First Texas Woman Legislator Finds Job Thankless One

By the Associated Press. AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—Mrs. Edith Wilman, Texas' first and only woman legislator, is of the opinion that being a lawmaker is a difficult, thankless and unprofitable job. One month of service in the 56th legislature has been sufficient, she said, to raise doubt in her mind as to whether she will be a candidate for reelection. "Long hours, hard work, poor pay, carrying criticism—these are the lot of a lawmaker," she said. "I have longed frequently to be back in dear old Dallas, either in my law office, or at home with my daughters. My office is closed, my practice is suffering, my daughters write me to return home. Reflections such as these make me wonder if the business of being a legislator is worth the price it exacts. Yet do not regret that I am here. The experience has meant a lot to me. It has broadened and educated me and given me an insight into public affairs that is invaluable to a member of the legislature. It has given me an opportunity to render some service to my state, but it seems I have accomplished very little. My office is closed, but I have not seemed to have any business to attend to. I have sought to do some good, but I have not been able to do so. I have sought to do some good, but I have not been able to do so."

of common Tuesday well prepared, according to official circles, to withstand the smoking out process to which his government is likely to be subjected, owing to three months of sensational events at home and abroad.

Developments in the Ruhr continue to strengthen the official view that the French policy is hopeless and there exists little likelihood that any pressure by the laborers will immediately affect the government plans with respect to the Rhineland. The intimation from official circles is that the presence of the British at Cologne depends largely upon the attitude at Paris and so long as the French accept the British policy of benevolent neutrality the troops will remain as a steady force between the French and the Germans.

One government spokesman characterized the British policy as similar to America's war-time aloofness, while awaiting the most favorable moment to bring about a settlement. One source of surprise to officials here is the reports of pronounced French sympathies throughout the United States regarding the Ruhr, a trend which the British correspondents in the United States have not indicated in their dispatches.

REVIEW OF WEEK'S ACTIVITIES AT AUSTIN

AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—Passage of the intangible tax bill to engrossment in the house, final passage through both houses of the bill creating the Texas Technological college, final passage by the house of the $1,000,000 emergency school appropriation bill, passage in the house of the one cent tax on gasoline, distributed 75 per cent to the school fund, as is the constitutional requirement of occupation taxes—these were outstanding features of the past week's legislative session. The West Texas college bill is now up to the governor. Some West Texans are apprehensive when they recall what Governor Neff did to a similar bill two years ago. But generally the belief is that the governor will either approve this bill in 1923 or let it become a law without his signature, the economy reasons he gave for his action in 1921 being certainly not applicable now as they were then. Besides that, new taxes are being levied, and these will more than take care of the increased expenses of maintaining the government and allow for the T. C.'s establishment. Veto of the bill would mean a real tragedy and very likely would start something like a revolt for final passage of the bill was as near unanimous as the most enthusiastic could expect.

The house put through the $2,000,000 school aid bill in a hurry, once it got started on it. Over in the senate, however, the more dignified body refused to take up the house bill out of its order, voting 16 to 10 for, but falling short of the two-thirds majority needed. The vote indicates that it has the strength to go over in the senate when it gets a vote. Representative Satterwhite, who led the effective fight against the appropriation both in the committee and in the house, unequivocally stated that the governor would veto the bill if it was sent to the executive office. The governor, however, stated in the beginning of the session that he was going to speak for himself, and while the veto prediction may be correct, there were enough votes in the house to pass it over a veto if that should become necessary.

The house this week engrossed the intangible assets tax bill by a strong majority. The vote on engrossment was 59 to 28 and it followed the hardest fight that has been staged this session. Amendments objectionable to proponents were voted down by almost the same vote, efforts to extend pipe lines, refineries, stockyards and packing houses and interurban and street railway lines failing in succession. The bill tends to cut out corporations under the present intangible tax law packing houses, interurbans, street railways, telephone and telegraph lines, oil refineries, stockyards, express companies, waterworks, power and light plants and gas distributing companies, with the intangible assets based on required statements from the companies affected to be fixed by a state board, made up of ex-officio members. An amendment exempting concerns of $50,000 business or less was adopted. The bill brought a storm of protest from among the industries affected. In fact, the hotel business in Austin has not been so "rushing" at any time this session as it has been this week, with business men's delegations from Dallas, San Antonio, Houston and Beaumont here to protest against the intangible assets tax. The Satterwhite tax commission board, which proposes to equalize tax values as between the counties. Wright Patman of Cass county led the fight for the bill and to his leadership and parliamentary maneuvering was due much of the success of proponents of the measure. Patman said the chief purpose of the bill was to equalize taxation to the end of reducing ad valorem rates now prevailing. He claimed the bill will add a good many millions in value for taxation purposes, counties and cities getting the benefit from intangibles as well as the state, and that taxes on visible property can be lowered ultimately because of these additional taxes to the total taxable values of the state. It is believed to be one of the most important tax measures likely to be passed at this session.

The house seems generally in accord with the idea that new taxes are necessary for the support of the state government in its multifarious functions; but differences arise when the methods of raising those taxes are considered. Objectors to the new tax bills which seek, as a rule, to reach new sources of revenue, charge that equalization of values as between the counties would make unnecessary any new revenue measures. In other words that instead of levying new taxes the legislature should bring up land and other visible property values to a higher basis. This has been the burden of the cry of the volunteer delegations here this week. They have pointed to the relatively low values in some counties and the relatively high values in others, have made much over the fact that many counties are receiving greater sums from the state for their schools than they are paying into the state treasury. Proponents of the new bills claim that this would increase the burden on visible property, which, they assert, has for years been bearing at least 65 percent of the cost of maintaining the government, and that the farms and homes of the state can bear no more. Indeed, that they should bear less. The fact that federal taxes collected from Texas are running more than $12,000,000 a year—two and a half times the whole state revenue—also is used in this connection by both sides.

Opinion in several quarters seems crystallizing into the belief that if the inheritance tax, in addition to those now further along toward enactment, is passed, further major revenue and taxation measures at this session will be unnecessary because the pressing needs of the state government will have been provided for. The belief seems predicated on the assumption that the state's present needs are met by the one cent gasoline tax and the intangible assets tax with possibly a few other minor revenue sources that have been favorably reported to be enacted. The senate is expected to amend the house oil production tax to apportion the proceeds between the general revenue and school funds on the constitutional basis of three-fourths and one-fourth, the house having given the entire yield to the school fund, by an amendment adopted, as many who voted for it now believe, without due consideration of its effect. The gasoline tax would be apportioned in the same manner. The inheritance tax is counted on to produce at the rates levied above $1,000,000 a year. The increase in the oil production tax, if the senate accepts the house figure of three per cent, likely will yield an additional $2,000,000; the gasoline tax probably $2,000,000. This would mean either the abandonment of material revision downward, probably the former, of the income tax, which has aroused the greatest storm of protest of any measure so far proposed. Reduction of the gasoline tax to one cent a gallon, however, may mean that the proposed high rates for automobile licenses will be necessary to provide the necessary sum for meeting the federal government's demands on the road funds available to the state high way commission to meet the federal appropriation for Texas.

The bill exempting nurses and veterans of the world war from payment of matriculation and similar fees at state educational institutions was finally passed by the house this week. Efforts to amend it to include veterans of the Spanish-American war and national guardsmen who were mustered in by the state but not by the federal government before the armistice failed.

The charge has been made against Governor Neff that he simply cannot untend. Those who made the Rio Grande valley trip with the governor believe that if the charge was ever true, it is much less true now, for the governor certainly untended on that trip and took the good-natured badinage of friends in good part. A feature of the trip was the volunteer songsters who made up in volume what they lacked in harmony. One of the song choristers made up for the occasion ran:

New Method Oven and Broiler Construction

Patented

Differs entirely from the oven construction of other gas ranges. The flames from the side burners do not come in direct contact with the oven bottom, causing more even baking. The broiling or roasting being under a solid sheet of flame is done without burning. Shows upright Nitrogen Oven Thermometer.

Friction Practically Eliminated in the New Method Burner

The friction in the passage of the gas and air through the jet holes is practically eliminated, which is the reason why the New Method Steel Burner will reduce gas bills 20 per cent to 40 per cent over burners in which there is friction; also the reason why New Method Burners will burn when the gas pressure is so low that cast iron burners are popping back.

"Robert Shaw" Oven Heat Controller

A Thermostat

Is connected on some of the New Method Gas Range models. The Thermostat works automatically and affords a simple and convenient means of securing the required temperature of the oven and maintaining this exact temperature for any length of time without any attention whatsoever. No necessity to stay in or near the kitchen to frequently adjust a gas cock as the Thermostat will automatically do that work for you. Simply push the porcelain handle of the Thermostat up to whatever degree of temperature is required and forget it, until the proper time for the removal of the food. A "slow," "moderate," "hot," "quick" or "very hot" oven can be secured by simply moving the knob to the proper indication.

New Method Swinging Simmering Burner

Patented

Is furnished with all New Method Gas Ranges without charge. Its great advantage over the burner lighters that can now be obtained at an extra price, is that it is also a simmering burner that can be used under any part of the front top, also that it will never choke or get out of order. It is the most used and convenient attachment ever put on a gas range.

1890 CENSUS IS FAVORED AS BASIS FOR IMMIGRATION

THIS WOULD PERMIT LARGER PROPORTION FROM NORTHERN EUROPE.

NO LOOSENING OF PRESENT RESTRICTIONS

Immigration Committee of House Considering Changes in Present Law.

By CHAS. W. HAYDEN, Washington Correspondent of The Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 10.—There is to be no loosening of immigration restrictions so as to let in a flood of cheap labor, a thing which has been demanded by some of the industrial leaders. Instead, the restrictions are to be tightened and the immigration committee of the house proposes to limit immigration to two percent of the various nations and figure this percentage upon the 1890 census instead of three percent according to the 1910 census, as provided in the present law.

The purpose of this going back to the census of 1890 years ago is to permit a larger proportionate immigration from among the blond races of northern Europe and a correspondingly lesser number from Italy, Greece and the Mediterranean countries. This is due to the fact that up to 1890 the overwhelming number of immigrants came from north Europe whereas since then there has been a marked influx of the darker races and congress intends to favor those nations which aided in the pioneer development of this country.

Statistics compiled by the committee show that Italians did not begin coming to this country until about 1885, or 1900 and the new bill, using two percent of the 1890 census, will cut the Italian quota from 48,867 to 8,912. Polish immigration will be cut from 21,978 to 4,384. There will be cuts for the nations of northern Europe, too, but it will be relatively less. Thus Germany, now allowed 87,497 will be permitted to send 11,827 immigrants while the United Kingdom will have its quota cut from 77,343 to 63,458 and France, now allowed 5,729, will have an immigration allotment of 2,314.

As a strict application of the two percent restriction would practically eliminate immigration from some smaller countries, such as Greece which would be permitted to send 47 and Palestine, entitled to one. To take care of the situation the committee has decided to provide that at least 400 persons may be admitted from any country and the quota allotments are figured in addition to that number. Thus, under this interpretation, Greece would be entitled to 417 immigrants.

It is urged, however, that there will not be a material reduction in the immigration under this law as the committee proposes to liberalize the provisions regarding blood relatives. It is contended that the immigrant who has been in this country two years and has his declaration of citizenship on file may bring in all his immediate blood relatives, up to the third degree. This, it is claimed, will minimize the drastic rulings which the committee feels the immigration authorities at Ellis Island have been enforcing too rigidly.

One of the features of the bill which is expected to be seriously contested is a provision for the "gentleman's agreement" but officials of the state department would rather

SAYS DISREGARD FOR OTHER'S PROPERTY IS CHARACTERISTIC OF WICHITA FALLS PEOPLE

Do you scratch matches on plastered walls in public places and leave streaks of dark brown there to stay? Do you lay burning cigarettes on other people's polished desk tops and let it burn the surface? Do you expectorate in the most convenient places? Do you draw plans for your house or the layout of an oil lease on walls in public places? Do you use the table cloth in cafes on which to figure out your days expenditures and the commission you have just made on an oil deal? If you have, what other people say about you might assist you in mending these ways and means. If you don't do these things this opinion might help you to keep from falling into the habit.

A proprietor of a certain public place, which is visited daily by hundreds of people stated Saturday while he was attempting to rub off the burned portions of the surface of a desk: "I have been in many cities before coming here but never before have I seen so many people have an utter disregard for other people's property." He told of an instance earlier in the day when he asked a certain oil man to desert in further carrying out his plans. He said that the oil property owner was drawing a picture of the oil lease he was attempting to sell on the wall.

He had two sides if his section of land already drawn when he was asked to stop. The owner of the place told him that if he put the lease up on the wall that it would remain there always and he wanted him to sell it.

This same man walked over to the wall and tried to brush off the streaks of dark brown that had been placed there when some person scratched a match across it.

The custodian of the court house will tell you the same story. Hundreds of men have scratched matches on the walls of the corridors until the brown spots have turned into black. Just as the janitors there also complain daily of men spitting back of radiators on the stairway or in the Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn performed a marriage ceremony Saturday that was out of the ordinary. The judge would repeat a few words of the ceremony and then complete silence would reign. Then a few words and then more complete silence would reign. The judge had an assistant in performing this ceremony. The assistant was quite necessary as he served as an interpreter. The couple that the judge married were deaf and dumb and according to Judge Gwinn, this is the first wedding of this nature that he has ever conducted in his career. Lee Calley, of El Centro, and Rachael Kelly, of Archer City, were the persons united in wedlock.

MORE VINEYARDS TO BE PLANTED IN MONTAGUE COUNTY

Following a three day meeting held at Montague, Montague county, Texas, it was reported that enough interest was displayed to forecast that more vineyards will be planted in that part of the state this year. As was evidenced in the visit to a number of vineyards near that town, grape growing is profitable. The soil and climate is adapted to the cultivation of grapes and the seasons is of such a length that grapes can be placed on the market before the big supply arrives.

Delano is followed by the supreme court, when it makes final disposition of the oil land, and the money which has been piling up in the receivership bank accounts for the past three years.

This recommendation makes it seem some time ago, will be renewed by Receiver Delano in his final report, he stated while in Wichita Falls last week, at the end of his regular trips of inspection of the property for which he has been responsible to the supreme court since April, 1920, when the court charged pending settlement of the boundary dispute.

Mr. Delano, who was accompanied by John S. Finney of Washington, returned Friday night to Washington to be present when court reconvenes on Monday, February 13. At the general impression, the supreme court will announce the personnel of the boundary commission which will set the actual boundary line, and thus make it possible for the famous case to be brought to a close.

