LACK JURISDICTION TO PASS ON MERITS IN PEDDY CONTEST

JUDGES ANNOUNCE THIS IS ONLY QUESTION CON-SIDERED.

HEARING HELD BEFORE THREE FEDERAL JUDGES

Petition Filed in Name of R. B.
Creager, Republican State Chairman.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—Holding that they lack jurisdiction, three judges sitting in federal court as a special tribunal here yesterday denied the petition requested by supporters of George E. R. Peddy, Houston lawyer, to compel Texas election officials to place the name of Peddy on the official ballot as a candidate for United States senator in opposition to Earle B. Mayfield, democratic nominee and alleged Ku Klux candidate.

Rendering the decision the judges announced that no other question than that of jurisdiction had been considered.

A faction of Texas democrats opposed to Mayfield assisted by republicans of the state, filed a bill in equity in the federal court at Mobile seeking an injunction to force the Texas secretary of state to put the name of Peddy on the ballot in the election next month.

The petition was filed in the name of R. B. Creager, republican executive committee chairman of Texas, and others. The defendants included Governor Neff, Attorney General Keeling, Secretary of State Staples, Mr. Mayfield and others.

Letter From President.
Representing their case attorneys presenting the Peddy faction read a telegram from Mr. Creager stating that he had received a letter from President Harding in which the chief executive had commended the republicans of Texas for "aiding independent democrats in coalition against all groupings and classes attendant upon dictation contrary to American ideals."

They declared that Mayfield was not the candidate of the democratic party of Texas but of a faction masquerading under the guise of the party.

They read an affidavit signed by Col. R. M. Johnson, former editor of the Houston Post, charging that Mayfield is not a democrat, does not represent the democratic party and any democrat had a right to vote for Peddy, as Mayfield was not nominated as a democrat.

The state's case was presented by Attorney General Keeling, his assistant, L. C. Sutton, and Secretary of State Staples. They contended that Peddy had lost his right as a republican nominee when he voted in the democratic primary in July, and urged that the courts of equity had no jurisdiction over political rights, being concerned only with property rights. Texas laws were adequate to handle the situation, they declared.

The hearing was held before Circuit Judge R. W. Walker of New Orleans, District Judge Henry D. Clayton of Montgomery and District Judge E. T. Erwin of Mobile.

MAN WHO DELIVERED ZIMMERMAN NOTE TO CARRANZA IS LOCATED

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 24.—Folke Cronhelm, former Swedish chargé d'affaires in Mexico City, who in 1917 is said to have delivered to President Carranza the text of the famous Zimmerman note and who shortly afterwards was dismissed by the Swedish foreign office, arrived secretly in Stockholm September 2.

Cronhelm is keeping his address secret, but it has been learned from his brother that he is busy preparing a defense for his action in Mexico and purposes using the Swedish foreign office for damages, alleging that his dismissal was not justified.

UNABLE TO AGREE ON ROUTE TO BE TAKEN BY TURKS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 24.—The allied generals and the Turkish nationalists are still at loggerheads over the route to be taken by the Turkish gendarmes in their occupation of eastern Thrace. Raza Pasha, the new military governor of Thrace, at a lengthy conference with the allied chiefs yesterday, urged that the gendarmes be permitted to go through Constantinople, but was told that the bulk of these forces must enter Thrace by way of Rodosto.

All the gendarmes, with the exception of a small force here, are now gathered at Mudania and Ismid, awaiting word from the allies to embark for Thrace. A meeting of the commanders of the 13 newly arrived American destroyers, outlining the near eastern situation, and advising them of the position of the navy there. He explained that the American forces must maintain complete neutrality and devote their energies to humanitarian work and the protection of American property.

AMERICAN SAILORS FACE BANDIT FIRE TO PROTECT GIRLS

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Amy W. Jennings of Cleveland, Ohio, wife of a Y. M. C. A. worker in Smyrna, arriving on the Kronland, told how American sailors protecting the International college and American school for girls in Paradise, near Smyrna, had stood up before a Turkish bandit attack and prevented a massacre by refusing to return the Turkish fire.

OIL INTERESTS OF U. S. WILL BE REPRESENTED IN MESOPOTAMIA FIELD

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Arrangements for American oil interests to be represented jointly with Franco-British concerns in Mesopotamia are being completed, according to authoritative information received here today. The exact extent of that participation has not been determined. It is stated the oil concessions in Mesopotamia in pre-war times were owned by a German and British concern. Following the treaty of San Remo, the German interests were transferred to the French. Now Americans have obtained an interest through scaling down the Franco-British shares, a majority of which is still in the possession of the British treasury.

WOMAN IS CANDIDATE FOR SEAT IN CONGRESS

NEW BEDFORD, MASS., Oct. 24.—Miss Lily F. Darcy of New Bedford, secretary to Representative Joseph Walsh, was a candidate in the special republican congressional primary today. She is the first woman to run for congress in this state. Charles L. Gifford opposes her.

Mr. Walsh resigned to become a superior court judge.

Says Speech of Wilson Cause of German Surrender

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., Oct. 24.—Dr. Thortonwell Jacobs of Oglethorpe university, Atlanta, last night caused a ripple in the international convention of the Southern South-eastern district, Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, when he urged magnanimity toward Germany and declared that Woodrow Wilson's speeches caused the Teutons to stop fighting. Dr. Jacobs recently returned from Germany.

LEAGUE WOMEN VOTERS CONVENES IN HOUSTON

HOUSTON, Oct. 24.—Women from all sections of the state are here for the third annual convention of the Texas League of Women Voters which opened this morning. Mrs. Jennie Daniel Ames of Georgetown, president, will preside over the four day session.

Child labor laws, the condition of women in industry, prison reform and a special consideration of the Sheppard-Towner bill are scheduled to be taken up.

INDICTMENT CHARGES FIRST DEGREE MURDER IN MARTELLIERE CASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—An indictment charging first degree murder was returned by the grand jury today against Mrs. Paulette Saludes, French woman, who shot and killed Oscar Martelliere, brother of whom she was married, in his office on the afternoon of October 16.

After the shooting Mrs. Saludes fled to the office of her attorney, where she declared she killed Martelliere because he won her away from her husband and then cast her aside.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE READY TO SERVE THREE DAYS AND PAY FINE OF $300

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Declaring he acted in good faith in ousting Charles E. Chadsey as superintendent of schools and placing the blame for his plight on William A. Miller, former attorney for the Chicago board of education, Mark Hanson, school trustee, was ready today to serve three days in jail and pay a fine of $300 for contempt of court.

Arrest of Miller and the six trustees and former members of the school board was expected today following yesterday's mandate by the state supreme court ordering them to jail. Despite what action the others might take in seeking a rehearing, Mr. Hanson said he would take no further steps to evade the jail sentence.

The supreme court in ordering the seven to jail and in affirming fines imposed on women members of the board, overrode a blanket pardon by Governor Small. The court ruled the governor overstepped his authority in granting pardons in contempt cases.

Railroad mileage has increased from 13,460 miles in 1919 to almost 212,000 miles.

