover the geometrical outlines of all but half a dozen letters in an apple curl? Imagine an apple peeling flitting itself into an "M" for Frank or Fred or Ferdinand just to give the spooky belle of a twentieth century flapper! Or an "H" perchance, or a "G" by lots less chance!

But then, the 20th century mill on down to fashion herself about the 17th century, and still amendments in fact, they are more popular, as her Hallowe'en celebrating on promenade, in costume, and the only concern she has for an apple is to eat it if the hostess doesn't have anything else for refreshment.

And for those who are thrilled by the possibilities of Hallowe'en entertainment, there is Homer like Hallowe'en, the chance are soon do, or will like Louise Homer, who is far from us to recall upon the taste of the Hallowe'en for roughness. The celebrated contralto is being brought to Wichita Falls by the Music club, and needs no need of praise to introduce her to any lover of music of the present generation.

KATHLEEN NORRIS Woman to Woman Talks

YOU GIRLS WHO ARE ABOUT TO BE MARRIED BY KATHLEEN NORRIS "America's Most Popular Woman Writer for Women"

"Bodella and Jasper—yes, they're going to be married!" say all their friends radiantly. "Isn't it like a fairy tale?" "Yes," we older people say, grimly. "Exceedingly like!"

KATHLEEN NORRIS SAYS: Mother nature, the old witch, is looking out for the increase of the race. She whispers to herself, 'More children—more children—more children.' And we hear that whisper, though we don't understand it, and we stumble obediently toward each other.

"The Cure For It All" The cure is small—it has curls upon its little unconscious head. It throws napping rings upon the floor. Its eyes laugh when you do, and its mouth smiles at you. It is your soft little mouth quivers pitifully. It lifts you out of the little world where you have been and puts you into a new world. It is the effect of new gowns are of first importance. It brings Jasper home early. And it teaches you both your responsibility what life and joy can mean.

All the bliss of the honeymoon because he is so perfect. It is now as that bliss itself made the happiness of the engaged days. This is the real life. Jasper may be unreasonable sometimes, and disappointing, but he is the children's father, after all; they adore him and he them. "Bodella is 'fanny,'" she has "the craziest notion," but Jasper says "I love her" and he is perfectly impossible ever to quarrel with him because he is so sweet. And he's so wise—it's perfectly astonishing.

Why does she talk this way? Why, because mother nature has got her completely bewitched. "What is he—this husband-to-be of yours, stripped of his flattery, stripped of the excitement of the approaching wedding, stripped of the glamour and mystery that hangs about him stupidly because he is a man and you are a girl?" "Is he simple, honest, good, kind, in his speech about his mother and sisters, liked in his office? If he is—and you can see that much before you marry him—then you have a good basis to work on. And if you are a sensible, energetic, friendly sort of person yourself, with some humor, then you two really have a chance."

But don't depend upon mother nature any longer! She'll keep up the illusion indefinitely for several months, and then she'll strip you of her flattery, and the Billings boy, and you will see your Jasper as he really is, and—this is the simple phrase of a popular song—you'll be surprised.

But don't depend upon mother nature any longer! She'll keep up the illusion indefinitely for several months, and then she'll strip you of her flattery, and the Billings boy, and you will see your Jasper as he really is, and—this is the simple phrase of a popular song—you'll be surprised.

Jasper, who doesn't get enough of dancing and late hours when you first met him, wanting to stay at home every night and read Tolstol; or, Jasper, who has always been such a quiet fellow, hating crowds, now teasing you to go to a show, and then supping every other night! That Amazing Man of Yours.

It will be equally amazing either way, and it will surely be the way you don't expect it. Oh, well, that isn't serious. It's delicious to sit home with him and read, or delicious to go downtown and show all the girls that a stunning husband you have. Only, who would have thought it?

But then his saying he loathes the Baker—the very Bakers who introduced you to each other—that's so silly!

KITCHEN SHOWER FRIDAY FOR OCTOBER BRIDE-TO-BE

A kitchen shower ingeniously concealed in a huge wood and cardboard rolling pin featured the prettiest of afternoon teas. Crystelle Waggoner and Lulu Wood complimented Miss Mattie Ruth Curlett, an October bride-elect, Friday afternoon. The entertainment was given at the Wichita club, and tables were arranged for eight sets of players among the girls and young matrons in the bride's circle of friends. When the shower was presented the hostesses also complimented the guest of honor with a handsomely bound cook book. In the bridge games Mrs. Leslie Stinger won high score and Mrs. Joseph Hutchins low, and both were remembered with pretty gifts.

MRS. MCGREGOR IS HOSTESS SORORIS CLUB WEDNESDAY

The Sororis club met Wednesday afternoon, October 18, with Mrs. McGregor as hostess. "The Fall of the House of Usher" was studied at length, with Mrs. Burke Taylor as leader. "The Art as Revealed in the Fall of the House of Usher" was read by Mrs. Harrison Bachman, and "Foes in Relation to His Poems" was read by Mrs. Taylor, after which a round table discussion followed.