Regarding the final disposition of the oil lands in which the United States will retain the royalty rights, since the supreme court has designated the southern half of the receiver bed as government land, Receiver Delano has no more information in any part of the country. He does feel sure, however, that the rights of the companies and individuals who took part in the development, will not be overlooked in the final disposition.

None of these companies has lost the cost of actual operations, the profitable wells which were taken over by the receiver, all costs having been repaid some time ago. Now the federal receiver proposes to have them reimbursed for the unprofitable dry holes they drilled.

Wildcaters who drilled dry holes and thus saved the receiver from expense and trouble, by indicating the lines of production, should be repaid, Mr. Delano stated as his opinion, and his plan as shown to the supreme court, is to pay for the drilling of such wells out of the proceeds from successful wells drilled by the same operator. It is the receiver's plan to equalize the losses from dry holes, by checking these against production in other wells.

The original plan of the court contained no provision for repayment of costs of drilling non-productive wells.

There are seven dry holes or manager producers which will come within this recommendation. Actual drilling cost figures are not available but an average cost of drilling will be between $15,000 and $20,000, if these wells can be judged by the drilling records of other wells in the receivership, drilled on the sand flats.

The Bass Petroleum company shows the Kirby four of these wells, Nos. 148, 150, 151 and 155 according to the numbering system of the receivership, which are non-productive. These wells are on the east edge of the pool.

The Lone Star Refining company drilled two dry holes which were within the receivership, and the remaining one of the seven was drilled by the General Oil company, and is No. 114 on the receiver's map.

Profiting by the experience of these companies, the receiver's field operators were able to show a record of no dry holes, while the development program was under way. In August 1920, the supreme court, on representations of various claimants that wells should be drilled to protect their property, and prevent the draining of the pool by a few wells, ordered a drilling program started.

Drilling, according to a system of offsets mapped out putting one well to each five acres, was started in August 1920, and continued until October 1921, when because of the condition of the oil market, the supreme court ordered new drilling inadvisable, and ordered all drilling stopped. There have been no wells drilled since that time.

During that 14 months of activity, 21 wells were drilled by the receiver with none of them dry holes. These were small dry holes, however, sufficiently small enough to indicate where not to drill, and by these, and the dry holes which were drilled at that time, the receiver was able to show a record of no dry holes.

In addition to drilling no dry holes, the receivership has been successful in rehabilitating some of the wells which were non-productive at the time the receivership became operative.

It will be remembered that conditions surrounding operations in the Red River pool during the early development days were rather hazardous, and it is not at all surprising that some of the first wells were junked holes, or in bad condition. One day a drilling crew for a company holding Texas title drilled into the sand on a well, to be disappointed the next day by an Oklahoma appointment record backed up by several Tillman county constables and special officers.

And in turn the Oklahoma claimants and receivers would find themselves dispossessed with Texas title in charge.

There will be no one more pleased to have the litigation settled, and the property turned over to whom ever the supreme court directs than Receiver Delano.

For, despite the fact that he is only holding the property intact, and operating it as economically as possible, so that there will be something left for the ultimate owners, when the supreme court designates them, the receiver seems to be pretty generally blamed for the entire receivership, and the inconvenience that it has caused individuals in tying up royalties and production funds.

Letters have been coming to the receiver, both in Washington and in the Wichita Falls office, from people scattered throughout the United States and Canada who are stockholders in various companies which organized and sold stock with some sort of leases, real or alleged, on the Red River section. Many of these companies have never in any way made efforts to substantiate their claims, and some of the leases in parts of the river bed, or sand flats, outside production, or any prospects of production, as far as present oil fields are concerned.

From some of the letters received by stockholders a certain company, now itself in the hands of a receiver, it appears that officers of the company, when queried by stockholders as to the lack of promised dividends, put the blame for the lack of dividends on the federal receiver. The general plea in these letters is to know when Receiver Delano is "going to give back" their money.

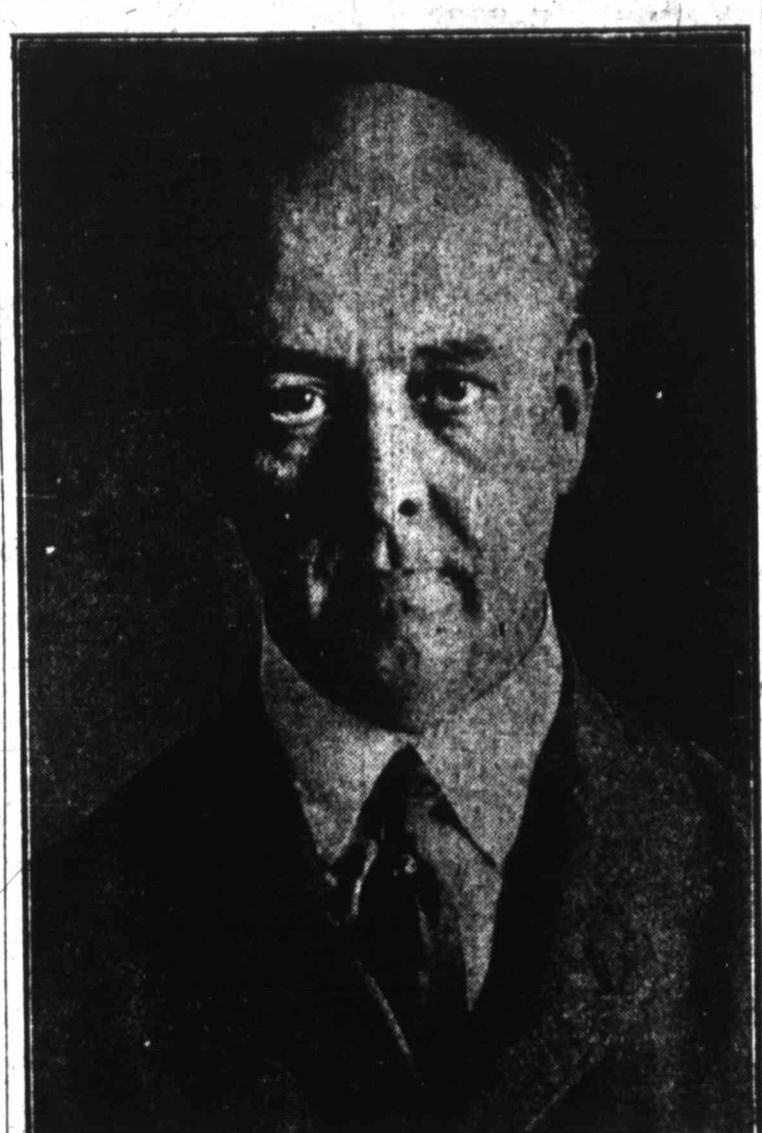

The public's idea about the value of the oil lands which the receiver is holding is still greatly exaggerated, it would appear from these letters. This is in a measure excusable, however, since the usual press valuation is a rather vague "many millions." There has been no effort on the part of the receiver and his force to keep the actual figures of production from the public. In fact the receiver's regular reports to the supreme court have always been available as public documents, but the information continues to be spread. Losses to companies and individuals who had started drilling on the disputed lands before the armed clash brought immediate federal intervention, have been rated as many millions. In the abstract, the last report of the receiver shows a total of approximately $5,000,000 received from oil produced by wells in the sand flats. This gross sum, representing the sixteen-sixteenths of production, without any operating or royalty deductions. The eighth royalty due the fee owners can be arrived at by a simple matter of calculation.

The operator's thirteen-sixteenths, less drilling costs and operating expenses, is held by the receiver, and will go to the claimants decided upon by the supreme court as the rightful owners of the leases. This amounts to approximately $1,500,000 at the present time but with a continuation of the receivership for any considerable time should be increased, since production from this area is still between 1,500 and 1,300 barrels daily.

Those companies that rank as the pioneers in the Red River pool had all their money they have expended on drilling returned to them, so that their losses have been confined to the prospective profits. It seems to be generally understood that when the receivership became operative, companies in the river bed were out all their expenses incurred up to the time the supreme court took a hand.

Just how erroneous this impression is can be seen from the receiver's report of expenditures, which shows more than $200,000 refunded to river bed operators, for drilling costs.

The General Oil company, whose No. 1 Sam Sparks was the real discovery well, the "original" well, ran the blaze that threatened for a time inter-state warfare, the smoldering embers of dissension, kindled two years before, has been paid more than $20,000 for the cost of drilling their two producing wells.

There may be from $15,000 to $20,000 more going to this company, if the dry hole costs are finally refunded.

The General Oil company, it will be remembered, was organized by S. E. J. Cox, whose spectacular career, as an oil company promoter and an amateur aviator brought him notice on two continents. Cox was acquitted of federal charges of misuse of the mails, in connection with his various promotions, on his trial in Houston, more than a year ago.

More than $45,000 in drilling costs were refunded to the Lone Star Refining company at this city, on two wells in the Red River pool, the company drilled the second producer in the river bed, after the General's discovery well completion. It has two non-productive wells, from which still more returns are probable.

The Burk Divide Oil company, consolidated, is another oil company which will be remembered as having figured extensively in the Red River pool development, and also in the early litigation. The Burk Divide and the Buckeye Petroleum company jointly drilled the most expensive well completed so far in the Red River pool, the receiver paying them $51,952 for the cost of drilling well No. 177.

The Burk Divide's first well, the receiver No. 144, cost $21,500 to drill, this much having been paid back into the company's treasury by the receiver.

The Bass Petroleum company was engaged in drilling a well at the time the receiver took charge, and $10,920 was paid them to reimburse for the drilling expenses before it went into the receiver's management. The four non-productive holes of the Bass, now Kirby, company, may be found to be assets again, after three years, if the above mentioned recommendation goes through.

The Delta Oil company was paid $20,515 for the drilling costs on their well No. 163, of the receivership.

Well No. 173 proved the second most expensive well in the Red River pool. This well was drilled by the Southwest Petroleum company, and the receiver refunded to the company $37,057 for drilling costs.

The Silver Moon Oil company's No. 1 was third in cost of drilling, this well No. 181 in the receivership having cost $23,367 before the receiver took it over.

The National Oil and Refining company received $23,303 for the well they had started, No. 149, which was completed by the receiver.

Total drilling refunds, on eleven wells, drilled by individual companies, amounted to $200,000.

In drilling 21 more wells, according to the court's order, the receiver expended $174,598.77.

These figures show the cost of drilling these 11 wells almost 50 per cent of the cost of drilling approximately three times that number, under the receivership operation.

The receivership's average cost of bringing in a well is shown to be $14,598. The highest drilling cost on any receivership well was approximately $27,980. Drilling costs are higher in the river bed, because of the unusual conditions, and making it necessary to drive piling for derrick foundations, and to take other precautions not ordinarily observed in this section.

In spite of these costs, however, the receivership has been able through the bulked nature of the operation, and economical buying, to show an unusually low cost of operation.

Operating expenses of the entire receivership at the present time are in round figures, $1,000 a day, it is stated. The interest on the money, including the royalty, and production funds, is more than sufficient to care for all field expenses.

Valley Operates 415,462 Train Miles During 1922; Wreck Repairs Cost $92.61

It cost the Wichita Valley just $92.61 to keep its track clear of wrecks during 1922, in that year, it operated a total of 415,462 train miles, and its remarkable freedom from wrecks and derailments, with that amount of train mileage is a source of much pride to its officials. It operated passenger trains 240,651 miles, mixed trains 57,363 miles and freight trains 147,445 miles.

"This wonderfully fine showing is the direct result of having a very careful and efficient set of employees on our lines," said O. E. Maer, superintendent of the Valley, in commenting on the figures, "the showing is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that last spring we had a lot of serious washouts as well as the shop crisis strike in the summer.

"Too much credit cannot be given our trainmen and engineers for the showing we made in the successful handling of trains, sometimes under adverse conditions, and to our section forces in keeping up the track. I figure the biggest asset we have is the splendid efficiency and loyalty of our employees on our lines," said O. E. Maer.

WEATHER DELAYS START ON TIMES' HOME BEAUTIFUL—TO LET CONTRACT NEXT WEEK

On account of the recent unfavorable weather conditions and the illness of some of those most vitally concerned and interested in the erection of The Times Ideal Home Beautiful, work has been unavoidably held up for the past week. An announcement from the office of Jerry Schaeffer, the architect selected to draw the plans for the ideal home, says that plans are almost complete and that contracts can be awarded early next week. The committee in charge of the building of the Home Beautiful is hopeful that ground for the erection of the modern residence may be broken within the next ten days.

An ideal location has been selected for the site of the Home Beautiful—the southeast lot at the corner of Avenue H and Hill. In Highland addition, one of the city's most attractive suburbs. The home will face the new $750,000 Junior college building now under construction and is only two blocks from the W. F. Weeks home.

It is to be a modern home of the latest type, with every convenience and improvement that makes for comfort and happiness. The home will be built and furnished of the best materials and furnishing possible. First class workmen will be employed to see that no detail in the construction is overlooked. In fact everything will be included to make the home attractive, comfortable and beautiful.

The Times Ideal Home Beautiful is not to be an expensive home, but it is to be complete, up-to-date and provided with all modern accessories. It will be a home every one will enjoy visiting and inspecting and such a home as many will seek to build for themselves.

FINISH IRRIGATION SURVEY SOUTH AND EAST CITY LIMITS

TO DETERMINE EXTENT LAND THAT CAN BE BROUGHT UNDER DITCH.

WORK ON PROJECT IS RESUMING AFTER RAIN

Plenty of Water Available to Keep Dredge Going For Several Months.

Topographic surveys to determine the amount of land south and east of the city that can be reached by irrigation ditches, will be completed this week by the irrigation district. R. C. Thaxton has been in charge of this work.

Whether the main south ditch will be extended to this section or whether additional ditches will be dug from Lake Wichita will be determined later, either plan being feasible. The survey extends as far as the Clay county line, and includes some excellent land very close to the city limits, making it especially desirable for irrigation.

Work at the two dams has been held up by the weather to some extent, but late in the week most of the operations were resuming.

At the storage dam the dredge T. B. Noble has moved to a new location considered more favorable for its operations; it now has water enough for several months' work. Paving of the face of the service spillway was resumed Saturday after a delay occasioned by the rain.

At the diversion dam, work on the main embankment and the permanent spillway are the chief phases of activity and both are progressing satisfactorily.

Work in Master degree—Wednesday at 6:00 p. m., also examination in each degree.

Told Tale to Get Father Out Of Ku Klux Klan

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Miss Mildred Erick, who is said to have repudiated a story told police that she had been kidnaped by masked men...

REFLECTION ON SIR PERCY AND THE BRITISH DEBT, ETC.

By WILL ROGERS

Well, a terrible lot of news has happened since we went to press last week. We have finally developed a Margot Asquith of our own...

Mrs. Miles Poindexter has pulled a Margot and is letting us in on some—well, you wouldn't call it Dirt, it's really only Dust.

