

REPORTED CLARA PHILLIPS HAS BEEN LOCATED IN MEXICO
GERMANY WEAKENING RESULT OF UNREST IN OCCUPIED AREA
TWO DISTINCT EARTHQUAKES SATURDAY NOT YET LOCATED

ESCAPED PRISONER IS UNDER SURVEILLANCE AT CHIHUAHUA CITY

By ROBERT A. DONALDSON, United Press Staff Correspondent, Los Angeles, Feb. 3.—Negotiations for the return of Clara Phillips, fugitive hammer miller, reported hiding in Chihuahua City, Mexico, were today being started by Thomas Lee Woolwine, district attorney.

MRS. CLARA PHILLIPS

The "tiger woman" slayer of Alhambra, Mexico, lurked in the Mexican city, her every movement reported watched by agents of J. R. Uribe, who never dared to kidnap her. Woolwine promised not to prosecute Herbert and Fernandez Uribe, held on charges of joy riding in an automobile which did not belong to them, if their father gave the house and street address in Chihuahua City where the slayer of Mrs. Meadors was reported hiding, which he has promised to do.

For weeks the Mexican and his associates have shadowed Mrs. Phillips. While she was surrounded by gunmen from the underworld of Juarez, they never dared to kidnap her and bring her across the boundary. But when the left for Chihuahua City, the Mexicans were ready to kidnap her.

Under Secretary Valenciano was largely responsible for the deportation of "Little Phil" Alquin from Mexico. "Little Phil" is wanted on a charge of murdering Detective Sheriff John J. Fitzgerald here while the officer was attempting to raid the supposed headquarters of a dope ring of which Clara Phillips was declared to be a member.

Under the eyes of a half dozen private detectives, the Mexican from politics and the underworld of Juarez, Clara was spirited away from her stronghold in the car of a friend of her underworld friends to Chihuahua City where she is now reported in hiding.

CUNO GOVERNMENT FACES PRECARIOUS SITUATION IN RUHR

GROWING DISCONTENT IN DISTRICT AMONG THE WORKERS. INDUSTRIALISTS LOSING CONFIDENCE IN LEADER. Government Also Losing Confidence in Its Ability to Resist French.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—(Sunday)—Chancellor Cuno went to the Ruhr today to exert his personal influence in stiffening resistance to the French occupation. The German chancellor will make his headquarters at Essen.

By OUR OWNERS, United Press Staff Correspondent, Berlin, Feb. 3.—The Cuno government's position has been rendered precarious by this week's events in the Ruhr. Government observers report, combined with information from industrial organization and intelligence bureaus, gathered by the United Press tonight, show:

1. A tendency, now only incipient, to demand the government hasten reimbursement of industrialists for wages in the event of forthcoming unemployment. 2. Belief there is inclination upon the government to avoid such payments if possible, despite earlier pledges. 3. Growing discontent in the Ruhr workers. Their condition is demonstrated by the protest of Dortmund miners to the city authorities that they must have higher wages and more bread. 4. Losses of union treasuries, especially so called Christian unions, to the French strike employment funds at low bids. 5. Cities, while still quiet are manifesting "unrest" with the government. 6. Last, but not least, the government, while still broadcasting its slogan, "No negotiations under duress," is carefully studying now by indicating a willingness to negotiate if assured the French will remove their forces but not necessarily in advance of the transaction.

Widow Jake Hamon Now Penniless She Tells Chicago Judge

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—On representations of Mrs. Georgia Hamon Rohrer, widow of Jake Hamon, Okla. politician slain by Smith Smith Hamon, who was acquitted by a jury, that she is penniless, the judge granting her a divorce from William L. Rohrer was set aside today. Mrs. Rohrer, who obtained the divorce on January 11 on grounds of cruelty, had charged her husband with playfully practicing jiu-jitsu upon her. She was presumed to have received comfortable provisions from the estate of Mr. Hamon but today she declared herself in financial straits and penniless.

MRS. GEORGIA HAMON ROHRER

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—On representations of Mrs. Georgia Hamon Rohrer, widow of Jake Hamon, Okla. politician slain by Smith Smith Hamon, who was acquitted by a jury, that she is penniless, the judge granting her a divorce from William L. Rohrer was set aside today.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The plan for funding Great Britain's war time debt to the United States was turned over to President Harding tonight by the debt funding commission. Accompanying the plan was a statement by the commission suggesting methods of congressional action, translating the results of the commission's negotiations into law. The statement was not made public.

While the commission in a protracted conference was formulating its views for transmission to the president, new rumblings of opposition to the plan were heard in Massachusetts. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader in the senate, visited the white house today to discuss the plan with President Harding and Representative Mondell of Wyoming, the house republican leader. Several of them declared that the plan proposed to be applied on the British debt, was materially lower than the United States pays on its own obligations.

GOVERNMENT LOSS OPERATING ROADS NEAR TWO BILLION

REPORT IS MADE BY DIRECTOR GENERAL JAMES C. DAVIS. ESTIMATES BASED ON LIQUIDATION TO DATE. Amount Includes Payment Under Guarantees Given By Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Losses sustained by the government from war time operation of railroads and its aftermath of earning guarantees and damage settlements will total approximately $1,800,000,000, according to data made available today for the first time in a report by James C. Davis, director general of railroads, transmitted to congress by President Harding. Not only does the amount come within congressional appropriations already made, but there will also be a return to the treasury of about $400,000,000 in cash and railroad securities.

Mr. Davis' estimates are based on the showing actually made in liquidation of accounts between the government and corporate owners of 80 per cent of the railroad mileage owned by the government's stock over. Most of the settlements yet to be made are expected to result in payment by the government in either cash or securities.

Accounting in connection with the government operation has gone through three phases and involves the intricate commerce, communication, as well as the railroad administration. Losses in direct operation of the roads and in the later settlement of capital investment and other charges, as now practically completed by Director General Davis, are shown to reach a total of $1,800,000,000. The government's share of between $155,000,000 and $600,000,000, which has or will be paid by the commission to short railroads and class one carriers.

REPORT TIDAL WAVE IN VICINITY HONOLULU AND ISLAND OF MAUI

HONOLULU, Feb. 3.—The damage at Hilo and Kahului, as the result of tidal waves this afternoon, is estimated at $1,200,000, according to a special message received this evening. The stores on the Hilo waterfront were thrown into streets, their foundations being swept out by the rushing water. Many drivers of automobiles abandoned their cars when they saw the huge waves coming over a fence and in evident distress in the bay here tonight. She was believed to be on a sand bar, but later for some reason she was abandoned.

On the island of Maui, a tidal wave brought serious injury to Dr. L. C. Smith, whose automobile was buried by the waves. The Standard Oil tanker Doane was in evident distress in the bay here tonight. She was believed to be on a sand bar, but later for some reason she was abandoned.

Mr. Davis' estimates are based on the showing actually made in liquidation of accounts between the government and corporate owners of 80 per cent of the railroad mileage owned by the government's stock over. Most of the settlements yet to be made are expected to result in payment by the government in either cash or securities.

MANY IMPORTANT SUBJECTS WAITING TEXAS LAWMAKERS

PROPOSED TWO CENT TAX ON GASOLINE IS ON CAL- ENDRAR.

ANOTHER REVENUE BILL IS TAX ON CRUDE OIL

Cancellation of Text Book Contract is Headliner in the Senate.

AUSTIN, Feb. 3.—When the lawmakers of the legislature convene next Monday on their return from the junket to the "Magic Valley" in the lower Rio Grande, they will start on a list of bills, of which (1) a house and 385 senate measure.

Representative Cowan's bill providing a tax of two cents per gallon on gasoline, the proceeds to be equally divided between the school fund and the highway fund. Representative Johnson has announced that he will offer an amendment to have all proceeds from the tax to go to the general revenue fund. There is an amendment pending to reduce the tax to one cent a gallon with proceeds equally divided between the school and highway funds. That the gas tax will be passed before the legislature adjourns, appears certain.

Senator Darwin is leading the fight for the bill's passage and there is every indication that it will go through without the committee's report. The end of the week it will be on the governor's desk. The governor in a special message to the legislature has urged the passage of the bill, which has given rise to speculation as to whether he will veto the bill. The bill would prevent the payment of money out of the available school fund for new school buildings made by the text book contract. The bill would also prevent the house and will come up in a few days.

The house will next week pass the bill to establish a state college in West Texas, the measure having already been finally and favorably disposed of by the senate. This measure carries an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the next two fiscal years.

UNDERWORLD OF JUAREZ IS EXCITED OVER ALQUIN CASE

HAD-BECOME FIGURE IN CRIMINAL CIRCLES ON THE BORDER. FEAR THE POWER OF THE MAN RESPONSIBLE. May Mean Surrender of Others Wanted by Officials of United States.

By John Fitzgerald, United Press Staff Correspondent, El Paso, Texas, Feb. 3.—The underworld of Juarez is in a turmoil today with the news that its hero, "Little Phil" Alquin is headed toward California for trial.

Coming atop the story that Clara Phillips had for days been hiding in the midst of Calle Diabolo, tough, 10 to 12 acres in north America, it is frankly stunned at the latest turn in the checked career of Alquin. Three months in Juarez, organized a band of criminals the like of which had not been seen before in that haven of crookedness. Among the honest population of small Phil became a figure. He symbolized the grand ideal of a man who could laugh at the dignity of the United States and get away with it. His chief of police, Oakes of Los Angeles will make a grave mistake to bring his prisoner by way of El Paso is the belief of veteran officers here of Alquin.

SETTLEMENT PLANS ARE DELIVERED BY DEBT COMMISSION

GIVEN TO PRESIDENT WITH SUGGESTION FOR CONGRESSIONAL ACTION. OPPOSITION DEVELOPING IN HOUSE AND SENATE. President is Expected to Submit Report to Congress Early in the Week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The plan for funding Great Britain's war time debt to the United States was turned over to President Harding tonight by the debt funding commission. Accompanying the plan was a statement by the commission suggesting methods of congressional action, translating the results of the commission's negotiations into law. NEGRO ARRESTED FOR RECENT WACO MURDER STAGES HUNGER STRIKE

WACO, TEXAS, Feb. 3.—Roy Mitchell, charged here by complaint with four murders, is staging himself in jail in another county. He has not eaten anything since February 1, when he was taken to jail. He refused to eat any food for two days. He was convinced that Mitchell had murdered Grady Skiptworth.

Believing that Mitchell would starve himself, the sheriff and county attorney have asked Judge Munro to call a special grand jury to indict so he can be tried at once but the judge, after deliberation, decided that he had no authority in law to do so. Regular grand juries can only be empaneled in March and September and at any special trial of the court. As the court is now in the middle of the January term which was organized without providing for a grand jury at this time he decided that he had no authority in law to do so.

The only resource for bringing out the testimony is an examining trial and it is probable that the negro will be brought here, kept alive by forcible feeding and tried before a justice of the peace in order to present the evidence against him and place it in the record.

SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER DISCUSSES MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE

National Foundations Are Threatened By Conditions; Would Correct Great Evil

Plan Is Devised to Make Hasty Marriages Impossible and Divorces Difficult—At present the situation tolerates both and many other girls making the United States a reproach in the eyes of the world—Bill was drawn by a woman and especially endeavors to safeguard the rights of children—Perils of perpetuating feeble-mindedness, insanity and hereditary disease provided against.

By EDWARD MARSHALL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—"Something must be done to make hasty marriages impossible and divorces more difficult," said Senator Arthur Capper, the energetic Kansan who has charge of the campaign for divorce and marriage law reform declared with all the considerable emphasis he has.

Senator Capper's plan is comprehensive. The present situation, which involves almost as many different laws as there are states, has become a national scandal in the minds of thousands, among these his, and he has determined that it must be corrected at all hazards.

"I am the author of the bill," said Senator Capper, "although my introduction of it was not perfunctory effort to meet the demands of people of political importance. I am for the proposed legislation with real emphasis.

"As perhaps is fitting the bill was drawn by a woman, the brilliant and able Mrs. Edwards Franklin White, deputy attorney general of Indiana and primarily the backer of the bill in the senate, that of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, one of the most important and powerful women's organizations in the world.

"The bill could not be made effective as a law without a constitutional amendment and this is provided for in a special resolution, of which, also, Mrs. White is the author.

"The fact that the General Federation of Women's clubs is sponsor of the bill by no means indicates that it has no other definite support. We are receiving assurances of approval from every side. Making up the evils of the existing situation, the public realizes the benefits which will accrue from their correction and this support will grow.

"There are other countries in the world where the marriage and divorce situation may be regarded as unfortunate; never has there been one anywhere upon the surface of the earth in which such a situation as that existing in America even has been approximated. It is not far from anarchy.

Misery, Immorality and Crime

"It is responsible for misery, for immorality and other offenses against the law; it affects the whole American morale. Let me recapitulate some of the evils as they now exist. It will not be dull reading. That such things are possible in a great and civilized nation like our own is of itself an exceptionally interesting because an almost incredible thing.

SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER

union there is no prohibition of marriages of the feeble-minded, although it is recognized by science that no feeble-minded union ever produced a sound-minded child. And observe the further and almost incredible fact that in these states where such marriages are legally prohibited the bars must be let down upon the making of an affidavit of the person charged with feeble-mindedness that he or she is not thus afflicted.

A Curse Upon America

"These matters are sufficiently serious to deserve the most profound consideration of the congress and the public; certainly they constitute a situation literally crying for remedial legislation. It cannot be admitted that they are in contravention of good morals and that solid happiness or order and good citizenship upon which a nation's real success must be principally based. It is no less undeniable that they involve enormous waste of time, effort and money.

TWO MURDER CASES SET FOR HEARINGS FOR COMING WEEK

MAJOR W. L. CULBERSON IS TO FACE TRIAL BEGINNING THURSDAY.

NEGRO WOMAN'S CASE ALSO SET FOR TRIAL

Case of Negress Will Very Likely Be Continued As Attorney Is Absent.

Two more murder cases are set for trial in the 30th district court for the coming week. Three out of the seven cases set down in a row have been disposed of. One was passed over during the past week as the Wayne Adams case was still on trial Thursday when the fourth one was called.

Etau Allen was to face trial Monday morning for the murder of Laura Floyd on October 4, 1922 but it is believed that this case will be passed over as the defense counsel was called out of the city Friday morning and will in all probability not be able to return by that time.

Major W. L. Culberson, charged with the murder of M. L. Lamar is to face trial Thursday morning. A special venire of 200 men has been summoned to report to Judge H. R. Wilson at that time.

It is charged in the indictment that the army officer shot and killed Lamar on January 8, just one month before his case will be called. It is alleged that the shooting occurred in front of the Phonograph on Indian avenue at 12:30 o'clock on the morning of January 8.

