AMERICAN YOUTH TOO WISE SAYS NOTED LAWYER-NOVELIST

OUR SOCIAL LIFE IS DANGEROUS CITIES DESTROYING GREATEST OF MORAL INFLUENCES IN COUNTRY

Famous Prosecutor of Criminal Cases and Delineator of Social Trends Says United States is Living at Dangerously High Speed—Many of the Better Things Including Arts of Entertainment and of Being Entertained, We Have Forgotten—Reserve Has Broken Down in the Relationships Between the Sexes and That is a Bad Thing.

By EDWARD MARSHALL

NEW YORK, April 7.—American city life is destroying that which has long been its strength. It is training for observation, too, has been extraordinary. Not only is it world-known as a novelist, but for a long time he has been a close and celebrated student of social conditions and a lawyer of note. At one time he was one of the prosecuting staff in New York City with a known special ability in the handling of political offenders. He knows his America, and he knows Europe. One of his books recently published, "His Children's Children," has aroused a storm of protest, but he takes it calmly and stands by his guns.

"You ask me what is the reason for the present social danger which I have attempted to portray? My answer is that American city life has tended to destroy or at least weaken the greatest moral and educational influence in civilized society—the home.

"I cannot speak for the country in any section but the metropolitan life of the east, but whereas in England a boy inherits a family tradition of culture and honor, which is a cheerful tradition of the locality in which his family lives, and whence his conduct is viewed as reflecting either credit or disgrace upon his well as upon his friends or relatives, here in America, he can hardly be said to have inherited traditions at all.

"Permanency and continuity are what give English life its educational strength. But what permanency or continuity is there in the life of an American apartment dweller?

"What inherited traditions of any sort could a child have who was born on Fifth street, baptised at Thirty-seventh, moved in early youth to Fifty-seventh, married on Seventh-ty-third and at length dies on Ninth-sixth?"

"In these days of taxis and cabarets the great American city the home is too often merely a place where a cheerful parent changes their clothes between badge and going out to dinner.

"What a child learns there is too often merely the lesson of domestic boredom or matrimonial infidelity. The child is entitled to something far better. He is entitled to be taught by severe discipline if necessary, that this is a world of retribution and that if he sins hereafter he will suffer for it.

"But parents are too lax, indifferent or lazy to put themselves to the trouble. Life has ceased to be taken seriously by them, and the child inherits the penalty.

"Deeper Than Decay of Homestead" "But the decay of home life is not the only trouble.

"A body seriously claiming that there is not a distinct swing towards sexual laxity must be blind, deaf or both. On this side of the Atlantic it is even reflected in the current vocabulary.

"I am not going to say that I am pessimistic with respect to the social situation in America," he continued, "but I think it will be well if we think the matter over very seriously. There are good reasons why we should.

"But at least," I suggested, "modern society is rank. It calls spades spades.

"It talks too much of spades," said he. "The obstruction of forbidden things into the public gaze neither benefits nor disarms them for the accomplishment of evil.

"It is curious that in this intelligent day and age the thought should have gained force that to move evil knowledge in the faces of the young will make them good.

"Some of the methods suggested for keeping the young pure, in these days, are astonishing to a real student of ordinary human nature. It is my belief, and that of many who have had better opportunities, at least than mine, that our young people, with their new ways, their frankness and open discussion of things once considered confined for mixed conversers, are travelling on a mistaken and dangerous road.

"But I also think that it is not their fault and that it does them far less than some people believe.

"As a matter of fact, I think American young people, especially American young men are much better than we have reason to expect.

"Before the thing is righted, however, as of course it will be, for America is not due to retrograde. Young folks here must have a really fair deal. They deserve it. They deserve the best that is. They are not getting it today.

"In everything we are living at an artificially and dangerously high speed. Speeding up the roller cars get into trouble and often go to their eternal rest, prematurely. It's as true of the speed maniacs in other, as, for instance, the search for feverish amusements.

"How 'Speeded Up' Too Much? "We of the older generation have made 'speeding up' the chief tenet of an American creed. For the younger generation to reject it would be disrespectful, but they easily can be too close observance of it. We are prone to mistake more excitement for amusement. The art of entertainment and of being entertained we have generally forgotten.

of them are left in the United States. That's bad. Fortunately, for England it does not exist and that is one of England's safeguards. Once we demanded all our rights—of them. Now we surrender some rather than take the trouble to fuss over it. We'll lose continually more and more if we keep that up.

"Courage without applause" is what we need to cultivate. It's easy to be a moral hero when the crowd will know of it or care. "Oceania Between Men and Women." "Americans are naturally modest and hate to be thought to have a high opinion of themselves. This often leads to keep still when they ought to speak out. They don't like to attract attention because of an especially high moral standard. That is disastrous.

"This, I think, applies equally to both men and women. Indeed, in the United States there is getting to be an oneness between men and women in so many things that one is startled.

"New responsibilities are changing to women. In the old days they would yield to an emotional appeal of one. Now they want reason. That is progress. But we, both men and women, often feel a curious shame at being caught at good works or declared to be normally moral.

"New knowledge has taken into women's minds new points of view and men must be extremely cautious not to misinterpret these new points of view. The old goodness may not have been much better, and perhaps it was no better than the new goodness which is coming now with fuller wisdom.

"The main thing is that the American people shall be courageous as our boys were when they went to Germany and tackle their own problems in their own homes with a doughboy pluck.

"America wants inspiration. For twenty years I have observed that what the American public wants is something stimulating and inspiring. That taste endures. In the long run there is here an unerring instinct as to what is good. Nine times out of ten public approval in music, art or letters, even in the motion pictures, is a sign of some solid worth and real quality in that which they approve.

"As Americans we have certain national traditions—that, perhaps, the sex and which we can almost invariably count on in the American world over.

"stand in the stead of those local and home traditions in which the English are more fortunate. They are the traditions of courage, kindness, honesty and loyalty that marked the doughboy throughout.

"We as a people love to work and work wholeheartedly to conquer obstacles no matter what they are. "And we have a certain kind of cheerful optimism which has a deeper root than the French gaiety.

"I don't worry either about our children or ourselves. Even the disagreeable conditions existing in Europe I believe are only transitional.

"There is a steady progress in the individual and the race, and while from time to time we may swing away from it we shall swing to it back again.

"That human nature is fine and true I thoroughly believe, and no matter how small an opinion we have of people they usually astonish us by their willingness to sacrifice themselves when the call comes." (Copyright 1923, Edward Marshall)

GLOOMY VIEW OF WALES COAL INDUSTRY FUTURE
By Associated Press. CARDIFF, WALES, April 7.—With the strike in the Rhondda coal fields now involving 45,000 men, leaders of the industry are taking a gloomy view of the future. They are particularly concerned lest the European market transfers its orders to the United States from which large consignments of coal are said to be already on the way to France and Germany. Italy hitherto one of the best customers of south Wales, is also reported to be buying extensively in America. Two hundred steamers are awaiting coal in south Wales ports.

How Dispensed
For two years my stomach trouble was very bad, my doctor had injected morphine on several occasions when I was stricken with these attacks. Since taking four bottles of Mays' Wonderful Remedy, I have been entirely well and am serving in the artillery, having been promoted in perfect health by government physicians. It is a simple, business preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation, which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Mack Taylor, Drug Co., and Druggists everywhere—adv.

What in the way of portrayal of 'actual life' really should be permissible? I don't know. But I desire a great deal of what is called 'realism.' Books portraying life in our small towns and depicting a great portion of their space to the discussion of the carnal must have bad effects. And what is true of books is true of plays and films.

"I personally wish that our American fathers and mothers were willing to endure more inconvenience for the sake of their growing families.

"That is the great requirement of the present generation—a return of the old time parental devotion. "That we live in a world of retribution and reward, of punishment and real pleasure, only to be achieved by earning them, are truths which are not being pressed upon our youths as they once were and must be.

"As they go on quality in the United States is a bad sign. Many things do not kill caste that once would have done so. I heard a young chap boast at a full and fashionable dinner table that he had come late because he had been arrested for speeding and had bribed an officer to get there at all and the law generally applauded. I took the matter up and argued it. It was easy to convince him and the others that to be arrested is not cause for pride; that to be in a cell is less; but there had been careless thinking. There's too much of it in our day.

"And that easy-going quality also has very largely ceased to function in that happy manner which we used to consider normal. Perhaps it cannot under present housing conditions. We have not the concentration into mighty cities with commensurate intelligence. And the aiders at that right of their responsibilities to an amazing degree.

Too Easy to Leave Home
"Americans no longer seem to care to stay at home. Perhaps it has been unfortunate that communications have become too easy. Travel is so simplified and cheap and fast and comfortable, that it seems a pity to the average prosperous man and woman not to run around all over the earth and while one runs around, naturally, the children would not only be a burden if they were taken along, but would lose their chances of orderly education.

"So they are left behind, under the charge of people hired to systematically care for them—people who, however good their intentions, really have no personal heart interest in the individuals entrusted to them. They are machines for the quantity production of developed youth.

"Quality production, I'm afraid, does not work as well with character in boys and girls as it does with motor-cars.

"I know that it is quite so much the desire to avoid responsibility that does the harm, as a failure to comprehend responsibility—in the old way.

"Parents with their minds glued to fashions, Wall street, travel, social functions and all that, haven't much time or energy for the old fashioned and often very annoying but extremely useful sense of duty.

"What we are unable to manage to establish in the way of homes in both city and town life, and even, to a less degree, in country life, often tend to demolish what homes used to build. The 'country life' of the American prosperous family is not real country life, as the country life of the prosperous in England is. Country life in the United States frequently is mere country club life.

Lack Wise Vision of Life
"Lacking traditions we lack also wise vision of life. We still over-emphasize acquisition. New people do not know so, they have the habit of get and are not cured of it for several generations after they have got. Or they have the habit to spend. That they often never lose until there is nothing to spend.

"But while I don't believe that we in the United States know as well as do some folks of older civilizations what is necessary to well-rounded life, I believe that there is here a mighty spiritual force.

"Our created energy temporarily is directed towards rather material ends.

"But it has its spiritual aspect, for any effort is spiritual which is for the good of self and the man who gives himself wholly to it in an effort for the sake of accomplishment in a spiritual force.

"We recognize this when we apply the phrase religious force to what is not strictly religion.

"A man who builds bridges, farms, farms, clerks in an office, strives in Wall street, runs an iron furnace ministerially, is a spiritual. The most spiritual of creatures are the women who strive constantly for others than themselves, and plenty

CHURCH PROGRAM BROADCASTED AND FINDS MUCH FAVOR

On last Sunday night the first program given by the choir of the First Christian Church of Wichita Falls was broadcasted by station WKAF. Among the listeners was the congregation of the First Christian Church at Frederick, Okla. The Frederick congregation was so delighted with the program that the Wichita Falls choir was invited to come to Frederick to repeat the program. This was done Thursday night. The Frederick Leader Friday contained the following account:

"Presenting a double cantata that reached almost the proportions of an oratorio the program presented at the First Christian Church of this city Thursday evening by the choir of the First Christian Church of Wichita Falls, Texas, supplied almost two hours of intense delight to music lovers of Frederick."

"There were 56 voices in the chorus, directed by Dr. L. D. Farrell, and the excellence of ensemble harmony manifested by the organization was a magnificent testimony as to his ability. The piano accompaniment of Mrs. T. E. Strange was of exceptional excellence and highly interpretative of the themes."

"The first section of the cantata, 'The Seven Last Words of Christ,' by Theodore DuBois, presented principally the more lofty recitative solos characteristic of oratorio. It was announced that several of the soloists of the original Easter production were absent on account of illness. And as the printed program did not reveal some of the names, detail comment on the program was thus rendered impossible. However, it would be dereliction of duty not to extol the individual excellence of the leading soprano, Miss Hazel Dean, who possesses a voice of remarkably fine timber and, sings with that rare ease that is characteristic even of few professional vocal artists. The male voices in solo were not of unusual excellence, although in ensemble singing their work was admirable."

"It was in the second section, 'The Hymn King,' by P. A. Schaefer, that the choral excellence of Director Farrell's organization, was manifested, the counterpoint in the composition affording rare opportunity for development of vocal harmony, and the appreciative audience revelled in its richness, particularly in the themes, 'The Lord is Risen' and 'O Grave, Where is thy Victory?'"

"In this section Mrs. Hancock was heard in an exquisite mezzo solo. The visiting choir was welcomed by Evangelist Ben Edwards in behalf of the congregation and Frederick citizens, the speaker announcing, incidentally that Director Farrell and himself were boyhood chums in this county, Texas. Following the program a short levee was held in which the visitors were personally greeted and congratulated by members of the church and other citizens whose delightful privilege it had been to hear the choral offering."

BELIEF IN RESURRECTION IS TRUE CORNERSTONE OF RELIGION, KAY TELLS BIBLE CLASS AT OLYMPIC

Belief in a resurrection is the cornerstone of religion, Judge John C. Kay told his Bible class last Sunday at the Olympic Theater.

It is all gone. It is the one doctrine, I say. If the one doctrine that you are obliged to believe, or perish, and the others are insignificant in comparison to it.

Somehow I have, perhaps, picked a little bit of the fun at the expense of the idea that men will be resurrected.

Somehow I have, perhaps, picked a little bit of the fun at the expense of the idea that men will be resurrected. It is right with you, the human mind can seize on a little narrow idea and build a great system about it.