Housewives Today Running Homes As Efficiently As Men Are Running Businesses, Says Trust Co. Secretary

WOMEN BALANCE THEIR ACCOUNTS DOWN TO THE LAST FIVE CENTS

DAY TRADED PEOPLE BY CHECK

KEEP BOOKS WHILE ELECTRIC WASHER WORKS

MARY JANE WINFREY

By MARIAN HALE.

"Housewives today are running their homes just as efficiently as men are running their businesses," says Mary Jane Winfrey.

Her position as secretary of the Continental Trust company of Washington, D. C., where she teaches hundreds of women to keep their accounts and balance their check books, gives her a good vantage point from which to form her judgment.

"And all this talk about women being unbusinesslike and their overchecking and underdepositing and making themselves a nuisance generally for cashiers is all without foundation," she continued. "Women learn simple banking principles in an amazingly short time.

"Today women pay their grocery, butcher and tradespeople by check. They run their homes on a budget plan and balance their accounts down to the last five cents if it takes five hours to do it.

"Women's Accounts Harder.

"Women's accounts are really much harder to manage than men's, too, because they involve small amounts and small checks, while men work in larger figures.

"Labor saving devices for the home have done more than anything else to make women efficient, because they have given them time to catch up. While the electric washer is getting the dirt out of Johnny's rompers his mother has time to do her bookkeeping and find out where the household money is going and why."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS QUEER SONG—NICK SINGS IT AS THE TWINS SPEED BACK TO PALACE By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Oh, the Magic Mushroom, he wears a queer hat."

Nancy and Nick had almost reached the Fairy Queen's Palace. They were riding along in the magical automobile on the road to Fairyland, as happy as two little robins in a cherry-tree.

Nick was singing a song. It was about his friends, the kind fairies who had helped Nancy and himself on their adventures. He just made it up as he went along. It was about hats, too. This was it:

"Oh, the Magic Mushroom, he wears a queer hat, Like a dough knob on top, the bottom it's flat. On the top it's white as the sun when it's shining, While down underneath is a pink lining.

"Mr. Rohadob wears a high hat like a dunce, He's never without it, you'd know him at once. It's got curls on which made him look knowing, But he says they're to tell him just which way he's going.

"Now Ting-a-lings-jingles with bells round about, Which shake when he laughs, as he's dreadfully stout,

But the thing which makes poor Tingaling look so fat Is his dear little, queer little, bun on his head.

"Now Scribble Scratch bothers with no hat at all. When he opens his Meadow-Grove he wears a long forelock which makes him look wise, And a pair of large spectacles over his eyes.

"And then there's the weatherman—wise Sprinkle-Blow. Who's often caught out in the rain and the sun, He wears a big hat and he has an umbrella, To keep him quite dry—oh, this wonderful fellow.

"Down under the sea is a wee traffic cop, With a sea-horse beneath him, the ocean atop. Whatever be the weather, bright sunshine or sprinkle, He wears a blue cap, does our dear Pennywhistle."

There was a lot more, but there isn't room to tell you, my dear.

ATTRACTIVE HOSPITALITY FOR VISITOR ON MONDAY

An attractive hospitality was honored Mrs. Herbert Johnson guest from Long Beach, Cal., of Madames Tom Medders and U. H. Griggs, was a bride party Monday afternoon at the Medders home on Buchanan.

The living room suite where tables were arranged for four sets of players was bright with Halloween decorations and yellow flowers, carrying out a color scheme of yellow and white, and a very beautiful afternoon was spent by a group of young matrons and girls at the game. Miss Beryl Kell won high score and was presented with a handsome bit of Hookwood pottery, which she presented to the guest of honor, and Mrs. Harry Myers was associated with an embroidered linen kerchief. The guest of honor herself was remembered with a bit of silk lingerie.

Late in the afternoon the hostesses served a delightful Halloween-wine salad luncheon, with favors of the season on each plate, to the following: Madames Herbert Johnson of Long Beach, Leonard French, W. T. Sims, Robert Nolan, Jack

EPISCOPAL WOMEN HEAR SPLENDID REPORT FROM PORTLAND CONVENTION

The women of the auxiliary, Church of the Good Shepherd, heard an absorbingly interesting report Monday of the women's section of the recent general convention of the Episcopal Church at Portland, Ore., given by Mrs. Dutton, who attended the meeting with Rev. Mr. Tinsford. The report of the "United Thank Offering" treasurer was especially interesting to the women.

Mrs. Huggley was hostess at the Monday afternoon meeting at the parish house, with devotional led by Mrs. Mollie McElroy and roll call responded to with facts concerning Panama. Mrs. Fuller gave a vocal selection which was very much enjoyed.

After the business and program Mrs. Huggley served dainty refreshments to the following: Madames Chamberlain, Reid, Graham, Morganti, Scott, Galloway, Paganopol, Gwanna, Gardner, Fuller, McElroy, Dutton, Gates, Bowman, Goodale, Fritis, Bowman, Sammons and Bekman.

LETTER FROM MRS. EVANS IS HEARD WITH INTEREST

A letter from Mrs. Evans, wife of Dr. Evans, missionary in Africa, both of whom were recent visitors to the First Presbyterian church here, was heard with great interest by the women of the Presbyterian auxiliary Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Evans, who was en route to Baltimore with her husband, had just opened the handsome bag which she had brought back from the local church had presented her before leaving, and had found the "travel letter" with the silver shower—more than $100—which was a little expression of appreciation from the local women of her splendid help among them. Dr. and Mrs. Evans will be at home in Baltimore a few weeks before leaving again for Africa.

The study of the afternoon at the meeting was the Philippines, with Mrs. J. C. Hunt leading, in the presence of Mrs. H. R. Patterson, and some very interesting stories of life in the islands were given by members of the auxiliary. Mrs. Bernard Martin and Mrs. J. D. Mahoney both made short talks on mission and religious life in the Philippines.

Members of the auxiliary as well as the guild are working hard on the circle membership contest, which will close in May, when the circle that has enrolled the largest number of new members will have to entertain the other circles.

WEDNESDAY'S CALENDAR

BLACK AND SILVER FALL'S COLOR COMBINATION

Black and silver is the latest color scheme—several of the largest and several of the most exclusive of the women's shops in New York have been devoting their attention to it.

Black and silver materials are used for elaborate three-piece suits for fall. Suits of black fabric trim themselves with gray lynx or gray squirrel collars.

Silver thread embroideries are very good on black and are seen not only on suits and coats but on dresses of all kinds.

Black evening gowns are effectively trimmed with silver lace and black velvet uses silver embroidery, silver lace or steel and crystal beads as the fancy takes it.

Even footwear shows the tendency—the smartest thing for fall is a patent leather colonial with buckles of cut steel.

LOCAL MUSICIANS GO TO VERNON RECEPTION

Madames O. E. Nicholls, Louisa Thompson, A. H. Britain and J. D. JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES—Continued. BY ELTON

Jack looked like such a harmless little fellow that Stony laughed as he jumped to his feet.

But the laugh was cut short pretty quickly when Jack landed a well placed smash on his snub nose.

And followed up his advantage with a swing to Stony's jaw after he had dodged the unpracticed arm swing of the bigger boy.

"Now's your turn," he called to Bill, when Stony went down; but Bill was "on his way."