Chief of police J. W. McCormick effected the officer's arrest at that time and turned him over to the county. Later a bond of $12,500 was agreed upon which he perfected and was released.

VERNON CITIZEN IS HOME FROM AUSTIN SONS IN UNIVERSITY

TWO YOUNG MEN ARE MAKING SPLENDID RECORDS THIS YEAR.

FATHER ONE OF PIONEERS OF WILBARGER COUNTY

Much Interested in Cattle, But Education of Boys First Consideration.

VERNON, TEXAS, Feb. 2.—Mr. E. W. McClary, one of Wilbarger county's early settlers, arrived in Vernon Tuesday from Austin, where he and his family are making their home temporarily while his sons, Frank and Shirley, are attending the University of Texas.

During the recent examinations Frank was one of 17 students in the first 1 per cent and Shirley was one of 17 in next per cent. Their work indicates that they will be honor graduates at the university should they keep up the fine records they have maintained in the past.

Mr. McClary came to Vernon in 1821, and said that when he reached Vernon there was only one house here. He has been actively identified with the cattle industry in this county for many years and has a fine herd of high grade cowboys.

The Sunday school class of Mr. T. McQuill had a banquet at the Vernon hotel last Thursday evening. There were 17 members of the class of young men from 18 to 18 present. Every member of the class stated they had been in Sunday school regular for the past eight years.

Many experiences were related about the days when they sat in the little red chairs. Dr. R. E. Dickenson was guest.

FATHER OF LOCAL ATTORNEY DIES AT HOME NEAR ECTOR

Word was received here Saturday afternoon that G. H. McDonald, father of Attorney C. G. McDonald of this city, had died at his home at Ector, near Bonham, Texas. Mr. McDonald was 82 years of age and had been in poor health since last fall.

Attorney McDonald was called to his father's bedside Thursday night through the courtesy of state's counsel and the court he was permitted to argue the case, then on trial before a jury in order to afford him the opportunity to have an accuser. Mrs. McDonald accompanied him.

Death was due to blood poisoning which developed several months ago. Last fall while eating pecans, Mr. McDonald swallowed a pecan shell and it lodged in his throat. It was necessary later to have an operation performed. It was discovered that blood poisoning had set in and since that time he had undergone several other operations.

Anniversary of Starting Work Upon Irrigation Project Sees Much Done

A view looking upstream. The dredge is shown in the middle distance.

The anniversary of the real starting of work on the irrigation project found all phases of the big undertaking progressing steadily. It was early in February of 1922 that construction activities began at the storage dam.

Although the exceptional lock, which has favored the Callahan Construction company since the work started, broke a little last week when a brick rise in the river knocked out the temporary spillway, the diversion dam there will be no material delay on that structure.

The main dam embankment is now 65 feet high, and will over two-thirds of the way to its maximum height. Progress on it was materially helped by the rains early last week, which raised the water level about ten feet and greatly facilitated the operations of the dredge.

At the service spillway, the work of paving the surface is well under way, though held up slightly by the weather. Sub-contractors engaged in placing the gravel blanket and the rip-rap on the big structure are well up to their schedule.

RAINS HINDERED WORK ON HIGHWAYS DURING PAST WEEK

The rains of the past week impeded progress on the work on the roads in the county, according to Road Engineer J. M. Ibbell.

However, the gravel road to the river bridge south of Iowa Park was completed and is now open to traffic.

The contractors, who are at work in the construction of concrete culverts on the Seymour road, however, met the obstacle of rain immediately after he had torn out three culverts and started to work.

The Seymour road is blocked on this account and traffic going to the K. M. A. district is asked to take the Iowa Park route while those people who live along the Seymour road east of the place where the Iowa Park road hits it are asked to detour through Call field.

PERCENT OF THE CITY TAXES HAD BEEN PAID IN.

With collections coming in at the present rate, Tax Collector E. J. Anderson is of the opinion that collections will run a good bit higher than those of the previous year at the time of delinquency.

Until March 1, both city and school taxes may be paid without penalty. If not paid before that date both city and school taxes will become delinquent and will be subject to a penalty of 10 per cent for non payment, six per cent interest, and costs.

OIL WORKER BACK ON JOB AFTER FLOODING

ORANGE, TEXAS, Feb. 2.—F. J. Reid, teamster for an oil company, was back at work today following a flooding he says was administered to him Thursday night by four masked men. After the whipping he was given a coat of petroleum and turned loose with a placard on his back reading, "I am a wife beater," according to Sheriff Holton. The masked men are said to have warned Reid to "go back to work and stay on the job." He says he will follow instructions.

SPRING

Trips into the Store

GONE are the modes of Winter—here are the Modes of Spring! Each one a vital interpretation of the mode as expert designers have conceived it—each one an irresistible challenge to every woman everywhere. For here is the NEW—the exhilarating—the best and most charming Fashions ever to emerge into an expectant world! Your early and leisurely inspection is requested.

All the Enticement That is Spring's Lurks in These

NEW SPRING MODES

OH what is so thrilling as these Hats of Spring! Here a close-fitting mode snugly cap-like is of changeable taffeta in green and gold—there a dashing cape-line flings a toast to the world via a huge wing-like bow that smacks of Paris. Suits with smartly abbreviated coats are intriguing in braid trimmings—frocks are a pageant where orient and occident meet. A bit of this and a dash of that and thus Spring fashions are evolved.

TAILLEURS

Accentuate Costume Suits

THE three-piece mode, of course, since Paris so ardently favors it. It is very smart with braided designs and chic bloused coats that give that ultra appearance the jacquette imparts. Side drapes and circular godets are emphasized in skirts. New, clever fabrics spotlight strictly tailored modes.

FROCKS OF SPRING

Swing Many a Clever Fold and Flaunt Oriental Color

FROCKS so versatile in every way present a vastly intriguing selection. Striking patterns in softly draped styles have an exotic charm, a quaint note. Coat Frocks of twill or wool crepe are braided cleverly. New flat crepes have pretty lingerie touches. The waistline tends to move upward—silhouettes still adhere to the slimly supple one. Straight lines, however, are sharing honors with picturesque basqued modes whose skirts are tiered or circular.

THE STARRY SKIES IN FEBRUARY

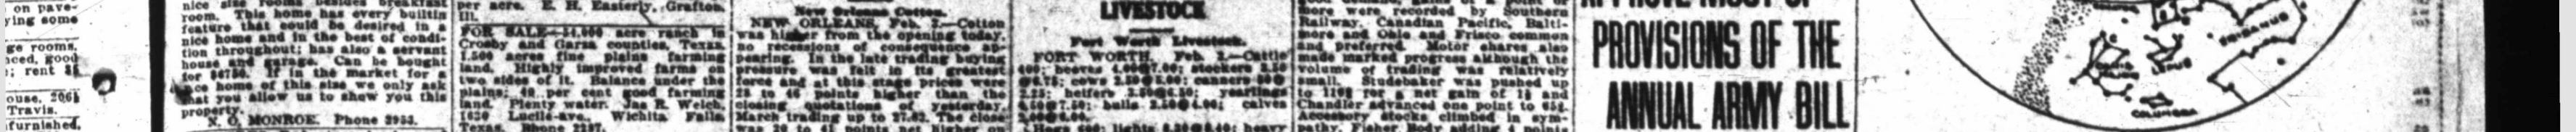

Figure 1. The constellations at 9 p. m. February 1. Hold the map to the sky so that the direction faced is at the bottom, that is, if facing east hold east at the bottom and south near it.

It has been our custom to describe briefly at the beginning of the year the astronomical events expected during the year. The description of the constellations did not leave room for this last month. Probably the most important event of the year will be the total eclipse of the sun for about three and a half minutes on September 12. Some phases of the eclipse will be visible in the whole of the United States. The amount varies from about four-tenths of total eclipse in the north to total eclipse in the south.

APPROVE MOST OF PROVISIONS OF THE ANNUAL ARMY BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Many of the most important provisions of the annual army bill, including the provision for a personal file of 125,000 men and 11,000 officers, were approved today by the senate within a few hours after consideration of the measure was begun. No move to reduce the personal file figures which will keep the army at its present strength, was made from any quarter. Committee amendments increasing appropriations also were approved.

POSTPONE HEARING OF MEXICAN PETROLEUM CO.

TURK DELEGATES PLAN TO PRESENT COUNTER TREATY

ALLIES AWAIT WITH ANXIETY THE RESULT OF CONFERENCE.

BELIEVE TURKS WILL EVENTUALLY SIGN UP

French and Italian Delegates to Leave Unless Some Action is Taken.

LAUNANNE, Feb. 3.—The Turkish delegation informed the Associated Press tonight that it will present a counter treaty to the allies.

At midnight the entire Turkish delegation was still in close conference, drafting a reply to be submitted to the allies tomorrow.

The allied delegates are awaiting with some anxiety the Turkish action, some of them believing that the Turks will ask for further delay and perhaps to refer back to Ankara.

Both the French and Italian delegates declared tonight that if the Turks do not sign the treaty tomorrow and the British departed, they would follow suit.

The French spokesmen referred to Janet Pasha's "discouraging attitude of reserve" in all of today's conversations. The general impression is that the Turks, with but one official distinction to come to a decision, will hold back until the last moment, then sign.

The Associated Press correspondent obtained a copy of the allies' last compromise on capitulations which was handed to the Turkish delegation and which is of special interest to American residents in Turkey.

So far as not to offend Turkish pride, this will not be incorporated in the treaty of peace, but will stand as a declaration by the Turkish delegation, with the permanent court of international justice.

The committee of international justice, in the preparation of legislative reforms and will be assigned judicial districts of the special courts at Smyrna and Constantinople and the ordinary courts at Bursa and Adana.

They will not act as judges, but will be empowered to receive complaints from foreigners respecting the administration of justice.

These complaints will be referred to competent Turkish authorities in order to insure strict observance of the Turkish code.

Arraignment of the Turkish code, as executed in accordance with the views of the counselors with Turkey recognizing the equality of decisions in civil and commercial cases reached by outside arbitrators.

Underworld of Juarez is excited

Conclusion of an application of the "law of the Rio Grande," the unwritten law of abduction by any means you may, executed by a small group of former soldiers of fortune who now make their headquarters in El Paso.

Expert work by a former El Paso detective brought from amid plots and shooting in the first attempt to capture Phil, admitting at least his inability to name the order, "wise ones" here believe.

On the Calle Diablo they mention this name today in fear and trembling. If he can name the order, deportation of Phil Alguin and can, as he has interested the Mexican government in the Clara Phillips case, he can take any of them over the line and claim the varying rewards that are on their heads.

CONFESSIONS TO MURDER OF DETECTIVE FITZGERALD

EL PASO, Feb. 3.—"Little Phil" Alguin, also known as Alguin, has confessed that he shot and killed Detective Sergeant J. Fitzgerald in Los Angeles, according to Judge Felipe Rodriguez of the Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico, court of letters.

The confession, according to Judge Rodriguez, is in the records of his court. That Alguin has confessed was first announced by the judge today. Alguin is now on his way from Vera Cruz to Galveston. He is being deported from Mexico by way of President Obregon as an undesirable alien.

Extra precautions will be taken by American authorities to frustrate any attempt to remove Alguin from the train along the Mexican border if he is returned to Los Angeles by way of El Paso, according to Det. Jenkins, chief of police here.

Alguin also admitted to attaches of the United States district court that he killed Fitzgerald, according to department of justice officials in El Paso.

The confession was made in open court in the presence of witnesses. Judge Rodriguez said, but it was not made part of the written court records. Judge Rodriguez refused to reveal details of the confession.

SCHEDULED TO LEAVE GALVESTON ON SUNDAY

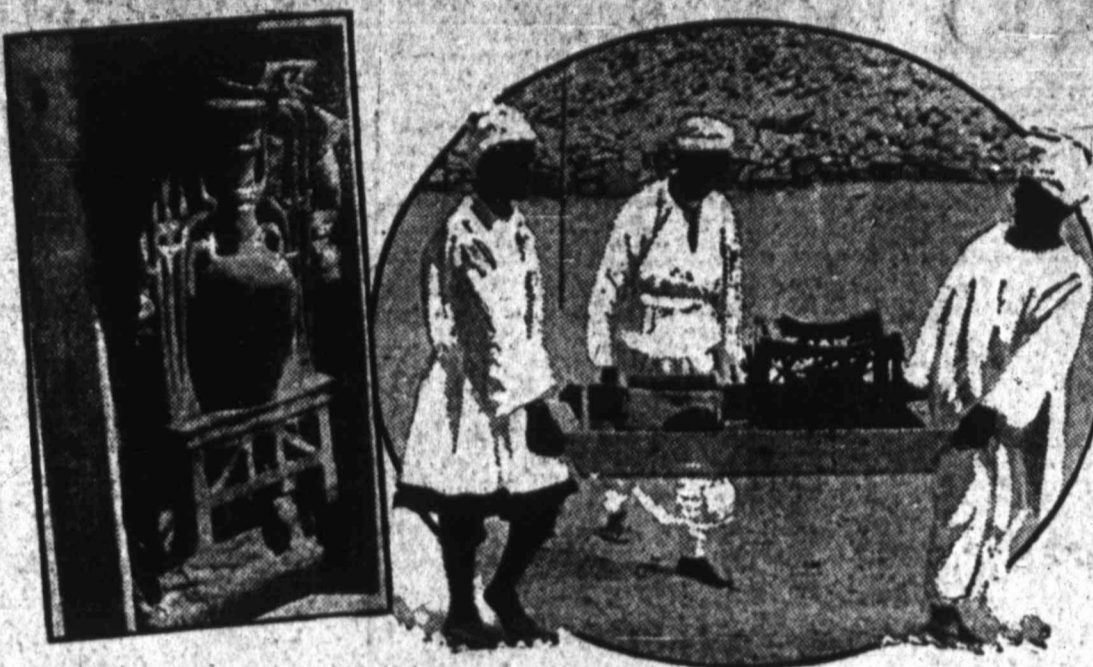

GALVESTON, Feb. 3.—Police here were in wireless communication with two oil tankers and attempting to get a third ship today as a result of reports reaching here that Phil Alguin, alias Holguin, alias "Arizona Phil," alias "The Turkey" was in Los Angeles detective sergeant and who escaped into Mexico, was being deported on an oil tanker.

Both of the tankers reported that the man was not aboard.

Early this evening, however, Chief of Police James O. Stevenson reported information that the man would not leave Galveston until tomorrow morning.

Every effort will be made to apprehend Alguin if he arrives here and a sharp watch will be kept over ships arriving from Mexico.

REMOVING TREASURES FROM TUTANKHAMEN'S TOMB

Egyptians at right are removing what evidently were costly stools for children from the newly discovered tomb of King Tutankhamen who ruled Egypt 3400 years ago. Left is an alabaster case taken from the tomb. Fate of the treasure, buried since the birth of Christ, will run into millions.

