

UNTERMYER SCORES ATTORNEY GENERAL AND REPUBLICANS

FORECAST COMPLETE BREAKDOWN IN ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

PROGRESSIVE MOVEMENT IS FIRST HOPEFUL SIGN

Says Government is in Hands of Profiteers and Other Privileged Interests.

By United Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—"A complete breakdown in the administration of justice" in the United States is approaching, Attorney General D. H. Clegg, New York attorney, declared in a speech to the progressive conference here tonight, in which he scathingly attacked Attorney General Daugherty. Untermyer also assailed the leaders of the republican party as "short-sighted reactionaries" and asserted that the progressive movement as embodied in today's conference is the first hopeful sign since the government has been thrown into involuntary liquidation with the trusts, corporations, war and peace profiteers and other privileged and predatory interests administering its affairs.

Untermyer's address was the principal one delivered at a dinner which closed an all day conference of progressive leaders and others gathered to discuss the work of the people's legislative service, an organization formed two years ago by progressives in congress. "I have come to sound a note of warning," said Untermyer, "against what I regard as the most serious breakdown in the administration of justice. We are rapidly drifting toward the catastrophe which was predicted when, instead of selecting a great lawyer for attorney general a man of mediocre attainments was named. The result is a government in the hands of profiteers, without learning or training as a lawyer and whose life long environment and practical work had been that of a legislative lobbyist and nothing more. If, as I insist, the highest test of the fitness of a government is the administration of justice, we have today reached the lowest possible depths of humiliation to which any civilized country has sunk in recent years."

MAN WHO SOLD LIFE GIVING GLANDS IS HELD FOR VAGRANCY

SEATTLE, Dec. 2.—George Zogias, 21, told a remarkable story of having sold his life-giving glands from his body to a wealthy Seattle ship builder for $1,000 when brought before police court today on a charge of vagrancy.

Goat glands were substituted for those taken from him, he added, but said they had not proved a success. He said he met the Seattle man in Phoenix, Ariz., last spring and there arranged for the transfer of vital organs. He said he then went to Delmar, Cal., where a physician performed the operation at an exclusive hotel.

He was then given $5,000 and transportation to Australia as reward for his sacrifice. Zogias exhibited a paper, purporting to be an agreement between him and the wealthy Seattle man for the performance of the operation.

"OH, OH, CINDY" HAS SECOND AND FINAL PERFORMANCE

The second and final night of "Oh, Oh, Cindy," musical comedy staged under the auspices of the high school senior class, was as successful, if not more so, than that of Friday evening. Another full house witnessed the performance and the play kept in an uproar of laughter, while the song and dance hits were highly applauded.

On Saturday all the tickets for the Saturday night show were sold. Although it is not known how much was taken in for the two nights, it is thought that the Coyote production was a financial success.

LEADER OF OLDEST BAND OF SMUGGLERS ON BORDER KILLED

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, Dec. 2.—The chief of the oldest and most feared band of smugglers on the Texas-Mexican border was killed and part of his band captured in a running gun battle on the Mexican side of the border near Nuevo Laredo Friday night, according to a dispatch to Consul General Enrique D. Ruiz in San Antonio. Martiñago Villarreal, leader, shot several times, Old Mexican guards and customs officers, just before he died, that he had been operating for 18 years and had killed 14 customs guards in that period. Shortly after falling of his exploits he died. In the band that the guards fired into were 19 smugglers. They were crossing the river with horses laden with soap when they were detected by three Mexican customs guards. In the battle which followed on the banks of the river three of the smugglers were killed. In addition to the leader, who was fatally shot six of the smugglers escaped through the brush into the hills. None of the guards were wounded here. Although Villarreal and his band have been known to exist all these years, customs officers on either side of the border have never been able to catch them. With the death of Villarreal and capture of part of his band it is believed that the operations will cease. The battle took place almost across the river from Laredo.

DISPUTE WITH KELLER OVER THE PROCEDURE

Protest Keller's Plan For Month's Postponement to Prepare Case.

By LAURENCE M. BENEDICT, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Recommendation by the house judiciary committee that the impeachment proceedings brought by Representative Keller, republican, Minnesota, against Attorney General Daugherty, be dropped for lack of substantial evidence was forecast for the committee engaged in a dispute with Keller over the procedure to be followed. Announcement by Chairman Volstead that the committee will move as soon as possible, probably Monday, to consider starting hearings, was followed by a statement from Keller to the effect that he would refuse to appear and give testimony until the committee had received from the house authority to subpoena witnesses and administer the oath. Keller's declaration was regarded as making it very likely that the committee will report to the house that the impeachment resolution does not merit further consideration. The republicans on the committee who are in the majority by a vote of 10-9, declared that they were satisfied with Keller's request for another month's postponement to give him more time to prepare his case. "In my opinion," declared Volstead, "the impeachment should have been dropped long ago."

Governor Suggests Five Per Cent Tax On Oil for Schools

CONCLUSIONS OF THE GOVERNOR.

First—The state must recognize education as a vital function of the government.

Second—The state make a thorough, scientific, impartial survey of our entire educational life.

Third—Make the state the big unit of the educational system with a strong, active, aggressive state board of education as the administrative head.

Fourth—Invest not less than $40 in every child in the state in scholastic age.

Fifth—Provide nine months of school each year for every child in Texas.

Sixth—Tap in Texas new sources of revenue in order to get money with which to pay our educational bill.

Seventh—Enact a law making a safer, wiser and more economic method of buying, distributing and using free text books.

Eighth—Make the state scholastic status as accurately and honestly as possible.

Ninth—Make scholastic apportionment on the basis of actual attendance at school.

Tenth—Take up the slack, stop the leaks, and eliminate the waste and duplication in our educational system.

Eleventh—Teach the boys and girls of the state some of the practical things of life, and impart the great principle that the head of honest sweat is king of men "for a" that and for a "that."

HOUSTON, TEXAS, Dec. 2.—Gov. Pat M. Neff spoke before the state teacher's association at Houston Friday night. His address followed: Teachers, and friends of education:

In the preparation of this address, I selected both a text and a subject. The text is found in the Book of Books, and is couched in these few words: "People perish for lack of knowledge." My subject is found in my own earnest desire to know the truth, and is expressed in this query: "Is Texas really in the market for an adequate educational system?" It is as true now as in biblical days that people perish for lack of knowledge. The Bible at no time or place commands ignorance. It says knowledge is "better than rubies," "better than gold," "better than choice silver," and finally declares that "those who have knowledge inherit substance, and have their treasures filled." Ignorance is dangerous, damaging, and degrading. There can be no tomorrow of greatness to any people unless the builders of today provide for the education of the youth of the land. The world is the apple with statistics by which the truth of that statement can be proven with mathematical accuracy. I shall not reflect on this intangible by presenting these statistics.

Early Educational Ideas.

As a native son of Texas, I am happy in the thought that our forefathers wrote the constitution of their independence that they would not live under a government that did not make ample provision for the education of its boys and girls. They declared that "the cultivated mind was the guardian genius of democracy, and that knowledge was the only security that free man desired." Sam Houston said, "The diffusion of knowledge among the people is essential for the preservation of government." "The wealth of this country shall educate the children of this country," proclaimed even the fathers of the Texas republic. In the dream of our early civilization, far-seeing patriots not only made generous provision for the support of the public schools, but projected the foundation for a "university of the first class."

Function of Government.

It is clearly seen that the early pleasure of our forefathers was the public education as a vital function of the state government. With the development of modern democracy, consciousness of the state to maintain and develop education, has been steadily growing. Educational thinkers and philosophic statesmen have long since agreed that education is not only a function of the government, but its most important constitutional obligation. No government is safe whose people are uneducated. Education is an investment that builds up the state; ignorance is a tax that destroys it. Ignorance is the prolific mother of crime. Criminals come mostly from the ranks of the uneducated.

Every child in Texas, from the poorest to the richest, is entitled to a fair education. Not only is the child entitled to it, but the state must see that the child has the cost of this education is a proper and legitimate charge against the public treasury. It will cost the state more to let the child alone, than it will cost to educate it. This responsibility cannot be left solely to local communities. Some localities are poor in purse and some are poor in brains; to each of these, as well as to all others, the strong and far-reaching arm of the state should lend a helping hand. It is the conviction that the state is primarily responsible for the education of the youth of the land, I come on this occasion to this great gathering of teachers, the vanguard in the battles of peace, to think out loud with you in an earnest effort to ascertain whether or not Texas is really in the market to purchase for this state an adequate educational system.

An Adequate School System.

As to what school system, many suggestions can be easily made and theories advanced. Certainly, at this time Texas has no such system. We are graded in school efficiency, 34th from the top among the states of the union. This being true, whatever may be our merit, it is plain that we have many weak points. The first thing to do, it seems to me, would be to determine what are our elements of strength and what are our elements of weakness. To ascertain this it will be necessary to have a thorough, scientific, impartial survey made of our entire educational life. In advance of this information a discussion of defects must necessarily be of a general nature. Some of our defects, however, are fundamental. That our system of financial support should be altered and strengthened, is clear. That we should have to represent the state as a big unit in the administrative of our educational system, a strong state board of education, comprised of men and women representing our best educational thought, with the highest business ability, there can be no question. With the information furnished to this board by the survey committee, the entire educational life of Texas should be studied to the one high end that the administration of education in our state may be simplified, unified, harmonized, and invigorated from top to bottom. This state board of education ought to be able to take up the slack, stop the leaks, and eliminate the waste and duplication in our entire educational system. They should be able to put on the market in this state an adequate educational system. By an adequate school system is meant a high grade school, teacher in a comfortable, well-equipped school building, whether that school building be at the forks of the road or for tax purposes, untapped and unused. Let us first illustrate our oil production. We are now, and have been for some years, producing approximately 10,000,000 barrels of oil a month in Texas. This oil is worth, except when the legislature is in session, about $1.50 a barrel. That will aggregate in a year $180,000,000 worth of oil. Merely, that oil belongs to Texas and she ought never to have relinquished her legal rights to it. These wells are rapidly draining Texas dry. Ought not the state at least, as a minimum, get five per cent of this stream of gold flowing out of Texas? This within itself will produce a revenue for the state, $9,000,000 a year. Now for one or two small illustrations: The people of Texas are spending annually for amusement, $30,000,000; for chewing gum, $1,000,000. This money goes mostly into the fat purses of institutions out of the state. They do business in the state, protected by the state laws, and the state ought to help, in a substantial way, support the state. "Let us get the money where it is, and spend it on the children where they are."

Must Pay for School System.

If Texas is honestly in the market for this adequate educational system, and this system is perfect, and put on the market, then Texas money must pay the bill. Texas cannot have an adequate educational system without paying for it. It will cost money—real money—the coin of the realm. It has been conservatively estimated by scholarly statisticians and educational engineers, that the state can purchase an adequate educational system by investing annually $60 in each of her scholastic students. California spends $60 per elementary child, $90 per high school child and $100 per college and college pupil. We are able to do what California does. Her resources are not as great as ours.

Suppose, however, we see if we can buy a good school system for $30 a child. Now if we make that investment, I believe the state should pay half of that and the local units the other half. Suppose we take a look into the state treasury and see what the state is doing. Now for the year ending August 31, 1922, there came into the state treasury from all sources $28,451,149. Out of this amount the state paid for higher education, that is, for institutions not classed as a part of the common school system, $8,104,131. During this year the state paid out for the operating expenses of our public free school system, $18,643,522. If we had 1,300,000 students, the state spent last year per child to educate it, the sum of approximately $14. This was approximately $10 short per child on the part of the state from the amount necessary to buy for that child an adequate school system. In justice to the state, however, it is proper to say that the $28,451,149 collected by the state from the public treasury, $18,168,714 was spent by the state for education. This left in the state treasury for all other purposes, $9,792,435. From this amount $1,113,205 was spent in the maintenance of our elementary institutions, and the Confederate homes. To this sum we add $1,473,770 for the operating expenses of the courts of the state, which leaves a balance in the public treasury of $11,168,714 with which to meet the expense of the entire executive and administrative departments. This amount was insufficient and the result is reflected in the present deficiencies of revenue in our state treasury. It can be clearly seen from these figures that nearly all the money, comparatively speaking, paid into the public treasury goes for education and for support of the elementary institutions of the state. The question might here be raised as to whether or not we, with our present half-baked system of education, are now getting a dollar's worth of education for every dollar's worth of money spent.

on university hill, with its doors wherever these institutions were swinging wide to the boys and girls of Texas, for at least nine months in the year.

The Rural Schools.

In working out an adequate school system, the rural schools of the state should not be overlooked. Under the present system, but a small per cent of rural children ever enter a high school. Our country schools are the greatest shame of the masses. We must build up our common schools; this is urgent and imperative. Our institutions of higher learning should be adequately equipped for the benefit of the fortunate few, but our rural schools should be generously supported for the democratic many. The country child should have as good school as the city youth. It has been wisely said: "If the rural schools fail, rural civilization fails; if rural civilization fails, American civilization fails."

Texas should by the best school system there is on the market. We should have the best. The best is not too good. It is to our everlasting shame that the average boy and girl in Texas does not have an equal educational opportunity with the boys and girls of other states. If this statement is true, and no one questions it, then to every man's good right hand his sword should leap to fight for equal rights. In this conflict for equal rights for the children of Texas, I am ready to lead or follow. Wealth untold is here at our state in the union is richer in actual or potential wealth. Our property valuation aggregates $10,000,000,000. First in territory, first in stock, first in agriculture, first in oil, first in cotton, and 14th in education. If as citizens of a state so full and so furnished, following pursuits so pleasant and so profitable, circumstances with incentives so inspiring and so invigorating, we falter and fail in providing an adequate educational system for the boys and girls of the state, then we prove ourselves the unworthy descendants of illustrious sires. Let us balance our books with our boys, and lay our gold by the side of our girls, and challenge the world to produce a higher, nobler, or better educated citizenship than is found where falls the light of the Lone Star.

Find New Sources of Revenue.