BAPTIST CIRCLES MEET ON MONDAY AFTERNOON

Circle six of the First Baptist church met with Mrs. Roy Carter Monday afternoon in a mission lesson, which was led by Mrs. E. W. Carter. Refreshments were served to Madames Carter, J. T. Roodhouse, J. L. Fox, Bert King, J. G. Dixon, E. B. Leslie and R. L. Carter. The circle had two visitors, Mrs. J. R. Carter of Medora, Minn., who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Roodhouse, and Miss Carman Simpson, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Carter.

Circle one met with Mrs. J. J. Lory, with a missionary lesson on the text book. The meeting opened with a "Victoria" quartet, "Lead Kindly Light" and a scripture reading by Mrs. W. B. Reeves. Those present to whom refreshments were served included Madames W. B. Brown, R. W. Morgan, R. C. Smith, W. M. Harringer, J. J. Lory, J. P. Igou, G. H. Dowdy, E. W. Jackson, E. E. Carter and T. R. E. A THOUGHT FOR TODAY
He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might, he increaseth strength.—Isaiah 40:29.

THE LABORER AND IMMIGRATION.
Owing to restrictions on immigration a shortage in common labor is being felt in some of our large industrial centers and in some of the industries which require large numbers of such laborers.

COAL OUTLOOK.

The soft coal situation begins to look better for the family with an empty coal bin.
The mines are turning out about 10,000,000 tons of coal a week.

Two things are helping counteract this shortage.
First—Exports of soft coal so far this year, compared with the corresponding period of previous years, are about 7,000,000 tons less than in 1931 and 14,000,000 tons less than in 1930.

WHEN TO BECOME DISSATISFIED.

The time to become dissatisfied is when you are very much satisfied, says Herman J. Stieh in the Houston Chronicle.
"When the stomach's filled, the brain's stilled," quotes Mr. Stieh from an adage and continues:

Wives always seem to have more relatives than husbands.
Wonder if a girl ever penalizes a football star for holding?

No coal in the cellar is one sure sign of a hard winter.

The best alarm clock is ham and eggs cooking in the kitchen.

Nobody loves a skinny man in cold weather.

Many a crooked landlord owns a square block.

YOU AND I
By ALBERT APPLE

MARK H. BARWIS, Maine delegate to a convention of spiritualists at Chicago, is quoted as promising golf fans that they will have their game after they pass into the hereafter.
"Self-satisfaction is a subtle poison—it sleeps the mind; it coats mind and muscle with fat; it rots the gristle in the meat.

The FLAMING JEWEL
by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

It was the third chance he took. There was a dreadful stillness in the woods. Finally came a slight series of splashes, the crunch of heavy boots on rock.
"FOR WHY YOU COME HERE, EH?" demand Salsar, in a less aggressive manner. "What-a da matt?"

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK
By LEE FAYE

Last night after supper pop looked at the 2 gold fishes he won at the jeweler party, saying, Well, I see they're still alive.
From cradle to grave, we are reminded of the "joys of work." Somehow, though, the predictors neglect to include time clocks, trial balances, dustrags and lathes in their pictures of eternity's equipment.

THE CONSPIRACY

CHARLES GARLAND'S philosophy of life is expressed in his own words in this poem:
"Friend, do you ask
Why I questioned, old stand-ards?
Called some unflitting for me,
Accepted some, rejected some?
I did it to be more truly myself
And that I might more truly love you.

PEARSBALL, TEXAS, Oct. 24.—A parade, headed by Mayor L. F. Meri and followed by about 20 floats representing almost every activity in the county, took place at the second annual Frio county fair.

LARGE ADVERTISING SIGN IS ERRECTED IN DALLAS

DALLAS, Oct. 23.—An electrical sign, advertising a local dry goods store, has been erected near the union station here. It is 30 feet long and 30 feet wide, declared to be the largest sign of its nature in the south.

MCKINNEY WILL HAVE LARGE WELCOME ARCH

MCKINNEY, TEXAS, Oct. 24.—A large arch containing the letters "WELCOME TO MCKINNEY," will be placed on South Tennessee street to be of concrete and steel, costing approximately $1200.

What Bubbles Do
A new Shaving discovery

Here is one thing we learned about shaving cream in our scientific tests. The bubbles must be strong, enduring—must not break. They support the hairs for cutting. Without them, hairs lie down. That's a new discovery. Heretofore men never thought about that shaving cream requirement.

GUARD TWO NEGROES IN JAIL FOLLOWING THEIR CONFESSIONS

BELLEVILLE, ILL., Oct. 24.—An extra guard has been thrown around the local jail, where two negroes are held, following their alleged confession to participation in the robbery of about 25 persons, attacks on six white women and two negroes and in the murder of Alphonse H. de Hon, a salesman, who was slain when he resisted the highwaymen. The eight women assaulted, according to the alleged confessions, were companions of men the negroes are alleged to have held up. Feeling is said to be high against the prisoners, although no demonstrations have been made.

COMMITTEE REPORTS FUND GROWING FOR FOOTBALL EQUIPMENT

The committee soliciting funds for support of the local high school football team with great success as they started their canvass this morning. A report stated that with R. O. Harvey and P. H. Finke heading the list with $25 each, more than $100 was raised in the first hour. The committee is attempting to raise $500, and expects to complete the quota before noon Wednesday. The committee announces that any not collected can contribute by telephoning either J. Will Gray at baseball headquarters or the sporting editor of either The Daily Times or Record-News. RINGWORMS ON NECK AND FACE Itched and Burned. Lost Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

THE TROUBLE BEGINS WITH THE EYES. It begins with the eyes and spreads to the rest of the face. They are as sore as a quarter of a dollar, and itched and burned every time I went out in the wind and cold. I lost a great deal of sleep at night on account of the irritation.

PEGGIE BEAL IS ACQUITTED

The ordeal was comparatively brief in court. There were few witnesses and the testimony was speedily adduced. She took the witness stand. The story of the shooting was drawn from her by the attorneys—a pallid, fearful woman she was. Once the telling became unbearable and she had wept with her face in her hands. She again lived through the harrowing episodes which terminated in her fatally shooting Anderson in a room which they occupied together in a local hotel June 3. He lured her there, she asserted, with a false promise of marriage.

COAL COMMISSION SEEKING ADVICE OF INTERESTED PARTIES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Following up its plan of seeking the advice of interested parties in the coal industry the new federal coal commission met today with a committee of operators representing the larger bituminous mining areas of the country. J. C. Brydon of Baltimore, was chairman of the committee. Other members included Alfred M. Ogil, president of the National Coal Association; J. G. Bradford West Virginia; Harry M. Taylor, Missouri; George Harrington, Chicago; and E. C. Maghan, Knoxville, Tenn. The meeting was one of several which the commission has arranged to hold. It had previously discussed its procedure with a committee representing the United Mine Workers and with interview leaders in the anthracite industry later. No conclusions have been reached in the sessions except that the commission will ask for the creation of advisory committees by the groups interested to work with it in its investigation.