LUXOR, EGYPT, Feb. 3.—A chariot of gold, studded with priceless jewels, that was once the personal conveyance of King Tutankhamen was removed from the tomb of the ancient pharaoh by excavators on the outskirts of this county during the night.

The negroes are alleged to have burglarized two stores near Sparta, Ga., located near here, and besides money, secured a shotgun and ammunition. Bloodhounds from the state penitentiary picked up their trail early today.

When the pursuing posse reached the negroes they opened fire with the stolen shotgun and Gilmore fell seriously wounded. Several shots were exchanged before one of the negroes was captured. His body was riddled with bullets.

The other negro escaped during the battle, but early tonight was overtaken and put to death. The lynched men have not been identified.

LYNCH TWO NEGROES FOLLOWING MURDER OF ONE OF A POSSE

MILLEDOGEVILLE, GA., Feb. 3. Two negroes were lynched near the line dividing Hancock and Baldwin counties today following their shooting of Lindsay B. Gilmore, a member of a posse purging the negroes, after their alleged robbery on the outskirts of this county during the night.

The negroes are alleged to have burglarized two stores near Sparta, Ga., located near here, and besides money, secured a shotgun and ammunition. Bloodhounds from the state penitentiary picked up their trail early today.

When the pursuing posse reached the negroes they opened fire with the stolen shotgun and Gilmore fell seriously wounded. Several shots were exchanged before one of the negroes was captured. His body was riddled with bullets.

Prince Andrew Sees World War; Thinks Democracy May End Hates

Editors Note: Prince Andrew of Greece here speaks through NEA Service, in the first authorized interview he has given since coming to America.

This brother of the late King Constantine has lately figured big in the world news. He has been banished forever from his native land. He is here with his wife and his older brother, Prince Christopher, and the former Mrs. Leeds.

Prince Andrew figured in the recent headlines in Asia Minor.

By ALEXANDER HERMAN NEA Service Staff Writer NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Europe will soon be embroiled in another great war.

In the wake of the poverty and isolation of the last great conflict have risen new hates and rivalries which have whittled the appetites for peace.

And there can be no staying these until they have been satisfied.

These are the views of Prince Andrew of Greece, soldier and statesman, brother of the late King Constantine.

"It's the greatest tragedy of history," he said in an exclusive interview with NEA Service. "Despite the terrible havoc wrought in the past eight years, the world will not learn."

"I don't know if it ever will. As long as one nation has the coal and another has the iron, and neither is good without the other, there will be continual conflict. For years it may smoulder, only to flare up when the provocation arises."

"Look at France and Germany—more embittered now than even in the hateful days of the twenties."

"The way out?"

"A United States of Europe, perhaps—but that is hardly possible today. There is no foundation to work on. There are too many nationalities, too many different groups under present conditions to be welded together."

"The whole problem seems too great for any human solution now."

Prince Andrew looked out of the window of his room in the Hotel Ambassador. Eight floors below Park Avenue, New York's most exclusive street, day workers from the east side were jostling members of the four hundred out walking with their pedigreed dogs.

"Perhaps the solution lies there," the prince said wistfully. "In a complete democratization of the world. I hope so."

This from a man who comes from one of the world's most royal families, who is related to the leading monarchs of Europe?

Prince Andrew is a democrat in manner as he is in thought. Dressed simply in sack coat, soft collar and four-in-hand tie, he would be taken for an everyday business man, if he didn't wear a monocle. He has no long retinue of followers at the hotel—just one man servant.

His wife, Princess Alice, sister of Lord Mountbatten, is just as unpretentious.

"Together," said the prince, "we hope to do a 'Cook's tour' of this country. We want to see the whole United States—and we know that it's greater part lies beyond New York."

After a six-month trip they expect to return to London where their children have been going to school since Prince Andrew's banishment from Greece.

PRINCE ANDREW

"There is just one thing that I don't like about this land," Prince Andrew closed. "I can't get accustomed to its telephone."

OKLAHOMA YOUTH HAS DISAPPEARED FEAR FOUL PLAY

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., Feb. 3. Carry Adkins, 22, who disappeared less than an hour before he was to have married Mrs. Muriel Varrie, Friday evening, had not been heard from late today, police said.

Adkins' father said his son had at least $45 with him when last seen at the refinery where he was employed. This led police to believe young Adkins to have been the victim of a robbery. His lunch kit was found along the roadside not far from the refinery.

Mrs. Varrie, in a hysterical condition at her home today, declared she was sure her husband-to-be had not with her to play. She denied there had been a quarrel before the wedding was to have taken place.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor of Ruston, La., after spending several days in the city as the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Le O. Nelson, have returned home.

Goodlett Hodges of Iowa Park was a visitor in the city Saturday.

Finis Mount of Bellevue, Texas, is in the city on business for a short while.

Mrs. J. W. Hughes and daughters, Denver, Colo., visited Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Snyder, 1503 Bluff street. They are en route to Florida, by way of automobile.

Every Kind of Human Grief Gathers At the Y. W. Aid Desk, Union Station, Here Is What Happened One Day

Every kind of human grief gathers, like the needles to the magnet, at the Y. W. C. A. Travelers' Aid desk in the Union station. Yet not one person in a thousand in Wichita Falls, even those who have been to the station at its busiest, realize just what the aid secretary has to handle in the way of crossed human wires.

"Oh, yes; the Travelers' Aid is the lady who takes care of the babies at the station," says one young woman brightly to another within hearing of the secretary, who only smiles.

One day's Grief. She does not take care of babies in the station, for several hours a day she is entirely too busy to sit still and take care of anything, and mothers are very much more successful as a rule, anyway. Of course there have been a few emergency cases when a baby had to be looked after for a few minutes, but that was all.

"She's the lady who can straighten out your routing for you," another will whisper, to a certain companion. And every woman who has ever got a routing for a long trip knows what this means. Men simply don't understand the things a woman doesn't understand, and that's all there is about it. So the Travelers' Aid is the woman who "straightens your routing" for you, when you need such help.

But her duties don't stop there—nor at any of the thousand and one little things that a person perfectly familiar with traveling conditions, train schedules, connections, the city and county of Wichita Falls, and all of the nobility and ignominy therein, can be of assistance concerning.

There was Tuesday of this week, for instance. How would you like to break the news to a frantically waiting mother that the son to whom she had just given birth had just died? You'd probably let George do it! But within fifteen minutes after she came into the station Tuesday morning, that was the Travelers' Aid's first special task.

A slender, tired looking woman who had traveled from Paris and was waiting to get a call from Stamford when the aid secretary first came in, had got her call through and was told that the boy would be met at the station in that town and taken to the country home of her boy, who was seriously ill from flu. She had a faint idea of the secretary that her boy had only been married a week when the phone on the desk rang.

"Wouldn't you think they would have waited until that poor mother got there to break the news? But they didn't! Right on the heels of the first call, the fifteen minutes they called to say that the boy had died. And the secretary had to do the telling.

A little while later, in the midst of a busy period when she was getting medicine for a sick employe at the station, she was called to the private room. In there a young woman, overcome with grief, told her that her brother, who had been missing for several days, had been found in his field, murdered, and she was called.

When she had done all she could to comfort the grief-stricken sister, the secretary responded to another call from the waiting room. Two poorly dressed and thoroughly worn out women with five children huddled in a group down near the ticket window, and had been, she overheard the station master, who overheard their talk, "the kids are hungry, and they ain't got but two cents." He informed her.

When the Y. W. secretary had issued a warning herself she found it was true, and more than true. Then she asked some questions and found that one of the women was the wife and the other the sister of a man dying in Stamford, and that they had traveled from a little town in northeastern Oklahoma had missed connections twice, and none of them had anything to eat since noon the day before.

"What in the devil do you miss their connections for?" you will ask yourself. Well, my dear, as Christ said of those who need a physician—the sick, not the well—social service organizations are for the very purpose of helping that 14 per cent of the total human population that is more easily helped, imposed upon, and otherwise unfortunate than the sixteen per cent that can—most of the time—look out for themselves. And at that the sixteen per cent needs occasional help.

So the secretary brought a dollar

Children Present Beautiful Pageant And Benefit Nets League Around $250

Forty children of Mrs. E. L. Fulton's dancing and expression classes scored a most attractive triumph in their pageant entertainment, "The Feast of the Corn," Friday night at the Falcon Theatre. Incidentally, the Civic League, for whose benefit Mrs. Fulton presented the pageant, netted around $250 for their civic work this coming spring.

The pageant was one of the most colorful and lively home talent productions ever presented here, with several features of dancing, light- and sound effects which were especially interesting to the audience given by a home group.

Solo dancing which furnished one of the highlights of the evening included the four dances of the season, with Miss Anna Ruth Kahn as leading, in a toe dance, Miss Toddie Darr as summer in a Grecian dance, Miss Nell Thompson as autumn in an interpretative sketch, and Miss Anna Mae Cato as winter, in a character toe dance. Little Miss Natalie Johnson, Camille Avis, Bona Marie Gilbert and Vera Stonecipher, were the dainty dancing attendants, respectively, of the four seasons, and were the four winds, cast, south-west, and north.

Little Miss Rose Marian Art was one of the stars of the pageant, taking the part of "Impey Light" in a character aptly suggested by her name, while Miss Geraldine Monroe as Weeda, winter, queen of the tribe, played the leading character part, with Miss Bernice Martin another star as "My Moon." The sorceress squaw, Frances Reid, Ruth Graham and Joe Witherspoon were the three children of the queen and had attractive parts, while Misses Tillie Mae Schaefer, Josephine Fink, and Margaret Kay sang the "Song of sorrow" which presaged the bad news of the sinking of the queen's canoe.

One of the prettiest features of the whole pageant was the baby chorus, with about twenty tiny little girls, in colorful carnival costumes playing and dancing in two special choruses, led by Pauline Jane Art and Jane Selmann, Camille Avis, Vera Stonecipher, and Ruth Graham, and solo singing with the choruses, and the ghost dance, with Mildred Miller, Frances Penton, Mary Elizabeth Collier, Beulah Gardner, Anna Mae Cato, Annie Ruth Kahn, and Toddie Darr, was another pretty dance number.

Other children who took part in

On account of the fact that Miss Musgrave, missionary to Africa, who is to be home in Waxahatche on Thursday in a few days, can be with them next week, the members of the C. W. E. M. of the First Christian church have postponed their meeting from the first to the second Monday in February.

The meeting will open at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, February 13th. Miss Musgrave will be the guest of Mrs. J. W. Pond.

AMONG THE NEWCOMERS

Mrs. O. H. Kelluge, sister of Mrs. H. S. Sunderford of this city, is another among the newcomers to Wichita Falls, and was, a short time ago, Miss Erlene Austin, of Belton, Texas. Mr. and Mrs. Kelluge are at home temporarily with Mr. and Mrs. Sunderford, at 1618 Lucile, and both of them have made many friends in the city.

Sunshine Baby and 100 Per Cent Boy

Miss Mary Elouise Curtis is a Sunshine Garden baby, as you have no doubt noticed, while James Curtis, her brother, is one of the 100 per cent babies of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair, whose photo-The Times was unable to get in October. Both are the children of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Curtis, of 1205 Polk.

KATHLEEN NORRIS Woman to Woman Talks

THE UNPOPULAR WOMAN

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"America's Best Loved" Woman, Writes the Women

Every woman, in her heart of hearts, wants to get married. This particular woman, who is the subject of this column, is no exception. In common, then, I certainly would marry!

"Which is, after all, only as if one said, 'If he wasn't worth while, and I wasn't going to grow up and break my heart, of course I'd like a son!' Or, 'If the roof didn't leak, and the give factory wasn't broken, I'd like to own a house!'"

The proof that the girl who boasts that she is fastidious and not in a hurry to marry any one is merely fighting for time, lies in the fact that presently a nice, email, eye-glassed clerk, whose income is eighteen hundred a year, is paying attention to her and she instantly forgets all her former qualifications.

Her husband had to be tall, rich, dark, a professional man, and fond of home and books, did he? Yes, but this man is short, poor, fair, and a clerk, and socially inclined that he is chairman of the winter cotillions.

But it is all forgotten—they are married, and have perhaps as good a chance at happiness as most of us.

A Pathetic Type of Girl There is something extremely pathetic about a certain sort of young—or sometimes not so young—woman. The type that longs to be popular with men, that longs for the legitimate joy of flirting and falling in love, and that is somehow forbidden the natural right of womanhood.

We all know this sort of girl. Every group has one or more than one. They have no real friends, and are surrounded by men and she regrets it.

I have in mind, as I write, two such girls—girls I know well. They are typical of the class. One is the plain sister of two extremely pretty and vivacious girls. The other is an only child, really handsome, beautiful, well-to-do, and new and about twenty-seven.

Building One's Own Life The plain sister is a school teacher, of the somewhat military type, fast and reserved, and sensitive. She has two younger sisters surrounded by men and she regrets it.

Development of Character She is unpopular not because her sisters are pretty and nice—but because she isn't.

Let her develop her own charm, in her own perfectly personal way, and gradually the most who like her books and conversation rather than her and rush, will gravitate toward her.

Such a girl ought to join a language class or take up some work apart from the drudgery of her actual daily work. Literature or history, or classical astronomy, or anything of literary work will bring her into contact with persons who share her tastes and who will appreciate her good habits.

As for the other girl, the rich old maid. I was studying her at college, and she was studying her at college. She had traveled extensively, she speaks three languages, plays an instrument, golf, tennis, plays tennis and bridge and chess—about modern plays and books.

And all men love her and avoid her when they can. The girl who is never married, I decided, is that she is never for a moment herself. Her laugh is loud, her words are careless and inconstant, she affects boredom, affects surprise, affects emotion after another that she does not feel.

Of course, I'm a regular professional old maid. Man wanted to marry me in Florida. Last year everyone was about him—I said "No." I said my friends wouldn't have any one to kid if I got married. "I was telling one of the finest men in this city the other day that I wouldn't get married—never!" I said, "I said, like you. Like you a lot! But sit opposite my every morning for the rest of my life!" It can't be said, but she understands it.

awkward and feels herself at a loss. The happiest wives are not the beautiful, the successful marriages are not those of exquisite two-and-twoes, married in the home of the village millionaire. And beauty—how many changes of the looms are gone in the twenties how few women carry beauty into the forties.

Madam Leave Best Beauty The forties are well worth thinking about, and the filling. Don't take a class, a pleasant expression, a well-brushed hair and a soft voice into the forties is to take the best and best beauty that they are into middle life.

Hundreds of women, in these days of good grooming and good health, are better today at forty than they ever were at eighteen. And hundreds of girls who were as pretty as roses when the century was new and shimmering faded, and withered women today, still clinging to the old conviction that looks are everything and that they have them.