HALLOWEEN PARTY AT MRS. J. T. STEVENS

Mrs. J. Truman Stevens, winner of the recent First Methodist membership campaign prize, with her group of assistants, showed her appreciation to her helpers very prettily Friday afternoon when she honored them with a delightful Halloween and "42" party at her home on Lucile street.

The music and living rooms were decorated beautifully in the Halloween colors of black and gold, with the color scheme further carried out with bowls of chrysanthemums, gold-rod, marigolds, sunflowers and autumn leaves. The dining room was prettily decorated in potted plants and roses. The guests were ushered into the dimly lighted rooms where black cats, witches, and pumpkins gargoyles furnished a weirdly gloomy setting, and here Mrs. Clyde Foster gave a reading in keeping with the occasion and a Halloween puzzle was enjoyed by all. Miss Mary Smith gave two solos, "Smilin' Thru," and "Rosary," and a piano selection, and little Miss Marguerite Foster gave two readings and sang a song.

Four tables were arranged for the domino game in which Mrs. H. A. Wright won high score and was remembered with a set of six dainty cut glass salt containers, while Mrs. A. E. Miller was topped with a cut glass bud vase.

At a late hour in the afternoon the hostesses served a refreshment plate of chicken salad sandwiches, olives, and pumpkin pie, with plate favors of miniature black cats, to the following: Mesdames Dan Hardy, A. K. Miller, H. P. Sanderson, N. O. Holland, Charles W. Warner, Clyde Foster, Roy Coffee, R. C. Johnson, Tom Taylor, E. Moore, H. A. Wright, I. Roy Taylor, and Roscoe Davis; Misses Mary Smith, Estelle McQueen, and Arline McCombe, and little Miss Marguerite Foster.

Texas' Most Modern Hospital Now Complete

The new General Hospital recently finished and opened has been declared by visiting physicians to be the most modern and complete institution of its kind in Texas.

6 CLUBS STARTED IN RURAL SCHOOLS BY COUNTY AGENT

GIRLS FORM ORGANIZATIONS UNDER LEADERSHIP OF MISS LANSFORD.

HOT LUNCHEONS PLANNED IN ONE OF DISTRICTS

Three Poultry Clubs and Three Garden Clubs Have Been Formed So Far.

Three garden clubs and three poultry clubs were organized during the past week by Miss Georgia Lansford, the county home demonstration agent. This is a mere beginning of the large amount of work that Miss Lansford has planned in the county in an effort to instill interest in garden and poultry work among the school children.

Among the interesting results of her work is the fact that Miss Dannie Mae Jones, principal of the Cooper school has promised to put in a hot dish every day for lunch, provided her patrons are willing. She has one empty room which can be utilized for that purpose.

It will take very little equipment and the cost will be nominal. It will be of the greatest benefit to the children. Miss Lansford stated, especially for the under fed ones as the hot dish will supplement the cold lunch brought from home.

At the Cashion school a garden club and a poultry club were organized. Lucille Harris is president and Mildred Markham secretary of the garden club. Following are the members: Vera Mae Morris, Mildred Markham, Hannah, Harriet, George, Mildred Hume, Laura Johnson, Bertha Evans, Lucile Harris and Lucy Bell Dunsworth.

Poultry club, Leo Cages president and Ruby Suggs, secretary. Members: Lauraine Kukuk, Otto Kukuk, Bessie Pysant, Floyd Brown, Lola Pollam, Ruby E. Suggs, Frank W. Hanna, Melvin Pysant, Dennis Jones, Leo Suggs, Ruth Ottman and Leo Dunsworth.

A garden club and poultry club were also organized at the Clara school. Garden club Ruby Evans, president and Alma Harmon secretary. Members: Madge Smith, Gerrie Harris, Bertie Har- Erma Harmon, Alma Harmon, Ruby Evans, Georgia Lee Wason, Verna Bell Rice.

A garden club was organized at the Fryberg school but no officers have as yet been elected. The members are Katherine Singletary, Opal Halton, Katherine Roelinger, Lillie Johnson, Gladys Fugate, Lena Musgrave, Willie Mae Halton, Alice Paulson, Hattie Underwood, Thelma Lovell, Opal Doye, Myrtle Cline, Catherine Geary.

At the Cooper school a poultry club organization was begun and to date three members have joined. They are Opal Hubler, Marguerite Gentry, and Edward C. Geary.

The Cashion poultry club met on October 18 at the home of Mrs. J. H. Shawson and culled poultry. This was the first lesson as club members.

The Clara No. 1 poultry club met October 19 at Superintendent Culler's home and culled his flock. This was their first lesson as club members. The next meeting has been called for Wednesday, November 1 at 4 p. m.

SENATORIAL ELECTION LAWS ARE VERY EXPLICIT AS TO STATEMENTS OF EXPENSES

Laws governing election of United States senators are extremely plain spoken on the subject of expenses accounts, according to a digest compiled Saturday by F. G. Swanson, as follows:

"In view of current questions pending, many of your readers are probably interested in the laws governing primaries and elections for office of U. S. senator; the following is taken from state statutes with numerical references in parentheses citing to sections or articles of statutes of the state:

(255-g, Cr.) "No candidate for United States senator shall make any disbursement for political purposes except under his personal direction, which for every purpose shall be considered his act, through a party committee, or through a personal committee, whose authority to act shall be filed, as provided in this act." (Filing to be with secretary of state and county clerk.)