CHINESE GIRL JUMPS IN RIVER AND DROWNS; WHIPPED BY MOTHER

MANILA, Oct. 24.—Wing Ty, a Chinese girl 17 years old, committed suicide by jumping today, according to the police, when her mother spanked her for bobbing her hair and cutting her skirts to the length of a vogue among the flappers of America. The sight of her daughter, minus her hair and with her skirts of length akira, so enraged the mother that she administered a severe whipping with a leather strap. Wing Ty took her punishment and she jumped into the Pasig river.

CALL MEETING OF WAR TROPHY BOARD OCT. 30

AUSTIN, Oct. 24.—Adjutant General Barton today called a meeting of the Texas war trophy board to be held here October 30 at which time the work of distributing Texas trophies of the approximately 700,000 trophies captured during the world war will be discussed. Wayne Davis, former state commander of the American Legion, today was added to the board named recently by Governor Neff.

NO WORD RECEIVED FROM MOTOR SHIP "TRUXTON"

GALVESTON, Oct. 24.—Although no word has been received from the motor ship Truxton of the Snyder Hanna company, which left here October 18 from Frontera, Mexico, officials of the company expressed no fear today for the safety of the vessel or her crew of 14. Wire communication with Frontera was lost following the recent hurricane.

AUCTION OIL WELLS IN BRECKENRIDGE FIELD

BRECKENRIDGE, Oct. 24.—A downward trend in the price of oil wells was recorded when several wells were auctioned off here recently. One well which was auctioned off under the hammer of the city tax collector was sold for $93, the price including the rig and casing. The other wells auctioned off at the same time, four of which were either small or nearly dry holes, were sold for $258 and $200 respectively.

UNION APPLICATIONS FOR STATE BANK CHARTERS

AUSTIN, Oct. 24.—Fifteen representatives of financial interests at Marbury and Wiley appeared before the state banking board today for hearing on applications for state bank charters. Three groups of interests are seeking charters at Wiley. As a result of the conflicting interests, it appeared unlikely that the Wiley charter will be granted immediately.

Dr. L. D. Grafton Is Speaker Before University Lunch

"The Majesty of the Law," its loss of prestige in the mind of America was the subject chosen by Dr. L. D. Grafton of Austin, speaker at the University club's weekly luncheon today at the Y. W. C. A. Beginning with the purpose of law, Dr. Grafton pointed out that through many individuals sacrificed privileges through measures made necessary by circumstances, still there was some unnamed reward for them.

"A FOOL THERE WAS" IS AN INTERESTING PICTURE

"A Fool There Was," showing at the Strand for the first half of the week, is a picture out of the ordinary and one that holds interest. It is the story of the man who Taylor as the "Vampire" looks and acts the part, and Lewis Stone as the principal victim, plays the role of a man who is a vampire. The picture does not end in the usual "they lived happily afterwards" way, but carries to a tragic climax the fate of the man who forsaken his family and had been welcomed back by a loving and devoted wife.

The 'Man' in the Moon May Be a Real Person After All

WE DO not realize how big the moon is until an eclipse comes along, such as that of the other day, when the shadow of the lunar orb, thrown by the sun which it masked, darkened a strip 130 miles across the Indian Ocean and Australia.

The moon has a diameter of 2163 miles. The face it presents to us—for we never see the other side of it—is about the size of North America, but is much more accurately and completely mapped. What a pity that with so much available room, our satellite should be a hopeless desert devoid of animal or vegetable life!

But is it really so? That long-accepted belief is now questioned. It has even been confidently asserted by some astronomers of high reputation—notably by Prof. Pickering of Harvard, and Prof. Verrier of the Paris Observatory—that there is at least some planet life on the moon. Prof. Verrier has gone further and has said that animal life may exist there.

Prof. Verrier has made the interesting suggestion that conceivably human-like creatures inhabit the bowels of the moon, occupying caverns beneath its outer crust, which latter may be literally honeycombed with hollow places formed by huge bubbles of volcanic gases. There they might be kept sufficiently warm by volcanic heat; and it is permissible to imagine that there may be subterranean lakes to furnish water.

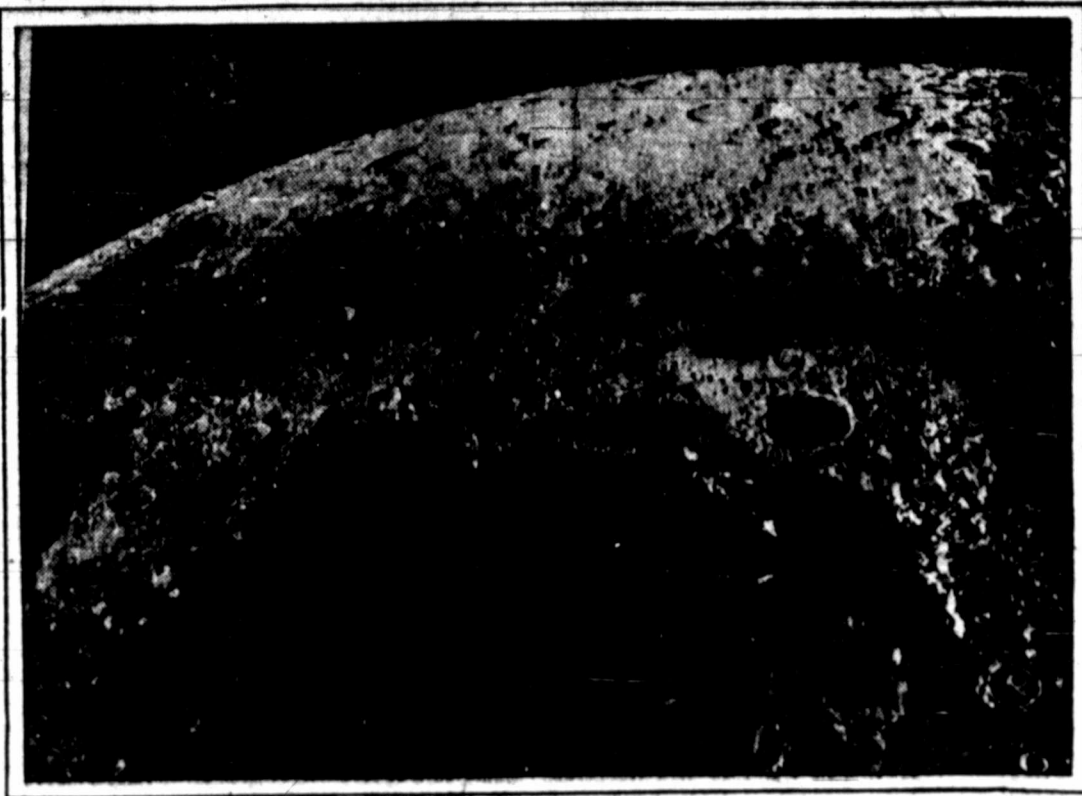

Prof. Pickering has said: "There is some volcanic heat on the moon, and, if any creatures could penetrate far enough into the interior, it is possible that a temperature high enough to sustain life might be found."

In one place there are positively known to be caverns—i. e., in the so-called Gulf of Rainbows, which is a deeply cleft fissure suggesting a likeness to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. There, in the face of a precipice three miles high, can be seen openings of huge caves which may possibly extend inward for miles.