It seems, as a Senator's wife, she has gotten tired dodging these Government cars furnished by the Governor for the Cabinet's wives...

But she forgets that for these privileges these Cabinets take a chance. Greece's was shot. Now a Senator was never shot. That has perhaps been an oversight on somebody's part but it's true, nevertheless.

But I think, myself, that they ought to let some of these officials' wives in Washington help run things.

I don't mean their husbands, as they do that, of course. But let them help with the Government. Why, when I play Washington, every afternoon I am out at some of the Roosevelt's or Mrs. Longworth's and I have heard more real constructive dope on the Government than I heard among the men.

Now I understand they are going to exile the Poindexters to Peru, where they are to be ambassadors or something.

Well, they won't be lonesome down there in South America. Mr. Hughes comes down every few weeks. Still there's that Cabinet's wife again. You can't go anywhere in the world and escape a Cabinet member and his wife nowadays. We really do need a Margot Asquith who would give us some real dope on things and I am sorry Mrs. Poindexter's career was nipped by this Peruvian escapade.

Well, things are kinder settling down in the Episcopal Church here. They were going to let Dr. Percy Grant out but he was such a big drawing card they couldn't afford to let him go. He is the Valentino of the Clergy.

Well, everybody is always wondering what will happen to poor Germany since the invasion. We have the same thing happen here every day. When a man can't pay his debts he is thrown out of his house, family and all. It's called foreclosure, but nobody ever gets heated up enough to worry what becomes of them.

If you remember, France paid Germany one time and we didn't worry how they got it. We would be a fine Nation to tell some other Nation how to collect debts. Why, say, France and Germany both have forgotten more about manipulating coin than one Pocket to another than we will ever know. We've got it now, but I bet you in 15 years they will have it all back and we will be giving them our I. O. U.'s. Ask one of our returned soldiers if France don't know how to get the dough. And you never got rich off of trading with a German, did you? Plying them, trying to get money from each other, is like plying a Bootlegger, Poor Fellow.

They are not going to war. It ain't time. They only fight every 40 years. If either of them went into a war now they couldn't deliver the original cast they had before.

Talk about us telling somebody how to collect something, why, just this week, England talked us out of 4 and a half Billion Principal and 58 million a year interest. When I say "us," I mean Us. We, that are living now. The principal don't have to be paid for 62 years. Now, personally, I can't work up much enthusiasm about what I am to receive 62 years from now. I would rather say, "Brother, just allp me a Dime now on account." If you Birds think we made a good deal you go into a Bank and ask them to loan you some money and you will pay it back in 62 years. You go in.

I will wait outside and catch you as you come through the swinging door.

It originally was to be paid in 25 years. Not bad, eh, to come over on your Own Sea and get your note extended for 37 years.

"Now, if Congress won't defend themselves, I will enter protest."

You often hear it said we need Diplomats. We don't need Diplomats; we need a Keeper or a Warden.

Of course, as I am writing, this congress hasn't started arguing over it yet. They will talk on it so long it will cost us more than the interest is worth.

Now there is another thing I want recorded here in my Congressional Record. This bird, Sir Percy Baldwin, made some slighting remarks about our Senate and House of Representatives. Now, McKellar and Heflin and I resent that. President Harding and I can get vexed at congress sometimes and say things, but we are all of the same family. We resent any foreigner coming in here and knocking our Representatives. He said if it hadn't been for Congress having something to do with it he could have settled it with our Reparation committee and perhaps got the debt cancelled entirely and paid something besides, but that it had gotten into the hands of Congress. It seemed quite a surprise to him that you all had found it out.

You see it's just the difference in England of a little matter of 4 or 5 Billion debt. They don't like to bother the Dukes and Earls with those trifles.

You see they get the King's children's wedding to go to every little while and it takes years to learn where your place is in line. So you can't expect them to be troubled with Nick Nacks.

The worst thing was, Sir Percy said our Congress were Rural and Pastoral. Now I can understand Congress not calling him down 'cause they were like me. They didn't know what this Pastoral Gag meant. But, offhand, if I had to give a meaning to it, I would interpret it, and would say it meant HICK.

Now, if Congress won't defend themselves, I will enter protest. I knock 'em but I like 'em, and understand 'em. I know they do wrong sometimes but they mean well. They just don't know.

Sir Percy says all they know is how to raise Hogs and wheat and sell them. He is wrong. They don't even know how to raise Hogs and wheat.

He should be ashamed of himself. If I went somewhere and a man give me 5 Billion and told me, "You don't have to pay this for 62 years," why I would have rushed up and complimented him quick even if I didn't mean it. Why, I would pretty near kiss Lodge and Volstead for that much.

CLAY COUNTY MAY VOTE $550,000 FOR CONCRETE HIGHWAY

PETITIONS TO BE PRESENTED MONDAY FOR CREATION OF DISTRICT.

WOULD PAVE 36 MILES ON COLORADO GULF ROAD

Proposed District Takes in Five Miles On Each Side of East-West Highway.

Another effort for good roads in Clay county will be made shortly; petitions will be presented Monday to the commissioners' court at Henrietta for creation of a road district extending across the county along the Colorado-Gulf highway.

It is proposed to issue $500,000 in bonds. That amount, plus state and federal aid, would provide approximately $1,000,000 for the 36 miles or about $27,000 per mile; it is planned to build a concrete road.

The proposed district is approximately 10 miles in width, five miles on each side of the road and varying slightly with section lines. It includes the towns of Henrietta, Bellevue and Jolly.

Clay county decisively defeated a road bond issue in 1921. Later the northwestern part of the county voted bonds for a gravel road system, now nearing completion. Voting of the bonds would provide an excellent highway from Wichita Falls to Fort Worth, the remainder of the route being already in good condition. It is expected that more favorable

Community Players Are Ready to Present "Clarence" to Public

"Clarence" the second of the Community Little Theater's productions this season will be given at the Wichita theater Monday and Tuesday nights. For the benefit of those who have not seen or are not familiar with "Clarence" it should be sufficient to say that it is a South Tarkington comedy with the usual laughs with here and there a plaintive note as Clarence gets into tussle with his surroundings, namely "the Wheeler family."

The scene as those who witnessed the moving picture version will remember, is laid in the modern American home where the children seek to dominate the situation. The mother and the charming governess are at odds, the daughter is in love with a grass "widder" the son is fired out of school and a number of other complications all of which Clarence seems to be able to harmonize to a most satisfactory and pleasing end.

Several new faces will appear in "Clarence"; that is, faces of persons who have not appeared before audiences in this city. Bill Brennan, with the title role, is a recent addition to the Community Players talent. Mrs. E. L. Fulton has had entire charge of the directing of the performance. Charles Angle will be behind the scenes as stage manager and promises some new effects in the way of setting and props.

Tickets for "Clarence" are on sale with the members of the club and the box office of the Wichita theater will be open Monday for the sale and reserving of seats.

TAX BILLS ARE TO BE GIVEN RIGHT OF WAY

Efforts Will Be Made to Cut the Amounts Appropriated in School Bills.

AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—Thirty-three of the 60 days of the regular session of the 28th legislature, have passed, and already members are speculating as to whether Governor Neff will call the special session immediately upon the expiration of the 60-day period or wait a month or two for reconvening the law makers in extra session to consider the general appropriation bills.

Many of the members have expressed the hope that the special session will not come in at least 30 days after the end of the regular period, but the governor has not intimated what he has in mind on the subject.

To date there have been introduced a total of 800 bills, 492 in the house and 308 in the senate. The percentage of the measures have passed both branches and sent to the governor is small.

The senate next will consider the rural school aid bill carrying an appropriation $4,500,000 and the bill appropriating $2,900,000 to supplement the available school fund. Efforts are to be made to cut the appropriations in both bills.

Senator Wood, of Williamson, has already announced that he will offer an amendment to reduce the emergency school appropriations, from $2,900,000 to $150,000.

Tax measures are to be given the right of way in the house and these include the Smith inheritance tax measure and the bill by Satterwhite to create a state board of equalization.

Representative Rountree will attempt on Monday to have his constitutional convention joint resolution made special order for Tuesday. Other bills on next week's docket in the house include the bills to extend the life of the commission of appeals for two years from June, 1933, to require posting of rates in hotels, and to make attorney's fees collectible in suits for damages against express companies.

The Pope text book commission bill is to be threshed out in free conference next week, the house having refused to concur in the senate bill.

LEGISLATIVE SUMMARY FOR THE PAST WEEK
AUSTIN, Feb. 10.—Passage of the Pope text book bill, the West Texas Technological college bill and a series of measures revising banking laws of the state, together with the movement launched in the senate to restore citizenship to former Governor James E. Ferguson, were high lights of legislative activities during the past week.

Both branches of the legislature now have more than 800 measures before them to be disposed of during the next three weeks, today ending the fifth week of the regular session. In the house, 492 bills have been introduced; in the senate 308 have been presented.

The text book bill has yet to be finally disposed of in conference between senate and house committees. The bill as passed by the senate would extend until August, 1935, text books in use last December and also would permit book companies awarded contracts recently to institute court proceedings to determine legality of the recent awards.

The Dodd bill, providing for acceptance by Texas of the Sheppard-Towner congressional act, drew considerable attention this week. It was passed finally by the house and engrossed in the senate.

Revenue-raising measures occupied the attention of the lower branch much of the past week. The Palmam intangible tax bill and Cowen gasoline tax measure both were passed to engrossment during the week. Several other measures are still pending in the house while only one revenue bill, by Coffey, increasing the gross oil production tax, has reached the senate. The cable preferential primary bill was killed today when the house refused to engross it. More progress on the legislative task of the present session was made during the past week than any previous period in the opinion of members.

EX-SLAVE LEAVES WILL, GIVING PROPERTY TO FRIEND "MR. WILLIE"
By Associated Press.
FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Feb. 10.—Because "Mr. Willie" never failed to give him needed advice or help, William James McAllister of Fayetteville, aged ex-slave, who died today, made William Fuller of New York, general counsel of the American Tobacco company, sole heir and beneficiary of his estate, consisting of a small cabin and its furnishings. It was learned when McAllister's will was found. The old negro's death was caused by burns sustained when he fell into an open fire place.

"My wife, now deceased, belonged to his (Mr. Fuller's) father and mother," read McAllister's will, "and it was my pleasure to be near the Fuller family after the war, bringing an intimacy between me and Mr. Willie, then a small boy. When I needed advice Mr. Willie never failed me. He may not need my little home, I pray, but he will know better what to do with it than I, and in this way I want to show my appreciation for what he has done for me."
McAllister, who was 74 years of age, has been a resident of this city as long as the oldest citizen can remember. Mr. Fuller formerly lived in Fayetteville.

METHODS OF LAND COMPANY BARED IN STEWART TRIAL

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 10.—W. E. Stewart, on trial in federal court here under indictment for an alleged $60,000,000 land fraud in Hidalgo county, Texas, feared that an investigation by Kansas bank commissioners of his Edinburg tract might lead them to deny his company the privilege of selling in Kansas land in the Edinburg tract, according to a letter introduced in the trial late today. The letter was alleged to have been written by Stewart to D. E. Kirgan, former agent for the Stewart company, and a defendant in the swindle case. It urged Kirgan to expedite the sale of lands under the Edinburg irrigation system so that when the commissioners should visit Hidalgo county, Stewart would be able to say that the lands he had for sale were "practically under the Mercedes system."

The letter also declared "very confidentially" that Stewart hoped to sell the Edinburg irrigation system to the farmers.

Kirgan testified that, in selling land for Stewart's organization, he always showed prospective purchasers the Mercedes system. "Did you ever show them any other system?" asked Attorney W. H. Hallist of the prosecution. "No," Kirgan admitted.

Another letter introduced by the government was addressed to D. E. Kirgan, an agent of the company, and signed by A. P. Parker, the witness, who identified his signature.

"In order to stimulate sales," Parker suggested that Kirgan build a store, a school house, a small bungalow for the storekeeper, and make arrangements for a teacher. Kirgan was instructed to get a storekeeper to stock the shelves of his store and induce him to remain there "even if you give him free rent."

Parker also, according to the letter, instructed Kirgan to put up white sticks to show where the streets were and to employ "two or three carpenters with hammers and nails which would have a great effect on prospects." These steps were being taken in an effort to "dispose of some of our bad land," according to the letter.

On cross examination Parker testified: "I believe in the Rio Grande valley and I also believe in the future of the valley."

JURY COMPLETED CULBERSON TRIAL

asking for an acquittal on the grounds of self defense.

Mrs. Pansie Culberson, the wife of the defendant, was in the courtroom Thursday and Saturday. She attended the court room Saturday morning at 3 o'clock, the time when Judge Wilson had ordered all witnesses to report. She was accompanied by two women friends. Her daughters were not with her Saturday.

Mrs. Culberson has been summoned as a witness as have all three of the daughters.

Mrs. M. C. Lamar, widow of the deceased, has not appeared in the courtroom and it could not be ascertained Saturday night whether she had arrived. She had been served with a subpoena.

With the array of legal talent that has lined both sides of the large table in the courtroom during the three days that it required to select the jury it is evident that the trial will be one of more than usual interest.

Judging from the number of witnesses who have been summoned in addition to the large number of legal questions that are bound to arise during the trial, it is stated that it will probably require three days before all the testimony is before the jury.

Major Culberson is charged by indictment with the murder of M. C. Lamar, alleged to have occurred on Indiana avenue in front of the Phonograph shop on January 3, 1932. Just a month later his trial began in the 20th district court.

Among the witnesses who have thus far reported are men and women from eight different cities in the state. Five army officers arrived in the city Thursday morning and will be here during the trial. One of the officers is a member of the adjutant general's department of Washington, D. C.

It was not learned whether Mrs. Ernestine Lamar of Houston, said to be the defense star witness, had arrived Saturday night or not. Attorneys for both sides stated Saturday that in questioning witnesses as to possible friendship for, or conversation with, several individuals, there was no intention to reflect in any way on those individuals, the questions being asked because of such individuals' connection with the case in one way or another. The prosecution had asked about acquaintanceship with N. O. Merrill Blair, and the defense had asked similar questions regarding George Fleming, Lamar's employer.

Mr. Blair's interest in the case, it was stated Saturday, is due to his long friendship for the defendant, with whom he served in France in the 34th division. It appeared Saturday that the questions had been misconstrued in some quarters.

