BEGIN HEARING IN CASE IN LOUISIANA; ALL ARE SEARCHED

MORE WITNESSES FOR THE DEFENSE IN MARION TRIAL

SEEK TO UPHOLD PLEA KILLINGS WERE 'JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE'

TESTIFY FIRST SHOOTING CAME FROM THE GUARDS

Twenty Minutes Before Miners Responded, According to Witness.

MARION, ILL., Jan. 5.—Testimony of additional witnesses was presented today by the defense to uphold its claim of "justifiable homicide" in the first of the Herrin riot trials.

John Crompton, union miner, testified that he met a crowd of men going toward the "strip" mine there three times early in the afternoon of June 21.

"The crowd had five workmen who came from the pit," he said. "One of them was named C. K. McDowell, superintendent of the mine, had threatened them with death if they quit."

Three witnesses yesterday testified that the crowd had gone to the mine to try and induce the non-union workers in the pit to quit but the guards refused to allow them to go to McDowell and then opened fire on them from a concealed machine gun on top of the mine dump.

"Two men went ahead of the crowd to the mine and asked to see the superintendent, telling him that their mission was peaceful but the guards swore at them and told them they had no right there, and to get out," Crompton testified.

The witness said he did not see the firing begin from the mine and that he saw J. D. Henderson, the first of three men who fired the shot after the first firing it was fully 20 minutes before the fire was returned from outside the mine.

Crompton testified that the crowd went into the "strip" mine in the belief that the non-union workers there were being held virtual prisoners.

The defense read a letter written on June 19 by Sherman Holmes, one of the guards at the mine, which said that the guards had "two guns on the dam reservoir, two on the cook and sleeping cars and six on top of the hills which shoot 600 shots a minute each."

"There also are 100 guards with rifles which shoot three miles," the letter continued. "I am under contract for 90 days. We sit here on an eight hour shift watching for some one to stick their heads over the mountains and shoot the woods so as to give us a little practice in shooting."

BOARD OF PHARMACY TO MEET IN SAN ANTONIO

DALLAS, TEXAS, Jan. 5.—The Texas state board of pharmacy will hold a meeting for examination of prescriptions at the St. Anthony hotel in San Antonio, Texas, beginning January 12. The members of the Texas state board of pharmacy are John B. Ray, Abilene, (bacteriology and physiology); C. A. Ellard, Houston, (chemistry); W. H. Wiseman, San Antonio, (poology, toxicology and prescriptions). This meeting will be attended by the officers of the national association of boards of pharmacy; Edward H. Waldorf, president, of New Orleans, La.; H. C. Christensen, Chicago, Ill., secretary; and the secretary of the board of pharmacy of Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas and Missouri. It will also attend this meeting.

The Texas state board of pharmacy meets three times a year to examine applicants for registration the third Tuesday in January at San Antonio, the third Tuesday in May at Houston and the third Tuesday in September at Dallas. There will be more than 100 applicants to take the examination at this meeting.

Woman Killed on Fort Worth Pike; Search for Man

FORT WORTH, Jan. 5.—Clues to the slayer of Mrs. Ben Myers, young woman who was shot to death last night as she sat in an automobile on the Fort Worth-Dallas pike, lead today to Dallas and to nearby towns. Officers left at 10 o'clock for Dallas, where the suspect had been recently seen by a witness on the highway, stepped over a fence, placed a revolver to her head and fired, killing her instantly.

Mrs. Myers, stopping two motor cars from Dallas, told them she had been to the roadside, stepped over a fence, placed a revolver to her head and fired, killing her instantly.

The Dallas motorist took her into their car, the man, who had been standing by the roadside, stepped over a fence, placed a revolver to her head and fired, killing her instantly.

FRANCE PREPARES TO MAKE GERMAN DAY REPARATIONS

FREE TO HANDLE PROBLEM ACCORDING TO HER OWN FORMULA.

APPARENTLY HAVE THE SUPPORT OF BELGIUM

British Member Commission Will Not Attend the Next Meeting.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—A special meeting of the reparations commission has been called for tomorrow morning at the request of the French delegation for the purpose of considering Germany's default on coal deliveries for the past year.

It is considered almost certain that Germany will be formally declared in default on the coal required by the commission for 1922.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—France, free to handle the reparations question according to her own formula, turned today to the task of making Germany pay. The French government apparently has the support of Belgium, it is less certain of Italy's aid.

Premier Poincare will discuss Belgian cooperation with Premier Tardieu before the latter returns to Brussels this evening. He also planned to have a talk with Mr. Bonar Law prior to the British minister's departure for London earlier today.

It is believed that the commission will meet on March 21 next to allow time for the commission to complete its report.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—The joint conference of bituminous coal operators and mine owners here today to permit a separate meeting of the operators today without any new proposition having been presented.

The morning session was marked by a refusal to consider the proposal made by telegraph yesterday by John J. Hammond, chairman of President Harding's fact finding coal commission, that the operators and miners agree to extend for one year the present agreement which will expire on March 31 next.

It is believed that the commission will meet on March 21 next to allow time for the commission to complete its report.

ONLY THREE BUILDINGS IN TOWN ESCAPE FIRE STARTED BY MOB TWO OFFICERS ARE SHOT DOWN

REPRESENTATIVES IN OIL DISTRICTS TO HOLD CAUCUS

WILL MEET EARLY NEXT WEEK TO MAP OUT CAMPAIGN.

GOVERNOR HAS AGREED TO WITHHOLD ACTION

As Situation Now Stands Indications Are Tax Will Be Increased.

By Staff Correspondent. AUSTIN, TEXAS, Jan. 5.—A conference of the 25 or 30 representatives from oil counties will be held early next week to agree on a program to be followed in oil legislation. It was learned today.

Governor Neff has promised E. H. Gipson and other oil county legislators that no effort will be made to push an increased production tax, or other measures affecting the oil business, until such a conference has been held. It is apparently the governor's expectation that the oil county men will agree to investigate reports that two negroes sought in connection with an attack upon a young white woman at Sumner Monday night.

With the exception of three buildings, the entire village was burned by a mob shortly after daylight, according to available reports here.

A part of citizens of Sumner went to Rosewood late last night to investigate reports that two negroes sought in connection with an attack upon a young white woman at Sumner Monday night.

STATION GUARD AT GRAVE OF SEAMAN RESULT OF REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The grave of James Jones, a seaman, at the national cemetery in Cypress Hills, Brooklyn, was guarded today by cemetery employees because of reports that William B. Williams, special agent of the treasury department, would seek legal permission to open the coffin to see if any part of the Russian crowd jewels had been secreted there.

Anthony Buschman, superintendent of the cemetery at Brooklyn, declined any knowledge of the case. He admitted, however, that James Jones had been buried in the cemetery September 22, 1920.

"I feel there may be something in the newspaper report," he said, "and hereafter I shall maintain a strict watch of the grave, which is similar in every respect to hundreds of others. I am a pretty good shot and if any one attempts to interfere with that grave or any others for that matter, he will be greeted with a charge of buckshot."

Treasury agents got an inkling of the alleged smuggling of the jewels in September, 1920. It has been established that the transport which brought Jones' body to New York was searched upon her arrival here but the jewels were not found. The coffin was kept on board for 23 days and as no relative could be found it was buried in Cypress Hills.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS DISCLAIM ANY KNOWLEDGE
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Government officials continued today to disclaim official knowledge of efforts to locate in a Brooklyn cemetery certain jewels alleged to have belonged to the Russian crown. At the treasury department, however, Assistant Secretary Clifford said that no matter how ill-founded the story might be, a thorough investigation had been ordered.

TWENTY-THREE ARE MISSING RESULT OF FALLING OF BRIDGE

KELSO, WASH., Jan. 4.—With the number of known deaths from the disaster caused by the collapse of a bridge here Wednesday night innumerable, the list of missing persons early today stood at 23.

Mary Kirk, one of the injured, died last night and George O. McDonald of injuries early yesterday. Up to this morning none of the bodies had been recovered but the arrival of expert grapplers from Fortunate was expected to facilitate the finding of the dead in the Columbia river.

PUBLISHER WINS SUIT IN WHICH PARTY ASKS $100,000 AS DAMAGES

DES MOINES, IOWA, Jan. 4.—Dante M. Pierce, publisher of the Iowa Homestead, was relieved of all liability in the suit for libel brought against him by Maynard Gensaul of Kansas City, when the federal court grand jury brought in a verdict in his last night after four hours deliberation.