AS WE observe with the naked eye the waxing and waning of the moon, what we really see is the dimming of day and later on the coming of night on the face of the orb that she turns toward the earth. The lunar day is two weeks long, and the night of equal length. Without an atmosphere to obstruct the passage of the sun's rays, and to prevent radiation of heat from her surface, the moon must be exposed to extremes of temperature. At night it might fall to several hundred degrees below zero, while in the daytime it might rise as high as 250 degrees Fahrenheit.

Obviously no human or other animal could endure such temperatures. But, supposing that there were people on the moon, what would they do in order to preserve existence? The only thing they could do (assuming that to be practicable) would be to seek refuge beneath the lunar crust, in case there was sufficient subterranean heat to keep them warm, with a water supply available.

In declaring the moon to be uninhabited we have been accustomed to base our arguments upon conditions as they are found on the earth. But conditions on the moon are wholly different. It seems to us a matter of necessity that human or human-like creatures should dwell on the surface of a planet; but to inhabitants of the moon, if there are any, it might seem equally a matter of course to maintain a subterranean existence.

One of the great plains (formerly supposed to be seas) on the moon

One might imagine whole cities built in the hollows of the lunar mountains, where, thanks to the depth and to volcanic heat, there would be no variation of temperature from day to night. In Bulwer Lytton's famous novel, "The Coming Race," a large population is described as occupying for residential purposes a region of the earth's interior, under conditions much like those here suggested, artificial means of illumination being employed to take the place of sunlight.

Two questions naturally suggest themselves: How could a sub-surface population of the moon obtain food to eat? And, inasmuch as the satellite possesses no atmosphere worth mentioning, how would they get air to breathe? As for the latter point, it is conceivable that the lunar creatures might be so modified in a physiologic sense as to be able to get along without air, or with very little of it. Their food might be supplied by crops of edible fungi, which grow luxuriantly in caves.

Some of the craters on the moon have, as observed through the telescope, a brilliant white lining, and from them white streaks radiate in all directions in perfectly straight lines. Noteworthy in this respect is the crater called Copernicus, which, fifty-five miles in diameter, is the most striking object on the face of the lunar orb, the bright streaks which radiate from it extending for hundreds of miles over the surface. Another remarkable crater, Tycho (near the southern pole), located in the midst of a confusion of wild and magnificent scenery, is the center of a similar system of radiating white streaks.

These streaks were long regarded as one of the mysteries of the moon. It was thought that they might be cracks through which lava had welled up from the interior. But, if so, why their whiteness? There seems to be not much doubt that they really are cracks; but Prof. Pickering has expressed a belief that they are clefts filled with snow, which, when the sun is high, gleams brightly.

In the northern region of the moon, on the coastline of the great "lunar sea" called Mare Imbrium, is a beautiful walled plain known as Plato. Its floor is almost perfectly flat, oval in shape, sixty miles in its greater diameter, and surrounded by a lofty ring of mountains. Over it are scattered many small craters marked by white patches which wax and wane as the sun rises and sets. This phenomenon is thought to be due to emission of volcanic steam from the craters and the formation of snow by condensation of the steam. When the face of the moon is warmed by the rays of the sun, the snow evaporates, forming clouds which, unable to rise high in the thin air, cling close to the ground.

According to Pickering, the walled plain of Plato is "a volcanic area more active than any of similar size on the earth." This statement taken by itself has a fascinating interest. But like conditions are alleged to account for similar phenomena noticed elsewhere on the lunar surface, the clouds of water-vapor, even while the sun is shining brightly upon the face of the moon, producing oftentimes a hazy effect that makes observation difficult.