To make oneself attractive, you have only to forget the rest of the world and make yourself charming—to yourself.

And if you are stigmatized as a party find some one even more stigmatized if you are not selected by the popular boys at a dance, cultivate the unpopular ones. The unpopular ones, by the way, are the ones the world may be talking about in 1940.

Social success is a very shallow growth, after all. The girls who achieve it don't know how they do it. Leave them the field and take the distribution of the lunch in charge, or busy yourself over a picture parade on an obscure table, or drop into a chair with a book.

If Browning or Emerson were in the room in the rich, you would prefer his company to a hundred Bobby Whites and Jimmy Wilsons, with their ukuleles and their noise. And just that little remembered line from "Rabbit Run" or "Friendship" may be the touch that wins you the regard and the love of a real man, some day.

Little craft make for small harbors. But build yourself into a real ship, that will be at home in all the ports of the world, and never fear but what you will get your sailing orders.

This is one of a series of Woman to Woman talks on present day family and social conditions that Kathleen Norris, America's best loved and most popular woman writer, is writing especially for this newspaper. Another talk will be printed next Sunday.

JULIA EMERY CLASS HAS PARTY THURSDAY On Thursday evening the Julia Emery class entertained the teachers of the Sunday school classes of the Church of Good Shepherd with a turkey dinner, at the parish home.

During the dinner, Mrs. Earl Clayton, president of the class, Mrs. Robert Lyle, teacher, and Mrs. D. Davidson, gave interesting talks relating to the substantial growth of the class. Mrs. W. J. Margardine, chairman of the social committee, was given a voting vote of thanks for the planning of the splendid dinner.

At the conclusion of the dinner a varied and interesting program was rendered. Mrs. J. O. Amman sang, "You're Sweet as You May Be." Mrs. M. O. Orlery Davis danced a Russian dance in costume; Miss Lettie Davis and Mrs. Charles Angle danced and sang the "Song of India" in costume and Mrs. Stanley Haub, two very beautiful violin numbers "Scherezade," Kreisler, and "Rondino," Kreisler, which were delightfully received. Miss Inez Adkins very capably accompanying all numbers.

Those enjoying the evening were Mrs. Mrs. D. Davidson, Mrs. J. O. Amman, Lawrence A. Davis, Claude Woods, Carl Eckman, W. J. Margardine, E. H. Huggins, Ruth Lawing, J. C. Charters, G. W. Williamson, Kenneth Bab, Riedle, H. A. Allen, C. W. Reid, L. E. Whitman, Bobb Collier, Crest Van Millon, Judge and Mrs. C. L. Brown, P. C. Bowman, E. Fuller, and Miss Denver Rossel, Ethel Chamberlain, Florence Watson, Dot Russell, Leslie Davis, Marcia Woolsey, Mrs. Mollie McElroy.

High School Girls' Club Held Its Regular Meeting in the auditorium at the high school Friday afternoon. An unusually interesting program, arranged by Miss Dorothy Nolen, chairman of the entertainment committee, was given. A vocal solo, "The Waters of Missatonka," was rendered by Miss Alvin with piano and violin accompaniment by Lee Kravitz and Lee Malacord.

A play, "Oh, Boy," was presented and very much enjoyed. Those taking part were: Elizabeth Berry, Fern Biles, Juanita Winggood, Elizabeth Brown, Edith Sherrod, Fay Green, Gladys Fowler and Vera Cain. The next number was a violin solo by Mr. Paul Pond, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Paul Pond.

Mrs. J. T. Harrell's reading, "Patsy," closed the program. MRS. RAMSEY IS GIVEN BIRTHDAY SURPRISE A number of Mrs. F. W. Ramsey's friends surprised her on her birthday, Friday, Feb. 2, by calling and spending the afternoon at her home, 2915 Eighth street. They took a large birthday cake and other refreshments with them.

LEAVES FOR WARD-BELMONT

Miss Josephine Tucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Tucker, and well known among the younger set members, left last week for Nashville, Tenn., to enter "Ward-Belmont."

Miss Tucker will be welcomed by half a dozen other Wichita Falls girls who are already at Ward-Belmont.

Mrs. and Mrs. Brad Stagg entertained a number of their friends at their home Friday evening at bridge. In the living room, which was lavishly decorated with early spring blossoms, tables were placed for three tables of bridge. After several hours were spent in a number of enjoyable games, Mrs. Stagg's friends were given an attractive prize and Mr. Robert Brown for the most received a handsome watch. At a late hour the hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. H. Boddy, served a tempting plate luncheon to the following: Mesdames J. A. Allison, J. A. Allison, Jack McKenna; Misses Etta Pickett, Beniah Bradley; Messrs. T. W. Lewis, Barlow Weaver, the host and hostess.

Radio Party
Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Johnson with Mrs. J. E. Haggard of Wichita Falls were host and hostess at a very delightful radio party last Friday evening at the hospitable home of Dr. Johnson and wife. The program was arranged with bloomers, flowers and valentine motifs were used most effectively throughout the home while added light effects to the beauty of the natural. The reception suite was converted into a theatre and sixty-two seats bearing numbers were arranged in the front of the room. The guests were Dr. C. E. Johnson, Mrs. C. E. Johnson and Mrs. J. E. Haggard. Mrs. F. P. Fisher received into the dining room where Mrs. W. B. Craddock and Mrs. F. H. Davis presided over the ladies with Dr. Johnson's gallant son, John Oates, and Mr. E. C. Craddock assisted the men in the removal of their wraps. Little Miss Junie Camp and Elizabeth Johnson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Johnson were very attractive in costumes of keppies and each held a basket filled with arrows which were directed to the guests to their theatre seats. Mrs. I. Briggs and Mrs. Morris Randall were usher.

AMUSEMENT CALENDAR FOR WEEK AT LOCAL THEATERS

'Love In the Dark' With Viola Dana Empress Monday

"Love in the Dark," the new Metro photoplay starring the vivacious Viola Dana, commences the Empress Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Those who have seen the photoplay pronounce it an extraordinary production and one of the most enjoyable comedy-dramas of the present season. It is certainly a high, exciting motion picture, and in it the interest never lags. Miss Dana fits into the part of the leading character excellently. Throughout the acting is of a high order.

"Love in the Dark" tells the story of a girl who is adopted by a member of a gang of crooks. She is engaged to take care of little Red, a four-year old youngster. Her natural curiosity leads her to discover many things about the woman whose ward she is; and the plot complications enable her to expose a crook who is mulling the sign of a kindly minister who has adopted her and Red. Incidents of powerful drama and situations of genuine humor make this picture a delightful one throughout.

Harry Beaumont has directed the story, which J. G. Hawks adapted from the original narrative by John Moroso. John Arnold was the cameraman. J. J. Hughes was art director.

The cast supporting Miss Dana includes Cullen Landis, Arline Pryor, Edward Connelly, John Harlow, Bruce Guerin, Margaret Mann and Charles West.

MACK SENNETT PRESENTS MABEL NORMAND in "SUZANNA"

Helen Gibson Is Featured at Gem on Monday

Helen Gibson, who is one of the featured players in "Nine Points of the Law," which comes to the Gem theatre on Monday is one of the most proficient horsewomen in the country.

Having been brought up on a horse, it is small wonder that Miss Gibson achieved fame as a rider long before she thought of becoming a screen actress.

Always her father's pal, and a great friend with the "hired hands" on the ranch, she was placed on a horse almost before she was able to walk.

"I don't remember ever walking," says Miss Gibson. "No matter where I wanted to go—no matter how short the distance—I always rode my horse. I just naturally came to feel more at home in the saddle than I did with my feet on the ground."

She became such a daring rider that after winning a succession of prizes in California rodeos she was induced to take up riding as a profession. For two seasons Miss Gibson was with Miller Brothers 101 ranch. The young woman holds many California and Pacific coast championships for rodeo riding.

It is easily understandable that when she joined the Los Angeles screen colony, directors took advantage of the fact that Miss Gibson was an expert equestrienne.

"I give me an opportunity to indulge in my favorite sport even while at professional labor. It's not work to me—just pleasure."

COMES TO OLYMPIC THEATRE ON THURSDAY

CHARACTERISTIC HIGH-LIGHTS IN "QUINCY ADAMS SAWYER"

JAMES MONTGOMERY FLAGG CALLS IT 'GORGEOUS DELIGHT'

James Montgomery Flagg has seen Douglas Fairbanks' "Robin Hood," which comes to the Strand the week of February 12, and this is what he thinks about it in The New York Times.

"I don't owe Doug Fairbanks a cent nor do I want anything he has, but I would like to compliment him in print on his Robin Hood. Do you mind?"

"I was nuts on The Three Musketeers," but when I sat in on "Robin Hood" nothing but superlatives expressed my appreciation. I had a hunch when that huge drawing was lowered right out into the audience at the opening shot that Romance would pour over it—and it did. The picture is a gorgeous delight from start to end—the burly ruffian King Richard gnawing on the hind leg of a sheep, or whatever it was, while he watched the journey—the wonderful satisfying villainy of Prince John—the winsome frailness of the Lady Marian—the fairland beauty of the ladies in waiting as they threw themselves at his feet—just as they do today at Paris and such—the brilliant magnificence of the scenes at theousting—the wonderful castle—the gigantic curtain, a mile or so long, that Robin Hood slid down to escape John's retainers—the mystic forest with its beautiful trees—the sunlight and the velvet shadows where the robber hid—the pitiful tragedy of the court messenger done with the impressiveness of superb art—the thousand satiating nocturnal direction—and last but not first, the inimitable Doug Fairbanks in his chivalrous and humorous and absorbing Robin Hood imagination."

"It is one of the few really great pictures I have seen on the screen, and I hope everybody who loves fairy tales, adventure, romance and beauty will see it, no matter what their ages or sex be, or whether they believe in the republican party or Bacardi cocktails or Postum, or blanket legislation for women or Santa Claus or Iran on their coat, or anything, because they will be thrilled in spite of themselves."

periences in running down a dishonorable scoundrel; his great love affair—all this is a part of the attractive novel which is now a screen play. The delightful rural characters are fun-provoking to the extreme, and the fresh, clean, humor will appeal to all lovers of better photoplays.

A lavish production has been given this famous story. To enact the roles in the picture, the entire motion picture industry was searched for its best material. As a result, one of the highest-priced assembles of talent is seen, and in the list are players who have been starred in their own right. Among the more important are Blanche Sweet, Lon Chaney, Barbara La Marr, John Bowers, Eimo Lincoln, Louise Fazenda, June Elvidge, Hank Mann, Zasu Pitta, and many others.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" was adapted from the novel by Bernard McConville. It was directed by Clarence B. Ladger. The production was made by S. L. Arthur Sawyer-Herbert Lubin and is released by Metro.

BEGIN SERIES OF LECTURES ON OIL INDUSTRY AT CLUB

A series of discussions on the oil industry in its various phases will begin at the meeting of the Wichita Falls Technical club which will be held next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A.

I. H. Sheldon, a geologist of the Tenth Oil and Refining company will attend the meeting this week discuss "Petroleum Engineering" and will deal with the geological formations, core boring of oil sand and will comment on the "doodle bug" sometimes known as the dividing rod or the witch stick.

The club meets on the first and third Tuesday night of each month and at the next meeting J. B. Jovec of the Tenthoma company will discuss "Plant Layout and Methods of Refining Crude Oil."

Other subjects along this same line which will be discussed at later meetings will include the production and transporting of crude oil in this district and the use and distribution of refined products.

J. C. Nagle, who was formerly dean of the A. & M. college but more recently connected with an engineering firm in Dallas will speak to the members of the Technical club either the latter part of February or the first of March on the impressions he received of foreign engineering while on a tour of England, France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy.

Rural Classic to Be Here Thursday At the Olympic

One of the most widely heralded of this season's photoplays is announced as coming to the Olympic Thursday for the remainder of the week. It is "Quincy Adams Sawyer," a Metro-SL picture based on the famous story of New England life which was a phenomenal "best seller" when it appeared a decade ago. So great was the popularity of the printed narrative by Flagg that it was dramatized, and in this form it won a great success.

The elaborate photoplay version is even more interesting than the book or the play. Everybody knows the story of "Quincy Adams Sawyer." Everybody knows and loves its quaint rustic reference to the British proposal that the United States furnish Germany credit to replace the working capital that England and France were planning to take from her. He wrote: "Throughout the reparations discussion the American delegation has steadily pointed out to the other delegations that the plans proposed would surely deprive Germany of the means of making any appreciable reparations payments. I myself, as you know, have frequently made the same observation. But whenever any of us was urgent on this point, he was accused of being pro-German. Our delegation finally gave assent to the reparations clauses as drawn, only because the reparations problem was one that chiefly concerned France, Great Britain, Belgium and the other European countries, and not America." And later in the same letter: "How can anyone expect America to turn over to Germany in any considerable measure new working capital to take the place of that which the European nations have determined to take from her?" President Wilson might have forced his own terms in the treaty if he had been unyielding and if he had held the constant threat of withdrawal if American terms were not met. With Lloyd George's whole-hearted support he could have drafted terms that might have been met. At critical times Lloyd George's support was lacking. The situation at which Lloyd George today complains is largely the result of his own attitude at Paris.

A Harris county grand jury investigating flopping at Goose Creek in that county reported on two special cases. One was that in which a helpless woman and a male visitor had been seized and flogged by masked men. The other was that of a former postmaster against whom a threat of white capping had been alleged. The grand jury was unable after diligent inquiry to obtain sufficient evidence on which to return indictments in connection with the flogging of the woman. It reported its belief that one band of men organized for the purpose of regulating the morals of the community had perpetrated all of the floppings there. It reported it had found witnesses reluctant to testify and public officials inactive in efforts to establish responsibility for the floppings and to bring the guilty to justice. The grand jury expressed the opinion that the activities of the masked band had the general approval of the community, but reminded the people there that the election of responsible officers for the enforcement of the law was the proper method.

In connection with threats against the former postmaster, indictments against three men were returned charging them with unlawful assembly. Communicated with over the telephone the former postmaster told a reporter of the Houston Chronicle that he had learned that certain persons were conspiring to run him out of Goose Creek. He learned, he said, that they had gathered at a certain spot, and summoning a number of his friends they proceeded to that spot, surprised the gathering, disarmed the men and delivered them over to the authorities. The former postmaster named the men who accompanied him. He admitted that they were klansmen and that he himself was a klansman, indicating pretty certainly that the men against whom indictments were returned were not members of the klan.