NEW WELL NORTH OF GRAHAM LOOKS GOOD FOR 1,000

GRAHAM, TEXAS, Jan. 4.—Casey Meier, Jeffrey No. 1, three miles north of Graham, after a short flow in the morning, is making 1,000,000 feet of gas and 100 barrels of oil through 400 feet of sand. The well looks good for 1,000 barrels when cleaned out. The boiler is being moved back today.

ONE BANDIT AND THREE POLICE ARE WOUNDED IN FIGHT

SIoux CITY, IOWA, Jan. 4.—One bandit and three officers were wounded in a fight between bank robbers and officers at Maurice, Iowa, near Sioux City, at 3:30 o'clock this morning. The bandit who raided the Sioux County bank failed to get any loot. The posse surprised them while at work and opened fire, a running battle following. The wounded bandit escaped. The posse was led by Sheriff Synhorst of Orange county.

GRAVEUR'S PROGRAM TO BE PLEASINGLY VARIED

The president of the Musicians' club, Mrs. O. E. Nicholls, reports that the program that Louis Graveure, baritone, will sing here in recital, January 11, is one to suit all tastes, from that of the trained musician to that of the man who professes to be bored by what he calls "high brow stuff."

UNITED STATES HAS SAID LAST WORD ON REPARATIONS ISSUE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Advice that the American government, acting on request of Great Britain, would call an international conference on the consideration of the reparations question, met with the positive and authoritative statement today from officials of the state department that "there is no truth in it."

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Berlin correspondent of the Central News says that he learned from a well-informed source "that in accordance with a request made by the British on Wednesday the United States government intends to call an international conference in Washington next week to consider the reparations deadlock."

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The British foreign office this afternoon denied that it had requested the United States to call an international conference on reparations as reported by the Central News correspondent. It was made clear that the Washington government could not issue any invitation for the creation of such a commission because control of the reparations situation is not in American hands, but in those of the allies. There is no disposition in Washington, it was added, to seek to force the financial commission or any other plan upon the allies.

An administration spokesman made it plain that the American government could go no further than it has gone in the reparations situation. It was pointed out that the allies, even before the Paris meeting of premiers assembled, had been fully advised as to American views. Any suggestion to bring the medium of Secretary Hughes' speech recently at New Haven.

It has been noted officially that the first session in France to the American suggestion, despite the great tone taken by Secretary Hughes to make clear in his speech the wholly friendly purpose of the administration toward all the allies, was one marked by resentment so far as a French press comment is concerned.

WILL SECURE OPINION OF THE ADMINISTRATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The senate foreign relations committee today decided to secure the opinion of the administration on the resolution of Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, authorizing the president to appoint officials American representatives on the reparations commission before proceeding further with consideration of the measure.

ARREST FIVE IN CONNECTION WITH NEW ORLEANS CASE

BATON ROUGE, LA., Jan. 4.—Baton Rouge police today were holding five men, four of whom are dressed in uniforms of American marines and the fifth in civilian clothes, believed by the authorities to have been the five who Wednesday night kidnaped and robbed Joseph Dantonio, New Orleans chauffeur, whose automobile, according to chauffeur's story, was commandeered after it had been hired to the men.

The five men were said by police to have admitted they were American marines. Confusion in the kind of uniform the men wore was explained by the local police who said Dantonio in reporting his abduction to them declared at least three of the men were dressed in French uniforms.

FOUR TRAINMEN ARE KILLED IN A WRECK ON THE C. B. & Q.

LACLEDE, MO., Jan. 4.—Wrecking crews were busy today clearing the wreckage resulting from the head-on collision last night of two Chicago, Burlington and Quincy freight trains between Meadville and Laclede, Mo., in which four trainmen were killed and several injured. The wreck was caused by misunderstanding of orders, according to railroad men.

WELL ON WORSHAM RANCH IS SWABBING 80 TO 85 BARRELS

Swabbing between 80 and 85 barrels of the counting bordering an Red oil from the line at 2300 feet, the Gulf Production company's well on the W. B. Worsham ranch in Clay county shut down late last night, waiting on some officials to arrive from the Fort Worth office. The rumors circulated to the effect that the well was flowing at the rate of 60 barrels an hour gained big headway in this city, causing much excitement among operators and others and it was only a short time until hundreds of cars were speeding towards the vicinity of the new strike.

The Gulf company holds the lion's share of acreage surrounding the well. The Texas, Washburn, Humphreys and other big producing companies have holdings and are protected to some extent. The finding of oil at this depth (the deepest yet encountered in any well) has proved beyond doubt what has been the contention of a great number of conservatives, all men that sooner or later a deep oil-bearing stratum capable of bringing forth big production underlies this and the adjoining counties.

Further progress on this well will be watched with the keenest interest as the bringing in of a commercial producer by the Gulf company will have a stimulating effect on drilling operations in this section of the county.

TIMES' REPRESENTATIVE TAKES COUE'S AUTO SUGGESTION TREATMENTS

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NANCY, FRANCE.—I've been cured!

Which rendered into every-day English means that, supposedly being ill with a nervous breakdown, I have come to the famous auto-suggestion clinics held by Monsieur Coue and have been taught how to get better and better!

Monsieur Coue presently will be holding clinics in the United States, so I became a patient at his clinic in Nancy in order that I could give fellow-Americans back home an intimate introduction to his methods. Clinics always suggest hospitals.

You fell a friend in Paris you are running over to Nancy to put yourself in the hands of Monsieur Coue, and unless he has been cured himself, he at once pictures you being questioned and examined, tucked in bed with a uniformed nurse telling you three times a day what the doctor says you must take and must forego. And finally, there is, of course, the question of the fee for the doctor and the charges for the hospital.

That is what makes it so nice about being cured.

There is no fee. There is no hard and fast regimen. There are not even fussy preliminaries.

Come like an infirmity.

Take my own case. I simply "barged in" on Monsieur Coue. Most people do. He is used to it. He likes it. He encourages it.

I took a taxi at the railway station and told the chauffeur to drive me to Monsieur Coue, 116 Rue Jeanne d'Arc.

The driver knew the place well. He is always taking Americans and Britons there.

Arrived at Monsieur Coue's residence, a simple two-story cement-faced building, I simply followed the visitors ahead of me. There were, perhaps, 40 or 50 of us in all when Coue came in. We sat around in chairs in his office and in the front parlor across the hall.

The only bit of formality, I observed was that we all rose, as a token of respect and greeting to the little man.

How Coue Looks

Coue himself is a bit over 50, with fresh pink complexion and silvery gray hair, mustache and beard. His dark eyes twinkle with good humor, with tolerance, with comprehension, and with physical, mental and moral well-being.