There are some religious people who haven't got enough doctrine even to tell anybody about. Their doctrine is not of enough consequence. But we come this morning to a real doctrine.

This doctrine of the resurrection is not only the one doctrine of Christianity, but it is the one doctrine of every religion. It was the doctrine of the Indian, who believes in his "Great Spirit" and the "Great Spirit" who lives in the "Great Spirit House" and who lives in the "Great Spirit House" and who lives in the "Great Spirit House".

He is not worrying about the divinity of Christ, or the virgin birth, or the stonement or miracles. The thing that he refuses to believe is in the resurrection of the dead. So we come to consider, then, the very life doctrine of religion.

Did you ever stop to imagine a world and a people who didn't believe in the resurrection? It would be a world and a people who didn't believe in the resurrection. It would be a world and a people who didn't believe in the resurrection.

its own reward," and that's all it does mean. How many men are willing to go out here and say that the president of the United States, the governor of the state, and all the power of government, and all the power of society, is going to be exercised by me, in my own heart, and I am going to live right in order that I may be right. It doesn't matter much to that kind of a fellow what happens.

MADDOO AND WILSON NOT COOPERATING IN A POLITICAL WAY

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS CONFIRM CONTINUATION OF FEELING THAT KEPT MADDOO OUT OF THE RACE

By MARK SULLIVAN
Political Correspondent of The New York Tribune and The Wichita Daily Times

One of the recent developments in the Democratic situation is to the effect that, to put it most mildly, there is certainly no cooperation between Wilson and McAdoo as regards McAdoo's candidacy. Those who are close to the heart of the situation have known this for some time. In 1920 one of the chief reasons why McAdoo failed to get the nomination lay in the fact that up to the last minute he was never willing to avow himself as a candidate. And the reason for this unwillingness on his part was that Mr. McAdoo feared that any formal announcement of himself as a candidate might offend Mr. Wilson. There were months during that 1920 pre-nomination campaign when many persons were eager to do something in behalf of McAdoo's candidacy, and when many were anxious to take certain steps, but were held back by the fact that McAdoo's candidacy was not avowed and by the fear that any activity in McAdoo's behalf on the part of members of Wilson's cabinet and other men close to Wilson would be looked upon as being by Wilson personally.

There were many among the Republican leaders who never believed this. Yet other Republican leaders, whether they were willing but eager to have it appear that Wilson wanted to have his son-in-law succeed him, or for a long period during which the Republicans anticipated that McAdoo would be the Democratic candidate in 1928, were anxious to take certain steps, but were held back by the fact that McAdoo's candidacy was not avowed and by the fear that any activity in McAdoo's behalf on the part of members of Wilson's cabinet and other men close to Wilson would be looked upon as being by Wilson personally.

The various conflicts between the reports that came out of Florida about Daugherty putting Harding forward for renomination, and about Harding regarding this action as an inopportune one, are consistent with the better informed Republican leaders in Washington have been thinking. About this whole subject the best information available is that, from the consistent picture, to begin with, Harding at various times, a year or more ago, among his intimates expressed his intention to present a consistent picture. To begin with, Harding at various times, a year or more ago, among his intimates expressed his intention to present a consistent picture. To begin with, Harding at various times, a year or more ago, among his intimates expressed his intention to present a consistent picture.

No one understands clearly just what it is that causes Mr. Wilson to look certainly no different, and possibly with something more positive than indifference, on McAdoo's candidacy. It is probably safe to say that Mr. Wilson's cold detachment of his habit of basing all his actions on pure reason, that he is not moved by considerations of the fact that McAdoo is his son-in-law and that so far as he takes any hand in the 1928 situation at all he will visualize among all the possibilities that one which fits most closely to his needs, and if he takes any action at all, will put the effort behind that person. It is to be assumed, of course, that if Mr. Wilson puts his mind upon a comparison of the various Democratic candidates to what he regards as the purest Democratic policy, and inasmuch as Wilson has undoubtedly regards our foreign relations as of prime importance it is to be presumed that he will favor the candidate who is most orthodox on this point. From this it might seem to follow that Wilson would think favorably of Cox, who was undoubtedly loyal to the league of nations and was loyal to it at great cost to himself. Not only was Cox loyal to the league of nations in the 1920 campaign, but he is probably a little more loyal to it just now than any other of the Democratic possibilities so far mentioned aggressively. It is understood, however, by those who have the best opportunities to infer what Wilson is likely to do that he is not likely to favor the candidacy of Cox.

It has been asserted publicly that Wilson favors the former justice of the supreme court, John H. Clarke. It is a fact that Mr. Clarke in many ways must appeal strongly to Wilson. He appealed to him strongly as long ago as 1916, when Wilson made him a justice of the supreme court. It is also a fact that Mr. Clarke has extraordinary devotion to the league of nations. Both in his fervor for the league of nations and in his intellectual capacity to state the case for it, he is the strongest way, Clarke is probably the more acceptable from the point of view of international cooperation as a campaign issue than Cox is.

There was something romantic, something sentimental, something about the action of Justice Clarke in resigning as he did last year from the dignity of the supreme court and coupling that resignation with the announcement that he wanted to use his later years largely in advocacy of the United States giving its adhesion to what he considered to be a great experiment in world idealism. The action was dramatic and so generous and Mr. Clarke's qualifications otherwise were so largely conceded that if there had been any question of the idea of giving the Democratic nomination to him it could have been readily capitulated and by this time great progress could have been made in his behalf. The present writer feels that as a fact, however, that Mr. Clarke's resignation was wholly unselfish and was not actuated in the faintest degree by the idea of becoming president of the United States. It can also be stated as a fact that even when a good deal of time has passed throughout the country to the effect that he should be put forward as a Democratic presidential possibility he did not himself feel this way about it. His attitude was rather that of a man who had come to the fulcrum of years and who wished to devote that time to what he conceived to be an outstanding work of good. It is wholly in the spirit that he has devoted his activity since his resignation to reaching the league of nations, Ohio politicians who know Clarke well and rate him extravagantly, and who at the same time know his he always has been, and has never had. Harding's instinct of loyalty to the league of nations is such that there is probably no one point on which he would go further and stand firmer than in backing up Daugherty. But just because Daugherty is his intimate and was his campaign manager for that reason some other than Daugherty would be chosen to make a formal announcement of Harding's candidacy for renomination. There are plenty of sources from which that announcement could come, both with more force and with more propriety, than from Daugherty. For example, it can be taken as quite certain that if it were regarded as desirable every member of Harding's cabinet would unite in a formal request that he run again. In fact, although it was forgotten in the sensation that attended the announcement from Daugherty, as long ago as December Secretary Hoover of the Department of Commerce made partly as an announcement and partly as a prediction, the statement that Harding would be renominated. Every other member of the cabinet is equally loyal to Harding.

Five Sturdy Mothers of England Stage 52-Mile Baby Buggy Race to Decide Both Speed and Endurance

By Associated Press.
LONDON, April 7.—Five sturdy mothers pushing perambulators each freighted with a protesting baby crossed Westminster bridge as Big Ben chimed 1:15 o'clock this morning in a 52-mile race to Brighton. The contest is the outgrowth of a controversy between the mothers of the north and the south of England as to which section had the hardest and speediest baby carriage chauffeurs. The contestants were cheered by crowd around the parliament buildings as they got away at dawn on their long trek. They expected to reach Brighton by sunset.

The winner will receive a silver "shaving" cup and about enough money to buy a new pair of shoes. The winning mother was Mrs. Groom, the Eastbourne matron, who made the distance in 12 hours, 30 minutes, with the second and third mothers and babies finishing, respectively, 14 and 23 minutes later.

HEAVY INCREASE IN BUILDING PERMITS; $83,000 FOR WORK

FIGURES FOR FIRST PART OF 1923 FAR AHEAD OF LAST YEAR.

$50,000 RESIDENCE IS AMONG LATEST ISSUED

Total to April 7 is $341,000. Not including Junior College Building Permit.

Permits have been issued from the office of the city clerk for the erection of new buildings at a construction cost of $240,940 since the first of January. From the first of the year through the first week of April permits totaling over one-third of a million dollars were issued against $251,917 during the same period of 1922, an increase of $89,022.

In addition to the permits that have been issued work is well under way on the Junior College building; this addition would bring the total amount of building under way in this city to well over the million mark. Through the first week of April over 118 permits were issued against only 90 for the same period of the previous year, an increase of 28 in number of permits. An unusually large number of permits have been issued for the construction of new residences during 1923. The comparative figures for the two years show the increase by months:

1922	Amount	No. Permits
January	$45,000	20
February	$50,000	22
March	$100,000	25
April	$82,917	10
Total	$277,917	77

For the week ending April 7, permits exceeding the amounts for two of the previous months and almost equal to the entire month of the quarter were issued. Twelve permits issued from the office of the city clerk called for an expenditure of $50,000.

The permits include the new $50,000 home of A. H. Britain on 12th street, the new home of T. J. Brown on Grant, the Time-Deal Home Beautiful in Highland, the L. L. Albritton home on Ninth and several other smaller residences. Permits were granted to the following:

- Walter Evans, 317 Fort Worth, business building, $125.

BURKBURNETT HAS PERFECTED PLAN TO BUY SEWER PLANT

FIRST TRADES DAY OF THIS YEAR WILL BE HELD ON APRIL 21.

ALDERMEN ARE NEW IN BURKBURNETT POLITICS

Copies of Proposed City Charter Being Mailed to All Voters of the City.

BURKBURNETT, TEXAS, April 7.—At a meeting of the city council held last Monday the mayor was directed to sign a contract with the Burk Burnett Sewer Company covering the purchase of the sewer system in operation in this city. The contract price was $40,000 to be paid by the city in said bonds or its equivalent. The sewer company obligates itself to make extensions to the present system at a cost of $2,000.

The sewer company also agrees to turn the system over to the city free of all encumbrances of any nature whatsoever and this includes full payment on the lease which is run for a period of 12 years covering rental of ground upon which is located the pump of the system. This rental will amount to approximately $2,000. Bids covering the contemplated extension are now being received by the sewer company.

Trades Day April 21. The mercantile bureau of the chamber of commerce has announced Saturday, April 21, as being the date on which the first trades day will be held in Burk Burnett this year. A special membership meeting of the chamber of commerce has been called for next Tuesday night, April 10, at which time the chairman of the committee will report and a discussion of the matter will be indulged in by those present. The program as outlined for these days will be somewhat different from those conducted in the past. The special feature of them will be their strict adherence to trading specials.

Aldermen Elected. Much interest was manifested at the election held last Tuesday in which four aldermen were elected to serve the city. W. S. Duval, Will J. Dickson, A. R. Thomas and P. B. Browning were elected by large and substantial majorities over their opponents. Due to the fact that one of the opposing candidates was induced to withdraw his name from the ticket late Monday evening gave the winners a much larger majority than would otherwise have resulted.

The candidates elected are all new men in Burk Burnett politics and neither has at any time past served the city in any capacity. It is predicted by all that the newly elected aldermen will give to this city one of the best administrations possible and they are assured the support of the people as a whole in their future undertakings.

Copies of Charter Mailed

Copies of the new proposed charter for this city is being mailed out to voters by City Secretary Julius Engelman. An election has been called for May 8, at which time voters in the present city limits and those residing in the proposed territory to be annexed will have the opportunity to cast their vote either for or against its adoption. The charter as framed should be read to be appreciated by those interested. It provides that a city manager shall be appointed by the board of commissioners who are to be elected 10 days after the charter has been adopted. The provisions of the charter annexes only a small amount of territory not now in present city limits and this is located near the Tidal-Westerly Oil Corporation plant. The adoption of the charter will also clear up quite a lot of litigation now in the courts with reference to present city boundaries which will be permanently established should the charter carry.

HOW ABOUT YOUR CREDIT?

DO YOU PAY YOUR BILLS PROMPTLY

March Bills Are Now Due and Payable By the 10th

YOU CANNOT TRULY JUDGE A MAN BY HIS EDUCATION
YOU CANNOT KNOW A MAN BY THE CLOTHES THAT HE WEARS ASSOCIATIONS BY NO MEANS DETERMINES HIS EXACT CALIBER

BUT YOU CAN ALWAYS DEPEND UPON THE MAN WHO PAYS HIS BILLS PROMPTLY

Some time ago a merchant was discussing credit with a customer in the doorway of his business. While they were talking a man dressed as a working man chanced to pass. The merchant called attention of his customer to the passing man with the following remarks: "That man is not a rich man but he comes from a large family of people who are known for paying their bills promptly by the tenth of the month when they are due. That man could come into my house and buy whatever he wanted. WHY! Because he has demonstrated that he will pay for what he gets, and on time too, which means much to one in business."

EVERY INDIVIDUAL AND BUSINESS CONCERN NEEDS MONEY TO OPERATE

Every person, whether they are in business or not needs money to pay their bills. Have you ever stopped to think that a merchant that does a credit business has to pay for his merchandise when it is due or he does not get further credit from that manufacturer. If his customers do not pay their bills on time, where is he to get the money to pay for his merchandise? Every one has certain obligations to meet and if there is not some source of income then there is no way of meeting those obligations unless the money can be borrowed. And one cannot borrow money unless his credit standing is in FIRST CLASS CONDITION. Have you ever stopped to think that when you pay your bills that you are simply exchanging money; for the money that you pay to the merchant is in turn paid out by him for merchandise, etc., in the round that the dollar makes.