This is printed to correct any inference that the men indicted were members of the klan, and also to indicate where the attempt to administer justice through other than the visible and responsible officials will lead, as it has in Goose Creek, to attempted regulation on one hand by a masked band and probably a counter organization of whitecappers on the other hand. Some, at least, of the men elected in Goose Creek as the visible and responsible public officials appear to be influenced by invisible forces and to have surrendered their responsibility. No attempt is here made to say whether these invisible forces are a masked band which seeks to regulate the morals of the community or whether it is the sinister influence of bootleggers and of the lawless element generally. Either is bad enough and in the end must lead to lawlessness and anarchy. Goose Creek and every other community in this land ought to have officers who will accept and discharge their responsibilities and who will not be under obligations to and who will hold themselves free from invisible, secret and sinister influences.

LLOYD GEORGE'S RESPONSIBILITY. David Lloyd George, former British premier, contributed an article in last Sunday's Times criticising severely the French occupation of the Ruhr in an effort to collect reparations from the Germans. Lloyd George took the view that Germany could not pay the full amount of the reparations asked and that the French methods of collection would be destructive of Germany's power to pay. Lloyd George is now a private citizen of Great Britain. Great Britain has possession of the former German territorial possessions. The German fleet, once the rival of the British, is no more. Much of the German merchant fleet is in possession of the British. Now Great Britain needs trade with Germany and British influence is being exerted toward a reduction in the amount of reparations which Germany shall pay to France.

But it is not hard to remember when Lloyd George was premier of Great Britain. It is not difficult to remember when he was telling the British people that Germany must pay Great Britain's war cost, and that as a representative of the British government at Versailles he stood for a huge indemnity and that he declined to join in President Wilson's efforts for more moderate terms. It can be remembered that there was a suggestion even from the British delegation that the United States advance Germany the money for reparations payments. A paragraph from Ray Stannard Baker's "Woodrow Wilson and the World Settlement" is of interest now. Mr. Wilson was writing Lloyd George in reference to the British proposal that the United States furnish Germany credit to replace the working capital that England and France were planning to take from her. He wrote: "Throughout the reparations discussion the American delegation has steadily pointed out to the other delegations that the plans proposed would surely deprive Germany of the means of making any appreciable reparations payments. WANTED: A PROPHET; GEN. BLISS WASN'T ONE

BY HARRY HUNT
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Seeking expert advice on the likelihood of open war between Germany and France, I paid a call on General Tasker H. Bliss. "Here," I thought, "is the man who can give me the low-down on just what is likely to happen. As America is a plenipotentiary at the peace conference and as America is the representative on the interallied military mission, he knows the whole layout from A to Z." I stated my wishes simply. I didn't wish anything involved or complicated—just a brief, A. B. C. version of what was likely to happen in Germany in a military way in case things blew up. Bliss grinned. Deliberately he took his glasses and laid them on the desk in front of him. Then he squared himself in his chair and started to speak. "Ah!" I congratulated myself mentally. "Easy! Pretty soft!" "Well," he said, speaking slowly, thoughtfully, almost with a drawl, "what you want isn't a military man. You want a prophet."

Postmaster General Work noted the other day that the girl who usually waits on him at the restaurant in the post office department building. "Ever notice the democratically with departmental assistants and clerks was missing." "Where's Mary?" he asked the substitute girl who served him. "H e r baby's sick. Georgetown's doctor, I believe," was the answer. "Work didn't say anything more. But the baby was when he left the department he ordered the chauffeur to take her to Georgetown hospital. There he inquired for Mary. She wasn't there, but the baby was in ward 300. He found the baby and gave it a hasty scrutiny. Then he called the nurse. "Do you see this patient's chart," he requested. "The nurse brought it and started to explain its meaning. I used to practice medicine myself." Then he asked for the physician in charge. He introduced himself and inquired if the doctor would be adopted at once. It isn't every day that the president of the American Medical Association volunteers a consultation. A week later Mary was back at her place in the department restaurant. Baby was up and about again. And maybe the postmaster general seemed very much alive.

Famous editor, Chester S. Lord, claims the radio will take the place of the newspaper as a distributor of news. Stagecoach drivers had similar ideas about the first railroad. So did penmanship experts, when they heard of the printing press. Radio movies reproducing and broadcasting events as they occur may make printed newspapers obsolete, long before the year 1930. "WTF" Here's the latest gland news, and it's a "heap sight" more important than experimenting on old men. Dragstedt and Luchardt, scientists at University of Chicago, discovered that inherited epilepsy is caused by impurities in the parathyroid glands in the neck. Also, after two years of research work, these two scientists announce a way to control the inherited kind of this dread disease. Next step may be a glandular cure for the other type of epilepsy, caused by shock or blow. This discovery will save taxpayers millions of dollars now spent yearly in caring for epileptics and their confining in public asylums. A big gift to America. Public Opinion: "There Is No Place in America for the Masked Man."

By Morris

There is no place in America for the masked man. The public opinion is against him. He is a threat to the law and to the safety of the community. He is a symbol of lawlessness and of the disregard for the rights of others. He is a man who hides his face behind a mask, but his actions speak for him. He is a man who is not afraid to do wrong, and who is not concerned with the consequences of his actions. He is a man who is a danger to the community, and who is a threat to the safety of the people. He is a man who is a symbol of the lawlessness that is rampant in our country, and who is a threat to the future of our nation. SALT RIVER PROJECT IN ARIZONA IRRIGATION OBJECT LESSON

200,000 ACRES OF SEMI-ARID LAND MADE TREMENDOUSLY FRUITFUL BY GETTING WATER

Similarity of Conditions There With Those at Home Indicates Far-Reaching Possibilities of Undertaking Which Wichita Falls Now Has Under Way

The Salt river irrigation project in Arizona is of unusual interest to Wichitans by reason of the fact that conditions there are in many respects so similar to those on the local project. The soil of the Wichita Valley land is probably much more fertile than was that of the Salt river country before irrigation, but the general conditions are largely similar.

During the season of 1921-22, the value of farm products from the Salt river project averaged $85 per acre. The land, exclusive of improvements, is valued at $150 per acre.

The project has water power features which the local undertaking will not have. The following description of the Salt river project is from a recent special edition of the Arizona Republican, published at Phoenix: The Salt river project, generally considered the most successful reclamation achievement in the United States, is situated in the central part of Arizona. It includes nearly 200,000 acres of the finest soil in the west—soil that is fitted not only for the raising of staple crops, but also for the cultivation of such products as cotton and citrus fruits. Today it is counted one of the chief agricultural sections of the southwest, and from it go products that have been made possible by the waters that are led to its fields by a thousand miles of canals.

This project is one of the best examples in the United States of a successful cooperative enterprise for the conduct of an important farmer's activity. The association is a duly authorized corporation, organized under the laws of the state of Arizona, with 200,000 shares of stock, each share representing one acre of land under the project. The stock is appraised to the land and cannot be alienated from it.

The project operated by this cooperative farmers' association was constructed by the United States reclamation service with government appropriations under the federal reclamation act together with funds raised by the association by direct assessment on the land, and also by power revenues earned during construction.

Preliminary work on the project started in 1901, and on November 1, 1917, the completed project was turned over to the association for operation and maintenance under contract with the United States government. The construction cost at this date is $14,510,441, of which $10,186,921 was government funds to be repaid by the association at the rate of two per cent for two years without interest, under the provisions of the federal reclamation act. Up to this date approximately $900,000 has been repaid to the government.

Principal Features.

The principle features of the project are: The Roosevelt dam, situated 80 miles from Phoenix on the Salt river, is one of the most famous structures of its kind in the west. It is 1040 feet long and 225 feet in height above the stream bed, or 244 feet above the lowest foundation. It is 48 miles up stream from the first point of diversion of the waters to the irrigated lands of the project. The capacity of the reservoir is 1,815,000 acre feet, which will be increased in the near future to 1,837,000 by the installation of gates 14 feet high in the spillways. The dam contains 43,131 cubic yards of masonry and required more than four years for its construction.

The quantity of masonry used in the dam would build a straight line a concrete road five inches thick and 16 feet wide from Phoenix to San Diego, a distance of 265 miles. There are two diversion dams in the stream, both on the Salt river. The first of these, which is 1100 feet long, is at Granite Reef, 48 miles below Roosevelt, another, 200 feet long, is at Joint Head, 16 miles below Granite Reef. The canals, laterals and ditches operated by the association if placed end to end, would reach from Canada to Mexico, a distance of more than 1100 miles.

The drainage system of the project now nearly completed, has proved an entire success. It has lowered the average water table throughout the project more than three feet during the last two years. The association pumps water from more than 150 wells the aggregate depth of which totals more than 4 1/2 miles and there are on the project for drainage and irrigation purposes 92 electrically driven pumps.

More than 2,000 separate canal structures are maintained for the purpose of delivering water and during the last 12 months 101,000 separate runs of water were delivered to more than 6,000 water users.