(255-l, penal code) "No person or group of persons, other than a candidate or his personal campaign committee or a party committee, shall in an election for a U. S. senator, or nomination of a candidate for U. S. senator, make any disbursement for political purposes otherwise than through a personal campaign committee or party committee, except that expense incurred for rent of a hall, for printing, for postage, for advertising, for distributing printed matter, for clerical assistance and hotel and traveling expenses solely in connection with a public speaking engagement, may be contributed and paid by a person or group of persons residing within the county where such expenses are incurred, but not otherwise."

Various articles relate to expenditures permitted which include about all of campaign expenses noted during primary and general election campaigns; and article provides that candidates are not to pay any expense incurred, for which written statement or bill is not presented within ten days after primary or election in which incurred.

(255-m (filing)) Each statement after the first shall contain a summary of all preceding statements, and summarize all items theretofore reported under the provisions of each subdivision. On or before the second Saturday after the election, a final statement shall be filed, and "include all former statements."

(255-n) "The statement of every candidate for United States senator and the statement of his personal campaign committee shall be filed with the county clerk of the county where such candidate resides and with the secretary of state."

(255-o) "Each statement shall give in full detail:

1.—"Every sum of money and all property, and every other thing of value received by such candidate or committee during such period from any source whatsoever which he uses or has used, or is at liberty to use for political purposes, together with the name of every person from which same was received, the specific purpose for which received, date, together with the full amount received from all sources in any amounts or manner whatsoever."

2.—"Similar data, reference, pledges for support, etc."

3.—"Every disbursement made by political purposes—with name every person to whom made, date, and total."

4.—"Every obligation, express or implied."

(255-r) "The name of no candidate for U. S. senator chosen at a primary election shall be printed on the official ballot for the ensuing election unless there has been filed a statement of accounts and expenses required by this act."

(3174-v) "Any candidate for U. S. senator, who shall fail to do and perform any of the things relating to disbursement or collection of money shall upon conviction be confined in county jail for not less than 30 nor more than 180 days, and in addition fined $200 to $500."

C. OF C. TO NAME COMMITTEES FOR INTERURBAN MOVE

DIRECTORS TO TAKE ACTION AT MEETING CALLED FOR TUESDAY.

NOMINATIONS TO BE MADE FOR NEXT YEAR

Ten Names to Be Submitted For Five Places On Board, Whose Terms Expire.

At a meeting of chamber of commerce directors scheduled for Tuesday morning, it is expected that a committee will be named to cooperate with Dallas interests in plans for the Dallas interurban. While it is understood that no immediate steps are called for, the local organization will be prepared to take whatever action is necessary at this time.

Early in 1920, Wichita Falls subscribed for $500,000 stock in the interurban, but the move was abandoned later that year, after the initial survey had been made.

At Tuesday's meeting, a committee will be appointed to make nominations for directors for the annual election in January. The terms of five directors expire in 1923, they being W. E. Norton, George Keith, W. F. Weeks, W. N. Maer and J. M. Mc-Pall. Ten nominations for the five places will probably be made, pursuant to the usual plan.

(3174-v) "Any candidate for U. S. senator, who shall fail to do and perform any of the things relating to disbursement or collection of money shall upon conviction be confined in county jail for not less than 30 nor more than 180 days, and in addition fined $200 to $500."

'GEORGE'S CAREER IS MY CAREER' PRECEPT OF WIFE OF CANDIDATE FOR THE U. S. SENATE FROM TEXAS

By EVELYN DEWEY MILLER.

DALLAS, Oct. 21.—Few men have the good fortune to be a candidate for the United States senate at the age of thirty, and even fewer men have the good fortune to have a wife whose sincere doctrine is that her husband's "career is her career." Such is the double good fortune of the Honorable George Peddy, choice of the anti-klan democrats and the republicans for United States senator from Texas.

MISS GEORGE PEDDY.

When asked what she will do when she reaches Washington, Mrs. Peddy answers promptly "Whatever George wants me to do." She looks squarely in the eye as she says this and Mrs. Peddy has eyes that the most hardened skeptic would trust.

Wife, Partner and Secretary. Mrs. Peddy is wife, partner and secretary to her brilliant husband. "His ambitions are my ambitions," says Mrs. Peddy, and to that end this graduate of the University of Texas plans to devote her life in a manner unobtrusive as that of Puritan Griselda.

During her husband's strenuous campaign, Mrs. Peddy keeps herself in constant touch with the political situation and acts as her husband's confidential secretary.

Despite her obvious youth, Mrs. Peddy has a quiet dignity and a sweetness of manner that win the instant confidence of every one who meets her.

Native Texas. Gertrude Erwin Peddy, like her husband, is a native Texas. She was born in Caldwell county, where her maternal grandmother, Mrs. D. P. Smith, still resides. At the death of her mother, eighteen months old Gertrude Erwin was taken to live with her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Julia Erwin, of Columbia, Tennessee, and resided there until she graduated from the Columbia Institute in 1916.