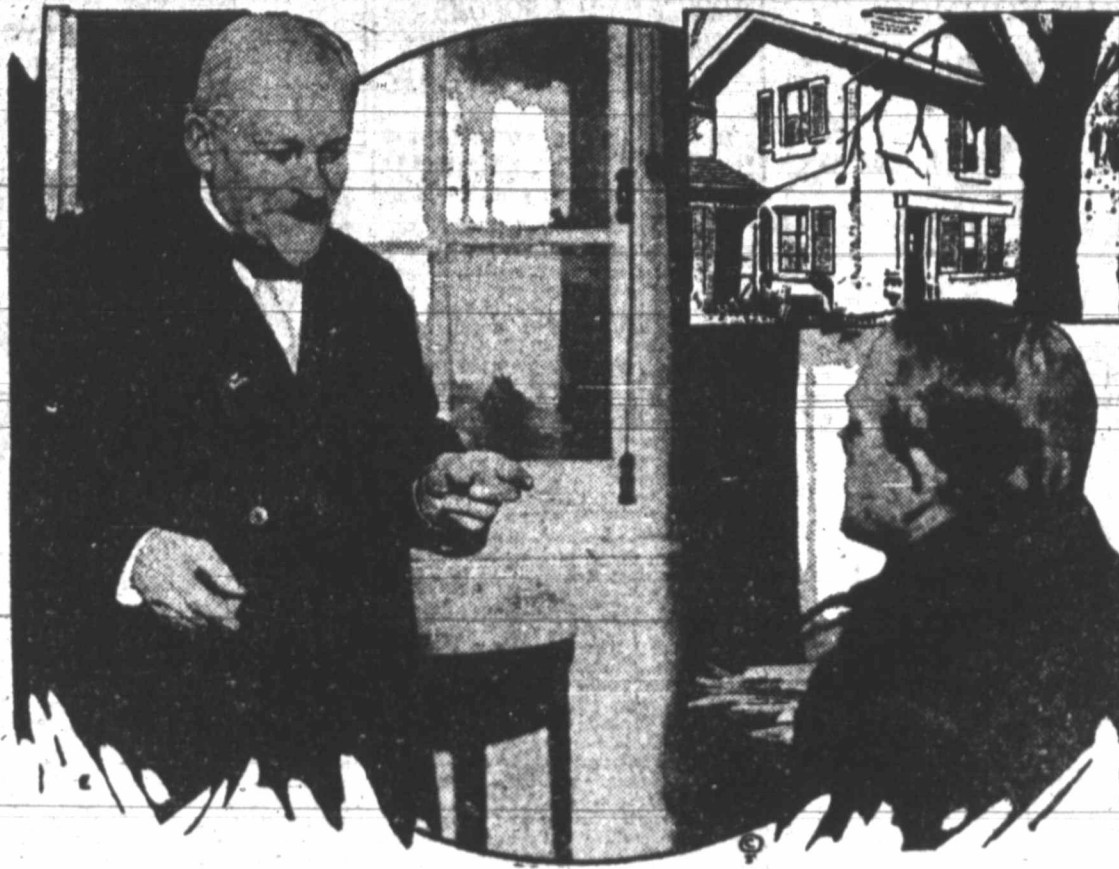

Heavy as he was a pharmacist. Then he evolved his theories of how to help us heal ourselves of many ills. He retired from his pharmacy and has been freely spending himself on the new work ever since.

Here in Nancy—except when traveling on Mondays and Fridays he has open house for all comers, natives and foreigners.

On these days he has two clinics in the morning and two in the afternoon. So that for a spending hour he is on his feet, talking, demonstrating, inculcating his principles, and preaching a doctrine of hope.

There is no Personality

There is in his clinics neither the formality of a new religion, nor of the practice of medicine.

Emile Coue, the French healer, receiving a patient in his residence at Nancy, France, and (insert) a sketch of the building used as the Coue clinic.

The little stockily built man, dressed in his simple dark gray suit and black tie, walks in, nods brightly to all about him and then loils comfortably up against the hall door.

The first day I was there, over in one corner, narrowly watching him, was Lincoln Steffens, getting material for a magazine article about Coue. And on the other side was the famous American sculptor, Jo Davidson, making a clay model for a bronze bust of Coue, which is shortly to be exhibited in Paris.

He's Thrifty Smoker

Coue paid no more attention to them than he did to the humblest peasant in the room. He is totally without personal self-consciousness. And here's one thing which will make a bit with American men:

Coue rolls his own!

Frequently, while he is explaining his theory, or while he is speaking to various patients, he gets out his paper and tobacco, rolls a cigaret and contentedly puffs away at it. And with true French thrift, he smokes it clear down to the butt.

On the other days of the week, except Sunday when he rests, Coue has one clinic a day for people who have come to Nancy from a distance.

From All Over World

In addition to the French peasants and middle class people who come from all over this Lorraine country, I saw Americans from New York and Connecticut, Britons, Canadians and one couple from South Africa.

The Americans were mainly sufferers from neurasthenia. The French peasants came to be helped in their sufferings from stomach troubles, eczema, rheumatism, neuritis, all kinds of chronic ills.

Coue himself says that young persons, and especially women, are most susceptible to his treatment.

In the clinics I attended women were in the great majority and many of them were old.

Coue spots the newcomers at once. He has an excellent memory for faces and for the illness of the individual.

Makes Simple Inquiry

He came over to me at once and "straight-up" asked me:

But he simply asked in his keenly interested way what I was suffering from.

"Ah, had nerves! Many of you Americans seem troubled that way. You will get better—and soon."

There were no other questions that day, so far as I was concerned. But I was now a full-fledged patient at a clinic and welcome to get all the good out of it that I could.

Tomorrow—Bronner tells of his first treatment by Coue.

R. L. YATES BACK IN RACE, MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT

INCUMBENT OF JUVENILE OFFICE SAYS HE IS PERSUADED BY FRIENDS.

WITHDREW SATURDAY FROM RECOMMENDATIONS

States That School Board and Many Teachers Have Asked Him to Re-Enter His Name.

R. L. Yates, juvenile officer of the county, who asked that his name be withdrawn from the list of recommendations last Saturday, announced Friday morning that he had again entered his name as an applicant for the office.

In announcing his return, he said: "Through persuasion on the part of many friends as well as members of the school board and many of the principals and teachers of the various schools, I have decided to enter my name as an applicant for the office."

Last Saturday I withheld my name from the list of recommendations submitted by the school board to the county judge because of the fact that politics had entered into the matter. I am now convinced that politics should be kept out of this appointive office which is not a position but a job because it has to deal with the young boys and girls, the citizenship of this city and county in years to come."

Judge B. D. Martin announced several days ago that he would ask that a change be made in the juvenile office and has asked the school board to meet some time within the near future to make a list of recommendations.

The law specifies that the county judge shall select a juvenile officer from a list of three furnished by the county school board, composed of the county superintendent and the superintendent of the two largest independent districts in the county.

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE BY CITY SCHOOL BOARD

The county school board, composed of Superintendent Burt Bryant of the county schools, W. J. Woodward of Burk Burnett and Lee Clark of the Wichita Falls schools, have reaffirmed the decisions made on December 23 with reference to the recommendations for the juvenile officer's position.

This announcement was made Friday morning following a statement issued by R. L. Yates, incumbent, that he was re-entering his name as an applicant for the office.

The board met on December 23 and recommended R. L. Yates, W. J. Woodward and Lee Clark, as being qualified as applicants for the position.

County Judge B. D. Martin, after being sworn in, stated that the meeting of the board was premature inasmuch as he had not decided at that time that there would be a change made in this office. Later he decided to make a change and asked that the board meet and submit the names of three men as provided by statute.

The statement made Friday morning by the school board was: "Owing to the fact that Mr. Yates, the present juvenile officer, is still to be considered as an applicant following his statement that he had reentered his name, we the members of the board have decided to reaffirm our decision made on December 23 and for that reason sub-

SIMMONS-AUSTIN COLLEGE TEAMS TO PLAY AT FAIR

Mason L. Cashion, coach of the Austin college football team at Sherman, was here Friday morning to meet A. B. Mays, coach of the Simmons college team at Abilene, for the purpose of signing a contract for a game between the two teams here on the last day of the Texas-Oklahoma fair.

The coaches were to meet Friday afternoon in W. E. Norton's office.

The Texas-Oklahoma fair plans to make a collegiate football contest an annual affair.

DENVER SAFE AT VERNON BLOWN OPEN FRIGHTENED AWAY

VERNON, TEXAS, Jan. 5.—The safe at the Fort Worth & Denver depot was blown open by amateur burglars Wednesday morning about 1:30 o'clock. They did not get any money. The blast was heard by the Denver agent, who was at the freight depot where he has the telegraph key. As soon as he heard the report he turned a switch which turned on the lights at the passenger depot office, where the burglars were working, about 200 yards from the freight depot. He also called the sheriff's department and notified Jim Kerr, the city marshal.

There were about 12 men in the passenger depot at the time and all were arrested and placed in jail awaiting the investigation which was under way. The county attorney and the officers have been making very close inquiry into the matter but at a late hour yesterday had not decided just who did the work.

It is very probable that the parties that did the work were through a window when the lights were turned on and were unable to complete the job. The work was crude and they did not reach the part of the safe where the money was kept.

"Husbands and Fur Coats"—The Test Is Practically Same—How Do They Wear?

By MARIAN HALE

A fur coat like a husband. There's just one test for a fur coat—only one. How does it wear? Even so with a husband.

Mrs. Henrietta Stein is one of the best known furriers in the country. Few men equal her. As a judge of furs, she isn't surpassed. She's been in the business 25 years, having started when she was 11.

It wasn't on the subject of matrimony that I sought her advice—it was to ask her to tell women how to select furs after the holiday sales.

You Can't Tell

Nobody can judge a fur, she says, by looking at a completed garment. "And only an expert can tell," she added, "by looking inside. For that reason I advise women to go to reliable dealers, not to look for cheap coats."