Future Jail Breaking As That of Toussaint Provented; New Locks In

Future jail "breaking" as that of Henry John Toussaint has now been prevented, it is believed. New locks have been installed in both the outside doors of the jail. The new locks were put in place Friday and Saturday morning and Jailer Fitzpatrick has been provided with the key that does the unlocking stunt. The reserve keys have been concealed in the vault in the sheriff's office. The new locks and keys are products of the Badley Jail Manufacturing company of St. Louis and accompany the jail and equipment which they call saw proof. The locks of course are said to be burglar proof.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR COUNCIL IS MADE BY J. MONTGOMERY

Julian Montgomery, former city engineer, Saturday announced his candidacy for the place of park and sanitary commissioner in the city election in April, adding another to the rather crowded field for that position. Mr. Montgomery's announcement follows: "To the citizens of Wichita Falls: On the insistence of my friends I am announcing my candidacy for sanitary and park commissioner. "My friends seem to feel that my education as a civil engineer and my ten years' experience in city engineering work coupled with my city engineering experience here in sanitary matters, parks, and the city cemetery, make me well qualified for sanitary and park commissioner. "I shall enter into no personalities whatever during the campaign. I regard every man making the race for sanitary and park commissioner as an honorable and upright gentleman and shall treat him as such. "I believe that every department of the city should be thoroughly studied so that every cent possible may be saved and that all cities go either forward or backward, and that Wichita Falls is at the dawn of a great future. Every citizen should, from his love and loyalty to Wichita Falls, do nothing to impair the fulfillment of that future, and everything to insure it. "Without being 'penny wise or pound foolish' we should properly operate and properly maintain our municipal investments. Just because we owe money on our houses it isn't good business not to fix the leaky roofs. "I am a strong believer in sanitation, in preventive measures, and in taking the precautions necessary to safeguard properly the health and welfare of all people. "I believe that such improvements as are necessary and that can be realized with economy under normal conditions should be made. "If you as citizens of Wichita Falls, feel that I am the man for the Work Has Been Delayed By Incomplete Grade and Adverse Weather. Steel-laying on the Byers-Waurika railroad will be resumed this week, after a delay, and the rails are due to reach Waurika on February 23, according to H. M. McFarland, chief engineer for the line. An uncompleted portion of grade, and adverse weather have delayed the steel gangs for several weeks, but it is hoped to get the track machine going again Monday or Tuesday on the three miles of steel yet to be laid. If there is no more unfavorable weather to delay construction, it is probable service will begin over the route sometime early in March.

Plans for the coming season were discussed and dates for the registered club shoots and tournaments were decided upon. It was decided to arrange for and offer attractive prizes to the high man in each registered shoot.

A discussion arose over the bill now before the legislature to place a five-year closed season on deer and quail. The club took a stand as a body as being opposed to such legislation. It was the opinion of most of the members that the present need is a more rigid enforcement of the present game laws. A telegram was sent to the committee in Austin opposing the bill but requesting the committee to amend the laws now on the statute books.

NORTH TEXAS DRILLING OPERATIONS CONTINUE TO INCREASE

A PARTIAL VIEW OF THE FREEMAN-HAMPTON POOL

A year ago this was unworked Archer prairie land. Now it is one of the busiest pools in the Southwest. In the right center is shown the main north side irrigation ditch.

HUMPHREYS TEST NEAR NOCONA ADDS TO HOPES FOR OIL

The promise of an extensive campaign of drilling and development for the early part of 1923 in the Archer fields has been more than fulfilled and already more than 50 new tests have been added to the number of drilling wells in the county; each week finds one or more derricks building in the wildcat territories. In the Archer area it is almost impossible to keep in touch with the great number of rigs being erected and many others preparing to start in.

THOMASSON WELL IS ALSO BEING WATCHED

Texas Company Believed to Have Something Interesting in Test on Lemons Farm.

HEAVY GAS PRESSURE AND OIL SPRAYS GIVE PROMISE OF PRODUCER.

The Derrick at present is thoroughly saturated with the fluid and is as black as a coating of oil can make it, and for hundreds of yards in every direction from the well small pools of oil can be seen. The top of the sand was encountered 290 feet but was penetrated a few inches, barely scratching the pay.

BARCLAY-MEADOWS TEST SWABBING 50 BARRELS IN HIRSCHI

Activity in the Hirsch pool, was slowed up to some extent during the week by bad weather, the freezing cold was the means of bursting a great many water pipes and connections, forcing several tests to shut down.

WHITTINGTON TEST IN HUTCHINSON HAS INTERESTING SHOW

A showing of oil in the Whittington test on the Mack Sanford ranch in southwest Hutchinson county at 2500 feet, a wild cat of the wildest kind, is considered of much importance in the development of the Panhandle oil field.

WORSHAM WELL IS BEING CLEANED OUT, IS PRODUCING 180

No new developments have occurred in the Gulf well on the Worsham tract in an effort to increase the production which is reported at the present time making 180 barrels per day, the well flowing by heads at intervals of every four hours.

PRODUCTION DEAL IN ELECTRA FIELD INVOLVES $55,000

A. Cohen of Baltimore, Md., has purchased from Fred Carter and Carter and A. R. Cotton an one-fourth interest in 40 acres out of the Gibson survey south of Electrica, Gray county, Oklahoma.

HELDYTON CRUDE ADVANCED 25 CENTS

TULSA, Feb. 10.—The Texas company today posted a price of $1.10 a barrel on Heldyton low gravity oil, an advance of 25 cents. This followed the earlier advance of 10 cents posted by the Prairie Oil and Gas company and met by all other big purchasers.

ARCHER COUNTY SEES STILL MORE ACTIVITY; 50 RIGS IN OPERATION

ROBINSON TEST ON FISHER MAY WIDEN PAY FOR THREE MILES.

The most important of the week's developments at Electrica was the finding of a sand showing considerable oil at 1968 feet in the Robinson test in section 10, H. T. C. R. R. survey Fisher land, east of Electrica, nine miles, which from present indications looks like an extension of the 1900 foot pay over half a mile to the northeast.

GOOD COMPLETIONS REPORTED FOR WEEK

The Texas company has made two completions, No. 127 and 228 Waggoner, in the Bradford survey, abstract 13, which will offset to the south the 1400 foot producer of Green and others.

JESUS AND THE RICH PUBLICAN

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN
It was with a rich man with a conscience that Jesus dealt who passing into Jericho on his way to Jerusalem, he beheld Zacchaeus and called him to Him. Zacchaeus was not only rich but was a chief publican—a member of a very unpopular class—and it is evident from Luke's account, that he was no more than a tax gatherer.

JESUS AND THE RICH PUBLICAN—TEXT OF TODAY'S BIBLE
TALK BY MR. BRYAN.
Luke 19:1-10.
And Jesus entered and passed through Jericho. And behold, there was a man named Zacchaeus, which was the chief among the publicans, and he was rich. And he sought to see Jesus who he was; and could not for the press, because he was little of stature. And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycamore tree to see him; for he was to pass that way. And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up, and saw him, and said unto him, Zacchaeus, make haste, and come down; for today I must abide at thy house. And he made haste, and came down, and received Him joyfully. And when they saw it, they murmured, saying, That He was going to be a guest with a man that is a sinner. And Zacchaeus stood, and said unto the Lord: Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation, restore him fourfold. And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house, forasmuch as he also is a son of Abraham. For the Son of man is come to seek and save that which was lost.

a great message, whether addressed to the multitude or intended for Zacchaeus. News of the breadth and depth of Christ's message were strongly stated. He came to a place that which was lost. "Lost" is a lonely word and often used in describing Christ's mission. We think of it more in regard to the young and can imagine the terrible strain which a child undergoes if, for any considerable period, it feels itself lost.

It is not so easy to visualize the condition of one who is lost in sin, but it is as pathetic. The wanderer sees no familiar signs, hears no friendly voice and sinks down at last in agony and despair.

Seeking to Save.
It was not such that Christ came. He was not to seek them, but was to seek them that he might save them. Salvation has not been placed at the end of an arduous search; Christ does not himself in order to make one weary with hunting.

As the father went forward to meet the prodigal, so Christ forgave him very slight of repentance, so Christ is walking through the world today eager for opportunities to forgive.

No one is so poor as to be beneath His notice; no one is so rich as to be above His appeal. None is so ignorant that He cannot make him understand His message, and none is so learned as to be beyond the need of His atoning blood.

The sycamore tree which Zacchaeus climbs to see Christ is the opportunity which He offers to all who will accept Him. He has seen Him healing the blind and restoring sight to the blind and casting out evil spirits; but nearly all of the beneficiaries of His ministry were poor and lowly.

The Message of the Multitude.
Zacchaeus did not make any pretensions; he was not to be seen to be seen. But Christ saw in him a follower and called to him, "Make haste, and come down; for today I must abide at thy house." "Zacchaeus made haste, and came down."

There was no hesitation. He had heard of Christ's miracles, he had been excited, possibly he was more than curious; he may have been on the very edge of declaring himself a follower. At least, he received a second summons; he accepted the invitation immediately and joyfully.

The multitude murmured; how could one like Jesus be so near to a man like Zacchaeus, the sinner? There may have been many worse sinners in the crowd, but their sin was secret, while Zacchaeus' business was notorious.

Tax gathering is not calculated to make one popular and tax gathering in the days when our Saviour was on earth was often the object of just criticism.

Today, the tax collectors in civilized countries have nothing to do with the assessing of taxes; they merely collect that which they are directed by law to collect. But in the days of Zacchaeus taxes were assessed out and the system invited abuse, extortion and oppression.

Zacchaeus at once justified Christ's judgment of him. He did not leave the Saviour to be unjust reproaches. He said, "I have repented, and I have given to the poor the half of my goods. I have not taken anything from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold."

It may not be amiss to consider here a very important fact. "They say" cannot always be accepted as a truthful or final judgment against one's erry.

Rumor is often unreliable. Many a man, thought to be miserly, has been found to be benevolent—his benevolence being unknown because not heralded from the household.

Christ is able to hear above the clamor and see behind the outward covering.

A Great Message.
"This day is salvation come to this house," was Christ's answer to Zacchaeus' declaration of conscience, adding, "forasmuch as he also is a son of Abraham."
The mere fact that he was a descendant of Abraham would not have been sufficient if he, like the Pharisees, had disgraced the relationship or had been unrepentant. It is evident that the inner Zacchaeus was worthy of the line from which he came.

If the "Pestered Grouch" will call around at The Times Editorial Office, we will be delighted to introduce him to an affinity or two: two or three souls with but a single thut, as it were; a group of grouches running the same gauntlet. (Names deleted by the G.H.M.)

OUR NEIGHBOR'S BOY (By a Pestered Grouch)

"How can one ever become so With children dear for company? With little ones to bring us joy, We must depend on Neighbor's boy To fill our days till full of fun From early dawn till setting sun: Each morning—early, too, you see— He on our back door steps will set; His mother, still in dreamland dwells, Or falls to hear him when he yells; Or maybe 'tis a piece of stone. The boy against the house has thrown That wakes the echoes far and near. And makes us start for their reason fear. You look about, and then find out He's pulled your flowers and tramped them too. And when you dare to call him down He promptly makes a face at you: Oh mothers, won't you have a heart, And from your children do not part; But keep the youngster by your side, And let him down your garden ride. And teach your own house hold his fire: He is your pride, your heart's desire. So let him tramp your floor's beds out And listen to his happy shout; And when some mud be gally thrown, Right smack upon your new-washed clothes, Don't lose your temper—that won't do— Just let him play till he gets through; The neighbors long have stood for such, And only groaned and cursed 'In Dutch'; They never yet have spanked your Son; The law denies them that, by Gum!

BE THANKFUL FIRST THEN START ASKING FOR THINGS, JUDGE KAY'S ADVICE TO CLASS

Thanksgiving should come before petitions in prayer, Judge Kay told his Bible class at the Olympic last Sunday. The lesson dealt with the story of the man who asked for the ten who were healed by Jesus, who turned back to thank him for His help. Judge Kay's lecture follows:

The arithmetic of the Bible is very hard. It always discourages me when I come to a piece of arithmetic in the Bible. Here are ten men healed of leprosy and only one turned back to thank the Master. Here are ten virgins going to a marriage feast, five of them foolish, five of them prudent. The foolish shall be taken and the other five left, and so on, all through the book.

The Savior's life was very full. He was coming now, rapidly, to the great climax of His ministry, when He should suffer at Jerusalem, and die on the way to Jerusalem, then, and pretty close up, but He had time to stop and heal these ten lepers.

Now, these lepers out there were not all orthodox Jews. Some of them were not Jews at all, but their misfortune had gotten them together, and they were all together in this country, and so on, all through the book.

Let me give you a great truth. I think the greatest truth, at least, the greatest part of the message that Jesus brought, is that He says: "By their fruits ye shall know them."

The Savior didn't talk about healing. He didn't preach or teach a great philosophy, but He said: "Here is a man that is misery. Here I will stretch forth my hand and save him from that misery. There is no virtue in my education, or in my writing, or in my preaching, but the world, that has its virtues in me, which will effect even him who slips up behind and touches the hem of my garment."

Now, I come to something here that I have touched on once or twice before. It is the matter of the bit the other view in consideration of some matters that were going on in our colleges. You can take up any number of things, and you can find a great deal of truth in them, but you can't get a great deal of truth out of them unless you have a great deal of faith in them.

At the close of the business meeting, the following officers were elected for 1928: Mrs. H. E. Ayres, first vice-president; Mrs. McMillan, second vice-president; and Mrs. Wright, corresponding secretary. Mrs. H. E. Ayres, president; Mrs. D. D. Benson, critic; and Mrs. Stephenson, press reporter and historian.

and when he did, he didn't ask the Lord for too much. He would rather thank him for what he did have. He said he had noticed all his long life that people who were always asking the Lord for things they got to thinking of were presently sent to his hands.

Now, I am not stating that as my religion, but I am telling you what a wise man said, away out there in the snowy mountains, those never heard of us and our religion. Thankful for what you have got is the Lord going to pour out His blessings on us when we haven't thanked him even for that which we have already received? My idea of justice must be infinitely poor, compared to His, and yet I wouldn't do that. I wouldn't just keep on, and on sending a fellow something that never did help. You wouldn't, but His mercy is more powerful, and more abundant, than ours, and His justice is infinitely greater than ours, and He bears with us longer than we would with our neighbor, and yet there must be a limit even to the time that He should bear with us.

So, these fellows were healed and went off. Now, just why should a man do that? There is a reason for that. When a leaf trembles in the woods, there is a reason for it. Why was it these nine fellows went off and said no more about it? Do you know? They said: "We don't need anything now, we are sitting high."

They were like the fellow that married a rich woman. Every once in a while when they would get into a tiff, she would remind him that he was poor before he married her, and he said: "Ten Sarah, that's so, but what has that got to do with it, I have got plenty of money now, and I have got plenty of money when I was poor and miserable."