Have An Earnest Talk With Yourself About Credit Ask Yourself the Following Questions

- | | |
|--|---|
| Are there any bills that are due that I should pay? | Is my character impaired by any bad debts? |
| Will I have a balance in the bank after I pay my bills this month? | Can I get credit if I ask for it? If no, why? |
| Are there any bills that I will not be able to pay that I should see the merchant and tell him why I cannot pay him now? | Am I treating my creditors square? |
| | Can I walk down the street and look my creditors in the face? |

There are many other questions that pertain to credit that each individual should ask himself besides the above, which should make him realize that credit is one of the grandest possessions that a man can have. A man's credit rating will travel with him no matter where he goes. Why not start now and make that record one of the best possible.

START NOW BY PAYING YOUR BILLS OR AT LEAST GETTING IN TOUCH WITH YOUR CREDITORS AND TELL THEM WHY YOU CANNOT PAY UP

TRADE TRIPPERS ARE ALL SET FOR INVASION OF OKLAHOMA

Will Leave Tuesday Morning On Two Day Journey—120 Take Part

Last year's trade trippers in marching army.

HAVE REELECTED SUPERINTENDENT QUANAH SCHOOLS

CHOICE IS BY UNANIMOUS VOTE OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

INTER-COUNTY MEET ON FRIDAY, APRIL 13

Manager Quanah Light & Power Company Goes to Oklahoma City.

QUANAH, TEXAS, April 7.—The board of trustees of the Quanah Light & Power Company met here today for a meeting of the trustees. This work, other trustees were also present at this meeting, but the list was not completed and is therefore not available for publication. The board reports that the election of the next year's faculty.

A budget was discussed by the board on next year's expense and an estimate given for each item of expense. It is thought that more than a thousand dollar reduction can be made. This will also be ready for publication soon, so that patrons will see exactly where their money goes.

Superintendent Davis has received flattering offers from other schools but he prefers to stay in Quanah even though he gets less money. Many private citizens have expressed their great pleasure in the board's being able to retain Superintendent Davis.

Inter-County Meet.

Great preparations are being made by the club women of the county for the entertainment of the Inter-County Federation of Women's Clubs which is to meet here Friday, April 13.

Miss C. T. Watkins is president of this organization and will preside at the meeting. The four counties to be represented are Collingsworth, Hall, Hardeman and Cherokee.

Light Manager Changes.

L. S. Heagan, local manager of the Quanah Light and Power Company, is being promoted to a bigger job with the same company he is now working for, and will leave Quanah about the middle of the month for Oklahoma City, where he will enter upon his new duties.

Mr. Heagan has been with this company for the past 12 years and has placed a number of plants on their footing as he did with the one here. The company's headquarters are in Oklahoma City.

Carl Bloomfield, manager of the Chillicothe plant, will move here to take charge of this plant, while Joe H. Long, assistant to Mr. Heagan, will probably go to Chillicothe. Both Mr. and Mrs. Heagan and Mr. and Mrs. Long have made many friends since they have been here and their loss to the city will be deeply regretted, although in Mr. Bloomfield, Quanah is getting a valuable citizen.

Miss Coker Dies.

A shadow was cast over the entire city this week when it became known that Ruby Coker, aged 19, daughter of Mrs. W. I. Coker of this city, died at her home at 12:20 a. m. Wednesday. Her death came suddenly, as she was ill but a few days. Miss Coker was stricken with the

CITY'S IMMEDIATE PAVING PROGRAM INCLUDES 3 MILES

WILL BRING TOTAL HERE TO APPROXIMATELY 28 MILES.

FIRST BRICK SURFACE SOON TO BE PLACED

Improvements Will Lift Number of Blocks Permanently Out of Mud.

Paving projects just finished, under way, or to be started in the near future involve 17,167 feet or approximately three and one-quarter miles of paving, which will help to complete the net work of paving of city streets and will give the city a total of approximately 25 miles of paved streets.

Contracts have already been let for all of this amount with the exception of 2,286 feet to be laid on Avenue F; a public hearing to decide on the kind of paving to be laid on that thoroughfare will be held at the Monday night meeting of the city council. The total expenditure of the property owners and the city for the paving is estimated at $145,000. Contracts have already been let calling for an expenditure of over $140,000. The estimated cost to the city of excavation for the paving to be done is approximately $20,000. Without the cost of excavating Avenue F and Burnett, the city's bill for work preparatory to paving will amount to $120,000.

The paving contracts for the three miles of paving projects cover work on nine different thoroughfares and six projects. The paving around the courthouse on Lamar, Tenth and Sixth streets will be of concrete and it is understood work will begin soon. The blocks on Lucille from Brook to Grace, and over one mile of paving on Taylor street will be paved with brick according to the decision of property owners recently. Work has already begun on the brick paving to be laid on Tenth and Burnett streets. Work is ready to begin on the three blocks of paving to be laid on Austin and Burnett, hitherto paving will be laid on these three blocks.

Other paving projects are expected to be brought before the city at an early date. Although the $15,000 budget appropriated for excavation work is practically exhausted, it is thought that some arrangement will be made to carry on the work. A budget item of $10,000 was established for the replacement of wooden blocks in the business section. It is probable that bids will be called for on this project some time before summer. A list of the paving included in the $145,000 paving program of the city for the year follows:

- Lucille street, Brook to Grace, 2,286 feet brick, $27,832.00.
- Taylor street, Tenth to Avenue H, 5,433 feet brick $49,970.20.
- Lamar street, 1,409 feet of concrete, $18,122.
- Travis street, 700 feet of concrete, $12,814.
- Sixth street, 1,235 feet of concrete, $12,786.75.
- Austin, Eleventh to Twelfth, 767 feet of hitherto $4,848.10.
- Burnett street, two blocks hitherto.
- Tenth street from end of paving to Tilden, 250 feet of brick, $2,712.
- Hayes street, 1,055 feet of brick, $3,138.24.

No estimate is given here on the 2,286 feet of paving to be laid on Avenue F; the city council will hear property owners Monday night to decide on the kind of paving that is wanted. On Tenth street the contract for the installation of a storm sewer, that was necessary for the success of the paving, was awarded the contractor. The storm sewer had been laid by the city.

Somebody Finds Something and Now All Prisoners Held on Misdemeanor Convictions Will Be Put to Work

Somebody found something in the civil statutes and penal code of the state which has set a lot of county officials and attorneys to thinking. One of the tangible results of this discovery will be that Monday morning when the county commissioners convene, definite steps will be taken to put all prisoners held in the county jail on misdemeanor convictions to work on the public roads or streets.

The discovery of this "something" was made when a habeas corpus was filed in the justice of peace court before Judge R. V. Gwinn, by a man who was sent to jail in default of payment of a $100 fine for beating his wife.

The statute was found when read that when a man is sent to jail because of his inability to pay a fine upon conviction of a misdemeanor and if the commissioners do not give the man an opportunity to work out his fine on the public roads—that he is allowed three dollars a day for each day he remains in jail without being given the opportunity to work.

Judge Gwinn heard the evidence in the habeas corpus proceedings last week and upon conclusion of the trial having been cited to this law turned the man free.

The "back statute" was brought forth and diligent search made with the result that this understanding of the law was received: A prisoner may be put to work after being convicted of a misdemeanor and he shall work not less than eight nor more than ten hours a day. Should he be reluctant and refuse to work after the opportunity has been given him he may be put in solitary confinement and fed on bread and water.

If a prisoner goes to jail because of his failure to pay a fine he shall be credited with 25 cents a day for each day he works for the county or public utilities. Skilled labor, however, can be compensated at such a rate set by the county judge.

If a man refuses to work after he has been offered the chance to work he shall pay to the county $1 for each day that he spends in jail. If the prisoner is hired out to some corporation he shall be allowed 25 cents a day for each day that he works for such corporation and the compensation he receives for his labor shall be applied to the fine and costs and as soon as the fine and costs are paid he shall be discharged.

sewer will be built at an estimated cost of $12,500.

DECLAMATION CONTEST AT CASHION WEDNESDAY

Jessie Lee Woodall and Buster Pleasant were declared the successful contestants in the declamation contest held at the Cashion church Wednesday evening. Jessie Lee Woodall won over Earlene Cross and Ethel Wolfe in the elimination contest for the girls. Buster Pleasant declared among the boys was without an opponent.

Following the decision in the declamation contest, R. E. Shepherd, accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd, delighted the audience with a program of vocal numbers, he answered repeatedly to the applause of the audience. Th. D. Sartis, Superintendent of the school, and Mrs. Georgia Landford awarded the contractor. The storm sewer had been laid by the city.

OIL PRODUCTION IN ARCHER PASSES 10,000 BARRELS DAILY

BIG GAIN LAST WEEK GIVES NEW HIGH FIGURE—GRAHAM'S WELL FEATURES HAPPENINGS

GOOD COMPLETIONS MAKE ACTIVE WEEK IN ARCHER COUNTY

DISTRICT AROUND PETERSEN WELL SEES SOME NEW PRODUCERS.

WATER SITUATION IMPROVES SLIGHTLY

Now Lines Bring Some Relief; Wildcaters Busy Throughout Country.

The best completion reported for the week was the Wagoner well, which was finished early in the week with a flush production of 280 barrels, but increased to 300 barrels from the 12th day.

Making several flows by heads at the rate of 200 barrels daily the McCarty Oil Company encountered the sand at 1278 feet in No. 2. Wilson, south of their discovery well.

Practically offsetting the No. 1 McCarty to the north, No. 1 of the Petroleum Producers Company, same company has made locations for four additional tests on lease 10 to the west, their Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, on which they expect to start drilling in the next week or 10 days.

Lynn Boyd has a well on the south of the McCarty well consisting of 10 acres in two separate tracts and will make locations for a coming week for the drilling of two tests.

South of Dundas on the Griffin ranch Burns and Maxson have made arrangements to start in the first of the week, having contracted for the drilling of a 2,000-foot test.

Met Richards in block 19 of the M. S. Griffin ranch, is drilling a wildcat and is down to a depth of 1100 feet.

The No. 1 test of Burns-Stonking in block 73 Wilson lands is getting down to an interesting depth, 1200 feet. The test is accounted a good looking sand at 273 to 462 feet which showed considerable oil but was washed out by the water.

The Royalties Company purchased 40 acres of the well and is working on an effort to make a shallow well.

Northwest of Archer City the test of Joe Whitaker is getting down to the Glass survey is going down rapidly and is now at a depth of 1200 feet.

W. E. Langford is testing out a seven foot sand showing plenty of oil in his 20-acre tract, block 21, Wichita Falls land, Kemp-Kemper tract, which was picked up at 1600 feet.

Johnson and Cobb spudded in Saturday on their No. 1 well on the Ford farm just south of Archer, Wichita, and will put down a 2,000-foot test.

In the shallow field northeast of Holliday, W. C. Fisher completed another good pump in the sand at 665 feet with 20 barrels daily. The owners have a number of other wells and have several small wells and locations have been made for a number of additional shallow wells to be drilled at once.

In the vicinity of Dundas on the Griffin and Helms ranches a number of tests are being drilled. The Texhoma company spudded in this week on Nos. 1 and 2 on their lease on the Helms tract, and the No. 1 test of Cranfill, Pitt and Willis is drilling in the neighborhood of 1200 feet.

On the Woodrum land, Featherstone-Cranfill and Pitt spudded in early in the week and are down around 400 feet and the No. 2 well of Featherstone-Cranfill and Pitt is drilling at 1100 feet on the Luke Wilson tract.

The Texhoma company's activity in the county also includes No. 41 on the Goss tract, which is drilling at 500 feet, and the No. 1 well in the Freeman-Hampton section. What looks like an extension in the southeast in the showing made by this company's No. 1 well in block 73 Kemp-Kemper tract which is in a sand at 1600 feet showing oil. The well is being drilled and will be drilled in during the week.

The test of J. I. Staley & Jerome R. Stone located in section 2, abstract 497, Kemp-Kemper lands, about a quarter of a mile to the north of the American Refining Company's test and the same distance south of Mr. Wallace's well pulled the sand Saturday and shows considerable oil, but drillers have not finished cleaning out the hole. The completion of this well links up the Wallace and American sections and will extend the defined area of the Freeman-Hampton field, a half mile to the south.

Completion of the Manley Water Company of their new line to the Freeman-Hampton pool early in the week has somewhat relieved the situation in that field as over two-thirds of the tests were forced to shut down on account of no water. The Beaver Creek Company, which also furnishes water to this field, was overtaxed in an effort to supply the wants of the rapidly multiplying tests in the vicinity.

Drilling was started on three tests in the Comet Petroleum Company's Ferguson tract, which offsets the big Haystack well. The company had practically shut down owing to the water situation. During the week they laid their own line to connect with the Texas Company's line in the K. M. A. field.

The week also numbered two dry holes among its completions, both in wildcat territories. P. H. Hammond No. 1 on the Schroeder land, two miles northwest of Huff was abandoned at a total depth of 2000 feet, and the deep test of McCracken & Loggie on the Albright tract Hooper-Wade survey abstract No. 223 was abandoned as dry at a total depth of 2100 feet.