"If the pelts are good, the workmanship first class and the quality is there, a fur must command a price. With a garment offered for less, there must be something wrong.

"A fur's quality depends on the season when the original wearer was killed.

Furs are 15 grades of Hudson seal (really dyed muskrat). The best, properly prepared and dried, make the most practical and best-wearing garments on the market today. The inferior grades are poor in color and texture and give little wear.

Wool and other are among our best-wearing furs. Beaver, skunk, marten, fisher and Persian lamb give excellent service. Alaska seal wears well but requires constant repair.

Less service can be expected from squirrel, lynx, marten, ermine, Russian sable and Hudson seal and kolinsky, though these are rated as medium.

But Be Sceptical

"The least durable furs are chinchilla, baby lamb, mole and the finer foxes—especially the fox, though, because it is so becoming, women always will wear it.

"Russian sables and silver foxes are most expensive.

Furs should be kept cleaned and worn to give long service, Mrs. Stein says.

WHAT STYLISH FOLK'LL WEAR NEXT SUMMER

Clothes worn at the southern winter resorts generally are regarded as forecasting the ensuing summer's styles for higher latitudes.

Such being the case, light weight woollen crepes and light woollen plaids will be popular for suits.

Many striped and figured novelty materials are shown.

White predominates, but trimmed in bright colors and combined with black.

MUFF COMING INTO POPULAR FAVOR AGAIN

Perhaps it was because the muff never would settle on any standard size—was apt to be about as big as a bill box one year and the proportions of a pillow the next—that it gradually it worked itself out of fashion's good graces.

At any rate, it hasn't mounted to much in the past few seasons.

Now, however, it's coming back.

ART ASSOCIATION WILL MEET FRIDAY NIGHT, 8:30

The Wichita Falls Art association will hold its first study meeting Friday evening in the basement of the First Baptist church.

This will be the first meeting of the organization since the holidays, and the first critical and lecture work will be done on this occasion. The Art Association has about 150 charter members and is open for membership. Not only artists, but patrons of the arts and those interested in art are urged to identify themselves with the organization.

INVITATION DANCE AT LORSON HALL SATURDAY

There is to be an invitation dance at the American Legion hall Saturday evening, when music and an eighteen-minute vaudeville act will be furnished by the Margaret Hall jazz orchestra.

Joe Nathan and Sam Beattie are charge of the affair.

Another Lovely Party Honors January Bride-Elect Thursday

Miss Ethel Mae Martin, January bride-elect who is to wed Walter Hochman on the 11th, was the honoree at a second lovely party Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. Robert Nelson entertained at her home on Elizabeth with a bridge and miscellaneous shower for her.

The living room suite was attractive in pink carnations and white narcissus, carrying out a color scheme for the bride of pink and white, which was further followed in the bridge appointments and refreshments.

In the games, with three tables of players taking part, Mrs. Harry Myers won high score and Mrs. Clifford Deaton, low. Both were remembered with pretty gifts, and the hostess presented the guest of honor with a bit of linen for her hope chest.

The shower was brought in in a decorated art wastebasket by little Miss Ruth Thomas, and very charmingly presented to the bride-elect, who opened and inspected the gifts and thanked the donors. Late in the afternoon the hostess served a salad and dessert course to the following Mesdames Paul Pond, Harry Myers, Clifford Deaton, E. M. Goss, Jr., Harry White, Paul Jarrett, Bomer Corlett, John Thomas, J. C. Martin and Mack Thomas and Misses Lurline Turner and Ethel Mae Martin.

On Saturday Miss Martin will be complimented with a bridge party at the home of Miss Valois-Comper.

RETIRING LEADER IS SURPRISED WITH PARTY

Mrs. J. E. Strong, leader of Division Nine of the First Christian Ladies Aid, was entertained at a surprise party at the home of Mrs. D. A. Wilcox, Thursday afternoon, when the members of her division were hostesses.

The Wilcox home was most attractively decorated in Mrs. Strong's honor, and a thoroughly delightful informal program of entertainment provided. Two contests were enjoyed, including Mrs. W. F. Spitzer, who was most fortunate and received a remembrance, while Mrs. Lucy Young, honorary member, received the remembrance in the second.

A feature of the entertainment was the presentation to Mrs. Strong of a handomely framed copy of "The Lone Wolf" by Mrs. J. W. Pond in behalf of the members of the division, following which presentation Mesdames F. Hammond and T. Courtney made little talks of appreciation of Mrs. Strong's work, to which she responded.

A delightful refreshment plate of pineapple salad, with whipped cream and cherries, cakes, mints and coffee was served to the following: Mesdames A. A. Young, Lucy Young, H. C. Wilson, W. F. Spitzer, J. N. Tweedy, H. A. Jones, N. H. Marshall, C. O. Roark, J. W. Pond, T. F. Courtney, C. E. Swindler, J. E. Strong, W. F. Parker, G. I. Green, Henry Sonnemaker, R. H. Stocks, members, and Ois G. Hamble, Lambreth Hancock, W. H. Costley, J. M. Isbell and T. T. Reese, guests.

SIX TABLES OF BRIDGE WITH JOINT HOSTESSES

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Gamble and Mrs. E. E. Stewart were joint hosts and hostesses Thursday evening at the Gamble home, when six tables of bridge players spent a delightful evening at the game. The guests, including the members of the Fidelity Bridge club and their husbands.

The living room and dining room were decorated in cut flowers and potted plants, and after several hours of playing, Mr. C. F. Parks was found to hold high score for the men and Mrs. W. West, who played with the women. Mr. Parks was presented with a silver pencil, Mrs. Weaver with a beautiful corsage of orchids, and Dr. A. W. West, who was fortunate in the out, with a deck of novelty playing cards.

A delectable luncheon was served at a late hour, the menu including creamed chicken, roast beef, Napoleon salad, hot rolls and coffee, and chocolate eclairs filled with whipped cream.

The guests included Messrs. and Mesdames C. F. Parks, Weaver, C. C. Randle, L. A. Davis, C. C. Eckman, Ben F. Leggett, W. C. E. A. at Denton and Oklahoma University, respectively.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eilers of San Antonio are visiting their daughter, Mrs. W. E. Maxson at their home, 1814 Fillmore.

Miss Nell McKibben of Vernon, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. W. M. Bonner, returned home Friday. Mrs. Bonner and Miss McKibben will go to Oklahoma City next week to visit another sister, Mrs. Robert T. Stuart.

Mrs. W. H. Welch of Flint, Mich., formerly Miss Hazel Wharton of this city, is here for a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wharton at their home, 1310 Huff avenue.

Miss Margaret Grow, who accompanied her mother, Mrs. E. C. Grow, here from Dallas to spend Christmas with her sister and daughter, Mrs. E. S. Goodner and family, has returned home to Dallas. Mrs. Grow is staying with Mrs. Goodner for the winter.

Brief News Items

Mrs. Peyton F. Gwynne and daughter, Miss Gay, left Friday for New York, where Mrs. Gwynne will put Miss Gay in school and will spend a month or so visiting. Miss Gwynne is specializing in voice and piano.

Miss Rosa Mae and J. D. Scott, who have been spending the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Scott, left Thursday for C. E. A. at Denton and Oklahoma University, respectively.

MRS. SHULER HOSTESS TO HARMONY BRIDGE

Mrs. W. W. Shuler was hostess to the Harmony Bridge club Thursday afternoon at a pretty three-table party.

In the games, played in the attractively decorated living room, Mr. Fred Goss was most fortunate at score and won a set almost on sandwich cutters. Mrs. W. H. Richardson played low and was presented with a pair of satin garters. Mrs. C. E. Byrnes, a guest, was complimented with a vase of pottery.

After the games a short business session was held during which

FINERY FOR THE YOUNG

The most brilliant social career must have a beginning!

And how desirable to begin it in pretty clothes—in such frilled, pleated frocks as those worn by the damsels just above and directly to the left!

The pleated dress and the one next to it are recommended also for school, on account of their practical good style.

The party dresses for the older girls are of georgette, chiffon and taffeta; for the tiny ones, sheer batiste and handkerchief linen.