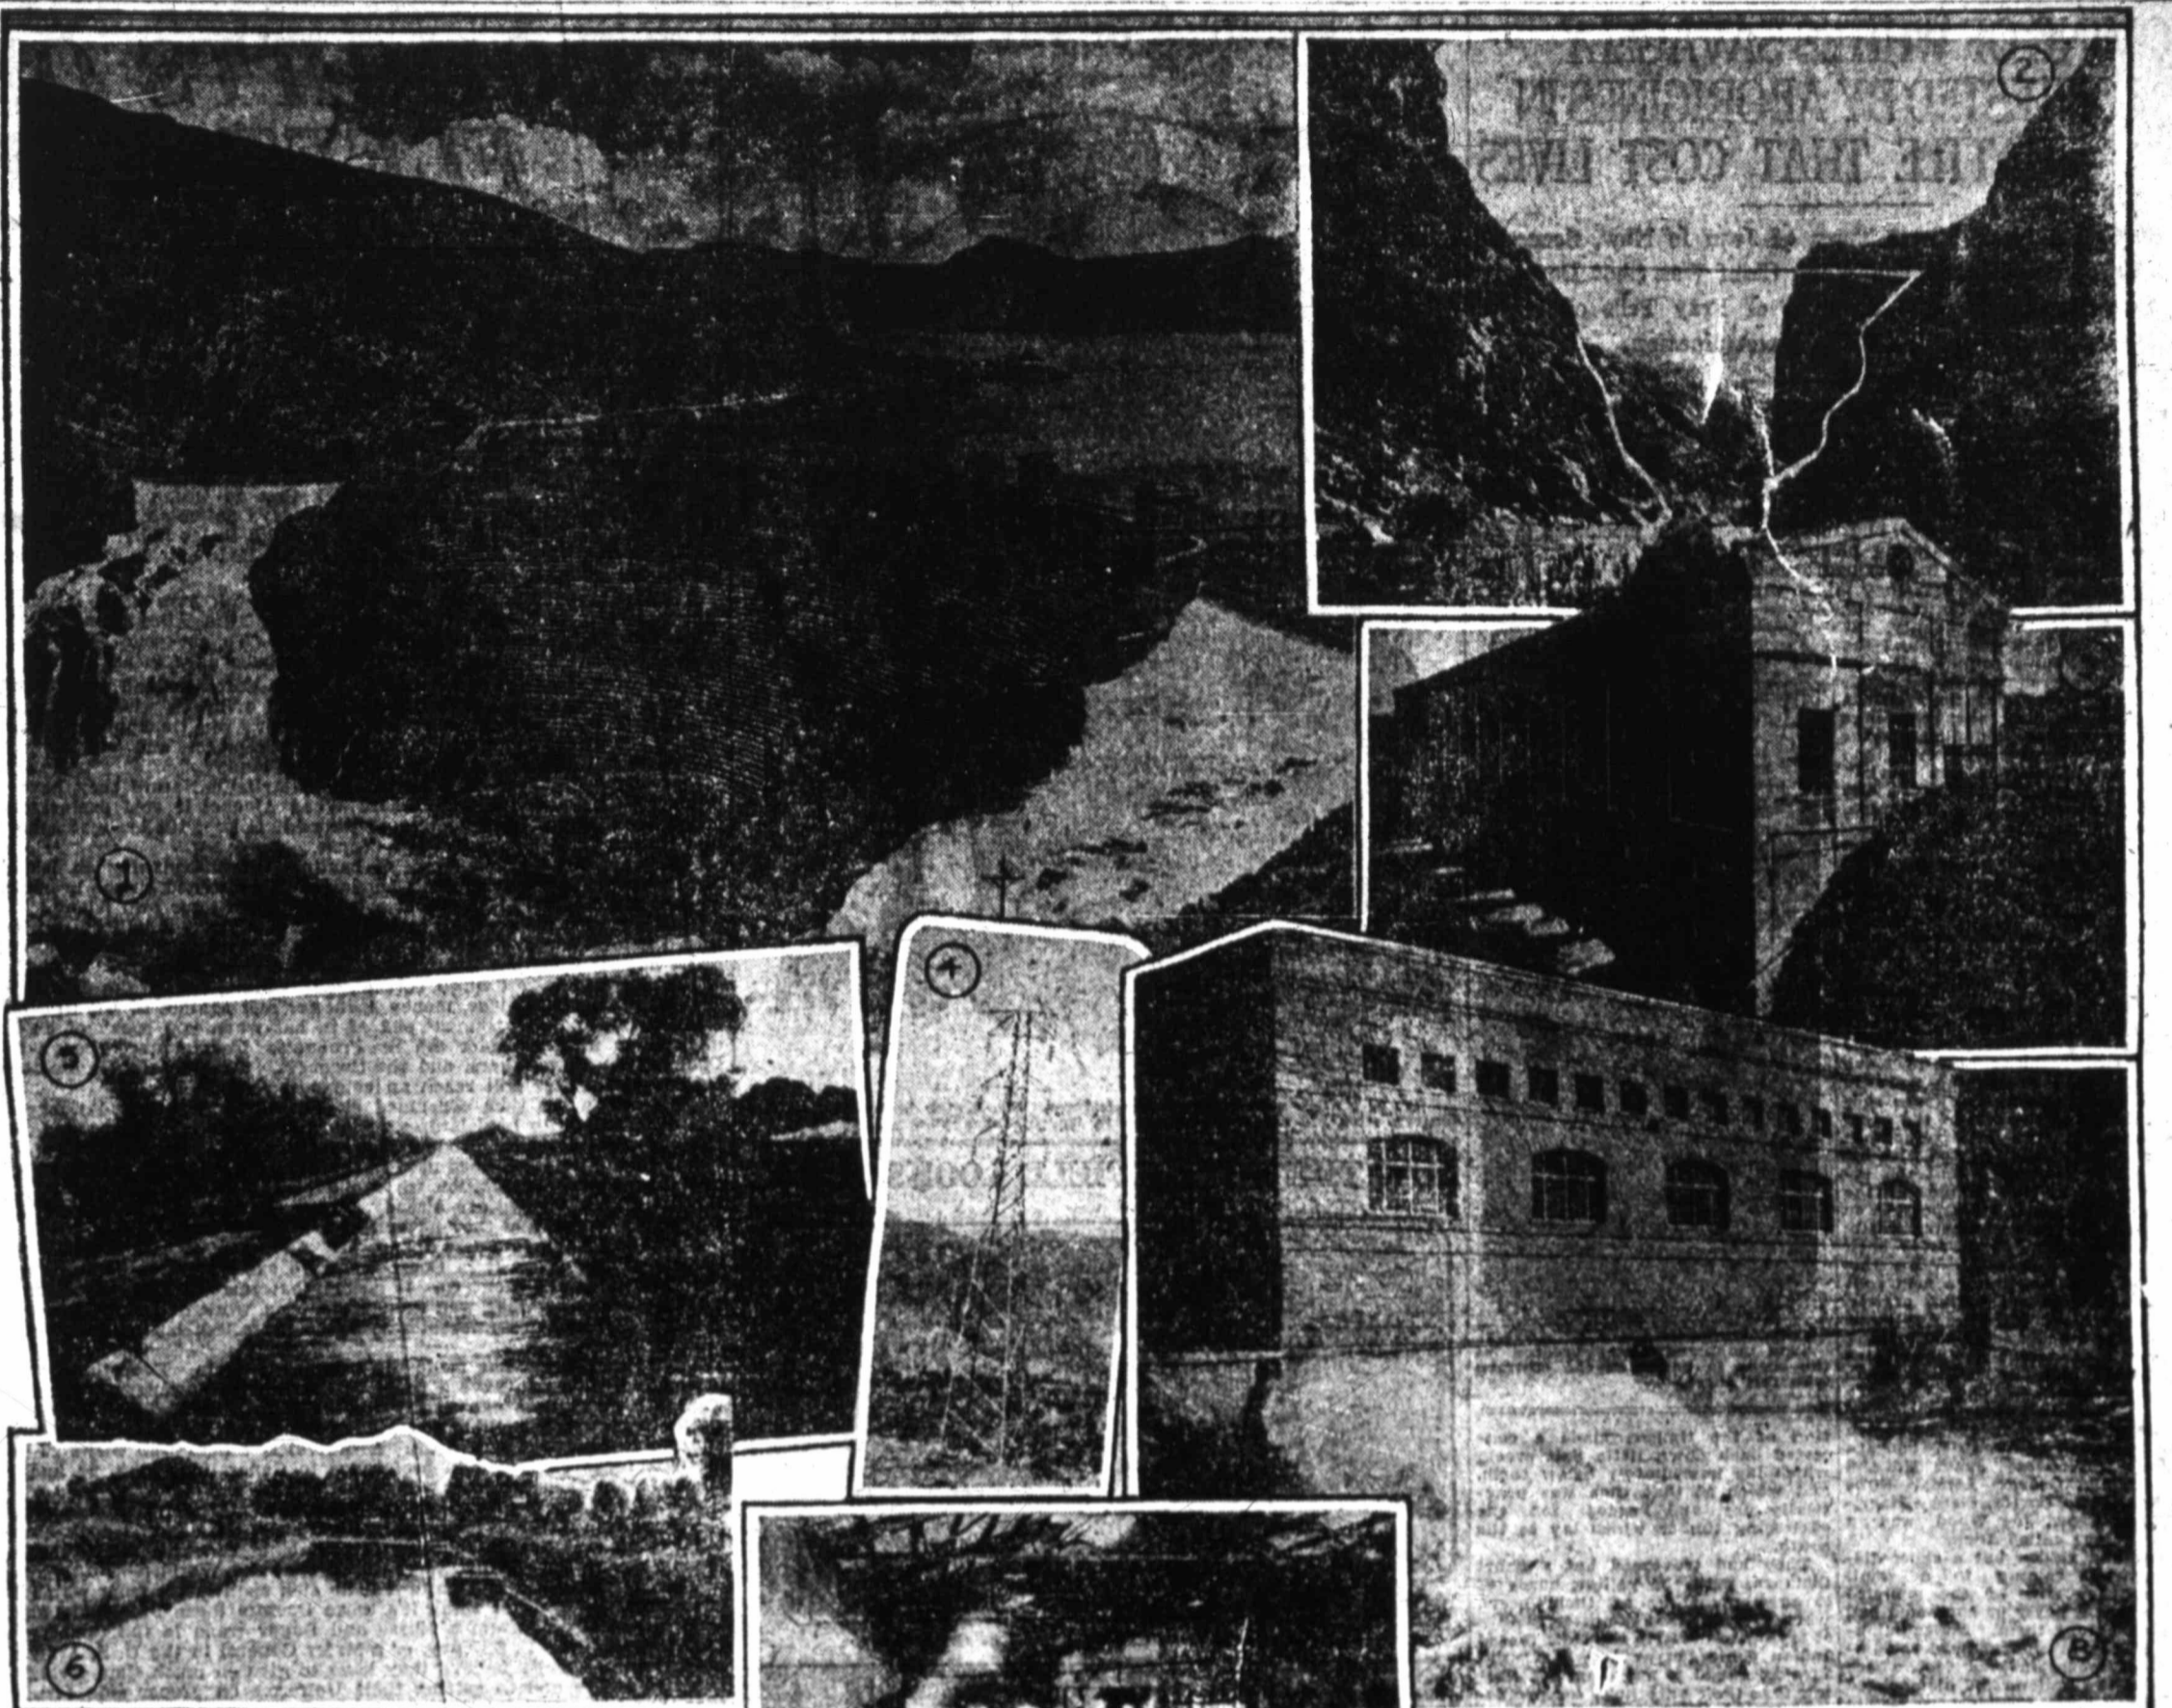

A private telephone system with 260 miles of line is maintained by the association for the transaction of its business. The power system has a capacity of approximately 23,000 horsepower in five hydroelectric plants, one located at Roosevelt dam with a capacity of 13,000 horsepower and four other plants in the project. In addition to the 200,000 acres within the association's project, the system delivers water to 32,000 acres not yet joined in this successful cooperative project. Power is delivered to land adjoining the Salt river project for pumping water for the irrigation of approximately 40,000 acres, or it may be said that the association is responsible for the delivery of water to 278,000 acres. The water required for this land is approximately 1,500,000 acre feet every year, or 64,000,000,000 gallons. This is nearly twice the amount of water used by the entire city of greater New York.

The installed pumping capacity for the irrigation and drainage of the project and for the adjacent land under the association power is approximately 730 million gallons daily, or over twice the capacity of the great Los Angeles aqueduct. The cost of water delivered to the farmer this year is $3.55 an acre for two-acre feet of water. Additional water is sold at $1.00 an acre for the average use of additional water is seven-tenths acre feet, or an average of 56 cubic feet an acre. The $3.55 an acre for water is paid for special assessment by the association for the original construction cost of the project, and $1.45 is the last payment for drainage construction for 1919 for drainage and various improvements to the system. These two latter items equal 100 or the original price for two acre feet of water, or in other words, apparently two acre feet of irrigation is delivered to the farmer for the cost of one acre. This is made possible by the large net power revenue from the sale of commercial electricity.

The total gross value of the crop grown on the 200,000 acres of project land in the season of 1920-1922 was $18,877,000, exclusive of cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry and dairy products. The gross value of these latter products exceeded $4,000,000. The assessed valuation of the project lands during the last three years averaged $2,500,000, exclusive of improvement and personal property.

Gila River Project. Another Arizona project is that on the Gila river, involving about 85,000 acres. The following description of it is furnished by J. D. Kilpack, sales manager for the project. There has been wonderful development along agricultural and horticultural lines in the arid southwest during the past half century. The first irrigators know of the great possibilities before them when they first harnessed the waters of the small streams of this section. Everywhere the thirsty desert has been turned into fertile fields and gardens. Some mighty things have been accomplished in an engineering way. One of these mighty things is the construction of the Gillespie dam, about 80 miles southeast of Phoenix. It is different in many ways from every other irrigation dam in this country.

The great Roosevelt dam of our Salt river valley and the Arrow Head dam in the Boise valley of Idaho were both constructed for the purpose of storing water. But the Gillespie dam is the largest dam so far constructed in the United States. The Gillespie dam is so constructed that it controls not only the surface water, but also the underflow of a drainage area of something like seventy thousand square miles. The dam is located between the Verde and the Salt rivers, the main stream of this section. The gap spans a gap of 1,300 feet between two mountains, and is sunk beneath the surface from 40 to 20 feet to a bedrock formation. As the dam is tied to the solid granite mountain ranges on either side, and to the solid granite bedrock below, it is absolutely controls all the underflow water concentrated between these ranges, as well as all the vast surface flow. The dam is fifty feet wide at the bottom and five feet at the top. Engineers do not believe that it is possible to destroy or even injure this dam in any way. It has been said of it that it is as solid and lasting as the pyramids themselves. The intake of the irrigation canals is nine feet below the top of the dam. Thus it is possible to utilize the vast underflow of water when no surface water is in sight in the river itself. As there is some forty feet of loose gravel and sand above the bedrock, the underflow of water above the bedrock is inexhaustible. As a matter of history, this site was chosen for its splendid irrigation possibilities before the present Roosevelt dam site was determined upon. And it was the inexhaustible underflow that attracted the attention of the earliest pioneers.

SUGGESTIONS FOR WORDING ON PANELS OF COLLEGE ASKED BY SCHOOL BOARD

The board of education asks for suggestions from the various clubs of the city, or any individuals who may be interested, for the filling of the exterior ornamental panels of the new Junior college. There will be a number of panels and it is thought that they should be filled with American literature, art or science. The following panels are available, and for the convenience of those who wish to make suggestions, a description of the panels is given below: First: Over the main entrance there are three spaces each 6 feet long by 9 inches high and each space will accommodate about 32 letters. A similar space of the same size will be over the main window of the main entrance and the main window west, making five spaces of the same size. The board thought of inscribing the names of five of the greatest American edu-

The spool from which the thread had been unwound was lying on the ground near the wall of the court house while the other end was fastened to one of the bars in the window of the cells on the third floor. The sheriff was notified by Constable Morgan and the line of connection with terra firma and the outside world was ruthlessly destroyed.

rapidly assuming some of its old time splendor in the shopping district, so far as the stores are concerned it is becoming normal.

The most expensive French and German perfumes, toilet articles, lingerie and other luxuries, after an absence of many years, are again on sale in Moscow, Petrograd and some of the other Russian cities. While the greater part of these goods, according to officials, have been smuggled into the country, nevertheless they are sold openly as in pre-revolution days, but at enormous prices. Government officials, while aware of the smuggling, say they are powerless to break it up.

When the first fluffs, lace-trimmed garments from abroad appeared in the display windows of the Moscow shops the incident nearly caused a riot. Men, women, and children were wildly eager to get a peek at the things from the outer world. They had seen nothing of the kind for seven or eight years, and fought for a place in the mob for a few minutes' gaze at the finery.

Most of the luxuries are three or four times as expensive here as in London and Paris. This, dealers say, is in the government monopoly on goods from abroad which keeps

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES FROM REPUBLICAN STANDPOINT

MARK SULLIVAN DISCUSSES HARDING IN CONNECTION WITH G. O. P. NOMINATION IN 1924

By MARK SULLIVAN

One is conscious of some hesitancy about discussing whether or not Harding will want or will be given by his party's nomination for a second term. The hesitancy arises partly out of a feeling that in the nature of it, in spite of the fact that it is an important public question, it is also in part a thing intimately personal to Harding. You feel as if such discussion is to some an invasion of privacy. (In point of fact, the elements that will ultimately decide this question actually do include some that are personal, like the health of his wife.)

Harding, also, this hesitancy arises out of the fact that the discussion at this time, fifteen months ahead of the event, is premature, and the conditions which will determine the event may change fundamentally within that time. To some extent, also, one's hesitancy is due to the fact that some of the ruthless cold-bloodedness which this subject takes little account of generosity, or even of justice, to Harding.

You go away from Washington, as on the occasion of the writer's campaign trip had fall, or remain in Washington, you listen to reports of political conditions brought here by returning congressmen and other visitors, and you are obliged to accept it as a fact that Harding's position, politically as well as personally, is below par. And there is no one who observes Harding's position following his duty according to his lights. You reflect on how much his low place in the public favor is due not to him, but to the politicians of his party. You observe his fortitude and uncomplaining serenity under intolerable disloyalty from some of the most prominent of the most eager to hold up his hands. You see him willingly accepting the role of the goat for his party's sins. (For a simple, any close political observer has noted case after case where in the matter of the national campaign, the politicians have recommended undesirable persons, while Harding has cheerfully borne the cross of turning them down in the interest of his conception of his duty to maintain the elevation of the federal government.)

One reviews all the legitimate criticisms of Harding's presidency and you find that practically all of them are based, fundamentally, by certain qualities of his personality and the wholly accidental lack of adjustment of that temperament to this particular time—of a dynamic personality—a lack of venturesome initiative and a trait of sure-footed conservatism at a time when the nation and the public mood clamor for venturesome experiments to meet new conditions. You find that most of the legitimate criticisms of Harding are caused by precisely the same qualities of temperament which in a different period and a different public mood might have brought him equal degree of praise as "the man of the hour." And as for the rest of the querying whether Harding ought to be nominated again, you find that it proceeds from the republican politicians—that it is based on expediency, and the same reasons they give are based on things which are not the fault of Harding at all, but are the fault of the politicians themselves. (For example, most of the recent suggestions that some one else should be substituted for Harding as the republican nominee are based on the criticism that, as it now stands, Harding's European policy is at a low ebb of disrepute. Some of the principal reasons for this condition is precisely the fact that Harding and Hughes, in the management of their foreign policy, have been embarrassed and limited by the intimidation, expressed or latent, of these same irreconcilables.)

Also, one is aware of the possibility that conditions may change. Admittedly, the rule of the party as applied to the present state of circumstances, would not forebode and change for the better in the fortunes of the republican administration and the republican party. It is the rule that when an administration at the middle of its term is in low fortune—when, in the congressional election which comes between the two presidential elections, as the election last fall, the party in power is comprehensively disapproved by the voters—it is the rule that this process during the last two years of the term becomes cumulative. Regardless of whether the rule does or does not go hand in hand with justice to the man who happens to be president, that, after all, is the rule. The cases where the fortunes of an administration are low at the middle of its term.

Mrs. Quillen Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Waukegon, Michigan. "After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians without any relief, I decided to see what it would do for me. I had heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and often saw it in different papers where some women had suffered just as I did and got well and strong. I decided to see what it would do for me. I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pains in my sides left me. I am now much stronger and do my own work and work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise." Mrs. NELLIE QUILLEN, 17 Morris St., Waukegon, Mich.