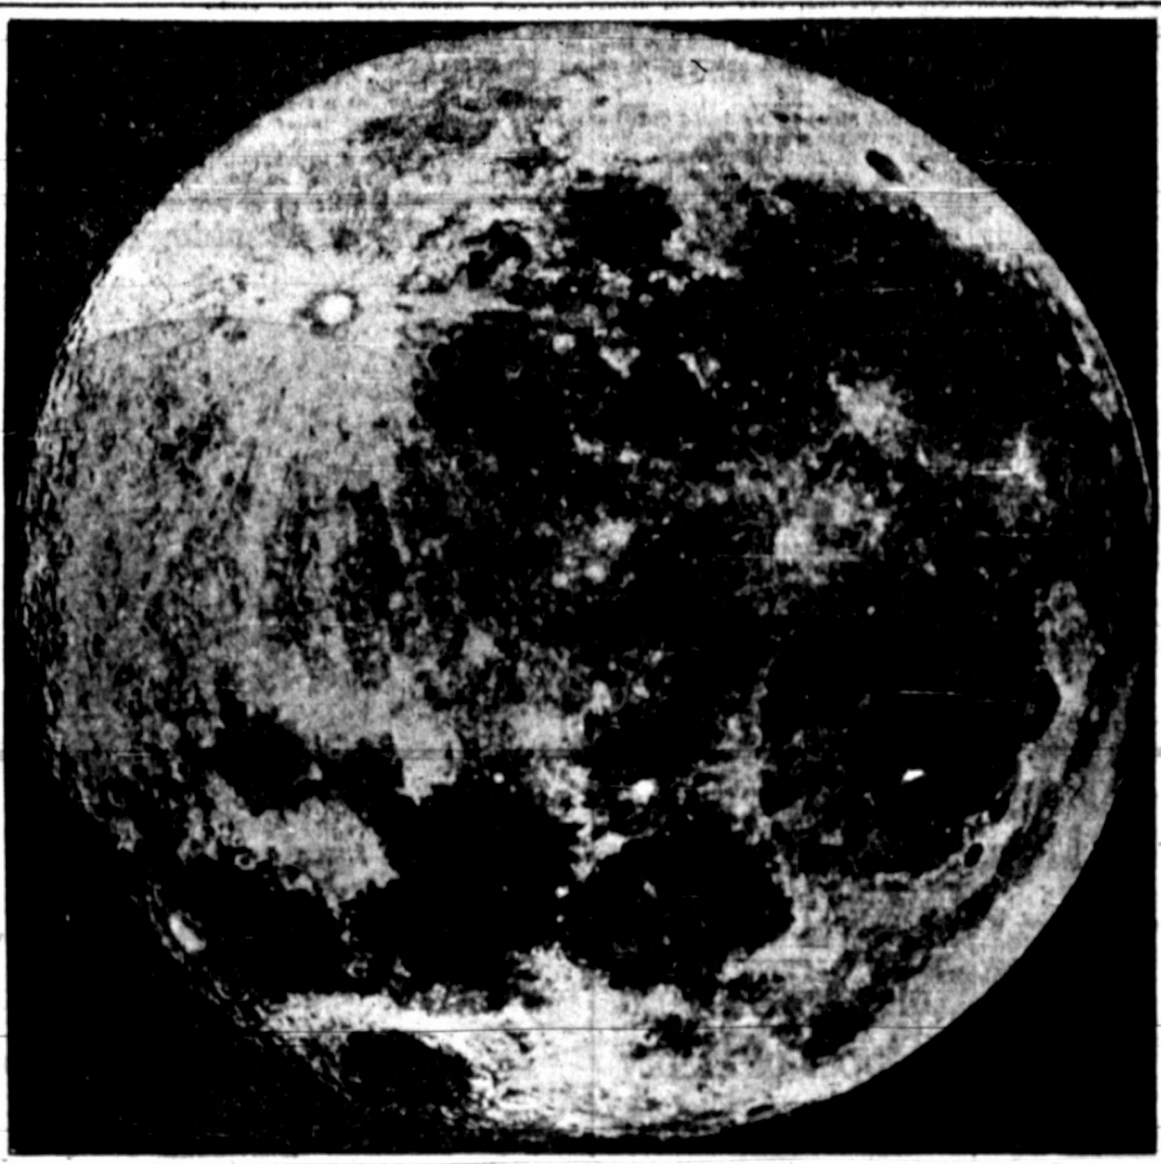

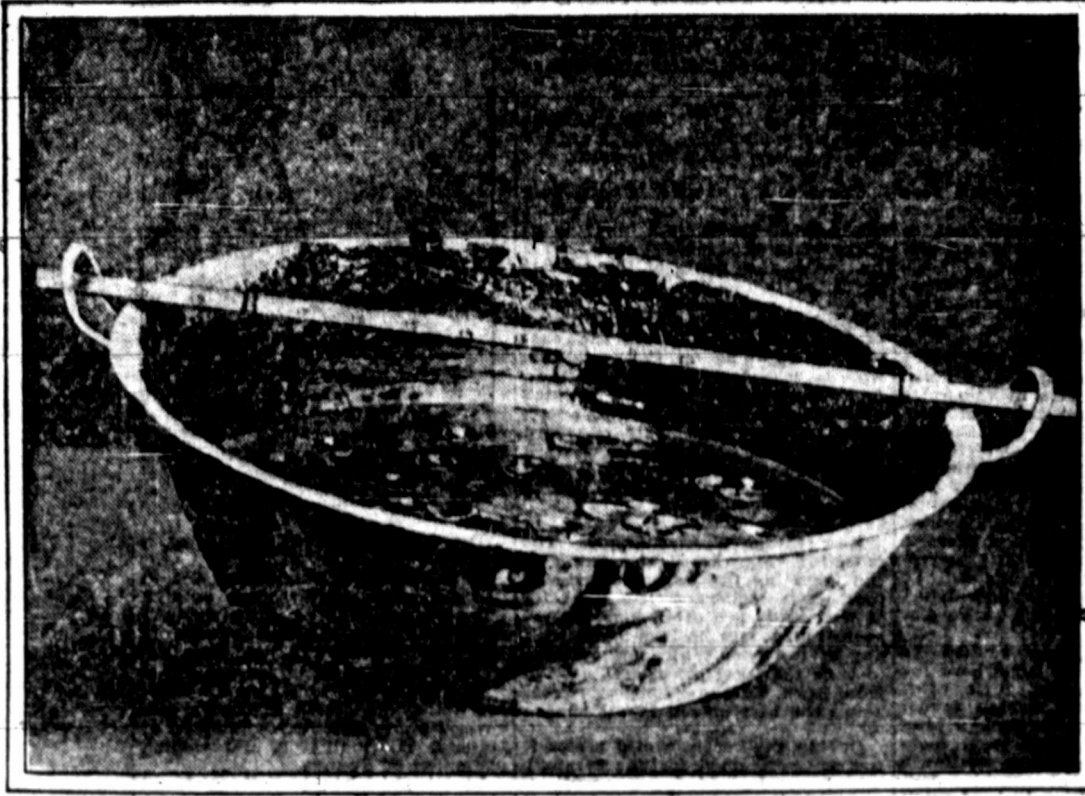

IF THIS theory be correct, the whiteness of the interior of some of the craters may be supposed to be due to snow. According to Pickering, enough water-vapor rises to develop plant life on the slopes. As viewed through the telescope, a vegetation springs up hastily when the sun has risen, flourishes, and fades in the two weeks of the lunar day. It first appears to the observer as a rapid darkening in spots and craters and in deep chasms in the sides of the surrounding mountains. In the crater called Eratosthenes this is clearly shown that the markings can be photographed.

It is thought likely that water or water-vapor may issue from the radiating cracks, permeating through the soil and affording support for plant life. Our deserts in Arizona, New Mexico and Southern California have rivers whose beds during most of the year are absolutely dry; but if one digs down into the sand six inches or a foot, a little puddle of water will quickly form in the hole. All along these dry streams there is vegetation, and it is thought that on the moon there may be at least a sparse vegetation along sunken watercourses.

The large craters scattered over most parts of the visible face of the moon are mostly saucer-shaped amphitheatres ringed by lofty mountains. Commonly there rises from the center a pinnacle-like peak to a great height. This formation is another lunar puzzle; but it is thought that the central cone, which may be thousands of miles high, is probably a mountain of debris set up by a renewed activity of the volcano on a smaller scale—disregard, that is to say, directly from the mouth of the original volcanic pipe leading down into the body of the moon.

THIS explanation does not appear wholly satisfactory, but it is the most plausible that has been offered. Sprinkled over the floor of the great walled plain called Plato are many such cone-shaped mountains, and a most remarkable thing to be considered in this case is that their number seems to be constantly varying. Sometimes there are more of them, and sometimes fewer; new ones come and old ones disappear. Why? There is no way to account for it, apparently, unless it is to be supposed that volcanic disturbances are still going on.

The idea, then, is that there is snow in the craters—or at least in some of them, which are still active—and in the radiating cracks (the white streaks above mentioned), formed by condensation of volcanic steam. When the sun has risen, and the fiercely hot two-week lunar day (corresponding to our summer) begins, the snow melts. A development of plant life is thereby made possible. But the interesting point is the seemingly proved fact that there is heat in the moon, and plenty of it. Our satellite is not so dead as she looks.

The dark spots are the vast level floors called "seas" Above—Experimental "craters" made by dropping clay pellets into a pan of mud

NEARLY half of the visible surface of the moon is occupied by flat areas of a grayish-slaty tint, some of them covering thousands of square miles, which early astronomers, lacking our opportunities of telescopic observation, supposed to be seas. They lie lower than the general lunar surface, and, if enough water were poured upon the latter, it would fill these basins, converting them into veritable seas. It is thought entirely possible that once upon a time they may have contained water which has been absorbed into the interior.

They are still called "seas," merely for the sake of a name, the largest of them being Oceanus Procellarum, which covers an area about equal to that of European Russia on the old maps. More striking to the eye, however, is the Mare Crisium. It needs but little effort of the imagination to fill that great hollow with water, surrounded as it is by lofty cliffs against which through long ages waves may have hurled themselves.

To be distinguished from the craters as features of the lunar landscape are the walled plains, of which one example, Plato, has already been mentioned. Even more remarkable is Prometheus, which covers an area considerably larger than the State of Connecticut. Situated near the center of the face which the moon presents to us, it is the last of a chain of four magnificent walled plains which lie along the coast of the darkest of lunar seas, the Mare Nubium. Almost circular in outline, its floor is so vast that an observer placed in the middle of it would see a boundless horizon stretching away from him on all sides. He would not realize that the plain was surrounded by a circle of lofty mountains, some of them two miles high.