I am not in favor, however, of buying any kind of a school system for Texas. In fact, I am not in favor of buying anything, at any time, from anybody, unless the money can be had with which to pay for it. If we are to have an adequate educational system in Texas, provision must be made for its support. In this connection, candor prompts me to say that I am opposed at this time under present conditions, to raising the tax rate on the homes and the lands of this state. Let us tap new sources of revenue. Wealth exceeding taxation can be seen on every hand. For illustration only, I mention a few familiar commodities. Between these two extremes of big enterprises and small institutions, we have picturesque offers of boundless wealth.

In this connection, candor prompts me to say that I am opposed at this time under present conditions, to raising the tax rate on the homes and the lands of this state. Let us tap new sources of revenue. Wealth exceeding taxation can be seen on every hand. For illustration only, I mention a few familiar commodities. Between these two extremes of big enterprises and small institutions, we have picturesque offers of boundless wealth.

The Rural Schools.

In working out an adequate school system, the rural schools of the state should not be overlooked. Under the present system, but a small per cent of rural children ever enter a high school. Our country schools are the greatest shame of the masses. We must build up our common schools; this is urgent and imperative. Our institutions of higher learning should be adequately equipped for the benefit of the fortunate few, but our rural schools should be generously supported for the democratic many. The country child should have as good school as the city youth. It has been wisely said: "If the rural schools fail, rural civilization fails; if rural civilization fails, American civilization fails."

Texas should by the best school system there is on the market. We should have the best. The best is not too good. It is to our everlasting shame that the average boy and girl in Texas does not have an equal educational opportunity with the boys and girls of other states. If this statement is true, and no one questions it, then to every man's good right hand his sword should leap to fight for equal rights. In this conflict for equal rights for the children of Texas, I am ready to lead or follow. Wealth untold is here at our state in the union is richer in actual or potential wealth. Our property valuation aggregates $10,000,000,000. First in territory, first in stock, first in agriculture, first in oil, first in cotton, and 14th in education. If as citizens of a state so full and so furnished, following pursuits so pleasant and so profitable, circumstances with incentives so inspiring and so invigorating, we falter and fail in providing an adequate educational system for the boys and girls of the state, then we prove ourselves the unworthy descendants of illustrious sires. Let us balance our books with our boys, and lay our gold by the side of our girls, and challenge the world to produce a higher, nobler, or better educated citizenship than is found where falls the light of the Lone Star.

Find New Sources of Revenue.

I am not in favor, however, of buying any kind of a school system for Texas. In fact, I am not in favor of buying anything, at any time, from anybody, unless the money can be had with which to pay for it. If we are to have an adequate educational system in Texas, provision must be made for its support. In this connection, candor prompts me to say that I am opposed at this time under present conditions, to raising the tax rate on the homes and the lands of this state. ### FORMER OKLAHOMA MINISTER IS GIVEN 60 DAY SENTENCE

MCLESTER, OKLA., Dec. 2.—J. C. Trotter, former minister, was sentenced to 60 days' imprisonment when he pleaded guilty today in district court here to a charge of wife desertion. Trotter is to be tried on December 18 on a charge of embezzlement of funds from a charitable institution of which he was financial secretary. The Rev. C. T. Collier is to be tried on the same day for the alleged theft of a diamond ring.

Vernon Society

VERNON, Dec. 2.—Thanksgiving eve marked the beginning of what promises to be the most successful season in the Hill Country Country club social affairs, when about 4 couples enjoyed a delightful dance at the country club ball room last Wednesday evening.

"Doc" Ross' orchestra of Wichita Falls furnished music for the occasion, which was replete with beauty, rhythm and life. The bewitching strains of music from the instruments added gaiety and thrills to the dancers as they tripped to the rhythm of the drum and followed the waltz melody of the saxophone.

The ballroom mirrored a mass of beautiful girls and attractive men dressed in bright colored frocks and waving ostrich fans. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bond and Mr. and Mrs. Luther Webb were hosts and hostesses.

Following is a partial list of the guests: Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Williams, Mrs. Napier, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Renfro, Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Thompson, G. C. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. McCarter, Joe G. Sumner, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Christian, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Piper, Mr. and Mrs. J. Shirley Cook, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Colley, S. C. Rogers, Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong, Aubrey L. Foster, John A. Storey, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Rhoads, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hicks, M. Keith Berry, E. B. Mauer, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dixon, L. P. Nolan, F. C. Patton, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Ashenbarger, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Vernon, Misses Anna Joe Pendleton, Olive Shive, Mary Anderson, Vera Harrington, Maudie Ladd, Dell Sumner, Bob Handifer, Don Handifer, Oleta Youngblood, Woody Dixon, Adelaide Donges and Bernice Lloyd.

Tuesday Bridge Club.
Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Daniel Bond on West Paradise street, five tables were set for the program. Mrs. E. L. Donohay won high score with the club members, and Mrs. W. A. Wilhelm was awarded the honors as visitor. The guests other than club members were: Mrs. S. W. Bailey, Mrs. Bass King, Miss Mary Anderson, Mrs. Chas. E. Warren, Mrs. P. W. Handifer, Mrs. Roberta, and Mrs. W. A. Wilhelm. A delicious salad course was served.

Invitation Dance.
Twenty-four couples attended a beautiful invitation dance at the Elks club on Thanksgiving eve. The crowd seemed to be very much in the spirit of the Thanksgiving occasion, and with the beautiful decorations which gave effect to this season of the year, the dance was one that will be long remembered by local and visiting Elks.

The many friends of two prominent high school pupils were greeted with a surprise on Wednesday of this week when word reached Vernon of the marriage of Mr. James Robertson and Miss Clara Leutwyler. Mr. Robertson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Robertson, and Mrs. Robertson is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Leutwyler, all of Vernon. Mr. Ed Robertson is engaged to the wholesale coal business, and Mr. E. M. Leutwyler is engaged in the jewelry business.

THANKSGIVING FEATURED BY SPRINGLIKE WEATHER

OLNEY, Dec. 2.—Although all the business houses in Olney were closed and appropriate services were held in all the churches, and tables groaned under the burden of good things to eat, the effort of man to surround himself with the true Thanksgiving spirit was eclipsed by the effort of nature.

The balmy, springlike air, was laden with the scent of fresh turned earth, the grain fields showed a shimmer of green, and the meadows in the pasture were still bedecked in their summer attire, while along the creeks and in the bottoms the winter grasses had spread a carpet of luscious green which made even the cattle rejoice. Nature seemed to invite every one to come out of doors and give thanks with her, and judging by the banging of guns, and the travel upon the roads, nearly every one responded.

As a fitting close to her perfect Thanksgiving service, nature pronounced the benediction with a heavy springlike rain.

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE HELD IN ROBY

ROBY, TEXAS, Dec. 2.—Thanksgiving day was observed here with a union service at the Methodist church, consisting of songs, readings, sermons and prayer. The business houses and offices of the town closed for the service.

In the afternoon there were basketball games between teams of different schools of this county and Taylor county on the Roby high school court. The girls' team of the Roby high school won from the Roby high school boys from the Roby high school, while the Roby boys won over Trent, but lost to the Roby high school boys. There was some extra good playing and the scores were very close in most of the games.

This section of the county was visited by an excellent rain last night, falling heavy it put out some stock water over the county. Other rainfall has been slow and practically all of the water went into the ground. We now have a pretty good winter season.

Roby is undergoing a wave of building prosperity. There has been something like a dozen residences and four or five business houses built here in the last six or eight months. More residences are needed.

Ten dollar cash prize will soon be offered to the person submitting the best slogan suitable for advertising this business. Watch for details this week. Faith Optical Co., adv.

Notice.
Dr. A. O. Scharff and Dr. B. H. Peterson, osteopathic physicians, have moved their office from Morgan building to 714-18 Bob Wagner building.—adv.

This is to be a very important meeting. Every officer, teacher, will endeavor to be present. Superintendent E. L. Pair of Snake's Eyes Costs Gang $12.30 Per Head Fifteen men employed on a pipe line gang at work on the Iowa Park road knelt around a strip of paper Saturday noon each in turn deftly handling a pair of galloping dominoes. They were all shooting. Furthermore they were all covered. They didn't know at the time, however, that they were covered. But they discovered it later. Deputies Scott and Hembree, clothed in workmen's garments, had them all fated for $12.30 apiece. "Baby needs the shoes," they cried in unison. But the lucky seven or eleven didn't show up. As each in turn marched before Justice of the Peace Maxwell Saturday afternoon and departed $12.30 shy, they knew full well that a pair of snake's eyes had turned up. Classes are excellent Christmas presents for mother or father. Let us explain how this can be arranged. Faith Optical Co.—adv.

VERNON DARBY TO GO ON TRIAL ON CHARGE OF MURDER

CASE SET FOR DEC. 11 IN 98TH DISTRICT COURT BY DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

CHARGED WITH MURDER OF JOHN W. WHITMAN

Case of Alleged Swindling in Connection With East Wichita Well Also Set.

Vernon Darby, charged with the murder of John Whitman, a tailor, will face trial in the 98th district court Monday, December 11, according to a list of settings announced Saturday by Assistant District Attorney Sam E. Hilday.

Darby is accused of having been the party who fired the shot that killed John Whitman on the night of April 2, 1921, while the latter was escorting Miss Cecil Leslie to her home. According to eye witnesses the shot was fired from a speeding automobile. The car cut in front of the couple as they were walking home at the intersection of Fourth and Lee streets.

For more than a week the homicide presented a thread of mystery, but following the arrest of Vernon Darby no further investigation was had.

The case against W. P. Honaker and others, who are charged with swindling in connection with the East Wichita well, is also set down for trial on that date.

All these cases have been set down before, but due to the fact that it was impossible to reach a verdict on account of being engaged in the trial of other cases, have not been tried. It is the plan to set these cases until the entire criminal docket in the 98th district court is disposed of.

The settings follow:

864—E. W. Acuff, theft.

104—Vernon Darby, murder.

113—Grover Benson, theft.

117—Chester Hanks, theft.

124—Jim Gerganus, theft.

144—W. C. Elice, theft.

178—G. G. Darnell, assault with prohibitive weapon.

187—Les Oates, assault with prohibitive weapon.

188—W. P. Honaker et al., swindling.

The E. W. Acuff case as set down is the same one in which the Ku Klux Klan question was raised on a motion for new trial and which was reversed by the higher courts on grounds of an illegally impaneled grand jury.

NO WONDER ALAMO CAFETERIA CLEARED $7.72 IN NINE WEEKS; LOOK AT CUSTOMERS

The above picture shows a part of the second group of children who line up for lunch every day at the Alamo school cafeteria. The first "shift" has already been served.

Three hundred children of the Alamo district have their school lunch daily in the cafeteria, with two special luncheons, a luncheon plate whose prices are probably not duplicated in any self-supporting cafeteria in the state. On one, beef roast, creamed potatoes and a hot roll are sold for five cents; on the other, another kind of meat with sweet potatoes and a hot roll is sold for the same price. No single service of any kind of food is over five cents, and the children average about 300 half-pints of milk daily. The highest number ever fed at the cafeteria is 425, with $60 the highest day's receipts. The past nine weeks the cafeteria showed the scandalous margin of $7.72 profit. No part of the daily receipt money is used for equipment, as this is all donated and the cafeteria is well equipped. A paid cook prepares the meals, and a good variety of food is provided.

SCHOOLS OF CITY AND COUNTY TO OBSERVE 'EDUCATION WEEK' WITH APPROPRIATE FEATURES

NAME CAPTAINS IN AMERICAN LEGION MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The schools of Wichita Falls and Wichita county will observe the American "Education Week," December 2-8. This is promoted by the United States bureau of education, and President Harding has issued a proclamation to that effect.

In the high school, the public speaking classes under Miss Junita Kinsey will take charge, and each day a student from these classes and the speaker's club will talk in each of the roll rooms. The subjects were assigned Friday, and the representatives are preparing their speeches.

The Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions clubs and every other national organization have been invited to cooperate with the educational boards. On each day of the week certain features of education will be stressed. Sunday's topic will be "For God and Country"; on Monday, "American Citizenship"; on Tuesday, "Patriotism"; Wednesday, "School and Teacher"; Thursday, "Illiteracy"; Friday, "Equality of Opportunity"; Saturday, "Physical Education."

Superintendent Burt Bryant states that the county schools will observe this week by stressing to the students the importance of punctuality in not being tardy or absent during the school year.

McKeever, author of more than a dozen books on child training, teaching, rural life and psychology, salesmanship and social subjects and a contributor to leading syndicates of metropolitan newspapers, will lecture in this city under the auspices of the Practical Psychology club. SEWAGE DISPOSAL
PLANT IS NEEDED;
MAY COME IN 1923

CITY LIKELY TO BE REQUIRED TO BUILD ONE, IT IS BELIEVED.
RIVER ISN'T FLOWING,
BAD SITUATION RESULTS

May Cause Exemption From Provisions of Pollution Law to Be Removed.

Construction of a sewage disposal plant, costing probably $200,000, may have to be undertaken in 1923 by the city council.
At present, the sewers discharge into the river, which is bad enough. It is claimed, when the river is running; when it isn't running, as at present, it is considerably worse.
Wichita Falls was exempted from the provisions of the stream pollution law when the measure was passed, but efforts have been made since then to have the exemption removed. Farmers living down the river have tried to secure the action.
A sewage disposal plant has been one of the items on the municipal program for several years, but no action has been taken to build it.
It is not unlikely that the city will be forced to take some action next year.

If maternal pride was ever shown in the dog world, it is seen in the expression of this prize-winning mother and her five healthy and lazy-looking offspring.

SEARCHING FOR MAN WHO SHOT NEIGHBOR
AT CANADIAN, OKLA.

MEALSTER, OKLA., Dec. 2.—Posses of farmers and county authorities today were scouring the country in this vicinity in search of Neill Dalton, a late lawbreaker who shot and seriously wounded E. H. Needham, his neighbor, in the latter's farm home near Canadian.
Needham, a deputy sheriff, was interrogated when he came into his home and that after he had been asked to leave, he stumbled into the children's bedroom, apparently falling asleep on the floor. A few minutes later, according to Needham, the assassin lay in bed and his 13-year-old daughter called him to the room where he found Dalton making improper advances to the two girls who were in bed.
When he attempted to get Dalton, he said, the latter drew a revolver.