Many of the republican leaders are conservatives who prize their own position. They are not so much friendly toward the so-called radical or progressive republicans that they do toward the conservatives. If their own position could be established, it is by no means certain to many of these republican leaders that they would not prefer to stand pat and take their medicine on either side of the fence. From yet another angle there must be borne in mind the possibility of taking the nomination away from Harding against his will. If Harding should determine, for any reason, whatever, to stand pat, it is almost certain that a reconnoitering, or if Harding should be persuaded by his political or personal associates that it is his duty to them or to the party to stand ready to accept a reconnoitering, then it will be almost a sheer impossibility for any one else to get it. If Harding decides to stand willing to accept the nomination, then practically every party official in the country, practically every of the republican politicians, every of the republican party members who compose the party hierarchy—all will be for Harding and will stand practically united against any competitor.

Further than this, if Harding wants a reconnoitering and makes it known that he wants it, it will be almost impossible to find any one willing to make a fight against him—any one that is to say, who has any hope of success. It will be possible to find people like La Follette and perhaps a few others who will be willing to fight, but they will be fighting for the nomination only by denouncing his administration, and denouncing Harding's administration is to denounce the republican party. Every argument made by a republican in a fight against Harding for the nomination to Roosevelt is to denounce why the voter in the subsequent election should vote for a democrat.

So much for what is, perhaps, too comprehensive a survey of whether or not Harding will want the republican nomination. It leaves too brief a space for adequate discussion of what would follow if Harding should nominate himself from the situation. Harding might readily determine to stand aside on personal grounds. He has been just for several months in the enjoyment of high office as such perhaps than any other president within recent memory. He has no such conception of his personal relation to the universe as would lead him to think that his personal satisfaction is an interference in proportion as it haves to do with the country. It is not to be permitted that there is just the possibility that they might be able to work out a foreign policy such as would cause the country to have the beginning of the next December a feeling of satisfaction with the administration. It is a remote possibility, confessedly, but nevertheless one that must be taken into account.

In spite of the quantity of recent discussion, in spite of the putting forward of other possibilities for the nomination, it is necessary to remember that the process which makes for the reconnoitering of Harding are very powerful. Some of these forces come from diverse directions, but they focus on the same point. For example, if at the time of the nomination Harding's administration is regarded as successful then the rule that would give him a reconnoitering as a reward for his services would be almost impossible to overcome. From precisely the opposite angle, if the public estimate of Harding's administration is in a considerable measure disapproved, then the rule that should be the sacrificial victim. From yet another angle the question must be in mind which the party leaders will ask themselves: If Harding cannot be re-elected what other republican, if any, can be?

It is frequently said that if Harding should decide not to take the nomination himself there are two members of his cabinet on either side of whom he might decide to confer it. The two men mentioned are Hughes and Hoover. Of the two the party would probably prefer Hoover at any time—Hoover in the most likely. Just at this moment, when some of the low public approval of the party is due to the misfortune attending the administration's foreign policy, it is obvious that Hughes unless his personal political fortune should alter in the mean time, would not be a happy choice. But that Harding could possibly throw the nomination to Hoover and that Hoover as the presidential candidate would be a greater asset to the party than any other man in sight is a judgment so commonly held by those the republican leaders, whose own preconception in party success that the nomination is rather surprising. Outside the cabinet, in what might be called the open field, the name most commonly discussed is that of Senator Hiram Johnson, of California. In fact, some things have been done during the last two or three weeks which cannot possibly be interpreted in any other way than as the putting forward by the irreconcilables of Johnson as an alternative to Harding for the nomination. The belief, behind this movement is that Johnson can maintain the progressive and radical strength which he had in 1920 and at the same time can draw to himself the adherence of those republicans who approve him for the wholeheartedness of his support of the present tariff bill, for the fact that he did not vote against Newberry and for various of his official actions of a sort acceptable to the conservative wing of the party. Johnson is suggested by those who claim that in the long run it is the "middle-of-the-road" candidate who wins a bitterly contested nomination. In answer to this it is pointed out that there are men who are described as "middle-of-the-road" candidates because that middle ground has always been their field and actually reflects their temperament, while there are others who achieve the middle of the road position by being first on one side of it and later on the other. Undoubtedly Johnson has lost some of his old progressive following by his votes on the tariff and for other reasons. But equally without any doubt that group of republican leaders who are "after-the-fact" and "irreconcilables" are aggressively determined to try to put one of their own in the white house and the one they have in mind is Johnson.

However, one is restrained by limitations of space from any adequate covering of the field as it will exist if Harding should step aside. In addition to the men already mentioned, those who in one degree or another would include Senator Borah, Senator La Follette, Governor Fincher of Pennsylvania, ex-Senator Beveridge of Indiana, and in some eventualities ex-Governor Lowden of Illinois. Among these possibilities there is so much to be said in the way of distinctions that one almost hesitates to set down the names without setting down at the same time the qualifications and limitations that attend them. This, however, for reasons of space, must await a later article.

PAYS TWICE AS MUCH FOR USED CARS; GETS MORE

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 3.—The average automobile dealer in New England pays about twice as much for a used car and gets about twice as much when he resells it as does the average dealer in the states of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa, according to a detailed analysis made by G. A. Vane, general manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, and presented to the Used Car Forum in the association's sixth annual convention here today.

The average paid by dealers for used cars in the six states mentioned runs approximately $232.55 per car while in the New England territory the average is about $465.00 per car. The New England dealer gets approximately $775 on an average for his used cars while the dealers of the other states named have shouldered a loss of approximately $362.11 a car, so that their selling price is about $775.97. "Yankee trader" shrewdness seems to be maintaining its old reputation even in the automobile dealer field.

The figures from which the analysis was made are the records of 1212 dealers in the New England territory involving 14,492 cars as collected by the Boston used car statistical bureau and records from six states collected by the National Automobile Dealers Association involving 1292 dealers and 14,501 car trades.

In both competitions the average number of used cars in the dealer's hands was about the same. In New England it was ten and eight-tenths (10.8) cars per dealer, in the six other states it was nine and seven-eighths (9.87) cars per dealer. In neither of these comparisons has the cost of re-conditioning used cars or the other overhead and selling expense been included so that while the New England dealers show a larger unit sale price than competitors that they too are selling used cars at a loss.

Applying the averages obtained from the N. A. D. A. questionnaire to the 23,726 dealers in Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa, the dealers in those states last year lost approximately $1,400,000 in the handling of used cars. The same figures if applied to the dealers of the whole country mean that the 39,046 dealers of the United States lost about $109,000,000 last year on used cars without counting how much more was lost in reconditioning and selling the motor.

The used car forum proved a tremendously interesting session of the dealer convention today. Guy E. Garber, president of the Garber-Truick company of Saginaw, Mich., discussed the "Boginaw plan" of handling used cars. L. H. Sanders, manager of the Boston used car statistical bureau told how the New England dealers had eliminated

PIKES PEAK MOTOR CREATES SENSATION AT ALL EXHIBITS

The 1922 Chandler line, with its new Pikes Peak motor, new chassis, new bodies, and new prices, might be adjudged, entirely new. There is just one exception—the rear axle.

When the Chandler company set out to achieve ideal automobile engine, with the "ginger" three-horsepower, powerful Pikes Peak motor, it determined to produce also a chassis fully up to the standards of the motor.

The Pikes Peak motor already has proved to be the sensation of 1922. At the shows, the most effective Chandler exhibit was in the demonstration staged outside the big buildings. Everywhere, its performance has made it the most talked about development of the year.

The change is fully up to the standards set by the motor. It is an inch lower, though the road clearance has not been decreased, and the lower center of gravity adds materially to the riding comfort and to the ease of handling. Besides greatly enhancing the general appearance of the car, the steering has been made remarkably easy by the use of taper roller bearings in the front axle spindles. The turning radius has been reduced. Anti-rattle devices are provided wherever necessary. New springs are more effective.

Yet, with all these changes and improvements, the Chandler uses the identical rear axle that of brought out at the beginning of 1922. The reason is that the engineers decided that it not only was quite up to the standards set by the new motor and chassis, but that it could not be made better.

These judgments were based on performance.

Out of the entire 1922 production of this unit, there was not a single case of failure, an extraordinary record.

This 100 per cent perfect unit is manufactured in the Chandler's own plant, as indeed is the car almost in its entirety. Besides meeting the test of a full year without a single failure, it has passed just as successfully even more severe trials to which it was subjected in the long period of testing of the Pikes Peak motor, first on the hills around Cleveland, then on the famous climb at Uniontown, Pa., and then by the extended series of tests on Pikes Peak, where the motor proved its worth and won its name.

During these tests, not only was the motor under constant observation, but all other parts were watched closely to make sure that they were fully equal to the extra demands made upon them by the greatly increased power and the extraordinary strains to which the entire car was subjected in an effort to find the limit of the power and endurance of the motor. The 1922 Chandler rear axle went through

ZULULAND FAR FROM PARADISE FOR AUTOMOBILES

There was a time, not so long ago, when to speak of Zululand evoked visions of head-dresses, beaded umbrellas and there would be thought to mind the far-off as over-coming missionaries and others who have introduced the "inferior" vehicles of the Durban. But, according to an interesting account just reaching this country from a Freetown South Africa representative, these people are far removed from savagery.

While the Zulus, themselves, can not exactly be described as buyers of automobiles, there are, the Freetown man says, many worth-while towns scattered about the territory maintaining principally by the same case growing industry. Towns are being built and the roads almost impassable for motor driven vehicles, while about the chief night resorts consist of the picturesque native kraals and strangely attired kraal huts.

One discovery, this American firm's representative made, was that it would be well to introduce the bush tree to become a native of the United States. At certain periods this tree sheds a long needle-like thorn which is capable of penetrating the tire much to the motorist's sorrow, for the nearest tire shop is probably a thousand miles away.

CHICAGO HAS AUTO COURTESY CAMPAIGN

The automobile courtesy campaign conducted in Chicago recently has aroused considerable interest not only in the Windy City, but from all parts of the country, according to dealers who have received a circular on the subject.

The idea adopted in Chicago calls for a sticker displayed on the windshield which obligates the driver of the car to exercise care, courtesies and good judgment in driving.

STANDARD OF THE WORLD

AUTOMOBILES IN U. S. IN ONE LINE WOULD GO AROUND THE EARTH AND THEN SOME

1 1/2 Times around the World.

How the 21,000,000 autos and motor trucks in this country would look if stretched around the earth.

If all the automobiles in the United States today were stretched end to end along the equator, the line would reach around the world and would extend for more than one-sixth of the way beyond.

This is a graphic presentation of the cars there are in this country. They include only the passenger automobiles and motor trucks in use. Thousands of new cars, already produced, are awaiting sales and there have not been included in the imaginary parade.

The estimate is derived from the latest figures given out by Alfred A. Reeves, general manager of the National automobile chamber of commerce. There are 10,250,000 passenger cars and 1,250,000 motor trucks in this country today, says Reeves.

The average length of these cars, it is estimated, is about 13 feet for passenger autos and 15 feet for trucks. These figures seem low, but that is explained by the fact that more than half the automobiles in the country are small cars with a total length of about 11 1/2 feet.

On this basis the line of American automobiles and trucks would be 21,750 miles long—stretching once along the equator and one-sixth of the way beyond.

A startling fact in connection with these figures is that more than half the cars and trucks in the country are registered in only nine of the 48 states in the union. These figures are taken from the reports of cars registered for 1921. Figures for 1922 have not yet been completed. According to the 1921 figures, the nine states and their 1921 registration are:

New York	775,344
Ohio	723,484
Pennsylvania	629,489
Illinois	623,148
California	623,251
Michigan	478,482
Texas	467,518
Iowa	461,984
Indiana	400,142

This makes a total of 5,224,400, more than half the total number of cars and trucks in the country at the end of 1921.

Spark plugs are easily removed, but in removing them from the engine, it is well to use a spark plug socket wrench that will fit the type of plug used in the car. This will save skinning of the fingers and also insure against breaking the porcelain.

THE MOTORISTS' PROBLEMS

By WILLIAM W. STEWART, JR.

Motor Department: My car does not run smoothly, but jerks through the gears. Please give me some idea how to go to work to locate the trouble.

The trouble is probably due to rich mixture causing the engine to miss explosion. If the same cylinder misses explosions right along it will be an ignition trouble or loss of compression. Black smoke or pungent odor from the exhaust will indicate rich mixture. Crank the engine to test compression and then trace out the ignition system until the fault is discovered. Be sure that the points of the distributor and spark plugs are clean and properly adjusted.

Motor Department: I have a Maxwell touring car. The starting is giving me trouble, and I would greatly appreciate your kindness if you will give me some pointers on the cause and remedy. The start-up itself will work, but will not stay on the engine. To me it seems as if possibly you in the past everything seems to be in good condition mechanically.—L. K.

The trouble probably lies between the carburetor and the ignition. Prime the cylinders and spin the engine. If it refuses to start look for ignition troubles. Trace out the lines from battery clear through to spark plugs until trouble is located. If the engine fires a few times and stops, look for carburetor troubles starting at the tank and working forward.

Motor Department: Would it be advisable to use a small addition of oil to the water in the cooling system to prevent rust and scale? Some of my friends are trying it out, but we are not sure but enough time to test it out. Would it interfere with the cooling or set the rubber hose too quickly?—S. W.

Would not adding castor oil in the cooling system, use soft clean water and alcohol. Oil will get the rubber connections and otherwise retard radiating.

Motor Department: Why do we retard the spark on cars with battery ignition when cranking, but advance the spark on cars carrying a magneto?—L. O.

With battery systems the spark is also hot at low engine speed and is set to occur on the power stroke so as to get the engine started. After it is started the spark is advanced to increase speed and gain power. If we crank engine with simple holds the chains and is reversed so as to not injure them. Reduce the speed of the car to about ten miles per hour, then bring the wheels out with a quick turn of the wheel. Give drive shaft more if necessary.

Motor Department: I have a 20 model Ford and when running over 15 miles per hour there is a grinding noise which is in the front end or front wheel. It does not seem to come when putting up hills. Towards evening I have got a new set of gears, spider, pinion, shaft and axle gears in the front end. I have checked the high speed. They seemed to be in good condition. Have examined everything from the universal joint to the axle. Can you show some light on the subject?—A. E.

Make sure that the ring and pinion gears are in proper adjustment. If the bearings supporting the propeller shaft are badly worn, noise will result. Remove the end play of the shaft if any. A badly worn thrust bearing on the propeller shaft, or a worn universal would cause the trouble. Have some one make a careful inspection by sound, while you operate the car under conditions to aggravate the trouble.