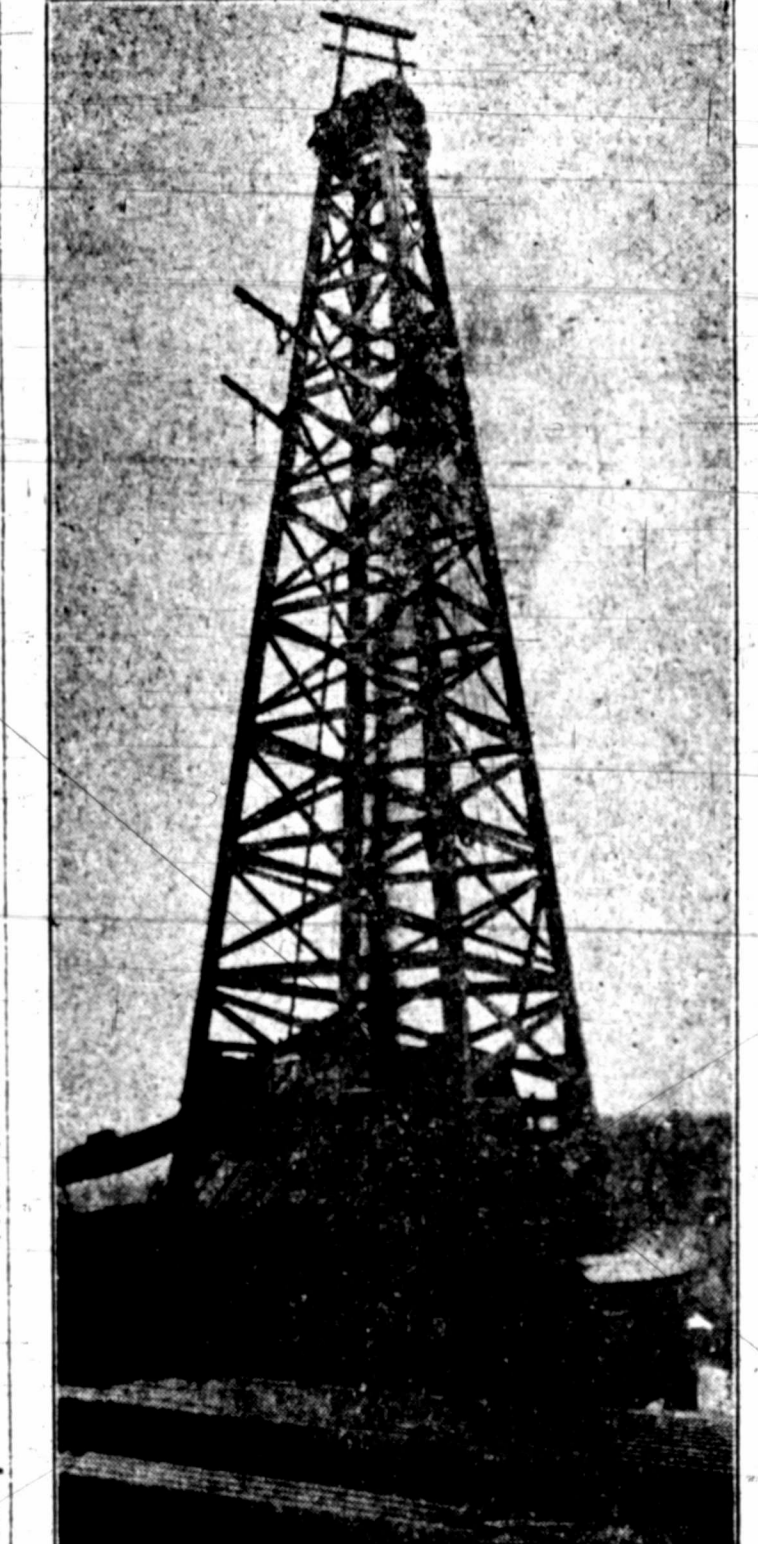

In the Freeman Hampton pool,

TEXHOMA WELL IS ELECTRA FEATURE WITH 900 BARRELS

SHORTAGE OF WATER CONTINUES TO BE HANDICAP TO OPERATIONS.

WILD CAT TESTS ARE CLOSELY WATCHED

Magnolia's Well On Ansell Ranch Is Down Past 4200 Feet and Still Drilling.

The sensation of the last week in the Electra district was the performance of the Texhoma Company's No. 18 well on the Wagoner tract, which came in late Sunday with a flow of 420 barrels which increased during the week and is swabbing and flowing by heads at the rate of 900 barrels and going on record as the best producer known to date from this section in recent months.

The most serious menace to the development of the Electra field at present is the lack of water for drilling purposes which threatens to force many tests to shut down unless the situation is relieved.

The Texhoma Company is at present drilling seven wells on the Wagoner lease in the south pool. No. 14 A lease is on the sand at 1852 feet and is swabbing 500 barrels.

The Magnolia Company's deep test on the Ansell ranch further south on the 400 acre tract is drilling at 4200 feet. The same company has finished No. 1 lease B on the Wagoner tract making 60 barrels from the 400 foot pay. No. 2 and 3 lease B Wagoner spudded in this week.

On the Burnet land the Panhandle Refining Company is drilling No. 1 well and is down to 1400 feet. The test of W. M. Moore on the Burnet tract tested out a sand at 1812 feet which showed salt water and will drill deeper.

On the Burnet land the Panhandle Refining Company is drilling No. 1 well and is down to 1400 feet. The test of W. M. Moore on the Burnet tract tested out a sand at 1812 feet which showed salt water and will drill deeper.

C. M. Taylor on the No. 1 Yarrowburg is cleaning out the cavities with 1000 feet of oil in the hole from a sand at 1512 to 1516 feet.

The No. 2 of the same company is drilling at 1100 feet. On the Gibson survey, Wagoner and the Lewis Oil Corporation is a few feet in the sand at 1784 feet and has 700 barrels of oil.

The Camp Oil and Gas Company is drilling a sand at 1915 feet in their No. 5 test on the L. P. Douglas tract and is showing plenty of oil.

Ladd & Hanson on lease B Wagoner has spudded in No. 6 well and is drilling at 700 feet.

In section 5 Burnet J. J. Perkins is testing out the sand showing oil at 1610 feet in his No. 12 well.

South of Iowa Park James Parker and associates finished a 90-barrel pump in the sand at 1249 feet and is showing plenty of oil.

In the wildcat section to the territory north and northwest of Electra, the State-Farm test on the Ditmar tract is temporarily shut down at a depth of 2100 feet, and the Texas Company's No. 1 Pluche is drilling at 1740 feet. Brewer and others is drilling at 1200 feet in their deep test on the Cody land located about five miles northeast of town.

HIRSCHI DISTRICT ADDS ANOTHER BIG PRODUCER TO LIST

BARCLAY-MEADOWS-SUN WELL STARTS OFF AT SIXTY PER HOUR.

SEVERAL OTHER TESTS NEARING COMPLETION

Number of Operators Have Wells Due to Be Finished Some Time This Week.

The feature of the weeks activity in the Hirsch district of the county was the completion by the Barclay Meadows-Sun Company's No. 6 well on the Hirsch land Friday making at the rate of 60 barrels an hour for the first 24 hours from the top of the pay at 1815 feet, and at the same time setting on record as the best completion for the district since the bringing in of the discovery well. The same company's No. 7 to the north is on top of the usual pay at 1834 feet and will stand ready to drill in which the next few days in the Hirsch district.

The Texhoma company to the northwest of the Bradley lease on the north part of the Hirsch tract tested out the pay at 1904 feet in No. 1, but failed to show up for a producer. Drilling is being continued and the well is down at 2,000 feet. The same company's No. 5 is drilled about a mile to the west at 1700 feet, and No. 6 is drilling in the neighborhood of 1300 feet. The derrick is also up for No. 7 Hirsch and is waiting on a survey.

To the east of the Bradley tract the No. 3 well of Bob Wagoner on the Foster-Alton tract in block 22 is drilling on the sand at 1818 feet which is showing for a producer. The location for No. 4 will be made the first of the week.

Offsetting the Gulf Production Company's No. 2 to the west, the test of E. A. Dale and associates is experiencing a fishing job at 200 feet on the Dale tract.

The Barclay Oil company on the Hirsch tract is preparing to drill in the sand at 1854 feet on their No. 12 well some time Saturday, and the same company has set casing in No. 12 at 1200 feet.

Judge Moore is on the sand at 1815 feet and expects to drill in within the next few days in his No. 2 well on the Allen-Foster tract, south of Bob Wagoner.

East of the Wagoner in the north part of block 22, the Burk-Cameron Company is having some casing trouble in No. 6 well and is concerned. No. 7 is drilling at 800 feet.

CAMPBELL WELL HAS NEW OWNERS RESUMES DRILLING

M. L. Campbell, April 7.—Drilling to be resumed shortly on the C. C. Campbell No. 1, 1060-foot eight miles southeast of the city of McLean, in Collingsworth county.

The well is opening under a new organization composed of McLean citizens with D. B. Veatch as president and W. T. Wilson as treasurer. Local promoters of the well are enthusiastic over its possibilities, based upon the favorable formations through which the well has already passed, and every effort is being made by the citizens to push the well to completion and thus to give this particular section of the Panhandle the advantage of a thorough test.

The well now stands at 1500 feet and is being drilled by the only rotary rig in this immediate part of the state.

CLAY OPERATIONS MOVING STEADILY. MANY TESTS GOING

Developments in Clay failed to show anything outside of a number of wells drilling in the various parts of the county. The Gulf Production Company spudded in and is down to 200 feet on No. 2 Wortham, and the Gulf wildcat on the H. Boddy land is hauling machinery to the location.

On the Bevering land the test of Brown-McAllister is at 400 feet.

The deep test of the H. M. A. Oil Company between the Wichita and Red rivers is standardizing at 2365 feet.

On the Miller tract near Petrolia the Lone Star Gas Company is drilling at 1000 feet in No. 11. The same company's No. 4 Edington is drilling at 1130 feet.

The Panhandle is drilling at 1300 feet on the No. 1 Craig.

In the vicinity of Jean station on the Hawthorne tract Riddle and associates are drilling at 1900 feet.

On the J. P. Davis ranch in the Jolly district the Sun Oil Company's deep test is drilling at 1100 feet. This test had small shows of both oil and gas in the neighborhood of 500 feet.

Flowing and swabbing 700 barrels from the sand at 1350 feet the Gulf Production Company late Friday completed No. 2 well on the E. A. Dale tract in block 225 Hirsch district, making the second big production to be completed from that pool for the week.

The well is one location to the south of No. 2, which was finished two weeks ago and which is still making 235 barrels from the same pay.

The No. 4 Dale, to the north of No. 2 is setting a liner in the sand at 1861 feet and is due for completion the first of the week.

Sports World Defts Its Hat to Plucky Pitcher of Old Who Returns to National Sport as Boston Magnate After Wonder Uphill Fight for Health

OUT of the world of box scores and batting averages, a world that interests hundreds of thousands of persons, but not quite everybody, comes a story that does interest every one.

It is the story of Christy Mathewson. It is gripping because it has to do not only with baseball, but with life, with the welfare and happiness of a man and his wife. In it are the details of a home over which death hovered menacingly, threatening for years to shatter the romance, the romance that continued unabated after marriage, of Christy Mathewson and his courageous wife.

There was, and is, a boy, too, the son of the sick man and his wife. The boy is named for his Daddy—Christy, Jr. Today that little family stands victorious after bitter battle for that greatest of trophies—health. Not long ago Christy Mathewson, vigorous and happy, stood before several hundred business men in Boston and with good-natured raillery and banter, told them—the Boston Chamber of Commerce—what he hoped to do for Boston from a baseball point of view.

For Christy Mathewson has become president and part owner of the Braves—the Boston National League baseball team.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON had T. B. That's a rough way of putting it, but, nevertheless, Christy Mathewson had T. B. Tuberculosis crashed the career of the brilliant pitcher of the New York Giants. A neglected cold did it, a summer cold, in June, 1920. By July the "cold" had reached a stage where it became necessary for Mathewson to go to Saranac, N. Y. There he was told that "one lung was slightly affected." They put Mathewson to bed and the fifteen-year-old Christy, Jr., wondered. The woman stood by her husband's side and helped him fight his fight. It's always the way—or almost always. It was this time, in any event. "Of course, Daddy will get well," she told sunny.

Talk about your ninth innings, three men on base, tie score, two out, two strikes and three balls—no crisis in baseball ever approached in intensity the moment when the spirit of Christy Mathewson flickered feebly and almost went out.

And then the breath of the pines and the tang of the air began to heal. Slowly, oh, so slowly, the man came back and when the buds burst into glory in the spring of 1921 a woman could be seen pushing a wheel chair about Saranac, and in the wheel chair was Christy Mathewson, smiling gamely. One of the things that had wrought this improvement was the fact that Mathewson during the preceding winter had sat on a veranda while the thermometer sank to twenty below zero. Beside him sat the quiet heroine who had married him.

SO TODAY Christy Mathewson is back in baseball.

"I knew I couldn't re-enter the game as manager," he said. "After my experience with Cincinnati and then with McGraw, I realize that managing a team is too nerve-wracking for me."

"In what way, then, could I come back except as a part owner, I asked myself," he added. "When I conferred with Judge Emil Fuchs, who used to be Deputy Attorney General of New York and long a baseball enthusiast, and this opportunity presented itself, I grasped it. So bet all the hats you can that the Braves will not finish in the cellar."

It was a cheerful Mathewson that went to Boston to meet his new neighbors. The Chamber of Commerce received him as a guest of honor at a luncheon. Mathewson spoke on a variety of subjects from King Tut to the fourth dimension and declined to be serious on any subject, even including baseball.

AT HIS hotel in Boston a few days ago, Mathewson talked frankly of his uphill fight for health. His appearance was at variance with the facts of his condition. He isn't cured; he must be very careful not to overwork; he must not apply himself too assiduously to any job. These are doctor's orders.