FORMER OKLAHOMA
MAYOR SUES KLAN
DEMANDS $30,000

FORT SCOTT, KAN., Dec. 2.—Theodore Schierman, former mayor of Liberty, Kansas, filed suit for $30,000 damages in federal court here today against the city of Liberty and the Coffeyville Ku Klux Klan organization. The suit is the result of the flogging of Mr. Schierman by a masked band recently.
The petition includes Frank M. Benefield, who it alleges is "Coffeyville branch of the Ku Klux Klan; George West, who it represents to be secretary, and six other members of the body, whose names are unknown to the plaintiff. The petition asks that the two alleged officials be compelled by the court to reveal these names.
Soon after the whipping of Schierman, then mayor of Liberty, Benefield, prominent in Coffeyville, offered a reward of $1,500 through Fort Scott papers, for proof that the Ku Klux Klan was responsible for the act.
Schierman recently moved to Nowata, Okla., and is making it possible to sue in federal court.

CAPTURE THIRD MEMBER OF COUNTERFEITING GANG

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—With the arrest today of John Popovich, of Los Angeles, carrying $2,500 pounds in counterfeit notes, or more than $48,000 face value, United States secret service agents said they had captured the third of a gang of counterfeiters who have done what was heretofore considered almost impossible—making and passing large bank of England notes.
The other two alleged members of the band reported to be under arrest in Los Angeles are Oscar A. Johnson and Ivan Slavodanovic.
Popovich was checking out at a Broadway hotel today when secret service agents, who had been registered at the same hotel since Thursday arrested him after he had paid his bill in United States currency. They said he was about to leave for Canada and in his hasty traveling bag they said they found $25 counterfeit bank notes of 100 pounds sterling denomination and $20 of 10.

ARMENIANS IN STATE OF TERROR AS RESULT OF TURKISH CAMPAIGN

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 2.—The Armenians here are in a state bordering on terror as a result of the publicity campaign begun against them by the Turks. Nothing since the Armenian revolution has caused more widespread despair and fear among the Armenian population than the recent publication by the official government news agency of the discovery of an alleged Armenian plot to foment a revolution and assassinate the Kemalist officials. It is declared by allied observers and Armenians themselves that the Kemalists are preparing the ground for wholesale arrests and prosecutions.
They compared the present methods with those employed during the "red Sultan" Abdul Hamid in 1915 and 1916, when after the proclamation of the discovery of anti-Turkish plots tens of thousands of Armenians were imprisoned, deported or executed.
Brigadier General Harrington, British commander in chief, the allied high commissioners and the Armenian patriarchs have protested to Rasit Pasha against the publication of these reports, declaring them malicious, false and designed to arouse racial antipathies.

LONGER SKIRTS WITH SHORTER JACKETS TO APPEAR SPRING 1923

CLEVELAND, OHIO, Dec. 2.—Longer skirts and shorter jackets will grace the boulevard queues in the spring of 1923, according to the styles shown here today at the annual convention of the national cloak, suit and skirt manufacturers' association.
The straight line silhouette will remain but will be varied by draped blouse effects, flaring lines in sport and auto coats. Sleeves are to be looser and bell-shaped on many coats, and jackets will be gathered in narrow bands at the wrists. Plaids were shown in the sport coat types.
The low bloused jacket and box type of suit coat are being made for wear with a plain skirt or with a dress to constitute a three-piece suit. In many instances the skirts are draped slightly and have an uneven hem line. Waist and twill cord, however, will be the most widely used for suits, manufacturers said.
The soft clinging fabrics will give their grace to spring coats which are of three types—wrap, cape and straight line coats, either with or without a blouse. Silk will appear in many of the dressier wraps.
The shades, beige and sand, will rival navy, greystone and batwing are the new grey tones.

MANKINS POOL IS EXTENDED QUARTER MILE TO WESTWARD

SUNSHINE STATE GETS 175 BARRELS THAT WIDENS FIELD

NO. 4 KEMP & KEMPER COMES IN SATURDAY AT DEPTH OF 1730 FEET.

OTHER TESTS DUE FOR EARLY COMPLETION

Interest Turns to Several Wildcats—Fitzgerald Test Is Drilling Below 1000.

A quarter-mile extension of the 1700-foot stratum in the Mankins pool was the most important happening of the week in the north Texas district. The Sunshine State Refining company's No. 4 Kemp and Kemper was drilled in Saturday, getting the sand at 1730 feet. The test of Fitzgerald and others on the Mankins, a mile northwest of production, has apparently missed the 1600-foot pay, and is now drilling below 1500.

SEVERAL TESTS IN YOUNG COUNTY ARE CLOSELY WATCHED

Young county failed to complete any wells during the week, which was one of the quietest for some months. A great amount of drilling is being done in all sections but nothing of importance is reported. Several locations were made, one being in the extreme northern section of the county by the Monroe Production company on the Benson tract in the northwest corner of T. 3. & L. company's survey abstract 203 section 1477. The company is moving in a star. The well is located north and west of the well brought in a few weeks ago on the Stewart tract by the same company.

DRILLING CAMPAIGN IN MONTAGUE BEING PUSHED STEADILY

NOCOMA, TEXAS, Dec. 2.—There appears to be a general campaign of drilling throughout all sections of Montague county. During the week the Keller well southwest of Bowie resumed drilling and is nearing 2,000 feet, and it is reported the well on the Sumner land southwest of the mine shaft has been taken over by a new company and arrangement made to give the territory a real testing out. A derrick has been built by the Etna Oil company a short distance east of the town of Montague.

Some Crude In County Tests High as 41 Gravity Brings Over Two Dollars

The recent switch to a gravity basis has brought substantial raises in prices to some Wichita county producers, whose crude tests above the average on the Baum scale. The refiners' receiver's production is bringing better than two dollars a barrel, testing 41 degrees, and getting a premium above the posted figure of $1.50 for oil of that gravity. The last report by Receiver Delano described a method employed in the storage tanks to which the higher gravity is in part attributed; the method provides for a device where-

TERRITORY NORTH OF MORAN GETTING GENERAL TESTING

MORAN, TEXAS, Dec. 2.—Moran continues steady strides toward a real oil field boom. New wells are being developed every day on the east and west; but the north trend is at present demanding greatest attention.

FIFTH PRODUCER IN PANHANDLE SECTION BEING COMPLETED

PANHANDLE, TEXAS, Dec. 2.—The fifth oil producing well was added to the Carson-Hutchinson county field during the past week by the announcement of the completion of the Texas Co. No. 1. The well is on the north line of Carson county on section 114, block 4. The well will be cleaned out and tested early in the week when an announcement of the amount of oil which the well will produce is expected.

REFINERS HOPE FOR IMPROVED DEMAND FOR FUEL PRODUCTS

FACE LOSSES UNLESS MARKET IMPROVES IN VIEW OF CRUDE ADVANCE. NORTH TEXAS PLANTS FORM ORGANIZATION. High Prices Being Paid For Crude Put Refineries in Uncomfortable Situation.

North Texas independent refiners are facing a hard winter unless improved demand for fuel oil and kerosene develops, as a result of the increased price of crude; this discouraging view of the situation was voiced at the meeting of refiners of this section held Friday afternoon. Twelve refiners, most of them in Wichita county, were represented.

INCREASED ACTIVITY IN CRYSTAL FALLS VICINITY DUE TO DOUGLAS WELL

BRECKENRIDGE, TEXAS, Dec. 2.—Activity in the district northeast of Crystal Falls has picked up due to the performance of the new Douglas well a few miles north. The well came in last week and is making 150 barrels from the 2500 foot sand. The well is owned by the Ellaville Pool Syndicate and is two miles from the nearest production, and will open up a big stretch of territory for future development.

SILK-BULLINGTON TESTS GAS SHOWING CAUSES FURTHER

SOME EXCITEMENT WAS CAUSED BY THE SHOWING OF OIL AND GAS IN THE TEST OF SILK-BULLINGTON AND OTHERS ON THE MEDLEY RANCH IN GRAY COUNTY, and a number of people from the surrounding territory visited the well. The top of the sand was encountered at 2160 feet. When the tools were brought out of the hole the bit was found to show traces of oil with a strong smell of gas following.

Additional locations in the new Hirsch district have made that part of the county one of the most active. The inevitable oil field town has come into being, with a row of checks and stores, but has not yet attained the dignity of a name.

GULF IS BUILDING FOUR-INCH LINE IN EASTLAND COUNTY

EASTLAND, TEXAS, Dec. 2.—The Gulf Pipeline company has started the construction of a four-inch line from the Pleasant Grove field to the wells in the Lake district, a distance of eight miles, to take care of the rapidly increasing production in this section.

WICHITA ARE DRILLING WELL NORTH OF LONGVIEW

G. R. Ellis of this city, and associates, are drilling a well in Gregg county, nine miles north of Longview, in a territory which the oil fraternity is watching with interest. Geological structures in the vicinity are said to indicate a trend from the Mexico field to the Smackover country in Arkansas, and for that reason the test is one of considerable interest.

Community Players Will Present First Play Within Next Few Weeks; Elect New Officers Wednesday Eve

The Wichita Falls Community Players, who presented several successful plays last year under Mrs. E. L. Fulton's direction, held their first meeting of the season Wednesday night at Kemp Library and re-organized their forces for the winter's work.

During the business meeting Mrs. Nat L. Ingo, one of the best known and most talented of the cast members of the organization last year, was elected vice-president, Miss Ella Marie Mathis, another talented member, was re-elected secretary, and Joe Marlow was selected business manager.

The players also accepted six new members, Misses Lurline Turner, Adele Marcus, Elizabeth Moffett, Thelma Davis, Nancy Harlin, and Lois Haney and Jerry Moffett.

The members of the Hide-A-Wee Club enjoyed a delightful Thanksgiving evening, when tables were arranged for four sets of players.

The house was attractive in Thanksgiving decorations and roses, and in the games, Mrs. F. A. Rogers and Mr. Muehlberger won high scores.

The club meets next time with Mr. and Mrs. Cruse at 1511 Polk.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Ruffner came in Saturday morning after a brief visit in North Texas, and will make their home at 1124 Ninth street. Mrs. Ruffner was Miss Bruce Dickson, and the Austin American contains the following account of their marriage.

Wedding of Claude Ruffner and Miss Bruce Dickson Solemnized

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Ruffner left on a honeymoon trip to Fort Worth, Texas, on Saturday morning after the bride was traveling dress of brown panne de laine with hat and shoes made in Dallas.

The bride was given away by her cousin, Adl. Gen. T. D. Barton, Mrs. H. C. Evans, and Henry Evans sang "I Know a Lovely Garden."

The bride wore a gray crepe dress trimmed with silver lace with a girle of old blue. Miss O'Reilly, the maid of honor, wore a gray lace dress over blue.

The ceremony was followed by a reception and wedding supper, after which Mr. and Mrs. Ruffner left on a honeymoon trip to Fort Worth, Texas.

The dance will be at home in Wichita Falls.

Announcement is made of an invitation to dance which will be held at Kemp Hotel Friday evening, December 8, when music will be furnished by the Emma Pritchard orchestra.

The council of Jewish Women will meet in business session Monday afternoon at 2:30 at Temple Israel, when Dr. Goldberg will make a talk on "The Great Present Day Jewish Character."

The council is planning a dance for Thursday evening at the Kemp hotel, for which tickets will be sold at the door.

Hair comings made to order, work called for and delivered. Prices reasonable. Guaranteed machine work. Phone 2124, Miss Doris—Adv.

NEW PLAY FLUSTERS BORED GOTHAMITES

By MARGARET ROBE
Lolli Prandello,
Duffie are off to you.
You're such a clever fellow,
Satrial and "new."
The high brow think upon you,
And the morons think they do.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Old New York town is all agog about a topic new. No longer is all talk confined to making of home-brew, address when you consider half the dears just what he is, don't know. They think perhaps he's some new drink or else the latest show, and yet they gurgle, "You're dearest," so you will think they know.

Disease, or what?
"Some people have him all confused with oil of citronella while others think he's a disease that's apt to kill a fellow. Some think that in the future he'll be the new place. Bill's other, in grand opera, think he's the newest base. But though these are the different descriptions, none or book or man, they all talk about him, just to show folks that they can talk."

At the theater called the Princess, Brock Pemberton, you know, produced first in America, a Prandello show. The high brow all sit looking there, the bulky brows and low, tired business men and flappers too, and around them go to one "Bill's Characters in Soand" and think "It is crime the way I have to split it up to make the title rhyme) of an Author is the finish of this so novel name and from the point of novelty the play's more of the name.

"Yes, laugh or cry?
Some think it is a comedy and laughed both loud and long—when tortured souls in torment writhe and everything goes wrong, the portly lady sits wrapped! This is the life for her! Her husband nudges and gasps, "What's all the shooting for?"

Some feel all dizzy in the head and hang on every word while others smirk and think "It's absurd." Yet all agree it's gripping, quite, though when they all come out there isn't one, high brow or low, knows quite what it's about.

Then home they go and read up on the "whyness of the whence," and discuss it till they find some real and hidden sense.

Although there's Abie's Irish Boy" still running, it is true, it really is encouraging to know there are a few who prefer the Prandello play. It shows an upward trend, New York as intellectual perhaps some day will end. For once New York thought with its feet to jassy strings of cello. This year it strives to think with brains, till thanks to Prandello.

of bootleggers and the present price of booze, the democratic comeback and the latest murder news. It's talk of Prandello that you hear on every hand, as you walk up the avenue or in the subway station. You hear it over tea at the fancy hotel or on "Oh, isn't Prandello grand!" It's really quite a wheeze, Prandello.

KATHLEEN NORRIS Woman to Woman Talks

ARE YOU A TIME NIBBLER?
By KATHLEEN NORRIS
"America's Most Popular Woman Writer for Women"

To keep nibbling at chocolates, crackers, nuts and odds and ends in general between meals means that you ruin your digestion, your complexion, your disposition, and—frequently—the dessert intended for the family dinner.

"TO NIBBLE at your bank account means that all the little weak, irresolute, insignificant checks suddenly gain force, like a swarm of tiny bees, and literally sting the bank account to death.