And these fellows who were healed didn't feel the need of a great helper then; they were healed and went on about their business, and went to the movies, or whatever there was in that day to entertain them, and forgot their Lord, and the disease with which they had formerly suffered. Men are that way.

That's what makes the Bible different from all other books. It is the only one that you can find which fits every age and every people, and every climate, because it is a book about life, and about human nature, and about men, and the things that a man thought 3000 years ago is the same kind of a thought that you are likely to think now, and the reason that the Bible lasts on, and on, because it is written on a knowledge of humanity that is eternal in its scope and in its wisdom of what the average man is likely to do.

Now, folks, when we go out of here, let this lesson is not to be lost on us, before we get to bed for something else, let us make sure that we first turned and thanked Him for the blessings with which He has already blessed us.

Do you appreciate the strength that comes to us from outside the world of faith? That's the least thing that I have got to worry about. I not only believe that, but I believe that I am, and that you are, divine. I believe that we are all come down from a great kinship and that we are the children of heaven, and that the Master is our elder brother. And, believing that, I have got faith in good men and in the efforts of good men. And, as I have said before this morning, I don't expect fruit from any other kind.

STORY OF HER CAREER AMONG COMANCHES ONE OF STRANGEST CHAPTERS IN BORDER HISTORY

Carried Away After Fight in Which Relatives Fell—Rescued Many Years Later With Memory of Her Days Among White Peoples All But Blotted Out—Son, Born Here, Attains Distinction as Chieftain

By J. MARVIN NICHOLS
Dallas, Texas

More than 80 long years, 87 to be exact, have gone by since Cynthia Ann Parker was lost to civilization. In the days when old Fort Parker was destroyed the great empire state of Texas had a population of only 50,000. The settlers were harassed by over 5,000 hostile Redskins, chief of whom were Caddos and Comanches. Over 8,000 semi-civilized Indians roamed the prairies, the most friendly being the Choctaws and the Chickasaws. Most of the frontier history is rapidly passing away as the old pioneers, one by one, cross the Great Divide. Like the lost mines of the adventurous Spaniards, it is irrevocably lost for the want of some one to put to record the rich reminiscences of the men and women who laid the foundation of this great land of ours.

It was my good fortune to know and talk with one of the veterans who was with the rangers that captured Quannah Parker. From him I got this story of the White Squaw and her boy—certain of all the Comanche tribes.

The Parker Family

In the fall of 1833 the Parker family moved from Cole county, Illinois to Texas. The elder Parker was a Virginian by birth. He lived for a while in Georgia, but raised his family principally in old Bedford county, Tennessee. It was from this family, in 1814, that he moved to Illinois—then a country in the far west. To speak of Texas, even in the thirties—was but to mention the land toward the setting sun. It had a far-away sound. But the elder Parker and his some dreamed of the distant lands on the frontier. And what is more strange, they came to be massacred by the Comanches whose savage braves were destined to be saved by the blood of the very family they sought to wipe out in that terrible raid.

These pioneers built Fort Parker on the headwaters of the Navasota, then about sixty miles above the present site. It was a block house, built about a mile west of the river and about two and one-half miles northwest of the present site of Groesbeck, Texas. The fort was established in 1834. At the time the Indians made their deadly raid—May 19, 1835—the following were in the fort: The Parkers, Nixons, Kellogs, Frotts, Dwights and the Faulkenburgs; Mrs. Duty, Miss Bates, "old man" Lunn and Abram Kellogg, representing twenty-two adults and some fifteen or more children. They were all in the

THE APACHE'S UNTAMED WAR CHIEF

GERONIMO.
The Apaches have never yielded to the influences of civilization. By natural instinct they are outlaws. Geronimo was their last great war chief. In the closing years of the '80s he led the great Apache outbreak in southern Arizona. Geronimo and his warriors were captured and made federal prisoners, the chief dying some few years ago, on their reservation in Oklahoma. He passed out, disheartened and unyielding.

When "The Hill" Was an Indian Camp

QUANAH PARKER

If, as Mr. Nichols states in his article, Quannah Parker was born on the present site of Wichita Falls, his birthplace was in the vicinity of the hill at Eight and Burnett. Tradition has it that that locality was a favorite camping place of Indians in the early days here.

At that time the Wichita river flowed right at the foot of the hill, so that the camp had the double advantage of being on high ground and yet convenient to running water. Years later the river changed its course nearly a mile to the northward. That hill, the Indians believed, was a haven of refuge from cyclones, this being due to the fact that it is between two streams of water.

It is not generally accepted, however, that Quannah Parker was born here. Some authorities on the Indian history of this section say that he was born north of Red river. The chief himself was not sure, but thought that Wichita Falls was his birthplace.

The Comanches, Quannah's tribe, are descendant of the Shoshones and are predatory in disposition, warlike in temperament. They once roamed the vast plains between the Platte river and the Rio Grande. The Comanches have been among the most relentless and vengeful enemies of the white man. They are now numbered among the uncivilized tribes of Oklahoma.

which she had long since been weaned.

It was now 1835. Major Earle Van Dorn, with some United States dragoons, was preparing to leave Fort Belknap. The famous Van Dorn campaign against all the hostile tribes was now opening.

Sul Ross in the campaign of 1835, captured on the 19th, ransomed on the 18th, reached independence on the 19th and died on the 19th of the month.

Her baby, lost in the fall of Fort Parker, was ransomed and carried to Fort Gibson, where it was a baby from whom she was separated, and the child born six months afterward was cruelly murdered in her presence. There is a remarkable thing about Mrs. Plummer's history. She was born on the 19th, married on the 19th, captured on the 19th, ransomed on the 18th, reached independence on the 19th and died on the 19th of the month.

Her baby, lost in the fall of Fort Parker, was ransomed and carried to Fort Gibson, where it was a baby from whom she was separated, and the child born six months afterward was cruelly murdered in her presence. There is a remarkable thing about Mrs. Plummer's history. She was born on the 19th, married on the 19th, captured on the 19th, ransomed on the 18th, reached independence on the 19th and died on the 19th of the month.

Dorn trust the word of his scouts. At last he persuaded Van Dorn to make a forced march with his dragoons against the village.

The sun was just rising on the first day of October, Van Dorn, with his dragoons, and Sul Ross, with his 115 rangers, struck the Wichita village like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky. Buffalo Hump and his powerful band were almost wiped off the face of the earth in the first assault. Van Dorn's command fought like demons, for they saw "through the scenes of old Fort Parker. Many prisoners were taken, among them being "Lizzie." She was a white girl for whom no relative was ever found, nor a solitary soul could give the faintest recognition. Sul Ross adopted, reared and educated her with all the tenderness of a father. She reached a womanhood, married and died among the flowers and sweet perfumes of southern California.

The next great epoch in the frontier history of the southwest was the battle of Pease river, where a force of Comanches, led by a great warrior, Quannah Parker, lifted her form above the horizon of a civilization from which she long since had faded away.

When the leaves began to fall in 1860 a powerful band of Comanches made a terrible raid through Parker and adjacent lands, under the leadership of Chief Nocona, they spread ruin and disaster along their war trail. Sul Ross, now a captain of the Texas Rangers, with a force of forty rangers, twenty dragoons from the regular army, and seventy citizens of Palo Pinto county, took the Indians by complete surprise at their camp near Cedar Mountains, on the headwaters of Pease river.

Their packing horses preparatory to the desertion of camp when Sul Ross and his command swept down upon them from the north. In less than a half-hour he had killed or captured everything in sight except Nocona, who, with an Indian behind him, lay for the moment six miles away. On a swift pony, the chief's squaw, with her baby in her arms, rode beside him. Ross and his men pursued them like a whirlwind. Nocona soon came within range and killed the Indian riding behind Nocona. It proved to be a woman, hidden under a great blanket. In her fall she unhorsed her chief by a death grip. A deadly combat was drawn between Sul Ross and the chief. At last a shot from his revolver broke the Indian's right arm and he could no longer pull the bowstring. The Comanches deliberately to a tree, he leaned against it and began to sing his death song. Nocona, who was commanded to surrender. He answered by a vicious snarl with his lance. A rifle ball brought the death of an abrupt close. And Nocona's lance, shield and war bonnet were hung in triumph the trophies in the old state capital.

Cynthia Ann Parker Discovered

The squaw and the child captured by Lieutenant Killiter proved to be Nocona's wife. The Comanches at once discovered that she was a white woman bronzed by the winds and the suns of the plains, that her eyes were blue and that she was weeping. They told her not to cry, for they would not hurt her. For 25 years an unbroken search had been made for the missing girl of old Fort Parker. Somehow, it dawned upon them that they had found Cynthia Ann Parker in the fallen chieftain's wife. Under like conditions, it is said that the Indians neither laugh nor weep. He is stolidly indifferent to any emotion that stirs the white man's breast. But she said she was crying not for herself, but for her two boys, as she thought, slain in battle. She was carried to the settlements and readily identified as the long-lost Cynthia Ann Parker.

A quarter of a century in the life of the Comanches had made her as perfect an Indian as if she had been born among their campfires. She had forgotten every English word. Civilization was so unbearable to her that she sought every chance to escape. A close watch had to be kept over her for days and days. Slowly the recollection of childhood scenes stole in upon her savage sense. At last she became contented in her brother's home in Anderson county, Texas.

Her little "Prairie Flower"—the baby that rode with its mother alongside Nocona's fatal flight—died. In less than two years Cynthia Ann Parker was laid beneath the flowers that bloomed on the grave of her little barbarian. Mr. Ross, husband of Wichita Falls, a fellow citizen to those distant days, related this to me; "Subsequent to Cynthia Ann's capture by Sul Ross's

United States because of the large number of wolves driven southward toward civilization by a hard winter. The writers confirm reports of the increasing number of wolf packs, but declare there is no confirmation of attacks on trappers and hunters.

W. T. Thompson, dealer in furs at Ignace, replying to an inquiry about a story circulated in December of the killing of two Indians and a white trapper north of that place, writes:

"We do not know of this here, as it is supposed to have happened about seventy miles north, but personally I do not think there is anything in it. Wolves are very numerous around here, but I have lived in this country for 33 years and have yet to hear of anyone being killed by wolves."

Tom Caville, trapper at Gogama, in the Studbury district, writes: "I never like to cast gloom on a good story, but that one about the Indians being torn to pieces is going too far. All these scowled wild beasts are scared stiff at the sight of a man." Saville tells about meeting a pack of about twenty, face to face in a blinding snow storm, and adds:

"The leader, a big, grizzled, long-legged old chap, looked me over from a distance of about twenty feet; the rest of the pack ranged alongside of him, their tails straight out for just about as long as it takes to stiffen them with fear. Then they broke; they just flattened out on the ice and flew—twenty-one of them."

The chemical faculty of the University of Chicago is soon to broadcast chemical lectures by radio.

DALLAS, TEXAS

AMUSEMENT CALENDAR FOR WEEK AT LOCAL THEATERS

Strong Supporting Cast Is Furnished Dick Barthelmess

In pursuance of his policy inaugurated when he began his starring career in "Tolable David," Richard Barthelmess has surrounded himself with a notable cast in "The Bond Boy," which is coming to the Empress Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday heralded as one of the most vital stories ever screened.

Mary Alden, considered to be the screen's best "mother," famous for her portrayal of such a part in "The Old West," plays the mother for the young screen star.

Barthelmess himself portrays a poor boy who is bound out to the service of a mean farmer. He is arrested for the murder of this farmer and as a result of his efforts to shield the honor of a woman is condemned to hang for a crime he did not commit. He escapes his escape dramatically, blood-brothers pursue him, and following a powerful denouement the story comes to a happy end.

Mary Thurman, famous as a beauty star, portrays the frivolous wife of a villain, Virginia Mages, another of the Griffith graduates, is the ingenue. Lawrence D'Orsay, celebrated English actor and former stage star in "The Earl of Pawtucket" has an important part. Charles Hill Mailes, who has appeared in more successes than is the lot of the average actor, plays the heavy.

Others in the cast are: Jerry Blinn, old time minstrel man and film pioneer; Thomas Maguire, one of the screen's best character actors; Sparky, famed in films and stage and remembered for his work with the Talmadges; Robert Williamson, noted as a comedian; Letitia Beckner, famous for her character work in pictures with the Talmadges; Marguerite Clark and other stars; and H. D. Blakemore, celebrated as the colored porter in the famous "Traveling Salesman."

OLYMPIC STARTING WEDNESDAY

Constance Talmadge and Edward Burns in "East is West"

Constance Talmadge Is at Her Best As Ming Toy the Heroine of "East is West"

Constance Talmadge, the wild girl and alluring, the femur and the finger of the wicked Chinaman who would buy her from the "love boat" Constance Talmadge winking with a "wifty" "come-hither" in the lift of her eye brow!

Constance Talmadge in love, worshipping Billy Benson!

Constance Talmadge, rampant stamping her way to freedom over the feet of the vendor who insisted on trying to fit her with the tiny shot of a cast Chinese girl!

Constance Talmadge, defiant, braving death at the hand of Fifty-fifty Charlie Young for the man she loves!

Constance Talmadge eating Chinese food with the certainty of one to the chop-sticks born!

Constance Talmadge strutting the samisen with the nonchalance of the American flapper hitting the wheel!

Constance Talmadge chewing gum in the grand manner!

Constance Talmadge showing off with the manerisms of the ballet of Kelly's dance hall across the street!

All these, and many others, go to make up Constance Talmadge as Ming Toy, the heroine of "East is West," the stage success, now a First National attraction, in which she will be seen on Wednesday to Saturday at the Olympic theatre.

Ming Toy is perhaps the most bewitching character presented to the American public in the last decade. It is a role like a many-sided diamond with Constance Talmadge adding her own luster to every facet.

"It has always been my ambition to play the part of Ming Toy," says

Miss Talmadge, "not so much because this character is the central figure of a play which ran for two seasons on Broadway but because I consider Ming Toy the most marvellous of heroines. When Mr. Schenck told me that he had arranged for me to play Ming Toy I was so startled at my fondest dream coming true and so happy that I could have cried for joy. Realizing the wider scope afforded by the motion picture I have tried to make the screen Ming Toy even a greater figure than was the stage Ming Toy. This was my one aim all through the production and I enjoyed every minute of the work."

Miss Talmadge is quite justified in speaking of "work" for, behind the sensational success which she is achieving in "East is West," universally accepted as her finest effort, there lie weeks and weeks of relentless toil and preparation.

As Ming Toy, Miss Talmadge is seen in the varied phases of the life of a Chinese girl oppressed by the weight of a tradition, which makes woman the slave of man's whim.

It was necessary for Miss Talmadge to acquire the manerisms of the Orient as well as to understand the psychology of the Chinese in order to give her interpretation of the role the depth called for by the big emotional scenes as well as the sparkle which is her chiefest charm in the many comedy scenes.