"But my doctor feels that if I do not become too ambitious the presidency of the Braves will be a diversion. For a time, at least, I shall go back to Saranac every fortnight; perhaps later, if I find the climate here in Boston agrees with me, I shall make my home here. Meanwhile, Mrs. Mathewson and my boy will remain at Saranac and I shall spend as much time as possible with them. In the fall, my boy will go to Bucknell."

"Did you get a jolt when you first learned you had T. B.?" he was asked. "No," he admitted. "As a matter of fact, I didn't know much about T. B. I figured it was something persons had then took care of and finally cured. But during the eleven months I spent in bed I learned it was something entirely different."

"I had been in gas and flame work in France, and quite often at schools, where we gave instruction, we opened bombs for examination. We were careful, but there is no doubt the accumulated gases affected my lungs. For instance, if you stayed in this room long enough and mustard gas was released only a little at a time, eventually it would get you. So I guess I developed a susceptibility to the disease. Then I got this cold and finally it was diagnosed as T. B."

"What was the blackest moment of it all?" the reporter asked. "I don't think there was a blackest moment," replied Mathewson. "You see, my wife didn't let me know how sick I really was until after I had begun to get better; then it was too late to worry."

Since the days when he pitched for Bucknell, his alma mater, Christy Mathewson has been famous for two outstanding characteristics: his gameness and his fairness. He fought what seemed a losing battle for his health, which had been undermined by his service to the Nation in the World War, and now he is back in harness again as head of the Boston Braves.

Then the talk turned to baseball. Had Mathewson any new ideas he intended to put into practice? "I haven't," he confessed. "I intend merely to give Boston the very best team possible under the circumstances. Boston finished badly last year, but I believe that was because Boston had a bad start. There were many accidents to players that took the heart out of the team. You take a team with its first pitcher and catcher gone, and no matter how well the remainder of the team may play the loss is felt by everybody. The second battery isn't as good, because if it was it would be out there anyway, instead of the other pitcher and catcher. So Boston was up against that jinx and as the season went on they lost hope. "Contrast last year with the Braves in 1914. Spirit is the thing that counts most of all. I believe spirit is 90 per cent of victory. In July, 1914, the Braves were down in the cellar. They started a winning streak that made them world champions by the end of the season. They just couldn't be defeated; they just didn't know how to lose. It was spirit." "And what have you to say to your old Alma Mater, Bucknell?" was the final question. Mathewson smiled. "I guess Bucknell knows what I think of it. My boy is going there this fall. You can tell Bucknell, though, if you will, that I hope it gets its stadium. I'm strong for it."

It is difficult to fix on any one achievement in Mathewson's career as marking its peak, as his performances in the box were uniformly excellent. Back in the 1905 world series, however, he broke into page one with what to Philadelphia was distressing frequency, when he blanked the Athletics three times. He shut them out the first game by a score of three to nothing, allowing but four hits.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE

CHICAGO, April 7.—Fresh upturn in prices overtook again the season's highest record for July and September deliveries came about in the wheat market today largely as a result of heavy storms north-west, causing delay to spring seeding. The close was strong at 14 to 23 cents advance with May 1.23 to 1.24 and July 1.24 to 1.25. Corn finished a shade to 2 cents higher, oats up half a cent and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 25 cent gain.

STOCKS AND FINANCIAL

NEW YORK, April 7.—Another sharp setback in prices took place today in the stock market. Reaction of the short interest to higher, gutters the higher value in certain stocks and the lack of sufficient buying support at the higher levels had left the market in a weakened technical position which bear traders were quick to sense and take advantage of. Harbaldell Oil shares were the principal target. Bear liquidation in this group selling off a number of top-line orders. Harbaldell A dropped here from 41 1/2 to 39 1/2. Selling support was forthcoming and the B dropped 2 to 19 1/2. Record, Chemical shares again found heavy American agricultural and chemical preferences. Harbaldell A points from Products also sold heavily. Sales approximated 100,000 shares.

William Jennings Bryan's Weekly Bible Talk Joseph, Preserver of His People

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

The story of Joseph is one of the most fascinating ever written.

Even from the standpoint of literary excellence it is unsurpassed. Its value is infinitely increased because it is a matter of history and also because of many lessons which it teaches.

Its truthfulness is so apparent that it carries conviction with it. Jacob had two wives, Leah and Rachel, besides his slave wives. Leah was favored by him; and after he had worked seven years for Rachel, his father-in-law insisted that he take Leah first because she was the older; so he worked seven years more to get the woman whom he loved.

Therefore, his partiality for Joseph and Benjamin, the children of Rachel, was not unnatural. Neither was the jealousy of the other children. It is not surprising that they would have been jealous had they been full brothers instead of half brothers.

The Bible's Trustworthiness.
It is not necessary to commend the father for manifesting his special affection for Joseph; he might have known it would have aroused antagonism among the other sons. But parents are not always wise in this respect. The Bible has more to be trusted because it describes the real characters as they were, with their follies—even their sins—mixed with their virtues.

But Joseph himself was innocently responsible for a third cause of irritation. He was a dreamer and indiscreetly told his dreams to his brethren.

It was too young to understand the importance of keeping to himself a revelation of the supremacy that was to come to him. He may have but faintly realized the significance of his dreams and was greatly ignorant of the political career that they foreshadowed.

His brothers, with three reasons for hostility, plotted to get rid of him.

Here the hand of Providence begins to manifest itself. Those who are selected and prepared for a great work are also guarded against harm—ever directed by mysterious ways to the accomplishment of God's purpose.

JOSEPH, PRESERVER OF HIS PEOPLE, TEXT OF TODAY'S BIBLE TALK BY MR. BRYAN.
(Gen. 45:1-15)
And Joseph said unto his brethren, I am Joseph; doth my father yet live? And his brethren said one to another, he is yet alive. And Joseph fell upon his neck, and wept upon his neck for some time. And Joseph said unto his brethren, Come near to me, I pray you. And they came near. And he said, I am Joseph your brother, whom ye sold into Egypt. Now therefore be not grieved nor angry with yourselves, for ye sold me hither: for God did send me before you to preserve life. For these two years hath the famine been in the land; and yet there are five years, in which there shall neither be earning nor harvest. And God sent me before you to preserve you a posterity in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance. So have I come to you that ye see that I have not failed. And Joseph made him a chariot, and he went into Egypt. And he said unto his brethren, I have found grace in the sight of the Egyptians. And he said unto them, I will send you to Egypt, and ye shall dwell there. And he said unto them, I will send you to Egypt, and ye shall dwell there. And he said unto them, I will send you to Egypt, and ye shall dwell there.

the use of unfermented wine. This is the language of the butler. "In my dream, behold a vine was before me, and in the vine were three branches; and it was as though it budded, and blossoms shot forth; and the clusters thereof brought forth ripe grapes; and Pharaoh's cup was in my hand; and I took my grapes, and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand."

Past Week Chronicles Many Parties, Elections and Happenings of More Than Usual Interest, With a Bride

A whole week of social happenings would be sadly unseasoned despite its variety were there to be no bride or bride-elect for whom to wish a sunshiny future, and through whose rose-colored glasses we might be permitted to peer for a day or two.

But we seldom have to chronicle such a dull, drab and dreary week in Wichita Falls. Our girls get married, they do, and seldom fail to let us in on a little bit of the celebration. This past week Miss Lila Copeland was the bride-elect, with her marriage to Arch Dye, of the firm of Stanley, Wynne & Dye, planned for the coming Wednesday, and on Wednesday past was the very happy honoree at a most attractive party given by the Business Girls Class of the First Methodist Sunday school.

Besides the bride, we had Gallantry, a good home play, dozens of unusually pretty spring parties, two or three all-day club meetings as special celebrations, one or two club parties to which the husbands were permitted to come, the biggest mothers' council meeting ever recorded, the Civic League annual luncheon, two or three elections among women's organizations, and the quarterly meeting of the Mission Federation with election of new officers.

Some "Little Things"

And the week was full of "little things" of new interest, too. For instance, Mr. H. Van Engelen, head chemist at the Panhandle Refinery, stopped up on the street Thursday and demanded recognition for the arrival of Miss Dorothy Van Engelen at his home, 1109 Polk. "Hadn't heard of it," he declared genially, "is she going to be here long?" "Quite a while," he informed us. "Well, that's nice," he said, hunting a handkerchief in his pocket. "Oh, my, my," she just dropped right down from heaven," was the guttural exclamation as H. B. strode away smiling.

One of the prettiest parties of the week among the club organizations was that of the Lotus Bridge Club with Mrs. Leslie Collins, when Mrs. Collins had for her guests also the members of the Florida Bridge Club. Another was the all day meeting of the Sorosis Study Club with Mrs. Stanley McGregor, with a lovely luncheon at noon. And still others were the B. O. P. class party at the home of Mrs. Verne Baker, enjoyed by a score of more of the members of the Floral Heights class, and the Harmony Bridge party at the home of Mrs. T. Kelly. The Community Players had an interesting meeting at their Wednesday luncheon, dispensing with the usual program to talk "play," and attend to the business of business. The players have grown in size and strength, and are laying the foundation for a big community organization, and one which Wichita Falls will have every reason to be proud of. Mr. Paul Barrett, as recently elected president of the players, on the resignation of Mrs. Bruce Dickson Ruffner, and has stepped into the director's very capably. Mrs. Ruffner still "stands by" and helps wherever she can.

Meet the Bishop

And speaking of Mr. Barnett—he was probably the stellar luminary of the players' production of "Nothing But the Truth" Thursday and Friday nights in his character of Bishop Moran. He sang, acted and created the role with vim and vigor, taking the audience with him in his convincing characterization, and appreciating the longest laughs of the performance. And another luminary of "Nothing But the Truth" popped up in the person of Miss Leslie Davis, who is such an attractive young too-dancer that nobody had suspected her of special histrionic ability, probably. Leslie almost staged a riot in her presentation of the "impatient young thing" who had been badly treated to the extent of $200 cash.

The older citizens of Wichita Falls will be interested in a news clipping from the Colorado Springs Evening Telegram of last week, received by Mrs. A. H. Carrigan here. The clipping tells of the endorsement by prominent Springs clubwomen of Mrs. Lillian H. Kerr for appointment as United States senator from Colorado to succeed the late Samuel D. Nicholson.

Mrs. Kerr is well known in Wichita Falls, having been reared in Archer county and having visited Mrs. A. H. Carrigan of this city almost every year since her marriage for a few days on route to or from her parents home, up to the time of her mother's death, a year or two ago.

RUDOLPH H. ERMEL WEDS MISS FRANCES COWLING

The marriage of Rudolph C. Ermel and Miss Frances Cowling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Cowling, was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, according to announcements received Saturday.

MISS ELIZABETH MURRAY

Miss Elizabeth Murray of Buffalo, New York, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. R. H. Delaney at her home, 1711 Tenth street. Miss Murray arrived last week, and has already been the guest at a number of gatherings among the young people.

Miss Inez Adrian is the talented young daughter of Mr. and Bert Adrian, and is at present in the limelight as a pianist for the Community Orchestra. However, Inez does many pretty and artistic things in which her friends delight, and many of them are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to her spring recital.

Mrs. J. Will Gray is a soprano soloist whose very sweet voice was heard to special advantage in the beautiful cantata given last Sunday evening by the First Presbyterian choir, under the direction of Mrs. Lois Parker. Mrs. Gray is another gifted young musician who is generous with her talent, and she is frequently heard at local gatherings.

The members of the D. A. R. enjoyed their monthly luncheon Saturday, meeting at the Wichita Club.

The table was most attractively decorated with silver baskets of apple blossoms, while the covers were marked with pink crepe paper tied with green fern on the graceful shepherd handles, carrying out the spring color motif. The hostesses included Mesdames W. L. Davidson, D. G. Whitney, Hugh Weaver and E. H. Gilson, and Miss Mary Sybert Clark, and there were 34 members present, representing an exceptionally good attendance.

During the business session, Mrs. Whitney, treasurer for the "real daughter" fund, reported that after all expenses of the funeral of Mrs. Mary Jane Siddons had been paid out of the fund, there was still a balance, and that the chapter planned to use it as a nest egg for a comfortable fund, to suitably mark the grave.

INTERMEDIATE B. P. L. HAS PARTY FRIDAY EVE.

Friday evening the members of the Intermediate B. P. L. of the South side Baptist church were entertained with a "baby" party at the home of Mrs. Oran Nicholson on Princeton avenue. Everyone came dressed in juvenile, and Allen Anderson was voted to have the best costume among the boys and Cleo Wood won the vote among the girls. Refreshments were indulged in until 9:30 p. m. when the guests departed rather early, since "little folks" cannot be out very late.

NEW CAMPIRE GIRLS CLUB ENJOYS HIKE THURSDAY

The girls of the new campfire enjoyed their first hike Thursday afternoon. Arriving at Haven Park they spread a picnic lunch, and after this they had games and exercises. After a short business meeting in which it was decided to have an early morning hike, April 17, the following girls came: Ruth, Edna, Lucille Daily, Meba Heath, Zula Hearn, Ursula Johnson, Pearl Ray, Bertha Jane Semmerville, Isabel Sterling, Ruth Marie Yates and the guardian, Miss Hazel Eristov.