Time is an asset to some persons, to a minority persons. To the majority it is a vague condition to be wasted, ignored and thrown away anywhere and everywhere.

"If you and I, at the end of our lives, could see the total of the minutes we have wasted, or that others have wasted for us, we would stand appalled.

A pencil and paper some day and work out a budget of your time. So much for office, so much for sleep, and then what?—

A Warning Sign.
A friend of mine astonished me the other day with the statement that he spends one-fifth of his time in travel. He is an elderly man, a suburbanite, who makes a train and motor trip of one hour and fifteen minutes twice daily and two trolley trips of fifteen minutes.

Nine hours he sleeps out of twenty-four. That leaves thirteen. And of these fifteen he spends three in travel. His secret is always to have a good book, a magazine or a newspaper to read on the train.

He has taught himself several languages in those hours on the trolley. He has raised the dignity of the astronomer, the scientist, the historian. He is a politician and social power, and he says it is because of those leisure, quiet, and on his coat lapel he wears a small metal disk clearly lettered, "Don't talk to me. He doesn't want to hear it, but as he settles himself upon the airy upper deck, out of the wind, or in a seat on the train, he puts in his time nibbling."

We all know them, we are surrounded by them. They are everywhere, one's own thoughts, one's business, mean nothing to them.

The telephone people can instruct their employees in courtesy and brevity, and they do. But they can't control the line, impede the service and render what should be a simplifier of life and a priceless convenience, that brings us to the time nibblers.

We all know them, we are surrounded by them. They are everywhere, one's own thoughts, one's business, mean nothing to them.

Do You Recognize That?
They telephone at meal times and the frantic mother of sick baby who is trying to get the doctor on the phone attention hears something like this:

"Well, I thought I'd call you up—nothing special."
"Well, I thought I would—Ring me up soon, won't you?"
"I will. Yes, I will. Pardon?"
"If I'm not here with mama, I'll be at George's."
"Yes, I know. But I'll see you at Ellie's tomorrow."
"Oh, that's right. I forgot that. And you'll stop for Betty?"
"Oh, I thought we arranged that. Flora would."
"Well, then, I'll see you anyway tomorrow. And if you can come to Sue's Monday, do come."
"Yes, as I say, I'll have to speak to Harry."
"Yes, I know. Well, ring me up sometime. I'll be home. I just thought I'd call you up."
"I'm glad you did."
There is more of it, equally vital. The baby's mother hangs up, walks to the floor, takes the telephone down again, and hears it still going on.

The telephone people can instruct their employees in courtesy and brevity, and they do. But they can't control the time nibblers, who choke the line, impede the service, and render what should be a simplifier of life and a priceless convenience, too often a source of absolute annoyance.

The Suburban Train Race.
Then there are the suburban train conventionalists already indicated. With what a flutter of pleasure and wonder they drop into that empty seat, and how they blast one's busily moving and contented thoughts with their breathless, "Well, what do you know?"

One has been playing cards with them the night before until eleven o'clock, and then they say, "I know—there is nothing vital, nothing new. But the pencil that was steadily listing the names for the church or club committee, the scribbled letter to a small son away on his visit to grandma, the tempting book about women and social work, the editorial that will clear up one's hazy ideas about Russia's internal struggle will be laid aside!

Suburbanites make pathetic efforts to avoid this daily complication. Jim Smith knows that Joe Davis likes him, he doesn't want to hurt his feelings. But both would be so much happier apart for their twice daily fifty-two minutes. Mary Smith has neighborly problems in common with Mollie Davis, but oh, what a relief it is to have the advertising matter, the mimeographed letter that goes on through the mails.

It is not too much to say that one-third of the mail received in the average office is tossed aside with an impatient "no answer."

In the flood, the circular letters, the advertising matter, the mimeographed long sheets about—nothing.

And with them come those wordy, luxurious, effusions, dictated by the church or club committee, the scribbled letter to a girl whose tethered thoughts and whose impatient fingers can hardly show him due respect as she steno-graphs them.

"Will you read what you have, Miss Wilson?" says the comfortable, complacent voice.

How well we women who have worked in offices and in typesetting know—and then you might add—that—let's see—should this arrangement not prove entirely satisfactory to you, it will be the pleasure of the company to make some immediate readjustment—you might read me what you have—"

What Every Stenographer Knows.
Miss Wilson sighs imperceptibly, reads aloud, picks up her pencil. She has missed the five-fifteen, the office is dusky and almost deserted. No matter—tomorrow is Saturday.

what a perfectly beautiful day the first was! You wouldn't!"
"But it was a heavenly day. Not hot, but balmy—I said to Mr. Jones it did seem at last—as if we were going to have a little spring! I suppose May will be wet again, but now that we're moved, I tell Mr. Jones..."

Typical Time Nibbler.
Thirty years ago my father was taking four uproarious youngsters to the circus one memorable Saturday. We were walking, all excitement, joy, expectation and utter felicity, toward the train that was to carry us to Wonderland when a neighbor passed us and called out something incoherent from her surry.

My father—the most conscientious of men, didn't quite hear it. He said anxiously that it might have been important. So he sent a boy flying after the lady, and the boy disappeared up the road, ran back, caught the train just as it started and reported to my father, breathless!

"She said that she had only called out to you, we're going different directions, aren't we?"
"Yes, that was time nibbler."

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Wright, parents of Teddy Wright of San Diego, Cal., are mighty proud of their athletic youngster, but Teddy is 10 months old and doesn't walk.

"That's young for athletics, you say? Well, just wait a day or so and we'll show you a four-month-old Wichita Falls baby who can hang from a hoop with ONE hand. And we'll show him "in action."

and this young man doesn't stay Saturday afternoon.

She knows perfectly well that the really big men in the really efficient offices are beginning to answer even the most complicated letters upon the very page on which they were sent, with a mere negative or affirmative, and it is her personal conviction and incidentally a warning, that there is no communication in the world that cannot be handled—or answered—at least—in the old-fashioned formula of "one long sentence and one short one."

I think that in the ten years of my professional work, I have never failed to answer personally and communication, from Dakota, from Mexico, from the northernmost part of Canada, when it came in a woman's handwriting, with a woman's honest, simple conviction behind it. But it is only because I have read the social partisan books or story letters, and other communications, pamphlets, booklets, printed leaflets, long typewritten dissertations, anti-marked newspapers, exactly the same thing, where success in life is concerned.

In this connection I like to read the new social partisan books, occasionally from "T. R." about a book or story letter, and they were all so brief, so pitiful, interesting with a panned word here and there in the familiar handwriting, saving me much so-called "not-for-kim" the rebellious, bored secretary's rolling phrases. His time counted.

Earliest ancestors walked wherever they went and talked only to those within the range of their own voices. Later, the epistolary age, the age of journals, diaries and letters, came in, and then they drove in jealously surries to enlarge their range of acquaintance.

But we are perpetually geared in high, we moderns. We rush, we spin, we fly, we broadcast through the uncharted heavens our voices and our personalities. The door bell, the telephone bell, the mail, the boy with telegrams, the crowded elevator, are jamming life against us in every waking hour and half through the night.

A Genuine Social Duty.

Woman Auctioneer Knows Arguments That Appeal to Women Customers

Miss Lillian Lagorston, only woman auctioneer in the world, has refuted male critics who doubted her success in this field.

By MARIAN HALE
WOODHAVEN, N. Y., Dec. 1.—"Christmas is coming. Have you thought how your Christmas dinner table is going to look? Here's a lovely centerpiece of real linen—worth a dollar and a half—a dollar seventy-five—going."

The first woman auctioneer has announced the platform of the 200 women members of the W. O. W. and Woodmen Circle Entertainment.

When Miss Lagorston told Brooklyn city officials that she wanted to be an auctioneer, they were amused.

"A lot of women," she said, "have an idea they could be auctioneers, but every single one of them has a better idea."

Miss Lagorston is not thinking of luck. "My boss," she explained, "is an auctioneer. He has to have help. I have been in his store for two years. I know all about the business. Why shouldn't I help him?"

The officials were dubious but they gave her a license.

The next day Miss Lagorston mounted the platform of the 200 women members of the W. O. W. and Woodmen Circle Entertainment.

To these the woman auctioneer directed her appeal. In two hours she had sold $100 worth of goods.

"It was the most fascinating thing I ever did," she says. "I had to think quickly, to decide in an instant, to be like a poker player studying other's faces."

She has refuted the critics who doubted her success in this field. She has shown that women customers are not only interested in the goods but also in the arguments that appeal to them.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY MAY MEET BEFORE HOLIDAYS

PRACTICALLY DETERMINED NO COURT WILL BEGIN BEFORE CHRISTMAS.

ATTEMPT WILL BE MADE TO CALL GRAND JURY

Large Amount of Business, Both Civil and Criminal Stands on Dockets.

It is probable, according to advice emanating from the district attorney's office at Fort Worth that a grand jury for the United States district court will be summoned and impaneled before the Christmas holidays.

At present it seems practically impossible that a term of federal court will be opened here before the holidays but the district attorney is making an effort to have the grand jury assemble and complete its work before the term of court opens so that no time will be lost for this reason.

Should it be found expedient and possible to call the grand jury before the holidays it will undoubtedly be for December 18, which will give that investigating body an entire week in which to complete its labors.

Judge Wilson of the northwestern district of Texas is engaged in holding court at Fort Worth and all his efforts to secure a special judge for the Wichita Falls division availed nothing. Judge Jack had promised to come but he was seized with an attack of dengue fever.

United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz is stating his views on the possibilities of the grand jury convening and also with reference to court said that there was nothing definite with reference to any of the dates.

$130,000 TOTAL OF BUILDING PERMITS DURING NOVEMBER

The total value of new buildings started in this city during the month of November is $130,000. Permits issued from the city secretary's office totaled $125,957.50; $100 is required for buildings where the expenditure is less than $100 and is out of the fire limits. There is no fee charged for such permits but there is a penalty for failure to make application before starting construction.

Forty-seven permits were issued; the majority of them represent the construction of new homes and improvements to residence property. In the month's report is included the valuation of the Myrtinger and Walker building project in Southland addition. The two largest permits for the month were $25,000 and $23,000, both of these being issued on business property.

The permits issued for last week showed a sharp decline in the average for the month, there being only $10,987.50 in permits. The weekly average for the month was well above $22,000. Permits for the week were as follows: Chas. Tabalowsky, 207 Travis, servants house, $200; W. A. Freear, 1627 Tenth, garage, $100; M. T. ### WELFARE DRIVE IS FINISHED BUT MORE FUNDS TO BE ASKED

Although more than $25,000 has been subscribed in the "give once" drive for local welfare organizations, efforts will be made to obtain additional subscriptions to bring the total to an amount that will allow for expected "shrinkage," it was announced Saturday.

The campaign was conducted at an expense of between one and two per cent for "overhead," which is considered exceptional, such expense frequently reaching 15 to 25 per cent. In his report to A. H. Larkin, general chairman, on the campaign, Hubert Harrison of the chamber of commerce, which handled the campaign details, said: "It has been my privilege to assist the municipal welfare board of our city in directing the financial campaign for $25,000 for eight organizations for the coming year."

"After a careful checking of all reports and cards and after a preliminary audit of the receipts, I have to report in cash and pledges the total of $25,216.72."

"There are quite a number of men who might be expected to contribute substantial amounts who have not been seen and who have not sent in checks and I believe that by the continued activity of your committee of thirteen during the next few days the campaign will go well over the top. From past experience there should be a surplus of 15 per cent to take care of shrinkage in collections."

"About 5,000 persons contributed in this campaign in amounts ranging from 60 cents to $600. Nearly 100 of our busiest men and women were active in the planning and solicitation."

"Expenses of the campaign have been held to a minimum. The total for advertising, printing and meals for workers is $417.35, which is a little more than one per cent on the amount raised. Our staff handled the campaign with no extra help. It has been a pleasure to me and to those of us in the chamber of commerce office to work with you in this very worthy cause. All records are ready to turn over to the welfare board and the money has been deposited in the name of W. L. Robertson, treasurer."

TOTAL OF FINES IN FINES ASSESSED SATURDAY MORNING

Bonds were forfeited in six cases where the defendants failed to appear for trial.

AWARDS CHILDREN TO MOTHER AFTER HEARING SATURDAY

No amicable settlement having been made with reference to their domestic difficulties, Judge P. A. Martin Saturday morning heard further evidence in the habeas corpus proceedings of Phillip Ryan against Annabelle Ryan.

Judge Martin denied the writ and ordered that temporarily at least the mother have control of the children. The court asked that counsel for both sides arrange for the payment of a reasonable sum by the father for the benefit of the children.

Testimony was introduced by the father in an effort to show that the mother was not competent to have the control, custody and care of the children.

MISSIONARY HERE FROM CONGO, WILL ADDRESS LEAGUERS

"I have to travel 10,000 miles, and it takes me three months to reach my destination," declared Dr. D. L. Mumpowers, returned medical missionary from the Belgian Congo, Africa, who arrived here Saturday.

"The territory embraced in the Belgian Congo is 76,000 square miles, or as large as the state of Missouri," he said. "Travel from one section to another is extremely difficult on account of no roads and no methods of transportation, hampering considerably our work among the native tribes."

"There are between 500,000 and 550,000 natives in Belgian Congo. They seem eager for Christian training. In the Southern Methodist church mission field, we have 100 church members."

"African sleeping sickness causes a large death rate among the natives. Many could be saved by the medical missionary if they would come to him during the early stages of the sickness, but being superstitious and ignorant of all health codes, they wait until it is too late. This disease is absolutely fatal if not taken in the early stages. We only have one hospital that will accommodate 40 people at Wembayama in charge of one doctor and one trained nurse."

"We are doing the best we can to educate the natives. We have to begin at the very rudiments of education, even teaching them how to read and write their own language. We have two large schools under the direction of white teachers, and 40 other schools scattered throughout our section, under the direction of native teachers."

Dr. Mumpowers is here in the interest of the Epworth league of the Southern Methodist church. He visited the outlying districts Saturday, and Sunday at 6:00 p. m. will deliver an address at the First Methodist church, south, before the Epworth league, to which everyone is invited.