The most important range of mountains on the moon is the lunar Apennines, some of its peaks reaching an altitude of 18,000 feet, which stretches 400 miles along the shores of the Mare Imbrium. Lying out in the latter "sea" are three splendid ring-shaped craters, the largest of which, Aris-tillus is thirty-four miles in diameter. The encircling rampart of Aristillus is more than two miles higher than the surrounding territory, while its interior is depressed 3000 feet below the general lunar surface. It is a typical lunar crater, adorned by a lofty mountain peak ascending from its center.

The vast flat areas which cover so nearly half of the surface of the moon are so smooth, though wrinkled to some extent in parts, that early astronomers, supposing them to be water, bestowed upon them such names as Sea of Tranquillity and Sea of Serenity. They are now believed to be regions which in past ages were overflowed by molten lava. To confirm this idea, one may see the rims of craters projecting here and there above the submerging material.

THE belief that the craters on the moon are of volcanic origin is not undisputed. There are some astronomers and physicists who dissent that notion entirely, contending that the craters are not really craters at all, but scars made by the impact of celestial bodies which in earlier ages bombarded the lunar orb. This is what is known as the "moonlets" theory, and it possesses a great deal of picturesque interest.

The theory is that once upon a time the earth was surrounded by a ring of meteoric matter, as the planet Saturn is today. The pieces of meteoric matter had a tendency to fall together and coalesce, forming thousands of moonlets of various sizes. One of them, perhaps through accidental circumstances, grew much larger than any of the rest. It was the nucleus of our lunar satellite, and by its attraction eventually gathered to itself all the other little moons.

It was thus subjected to a tremendous bombardment. Every now and then a moonlet would strike it, and the little moon, if of sufficient size, would make a great circular dent, outlined by a rim of material forced upward by the impact. Thus in the case of the so-called crater Archimedes the hole made was fifty miles in diameter, and a mountain ring was uplifted around it to a height of nearly two miles.

One should remember that we are here considering cosmic forces. Take a spherical projectile thirty or forty miles in diameter, moving at a rate of forty-five miles a second (the average speed of an ordinary meteor or "shooting star"), and, if it hit something, the result must be catastrophic.

Advocates of this theory assert that the Mare Imbrium was struck by a moonlet at least eighty miles in diameter. Coming through the void of space, it was, of course, a cold body, but, at the instant of impact, the tremendous energy that gave speed to its flight was suddenly converted into heat, so that, partly melted by the shock, it poured a deluge of material, liquid, pasty and solid, in all directions, flooding and to a great extent submerging one-fourth of the visible face of the moon. Toward the southwest the fiery flood reached for a distance of nearly 1000 miles.

It was an enormous catastrophe. Many of the old "craters"—scars of previous minor happenings of the same kind—were obliterated. Fragments of the giant moonlet, after flying more than 1000 miles, scored out of the lunar surface valleys comparable in magnitude to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. One of these furrows, observable today, is 187 miles long, ten to twenty-five miles broad, and 1000 feet in maximum depth.

The orb that worked this havoc may have been the largest survivor of the original flock of moons. Smaller ones, however, fell afterward, as is shown by fresher scars—i. e., "craters"—scattered over the same area. The whole history of the cataclysm, it is claimed, can be plainly read with the telescope.

THE late Prof. Grove K. Gilbert, who was the originator of the theory, found that clay balls thrown at a target of moist clay made similar crater-like holes in the latter. Other experiments he tried with clay pellets which he dropped into a pan of thick mud. Again in this case the "craters" produced were similar in appearance to those on the moon.

Said Prof. Gilbert: "The lunar craters are wonderfully much alike. They do not resemble volcanic craters. Small ones often occur in parts of large ones; frequently they overlap, the newer ones partly effecting the older ones. These and other observed conditions are perfectly explainable by the theory of bombardment by moonlets, but they do not respond to explanation by the volcanic theory."

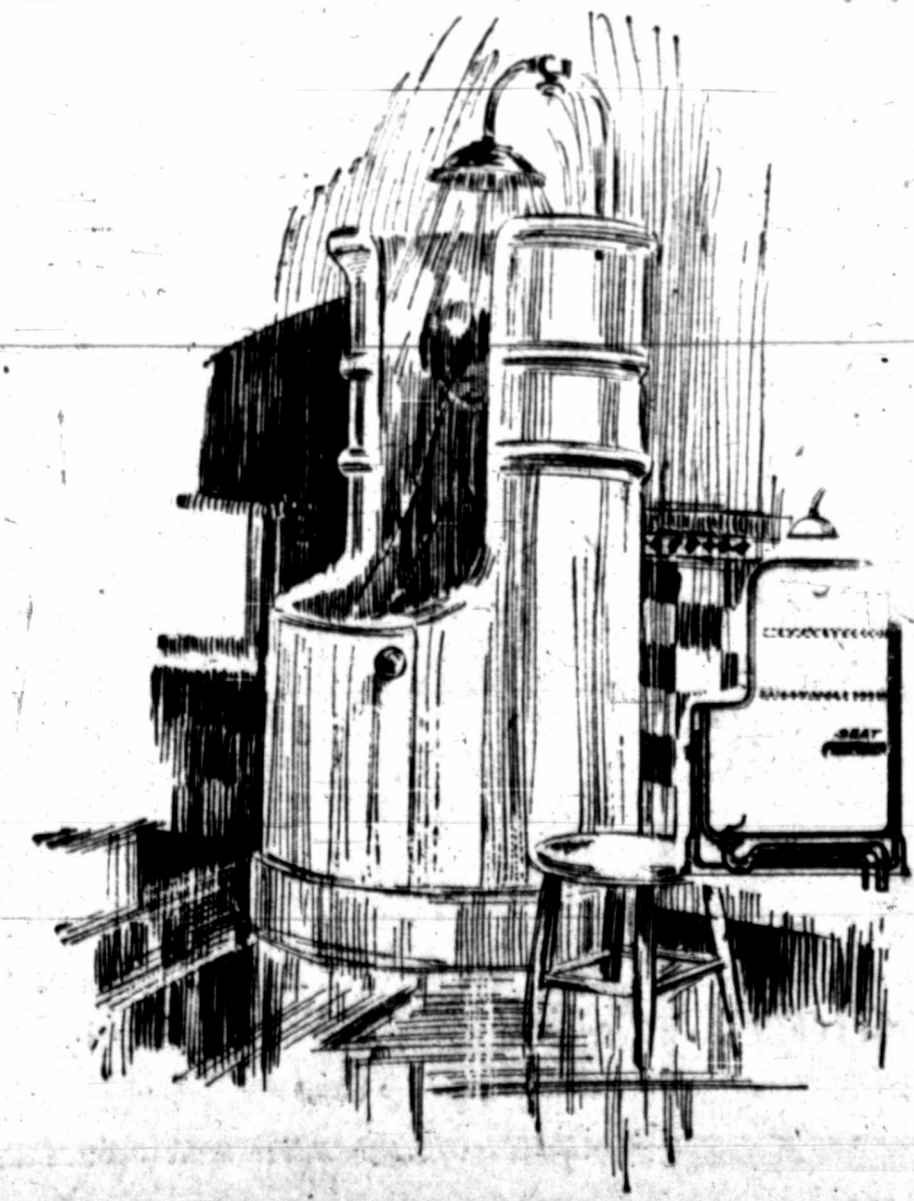

An Upright Bathtub

THE true meaning of the expression "independent as a hog on ice" is not understood by most people. The best circumstance said, "If I can't stand up I can sit down."