It was while on a visit to Texas, in the summer of 1916, that Miss Erwin decided to enter the University of Texas.

Like her husband, Mrs. Peddy worked her way through the University, working from 1 to 3 p. m. as secretary to Governor Bobb's office and supplementing her funds by teaching school during 1913 that she might resume her studies at summer school.

It was during her freshman year at the University that Gertrude Erwin met the college hero, George Peddy, president of the student association, a member of the Thirty-Fifth legislature and a student in the officers' training camp at Leon Springs.

In January of 1921, Miss Erwin found that she was doing more work than she was able to keep up. The original plan had been for a wedding in June of that year, but the absence from school for the rest of that year she decided to postpone her wedding until June.

It was during her freshman year at the University that Gertrude Erwin met the college hero, George Peddy, president of the student association, a member of the Thirty-Fifth legislature and a student in the officers' training camp at Leon Springs.

The University romance culminated with a simple wedding in the Texas Bible Church, a small church near the campus, with Dr. R. E. Vinson, president of the University, officiating. Mrs. Peddy refused to allow her husband to say for her university education. To do this she went into a law office in Houston and worked there until she had met every obligation. This shows something of the spirit and the sense of honor of the wife of the young senatorial candidate.

Peddys Both Methodists. Mr. and Mrs. Peddy are devoted workers in the Methodist church, both having joined the church when they were ten years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. Peddy have made their home in Houston since their marriage and reside at 781 Holman avenue. Mrs. Peddy is watching the campaign with great interest, but is not too busy to attend to her home, her husband's correspondence and his personal affairs while he is everlastingly occupied with his speaking tour which includes two speeches a day until the general election, November 7th.

Handsome Dining Room Suites for the Home Beautiful

HOME—in the American sense—is infinitely more than a mere place of abode. Furnishings which at one time were considered as chairs, tables, curtains, rugs, and were selected chiefly for their utilitarian purposes, in addition are chosen now for the character they express and for the atmosphere of refinement they create.

Thus the "Better Homes" program is paying daily dividends in culture and contentment.

STOP! LOOK! READ! WHO WANTS A $15 AUTO SEARCH LIGHT?

Twelve Readers of Times' Auto Pages To Receive Light

Twelve readers of the Automobile Page of the Sunday issue of The Wichita Daily Times will each receive a $15 automobile search light. There is no catch connected with the gift. No puzzle is to be solved. No composition is to be written, and it doesn't cost a cent of money.

All that is necessary is to watch it. It will take about five minutes of your time each morning, and if you happen to be well enough acquainted with your own automobile, you are in line for a $15 portable modern automobile search light.

Here's how it's going to be done: The Times staff photographer will, without fear, without hope of reward and not prompted by a promise of pardon, will take the picture of twelve automobiles in the streets in the city. A sufficient amount of the automobile will be shown in the photograph, that anyone who has at least struck up a speaking acquaintance with his car will be able to recognize it.

If the automobile standing out in black and white in next Sunday morning's issue of The Daily Times happens to be yours, just drive the car down to the Times office and convince the automobile editor that you haven't stolen it. In order to get the search light, and the light is yours (or keeps). No lien will be taken on it in any shape, manner or form.

One picture will be shown each Sunday for the next twelve weeks, beginning on Sunday morning, October 29.

If you aren't familiar with the numbers on your car or some distinctive mark which marks it from all others of its kind, send your twelve year old son out to the garage and have him examine it carefully and then instruct him to watch the Sunday automobile page of The Times. If you haven't got that twelve year old son to act, you'll have to get one right aside and study your car from various angles.

No employee of The Daily Times is eligible to receive one of these handsome search lights which retail for $15. Should it so occur that the photographer unconsciously takes the picture of an automobile of either one of the two Times employees who own an automobile the gift-giving enterprise will be continued for another week.

The name of the winner will be published in the following Sunday morning issue. The search lights were ordered by The Times through the Langford Motor Supply company, where they will be installed in your car after identification has been established to The Times Automobile Editor.

Wiring Connections.

When placing a wire terminal under a terminal nut the wire should be twisted the way the nut turns, as shown at left. Otherwise, the tightening of the nut will loosen the wire from the terminal rather than hold it tight.

It has been found effective to apply a thick coat of shellac followed by several layers of tape and thin coats of shellac, to protect the radiator hose from oil and other destructive matter.

UNIFORM RULES ARE NECESSITY BUT PREMATURE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Every highway engineer will agree with the desirability of uniform highway traffic regulations, but a measure looking to federal legislation on this subject at this time would be premature, according to a statement by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, department of agriculture, to the National Motorists' association. Discussing in a broad way the question of federal regulation of highway traffic, Mr. MacDonald said to the N. M. A. that there should be more uniformity in state regulations before any suggested highway traffic measure be submitted to the federal congress for action.

When suggestions were brought to his attention to the effect that a federal law might be enacted which would apply only to highways over which the federal government has full or part control, Mr. MacDonald expressed the view that such a law would not be practical. Illustrating this, he suggested that if such a law were in force now, a motorist might find himself driving over ten miles of federal aid road, on which federal enforcement laws would be effective, and then enter upon another stretch belonging to a state or county, over which national government officers would have no control.