Motor Department: I understand many old cars used the full elliptic springs, but most of the modern cars use the coil springs. Both great and good. Full elliptic springs on the rear are now little used. I have built a light speedster and wish to change the springs to full elliptic on front and rear. Full elliptic rear would be the correct way out of my difficulty. Would you advise full elliptic springs on the rear without too much extra weight at a good rate of speed as well as ease with the load? Springs provided the balance and control of steering were right? Would platform springs on the rear be a disadvantage on a light speedster?—Supermotor.

The Franklin car uses the full elliptic spring in front and would suggest that you note this construction. Evidently this type has proven a success because they have used it a number of years. There is no particular disadvantage to the platform type of rear spring. Many high grade cars use this type on the rear.

Motor Department: Which is better for the average driver, an electric horn or a mere touch, but is subject to electrical troubles. The mechanical horn requires pressure to be applied, and may develop mechanical difficulties. So it would seem to be a matter for each one to decide for himself.

HELPFUL HINTS. If engine shows too great a tendency to overheat, the radiator is probably clogged and should be cleaned out with washing soda. Do not condemn the radiator unless you know that you are not driving too long on low gear, that spark is kept well forward, that fan belt is tight and mixture is not too rich. There are many causes of overheating besides clogged radiator.

A knock due to overheating will be noticed on a hill, but it also occurs on level roads. As it is always accompanied by steam from the radiator, it is not difficult to identify. Where a pump is utilized to circulate the cooling water it is wise to fill the radiator to the top and turn the engine over several times before starting. Watch throttle down and so as to insure the water reaching and filling all parts of the system. If the motor is not turned the pump is an obstruction to the passage of the water into the jackets, which remain partly empty or fill so slowly as to leave the impression that there is more water in the system than there actually is.

Watch out for steam at radiator vent as it indicates that the engine is overheating, a condition which may result in serious damage to the engine if not taken care of in time. Overheating burns up the oil, causing friction, loss of power, scored cylinders, broken parts and possibly a bent crankshaft and cracked crank case.

Overheating is also shown when the engine runs with the switch open (in the "off" position). This may also be due to carbon. To stop an engine running without the electric spark, throw out clutch, but gears in high speed. Apply foot brake, throttle down, and stop the engine over several times before starting.

It is not generally known that the first highway of any duration was constructed by Amos Cline in 1811. This highway, the Firestone Ship-by-Truck Road, was built on a narrow gauge, and was a step toward the modern highway. It still exists and carries traffic.

The Applan was as it was called, was constructed of stone and mortar to a depth of about four feet. It was surfaced with stone, shale and kind of gravel. Labor of course, was very cheap in those days, while slaves could haul material from distant points at a very low cost.

From 18 to 20 per cent of all autos produced this year were enclosed cars. Eighty-one different makes of cars were entered for display at the New York auto show.

Over One Million Dollars

In 1922 this company spent more than one million in improving the physical features of the system through which it wholesales gas to North Texas communities. That expenditure made possible the excellent natural gas service you have enjoyed this winter.

Little Permanency

If these improvements could be regarded as permanent betterments all of us would have cause for congratulation. But it is a feature of the natural gas business that little concerning the supply can be permanent. Lines laid last year may have to be taken up this year because of the failure of some pool. Sometimes even compressor stations have to be moved and thus made available for new fields. Our supply lines are ever changing.

Continues in 1923

For 1923 another large amount must be spent to keep the natural gas service up to its present high standard. New wells must be acquired to take the place of those now deteriorating; new supply of gas must be obtained to meet the increased demand.

Old pipe lines must be taken up and replaced with new, because in places in our territory the soil quickly eats through the pipe; leakage must be overcome, and additional transportation lines arranged.

The maintenance of the our system requires an enormous upkeep expenditure. Only by it can we continue to supply of natural gas for enormous upkeep expenditure to furnish good service.

STEEL CONTRACTS INDICATE RECORD YEAR FOR AUTOS

The orders already reported on hand in the great steel centers of the country for the new material that goes into the production of automobiles indicate more eloquently than anything the industry can say "way as to its belief for a prosperous year in 1934."

George H. Harnum, president and general manager of the Oakland Motor Car company, points to these reports as the most basic indication for a large production of automobiles in the present year.

He likewise points to the repurchasing plan market, as one of the outstanding signs for 1934.

"The U. S. department of commerce reports," he states, "that the farmers' coming year will have approximately $2,000,000,000 more from their crops this year than they did last year. This means that they will have $2,000,000,000 greater purchasing power."

"It is not to be concluded from this, of course, that the farmers will spend all this money in automobiles. Much of it will go to pay off debts contracted during the last two years which have not been so prosperous for them. It is well known that the farmers have not purchased automobiles in any quantity during the last two years and most certainly will be in the market for automobiles in 1934 with much of this surplus money."

"While these two facts may be given as signs to indicate the kind of year that may be expected, it is not supposed that competition will not be keen in the automobile industry. Undoubtedly material and labor will be on a rising market before the year is out, and to offset this manufacturing methods must be more efficient than ever before."

"It will be a struggle for the survival of the strong companies—to give the public more automobiles than ever before—and to do this, production must be on a large scale. Most companies will increase their closed car production and this will tend to keep the factories running on a more even production basis throughout the year, which will be decidedly beneficial in lowering production costs."

AUTOS PROFIT BY TARIFF EXPORT ITEM

Whatever may be the criticism directed at the new tariff law by importers in certain fields, from information gathered by an expert in the foreign department of the Firestone company, it is evident that applying to the automobile industry American manufacturers are very well satisfied.

It is pointed out by J. Walter Drake, chairman of foreign trade committee of the national chamber of commerce, that it reciprocity for the 25 per cent tariff imposed by the United States was not accepted by other manufacturing nations, this amount, can, under the 1934, be increased to 57 per cent.

RABBIT-BREEDERS DEPARTMENT

Conducted For The Times By Mrs. L. Smith, 120 West Street Under Auspices of Wichita County Rabbit Breeders' Association.

Why Belgian Hares?
For ages, the hog was recognized the world over as the most economical producer of meat; hence the poor man's choice. It won that coveted station due to voracious appetite, quick maturity and fecundity. Now comes the Belgian hare, a being more largely on weeds, vegetable-tops and peeling and the very cheapest kinds of fodders, thus surpassing the hog in feeding economy. He is ready to fry at six weeks of age, again outclassing the hog. The period of gestation is only 29 days, and if permitted, his kind will produce offspring at six months of age and repeat the process five times per year, thus making the best of both worlds as regards reproduction.

The offspring from one doe is frequently 30 children and 120 grand-children in one year; a total offspring from one doe in one year, of 162 specimens. This computation can be verified in the "Harem" of any good breeder of Belgians. The breeding proportion of standard stock is 54 per cent of the gross live weight. In other words, they only dress 45 per cent. This, when their flesh most cheaply when they dress out from two to three pounds each.

Memory revives fond recollections of our childhood days and particularly our appreciation of mother's fried chicken. Recognizing the fact that for many generations were convinced that would ever surpass quail-on-toast, lobsters and fried oysters. Now comes the Belgian hare, far surpassing them all in quality. Bred in a properly constructed hutch, where he takes no violent exercise to the longest life span, he produces a meat that bears no relationship whatever to that of the wild rabbit, but instead is of a pale pink tint colored that for healthfulness, tenderness, juiciness and delicacy of flavor is unequalled by anything in existence, except, possibly, frog legs.

Belgium, the patient cow herdsman, conscientiously been rated as "man's best friend" even though to associate with her means seven-day quarantine. He is somewhat exacting and by some people considered disagreeable. Others have preferred to enlist the services of the help that she has never set even though she require constant protection from vermin, and at times from neighbors in the city. He produces a meat that is the vegetables and flower gardens as a means of getting close to nature. Each in turn have properly named the hare for boys and girls, and work which is good. We are strong for the garden. We are doubly strong for the cow and the hen. We are strong for the pig, and the possibilities offered it by the Belgian hare; whose care is a delightful pleasure. He accepts his food and water at any time of day and night, who has not an insect-pest in the world, who supplies his own fur coat in winter, and who is a creature who even gives it to you when he snuggles through with it, who bothers not your neighbor's garden, who disturbs not the peaceful slumber of yourself or your neighbor, who is nearly as quickly and easily "snaked" at butchering time as the rest of the year, who is the most useful size for the average family, and finally who will deliver to you on any day of the year your meat choice to suggest, a hat full of little babies that it does the soul of man good to be responsible for as the best training for life's work that has ever yet been devised. Briefly, it is our honest belief that mankind will never be living up to his best opportunity until a hutch of Belgian hares can be found as a necessary adjunct on every farm, at each and every village some, and a sufficient number (if made by the roof of city flats) to manufacture into a most delicious table delicacy the peelings and the hutch contents that are now going to waste.

To those who are not simply joking about the high cost of living, the Belgian hare surely offers their best and cheapest opportunity. The Belgian hare must not be confused with the common domestic rabbit, a "flea" for pet's pet. They have been carefully and skillfully bred for a century, for a definite purpose and are preeminently the economic meat producers of the world. Neither should a beginner be deceived in accepting gray colored, dough-shaped, mushy-fleshed, bulging nostrils as Belgian hares, for they will surely produce a variety of types and colors, thus diluting the hybrid rabbit blood with which they are contaminated. Finally, it is well to remember that there is only one variety of Belgian hare. The one minutely described in this "Revised Standard of Protection Hares," which fully outlines in detail the Product of the fancier's greatest skill in the development of an animal that holds the world's record in a combination of large litter, ideal mothers, quick maturity, superior vitality, growing proportion, economic production, quality of flesh and splendid temperament, besides possessing in his graceful outline, alert disposition, delicate blending of color and general quality; enough to stimulate and entice the best efforts of the true artist, for many generations to come.

Cost of Starting—One can buy two good does and a buck of breeding age—enough to supply an average family with all the rabbit meat it would care to use—for anywhere from $1.50 to $10 each, or for a total of from $1.50 to $30. Hutches for animals may vary in cost from a few cents each, the price of an empty dry-goods box, to several dollars, if expended for number of animals. A carpenter, on a farm where usually odds and ends of lumber are available, and where hay, grain and mill are produced in abundance, the money cost of starting and carrying on a small rabbitry is negligible. In any case, the initial cost need not be great.

Profit—The saving and earning possibilities of rabbit raising are illustrated by the following concrete examples of what has actually been done: One resident of Kansas City, Kan., has raised 300 to 400 rabbits a year for his own table at a cost of only 2 to 3 cents a pound. A large religious institution in Nebraska that has raised rabbits instead of poultry reports the meat as satisfactory and the experiment profitable. According to a former county commissioner of the state of Washington, rabbits were grown on the county farm for hospitals; the initial stock, numbering 118 rabbits, increased to 1,200 in ten months besides those used in the hospital. A high school boy in Iowa who breeds registered stock on a space of 22 feet square in his back yard, raised and sold enough rabbits in 1918 to clear more than $1,200. An Ohio farmer sends 100 pounds of rabbit meat a week to city restaurants, and he is unable to meet the demand. There are several breeders in Wichita Falls, that are doing the same thing. These are not made to order; they are examples of what has been done to rabbit raising, and are an indication of what this industry is likely to become when it is generally understood.

JANUARY PERMITS ARE OVER $68,000, $16,500 LAST WEEK

In spite of the unfavorable weather for building and improvement, 26 permits involving an expenditure of $68,000, were issued by City Clerk W. E. McBreem during the month of January. The permits called for the erection of 19 new residences and two new brick business buildings; the other permits granted were for additions or repairs.

Permits for the week ending February 3 were a bit under the average for the year. Ten permits, including six new residences, three garages and one temporary warehouse, were issued during the week. The permits granted called for an expenditure of $16,544.04. A list of the building started during the week follows:

- J. Caruthra, 1805 Monroe, 1-room residence, $2,000.
- J. Caruthra, 1866 Monroe, 4-room residence, $2,500.
- Myrling and Walker, 1900 Pearl, 2-room residence, $1,150.
- Myrling and Walker, 1904 Pearl, 1-room residence, $3,750.
- Myrling and Walker, lot 1 block 4, Floral Heights, $1,750.
- Will Wilburn, 201 Jalisco, 4-room residence, $700.
- R. R. Stout, 204 Broad, garage $40.
- J. H. Halkwood, 404 Indiana, temporary sheet iron warehouse, $30.
- R. D. King, 1213 Fourth, garage, $250.
- L. A. Taylor, 1408 Seventeenth, porch to residence, $75.
- Total $16,544.04.

Robinson of Waco is commissioner of this division and is anxious to have the highway completely marked, logged and thoroughly advertised before the heavy spring and summer travel begins to move toward the coast.

CLOSED CARS, COED COOPERATE

An interesting feature of the 1934-35 automobile production is the predominance of closed cars and the productivity for equipping with coed tires. These two advances in their respective divisions of the industry are noteworthy of the consumer demand for service as well as comfort.

According to Firestone tire company, three standard equipment on the great majority of cars today, save the highest priced, is time is not far distant when coed tires are likely to entirely replace fabric tires except on the smaller cars.

From Consumer Reports.
Quoting from recent cables reports of United States department of commerce representatives, a recent bulletin from Firestone export headquarters states that American motorcycles are finding a good home in Poland owing to the high price of gasoline and motor cars. It is said, also, that a new popular European small car is being produced in Japan and that the American built automobile is regaining favor. Foreign registrations figures recently compiled indicate Great Britain, 462,000; Tientsin, China, 781; Pekin, 3,144.

Overhaul Program.
More and more motorists are calling for overhauls, according to a local Firestone tire dealer. It is becoming realized that overhauling that cannot be entirely eliminated and the desire for lower pressure than the manufacturer's recommendation to allow for easier riding, the only safe recourse is to overhaul.

KNOWLEDGE FOR CAR OWNERS

Interesting and Important Facts That Every Motorist Should Know.

Derangement in the electrical system will sometimes cause unequal power in the cylinders. After every thousand miles of running, universal joints should be packed with grease. Five cents' worth of flax seed dumped into the radiator usually temporarily will mend a small leak. When plain bearings are used, frequent lubrication is necessary for smooth running of a car.

Never apply polish on the body of a car before the varnish has become hard. At least three or four months old. Improper adjustment of valves will cause jerky running of a car. To remove and play in the steering gear loosen the set screws in the adjusting plate washer.

TIRES COST SMALL PART OF AUTO BILL
According to the local distributor of Firestone tires, castor and tube equipment is but six to eight per cent of the total maintenance cost of an automobile and if care is given to correct inflation, tread and wheel alignment there is no reason why this per cent cannot be reduced even lower. Tire cost-per-mile is very low when you come to figure it out. Take for instance a 20x33 cord tire. Figuring on a basis of 10,000 miles the cost will be only about $0.0166 per mile.

As the price increase the cost advances a trifle, but a careful check of all types and kinds of tires clearly shows up how little per mile a good tire cost the car owner. Card of Thanks