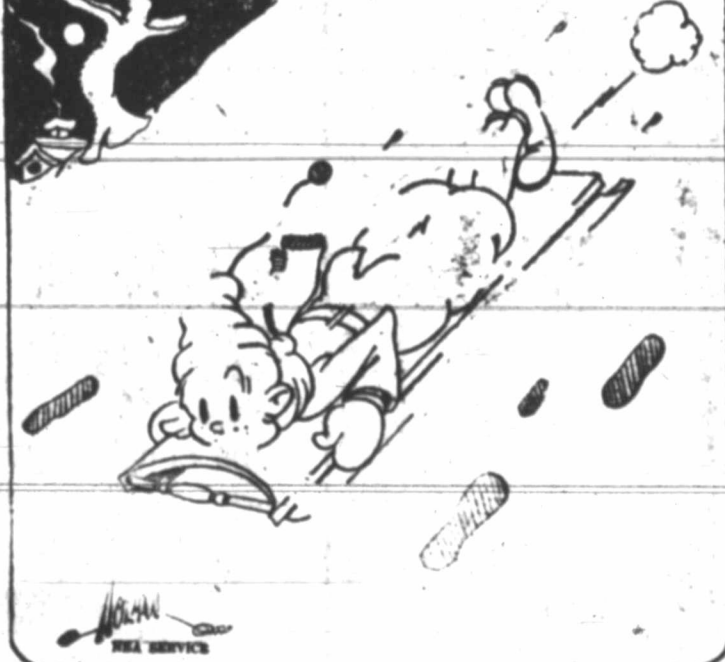

Wool crepe is the most popular material for warmer raincoat.

The boys' suits are of various woollen and cotton materials, with pongee or linen collars and cuffs. The party suit is almost sure to be of velvet.

DINNER PARTY HONORS NINE FACULTY MEMBERS ON THURSDAY EVENING

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Culbertson entertained Thursday evening with a beautifully planned dinner party honoring nine faculty members of Assuta school.

The dining room and living room were profusely decorated with cut flowers and greenery, with a colour scheme of yellow and white for the dining room and table appointments. Centering the table in a big bowl were yellow and white narcissus, while the original individual favors were yellow narcissus bulbs in shiny little pots covered with green and yellow crepe, tied with yellow bows, and with a jessamine place card prettily dependent. The nut cups were of cut glass with gold trimming.

Dinner was served in five courses, the menu comprising grapefruit supreme, with orange petals, celery and olives, roast turkey with dressing and giblet gravy, peas in patty shells, creamed potatoes, hot rolls, cranberry jelly in individual molds, perfection salad with dressing, water, and pimento cheese rolls.

After dinner music and other informal entertainment made the evening pass very delightfully for the following: Misses Bessie Stewart, Kathie Berry, Kathryn Crawford, Winnie Davis, Mary Hunter, Hassie Dean, and Mary Biggerstaff, and Messrs. H. E. Hudspeth and Kenneth Evans.

PIERIA DELPHIANS ELECT NEW OFFICERS WEDNESDAY

The Pieria-Delphians met Wednesday afternoon with Miss Helen Bengston at the General hospital, when the regular annual election of officers was attended to and the following elected:

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS JACKIE IN DREAMLAND

"Ready? Begin!" said the man and Jackie gave Cesar a bang on the nose.

Little Jackie Jumping Mouse was snoring. He still had on the little red jacket the Brownies had given him and over him were the warm covers that Nancy and Nick had tucked around him when they went with Lusty Coal, the dwarf and man, to make Jackie comfortable for the winter.

His house was away under the ground in a nice warm place where Jack Frost couldn't reach him.

Jackie Mouse snored again and turned over. He was dreaming. He was dreaming that he was a kangaroo in a circus and he was very happy.

Suddenly a little trap door under his bed sprang open and the little mouse fell through it like a ripe plum—or more like a ball of yarn out of a sewing basket, his tail trailing after him like a long raveling.

He whizzed around and around, all the time sliding downward through a place like a coal chute, and after a while he landed on something hard. But he wasn't hurt a bit and sprang up like a bed spring.

Then he saw where he was. In the middle of a big circus tent just as he had dreamed with hundreds of people sitting around in long rows staring at him!

"Oh, horrors!" thought Jackie.

"They'll be setting the cat on me now. I'll have to run!"

But just then a man in a blue velvet suit came up and held out his hand. "How do you do, Mr. Kangaroo?" he said. "We are glad you have come and hope you have had a pleasant journey. Here are the boxing gloves, and here is the person you are to fight."

Jackie looked down at himself in amazement. Lo and behold, he had grown enormously. He was in a kangaroo! Then he looked at his enemy and behold it was Cesar the Cat, blinking his eyes fearfully.

"Ready? Begin!" said the man and Jackie gave Cesar a bang on the nose that sent him sprawling.

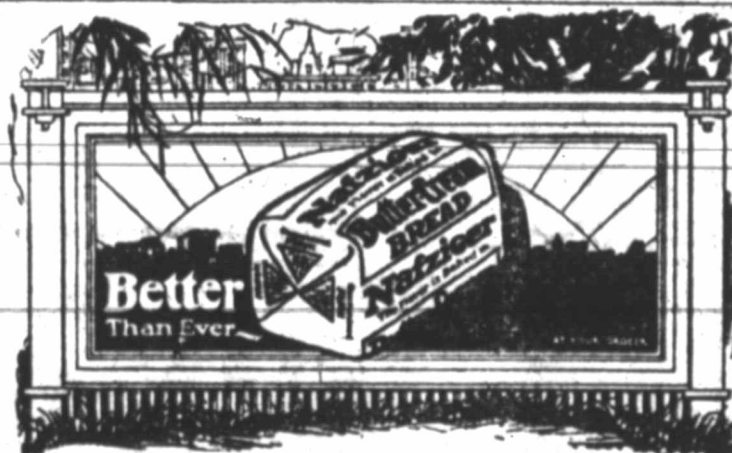

"Score one for Dreamland," said the man. And everybody clapped. Jackie was happier than ever he had been in his life.

He gave Cesar a good walloping just as he had always wished to do. "Dreamland is a fine place," thought he.

MEMBERS BRITISH DEBT COMMISSION READY TO REPORT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Members of the British debt commission arrived in Washington to take up with the American commission the funding of Great Britain's war time debt of more than four billion dollars, which will probably not get under way until early next week.

Since the arrival last night of the commission, headed by Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, and Montagu C. Norman, governor of the Bank of England, there had been no official statements as to what program the commission was prepared to present as a basis for discussion. Members of the American commission also declined to discuss in advance of their presentation the reported British plans, but did state that their side would have no proffer to make beyond the limitations established by law.

As to the advisability of seeking any changes in the debt funding act to give the American commission more latitude in the negotiations a difference of opinion is expected to prevail between treasury officials and some members of the commission. The former stated yesterday that no thought was being given to changes in the act while some members of the commission, including Secretary Hughes and Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, have taken the view that certain changes should be made.

MAGNOLIA OFFICIAL IS WITNESS BEFORE SENATE COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Dividend payments either through cash or stock amounting to $25,544,986 have been made by the Magnolia Petroleum company since its organization in 1911, according to testimony offered today in the senate oil inquiry.

William C. Proctor, treasurer of the company, which has its headquarters at Dallas, Texas, appeared as the first witness. Proctor was asked in detail as to the financial operations of the corporation which is now a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company of New York.

The dividend declarations, Mr. Proctor testified, included stock issues of $2,331,000 and cash payments of $7,153,000. The first stock dividend in 1911, according to testimony, amounted only to one per cent quarterly.

MUSICIANS CLUB HEARS PROGRAM ON F. LISZT

The Musicians' club held the initial meeting of the new year Thursday afternoon at the Kemp, with a good attendance and an interesting program. Several of those listed in the year-book to appear on this date were incapacitated by illness, but other members substituted at the last minute "O. K." call.

Mrs. Wess King was leader for the day, and read a well prepared paper on the life of Franz Liszt. Mrs. O. E. Nichols gave a sketch of Liszt, called in his day "the king of tenors," who was Liszt's co-star on tour. The musical numbers were

REPORTS INDICATE CONTINUED ADVANCE IN INDUSTRIAL WAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Continued advance in commerce and industry is "clearly shown" in final reports for November received by the department of commerce and made public today. In 10 basic lines, the announcement said, the November output was the greatest of any month since early in 1920.