As Ming Toy, Miss Talmadge fairly runs the gamut of emotions from grave to gay, happily with the accent on the gay.

"East is West" is rated as a remarkable picture not only because of the vivid work of Miss Talmadge but also because it has the benefit of a pretentious production including elaborate exterior scenes of action in China, as well as artistic scenes in America ranging from Kelly's dance hall to the home of the exclusive Benson.

"East is West" was staged under the direction of Sidney Franklin, the man who directed Norma Talmadge in "Smilin' Through." The exceptional cast seen in support of Miss Talmadge includes Warren Glend, Edward Burns, Nigel Barrie, Winter Hall, E. A. Warren, Frank Lanning, Nick De Ruiz, Lillian Lawrence and Jim Wang.

prominent part in the production, as has Joseph J. Dowling, whom George Loane Tucker chose to play the little role in "The Misdemeanor" and whose portrayal of Havisham, the solicitor, in Mary Pickford's "Little Lord Fauntleroy" excited much favorable comment.

Other prominent screen folk who will be seen are Boris Karloff, Charles A. Smiley, Charles Forman, Barbara Tennant, Loyola O'Connor and Olga Olin.

"The Infidel" Is Attraction at the Olympic Monday

With a truly exceptional cast, "The Infidel," a stirring photodrama of romance and adventures in the South Seas, is Katherine MacDonald's newest feature for First National. It comes to the Olympic theatre Monday and Tuesday. The story was written by Charles A. Logue, prominent author who has already more than 200 screen successes to his credit. The production was directed by James Young, one of the top-notchers of the megaphone wielding profession.

Miss MacDonald's supporting cast is headed by Robert Ellis, who for the past three years has been prominent in directional circles and who was lured back to the grease paint by the forestal part offered for a virile leading man in "The Infidel." Ellis, it will be remembered, recently figured in the newspapers when his secret marriage to May Allison, the screen star, came to light. Before becoming a director, Ellis was one of the matinee idols of the screen.

Two distinguished character actors have important parts in "The Infidel." Melbourne McDowell, who will be remembered by flashlight followers as the one-time husband of the famous Fanny Davenport, has a

Fairbanks' New Picture "Robin Hood" Cost More Than One Million Dollars

Dressing-rooms, dressing-rooms—everywhere one looked on the Pickford-Fairbanks lot one saw dressing-rooms in various stages of disrepair. Carpenters equipped with step-ladders and claw-hammers and pockets full of nails were dashing madly about, putting up tents, rebuilding sheds and converting outbuildings into quarters to house livestock, powder-puffs and eyebrow pencils for the horde of armored knights, foot soldiers, court ladies and peasants who participated in the new Douglas Fairbanks celluloid spectacle, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," a United Artists release, the feature picture for this week at the Strand.

Temporary quarters were established for 1,518 players, which included only the extras and those having small parts in the production. The thirty tents used in the Fairbanks camp in Arizona at the time he was making the "Molly-coddle" were put up, along with thirteen others, rented from local supply houses. All told, more than half an acre of canvas was required to house the extras, not counting the dressing quarters built on the huge stage which accommodated 100 feminine players.

With all this canvas up, the lot took on the appearance of one of the mobilization camps during the war. No more impressive sight could be seen than the towering castle walls, the gayly colored pavilions of the knights, the great grasslands on the tournament field, with the white and khaki tents in the offing.

Take It From Me At Palace Theatre Saturday, March 3

"Take It From Me" the popular musical comedy which has scored the biggest success of any musical comedy in many a moon will come to the Palace theatre Saturday, March 3.

"Take It From Me" ran for over a year at the 4th Street theatre, New York, over half a year at the Studebaker theatre and five months at the Lyric theatre, Philadelphia and the Shubert theatre, Boston. Joe M. Gaites under whose guiding hand "Take It From Me" was produced, is determined it will be at its best while on tour. The only and original cast, chorus and production on tour this season will visit this city.

You Don't Get Sufficient Vitamines

Nature planned that we should get sufficient vitamines from our daily food to maintain health. But that's just the trouble. We have departed from nature. Modern methods of cooking and refining processes destroy most of the essential vitamines. As a result many of us suffer from a certain degree of vitamine starvation. Some show the effects more than others. Complete lack of vitamines in the body means certain death.

Competent authorities have proven this to be true. Dr. F. Gowland Hopkins, Professor of Biological Chemistry in the University of Cambridge, England, says, "The absence of the essential vitamines from the food means disease."

Yeast from Bass' Ale Brewery, England

Since experiment has shown that common yeast cakes intended for baking purposes often lack the necessary vitamine content to build strength and health quickly and permanently, scientific authorities recommend Bass' Yeast. Dr. T. B. Osborne, of the Connecticut State Experimental Station, says, "Dried Brewer's Yeast is richer in water soluble vitamines than any other natural product yet tested."

To make a product presenting the utmost of Vitamine content a search was conducted through a dozen different countries. Finally in England in that centuries-old brewery

How to Overcome Vitamine Starvation

Thousands of sick, pale, run-down people who don't know what their trouble is are suffering from Vitamine starvation. You must have plenty of Vitamines to bring you back to normal weight. Women particularly need more vitamines, to put natural color in their cheeks and to put on firm, solid flesh where it is most needed.

The Third Alarm Comes to Empress On Next Thursday

At last a photodrama, constructed on gigantic lines, that sings the long-delayed praises of the firemen of this country. It has been a long time coming, to be sure, but now that it is here in lavish reality, firemen and their hundreds of thousands of friends are rejoicing because it shows in vivid and logical sequences the degree of service the fireman gives to his employe—the well known public.

The production is appropriately titled "The Third Alarm" and is scheduled for its exhibition at the Empress Thursday for the remainder of the week. The fireman is a vital factor in the welfare of any community is brought out with amazing dramatic power in "The Third Alarm." It shows not only how diligently he serves but it also depicts in thrilling scenes the dangers of his failure under the weight of increasing years, of his dismissal from the department and of his comeback in a conflagration so staggeringly big in its scope as to put other screen fires to shame.

"The Third Alarm" unfolds a story that is right down to the level of the average American citizen and the members of his family. Its producer, Mr. Emory Johnson, has told the whole truth about the firemen just as he told the truth about the policeman in his epic photoplay "In the Name of the Law." Believing that the nation owed a just debt not only to the fire fighters of the big cities but to those of the smaller communities as well, Mr. Johnson has created "The Third Alarm" as a means of paying this debt of gratitude to the men who risk their lives day in and day out that our property may be safe-guarded.

Forty thousand separate and distinct species of locusts, the historic pests which annually cost the world about $100,000,000, have been identified and collected by American scientists.

AMUSEMENT CALENDAR FOR WEEK AT LOCAL THEATERS

"Cosi Fan Tutte" At Palace Theatre Thursday, Feb. 15

The coming of Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte" at the Palace theatre on Thursday, February 15, affords the loving and amusement-seeking audience a chance to enjoy the pinnacle of musical endeavor, intelligently rendered.

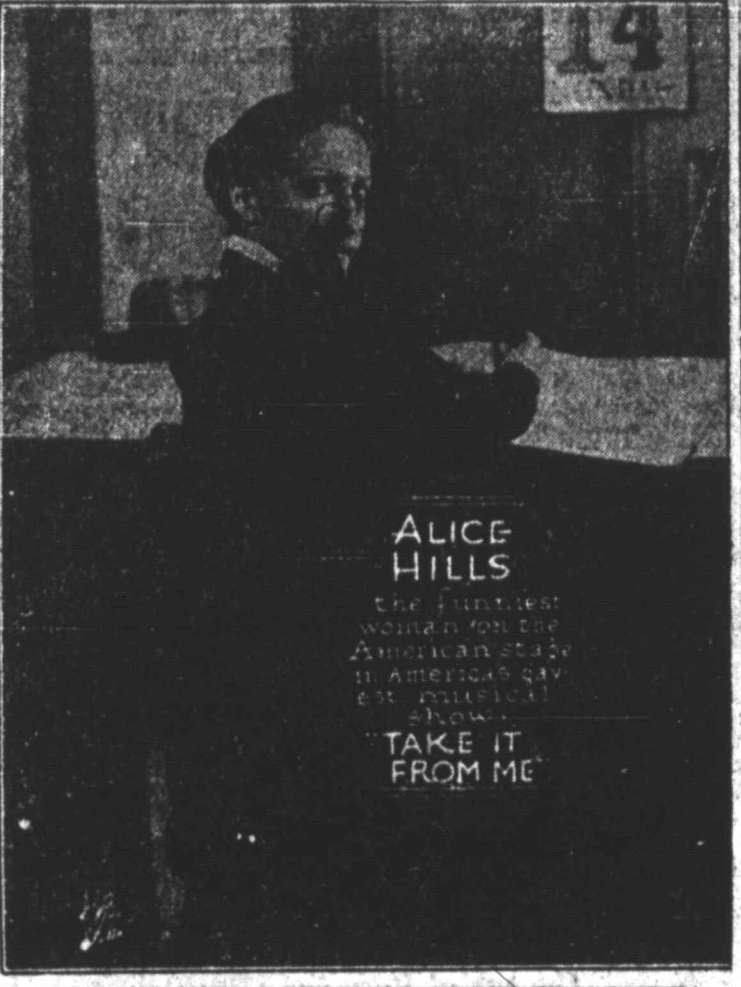

The opera "Cosi Fan Tutte" to be presented here was written at the request of Emperor Joseph II of Austria and was first produced in Vienna in 1790. It is said to be founded on actual occurrences. The libretto is by the famous Italian playwright Lorenzo Da Ponte and the music was composed by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart to his Italian librettist. Da Ponte was also the author of Mozart's operas "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Don Giovanni." The plot of the opera is simplicity itself, but it works out in a most complex and tremendously comical fashion. The play written by the librettist Da Ponte has been second to none in the world. It is the original Italian and put the exquisite English. The English libretto was written by Henry Edward Krabbie, the eminent critic of the New York Tribune. It is full of sharp and refreshing wit, and especially funny situations and slightly action between romantic passion and staid philosophy, all resting upon heavenly Mozartian melodies.

The scenes are laid in the palace gardens of the female leads, Leonora and Dorabella, overlooking the bay of Naples, with the exception of the prologue which represents an Italian inn.

The music to "Cosi Fan Tutte" is not in movement and so difficult of execution that only singers of the highest caliber can sing it at all. Every singer in the opera is a pianist of skill. Miss Williams, a celebrated prima donna, was originally a pianist before she succeeded forth as a brilliant vocalist of beautiful voice and charming artistry. Singing the role of Leonora in the opera she is most convincing. Her voice is of supple quality and has a beautiful warm sweetness. Miss Williams possesses a beautiful combination of youth, good looks and mental intelligence. Among other members of the cast are Phyllis Falco as Dorabella, Lillian Palmer as DesPina, Judson House as Ferruccio, Leo de Hierapolis as Guglielmo, and Pierre Remington as Don Alfonso. Mrs. Stuart Rose, noted composer, is musical director of the company.

Duilio Gati-Casazza, manager of the Metropolitan Opera company, produced "Cosi Fan Tutte" among the Metropolitan repertory this season and the presentation offered recently, proved one of the season's triumphs. The company brings with it original creations such as ladies' gowns by Thibaud, scenery of Marie Perrieres by Dumpey & Lewis, and costumes by Gladie, all renowned artists of New York.

Community Players Present 'Clarence' Monday Evening

"Clarence" an American drama in three acts which will be presented by the Community Players on Monday and Tuesday, February 12 and 13 at the Wichita theatre will be the club's second production of the season. The drama was adapted from the book written by celebrated American author, Booth Tarkington.

Imagine a Tarkington conception of the character Clarence. A young college professor, one who teaches and studies bugs, being drafted into the army, given the rank of music driver and who honestly succeeds in driving the mules without leaving the use of profanity, discharged from the service he accepts a job as handy man, plumber, piano tuner and gardener for a Mr. Wheeler. The Wheeler family is quarrelsome, Mrs. Wheeler being a jealous wife, seeks consolation from all quarters, and Professor Clarence lives through it all with shallow interest. He becomes in love with a governess. Later they find that he is Clarence Smith, the professor. Cora Wheeler looks him up in "Who's Who" and finds that he has more degrees than letters in his name.

There is a strain of comedy throughout the story, making it a striking performance. It promises to give to the local theatre goers

Fire Chief McClure Declares "Third Alarm" Best Picture He Has Ever Seen on Screen

Fire Chief J. L. McClure after reviewing "The Third Alarm," declares without equivocation that it is the greatest motion picture he has ever seen.

"The Third Alarm," which is scheduled for exhibition on the Empire Thursday for the remainder of the week was created by Emory Johnson at the special behest of more than five hundred of the best known fire chiefs in the United States. Among those interested in such a production was Fire Chief McClure of this city, who now acknowledges himself highly pleased and gratified by the results shown on the screen.

The production is not of a propagandic nature. It is first of all, entertainment. But throughout its amazing drama, delicious romance and fine humor, an action which shows the hazards of the fire-fighters of this country undergo uncomplainingly, the perils they confront without batting an eye, the fire-fighters of their daily duties. When it was revealed for the first time to Chief McClure his interest was great, indeed.

Chief McClure, after reviewing the production, said: "It tops anything I've ever seen before. It pays a stunning tribute to the courage of the firemen but beyond even that it is a great, big wholesome dramatic entertainment. I enjoyed every foot of it.

"Mr. Johnson certainly has infused the picture with human elements. It got right under my skin. As a fireman I, of course, appreciated the fire scenes. The were great. Mr. Johnson must have gone to many a fire when he was a kid or also studied fire-fighting when he got older for I looked very carefully and couldn't find a solitary flaw in the technical handling of the subject.

"My what thrills I got! When the safe plunged through the blazing building and passed the boy and the girl in the very bowels of the inferno, I felt like leaping out of my seat and climbing into my goggles and starting for the scene of the fire.

"The tribute which Mr. Johnson has paid the firemen, the men of the ranks who face danger unflinchingly whenever the gong rings its summons, is very beautiful and inspiring. To be sure, it made me swell with pride. There is all too little of this in our lives. It is so gratifying, so a splendid picture such as Mr. Johnson has created gets us right in the heart.

"I think every man, woman and child in this community will be better for having seen 'The Third Alarm.'" movement reach its aspiration before the close of the season.

General interest has been aroused by the players, and the fact that some of the best obtainable local talent is included in the cast has caused much interest.

The second play of the season, "Clarence" will be given at the Wichita theatre Monday and Tuesday nights, February 12 and 13.