In this connection he emphasized the fact that the question of enforcement will be a vital one, assuming that later on congress should enact a national traffic law.

In the course of the discussion, Mr. MacDonald made an interesting comment to the effect that the building of highways has not kept pace with the increase in the number of motor cars which use the highways, thus making the question of traffic control one particularly difficult to handle. He expressed approval of the interest being taken by the National Motorists' association and its affiliated clubs to the end that the traffic situation be improved and congestion and accidents prevented wherever possible.

To function properly, the horn, like any other unit in the motor assembly, should be lubricated from time to time.

BIG SIX SEDAN OF STUDEBAKER IS NOW ON DISPLAY

A motor car that has been accorded the lion's share of attention at recent closed car shows throughout the country is the Studebaker big six sedan (special), now on display at the show room of Keim Motor company, Studebaker dealers. Striking in appearance and complete down to the last detail, it carries an air of elegance that is irresistible.

The beauty of the big six sedan is enhanced by such touches as the handsome nickel plated radiator shell, motor and ornamental radiator cap. Other features of beauty, utility and completeness are the nickel plated bumpers, front and rear; automatic windshield cleaner; rear view mirror; the spacious trunk (with dust proof cover) at the rear, which is easily accessible because the two extra disc wheels (complete with tires and tubes) are carried on the front fenders. Among further features of comfort and convenience are: the heater; theft-proof transmission lock; ventilator in cowl; massive headlights; artistic side coach lamps; courtesy light on the driver's side; opalescent dome light and corner reading lights; automatic window regulator; silk roller curtains; three-piece fall vision windshield; jeweled eight-day clock; door locks and door pockets.

The big six sedan (special) is equipped so as to be equally adaptable for year-round service in town or cross-country touring.

Upholstery is of rich mohair velvet plush with floor carpets, top lining and trimmings to match. Maximum riding comfort is provided by the nine-inch deep cushions and the long semi-elliptic springs, 56 inches in the rear and 28 inches in front. The liberal interior dimensions assure ample room for seven passengers with the two auxiliary seats in use.

This distinctive sedan body is noted for its sturdy construction. It is mounted upon the 60-horsepower Studebaker big six chassis which has gained world-wide recognition for reliability and all-round performance.

JORDAN MONTHLY VOLUME NEARLY MILLION AND HALF

A conspicuous example of what can be accomplished in the automobile industry by careful business management is revealed in a recent statement covering the operations of the Jordan Motor Car company for the first nine months of 1922. Jordan has done a volume approximating $1,500,000 monthly on an average running inventory of $700,000. With a monthly volume approximating this total, the average sales and advertising expenses, including all overhead properly chargeable to the sales end of the business, the cost of selling has been in the neighborhood of between one and one-half per cent.

More than seven thousand cars have been produced at an average price approximating $2,000. The average monthly earnings of the company during this period have approximated twice the annual preferred dividend.

"WILD RUBBER" MARKETS HAVE NOW DISAPPEARED

Nine-Tenths of Crude Rubber Grown in Cultivated Plantations.

The rapid growth in the production of rubber on plantations has made the work of buying crude rubber, an altogether different kind of task from what it was when practically all rubber was "wild" and when scores of varieties were coming in from all parts of the tropics in all sorts of conditions.

Now, about nine-tenths of the crude rubber produced in the world is grown on plantations in the far east under the direction of Europeans. One notable exception is the great plantations of the United States Rubber company in Sumatra and Malaya. These are under the direction of Americans and it is not exaggerating to say that they lead all the plantations of the world in the scientific culture of the rubber tree.

The methods of preparing crude rubber on the plantations are such as trained business men would use, and the rubber reaches the market clean and in standard forms. So that about all a rubber merchant need know about rubber today is the various grades of ribbed and crepe rubber—the standard forms in which rubber comes from the plantations—and a few grades of Brazilian rubber. The latter, because of its high quality, still remains a factor in the market, while most of the other wild rubbers have disappeared in competition with the plantation products.

When "wild rubber" dominated the market, a buyer had to be experienced and clever to a high degree to differentiate between the many varieties and forms and grades in which crude rubber was offered, and particularly to guard against being cheated out of his eye teeth in sharp trades. Buying rubber in those days was like the old business of swapping horses. All sorts of tricks were in vogue and only the shrewdest of merchants had any chance of avoiding the pitfalls. There grew up in those times a group of trained, careful buyers who could tell at sight every one of the varieties, their places of origin and their value when cleaned and dried.

Each rubber district had its own peculiar method of preparing the rubber for market, and the forms in which it was put up were in many cases almost grotesque. There were "sloggers" from Soudan, Gambia and Sierra Leone; "chairs" from Malacca, "twists" from Manoh and Lahou and "balls" from the Cameroon and Gabon. Other forms were "nuts," "spindles," "shingles," "sheets," "slabs," "marbles," "worms," "discs," "straps" and "tumps."

In the earlier days a buyer had to give chief thought to getting full value for his money. Today, with a vast production and only a few varieties, the buyer's chief study is the condition of business throughout the world, and the probable fluctuations in prices.