Building operations failed to show the actual seasonal decline. There was reported an unusually well maintained demand for automobiles and trucks. While the production and imports of crude petroleum in November increased little, it was sufficient, according to the review, to establish a new high record for the year. Consumption also went to a new high level, reaching 53,444,000 barrels for November, while there was an increase of about one million barrels in petroleum stocks.

BRITAIN MAY GET 70 YEARS TO PAY DEBT TO AMERICA

LOW INTEREST MAY ALSO BE ARRANGED AT FORTHCOMING PARLEY HERE.

BELIEVED ENGLAND WILL SETTLE IN FULL

Interest Rates Subject to Change and Congress Favors Easy Terms.

By MARK SULLIVAN
National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and Wichita Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Technically, the status of the debt due from Great Britain to the United States, which the British debt commission is now to discuss, is that of an overdue demand note.

When, at the time the war ended, as a consequence to the state of confusion then existing all around, our government gave formal assurance to Great Britain that neither the principal nor any installment of interest would be demanded for a period of three years. This period of three years is now over. The opportunity, therefore, which our government offers to the government of Great Britain is to change an overdue demand note into a long-term note.

It is true that the act of congress which authorizes this change and which set up an American commission of five men to carry on the negotiations puts strict limitations on the nature of the new obligation which it is proposed that Great Britain shall be the creditor to make. The act of congress fixes twenty-five years as the outside limit of the time during which the installments of principal may be paid. The same act of congress provides that the rate of interest on the new security shall not be less than 4 per cent. These restrictions by congress obviously place binding limitations on the power of the American representatives in the pending negotiation to make any changes which may be requested by the British representatives.

What the British representatives may have in mind, no one knows. The common assumption is that, contingent on some other things, like the debts due from France, Belgium, Italy and others to Great Britain, will be the preference of Great Britain ultimately to pay in full. It is assumed that Great Britain's position in the credit markets of the world is so important to her that she will be eager to maintain the integrity of her reputation as a country which pays its debts.

Such an asset must necessarily be of so great value to Great Britain, both in the present and in the future, that she will be anxious to borrow, that it is assumed she will want to present it as an asset equal to carrels and navies. If Great Britain should pay in full, and if some of the other countries should not, the superior capacity for borrowing which Great Britain would thereby have would give her an advantage over the other nations.

Long Term Deferred Resemblance. It is frequently said that Great Britain, while she may be anxious to pay in full ultimately, may reasonably prefer to have a longer time than twenty-five years in which to make the payments. Many Americans say it would be entirely reasonable to give Great Britain, not twenty-five years, but forty or even sixty or seventy-five years in which to pay the installments of the principal.

If Great Britain makes a suggestion for another period than twenty-five years in which to pay the installments, it will be necessary, of course, for the American representatives to say that they are limited by the act of congress to twenty-five years. It is entirely conceivable, however, that the American representatives might be willing to report the results of their negotiations to congress and recommend to congress that a longer period of time be permitted.

Some Americans, in discussing this subject, make a distinction between the principal of the debt and the interest on it. As to the principal, they say that this is a matter of written contract. To cancel or to solicit the cancellation of a written contract would be a dubious thing in the present state of the world. At a time when the sanctity of obligations, both public and private, is extremely important, and is subject to some strain, it would be an unhappy precedent for any great nation to suggest cancellation in whole or in part. Such an action might lead to an embarrassing chain of consequences and might be deleterious to the morals of the whole world, both as regards transactions between nations and transactions between individuals.

But the rate of interest on the debt is a different matter. At the time the debt was made there was no mention of the rate of interest and the rate is nowhere a matter of contract between the contracting nations.

Under these circumstances it is claimed that for the United States to visit the rate of interest on the debt is a very low rate of interest would not be subject to the objection that it would be the changing of a contract.

LAWTON DELEGATION TO ATTEND ANNUAL C. OF C. DINNER

A delegation of Lawton, Oklahoma, chamber of commerce members headed by the Fort Hill band of sixty pieces will attend the annual dinner of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce on January 14. Heading the Lawton delegation will be Major General Bailey, retired army officer living at Lawton, Okla. Overholser, president of the Oklahoma City chamber of commerce, will accompany the party. On January 17, the day following the dinner, the Lawton party will visit the big Wichita irrigation project. Lawton is considering an irrigation project of its own and the purpose of the visit is to gain information and at the same time to extend friendly greetings to the citizens of Wichita Falls.

In connection with the dinner, the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce urges that members make their reservations at once as the number of places is limited and it is desired to learn how many visitors can be accommodated.

Kentucky Lady Tells How She Became Strong and Healthy—Recommends Cardui to Weak Women

Mount Vernon, Ky.—Mrs. Cyn. Vanhook, formerly of Stamford, but now residing here, says that after her third child was born, she undertook to resume her housework too soon, and this caused her a great deal of trouble.

"I began to feel weak and all played out—not myself at all," as Mrs. Vanhook describes her condition. "For about six weeks I was just a nervous wreck. I had to have some one do all my housework."

"My doctor told me my impudences had caused shock to the nervous system, and the thing to do was to use a tonic to build up my strength."

"He recommended Cardui. Very soon I saw an improvement in my condition. I used three bottles of Cardui and my health was restored. 'I am a strong, healthy woman.'"

Ancient Carthage to Be Rebuilt as a Modern Winter Resort

A MODERN city is to be built on the site of ancient Carthage. A group of Jewish speculators has taken the enterprise in hand, the idea in view being to create a great winter resort, and possibly to develop the place eventually as a commercial center. For the latter purpose it will be admirably situated, the location of the old-time Phoenician capital having been originally chosen because of the advantages it offered for maritime trade.

Fearing lest the carrying out of this project will destroy future possibilities of archaeological research in that neighborhood, the French Government is backing a scheme of scientific exploration which has been undertaken by a party of learned excavators, under the leadership of Count Byron Kuhn de Provok. He is a young man, a Pole by birth, about thirty years of age, and exceedingly enthusiastic on the subject.

No wonder, indeed; for the researches of himself and his companions during the last year have brought to light some of the most remarkable antiquities ever unearthed, though manifestly affording only a suggestion of what may be expected soon to be discovered.

Among them are about 700 pottery jars containing the bones of children who were buried alive as sacrifices to the goddess Tanit. They were from four months to twelve years of age. Of their fate there is no possible question, inasmuch as it is recorded on stone slabs found with the jars. Tanit was the goddess of love and beauty. She was to all intents and purposes the same divinity as Astarte of the Babylonians and Isis of the ancient Egyptians. Her favor was sought by the celebration of orgies of a voluptuous and most indecent description; but also by very horrible rites, which included human sacrifices. Carthaginian mothers were required to offer their children for this dreadful purpose, the charred bones of each little victim being thereupon placed in a clay jar, which was duly buried within the walls that surrounded the temple of the goddess, and the place marked with a stone slab bearing a votive inscription.

Discovery of the temple was made by an odd sort of accident. An Arab sold a slab of the kind described to a Frenchman, saying that he had found it in the mountains. The Frenchman brought it to the Count de Provok, who thereupon had the Arab privately shadowed day and night. He was finally caught digging in an obscure corner on the site of Carthage, evidently looking for more relics that would fetch money. The archaeologists promptly began excavations in that spot, and they came upon the temple.

THEY have not yet had time to uncover the temple, but expect to do so during the next few months. But they did turn up thousands of stone slabs bearing votive inscriptions, and, together with the latter, great numbers of jars containing the bones of sacrificed children. The jars are there by thousands—many of them whole as when new, others broken to fragments—and it is evident that the intramural spaces surrounding the temple was Tanit's cemetery.

There were, so to speak, three stories of jars and slabs. Next beneath were other more ancient, relating to the Phoenicians, and lowest of all were jars and slabs of the yet earlier Egyptians. For, as it appears, Carthage was an Egyptian city for at least 800 years before the Phoenicians occupied it; and through all that time, even up to the fourth century of the Christian era, the worship of Tanit and of the great god Baal was maintained in Carthage, with the horrible rites belonging to it.

So, it would seem, the excavators got into the sacred cemetery of the goddess of love and beauty; but they did not proceed much

It was an order for money—in other words, a blank check.

One of the most curious objects found was a baby's milk bottle, dating back to about 700 B. C. It is made of pottery, with a sort of handle on top for hanging it by a string above the infant's crib. On one side of it is a little tube, through which the child sucked the milk while the bottle was thus suspended. To make the bottle more attractive for nursery purposes, two eyes are painted on it.