Valentino Keeps Before Public By Going On Stage

By JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Rudolph Valentino will soon appear in vaudeville. With his wife, Winifred Madson, he will dance the tango which featured "The Four Horsemen" film and which was the greatest factor in his rapid rise as a screen idol.

Stage work is now possible for Valentino through a modification of the court order which restricted him from working for anyone other than the Famous Players-Lasky concern after he tried to break his contract with them.

Valentino's salary for this work in the "two-a-day" will be $5000 a week, according to Broadway reports. His engagement means more than money to him. It means that he will be kept before the public. Had Valentino remained idle for two years, the length of time his contract with Paramount still has to run, public interest in him would have lagged.

Stage appearances would hurt rather than help many idols of the screen. Valentino's case is different. It was his ability as a dancer that earned him a place in the movies. And the motion picture camera does not yet seem to be capable of recording the rhythm of dance steps.

I have it on good authority that another producing firm dickered with Famous Players to take over Valentino's contract and divide the profits with Paramount. The offer had not been favorably considered had not Valentino made several public statements berating his employers.

Whether a star can be off the screen several years and come back with no great diminution of popularity will be proven when "The Covered Wagon" is released. J. Warren Kerrigan, once one of the great idols of the movie fans, will be the hero of the story. Lois Wilson is leading lady in that film. Several persons connected with that producing unit tell me that Kerrigan and Miss Wilson are now engaged. Their romance on the screen should seem to be the real thing.

Forty violins and eight harps played "Ave Maria" when the Metropolitan opened in Los Angeles. The admission was $5. Yes, the Metropolitan is a picture show house, one of those things they used to call a nickelodeon.

The film censor of Greeley, Col., after the elimination in "Topics of the Day" of editorial comment appealed for a referendum on censorship. That censor could have done nothing nobler for his cause against censorship.

Victor Seastrom, Swedish actor.

had one of Europe's foremost directors, has signed a contract with Goldwyn and is on his way to California to produce pictures for that company. It is understood that Seastrom is to have free rein in subject and treatment of pictures. This augurs well for the American screen. His "The Stroke of Midnight" is about as artistic a film as has ever been shown in America.

Mary Pickford has engaged Sven Gade of Copenhagen as art director for her picture of "Faust," to be directed by Ernest Lubitsch of Berlin. Gade is one of the foremost production geniuses of the world. He invented the six-stage-in-one, by means of which "Johnnes Kremler" is presented in 43 scenes in two hours and a half.

Seastrom, Sweda, Lubitsch, German and Gade, Dana, engaged in making American pictures. The American screen, in truth, has skimmed the cream of the world's artists.

Earle Williams, Allee Calhoun, Cullen Landis and Wanda Hawley will appear in "Masters of Men."

Margaret Clayton is Harry Carey's leading woman in "The Man From The Desert."

Miss Jule Jenny of Syracuse, is New York's first deputy attorney general.

TO MY FRIENDS AND PATRONS—
Texas and this city in general know amusement values! No better demonstration of this fact can be found than the extraordinary success attending the tour of Joe M. Gaites' "Up In The Clouds" throughout the state. The star simple, naive in Texas history has a comical attraction enjoyed such financial prosperity, and from commercial I hear on every hand never before have theater-goers been so pleased.

Both the financial and artistic success of "Up In The Clouds" has enabled managers in Texas, including myself, to prevail on Mr. Gaites to send the wife of his string, the predominant achievement of his career, "TAKE IT FROM ME" "Up In The Clouds" big sister, to the city. This is indeed, not only the red letter event of the entire show season, but a milestone in local theatrical history.

I have not yet arranged the scale of prices with Mr. Gaites, and although "TAKE IT FROM ME" is a more expensive attraction to operate than "Up In The Clouds," I am endeavoring to keep the tariff within the moderate bounds maintained for that attraction. Definite announcement of this feature will be made shortly.

SULLIVAN DISCUSSES FORD AS PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITY

STRONG SENTIMENT IN RURAL DISTRICTS ESPECIALLY IN THE WEST AND MIDDLEWEST STATES

By MARK SULLIVAN

Within the field of democratic presidential possibilities probably the most conspicuous present fact is the vitality of the sentiment for Henry Ford, especially in the farming states of the west and middle west, as well as in some southern states. The following passage is taken from a private letter written by a politician in one of the western states. About the capacity of the writer of this letter to know the sentiment of the people of his state there can be no doubt. He says:

"I believe that Henry Ford would undoubtedly carry the state, and it would not matter very much upon which ticket his name appeared. The surprising thing in connection with Ford's strength is not the confidence which the farmers and laboring men have in him, but the fact that a large group of business men, without regard to party affiliation, openly state they would like an opportunity to support Ford for president of the United States. If there is no change in this state's method of selecting delegates between this time and the selection of our delegates to the next national convention, I believe that Henry Ford will get the vote of our delegation without question, although I realize that organization men within the party would never be favorable to Ford's candidacy."

BULLAVAN

But if Ford is not actually a republican possibility this does not mean that he will stand wholly aside from the republican primaries. The judgment of the politicians is that Ford will enter or be entered in the republican primaries and will build up as much following as he can swing among the republicans. The theory is that such a following, with their loyalty crystallized by diversity and opposition, would follow Ford into any other course he might later take and would vote for him in the state election. The democrats and republicans believe that Ford would have some though not many delegates in the republican convention, and that later, in the democratic convention, he will be one of the leading figures. Several of the politicians believe that if Ford should get the democratic nomination he would turn out to be the strongest candidate the democrats could present, and that he would get a considerable body of republican votes in certain pivotal states and might readily be elected.

The same politicians who believe this believe also, however, that the greater probability is that Ford will not quite reach the nomination in the democratic organization, national and local, with comparatively few exceptions, will be opposed to him strongly and will contest the Ford movement with every resource at their command. And because in the democratic convention it takes two-thirds of the whole body of delegates to nominate, it follows that a resourceful and able bodied group of leaders who are determined in opposition to any one man can usually achieve the power of veto. The democratic leaders generally want none of Ford. They think they can win the nomination with a reasonably strong candidate, and they propose to have some regular party man. Even if they were convinced—as some of them are—Ford would get more votes in the general election than any other democratic candidate, even if they were convinced that Ford would be than half the delegates will be chosen by the direct primary system. (At present a little under half are chosen by the direct primary system.) It is quite clear that Ford's chances to get the democratic nomination are in more or less direct proportion to the extent to which delegates will be chosen by the direct primary system. And yet this statement is subject to some qualification. It does not necessarily follow that because a state has the direct primary system the party organization is thereby rendered wholly impotent. The direct primary always has the tendency to take power away from the party leaders. But the party leaders in many cases are adaptable and resourceful and manage to retain much of their power even with the direct primary in effect.

Not all that is being done about the direct primary is in the direction of extending it. There is an equally definite though less aggressive movement to restrict it and get rid of it, even in states where it now exists. The conservative elements of both parties are opposed to it. Some members of President Harding's cabinet are against the direct primary because they believe it is responsible for the paralysis of party government and the disappearance of party discipline and the leadership that rests on party discipline. It is well known that these republican senators and republican representatives who are least disposed to accept leadership from President Harding as the head of the party, who are the most completely disposed to go their own way regardless of party leadership or party platforms, are the ones who come from direct primary states. When a senator or a representative has been chosen by a party convention and is dependent on a future party convention for another term it is usually possible for the party organization to withhold re-nomination as the punishment for failure to follow the party program. But a senator or a representative gets his franchise, not from the party organization, but directly from the voters in his district, and he can and does go his own way and flouts any hint of a threat of discipline because of his failure to stand by the party program.

County commissioners Monday will receive bids from banks for interest to be paid on county money for the ensuing year. The successful bidder, who will be designated the county depository will be required to put up a bond of $25,000. The state comptroller in a letter to County Judge E. D. Martin suggested that the bond of the depository be fixed at this amount. The county during the past year has been drawing nearly eight per cent on the money kept deposited in the bank. The school fund depository will be a separate bid from that of the county money. And as additional county commissioners will set the amount of bond required for this fund. The state comptroller left this to the discretion of the county.

IMPROVEMENT IN CHASSIS FOLLOWS MOTOR PERFECTION

The phenomenal new power plant of the Chandler, the Pike, motor, has attracted so much attention since first announced at the opening of the 1925 motor show season, that advances in engineering and chassis have received comparatively little notice.

The Chandler chassis is especially designed as a fit companion for the new engine. The increased power of the Pike motor required a chassis of correspondingly greater strength. In meeting these requirements, Chandler engineers set additional standards to be attained. They determined to go to the lengths to meet the present-day demand for ease of handling, ready maintenance, freedom from noise, smoothness, easy riding, comfort for driver and passengers, safety and economy.

Noteworthy advances have been made for riding comfort. Special attention has been paid to spring design and to the suspension. For each of the eight different models, there are special springs, to compensate for the varying weight of the bodies and of their passenger capacity. The upper control arm springs are lower than formerly. This, in combination with a re-designed front axle, also, lower, higher, chassis, has been taken not to reduce the road clearance. The lower center of gravity, together with the chassis, has been taken not to reduce the road-buzzing ability of the car.

The comfort of the driver has received much consideration. The new front axle permits of a much shorter turning radius, a factor of importance in city driving, and a great time saver in parking and turning. The effort required for steering has been reduced greatly by the use of tapered roller bearings in the king pins of the front axle. Another saving in muscular effort has been made by providing a clutch pedal that operates through the pressure formerly required.

A great improvement in the provision to eliminate the overheating of the motor is the exhaust line being carried far below the floor of the car.

PLANNING TO MAKE MOTORING EASIER FOR AUTO DRIVER

Automotive engineers and inventors are planning to make things easier for the auto driver.

Their combined efforts of late have brought such results as to take the fire out of the engine. "Fire car" for any automobile. Only a few years ago, the driver used to curse the man who picked that name, while he tried to replace a punctured tire or climb a hill without developing a knock.

Now, engineers have gone so far ahead in perfection of the engine—although there is much more to be done here—that they are directing their inventive faculties toward improving details.

Controls, improved.

The dash instruments are being improved, simplified and collected into one group. In one case, all instruments are put over the center of the steering wheel, so that the driver will watch them more closely.

A western inventor has designed an apparatus by which a tire may be removed or attached by the mere turning of a single nut. That, if it proves efficient, ought to take the last worry off the mind of the driver, as regards tires. For the tire makers have improved that part by such a degree, that there is little trouble with it.

Fabrication of the chassis is simpler. On some cars, all the driver has to do is push a hand pump on the dash and the functions of moving parts on the car are oiled. The pressure system of oiling has superseded the old hand methods.

Everything new is a step toward simplicity and ease for the driver. Practically all parts have been made easily accessible. Brackets are being taken out of the bodies. The electric wiring is simpler and the whole ignition system, on most cars, is more easily understood by the lay driver.

Accessories are being made to add to the comfort of the rider and ease in driving. Head lights are being designed which will take the glare out of the eyes of oncoming auto drivers and at the same time illuminate the road more fully than heretofore. Professor R. C. Gowdy of the University of Cincinnati has designed a headlight that he says will do all this. And besides, ordinary window glass takes place of the powerful lenses in other lights. THE MOTORISTS' PROBLEMS

Motor Department: I have a '23 Ford Sedan, equipped with Advance-Kearl ignition system, motor points, etc. I had my transmission retuned at a Ford service station, and while I did not suspect it, some adjustment was made to the carburetor, also which since I have had nothing to do with it, however my battery was a little low, so I had it charged. It took about a week, as it had to be recharged, and I had to crank the car for some time, before I could get it to start. Finally, I took it to the Ford station and had the wiring for several days and had the battery recharged, but it will not start.

Motor Department: At times my engine continues to run after the switch is off. It does not seem too trouble, but I would be pleased to know why this should happen.

When an engine gets overheated it will do this. The cause of overheating is due to a defective cooling system or carbonization of the cylinders. A heavy carbon deposit on the walls of the combustion chamber will cause preignition and the trouble you mention.

LIQUID BATTERY ELIMINATES NOISE IN RADIO OUTFITS

Radio engineers have traced these "noises" to the polarization which is constantly taking place in the commonly used dry cell "B" battery. It is said that a liquid battery does not produce these characteristic sounds because this sort of internal action does not take place.

The Willard Storage Battery company was one of the first battery manufacturers to recognize the need for a good wet cell "B" battery. They have recently produced a rechargeable battery, each cell of which is enclosed in an individual glass jar. Extra heavy plates are insulated by this company's "best" rubber insulation, and the entire group is connected in series with burned on lead connectors. Cable clamp terminals are attached to the terminals with set screws, making a very rigid contact with the plate circuit.

SALES RECORDS BROKEN AT AUTO SHOW, NEW YORK

J. N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company, expressed himself as being highly elated over the success of the Willys-Overland new models at the annual New York automobile show. An equally enthusiastic reception was accorded at the Chicago show.

"The New York show was one huge testimonial of approval for us," said Mr. Willys.

"Never before has there been a display of new models with such a striking note of commendation from the public."

"At the New York branch, it has been customary in former years to close the show room doors at 11:30 o'clock each evening while the show is in progress, but this year the closing idea was knocked in the head."

"Every night we were forced to keep open until one o'clock and then literally ask the people to go."

"Our coupe-sedan made a very favorable impression and the window display we made of it was a stellar attraction."

"One evening at 11 o'clock we counted 50 people standing on the sidewalk looking at this car, which we had on view in one of the windows."

MR. AUTOMOBILE OWNER

Do you know that CARBON is responsible directly and indirectly for about 80% of your garage bill?

Carbon forms in your combustion chamber because the chamber is not lubricated. Carbon crystallizes on your pistons, cylinder walls, valves, valve seats and your do not get the full efficiency of your engine or the fuel, it requires more fuel to overcome the friction. You lose compression which means less power. You lose power which means less mileage. All of this means an extra strain on your engine, extra garage bills, an enormous and unnecessary waste.

If you could either eliminate the carbon now in your motor, stop any further accumulation or crystallization, put "top" in your motor, increase an extra mile per gallon, you can't keep your valves in perfect seal. It means money in your pocket.

Drive your car to one service station and we will install a CRAVEROIL, furnish the oil and let you try it for 100 days. At the end of that time you are convinced it is worth the money, pay us, if you are not satisfied we will take it off. No cost, no payment or deposit, no obligation. Let us know when you see the results. The oil does the rest. Could a proposition be more fair? What greater gift of our sincerity could we offer?

POTATOES PEELLED BY ELECTRICITY

Diners in cafes have probably wondered how many hands are required in peeling and preparing the vegetables eaten by the hundreds of people served in each large establishment. It would surprise many of these to walk through those kitchens which are modernized by complete electric equipment and to see the deaf, electric peeler which performs this tedious task like magic.