CHURCH HAS TOO MUCH TO DO TO GO HEARSAY-HUNTING, SAYS JUDGE KAY IN TALK TO CLASS

Where man is going, rather than where he came from, is the concern of the church, Judge John M. Kay told his Bible class last Sunday at the Olympic theatre, for his lecture, Judge Kay declared his belief that "hearsay-hunting" is far less important than many other things. His lecture follows:

I see the Baptist down at Waco went on a hearsay hunt, and the Methodists at Marshall are after some of their preachers and teachers about their belief about the creation. These Baptists and Methodists in my humble view, had better work on the problem of where man is going, rather than where he came from. You can't do anything about where he came from. It is too late to fix that.

Now, I wouldn't talk about them at all, but religion is a thing of love, men, and I never saw a man who wanted to persecute other men, and other preachers, and teachers, about their beliefs, that wasn't a tyrant in his own right.

Let's consider for a minute how foolish a thing it is to build a great school, great building, great organization, put great men in to teach, and to teach things that we don't know, and jump up and tell them what to teach.

The Methodist church, at least, has got away from the idea that it can build a school house and tell the teachers whether to teach it round or flat. We are past that day. We may have a preacher here and there who feels that way about it, but, on the whole, we are past that. Now, what is the answer to that?

The Bible isn't a book about astronomy. I wouldn't go there for my astronomy. It isn't about geology. I wouldn't go there for that. It wouldn't concern itself with the reactions that we find in chemistry. The Bible is a book about life, both here and hereafter. And, that's the thing that we want to find out from the Bible.

What was our example along this line? It was the Savior went out there, in this lesson, teaching the great tidings about the Kingdom of God. Not urging with the Pharisees about the writings of Moses. Not discussing whether it was a greater king than David. But, preaching a kingdom that was new; that is, went out to teach men that His kingdom was in the hearts of men, not in history, not in science, but the kingdom, He says, is within you. That is the great tidings He was giving the world.

He comes to this crazy man. Do you know that a good many wise men think that humanity and civilization itself may at last be swept off of its feet because of a mental breakdown of the race? Ah! you men that are struggling and striving for the things of this world, and fighting the battles of finance, know ye not that great nervous strain, that enormous effort, may somehow, some time, be reflected in a weakened, nervous condition of your children and your children's children?

This man was out in the woods before the coming of the Savior, there was no place to take care of such as he. He was a madman. A man is in a pretty bad shape when he has got enough devil in him to kill two thousand hogs. And, the Savior stopped and helped him. Helped one man, as I have often said to you. One man! And, this fellow was afraid. A man can get so used to the devil that he is afraid to cut loose from him. Afraid to turn over a new leaf and try something else.

Now I don't know anything about this miracle. You don't. These doctors won't. It is a part of Divinity. It is above us. It is beyond us. All religion must be super-natural. If we understand that, we would be equal to our Maker. We take it on faith and we do not understand it. So, what is the use of saying that we don't believe things that we don't understand? We would limit ourselves to a mighty yastick if we are going to do that.

One beautiful thing about the Bible, to me, is that I can understand enough of it to meet my necessities. I can't understand all of it. I don't claim to. But I can understand the Savior who goes out and devotes His attention and His time and His effort to an outcast crazy man. I can understand something—some little something—of His great heart. He that would stop by the wayside to help a man like that.

Now, some of you fellows better look out. In this lesson they never offered to pay these fellows for these hogs. If some of we fellows would lose a bunch of hogs like that, you would never hear the last of it. But they go on about things that are more important. A Savior who refuses to stop to see about the hogs, and the loss of the hogs, had already said that He didn't have any house or place to lay His head. He wasn't interested in hogs, and that's the reason the story is so quiet about who was compensated, or how.

Now, have you, have I, got an evil spirit? Is that a danger that confronts you, and confronts me? Ah! is it your only danger? Sin is a thing of the mind. The law don't punish a man for killing another man in any country on earth. But it punishes him for killing him with malice and aforethought. In other words, the sin is committed in his mind. It isn't against the law simply to take your neighbor's goods. But the law denounces that transaction only when you take it with intent to defraud your neighbor. It is all a question of mind, the state of your mind. Evil means evil spirits. Or, of you harbor ill will, enmity, jealousy, envy, hatred. If you store these things up in your mind, you have got in your mind evil spirits. That's what they are, and right there's where the Savior proves His divinity, where He rises above the standard of all men. He was clean minded. There is no record of an unclean thought, or an unclean act; and an unclean act can only follow from an unclean thought. No man ever does wrong who doesn't make up his mind to do it beforehand. That's the kind of evil spirits that we have to fight against and to guard against.

Now, His religion—this great tidings that this lesson tells about—was a religion of love. He didn't want to take your weight because He could. He healed him because of His great sympathetic heart for humanity. He didn't heal him to work a miracle. But, He healed him in order that that man might be saved and that other men might see his salvation.

His preaching is unselfish. That's the trouble with a lot of our folks. You know just what is implied in each criticism that you make. If I say that this man is not a good man, he don't believe right, that is just a delicate way of saying that I am a good man and my standard is right. And, a man that is doing that is thinking about himself and his own standard more than that of the other fellow. I wish we could be a little more gentle in our criticism. I wish we could!

What would you have done if you had found this fellow out there? I don't know what you would have done. I think I would have been back in town as soon as I could get there, telling that I saw the wildest beast down there that I ever saw. That's humanity. That's humanity when it has been untouched by the gospel, but that Savior stopped and remedied that situation.

Now, we can't perform these miracles, but we can do a great deal. How can we do it? I think that's the biggest thing in the Bible for church people. Ah, these scientific stories about the creation, and these great debates and arguments are lost in the face of the thing that I am going to say. "Let thy light so shine that other men seeing your good works may glorify Me."

What are we to do then? To spread his kingdom. To set an example in the world. To recognize that we are in a world that is here today. It is a fair thing to say that whatever purpose we have got in the world, that purpose related, and must necessarily relate, to the men that are here now.

Now we have got by some of the things that they had to struggle with. We can take care of the insane now. We can take care, to a large extent, of the orphans and of the aged. We got all that idea from Christ. But, there are other problems just as important, just as grave, just as reaching, that confront us, as confronted the apostles in their days. We have got to build on their foundation.

What are our problems? A better moral standard, a better educational standard, a better health standard, a more law abiding people. These are the things that we have got to work for. And, they are not miracles, and they can only be accomplished by the painstaking effort of a group of serious minded men who believe in good citizenship, and who believe in the Father of us all.

Cars of seven-nations will be exhibited at the New York motor salon, between December 3 and 9.

IF SICK TODAY! TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You-Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

I discovered a vegetable compound that does the work of dangerous, sickening calomel and I want every reader of this paper to buy a bottle for a few cents and if it doesn't straighten you up better and quicker than salivating calomel just go back to the store and get your money back.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your thirty feet of bowels of the sour bile and constipation poison which is making you feel miserable.

I guarantee that one spoonful of this harmless liquid liver medicine will relieve the headache, biliousness, coated tongue, ague, malaria, sour stomach or any other distress caused by a torpid liver as quickly as a dose of vile, nauseating calomel, besides it will not make you sick or keep you from a day's work.

Calomel is poison—it's mercury—it attacks the bones often causing rheumatism. Calomel is dangerous. It sickens—while my Dodson's Liver Tone is safe, pleasant and harmless. Eat anything afterwards, because it can not salivate. Give it to the children because it doesn't upset the stomach or spook the liver. Take a spoonful tonight and wake up feeling fine and ready for a full day's work.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2.—Marie Provost, motion picture actress, and Kenneth Harlan, film actor, formerly the husband of Flo Hart, of the stage, are engaged to be married, according to the Los Angeles Times.

Milton Sills in 'Marriage Chance' Comes to Strand

"The Marriage Chance" will be the attraction at the Strand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Of the picture a well known critic writes: "Hampton Del Ruth has, in his latest production, turned out a really diverting picture, with genuine entertainment value. Incidentally, some of the melodramatic moments of the picture are really splendidly done. The scene in the operating room, where the insane surgeon has just been killed—the bride is accused—her rescuer defends her—the revolver in the hand of The Mute is found not to have been fired—and the door slowly swings open, moved by an unseen hand—touches a high point of melodrama seldom presented. At the close, the melodramatic portion of the picture proves to be a dream, but the transition from reality to the dream is so cleverly handled that it is very unlikely that the average fan will 'get wise' until the very end of the film. 'Alto' Allen is seen first as a young girl just expelled from boarding school, a role which she plays with vivacity and 'pep.' Milton Sills, opposite, has no great opportunity to use his ability, but is pleasing. Walthall is excellent as the vivaciousist. Truly Marshall and Laura La Plante contribute some good comedy moments. Irene Rich is wholesome and charming as the older sister and Mitchell Lewis handles the role of The Mute well. Nick Cogley is seen in one of his colored servant characterizations."

At the Strand, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—Milton Sills in "A Marriage Chance." Thursday, Friday and Saturday—Charles Ray in "The Deuce of Spades." Olympie Monday, four days—Rex Ingram's "The Prisoner of Zenda," with Alice Terry. Friday and Saturday—Mona Barrymore in "The Face in the Fog," a Cosmopolitan production.

Doris May Plays 'The Understudy' Empress Monday

Bristling with the spirit of fun and frolic with which all her vehicles are so richly invested "The Understudy" with Doris May in the star role comes to the Empress Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is Miss May's fifth production presented under the auspices of R-C Pictures and advance reports indicate that it goes even further along comedy lines than many of her preceding subjects. As the title indicates "The Understudy" has to do with the stage and its people, with the adventures of a stage struck little country girl, of whom a veteran chorus girl first

MILL REPORTS BUSINESS SHOWING GAIN OVER 1921. "Our business for the past 90 days," declared a representative of the Wichita Mill & Elevator company, Saturday, "shows marked improvement over the same period last year. We have sold more flour during the past days to European countries than we have since the war. We are very optimistic regarding the business outlook for 1923. We anticipate that after the first of the year, our business will be the best since 1920. In west central Texas one of our traveling men who has been covering that territory for the past 22 years, reports that there is more moisture in the ground and crops look better than they have for the past eight years."

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.—Revelation 2:10.
Men are enlisted for the labor that kills, let them be enlisted for the labor that feeds, and let the captains of the latter be held as much gentlemen as the captains of the former.—John Ruskin.

OIL INDUSTRY ALREADY HEAVILY BURDENED.

Oil as it comes from the ground is tangible, visible wealth. It is produced by a comparatively small proportion of the population and practically every barrel is gauged and accounted for. There is a popular belief that the production of oil is simply a matter of punching a hole in the ground, whereupon this hidden wealth will gush forth without effort or expense.

Oil, therefore, makes an almost ideal object of taxation. Taxes on oil are comparatively easily collected. It cannot be hidden and as compared with other industries few persons are engaged in its production. These are reasons why in nearly every state where oil is produced the industry must bear special taxes in addition to the regular and ordinary taxes borne by other industries.

Take the oil industry in Wichita county for instance. It is with other property in the county assessed at a much higher rate than the average for the state and pays a considerable part of the hundreds of thousands of dollars above the proportionate share which Wichita county pays into the state treasury. The conditions which make a high tax rate and a high valuation necessary in Wichita county apply to nearly every county where oil is found, so that even without the special production tax it is heavily taxed. The production tax is just so much added.

But Governor Neff, following the ordinary course of those seeking to raise more revenue, has picked on the oil industry to furnish the additional revenue to improve public education in Texas. He has pointed out that by the simple expedient of assessing a production tax of five per cent on oil some millions of dollars could be raised annually in Texas. It sounds simple and easy enough but it will add to the heavy burdens already borne by the industry and to many operators would represent the difference between profit and loss. Oil is found only after extensive exploration at heavy cost. A large investment is necessary for its production and much effort and labor. It is doubtful whether on the whole the industry pays back the money invested in it. These facts ought to be taken into consideration when proposals are made to increase taxes on the industry.

As a class there are none who appreciate the educational needs of Texas more than the oil men. They are ready to join with the citizenship as a whole in assuming heavier tax burdens for the benefit of education in Texas, but they ought not to be asked to assume the whole of the burden themselves.

UN SOUND PRACTICES MUST GIVE WAY.

In the days when transportation costs were much lower than now the location of factories and wholesale and jobbing houses in reference to their markets was not such a matter of great importance. But transportation costs have become a much bigger item in business and there is in process a considerable realignment and relocation of factories and wholesale houses to meet this problem of transportation costs.

That is one of the reasons why business men are looking upon the agitation for the location of cotton mills in West Texas with more favor. If cotton cloth could be manufactured in West Texas where cotton is grown or at points along the route cotton takes to the gulf ports, freight might be saved both on the raw material and the finished cloth. Men are studying this thing more closely than ever and unsound economic practices must give way.

Discussing this matter the Dallas Journal quotes an interview with Paul W. Brown, of St. Louis, editor of the World at Work, in which he gives an illustration of how the present practice works in a good many lines.

"I have a brother-in-law who conducts a factory in Kansas City," said Mr. Brown. "He recently bought a supply of duck from a manufacturing establishment in Wren, Mass. In his factory at Kansas City he made shooting jackets out of this duck and then sold the lot to a jobber in Philadelphia. A few weeks later he saw some of the shooting jackets in a window in one of the Kansas City sporting goods stores. He went in and asked the proprietor of the store where he had bought the jackets and was told that he had purchased them from the jobber in Philadelphia. This means that thousands of miles were unnecessarily traversed by the raw material which went into these jackets before they were ready for the ultimate consumer."

Here we see unnecessary transportation for the raw material, the cotton cloth and the finished garment. Some day that Kansas City manufacturer will buy his cotton duck from a West Texas mill and the Kansas City dealer will buy from a Kansas City jobber and freight will be saved at least three ways.

A VICTORY FOR LAW AND ORDER AT WACO.

After a series of lynchings there good citizens of Waco have determined that there will be no more of them and this determination received a successful test a few days ago. A Waco young man had been murdered and his body thrown over a cliff and his girl companion attacked. The young woman at first declared that the assailant was a negro. A year ago such an accusation would have meant that some negro would have been arrested, would have been taken from the authorities and lynched and the mob might not have stopped with a single lynching. Perhaps a race riot might have ensued in which many might have been killed.