That was why he felt independent. And the same idea applies in a way to a contrivance invented by Thomas J. Swift, of Minneapolis. It is a bathtub so constructed that the user enjoys the salutatory performance in a seated posture.

In these days, when every square foot of space in a flat is so valuable, a bathtub of this pattern would seem to be especially desirable. It is built vertically, so to speak, instead of horizontally, and the bather, simply stepping into it over the front (the upper part of which is open for the purpose), reposes himself upon the porcelain seat at the rear.

For a shower from overhead he has only to jerk a handle.

TIMES DAILY MARKETS

COTTON MARKET

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Much higher cables than expected from Liverpool encouraged a renewal of more or less general buying at the opening of the cotton market here today.

The advance met a great deal of realizing, which caused some irregularity after the call with December raising off to 21 1/2, or about 18 points from the last.

Realizing was heavy during the first hour and it was estimated that between 40,000 and 50,000 bales were sold on the decline from 22 1/2 to 23 1/2 for December contracts.

October was relatively easy, selling off to 22 1/2 or about 15 points net lower owing to the circulation of notices for about 8,000 bales.

Offerings of later month paper off however, and the general market firming up on re-buying and continued trade buying.

By mid-day December had advanced to 23 1/2, or within the range of early high level and 28 points above yesterday's closing.

Realizing was held in check by continued realizing during the early afternoon but towards 2 o'clock offerings were smaller and the market shut up into new higher grounds on bullish southern spot, advice on the part of general commission house buying.

December closed up to 24 1/2 with active months 47 to 58 points net higher.

New Orleans Cotton. NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—Much better English prices than our market reporting more business doing in several directions, caused the price to rise to 26 points around the opening of the cotton market here today.

At the advance and a reaction almost immediately occurred. At the close of the first half hour the net gains were reduced to only seven to eight points.

Liquidation was the keynote of the trading during the greater part of the morning and at one stage it had the most active months 2 to 3 points under the close of yesterday.

December standing at 23 1/2. Market comment that spot houses were absorbing a large volume of December contracts made for a steadier tone and at 11 o'clock December was back up to 23 1/2.

Decided strength developed and buying became general, forcing prices to new high levels for the season. In the trading up to 1:30 o'clock December rose to 24 1/2, at which price the active positions were at net advances of 45 to 46 points.

Texas Spot Cotton. Dallas, Oct. 24.—Cotton 22 1/2; Houston 22 1/2; Galveston 22 1/2.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Unsettled over European financial conditions led to a sharp decline in the wheat market today toward the end of the board of trade session.

Trading operations between Chicago and Winnipeg counted also as a depressing factor here. The close was unsettled at 10 to 12c net.

STOCKS AND FINANCIAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Irregular price movements took place at the opening of today's stock market with a continuation of yesterday's selling of motor, equipment and domestic oil shares.

Foreign oil, food, merchandising and tobacco shares improved in tone. One thousand shares of Mexican Petroleum were sold at the opening at 22 1/2, up 5 1/2 and a new high record for the year.

The Pan-American shares moved up more than 23 points each on overnight announcement of extra dividend distributions. Mexican Petroleum led back to 20 1/2 in the first half hour and Pan-American A and B reacted in sympathy.

Common and preferred were pushed up one and three points respectively and American Tobacco advanced 1 1/2 points. Other strong spots were Royal Dutch, N. Y., and Standard Oil of N. Y.

A NEW CHAIN TIRE STORE

We have secured the franchise for an affiliated tire store for Wichita Falls. The people of this city and the surrounding territory should congratulate themselves on the fact that they will have the opportunity of purchasing tires and tubes at practically wholesale prices. This store is one of the many unit stores operating throughout the entire southwest handling tires and tubes through the chain stores. We handle nothing but first class merchandise and in many cases buy the entire output of a factory, resulting in the low prices quoted below.

GUARANTEE: All tires and tubes purchased through our stores carry the standard form of guaranty, that is, guaranteed to be free from defects in both material and workmanship. The same guaranty carried by all of the tire manufacturers.

Table with columns: Our Policies, Prices (6000 Miles, 8000 Miles, 10,000 Miles), TUBES, Mail Orders. Lists various tire models like ENSIGN FABRIC, ECLIPSE FABRIC, and Eclipse Cords with their respective prices.

Gasoline and Gas Line, Water Pipes and Electric Wires Feeding Jumpers.

Special Officer W. W. Belcher, employed by one of the oil companies in the northwest fields, and Officer Frank Watkins of Burkburnett, have uncovered a wholesale theft of raw materials in the field...

The fact remained, however, that their product showed an exceedingly large amount of shrinkage in the short transit through the pipes. When the "leak" was discovered it was found that it was a leak that was not an easy matter to detect.

The connection ran down to a point 20 feet underneath the surface of the ground and then turned upward into a dry well in the bottom of the well a large galvanized iron tank had been placed and it was filled with water.

A connection had also been made in the neighborhood of the gasoline jumper into a water line and water was being sold to private consumers.

Can you build a brick house without bricks?

If a man told you he was going to build a brick house without using any bricks, you'd think something was wrong with him, wouldn't you?

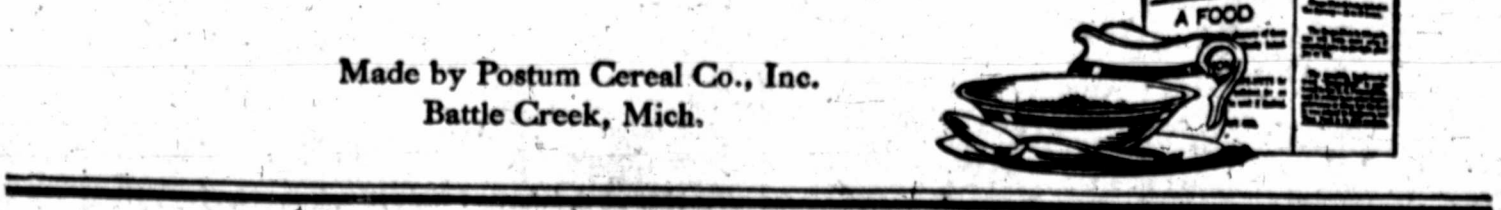

Well, then, what about the man or woman who plans to build a sturdy human body but neglects to eat the kind of food that builds that kind of body?

Many "refined" and denatured foods are lacking in the mineral elements which the body requires—especially for bones, nerves and teeth.

You do get the right mineral elements in Grape-Nuts—the delicious cereal food made from whole wheat flour and malted barley.

Every bit of the nutrition which Nature puts into the grains is retained in making Grape-Nuts. Lime phosphates, iron, magnesium, potassium—are all there. And then, too, there's that wonderful flavor and crispness that makes eating a joy.

Try Grape-Nuts with cream or milk for breakfast or lunch tomorrow, and see if you haven't been missing an unusually delicious and sustaining food. Sold wherever good food is sold or served.