In the old days there used to be many important crude rubber markets: London and Liverpool in England; Para and Manaus in Brazil; Bordeaux for wild rubber from French Africa and Madagascar; Lisbon for Portuguese, East Africa, rubber for Portugal, and London, through the fact that seventy-five per cent of the crude rubber is produced by British capital, is the largest secondary market. New York is the chief consumer market.

America consuming about seventy-five per cent of all the rubber produced, Singapore, Colombo and Amsterdam, have weekly auctions where lots are offered in a variety of quantities and qualities. All the "wild rubber" markets have sunk into insignificance except Para and Manaus.

In the primary markets in the plantation districts groups of the growers offer their goods to representatives of American and European rubber brokers and manufacturers. In the great secondary markets, such as London and New York, rubber is handled largely by brokers.

The manner in which crude rubber comes to market in Brazil is still very primitive. In spite of this fact there will probably always be a market for Brazilian rubber because of its high quality, but the high cost of getting it out of the jungle will prevent its ever regaining a supreme position. With food scarce and expensive and labor high Brazil can hardly hope ever again to become the first rubber nation of the world in competition with the far east which has the inexpensive labor of China and India at its disposal.

In the vast forests which cover the valley of the Amazon and its tributaries are pitilessly restless groups of wild rubber tappers. In the important towns and cities it used to be the custom for rubber merchants to fit out collecting expeditions under men who gathered about them groups of Indian workers. The entire equipment for the expedition was furnished by the merchant, who literally grubbedged the expedition. Now there is much less of this outfitting by merchants, the head of the expedition usually furnishing the equipment and supplies.

The expedition sets off into the jungle and spends months collecting the rubber from the scattered trees. At the points nearest to civilization the harvests of rubber are picked up by steamers which tie up along the river banks near the camps of the tappers. In more remote sections part of the men in the expedition work at rubber collecting and the others make canoes and rafts from plant logs. These canoes and rafts later form the means of transporting the rubber to some point where it can be taken to market. The canoes also find a ready market, awaiting the prizes of the expedition.

VALUE RECEIVED IN PROPORTION TO CARE GIVEN

Proper care at regular intervals is the secret of automobile life and freedom from "satisfaction" says F. Franklin, automobile manufacturer.

Franklin Automobile company, Syracuse, N. Y. "Any car, no matter how good, will give you a lot of trouble if you don't give it the proper care. It is a definite fact that a car which is properly cared for will last longer and give you more pleasure than one which is not.

"Motorists, as a class, are becoming increasingly familiar with this fact. We have found a very large percentage of our customers who are not only interested in the performance of their cars, but also in the cost of operation. This is a very good thing, and it has definitely demonstrated that an automobile, if properly cared for, will give you more pleasure and longer service at a minimum of expense for service work.

"Every automobile offered by the public today is constructed to deliver worthwhile service to the buyer in proportion to the amount expended for it. Whether or not the purchaser receives that service depends upon the care which he gives the car and his knowledge of motor operation.

"In addition to the driving instructions given to owners by dealers, many of whom number men solely for that purpose, the Franklin Automobile company has a large force of traveling service men, whose duty it is to call on all new owners within a given period after their car is purchased to check over the operation of their car and find out whether or not they understand the best methods of handling an automobile.

POOR CAUSE FOR AIR PRESSURE

Did you ever stop to think what a wonderful thing air is? It was C. C. Handie, Goodyear service station dealer at 203 Scott talking.

"I mean it, air. Plain ordinary atmosphere, one of the few things you get any more that doesn't cost you anything—and so don't appreciate it. Take a rubber tire that's flat for instance. It won't hold up any more. It'll hold a ton.

"You see, air is a wonderful thing. It's got in it, of course a tire can't hold a lot of air for that purpose. It's got a good deal of air in it, but you've seen how it goes down in a few minutes. What happens? Nothing. If the tire is flat, they might as well go over and kick the side of the building.

"Babe Ruth could take his old job, but he can't take the job of a rubber tire. He can't take the job of a rubber tire. He can't take the job of a rubber tire. He can't take the job of a rubber tire.

VALVE-IN-HEAD

Nothing but the strongest toughest materials the most carefully selected processes of manufacturing, and the best workmanship, will stand up and give long mileage under general road conditions.

But you have to keep air in even a "Goodyear" tire," he concluded, smiling.

"You think it's a far every nut and bolt off the car. But it doesn't. Air takes the strain. Sixty or eighty pounds of air, wrapped up in a little rubber and cotton fabric, takes these thousands of impacts from the road and absorbs them when otherwise you'd ruin your car in half an hour. Without pneumatic tires auto riding on bad roads at anything over five or six miles an hour would be a nightmare.

"Of course there's a strain on the tire each time you hit an obstruction, and that eventually tells the difference between tires and tires. The tire that eventually breaks is the one that gives a little and then flies back into shape instantly with the air pressure behind it.