But after a number of lynchings in Waco, citizens there have come to the belief that in one or more such incidents an innocent negro has been the victim of the mob, and with this belief has come a determination that no life shall be made to pay the penalty except through constituted and regular authority. So following the most recent murder in Waco all the civic organizations in Waco, including the American Legion, joined in an effort to prevent disorder and lynching. The effort was successful and now it has developed pretty certainly that the murder and the attack were not committed by a negro, but that two white men were responsible. It is hardly possible that these men can escape justice.

PRaise for the Texas Interscholastic League.

For several years there has been a steadily growing interest in high school football in Texas, resulting in athletic training for an increasing number of youths and all the benefits that come from interest in athletic sports by boys, and we can well believe, an increased interest in the youth and their schools on the part of the general public. This has been true in Wichita Falls and must be true in general for all schools in the state.

Giving credit where credit is due, we must ascribe much of this increased interest and the benefits that have followed to the Texas Interscholastic League, fostered by the University of Texas, which has arranged schedules and rules and had general supervision over the games. It would have been impossible to conduct the sectional contests and to have arranged for the inter-sectional games without some such agency, and that the Texas Interscholastic League has done its work well will go without contradiction.

The League fosters not only football but all other athletics suitable for school youth and also scholastic contests. It has quickened the interest of many a Texas boy and girl in things that will build body and character and develop the mind and has attracted public attention to the schools and their work. It is doing an excellent work and deserves all the support that can be given it.

In just a few more weeks this year will be last year.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PLEASE DON'T RUN AWAY!
Stevenson once wrote: "You cannot run away from a weakness; you must sometime fight it out or perish; and if that be so, why not now, and where you stand?"

I met an old friend the other day. I had not seen him since we were boys together. I remembered his weakness of being afraid to risk things. The years had not changed him. He still bemoaned his "luck." He was still afraid—but now he is no longer with that vast wealth of youthful daring that he once had. It has passed with the years.

Please don't run away from your weaknesses. Give them battle now—and at once—Have it out who shall win and be master!

Ah, it is a divine thing to spur the little peoples of this world to be helpful—the one to the other. And how perilous to starve your own spirit—and then to sneak up to steal the last shred of hope that clings to someone else.

It is vastly more evil to steal hope from a man than his money. He can set about again to earn his dollar loss—but who is he that can win back lost hope?

Surely there are wretchedness, despair, ill health, and base conditions all about us all. But we can walk right through them, as a man can walk through thick, deep mud—even though he may own no boots.

God lives—to be used. There is no sounder fact than this! Don't run away.

Stand your ground. Map out a plan—and then go to it. Fall you may. But what of it? Is not striving the very garment of success? There is something pathetically grand about the one who strives and does not win—but there is every bit of tragedy in the eyes of him who will not try.

Say this to yourself: "Well, at any rate, I shall not run away!" And I, for one, will bank on you. (Copyright, 1922, George Matthew Adams)

THE SCOUTMASTER.
There isn't any pay for you, you serve without reward. The boys who tramp the fields with you but little could afford. And yet your pay is richer far than men who toil for gold. For in a dozen different ways your service shall be told.

You'll read it in the faces of a troop of growing boys, You'll read it in the pleasure of a dozen many joys, And down the distant future—you will surely read it then, Embroidered through the service of a band of loyal men.

Five years of willing labor and of brothing a troop, Five years of turgid highways, with the Indian cry and whoop, Five years of camp fires burning, not alone for pleasure's sake, But the future generation which these boys are soon to make.

They have no gold to give you, but when age comes on to you They'll give you back the splendid things you taught them how to do, They'll give you rich contentment and a thrill of honest pride, And you'll see your nation prosper, and you'll all be satisfied.

Texas Viewpoints

A New State Constitution.

Amarillo Tribune: Governor Neff in opening his speaking campaign at Breham advocated the writing of a new constitution for Texas. This is a convention which has been growing among thoughtful people in Texas for a number of years, but so far as The Tribune is able to recall Governor Neff is the first executive of the state who has thrown the influence of his office behind the suggestion. Mr. Neff also fortifies his statement that we need a new constitution in Texas by an imposing array of citations wherein the present basic law of the state is hampering our development, working injustice and bringing into laws into general disfavor. One evidence of the fact that we need a new constitution and perhaps one of the most important features pointed out by Mr. Neff in his Breham speech is that there have been no fewer than ninety-one amendments to the present constitution written, most of them being put forward in recent years. Of this number thirty-eight were approved by the voters at general elections to consideration of the popular disapproval to approve constitutional amendments which acts a deterrent to the submission of amendments and prevents the adoption of many which should be approved. These figures furnish pretty conclusive evidence that Texas is in need of a new constitution. Mr. Neff also points out that when the present constitution was framed there were only 116,000 school children in Texas and there was not a city in the state as large as Amarillo is now. Since that time thirteen hundred thousand children attend our public schools now and we have many cities of more than 100,000 population. Moreover, we have witnessed the discovery of oil, the development of the automobile, electrical communication and scores of things which the framers of the constitution in 1875 never dreamed of. All these things have an important bearing on legal matters and property rights and the governance of our operations. Thoughtful people did not need the arguments of Governor Neff to convince them that we need a new constitution in Texas, but his views on the subject will help to crystallize public sentiment in favor of definite action. The splendid thing in calling the people of Texas to give thought to the important matters which will be brought before the next legislature, and it is to be hoped that the program through the legislature. It is constructive and comprehensive, while in addition to that they are people should become aroused on the subject. Our legislatures have never distinguished themselves for approving a good program, and it is not to be expected that the next one will prove any exception to the rule without the combined influence of the people and Governor Neff.

Better hang onto your German marks instead of using them to start the furnace or paper the attic. You might go abroad some time. And marks may be next to worthless here, but not beyond the Rhine.

DECIDING.
Tony Gultski, speeding on his motorcycle, fails to make up his mind quick-enough which of two routes to take, and crashes into a telephone pole, fracturing his skull. This happens at Whiting, Ind.

The power of quick decision is among the most important faculties of the mind. Increasingly so, as road traffic becomes more congested. In normal activities, snap-judgment is often as fatal as slow decision in emergencies. The world now is undergoing Europe's snap-judgment of 1918.

FINGER PRINTS.
In nine cases out of 10 the guilt of criminals is definitely established by finger prints. So claims James E. Fisher, president of a convention of identification experts.

In the next few years, you'll hear and read a lot about the advisability of finger printing everybody in America. It is the only form of identification that cannot be forged or mistaken. And there should be more emphasis on having finger prints on file with the government than giving your name to the census taker. Finger prints defend more people than they convict.

Wife, interviewed about his ambition, says he is offering to send the death current through the electric chair and its occupant, as low as $175 a job.

"I don't do it, somebody else will." There are some jobs that, if handled properly, cannot pay too much money. A million a year would be cheap for a man willing to be experimented on for the benefit of medical science.

And there are other jobs that should pay so little that no one would take them. An executioner, for instance. Still, it might be possible. Plenty of men will kill for $5 a head.

Bonar Law, conceivably, may be head of the British empire for five years, possibly 10. Or he may be out in another week.

That's because they have this system. When the party in power gets deadlocked with the opposition, it has to call for a vote of confidence. And if it loses on the vote, a general election automatically follows.

In our country a president, once in office, remains for four years even if he and his party become so deadlocked with the party out of power that the wheels of government nearly all stop.

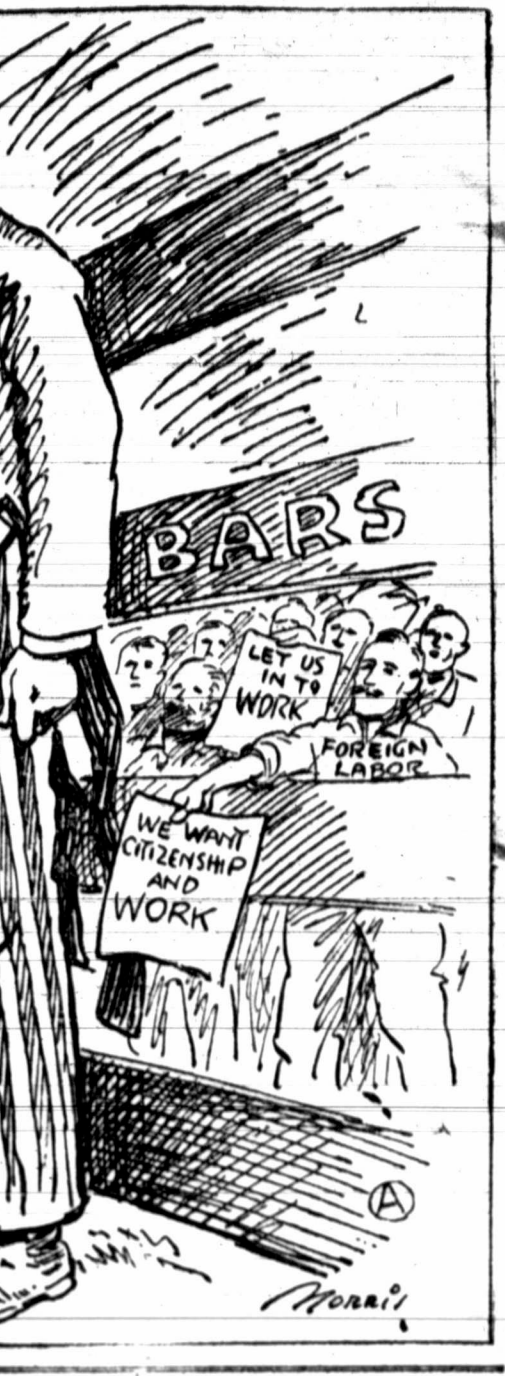

Still, if we adopted the British system, which Canada also has—we might have general elections every few weeks.

FOLKS BACK HOME

By Robert Quillen

When the two Howard boys were in high school everybody agreed that Richard, the younger, would amount to something. Tom wasn't much, but he was a bashful and quiet, and gave little promise of setting the woods afire. Richard was quick-witted and given to clever remarks and his mind worked like a steel trap. Moreover, he worked hard and asked no favors in sports. His popularity was due to both boys went off to college, working during vacation periods to pay their way, and both found jobs in their respective lines when they came home.

College course was finished, Tom got a job here at home, and Richard went to the county seat, where he had a month for the privilege of living on a good street in the county seat, and his present salary is $250 a month. People say his superiority was only superficial, but that wasn't the trouble. He found a broader outlook, but he found a better competitor along with it.

You have, perhaps, made efforts to train a dog. Scold and kick him, and he will look bewildered and seem a fool; pat him on the head, and he will do his darndest. And you have helped little Bill with his arithmetic. He patient with Bill and keep him in good heart and he will muddle through; scold him and his face will darken with sullen despair while his mind slips over to the idle pulley.

Now about that employe who raps your nerves at intervals. He isn't faultless, else he would have a better job. His mind doesn't function as smoothly as yours, else your job wouldn't be safe. But unless your ragging has made him sullen, he is making honest effort to deliver the service he is paid for.

Now one man in a thousand may do better work when you make him mad; and one in a hundred may be scared by ragging and improve his output to hold his job; but the average man is trying hard to deliver the goods, and he will try the harder for a little commendation.

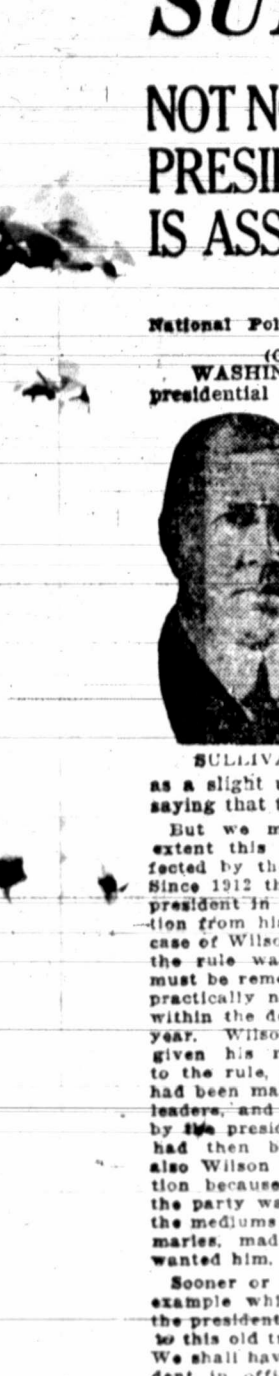

When every man on the job seems a fool and a loafer, it isn't a new force that is needed. The boss needs something for his nerves.

While Willie. Little Willie Willis has tasted the sweets of fame: Rather than take a dare, he jumped from the roof of the hardware store to a hand pile in the alley, an' new even the slight grim boys call him "Bill."

SULLIVAN DISCUSSES PROBABLE REPUBLICAN LEADER IN 1924

NOT NOW FOREGONE CONCLUSION PRESIDENT SERVING FIRST TERM IS ASSURED OF A RENOMINATION

By MARK SULLIVAN
National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and Washington Daily Times
Copyright, 1922, by the New York Evening Post
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 7.—All consideration of the republican presidential nomination for 1924 begins with President Harding. A good many say that it ends with him also. That, however, does not necessarily follow. The most experienced politicians will tell you that the rule which calls upon a party in power to nominate the president in office for a second term cannot be broken. In point of fact, however, this rule has been broken in the past and will be broken in the future more than it has in the past.

SULLIVAN
as a slight upon the president. It was regarded as the equivalent of saying that the president has not been a success.

But we must consider to what extent this tradition has been affected by the presidential primary. Since 1912 there has been only one president in office seeking nomination from his party. That was the case of Wilson in 1912. In that case the rule was not broken. But it must be remembered that there was practically no opposition to Wilson within the democratic party in that year. Wilson would have been given his renomination according to the rule, even if the nomination had been made wholly by the party leaders, and had not been affected by the presidential primaries which had then become prevalent. But also Wilson was given his nomination because the rank and file of the party wanted him, and through the medium of the presidential primaries, made it known that they wanted him.