Chairmen Are Appointed for State Music Federation Here Next Month; Many Special Hospitalities Planned

Plans for the convention of the Texas Federation of Music Clubs to be held in this city May 1-4 are progressing splendidly, according to Mrs. O. E. Nichols, the local general chairman. It is known definitely that the national president, Mrs. John F. Lyons, of Fort Worth, will attend the convention here, probably for all the sessions. The state president, Mrs. James Hambrick, of Tyler, will preside, and the business sessions and concerts will be held in the First Baptist church, to which the public is cordially invited without charge.

Among the musical attractions planned is an organ recital by an eminent organist of New York City, under the auspices of the American Guild of Organists. There are already numerous luncheons, dinners and special entertainments being arranged by local organizations in honor of the visitors, of which details will be made public as plans progress.

Mrs. Nichols announces the chairmen of the main divisions of the convention works as follows: Executive committee: Mrs. O. E. Nichols, chairman; Mrs. E. C. Harson, secretary and Mrs. Walter S. Roberts, treasurer and hostesses. Mrs. John Kay, president of the local chapter, and Mrs. J. W. King, ad-

Mothers Clubs Elect Officers; Clean Up Continues This Week; Civic Work Is Progressing Well

Civic work of all kinds is progressing splendidly this spring, and the past week was a busy one among the various organizations.

Two of the mothers' clubs elected officers—the Pat Carrigan and the Barwise; and the Mission Federation elected new officers for the coming year.

The Alamo and Austin Mothers' Clubs held big meetings the past week, with interesting programs and talks at both, and several of the younger ward clubs met.

The Civic League cleanup is continuing through the next week or two, and residents in the outlying districts and the school districts are asked to have their trash ready for the wagons when they come.

The Alamo mothers elected Mrs. Hagar president at a recent meeting; Mrs. Withers, Miss Ray Hibbs and Mrs. Fleming, first, second and third vice presidents; Mrs. Chalmers, secretary; Mrs. White, treasurer, and Mrs. Holliday press reporter.

The Barwise mothers selected Mrs. Harvey Stiles president; Mrs. J. A. Delamater, vice president; Mrs. E. W. Braddock, treasurer, and Mrs. R. J. Ireland, secretary and press reporter.

The Alamo mothers appointed a nominating committee Friday to prepare a ticket for next year at the May meeting, as did the Austin mothers earlier in the week.

William Pennington of Dallas will arrive in the city Monday to assist in concert work. He will also do his spring tuning while here.

KATHLEEN MORRIS Woman to Woman Talks

EVERY DAY IN EVERY WAY THE WORLD IS REALLY GETTING BETTER

By KATHLEEN MORRIS
"America's Most Popular Woman Writer for Women"

Ever since men and women, after a dinner party, have stopped discussing the relative merits of Dickens and Thackeray, a favorite theme has been "Dogs the World Really Get Better."

It holds its own, this subject, even with that burning topical problem—"Where Do You Get It?" And it will hold its own years from now when bootlegging is no longer fashionable and prohibition and murder, slavery, war, torture, dueling, bigamy, speeding and child labor are all on one footing.

It is not a pessimist who advances that a supreme being, a being of the most heart-chilling theological belief to which I have ever listened.

I don't know whether or not one may find this in any book; he speaks of it as "Mark Twain's religion," but in no written word of Clemens have I ever found it. It is not exactly infidel; there is a supreme being, a being infinitely powerful for evil.

One's heart aches for a second before such a thought; but, presently, one begins to feel again, and in this connection I have found a real stimulus to a more reassuring thinking.

Do we get better? We do, we do, however painfully and blindly and slowly, toward the light. We make mistakes, we delay, we lag, we are slow, but we are moving.

Children are no longer shipped among convicts for savage shores, over-loads no longer claim the villages, but the great right—the rack and thumb-screws are museum curios now, and the insane are no longer stoned through our streets.

Those "Happy" Savages? They were happier in their Lulu forests, says the Arrested Thinker complacently, in 1910, in 1915, in 1920, and undoubtedly in 1923.

Read a few paragraphs of this, and read worship of taboos, of the golden rule, of the golden rule, of the golden rule.

Conspicuous nose pores can be reduced. On your nose there are more fat glands than elsewhere. Sometimes fat accumulates in these glands, when the skin is not active enough. Then the pores become enlarged. You can overcome this trouble by the following treatment: Wiping a soft cloth from very hot water, rather it with Woodbury's Facial Soap, then hold it to your face. When the heat has expanded the pores, rub in very gently a few drops of Woodbury's. Repeat this hot water and lather application several times, stopping at once if your nose feels sensitive. Finish by rubbing your nose for a few seconds with a piece of ice. This stimulating method of cleansing will gradually reduce the enlarged pores. AMUSEMENT CALENDAR FOR WEEK AT LOCAL THEATERS

Strand Will Show 'Famous Mrs. Fair' Beginning Monday

Scheduled for presentation at the Strand theater on Monday is the Fred Niblo production, "The Famous Mrs. Fair," a photoplay version of a play which has been acknowledged as one of the most important contributions of many years to the book of the American drama. If the success which it won as a stage play is any criterion for judgment, the picture should prove an unqualified success, and there is every reason to await the picture's coming with the greatest expectation.

James Forbes, the distinguished American playwright, is the author of the stage play. In it the celebrated players Henry Miller and Dianthe Bates were seen for an entire year on Broadway, and for two years afterwards toured the United States in it, winning approval on every side. Everywhere it was greeted as a really significant drama of American home life, and it presented a problem which is still vital and still unsolved.

The author has composed up his picture play in these words:

"A woman actuated by duty engages in war work, winning honors and the loving admiration and encouragement of her family, but when of her return she is accused by selfish vanity against her own realization is brought home to her tragically that a wife and mother can have a career but not at the expense of her obligations to her home and family."

That is the theme of the play, and the various roles that make it a thing of great humanity are magnificently portrayed. As Mrs. Nancy Fair, Myrtle Stedman adds to her distinguished screen accomplishments, presenting a portrayal that is tender, intelligent, husky, Jordan, as her neglected husband, is likewise splendidly real; Marguerite De La Motte and Cullen Landrie as their two children on whom the brunt of Mrs. Fair's selfishness falls, are just as one would imagine them to be in real life, which is, after all, a great tribute; and Ward Crane, Carmel Myers and Helen Ferguson round out the strong cast in a fine manner.

Many elaborate scenic effects have been obtained, some of the latter especially being remarkable. The feminine characters, all members of the New York "smart set," wear costumes which are the latest in fashionable apparel, and this should prove of interest to the women.

STRAND THEATRE MONDAY TO WEDNESDAY

An Interesting Scene from "THE FAMOUS MRS. FAIR"

Norma Talmadge Eugene O'Brien at Olympic Monday

The extraordinary amount of work and planning required before the actual shooting of a motion picture is exemplified by Norma Talmadge's latest production, "The Voice From the Minaret," adapted from the famous novel by Robert Hichens. This First National production will be seen at the Olympic four days, beginning Monday.

"The Voice From the Minaret" is one of the most lavish and brilliant productions that have ever come to the screen—due to the moving of characters from one section of the globe to another, and calling for a vast variety of settings. London, Bombay, Damascus, the desert—these comprise but a few of the locales of the plot.

The filming of a story laid in America, no matter how massive its effects may be, is a simple matter compared to the task that confronted Director Errol Lloyd when he was given the script of "The Voice From the Minaret." It was not possible to take it in the actual scene, because that would have entailed too much expense and time—a year probably would have been required to complete the production.

Lloyd, therefore, had to reproduce parts of England, India and Palestine on the studio lot in Los Angeles. It was not simply a matter of obtaining pictures for the purpose of copying; there were myriads of small details that had to be dug out by research—all for the purpose of realism.

These precautions are necessary because many thousands who see pictures containing foreign scenes have been in that very locality and if there is the slightest inaccuracy in the setting or the action they are free with their criticism. As a result a director spends many hectic hours in planning and obtaining the assistance of qualified experts, to whom he intrusted the duty of seeing that there are no flaws in the settings, the action, the mannerisms of the actors and "extras" and the language used in the spoken subtitles.

One of the largest settings to be seen in this new photoplay is a reproduction of a massive oriental castle in England. When it was finished it was a formidable mass of stone and plaster as it stood in royal grandeur on the studio set. The exterior was duplicated after a famous castle in Sussex, England, and the interiors were exact reproductions of the actual buildings. Lloyd had copies of the paintings on the walls of the Sussex castle.

The Bombay settings included a replica of the governor's mansion there, with its stately drawing and dining rooms, boudoir and garden; the home of an aristocrat, and the main station of the Club of Sports. The latter probably is the most interesting of the scenes shown in the picture, for it resembles in every detail the interior of an Oriental harem. It is the last word in luxury.

Another scene called for a polo ground. Although this game is played in America, it is not as popular as where Englishmen congregate, for it is a game for blue bloods, and practically only "high society" attend. They are colorful events. It was easy enough to find a polo field—in Santa Barbara, Cal.—but to make it look like an English field was not easy. Many trucks were required to transport the trappings necessary to transform it into an imitation of the Bombay grounds.

Another set that caused no little trouble was that of an alley in Damascus, known as "The Street Called Straight." It contained 22 structures—domes, minarets, citadels and low, flat-topped houses and bazaars.

And, last but not least, the technical staff was called upon to build a church, patterned after a famous house of worship in England.

There are but a few of the "high spots" of the production, but they give a hint as to the immensity of the task facing a director when he starts to film a photoplay.

The story is in keeping with the background it has been given, for it is without a doubt the strongest and most powerful vehicle that Miss Talmadge has ever appeared in. Eugene O'Brien is her leading man in "The Voice From the Minaret."

Clara Kimball Young Comes to Empress Monday

The fine display of emotional strength presented by Clara Kimball Young in her latest photoplay, "The Woman of Bronze," at the Empress Monday and Tuesday, easily surpasses anything this star has ever done. Thanks, too, should be given for the selection of this story which provides Miss Young with so many opportunities for her rare ability. It is a photoplay of intense dramatic appeal, and it moves vigorously throughout—not a single loose end.

The supporting cast also was selected with the utmost care, for every role is played with high skill and sincerity. Great credit is due King Vidor, the director for the careful moulding of this excellent production. "The Woman of Bronze" is certainly the best of his long list of well directed photoplays. He deserves special commendation for the creation of a wonderfully realistic atmosphere in the studio scenes.

Miss Young plays the role of a sculptor's wife who attempts to keep the love of her husband despite his affair with a girl who is his model for the central figure in a great Victory Memorial which he is to submit in a million dollar prize contest.

A close attachment has grown up between Sylvia, the model, and Leonard Hunt, the sculptor. Vivian, his wife, realizes that he is not doing his best work, but she is powerless in the face of this wild infatuation. She determines that she must save her husband from himself and for herself she takes him away to the scene of their honeymoon and tries to make him live over again those glorious days. But she cannot win him back.

Despite Vivian's desperate appeal, Leonard insists that he cannot live without Sylvia. He must go away with her, and he does, but not before he has changed his status, which makes him in his soulless eyes.

Months later, Leonard returns a penniless, wiser man. And when he sees Vivian, he realizes that in her face is the expression he had sought for his statue, the compassion of victory. Would she open for him, and begin all over again? But Vivian's heart is chilled by suffering.

The story is brought to a swift climax, and here Miss Young has the greatest opportunity of her career for that type of high emotional acting in which she excels.

And it is a story of absorbing interest throughout—this drama of a wife fighting desperately for the love she deserves. Every moment brings forth a new emotional reaction.

It should be noted that "The Woman of Bronze" is taken from the famous stage success, also that the same play is being presented at the Palace Theater in Wichita Falls Monday evening by Margaret Loomis, one of the foremost actresses on the legitimate stage. This provides the opportunity to compare the work of two of the greatest performers in both the movie and legitimate stage, in the same play at the same time, an incident rarely occurring outside of the great producing centers.

Olympic Is All Dressed Up in Spring Garb

The hundreds who are planning on going to see Norma Talmadge in "The Voice From the Minaret" at the Olympic theater Monday will find that popular playhouse all dolled up in its new spring garb, uniformed ushers and everything. The lights will be changed from the warm purple of the winter season to gold and green with a number of decorative schemes worked out here and there.

The ushers will be costumed in blue and white Dutch dresses and caps.

The seat covers have been put on all lower floor seats and give the house a fresh and cozy appearance.

The Olympic has booked a number of the very finest pictures released for the spring and summer season including William de Mille's "Glimpses of the Moon," Pola Negri in her first American made picture, "Bell Boy," Marion Davies in "Adam and Eve," Theodore Roberts and May McAvoy in "Grumpy," Thomas Meighan in Rex Beach's "The Never Do Well," George Meford's production, "You Can't Fool Your Wife," and Gloria Swanson in "The Prodigal Daughter."

MARGARET ANGLIN HERE MONDAY IN 'THE WOMAN OF BRONZE'

Splendid Tribute Famous Actress Coming Monday

One of the finest tributes ever paid to one artist by another has been given to Margaret Anglin by Gertrude Atherton, whose "Black Oxen" is undoubtedly one of the most talked of books of the season.

The hero of the book, a young playwright, or rather aspiring playwright, reads the last act of the play to several critics. Their consensus of opinion is revealed as follows:

"Dispute was not over the last act, an act so daring in technique that they were loath to believe that even Clavering, whose striking gifts they had always recognized, could 'put it over.' Moreover there was only one woman on the American stage who could act it and that was Margaret Anglin. If it didn't appeal to her he might as well dock it. The younger actresses, clever as some of them were, had so far given no evidence of sustained emotional power."