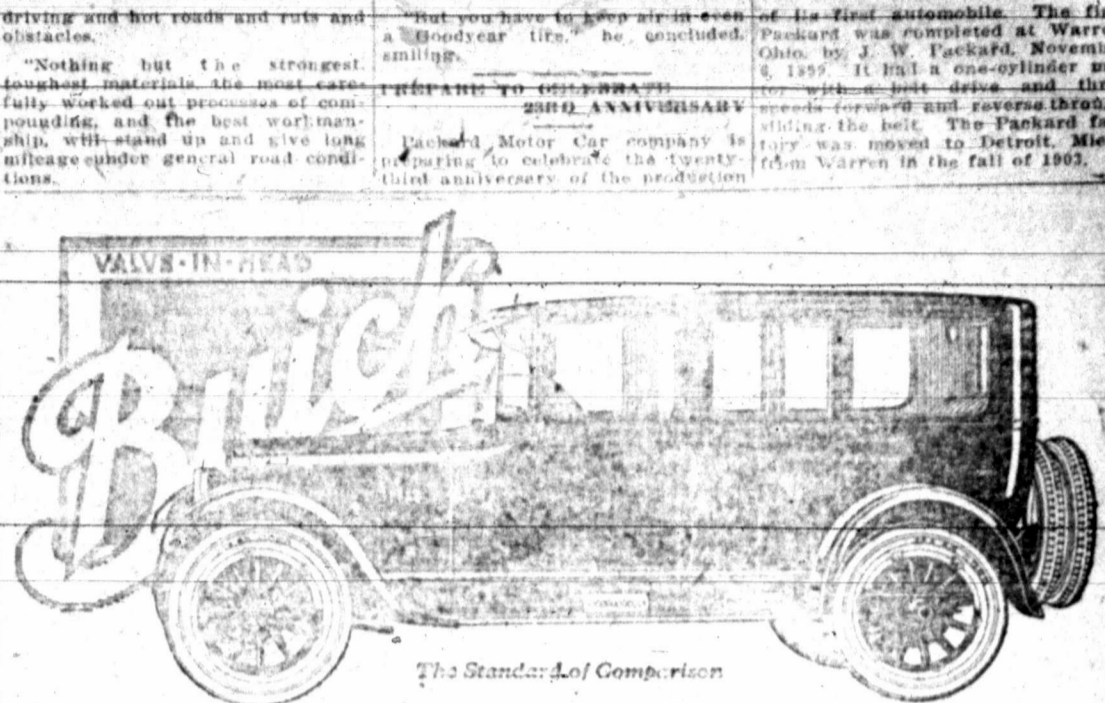

"But this constant flexing of the rubber and fabric eventually breaks it. That's the best built tire. It's got an extra layer of fabric in the tread. It's got an extra layer of fabric in the tread. It's got an extra layer of fabric in the tread.

THE MOTORISTS' PROBLEMS

By WILLIAM H. STEWART, JR.

Motor Department: I have a Ford car which makes explosions occasionally when running. Does not seem to miss when standing and pulls good when the spark plugs are clean for a few miles, then begins to miss on one cylinder, first one then the other. I have put in new cylinder block, I notice that lights flicker at night and the engine does not run as well with lights on. My coils are all right...

Motor Department: The coil of my ignition system positively refuses to give a spark of any kind. The battery current runs through it properly and the interrupter works as it should, for it may be seen sparking when we crank the engine. But we get no spark at the plug, distributor or even at the coil terminal leading to the distributor. Please let me know the cause of this.

Motor Department: I find on applying my emergency brake that it will not release. It used to operate properly. Why is this? W. E.

Motor Department: Occasionally I hear a popping noise in my carburetor. As I am told that it is dangerous should like to know what trouble to look for and what remedies to apply.

Motor Department: I have a Ford touring car and it uses one gallon of cylinder oil every 35 or 40 miles. I am sure oil does not leak out. How do I remedy this? Please advise what would cause this? Any information will be greatly appreciated.

Motor Department: Would you kindly tell me through your valuable motoring column what causes chattering of the linkage in the Ford transmission? Give care, if any. Thanking you, I am—L. M.

Motor Department: Will you please tell me under what conditions valves should be replaced, and also of what dimensions should new ones be ordered? D.

One of the cylinders is missing explosions. get no spark from it. I have checked it with a screwdriver, and when I remove the wire from the plug there is no spark there. What do you think is the matter? The other cylinders seem to fire all right.—S. A.

Motor Department: As a new motorist I should like a few suggestions as to what to do to a car to keep it running right and to avoid trouble. A few simple directions that a novice can follow.—Owner.

Motor Department: Please let me know some cure for a noisy spring. At times it rattles badly and the effect is very annoying. Any suggestions will be appreciated.—Owner.

Motor Department: The trouble is probably in the shackles or shackle bolts. Try tightening the shackle bolts, as these are very probably between them and the spring-eyes. If these do much play, thin shims of metal may be inserted, larger bolts may have to be fitted, or the springs removed and new bushings inserted. Be more careful of lubrication of these parts and keep them clean, as road grit sticking to the springs ends can easily work in and cause rapid wear.

Motor Department: Please tell me how to trace out trouble on my car.

STATE ACCIDENTS DROP BY HALF. By revoking the licenses of reckless drivers, Massachusetts has caused a decline of 45 per cent in automobile accidents in one year.