Sooner or later we shall have an example which will show us what the presidential primaries have done to this old tradition of both parties. We shall have a case where a president in office seeks renomination, and where the leaders by the party wanted him, and through the medium of the presidential primaries, made it known that they wanted him.

The net of all this is that the presidential primaries which are now practically universal in all the states give a different and much weaker standing to the president in office than the rule which calls upon a party in power to nominate the president in office for a second term (assuming, of course, that he wants it). It is easy to picture a situation in which a president in office wants a renomination, in which the party leaders generally think it is a good policy to give him a renomination, but in which the rank and file of the party want one of the other candidates.

ected by the recent election. Before that election took place there was the same amount of quivering and wonder whether or not Harding would care for a second term. Before the election at various times during the past year or so, it was rather frequently and with some definite grounds for saying it, that Harding's mood did not incline him to care for a second term. Among various qualities that Harding has, there is none more conspicuous than the fact that he does not care for power as such. He is probably more free from the lust for power than any president we have ever had. There are no big projects for which he has dedicated himself and which he is so anxious to put through that he would want to be president for the purpose of achieving some great end. On the other hand, he has no particular taste for the sheer luxury of power. Many of the circumstances of the presidency must be distasteful to him. He is a man who likes to say "Yes" to his friends, and he has found that to be president—to fill the office—is a great deal more than he would care to do. He is a man who would rather be a private citizen than a president. He is a man who would rather be a private citizen than a president. He is a man who would rather be a private citizen than a president.

Whether Harding should or should not decide to hold himself open for a second term, his policy, as the spokesman of his party, he will try to guess what a man in Harding's position would be likely to do. First of all he would try to get the approval of the party and all the other pending measures cleaned up during the present session, before the general election. Assuming that he is successful in this, he would then try to refrain from calling a special session next year. It would be in the interest of the administration to do this. It would be in the interest of the administration to do this. It would be in the interest of the administration to do this.

he his course. With equal certainty, if he had not any desire for a renomination, but were merely trying to carry out the will of the party, and otherwise to adjust himself to the spirit of the rank and file of the party as shown in the recent election, his course would be the same.

Other Alternatives
When you leave Harding and consider the other alternatives, you find yourself facing a crowded and confusing field. The spirit which was most conspicuous in the recent election has several leaders. That wing of the party which is called "radical" by the conservatives, but which calls itself merely "progressive" has several leaders. There are La Follette of Wisconsin, Hiram Johnson of California, Borah of Idaho, and Capper of Kansas—all of whom are spoken of as potential candidates for the presidency. (Although at least one of these declares not only that personally they have no such ambition, but also that if they were thrust into the (kind they would try to escape the responsibility.) In addition to these there is one other, Kenyon of Iowa. To a considerable section of the party in 1924, sufficiently satisfactory to the farmers and others who compose the uneasy wing of the republican party, to make his renomination satisfactory to them. Things might or might not turn out that way. But if a man in Harding's position were to act consciously with a renomination in mind, this would probably you has some strength among the followers of the farm bloc. It is also true that a considerable number of the radical and progressive republicans in the west have been alienated from him and have without reason. If the facts were known—been made suspicious by his action in giving up the senatorship for a federal judgeship.

Measure of Strength
In the very number of these leaders of the progressive or radical wing of the republican party, there is a measure of strength in terms of strategy for the regular party leaders. If there were three, or four, or five progressive leaders running in the presidential primaries, all depending for their strength on the progressive vote in the west and elsewhere, it is obvious that they would divide it. And while the presidential primaries have taken away some of the power of those republicans who make a profession of political strategy, they have by no means taken all of it. Like many another device which aims to take away some of the advantages that go with experience and skill in politics, the presidential primary can only go so far. It would be easily possible for some of the states' old guard leaders to take a careful survey of the situation as it stands, and then compare it with the situation in the country west of the Mississippi river. If Harding were running for the republican nomination in presidential primaries against any one of the progressive leaders, the progressive would probably get the delegates in the bulk of the states in this territory. But if Harding were alone in the conservative field, and if the progressive field were divided among several, the result would be quite different. If the progressive leaders are to capitalize effectively the strength they are now known to have, they will need to come to agreement with each other and to achieve some teamwork. It is usually one of the weaknesses of a progressive popular movement that the number of leaders is comparatively too large in proportion to the number of followers. To get the half dozen or more progressive republican leaders who are looked upon as presidential timber, into a room together, and to get them to agree upon some one of their number as the single standard-bearer of their wing of the party, would be rather more difficult than to do the same sort of thing with a similar number of regular party leaders who are familiar with the necessity for teamwork and accustomed to compromise.

May Urge Lawden
It is not part of the intention of this article to be particularly comprehensive. But there are few suggestions which ought to be included. One is the possibility that Harding, assuming that he votes in all, may not have the conservative field wholly to himself in the presidential primaries. Certain of the progressive leaders, and in particular Gifford Pinchot, the recently elected governor of Pennsylvania. To be a progressive leader acceptable to the progressives of the west, and at the same time to have behind you the big and nominally regular republican state of Pennsylvania, is a unique combination of strength. Moreover, Pinchot is decidedly the sort of man whom destiny occasionally picks for a shining mark. No man has a truer sense than he of what is the real cleavage between conservative and progressive. That cleavage rests on the contrast between human rights on the one side, and material interest on the other. Pinchot has it in him to see this distinction more clearly than some of the other progressive leaders, and to take his position on the side of human rights as courageously as any of them. It is quite possible that some trend of circumstance, some juxtaposition of the man and the hour, might make Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania a very important figure in 1924.

middle west recently suggest that ex-Governor Lawden of Illinois, who came on near the prize in 1922, may be urged by his followers, or moved by events, to figure in the situation again in 1924.

Another suggestion, in a quite different field, is that it is a mistake to think of the progressive wing of the party, and of the progressive candidates for the republican nomination, in terms of the west alone. No man has a clearer title to be described as a progressive leader than Gifford Pinchot, the recently elected governor of Pennsylvania. ### PRINCIPLE SHOULD COME BEFORE PARTY DECLARES GOMPERS

ATTRIBUTES MUCH OF POLITICAL EVIL TO BLIND PARTY ALLEGIANCE.

ADDRESSES CONFERENCE OF PROGRESSIVE LEADERS

Breaking of Such Adherence Only Hope of Restoring Government to People.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—To the "unquestioning allegiance to party by which that obligation is placed above principle and above country" is to be attributed "much of the political evil" of the nation's past and present life, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared in an address today before the conference of progressive leaders here to discuss a program of liberal legislation.

"The time has come, Mr. Gompers said, when we are 'entitled to hope' that this 'blind adherence' to party is being broken for in that he asserted, like the only hope of 'restoring control of our government to the people,' and abrogating 'those assumptions of power that have cost them so dearly.'"

Largely because of this "unthinking loyalty" to party, Mr. Gompers said, "the courts have been able to steal away powers which it was never intended they should have" and which, was one of the most important causes of the loss of government control by the people. No matter what may be the people's will to attainment of "progressive constructive legislation," the speaker said, the judiciary, through its "assumed" power to declare unconstitutional the enactments of congress in "direct violation of the constitution" exercises that power to annul that will.

Asserting the judiciary exercises the "unwarrantably assumed power" to "curb or prohibit freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of assembly," Mr. Gompers added:

"I can say without the slightest possibility of contradiction that the injunctive process as used in labor disputes is the result solely and entirely of this assumption of power on the part of the judiciary."

"If we aim to restore the control of our government to the people and if it is necessary for the citizenship of the United States to organize as citizens without regard to political party affiliations or political party obligations, faithful to the republic of the United States and determined to carry out the restoration of that control."

"Contributory to the attainment of these high purposes the producers of the country on the farm, in the field, factory, mine or workshop must be organized. It is through organization that we secure fullest development of uniform and intelligent opinion."

"Also the men of affairs and women of affairs, engaged in honest industry and commerce, and all who are high minded, patriotic, liberty loving and humanity loving men and women, should feel called upon to give their fullest support to a movement so necessary to the perpetuation of the ideals of our republic."

"Unless we can restore control of our government to the people, disaster will come upon us."

CARPENTER'S WORLD TRAVELS
(Copyright, 1922, by Frank G. Carpenter)

London sulk in the dumps, feeding its idle on government doles; Berlin, drunk at its mad Belshazzar feast, dances on a volcano with Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharisa writ on its walls; Vienna, half naked and starving, fiddles like Nero while the Austrian capital burns; but gay, joy-loving, pleasure-mad Paris is busy at work. The words of American tourists rushing hither and thither under conductors who show only the battle fields, the great picture galleries, and, I regret to say, also the sparsely clad females at Montmartre and the Folies Bergeres may not see it, but I find work everywhere.

The streets are thronged with traffic. Tram-cars and great motor buses whose fronts look like a locomotive's snout are loaded with laborers and clerks going back and forth to the shops; taxi-cabs rushing like fury wind their way in and out through the streets. The streets are thronged with traffic. Tram-cars and great motor buses whose fronts look like a locomotive's snout are loaded with laborers and clerks going back and forth to the shops; taxi-cabs rushing like fury wind their way in and out through the streets.

A great part of Paris now goes to work in the motor buses that serve all sections of the city. First-class passengers sit in the front, while those who pay the lower second-class fare must ride in the rear.

France is making "livvers" of her own that are much better looking than the American car with which they compete. On account of the heavy tax on motor horsepower and the high cost of gasoline, these baby automobiles of light weight and low-powered engines sell by the thousands.

Indeed, this city is now one great hive of industry with tens of thousands of individual workshops, and great factories outside making steel and iron, machinery, railway and bus material, and other planes, and automobiles. Only this week I visited one establishment which covers more than one hundred acres and has sixteen thousand hands as busy as hammers. It has seventy acres of buildings and is loaded with orders. It makes automobiles, trucks and buses, tractors, cycle cars, and almost everything that goes upon wheels with gasoline as a fuel.

There is another motor car factory, known as the Citroen, devoted to cars like our "livvers," or the well known "Tin Lizards," only of lower horsepower, and a much finer body. It is running to its capacity and can not supply the demand. Nearly all of the establishments that work on machines have been changed over to supply individual needs. They are making typewriters, farming machinery, and other articles, and are using materials for the reconstruction work in the north.

Some Industries of Paris
Here in Paris there are numerous manufacturing centers, each having its own branch of industry. One district, for instance, is devoted to the carriage shops; another is devoted to making new bodies and designing equipment for automobiles. There are also chemical works, and at Saint Denis, Clichy, Saint Quentin and Pantin are sugar factories. The principal specialty here is the manufacture of artificial flowers, dresses, furs and fine notions. The city manufactures also clocks and watches, fine porcelain, wall papers and tapestries. It is famous for its embroideries, dress trimmings and artificial flowers; and it has a large and busy glass works and chemical factories.

Indeed, Paris makes everything under the sun, from pins to locomotives, from buttons to flying machines, and from gloves to beautiful gowns. It has more than twenty thousand women who are engaged on parts of ladies' dresses, and the trade of the complete costumes, and they turn out a product worth about ten million dollars a year. It has thousands working on corsets, not only for Paris but for all parts of France and for shipment abroad. It has five thousand working on hats, each employing three or four hands. The furniture does not compare in durability with that made by machinery, but it is exquisite, and of a great deal of gilded. There are two thousand shops here making watches to the value of five million dollars per annum; and other thousands making Articles de Paris, which means notions and fancy goods of all sorts, including jewelry, artificial flowers, and every kind of leather, horn, bone, and ivory. In fact, the French are producing almost anything one can imagine, and the make everything well.

One of the big industries of Paris is the supplying millinery and gowns for the rich of the fashionable world. Just now the best market is the United States, and every American woman who passes through carries home Parisian frocks and hats. Those who have several should watch out for the customs. According to our tariff laws no person can bring into the United States more than $100 worth of new clothes.

dealer had sent in a bolt of lovely brown velvet to be tried for the headgear. There are ready-made hats, such as one seen in the windows, but the artistic Paris milliner builds his hat on the head of the buyer. The scissors clip out the lines most becoming, and, with a plentiful supply of pins to hold and twist, the trick is performed. Every woman now wears some sort of wreath on her hair in the evening, and this she buys at a department store or in some small shop which has copied the creations of the Rue de la Paix.

How to get One Cheap.
One can pay almost anything she pleases for a fine gown in Paris. The great dressmakers are artists and their charge for their specialized skill. The ordinary French woman, however, does not patronize them, nor does she set her feet on the Rue de la Paix except to go window shopping among the gorgeous jewels displayed on each floor. The dressmaker, indeed, she hardly knows where Worth, Callot, Jenny or Paquin are located, unless by some lucky chance she has an acquaintance with the exhibitor of photographs of the frocks designed by these masters; and then goes to her own little dressmaker who lives three or four flights up on a street in a back street, and together they plan out and copy the famous model she chooses.

Paris acts the fashion for the world. Most of our large stores send their buyers for gowns, hats and other articles to Paris. They sell the next season. Such buyers will take home only one dress or hat of a kind to show in the windows, and the rest are ordered for copies. Such articles are ordered in regular business. They are designed by the great artists in the dressmaking houses, and such houses have exhibitions to which the American buyers are invited by the storekeepers. The buyers are ceremonial, and beautiful women employed for the purpose, walk back and forth wearing the gowns and hats they are buying. They think they will appeal to the American market. One famous dressmaker this year showed his creations at a banquet given in a beautiful garden, the mannequins walking about among the tables. Later there are exhibitions of the same model for individual purchasers and copies are subject to sale or export by the establishment in which they originate.

Years ago I began to feel the great number of my own friends and neighbors who were complaining of weakness, nervousness, and all their vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

NOTE: The above remedy is known to be absolutely reliable. Over 4,000,000 packages of Nuxated Iron are sold annually, and it has been used and highly recommended by former U. S. Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts and many physicians. For sale in this city by E. B. Smith, Mack Taylor, Palace Drug Store, Wilford Harrison and all other druggists.

There is a great waste of labor in the stores, and the customer has to do a share of the work in every purchase he makes. There is always a long queue of customers about the bookkeepers, and this clogs the business. Indeed, it seems to me that Paris often uses three men to do what New York or Boston does with one.