For the recovery of small objects of interest, great quantities of refuse were passed by the excavators through sieves. In this way a number of valuable emeralds and rubies were found; also about 5000 coins of gold, silver and bronze. Many of the coins bore highly artistic designs. On the obverse of one of them was a portrait of Dido, and on the reverse the head of a horse beautifully executed. The horse was regarded as a sacred animal by the Phoenicians, who were great horsemen, making much use of cavalry in battle. Horses dedicated to the sun were sacrificed at festivals in honor of Baal.

One striking curiosity dug up was a neck-farther than that, except to find a hallway or passage full of votive inscriptions, most of them addressed to Tanit and to Baal. "I have made this wish, Bod Melker, son of Havish, son of Hennibal." That was about the way they ran.

Baal was the sun god, the supreme deity, otherwise known as Moloch. His cult in ancient times extended throughout most of the regions bordering on the Mediterranean. Customarily he was represented by a huge bronze image with the head of a bull and arms extended. The belly of the idol was a furnace, into which children were thrown on ceremonial occasions, alive. The Romans, after their final victory over the Carthaginians, tried to put a stop to these dreadful sacrificial rites, but without much success. A people may be conquered, but they will not abandon their religion.

Of that religion terror was the animating principle. It was a religion that thirsted after blood, and which kept whole peoples—Babylonians, Assyrians and Phoenicians—in a state of melancholy dread. Even in Canans there were images of Baal, demanding human sacrifices.

Tombs were found of early Christian martyrs, identifiable as such by inscriptions which recorded their fate. Together with their bones were discovered nails with which they were fastened to crosses. For in ancient Carthage at that period it was the fashion to crucify Christians. If the nails had been of iron they would long ago have disappeared, but they were bronze.

Nothing of Carthage remains today except traces of an ancient aqueduct. The city was twelve miles from the modern Tunis. It had a population of about 700,000, and was surrounded by defensive walls, twenty-three miles in circumference. Every schoolboy has read of the wars between Carthage and Rome, which for centuries disputed for control of the countries bordering on the Mediterranean. The Romans finally won, and Carthage was destroyed by Scipio in the year 146 B. C. It was rebuilt less than 100 years later by Julius Caesar, and became the third city of the Roman Empire.

ABOUT 180 A. D. the Vandals, a Germanic people, warlike and without any fixed geographical habitat—their name comes from an old German word meaning "wanderers"—began to be troublesome to Rome. In the year 410 they took possession of Andalusia, in Spain, and, later on, crossing into Africa, they captured Carthage, which remained for more than a century the seat of Vandal empire in Africa. Thence they crossed to Italy in 455, and plundered Rome.

The Vandals were eventually driven out of Carthage by the Romans, during the reign of Justinian. But in the year 678 the Saracens took the city and practically wiped it off the map. The only important building now occupying the site of that once proud metropolis is a cathedral, which is the headquarters of the White Friars, who devote themselves to missionary work in Africa. One of them, Pere Delattre, himself a distinguished archaeologist, is co-operating in the excavating work that is now going on.

The Count and his fellow-excavators have come upon a great treasure of art objects made of rock crystal, and they are going to dig it up this winter. They know it is there, though they have only started to get into the place that contains it; for they have already taken out of the buried collection three remarkable things. One of them is a miniature Greek temple with six columns, carved out of rock crystal. Another is a beautiful plate with a carven representation of the Acropolis of Athens. The third is an exquisite statuette.

MANY of the objects dug out of the ruins of Carthage by the Count and his friends are very remarkable. One of them is a pair of eyeglasses, with lenses ground for slight magnification, evidently for a person suffering from "old sight." It is a piece of art. There are also corkcups, much like those of modern pattern, and actually pipes resembling in form those used by smokers today. What could have been smoked in those pipes? Nobody knows. Conceivably it was hashish.

Think of check-books used by ancient Carthaginians! They had them and used them. But they were not like ours. The well-to-do citizen had a mold of bronze, with writing in reverse on the inside. Into it he pressed papyrus pulp, and, when dry, lace of beads with little cats strung along it at intervals. There were a dozen of the cats, one of lapis lazuli and the others of clay, most lifelike.

Other objects found included lamps (the most ancient being Egyptian, of clay), incense-burners, bronze mirrors, drinking glasses, perfume bottles, small tubes of bone and ivory for drinking "straws," ivory hairpins and salt-spoons, buttons (like modern ones, but with only one hole), and bronze tools for painting the eyebrows. One of these cosmetic utensils was discovered in the room of a priestess.

CARTHAGE could not have burned rapidly, for it was built mainly of brick and marble, the latter being obtained from quarries in the nearby mountains, of a quality equal to Carrara. The city was built along the shores of a magnificent bay, and had its artificial harbor with a small island in the middle. On this elevated island, which commanded a wide view of the sea, the admiral of the navy had his headquarters. The artificial basin was surrounded on the shore side by magnificent buildings rising in three terraces. When the ships went forth to war, they sailed in parade around the central island, saluting one after another, the high commander of the fleet.

Two hundred and twenty ships of war were usually laid up in the inner basin, with stores in readiness for fitting them out at short notice. The typical fighting galley of ancient Carthage was a "quinquereme"—i. e., with five banks of oars on each side—began to be troublesome to Rome. ## Producing Mussels by Inoculation

THE Government Bureau of Fisheries has hit upon a new method of rearing pearls which in effect represents an important discovery.

The baby mussels are hatched in broad-pouches in the outer gills of the parent fish. When thrown into the water, they are free-swimming larvae, in no way resembling the adult mollusks. Their only chance of survival is to fasten themselves upon a man; for at this early stage of their career they cannot live unless as parasites on fishes. Being provided for that purpose with a pair of hooks resembling ice-tongs in shape, by which to cling.

In nature, it is only the occasional, lucky baby mussel that manages to get hold of a fish, which is the reason why the Fisheries Bureau some time ago adopted the expedient of "inoculating" fishes in large numbers with mussel larvae—a thing easily accomplished by putting small fish into tubs together with a quantity of fresh mussel spawn. In this way one fish or crappie could be forced to serve as host for many hundreds of the minute baby mussels.

The fishes thus dealt with are thereupon liberated in streams and lakes, with the knowledge that, a few weeks later, the young mussels will drop off and proceed to take care of themselves.

The trouble about this method is that in a great majority of instances the infant mussels, when they let go their grip on the fishes fall upon unsuitable bottom. It may be muddy bottom, or some place where the silt covers and smothers them. Or they may be eaten. Probably not more than two or three in a hundred survive.

The new plan, however, tried experimentally at Lake Pepin (Iowa), yields vastly more cheerful results. Floating baskets with wooden floors (the latter eight feet below the surface) are used. In these the fish, loaded with baby mussels are put. From the basket-floors they are easily collected, all ready to be transferred to places in streams or lakes where there is bottom suitable for their growth. By this time they are about half an inch long, and the danger period of their lives is past.

From the floor of one experimental boat ten feet square were recovered 23,700 young mussels of the above-mentioned size or bigger. Thus it is easy to see how great are the possibilities of mussel culture by this intensive method, which bids fair to solve a problem of much industrial importance, inasmuch as the threatened disappearance of the natural supply of the pearl bivalves already gives no little anxiety to the button-makers.

High School Football Raised to High Level By Interscholastic League

By ROY B. HENDERSON
LAUREN, TEXAS, Jan. 4.—The high school state championship football series scheduled by the University of Texas Interscholastic League was brought to a successful conclusion at Fort Worth, December 22, when Waco and Abilene battled through four furious quarters of superb football for the coveted title. The wonderful achievements of these two splendid teams have been so vividly portrayed by sport writers as to make that comment here unnecessary. Suffice it to say that a team which is able to stand up under the grind of a state championship is necessary under the league's plan, and win the right to compete in the finals must be a team of exceptional ability and stamina unlimited. It must know football, it must be well coached and above all it must be able to put into execution under fire, those things which it has been taught. All of these qualities, and more, were possessed by the boys under Tyson and Schaefer as was the expressed opinion that these two men should be commended not so much upon their personalities in the standing of the league as upon their record of sportsmanship and clean play which each has left behind him. This thing which is called "sportsmanship" is the right ideal in athletics, is entirely a matter of leadership. As the coach is undoubtedly the leader in football to his particular school and community during the football season the responsibility for the type of sportsmanship displayed is squarely upon him. Although the number of teams observing the "golden rule" in athletics is increasing rapidly each year, and although a finer spirit of sportsmanship is being manifested in all sections of the state, Tyson and Schaefer, because of their accomplishments, are being held up as the largest portion of the credit.