The scene in question in the book deals with a twenty-five minute telephone conversation in which the woman is alone on the stage talking through the instrument with the man who holds her destiny in his hand. Not an easy task, and in paying that tribute to Miss Anglin Mrs. Atherton knew where she spoke.

Before writing that paragraph the authoress had evidently seen Miss Anglin in "The Woman of Bronze," in which she comes to the Palace theatre on Monday night, for in her present vehicle Miss Anglin really plays a scene little less difficult than the one pictured in the novel in question. For the climax of the third act Miss Anglin plays a scene at a tea party, in which she knows that her husband is about to leave the house with her own cousin, that her own happiness and future is crumbling to ruins, she hovers perforce with her guests, pours tea and acts the charmingly inconsequential hostess, while her heart is slowly tearing itself to pieces. Sceldom has a more difficult scene been written, than this, and Mrs. Atherton, although not questioned, would undoubtedly admit that it was with a mental picture of Miss Anglin's brilliant work here that led her to pen the words that are one of the most noble and public acknowledgments to ability ever made.

PALACE THEATRE MONDAY NIGHT ONLY

MARGARET ANGLIN

Douglas McLean In "Bell Boy 13" At the Empress

Thomas H. Ince has produced the cleverest comedy farce of the season in "Bell Boy 13."

Here is a picture that offers something absolutely novel both for the exhibitor and the fan—a farce with a laugh a minute that still tells a story and carries a love interest that can not fail to win sympathy and hold the interest.

Instead of tossing aside all pretense at plot and letting anything under the wire that might get a laugh, in the usual farce style, "Bell Boy 13" is built on the firm foundation of real story value that adds one hundred per cent to the effectiveness of the countless funny situations.

It is comedy at its best with some new "gag" every minute to bring a new laugh. There isn't a forced situation from start to finish, the natural action of the story having been developed in a fashion that keeps the mind alert for the next move.

When the story "Bell-Boying to Beat Uncle" from which the picture has been adapted was first published, Ince was so pleased with the ingenious idea and novel complications which it carried that he sent a special emissary to New Mexico to buy the screen rights.

The author, Austin Gill, always developed into a sparkling comedy that carries an appeal for every member of the family. The thrills have not been forgotten, either. Combined with the skillful characterizations of an ideal cast, the entertainment of the story and the sure-fire laughs of the situations which are utterly ridiculous, but never absurd, they carry a punch that puts "Bell Boy 13" into the front ranks of the snappiest farces ever screened.

Aside from the big entertainment value of the picture, the popular figure of the bell boy about whom the farce is woven offers unlimited exploitation possibilities. Tie-ups can be put over in connection with this production that not only will "sell" the public, but also bring new patronage into the theaters where it is shown.

"Bell Boy 13" will be the attraction at the Empress from Wednesday to Saturday.

Same Play on Stage in Movie

Theater goes of Wichita Falls have an opportunity this week that comes to few places other than the large cities, that of witnessing the same play in the same week both on the stage and on the screen, and in each instance with the principal role portrayed by one of the leading actresses of America. In fact it so happens that the stage version may be seen one evening and that of the screen the following day.

Monday night Margaret Anglin is here in "The Woman of Bronze," while on Monday and Tuesday Clara Kimball Young will present the screen version of the same play.

No doubt many will take advantage of the opportunity to compare the relative merits of the two productions.

Will Bring Back Sweet Memories

Did you ever notice how you sometimes "find" yourself humming over and over again the fragment of some song that has lingered in your memory. It has left an impression that brings happiness to you as you unconsciously repeat it to yourself. And this is exactly what will happen to you when you see "Mighty Lak a Rose," which will be presented at the Empress soon. The theme and the scenes of the play will drift back across your memory like the strains of some old, unforgettable song. While music and its power to heal wounds of the heart is the motif of the story, there is still a deeper and more potent power present.

Do you often wonder what it is in some pictures that make them echo in your heart—like "The Miracle Man" or "Over the Hill" or "Humoresque"? You pay to see it! But you can't see it! It doesn't show on the screen! But it's there, and it will get you! "Mighty Lak a Rose" has it—in a different way. A story as gentle as a mother's lullaby, yet as stirring as the trumpet blasts of a military band.

DADDY

Jackie Coogan in 'Daddy' Comes to Strand Thursday

The complaint is frequently urged against the screen that it has relegated the art of acting to a back seat and has emphasized the importance of "type"; that the capacity to reveal a wide variety of characters is no longer encouraged but that the screen players are chosen for their resemblance, fancied or otherwise, to the part to which they are assigned.

In the old days a player would assume Hamlet tonight and Petruchio tomorrow, and he would be in tragedy at one performance and in comedy at another. He was like a violinist whose program must include numbers light and gay and numbers grave and tragic. He must sound all the strings that vibrate to the human emotions. Until a player on the screen is ready to perform in all the roles of the most divergent sort he is not deemed worthy the high title of actor.

Then came the screen art and the search for types. Always the player appeared in the same characteristics. The comedian was always funny, the society player was always in dress clothes, the grotesque character was always in the same person's hands, the hero was always virtuous and be-cured, the heroine always beautiful, young, and ingenuitous. Never did a player desert his or her set and fixed characteristics and thus it comes about that the screen is frequently rebuked for discouraging versatility among its stars. It is true that there are some noble exceptions to this rule, but they are the more notable because they are so few.

Little Jackie Coogan is the supreme exception to this rule. Circumstances of his course, by his extreme youth, he has not been given roles that belie his age, but if he were called upon he could give a cameo performance of any block differing only from the work of a mature genius as a miniature differs from an oil portrait. For Jackie reveals with ease the entire realm of human emotions. This fact is firmly and finally established in his performance of the role of Jackie Holden in "Daddy," which was written for little Jackie by his father and mother.

Coming to the Strand Theater "Daddy," for the first time in Jackie's brief artistic career, gives him opportunity to reveal the depths of tragedy. It is not a mournful, harrowing picture, but there is one scene in it which takes the little actor to the edge of the very abyss of despair—not the petulant, shallow sorrow of careless childhood, but the poignant heart-rending sadness of a human soul to which no age can be assigned. The scene is brief and is preceded and followed by the smiles and laughter always associated with this little genius; but within the limits of its briefness this episode will move the most sophisticated spirit and stir the hardest heart, provided there be left in them a spark of real humanity.

Without equivocation, this one episode preserved on the screen will forever indicate little Jackie Coogan as one of the greatest actors of all times, and so long as human hearts are susceptible to the influence of human appeal, so long will Jackie maintain his place among the brilliant stars of the acting world.

The Times Ideal Home Beautiful is rapidly assuming the proportions of a real house. With the frame work just about completed and the garage already up. As the spring days come, this location, which was purchased from Jerome Stone, appears more and more desirable, and H. P. Johnson, upon whose advice this lot was selected, declares that there is an increasing demand for home sites in the immediate vicinity of the Home Beautiful. Bert Adrian, the contractor, is right on the job giving his personal attention to seeing that only first class materials and workmanship go into the building. This is characteristic of Mr. Adrian, who believes that careful building always pays in the long run. A number of visitors to the Home Beautiful have expressed their approval of the selection of lumber. Lumber, today more than ever before, is being accepted as the ideal material for home building due to the fact that it is cheap, practical and easily procured. The lumber in the Home Beautiful is being furnished by the Galbraith-Foxworth Lumber Company and only the best is being used. The Lewis Metal Company is finishing the tin work and gutters because every detail of this home must be ideal and durable. In this age of cement no home is considered complete unless its foundation, walks and drives are of this indestructible material. It is also essential to have this work carefully and expertly done, therefore the Trinity Portland Cement Company has been selected to carry out this important detail. An otherwise perfect structure can easily be ruined by the sash doors and mill work. This responsibility is safely in the hands of the Wichita Falls Lumber & Building Company. The great advancement in home hardware is displayed and used in the Home Beautiful by the Noble-Little Hardware Company, who have kept right in step with the rapid development of this line of building essentials. In these modern times the bathroom has come to be of the utmost importance. From a standpoint of sanitation, attractiveness and practicability tile is absolutely necessary. The Wichita Builders Supply is furnishing the tile for the ideal bath room. Possibly no other part of the home means as much to the happiness and comfort of the family as the plumbing. A man who makes a study of his business was selected in George W. Winburne Jr. for this work. In the process of making a house into a home, if there is one element more important than the paint and paper it has not been discovered. A livable, artistic whole can be achieved or marred by the right or wrong steps in this connection. The Charles E. Watson Paint Company has proved in Wichita Falls that any home builder can safely place this matter in their competent hands. A large part of the attractiveness of the modern home depends upon the taste and skill with which it is decorated and furnished. McConnell Bros. and Freear Furniture stores have been selected to furnish the ideal home. From the Brennil window shades throughout and the Wicker in the sun room which will come from Freear's, to the living room and that all important room, the kitchen, which are in the hands of McConnell Bros. Good taste, beauty and economy will be the chief considerations. It is planned to incorporate these modern electrical appliances which

Your Home Can Now Have Electrical Refrigeration

FRIGIDAIRE, the electrical home refrigerator, maintains a constant, dry, cold without the use of ice. It has no sissy drains, no drip pan to empty. It is self-contained and automatic. It not only keeps food in perfect condition, but it freezes your favorite drinking water into ice cubes for table use. It chills salads and dainty desserts. And yet, it will probably cost you less to operate than you now pay for ice.

Let us demonstrate Frigidaire to you. Booklet will be mailed on request.

"Wired for Electricity"

What Should It Mean?

The "house for sale" advertisement boastfully says "Wired for Electricity" but what it should, in most instances, say is—"Just wired for a few lights."

Rapidly changing times have brought forth new standards—in the electrical industry as well as in others. The time was, not so long ago either, when people would ask: "Is there running water in the house?" For many folk still drew water from a well in the back yard, and a house with "plumbing" was modern with no further questions asked.

Today, however, the modernness of the home depends not upon the mere fact that it possesses plumbing and is wired but upon the standard and quality of that plumbing and wiring.

To many, who have recently built homes which they thought complete and modern, there has come the realization that too little attention was paid to the electrical plans and specifications. They unfortunately thought the wiring of the house just a detail—to be considered on a price basis only.

The time has come when the completeness of the wiring in the home is the thing that counts. Three outlets per room and an allowance for electrical work of at least three per cent of the total building appropriation are conservative standards by which to judge the completeness of any wiring job.

Check up your home, or the home you are planning to build by one of these standards. The Home Beautiful will be an example of completeness in wiring.

have become essential in this day of household efficiency. Paramount among them will be the Hoover electric sweeper, furnished by Perkins-Timberlake Company, and a small motor-driven refrigerating machine, the Frigidaire, furnished by J. D. Jackson, the local representative of the E. M. Drake Company.

These modern electrical conveniences are useless unless the home has the proper electrical wiring, and so give that desirable effect of safety, neatness and cordiality. Careful and proper illumination is also necessary. The Dosch Electric Company has proven its ability to achieve this result.

Economical and dependable heating will be assured by the use of cast-iron radiators furnished by the Williams Radiator Company.

The Wichita Falls Building & Loan Association offers to assist the ultimate buyer of The Times Home, to finance the deal through a long period of time on an easy payment plan.

Not one detail is being overlooked in the building and equipping of this ideal home, and as the use of such perfection, when the home is opened to the citizens of Wichita Falls for inspection, a Studebaker car will be plying in the garage.

Uncle Sam's Building and Loan

The building and loan association plan of amortizing a loan received no mean endorsement when during the past month representatives of the United States and England agreed on a definite plan whereby the $4,600,000,000 loan to England will be paid in 62 annual installments, clearly a building and loan association on a gigantic scale. The annual payments will average slightly more than $179,000,000. The formal details are slightly different but the essentials of the building and loan plan are there. At the end of 62 years this loan with interest will be repaid; at the end of 90 months the loan that we will make on the Times Home Beautiful to help the ultimate owner possess it will, in the same way, be entirely repaid. The one is year, the other months. This institution will help any good man own a home in Wichita Falls. Come to see us now.

CARPENTER TELLS HOW GERMAN WOMEN CUT COST OF LIVING

ECONOMIC HOUSEKEEPING MADE NECESSARY BY CONDITIONS THAT RESULT FROM LATE WORLD WAR

Behind the Scenes with the Wife of a Bank Clerk—She Has a Five Room Apartment at Four Cents a Month but Has to Pay for Her Heat—Raw Potato Pancakes Which Save Fuel and Fat—Horse Meat for Sausages and Hamburger Steaks—Shopping Cards and Bread Tickets—Servants for a Nickel a Week and How They Earn It—The Housewives' Fair for Old Clothes and Its Show Where Poor Aristocrats Can Sell Their Heirlooms.

CARPENTER'S WORLD TRAVELS.

BERLIN, GERMANY. I want to tell you how the housewives of Germany are trying to make the ends meet. I have talked with scores of them in different parts of the republic, some who were rich before the war and whose incomes are now almost nothing, and others whose husbands are doing a fairly good business or getting big mark wages in fast-running factories. The problems are much the same as those of their American sisters. The prices of everything are scraping the skies, and most of the incomes, while they bulk large in marks, are a bagatelle compared with their purchasing values of 1914.