That a lot of good folks who use every care in every-day walks of life are to be carried away with enthusiasm of Memorials rather than take the time necessary to investigate before buying. There is no effect without a cause. That can be set down as a fact. There is a reason for things not going right. Look up the reasons and apply the remedy accordingly.

Exercise care in selection.—In introducing new blood into rabbitry, the greatest care must be exercised, or one may spoil the good work he has been doing.

Locating disease.—There is a poisonous fungus growth in the blood in most of the contagious diseases. As rabbits never perspire, they are unable to throw off this poison in this way.

Clean hutches often.—The gases that arise from filthy and accumulated droppings contaminate the air of the rabbit house and hutches. The rabbits are exposed to these gases while in their hutches, poisoning the system and causing on disease.

Don't forget to see that they have plenty of clean water. Don't wash feet; give plenty but not more than they will eat up in a meal.

Don't expect to learn everything about the rabbit business in a few weeks. Don't quit because you think you cannot understand the work; what others have done, you can do also.

Don't use discouraged when rabbits are contrary about breeding; persevere. Don't expect to make a fortune from the rabbits—it is no get-rich-quick scheme.

Don't keep rabbits unless you like animals. There are many disagreeable things to be done for them. Don't get discouraged; remember the old saying, "Rome was not built in a day."

Don't see how many young you can breed, see how good you can get them. Don't breed your does more than four times a year. To get winners, three times is still better.

Don't breed brother and sister. If you must inbreed, do it with a system, and line breeding is the only safe way. But do not start it if you have no intention of going all the way.

Don't use your stud buck more than three times a week. Don't let him serve the doe more than once. After he has served her once, take him out and in about four days try her again. If she refuses, take him out and in about four days try her again.

Don't put stock in outdoor hutches in winter which have been purchased by a breeder who has indoor hutches. If you wish to accustom your stock to outdoor hutches move them out in the spring.

Don't envy your neighbor because he has better stock. Get busy and you will soon enjoy the exhibiting which makes the exhibiting of rabbits one of the greatest of all hobbies.

Don't sell a rabbit because it is a poor breeder or is subject to colds. The best thing to do is put on the meat block.

Don't get the idea that when your rabbit sneezes "it has a cold," and when your neighbor's rabbit sneezes "it has snuffles."

Don't pay any attention to such headings as this: One doe will produce 200 to 400 pounds of meat in a year. Just such headings as

CARPENTER WRITES OF CONDITIONS IN HOLLAND AFTER WAR

PAINTS GRAPHIC PICTURES OF LAND AND PEOPLE IN A STATE OF NORMALCY AFTER CONFLICT

Sunken Gardens Which Ship Flowers by Airplane—Cities on Treetsops and Their New Buildings—The Judas-Eye—Girls Who Wear Helmets of Gold and Shoes of Wood—How the Thrifty Dutch are Laying Up Money—The Good Wilhelmina and a Crown Princess Who Will Some Day Rule Holland.

CARPENTER'S WORLD TRAVELS.

Copyrighted, 1922, by Frank G. Carpenter.

UTRECHT, HOLLAND.—This is a film of Holland after "grim visaged war" hath smoothed its wrinkled front, and the people have put on the cloak of normalcy. For the past week or so, I have been flying over the brick roads that grid from this beautiful kingdom, my car racing side by side with the multitudinous bicycles that here take the place of the American flivver; now high above the fields riding upon the embankments that uphold the larger canals filled with barges; and now down inside the dykes that wall the great polders, the former lakes and swamps that these thrifty Dutch have turned into gardens as fertile as Eden.

I have ridden through the gorgeous fields of Haarlem where "the earth laughs in flowers" more splendid than Solomon in his glory, and from where each year more than fifty million pounds of tulips, daffodils and other bulbs go to England and the United States. Since the war, the Dutch have been competing with the greenhouses of Brussels, Paris and London, and they now send out flowers by airplane, reaching those cities each morning in time for sale side by side with the blossoms clipped from the gardens hard by.

Amsterdam, Rotterdam, The Hague.—I have visited the financial center of Amsterdam, a huge spider web of canals walled with one hundred thousand houses built upon piles which in settling have leaned this way and that, so that the quaint old town seems to have gone on a crazy drunk in its richness.

I have explored the wide waterways of Rotterdam, the gateway to the Rhine, the Maas and the Scheldt, where the huge liners come to anchor in the midst of the city and something like six million tons of shipping go in and out every year. I have crossed its many bridges a thousand times busier than was the Rialto of Venice in the days of Antonio and Shylock, and have watched the crowd going over them including fourteen thousand bicycles and sixty thousand pedestrians each day. I have seen its great harbor, and its ship-building works, which are the trade of the air as on the Maas she competes for that of the water.

I have spent also a week in The Hague, the most beautiful real capital in Europe, where the Dutch government has its headquarters, and where the Queen's palace points its ermine finger toward Heaven, crying out as did Jeremiah, the Prophet, "Peace, Peace," when there is no peace in all the world.

Holland, the Peaceful.—And still I have visited no other land which just now corresponds so well to the words of David, the Psalmist:

"Her ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace." We can see this in a train ride across country from The Hague to Utrecht, the biggest Dutch town of the east. The meadows, each fenced by its waterside, are spotted with fat black and white Holstein cattle, which make one think of the piebald sheep and goats that Jacob got for his wages from Laban the son of Bethuel, after serving fourteen long years for Leah and Rachel. It is harvest time, and the cocks and grain shocks stand out like little armies, drawn up to watch our train pass. Across the green plain we see the long lines of trees marking the roads. They fence in the landscape as though there were nothing beyond. Here and there is a windmill, a huge tower with long sail-like arms, tossing about through the sky.

The scenes change every moment. Now we pass meadows, now wheat, now potatoes or turnips. The fields are in rectangular blocks, cut out by little canals, which now and then join the larger canals, or are pumped into them by little windmills only eight or ten feet in height. The low mills raise the water only a few feet from one canal to another; the other ones are for heavy pumping and often for grinding corn, wheat or some other grain.

Here is a canal flowing upon an embankment, high above the rest of the country. Our train runs on such an embankment. The roofs of the houses in the fields at the sides of the track or below the level of the canal often do not reach to our level. If these canal embankments should break, the whole land would be flooded.

A Land of Sunken Gardens.—The wide canals which run across Holland, with their sloping green walls that drop down into these vast sunken gardens, are wonderfully beautiful. Long streams of silver flowing upon raised beds of emeralds, they enclose a net work of smaller canals, each with a necklace of diamonds surrounding its green or golden jewel of agricultural or pastoral richness. They form scenes that can be found nowhere else, except in the well watered lowlands of China, or here and there in parts of Japan and Java.

The chief difference is in the livestock. The cattle are everywhere, but there are also fat horses feeding on the rich green, and fleets of white sheep grazing in the meadows. There are huge white cows, each with ten or more tiny, running, rosy-skinned pigs running about through the grass, and now and then great flocks of ducks, and flocks of geese that raise their heads and hiss as we pass. Along the Zuider-Zee there are villages which make a specialty of ducks and geese, and the ducks fatty pepper the canals of that region.

Some of the most interesting of the sunken gardens are in and about Haarlem. Here, in the season, are great beds of hyacinths and tulips in blossom. There are also patches of vegetables surrounded by hedges, and orchards loaded with fruit. In a motor ride yesterday I went by field after field of bright yellow carrots just pulled, their green tops pointing one way and the yellow tubers another. There were patches of potatoes just dug and of great turnips that looked like so many white billiard balls on the brown chocolate soil.

See in the Cities.—In our ride across country we pass through cities at every few miles. All of the Dutch towns are well built, well paved and well kept. Every street is as clean as a pin; the windows crystal and the brass knobs are shining like gold. The streets are almost all paved windows, so that one can sit with in and see all who pass up and down the street. These mirrors are usually at such an angle that they show the front door, and unwelcome callers can therefore be spotted and the servant told to say that the hostess is not at home. These Judas Mirrors are common in Belgium, and also in France and Germany. They are sometimes called "Judas Eyes."

The Dutch People.—The pictures of the people of Holland sent to America give many wrong ideas to the man on the street. He has the impression that it takes a whole bolt of cloth to make a pair of Dutch trousers, and that all the men wear short jackets and their footgear is clogs. The truth is that the Dutch of the cities, men and women, dress just as we do, and they are of the same Amsterdam or Hague crowd dropped down in New York would not be out of place. The people, I should say, almost head taller than the Belgians or French. The men are big boned and husky, and the women especially large and fine looking, many of them being handsome rather than pretty. The people look capable and are very intelligent.

The Dutch universities have always been famous and there are now more than one million pupils in the public schools. The children are manly, and the boys and girls run about together and seem to enjoy one another. Young men and young women make "no bones" of going along arm in arm through the streets, and a common sight is a beau on a bicycle with a loving hand on the shoulder of his sweetheart, who rides on another wheel by his side. Virtually, I judge, is more at a premium here than in the Latin country of France or the semi-Latin country of Belgium.

Sunday is better observed, and the sturdy character that comes from having had to fight for one's religion is plainly shown. Women are admitted to every profession, and the Dutch feminist movement is well advanced.

Cork Screw Curbs.—The quaint characters shown in the advertisements of Holland and pictured so widely in all travel books are confined largely to the fishing villages along the ocean and in the islands of the Zuider Zee. I have visited most of these places during my stay. Each village has its own costumes, and a common head dress is the helmet of thin beaten silver or gold that fits over the hair and comes out to the front of the ears. To this, in some districts, are added gold eaves or spirals that fasten the lace cap on each side of the eyes, and also high collars of coral beads and great silver or gold brooches at the neck and sometimes at the waist. They are very similar to the head-

(Copyright by Carpenter World Travels)

Amsterdam has almost as many canals as Venice. Many of these are in the heart of the city and are crossed by little ferry boats pulled by a hand cable from one side to the other.

gear I have described in the story of my trip from Antwerp to Rotterdam. Along the Zuider Zee the girls wear short and very full skirts coming half way down the calf, below which are woolen stockings and great wooden shoes. The skirts are often several in number, reminding one of the song in "Miss Hook of Holland":

I have one little petty from Peter And another little petty from John And another bright yellow From some other fellow And one that I haven't got on.

Shoes at 40 Cents a Pair.—As to clogs, they are worn very generally by both the poor and well-to-do people outside of the cities. I bought a pair the other day for forty cents and expect to take them home to use as flower pots. They are made of a soft cut out with a carpenter, and whitened with chalk. These Dutch tell me that clogs are warmer than boots, and as they are perfectly waterproof they are especially desirable in a country below the level of the sea where the earth is often as moist as a sponge.

The clogs are clumsy and noisy, and therefore are not worn in the house. They are slipped off on the door-steps and the people walk over the spotted floors of the kitchen and other rooms in their stockings. School children leave their clogs in the hall and sit at their desks in their stocking feet. It is wonderful how the boys and girls play in these wooden shoes. I have seen them riding bicycles in them, and racing each other on foot along the canals. Just yesterday I saw one climbing a pole in his clogs.

Every one Laying Up Money.—These clogs do not mean that the Dutch peasant is poor. He has much. Holland has more than two and one-half million savings accounts, which means that more than one in every three of the whole population is laying up money. Our proportion is not one in nine. The accounts in the Dutch Postal Savings bank alone equal more than five hundred million dollars. The national debt is less than a billion, whereas Belgium, of about the same size, has a debt of more than three times as much, and France staggers along loaded with bonds that exceed fifty billions. In other words, we Americans own just about $240, the Belgians about $223, and the French $1,310 for every man, woman and child in their country. The debt of little Holland is not quite $122 per capita. It is one-tenth as much as that of the French, one-fourth that of the Belgian and only a little more than one-half as much as our own.

A Nation of Patriots.—The Dutch are a nation of patriots. They are a free people and they govern themselves although they love and respect their queen, "The Good Wilhelmina." I have called her "The Good." I might almost call her "The Pious," for it is said that she now and then opens her ministerial councils with prayer. At any rate the people adore her. Her birthday has occurred during my stay, and every town and village has been covered with flags. The people have gone about wearing orange colored buttons, and everywhere there have been processions of school children carrying flags and singing songs praising the queen. I had the good luck to be in Volendam and Marken on the Zuider Zee during that day, where I photographed the little ones in their gala-day costumes.

The love of the people for Wilhelmina began when she was a baby, and it increased when, at the age of ten, upon the death of her popular father, William III, she became queen, although her great mother, Queen Wilhelma, directed the government for eight years thereafter.

Even as a girl, Queen Wilhelmina was democratic. She told how at five years of age she was rolling a hoop over the paths of the park which surrounds her palace just outside The Hague, when she met another little girl in clogs trundling a hoop. The two were soon busy chatting, and they rolled their hoops together, although neither had any idea with whom she was playing.

At another time one of her ministers was talking to her on some matter of conduct. She had a doll in her hand at the time. She listened to the great man's complaint and then showed him the doll, saying: "Sir! You had better take care, my doll has the measles!"

Who soon will rule them as she likes, As little princess of the Dikes, And for her name This very same Is christened by her subjects true As Juliana, Juliana, Juliana Lou!

O Juliana Lou, O Juliana Lou, You truly fair! O Juliana Lou! "Some day you'll come into your place As ruler of the Holland race; And as a queen, serenely calm, You'll rule 'er giddy Amsterdam, And Rotterdam, And Rotterdam, And Rotterdam, And Rotterdam, And as you walk your regal ways May all your saucy be Hollandaise; And may you never use a crutch Because somebody's beat the Dutch; But rule serene, A happy Queen

Your days all through— O Juliana, Juliana, Juliana Lou; O Juliana Lou, O Juliana Lou, O Juliana Lou! "We doof our caps to you! A Princess fair You truly air!

SPECIAL ATTENDANCE CAMPAIGN OPENS SUNDAY AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Christian church will launch a church attendance campaign. The object of the campaign is to secure the full attendance of the membership for eight consecutive Sundays. The campaign culminates in a decision day in the Bible school and church Master Sunday morning. The evangelistic program of the campaign is to increase the present church membership at least 10 per cent by that day. The Bible school and church workers are being organized into groups for personal work, and visitation.

Each of the eight Sundays will be a day of special emphasis on some phase of the church life. The days are as follows: Feb. 11—Women's day. Miss Muegrave, missionary, speaker. Feb. 18—Men's day. Sermon, "Wanted: A Man for the Gap."

Feb. 25—Young people's day. March 4—Bible school rally day. March 11—Discipline day. March 18—Church officers' day. March 25—"Let Us Keep the Feast." April 1—Easter morning. Decision day. The ministers of the church are working on the policy that "an empty pew is the most expensive thing in a church" and cannot therefore be allowed.