Fighting with passion, aggressiveness and a punch, plus a willingness to fight are always popular. That is why Pancho Villa, the sensational Filipino flyweight, is the most popular champion of the world.

LEGION DEFEATS HENRIETTA QUINT SCORE 65 TO 28

The Legionnaires defeated the invading Henrietta quint by a decisive score of 65 to 28 at the American Legion ball Thursday night. Although fighting through the entire time, the Henrietta squad was unable to get past the strong Legion defense to score, nor were they able to check the powerful offensive game of the ex-soldiers. Almost every time the ball was brought near the Henrietta goal a score was made.

COYOTES CAPTURE HARD FIGHT GAME THURSDAY EVENING

Coach Jones' ably coached basketball warriors certainly demonstrated superior coaching at the American Legion ball Thursday night, when they met the strong Collier and Landon quint, champions of the first half of the city league, and defeated them by the score of 53 to 29. The contest was kept going at a high rate of speed, and was marked by hard passing. The team work of the Coyotes was the principal feature. The school boys were able to work the ball through the strongest defense of the city leaguers, could muster. Shooting from all corners of the court, the Coyotes scored with regularity, while Tyson and Ray kept the ball from coming near their end.

WILL PLAY FIRST OF CITY LEAGUE GAMES SINCE THE HOLIDAYS

American Legion vs. Knights of Columbus. The above is the way they will play at the American Legion ball Friday night. The two games scheduled are the first of the city league since the holidays and are attracting an unusual amount of interest among local fans. Much depends on the outcome of the Knights of Columbus and Legion game. If the Legion is successful in carrying off the honors there the Coyotes and Legion team is tied for percentage. In event the Knights win over the Legion there is a possibility of their being in the run-off for the first half of the season. The teams are well matched and are considered among the best in the city league, enthusiasts are anticipating a battle to the finish.

PULL SEVES BASEBALL

The late Herman Schaefer had a keen sense of humor. While Schaefer was always regarded as one of the comedians of the ball field, few players possessed a keener intellect. In other words, Schaefer was a brainy ball player. Better than the average mechanically, Schaefer was equally valuable because he played with his head. To Schaefer goes the credit of bringing about the most unique play I have ever seen in the majors, and second, Milan tried to score. Schaefer, at the time, was a member of the Washington club. The Chicago club was the opposing team and the game was staged in Washington. It was late in the game, Washington needed a run to tie, Milan was on third base and Schaefer on first. The Washington club had used up most of its reserve strength, and while the batsman was a rather hot hitter, it was decided to keep him in the lineup. On the second ball pitched Schaefer stole second base. He had hoped on third base and Schaefer on first. After Schaefer reached second, the pitcher delivered two more balls to the batsman, but the count was two balls and two strikes. On the next pitch, to the consternation of everybody and the great delight of the Chicago club, Schaefer ran back to first base in full speed. Then things began to happen. The Chicago catcher threw the ball to second base, and the fielder stepped on the bag, but the umpire made no decision. The batsman then threw to the first baseman, immediately Schaefer started for second. The first baseman touched the bag, but still the umpire gave no ruling. The ball was then thrown to second only, to have Schaefer start back to first. The second baseman quickly threw the ball to the first baseman and Schaefer was caught between the bases. A run-up ensued. In the meantime Milan had been waiting his chance. While Schaefer was using run-down between first and second, Milan tried to score, but was retired at the plate on a close decision. That play started all kinds of argument, Schaefer had run the bases in reverse order, yet the rule book said that he was not to be allowed to do so. Now the rules say that when a player so runs, all that is necessary to retire him is to hold the ball on the base he vacated, or touch him with the ball while not on such base. Tomorrow: The greatest pinch pitching I ever saw.

Bit Evans Says

The untimely death of Berry Kirk, star end of the University of Michigan football team, came as a great shock to every lover of the game. It was the irony of fate, that Kirk, who not once during his entire football career asked for time out because of an injury, should die as the result of an automobile accident. Kirk was unquestionably the best end the west had. Not the country, has produced in years. As a defensive player he was without a peer. He also was very proficient in handling the forward pass. Kirk started in every game that Michigan played during the 1922 season. No one player meant more to the success of Yost's great eleven than Kirk. Every critic in the west admitted Kirk was one of the "Big Ten" or middle west all-star teams. A great majority of the critics of the country placed him on their All-American list. The untimely death of Kirk recalls a similar fate that befell George Gipp, star end of the Notre Dame team. Every lover of football recalls how Gipp at the close of a brilliant football season was stricken with pneumonia and died just at a time when he was the most-talked-about player in the football world. It is a rather curious coincidence that Kirk was a member of the Notre Dame football team on which Gipp starred. The death of Kirk marks the passing of that once-famous forward pass combination—Gipp to Kirk, for he it knows that Kirk played a year at Notre Dame before coming to Michigan. Kirk, like Gipp, died at the height of his stardom. Gipp had finished the greatest season in his football career, when illness in the case of Gipp, and an accident to Kirk, took them away.

LONG RUNS PRODUCE TERRIBLE IN FOOTBALL; SOME OF THE BEST

When "Chuck" Palmer, Northwestern halfback, picked up a Minnesota fumble behind his own goal and sprinted 102 yards for a touchdown in the recent game with Minnesota, he not only saved his team from defeat but incidentally made a record in football history. The game ended a 7 to 7 tie. For Palmer's dash ranks as the longest ever turned in on a recovery. The fact that he intercepted the ball in the end zone, while in the act of kicking, was also one of the longest catches of any kind yet made during a college battle on the gridiron. In fact, only four times has Palmer's feat been surpassed in the history of the game. And one of these was hung up when the actual playing field was 316 yards in length and the 10-yard and soles were not in vogue. To McCas of Lafayette goes the honor of sprinting on the longest spring for in 1909 he romped 110 yards through the entire Swarthmore eleven for a touchdown. Obviously this gallop can never be beaten. While in 1904 Walter Scherschell, University of Chicago star, carried a Wisconsin kickoff back 146 yards for a score. These are the best bits of ball telling in the game's history with Palmer's sensational dash ranking next in line. Back in 1902 Charles Dillon of the Carlisle Indians also made a sprint of 105 yards in the game with Harvard. However, it was on a rather technical play, though without a doubt it was the oddest piece of work ever pulled on a football field. The Redskin star grabbed a Crimson kickoff and dashed down the sidelines, unimpeded, to the goal line, 105 yards away. The ball had been secreted in a specially prepared "nest" in the back of Dillon's jersey, and the runner was ready to spring the ruse was detected. Incidentally the trick won the game for Carlisle.

BASKET BALL QUIZ by Referee

TOUCHES BALL. If a player who has put the ball in play from out of bounds touches it again before it has been touched by another player, what happens? The ball goes to an opponent out of bounds for such an offense on the part of the player putting it in play. AGAINST WALL. If the backboards are placed directly against the wall are players allowed to run up the wall and shoot for goal? Players have no such right when the baskets and backboards are so placed. The moment the player runs up the wall he is out of bounds. HUGGING BALL. If a player having possession of the ball hugs it close to his body he is regarded as fouling. Hugging the ball is not regarded as a foul. When a player who is closely guarded so plays the ball it is regarded as a hold ball and put in play by being tossed in the air. POSITION. When the ball is being put in play at the center of the court by the referee tossing the ball, what positions are the other players required to take? The players may take any position they desire, provided they in no way interfere with the jumper.

JACK DAW IN MIDGETVILLE

By ELTON

The little automobile kept right on coming toward Jack. Then it shot the back of the motorist in a flash and tumbled out into the air. Jack quickly made a grab for it. He caught the tiny machine in his arms and a great shout went up from around the Midgetville track.

While the rest of the auto kept bumping around the bowl, Jack held the tiny driver and let him watch the finish of the race. Soon a little flag was waved over the finish point and as a hot auto dashed the race was over. Jack was then asked to present the gold medal.

The audience all gathered in a circle around Jack and after giving three cheers for the winner of the race, Jack picked up the wheel of the auto and placed the medal on his coat. Then Jack returned to the first bench of the race track. He appreciated the gift.