DRIVEWAYS OF CARS INCREASE DEALER REPORTS

"On account of the serious freight congestion on many railroads, a great volume of motor cars is being driven across-country from factory to dealer," reports McFall Bros., Dodge Brothers dealer here.

"With the inadequate supply of freight cars, the only means of meeting the continued influx of orders for Dodge Brothers cars has been to increase the number of driveaways from the factory in Detroit. Every day the reception room at the factory offices is jammed with men, and a few women too, waiting for their allotment of cars to be driven to far and near points. Several hundred cars are driven away from the factory every day. Sometimes as many as 200 cars in one day reach purchasers by the driveaway route. This is Dodge Brothers contribution to the relief of the excessive strain on the freight car supply. Cars are driven not only to states adjoining Michigan, but to a great number of points on the Atlantic seaboard and as far west as Kansas and Iowa.

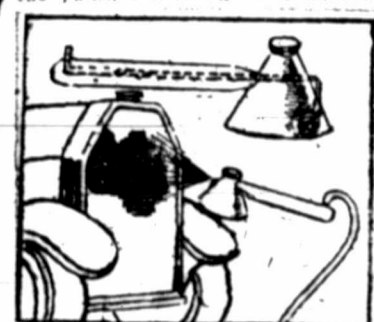

"Complete cooperation between factory, dealer, and purchaser is the general feeling, and it is the hope for some solution of the present rail situation, and is willing to do his part."

CARRY GOLF BAG AND STICKS WITHOUT ANNOYANCE

A change recently made in the Packard single six coupe permits the carrying of a golf bag and sticks without projecting out from the luggage compartment or interfering with passengers. An opening has been cut through to the compartment under the driver's seat. The golf bag slips into this space and extends back into the rear luggage compartment. Cars with this change incorporated are promised for the latter part of October.

Painting the Radiator.

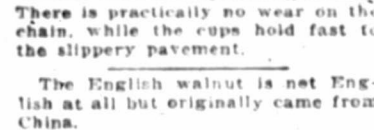

Better than using the paint brush for the radiator is this spraying method. It comprises a can for the paint, consisting of a mixture of lampblack and turpentine. A hollow cylindrical tin handle attached to the can, an air pipe passing through handle and can, and another tube passing from one end of the horizontal pipe into the can. When air is forced through the first tube the paint from the can is drawn up and sprayed out.

Suction Cup Chains.

More secure grip on the road is assured by manufacturers of this "suction cup tire chain." The cross links are carriers for the cups.

There is practically no wear on the chain, while the cups hold fast to the slippery pavement.

HIGH SCHOOL PLANS CALL FOR BUILDING COSTING $650,000

The new high school and junior college building will cost about $650,000, according to estimates made Saturday, if the plans as practically agreed upon by the board are finally adopted. A total of $50,000 for new buildings was made available from the bond issue earlier in the year, part of this being spent for the new Fanning and Carrigan buildings and for an addition to the Sam Houston school. The new high school site had been acquired with funds from an earlier bond issue.

It is expected that a date for opening of bids on the building will be set shortly, and that the contract will be awarded early in December.

Winn First Round.

TACOMA, WASH.—Mrs. Joanna Ryan has won the first round with Judge J. M. Card, who has kept the woman in jail for almost four weeks because she would not sign her name to certain papers whereby a proper settlement could be effected between herself and her divorced husband, William Finnegan.

The woman was free today on order of the judge, who said he would give her until Monday to sign. If she does not change her mind in that time, Judge Card said he would fine her $20 and commit a total of $200. The judge retorted, he said.

because an invalid sister needs the attention of Mrs. Ryan.

Majority Preference Proves Cadillac Value

It is a matter of record that more buyers choose Type 61 Cadillac than all other cars combined selling at the Cadillac price or higher.

We believe that the majority of buyers of high grade cars choose Type 61 because they have a clear conviction of its worth.

They buy it because, after mature reflection, they consider Type 61 Cadillac both the Standard of the World and the world's greatest motor car value.

When people record such clear favor for an automobile, it is obvious that they have some good reason for their preference.

Ready for the Cold?

Now that colder weather may be looked for soon, your heating arrangements with natural gas should receive your attention.

First of all, the kind of appliances you are using should be examined. Any furnace or stove intended for coal or wood cannot be made much more than 25% efficient with gas.

Third of the Expense

Correct gas appliances do the same work for not over a third of the expense. Radiant gas heaters will care for a good sized room in cold weather at a cost of about a cent an hour.

Second, all appliances should be in good order. A clogged outlet, a loose burner, or even a little dirt on the burner may double the cost of your heat.

Depriving Others

You may be willing to pay this extra cost, but the extra gas you consume may deprive somebody else of needed warmth in severe weather, for then the demand is for all the gas obtainable.

Third, your cooking appliances should be so arranged that the burner is not over 1 1/2 inches below the cooking surface, and so that you will always have a clear blue flame. Adjust the shutters on the air intake and the valves until you get this result.

Fourth, your hot water boilers should be covered and hot water pipes wrapped with asbestos or magnesium covering.

Look after these essentials, and you will have good service and help us give good service to your neighbors.