MOTOR BEARING OF OAKLAND WAS TESTED IN WAR

Only the tried and tested in mechanical equipment were used during the late war; and when even the tried and tested did not come up to specifications, there was developed equipment to meet the severe requirements of war-time activity.

Among the notable developments during the war was an interchangeable motor bearing which was designed and developed especially for the Liberty motors, themselves the great outstanding mechanical achievement contributed by the United States to the cause of the allies.

It is this same type of bearing used so successfully in Liberty motors that has been standardized in the Oakland 4-44 models as crankshaft bearings and that so far has made an enviable record.

The Oakland interchangeable crankshaft bearing is declared to be the most accurately built motor bearing today. The measurements are held to one-twelfth the size of a human hair.

The same accuracy which has been built into the bearing is maintained in the machining of the crankcase, reported to be one of the most closely finished shafts made. The main bearing bores are machined to an accuracy of .0002 of an inch. The main bearings are made within an accuracy of .0002 of an inch.

The great advantage of this accuracy lies in the fact that it enables assembly into the crankcase without reaming, burning or scraping. They are assembled without force, guaranteeing the same kind of performance for every motor in which they are used.

This results in the interchangeability feature. So close are the crankshaft bearings, crankshaft and component parts machined that in case of replacement, a bearing may be obtained from any Oakland service station and fitted into place by hand. This bearing will afford the same bearing clearance and function under exactly the same conditions as the bearing placed in the motor at the factory.

It is likewise claimed that the babbit lining has a greater density than any now used, with 50 per cent greater tensile strength. This babbit lining is bonded with pure tin which has a higher melting point than the bearing metal, itself. Regardless of how hot the bearing should become, due to lack of oil or any other condition the babbit lining will not melt loose from the bronze backing, due to this difference in melting point.

Identify Spark Plugs. A good way to keep track of the spark plug leads is to file notches in each terminal, each terminal containing as many slots as conform with the order of the plug. When a change is made, or other work is done around the cylinders, the terminals may be removed without fear of interchanging them when they are replaced.

An automatic traffic control system is now under trial by a large American city. The "stop" and "go" signs are changed mechanically at definite periods.

WHY "PHANTOM"

George J. Mercer, member of the Society of Automotive Engineers' standards committee, which chose standard names for automobile bodies, gives the following explanation of the name "phantom" for what had heretofore been termed "touring car." "Touring" applies to any particular type of body because all types are used for touring. "The type of body in question is the logical successor of the family horse-drawn open carriage known as the phaeton. It was so called in the earliest handbooks of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers."

SAYS OVERLAND IS "PLUS" CAR AS FOR COMFORT

"These are the needs of the day in personal transportation," said Mr. Abner, the local Willys-Overland dealer.

"One, economy—Economy in first costs plus economy in operating costs and economy in upkeep over a long period of use.

"Two, comfort—And this means not alone the physical ease you have a right to demand from the motor car of your personal choice at any time on any sort of road, but the mental ease that can come only from the confidence the Overland immediately gives you in the quality of its design, in its materials and in its construction.

"Three, power—Power with light weight. The ability to go wherever business of the turn of the road calls, power as expressed in those ample reserves of speed and pull which merge into practically effortless motion.

"Four, completeness—A car whose first cost provides you all the conveniences of equipment you need for immediate use."

BEWARE MOTOR SOCIETIES WARNS SECRETARY CALEY

By NEA Service, WASHINGTON, D.C. 2—A warning against joining fraudulent automobile associations has been issued here by Fred Caley, secretary of the National Motorists' association.

The warning comes after attention of the association officials had been called to the organization throughout the country of various "societies" which were selling memberships to automobile owners.

The men behind these alleged fraudulent societies open up an office in either state or national capital and from it send circulars to motorist prospects. The fees have ranged from $5 to $25.00.

The inducement is an offer to furnish automobile accessories at from 20 to 50 per cent discount, free touring and other information, and a certificate of other identification of membership in the society.

A strong solution of washing soda is best for cleaning corroded terminals.

FRITZ MOTOR CO. GETS NAME ON LOVING CUP

The Fritz Motor company of this city holds the distinction of being the Marmon dealer who made more demonstrations of the car to prospective United States. As recognition of this honor, the large silver loving cup shown above has been sent here to be placed on display. The name of the company has been inscribed on it.

The Marmon Automobile company sets aside one week of each year called "Demonstration Week." The dealer who effects the most demonstrations of the car to prospective purchasers is permitted to keep this cup for one year. This system was inaugurated last year when a firm in New York state won it. The firm that wins the cup three years in succession is entitled to ownership.

Anti-Shock Springs

Jars and shocks are said to be considerably reduced by the use of a spring-like "shock absorber" manufactured especially for use on a small car. The springs are attached to the chassis, as shown without interfering with the regular spring work. There is a special size for trucks.

Front wheels should toe in slightly.

BOYS AND GIRLS ARE BENEFITED BY GOOD ROADS

Equality of opportunity in education for every American boy and girl is afforded by good roads.

This thought is stressed by the National Motorists' association, which has been called upon to assist in making American education week a success, beginning December 3. The U. S. Bureau of Education, the American Legion and the National Education association are behind this movement and President Harding has issued a proclamation calling for a nation-wide support and observance of it.

Garland W. Powell, assistant national director of the American Legion, expressing his appreciation of the support being given by the three national organizations by the N. M. A., stresses the important part which motorists could and should play in promoting education and Americanism.

He points out that without good roads and the proper use of the motor vehicle, the federal government could not successfully carry out some of the duties imposed upon it by statute. Mr. Powell suggests that as a result of improved highways the people are brought in closer touch with business, social, educational and governmental affairs; that the rural free delivery service is made possible and those on farms and in far-away places are no longer compelled to live a life of isolation.

FLASHLIGHT NO. 5 GOES TO DOCTOR; SAYS HE'LL USE IT

Dr. R. C. Smith recognized his little ole 'bus' as it appeared in these columns last Sunday and accordingly was furnished with one of those snappy new flashlights, that are most convenient at any time.

The doctor said that the light will come mighty handy and that he will find a good deal of use for it. He stated that he had been wanting one some time but never did take the time to go after it.

Wheels should be removed for inspection once or twice a season and new wheels replace the old ones if necessary.

To the inner lining. A more effective method is in passing a piece of cloth through the pipe by attaching each end to a wire. By working the cloth back and forth, the line is sure to be thoroughly cleaned.

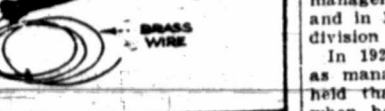

Tar spots, should be cleaned off with grease; asphalt with kerosene.

FUEL FROM CORN CORNS.

Corn cobs may become a new source for automobile fuel. Dr. Frederick B. LeForge and Gerald H. Haines of the bureau of chemistry of the U. S. department of agriculture, are credited with having perfected a method of obtaining furfural from corn cobs, to be used as a motor fuel and for other purposes.

To Clean Feed Pipe.

NEW MANAGER OF SALES DEPARTMENT NAMED BY WILLYS

John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company, announced Monday the appointment of L. G. Peed to the position of sales manager to succeed A. C. Barber, who recently resigned to take the presidency and management of the Overland Motor company of Chicago.

In moving to Chicago, Mr. Barber is fulfilling a long expressed desire to make Chicago his home.

Mr. Peed has come up through the Willys-Overland organization, joining the New York branch in 1917 as sales manager of the Broadway store. He was later made sales manager of the New York branch and in 1919 became assistant eastern division manager.

In 1921, Mr. Peed came to Toledo as manager of the local branch and held that position until last March when he was appointed assistant to Mr. Barber, which position he held until his appointment as sales manager this week.

Starting in the automobile business in 1907 as a mechanic, Mr. Peed has been successively machinist, tester, wholesale traveler, retail salesman, branch manager and sales manager.

SOME POINTERS AS TO CARE OF CAR IN WINTER

Preparations for use of the automobile during cold weather should include the following precautions: A mixture of denatured alcohol and water should go into the cooling system. About one quart of alcohol to a gallon of water will stand up well down to zero temperature.

When it becomes necessary to turn a smooth shaft which does not become distorted, as would occur with the use of a pipe wrench, the arrangement known as the "spanish windlass" may be effectively employed.

HOLIDAY PLACES CRIMP IN WEEK'S TAX COLLECTIONS

KNOWLEDGE FOR CAR OWNERS

Interesting and Important Facts That Every Motorist Should Know.

Never dip rags and cotton waste into the gasoline tank to obtain fuel for priming.

The differential is one place where too much of even the best oil will cause damage.

With the exception of the throttle fittings, there are no parts of a carburetor to be lubricated.

Sometimes the rubbing together of the floor boards will cause squeaks which are hard to locate.

Kerosene should never be used in a cooling system as it has a tendency to rot the rubber hose.

A good method of protecting the coil and distributor from water is to fashion a boot from a short section of an old inner tube.

Very often the anode bolts of motor supports work loose, causing annoying squeaks, rattles and in some cases a rattling vibration.

A common cause for failure of pressure is excessive dilution of the oil in the crank case, which prevents the building up of pressure when flowing through the bearings.

Bothersome rattles may be quickly overcome by inserting pieces of rubber between the two vibrating or chafing surfaces. An old inner tube can be used for this purpose.

A fan belt that has become so saturated with oil and grease as to impair its efficiency should be thoroughly washed in soap and water or treated with a belt dressing.

From time to time it is a wise plan to test a spark plug for leakage with one hand across it or to impair its efficiency should be thoroughly washed in soap and water or treated with a belt dressing.

It will be found effective to supply this coat of shellac followed by several layers of tape and thin coats of shellac to protect the radiator hose from oil and other destructive matter.

No part of a car is of more vital importance than the effective performance of the brakes, and anything less than 100 per cent braking efficiency may mean loss of life.

When "blowing out" a motor by means of kerosene or some other chemical, an old hose connection at least three feet long may be slipped over the muffler tail pipe and arranged to lead the carbon laden exhaust gas to a safe place behind the car.

Lay out an old piece of carpet underneath the car, and, with a handful of tools and an oil can, crawl under and make careful inspection. The bolts that hold the

Also make sure that the puncture outfit is complete, on a trip, and equipped with a liberal supply of patches and repairing canvas, a tube of soluble solution, tire valve tubing and valve parts, and that all wires, high tension and otherwise, are sound and uncracked, that there are no big cuts in the tires, no leaks in the oil tanks, none of those amulets of oil around the plug or valve caps that betray a faulty washer.

Another surprise of the evening was the taking of a collection at the close of the program in which funds were solicited for the benefit of the Christmas tree for this section in which we are trying to raise funds to supply the needs of every child for the Christmas season and make them feel that some one cares for them.

On account of the box supper of the Carrigan Mothers club on Tuesday evening we will not have choir practice but will meet in our regular Bible study service Wednesday evening and the subject in a very vital one and one that should be studied by everyone whether he be a Christian or a sinner. THANKSGIVING PROGRAM BY YALE AVENUE CHURCH

The ladies of the Yale Avenue Women's Missionary Society of the Evangelical church, gave the people of the Sibley-Taylor addition quite a treat on Thursday evening. With the help of the children of the Yale Avenue Sunday school and some of the young folks of the addition, an excellent short program was rendered to the surprise of many.

Use none but oils of the best grade, particularly for the engine. A cheap grade oil burns at a low temperature, depositing carbon in the cylinder head. It thus overheats the engine, causing friction and shutting down the power. It is more readily sucked up above the pistons where it burns, adding more carbon. The thin oil fails to seal the piston rings and compression and power are lost.

It is a good practice, in slippery weather, slowly to apply the brakes without releasing the clutch, until the momentum of the car is considerably reduced.

Connecting rod bearings should be tested by tapping them very gently with a hammer and watching for play. For the crankshaft bearings rock the shaft a little with a wrench. If this is done, the bearings are all right.

All mental parts of the battery, which are not lead coated, should be kept covered with vaseline.

New oil should be applied to the transmission and differential gears about every 4000 miles.

Among the spares to take with one on even week-end tours are: Sparking plug, section of chain and two detachable links, a spare belt and two fasteners if it is a belt-drive machine, valve with spring and conrod complete, tin of assorted nuts, bolts and washers, magnetron carbon brush, contact breaker rocker arm, platinum contact, a new tube and possibly a new valve.

Also make sure that the puncture outfit is complete, on a trip, and equipped with a liberal supply of patches and repairing canvas, a tube of soluble solution, tire valve tubing and valve parts, and that all wires, high tension and otherwise, are sound and uncracked, that there are no big cuts in the tires, no leaks in the oil tanks, none of those amulets of oil around the plug or valve caps that betray a faulty washer.

Our old pastor with us and he will bring us the message and I am sure he has something good for every one of us and we will be glad to hear him. Come out to these services and hear the words of the Lord and let us help to bring His kingdom to earth as in Heaven.

The services for the week will be as follows: Young Ladies Missionary Circle will meet Monday night 7:15 p. m. On account of the box supper of the Carrigan Mothers club on Tuesday evening we will not have choir practice but will meet in our regular Bible study service Wednesday evening and the subject in a very vital one and one that should be studied by everyone whether he be a Christian or a sinner. The subject is "A Sinner without God and What He Must Do to Be Saved." Come and bring your bible and help us in the study of this great message.—W. D. COOK, Pastor.

William Jennings Bryan's Weekly Bible Talk
The Good Samaritan Then and Now
By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

We are indebted to a certain lawyer for one of the greatest of Christ's parables and for the very practical truth He brought out therein—a truth that all of us today need to ponder and to inherit.

THE PARABLE OF THE GOOD SAMARITAN—TEXT OF TODAY'S BIBLE TALK BY MR. BRYAN (Luke 10:25-37)

And, behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit the life? He said unto him, What is written in the law? how readest thou?

He welcomed children, healed the sick, comforted the sorrowing and instructed the lawyers. Faith with Service. Christ was a religious teacher. He gave instruction in the synagogues and certified to the truth of the Books of the Law, but He did not hesitate to denounce the hypocrites who devoured widows' houses and tried to debase their sins by the uttering of long prayers.