In the first place these German women are as thrifty as a porcupine or a mink. They take good care of their homes and their husbands. They know what everything costs, they watch the ups and downs of exchange and figure on every purchase to the tenth of a cent. Nevertheless they have their troubles all the day through. I have just had a talk with the wife of a bank clerk who has a nice apartment of five rooms and a kitchen in an excellent neighborhood. She has a family of four, herself, her husband and two little children. Of the latter, one is a plump, blue-eyed girl of 3 who wants pieces between meals and the other a scraggly-looking boy of 10 whose capacious stomach is perpetually empty. This woman says her troubles begin before she gets up, and keep on until she crawls under the red feather pillow commonly used by the better class here in a feather bed cover.

Before the war it was forty dollars a month and now it is equal to one of our cents a week. This is due to the new housing law by which she pays several times the pre-war rent in marks. But the old rent was in gold, and the present rent is in paper which has been so inflated that a ten mark note is not worth as much as the paper on which it is printed.

Few Hot Times in Old Berlin. Her chief trouble here lies in the heating. Before the war this was included in the rent, but now the tenant must pay for the fuel, and coal is so high that her heating bill amounts to twenty thousand marks a month. This, in 1914, would have been five thousand dollars and it is still one-sixth of her husband's income. Even at that she can't afford to have a hot water system. She has to supply her own heat allowance very much according to the financial standing of the people in each apartment house, and each apartment house is established by law, consisting of two tenants elected by those who live in the building. The council takes the days of the week when hot water can be had, and all the tenants must pay for the coal. The family is large and she has to have a hot bath all around on these four heating days of the month. If my friend wants to clean house, she must either have her water heated on an expensive gas range or put a fire in the little coal stove which will heat most every German kitchen in addition. She tries to piece her coal with the fallen wood which the women bring on the backs into the city for sale.

Marking from Head to Mouth. The next big trouble is the marketing. Most women do this themselves, shopping at the stalls and buying only the cheapest. The food costs too much to trust this to a servant. The wife of my bank clerk takes two shopping bags with her and bring her fish, meat, fruit and vegetables home in her arms. There is a market in each district, and it is seldom too far to walk. She never knows what she is going to have or what it will cost. The prices are often published, but the mark may jump up and down every day and may change while she is shopping. Yesterday she was asked two thousand marks for a pound of butter. She waited until today to see if the dollar would not fall and butter come down, but it has risen and she has bought margarine. Indeed butter is an extravagance for the wife of a bank clerk who is now earning less than ten dollars a month.

Preparation of Raw Potatoes. And so this morning the clerk's wife tramped on from store to store trying to find something for dinner. The time went and she saw that the children would soon be home from school. She wondered what she could get that would not cost too much. She decided on Kartoffel puffer or potato pancakes, an article of food which takes the place of the hot dogs peddled about in our cities. She bought ten pounds of potatoes which cost twenty cents and, without looking, scraped some to a jelly. To this she added a little flour and then salted to taste. She fried the cakes in boiled black coffee and the children thought them delicious. The evening meal of this family often consists of chopped herring mixed with a little margarine spread upon bread, and then now and then have some other fish and perhaps twice a week some horse-meat served up as beef.

Horse-Meat Dishes as Beef. The Germans pronounce roast-beef "Ross-beef." The word Ross means horse before the war it was a common joke to say the horse-killing establishments and slaughter houses. The animal is killed and the forefeet with a sledge and the meat cut up as a country butcher cuts up a steer. The meat goes to the horse-butcher shops, who sell it as such, each cut bringing its price. Fried bits of fried horse-tenderloin yesterday I tasted like beef or venison with sugar, sprinkled with salt. I asked one of the butchers whether many people are now buying horse-meat. He replied, "Yes and the number is increasing. The people usually take only a little at first but they return next day and often become regular customers." This man says there is no reason why horse-meat should not be eaten, that the horse is cleaner than the pig which wallows in end tails all sorts of vile food.

In the palace of Kaiser Bill one room is given over to the sale of heirlooms of every description brought in by reduced prices. The women come to visit their valuables for whatever they will bring or go home with a treasure. The German women come to and in the girl and not to the man. The girl wants to know the number in the family, what kind of food she is to have, and whether the washing will be sent out or not. She even asks as to the relation of her employer, sometimes collecting to working for a day, and sometimes preferring such places because the girls have no money. The girls are not permitted to put in anything detrimental to the character of the servant, and if the girl has been dishonored, she is not permitted to put the word honest from her statement. Before the war a domestic maid for her husband's office would have a salary of twenty to thirty marks a month, but now she must leave the house every Sunday after the day's work, and she must carry a basket of provisions for the family. The old maids will receive for their services, fruit and vegetables without boiling. The apprentice pumps the air out of the tires after the staff is put in and presses the lid down. In the mountains of Virginia, where I live in the summer, they have a similar way which the women call washing. About the room were women showing the visitors how to make meals cheaply and how to prepare fish, so that it is as whole some as meat and much cheaper. They have plans of reducing the supply of space by turning the living room into a bedroom at night. In this the dining table can be changed into a bed and the lounge into a bed.

Shopping by Card. But to return to the wife of the bank clerk, I have taken a class which had fewer and smaller raises of salary than the average mechanic or the employes in the industries. He is really one of the great army of installing students and professors and those who have fixed incomes which they are not able to materially raise. The wife of my bank clerk has troubles also in her shopping card. Certain things are so scarce in Germany that they are rationed by the government. Domestic sugar is much cheaper than foreign sugar, and the ration is always given to the government reports as to the former. She is fortunate if she has a young baby, for she is allowed more sugar for such persons, and the same applies to milk for which baby-and-mother ration cards are always given. Coal and coal cards are issued for each kitchen stove. My lady friend often goes to her coal dealer to see how many more she can get. Coal is scarce and she may try to add to her supply by slipping around for dealer to dealer. The coal is sold on the side. She sometimes carries a little paper bag of coal home with her. She watches also the prices of food. Her friends tell her if they know they are going to be raised in that case she runs out and lays in enough for two or three weeks if she has money ahead. She does the same with all food supplies and thus keeps down her bills.

Bread Tickets Still Used. One would think that bread tickets had passed away with the war. They are still in use, but only to those who had a low fixed income in 1914. Such families are not allowed to have a four-pound loaf of black bread a week per person at a price of less than one mark, which is about two hundred marks, whereas if one has no ticket the same loaf will cost several times as much. Such tickets are given to the holder of the apartment upon proving the size of one's income; but many families are so sensitive that they would rather have their bread for a month rather than see their janitor know that they are so poor as this indicates, while others who make larger incomes often give false reports and thus get the tickets.

Cooks at Five Cents a Week. Think of having an excellent cook or a maid-of-all-work at five cents a week. That is what thousands of families are getting in Berlin. There in Berlin, and still they cut the number down to the bone. The wages are not so important, for a woman may pay for a girl in a corner than the cost of one pound of bad margarine. The food is the big item. The family which formerly had two or three servants now has only one, or perhaps none at all. It used to be that a family of three in a five room apartment would have one servant who received from three to eight dollars a month, and in addition a present equal to one month's salary at Christmas. Such a family now does its own work and, if the apartment has a large kitchen, the three servants of the past have been down to one.

What Hired Girl Does For a Nickel. What does the German household servant do for her nickel, a week? The sum is not enough to buy her the cheapest pair of coarse cotton stockings, but she has to live and thus gets her food. In the first place, the servant must scrub the apartment from daylight until far into the evening. She sleeps in a little cubby hole in the wall, and receives most of her company out in the street or at the dance hall where she goes now and then. She must rise in time to clean the living rooms and have breakfast ready at eight. She must make coffee and lunch at midday and bread and the substitute which takes the place of coffee in the afternoon, and have supper prepared by seven o'clock when the head of the family comes home in the evening. In the meantime she has to clean the dishes and wash the silver, or sew and darn for her mistress. In most cases she washes and iron the clothes of the family twice every month, and does other odd jobs as she has the time. If the girl comes from the country and has a servant, she is a servant. Her mistress considers her especially valuable for she can furnish the family with butter and eggs at reduced rates, and besides she does the extra in the way of washing and ironing.

Before the World War and Now. An American housewife would think a servant who would do all of the above things without objection

CAN you tell the difference between the best things to eat and ordinary food? Musk melons can be fit for a king or taste like a raw pumpkin. Sweet corn can be tender or wooden. Little beets and carrots can be juicy or tough. Peas can melt in your mouth or be hard as bullets. Cucumbers, beans, radishes, lettuce, onions—all can be the best or the worst quality, depending on two things—on freshness and on whether the seed you plant has been carefully bred for quality.

Perfect freshness can be insured only by having your own garden—for superior quality plant Ferry's pure-bred Seeds. They have been developed by the largest and best equipped garden seed organization in the world. The finest parent plants are deliberately selected; the unfit are destroyed. Guesswork is eliminated.

Out Of Proportion

In nearly all communities natural gas rates are entirely out of proportion to the costs of other necessities. The saving effected by the communities supplied with natural gas is very large in dollars and cents, for it is the cheapest fuel as well as the most effective.

Out of this saving natural gas companies should be recompensed in sufficient amount to get a fair return on the value of their properties, because the investing public, from whom the necessary money for extensions must come, will not provide funds unless assured of a reasonable return.

Conservation of gas and proper rates for its use will enable the supply to be maintained for years to come. Wastefulness and unwillingness to pay reasonable rates will quickly decrease the amount available to the public.

Overland Car that Bucks Described By Local Dealer

"The Overland car is built to stand any strain no matter how great," declared R. A. Ebner of the Overland Motors Company last week.

"One of the best examples of stamina of the Overland is the recent exhibition of the 'novelty gasoline bronco' at the National Western Horse Show in Denver," said Mr. Ebner.

"A distinctive surprise was sprung when a Willys-Overland representative introduced a 'Buckling Overland.' This gasoline bronco was made by 'eccentric' wheels placed three inches off center which caused the automobile to 'walk' and buck like a playful spotted Mustang."

"By this wheel displacement each hub or axle described a circle six inches in diameter, carrying the wheel upward and downward, fast and slow, as well as naturally. It can easily be realized that each swerve and turn of the car caused a complete change in the relative position of all wheels and naturally brought about an exciting series of perplexing lurches, jumps, and bucks. The wild and woolly cow-puncher struck to the wheel all through the performance, although the jolts and bucks demanded real horsemanship to hang on."

"There was a tremendous strain on the springs which was estimated as being equal to a continuous shower of blows of 500 pounds intensity on each spring, and the diagonal wrench strain to the chassis when all four wheels were running in different positions was equal to the combined wrenching weight of six cars. A standard Overland car was used with nothing added or taken away and there was placed on the chassis an affidavit by the service manager, in whose charge the car was kept during the show, that not one single adjustment, repair, replacement, or attention of any kind other than gas, oil and water was needed."

E. L. JONES IN CHARGE OF WHITE TRUCK DEPARTMENT

E. L. Jones has returned to Wichita Falls to take charge of the White truck department of the Overland Motor Company.

Mr. Jones is a former resident of Wichita Falls and declares he is glad to be back and looks forward to a prosperous year, as business conditions here seem to be splendid at the present time.

The White truck department has about $3,000 worth of parts in stock and are in a position to serve anybody's truck at any time, Mr. Jones says. He declared last week that the variety of parts carried here is so extensive that a new truck could be assembled without any difficulty.

Common Sense by New Hudson Has Both Pedestrian and Driver Needed

"When your grandfather was a boy, the firm of Hildreth & Smart, were building fine custom carriages. Throughout the country they have been famous for years as masters in body design and good workmanship. They have built the finest Hudson closed body types for years," declared Lloyd Weaver of the Lloyd Weaver Auto Company last week.

"Now they are putting all their efforts, all their body building knowledge into one model—the all aluminum Hudson sedan. Beautiful in appointments, mounted on the famous Super Six chassis, it is the most beautiful Hudson ever built."

"As to the Essex car, it stays young because of its 'hidden values'—things that you and others might never notice, yet vitally important in the life of a car. An unusually strong frame, and a motor that is acknowledged by both foreign and American experts to be the finest of its size. These are some of the 'hidden values' that have made the Essex chassis famous. They are the unusual qualities you get in all Essex models."

"They are the things that save you money for they keep Essex cars in satisfactory service for years," said Mr. Weaver.

The furnace in London's famous Whitefriars glassworks, recently extinguished because the plant was to be moved, had been alight continuously for nearly 150 years.

Mrs. Nicholls, who died recently at Foleshill, Warwickshire, England, had lived in one house 75 years, never sleeping outside it a single night.

Tells Why Folks Don't Recognize Star Autos Here

Bill Robertson, of the Parmenter Motor Company, relates the following incident and follows it up with proof of the point he is bringing out.

"Two friends met on the street recently and stopped to pass the time of day; their conversation finally drifted around to automobiles here."

"By the way," one remarked, "have you seen the new Star car?"

"No, I haven't," replied his friend. "I've read quite a lot about it but as I seldom get out of town, I suppose that I'll have to wait until one comes here."

"Why, there are dozens of Star cars running around town right now—been here for a year or three months."

"You don't mean it. I must be losing my powers of observation for I have never seen one yet. The only low priced machine I've noticed are the same ones we're always been accustomed to."

"That's just it. You haven't lost your observing power at all. You're merely been expecting to see one more example of the usual cheap appearing automobile. And therefore you have taken the Star car to be some other make. There goes a good looking machine. What makes it?"

"Looks like a..." and he named a popular medium priced car.

"There! What did I tell you?" exclaimed the other triumphantly. "That my boy is a Star car! And he led his friend to the Star car dealer's show room to look over the new machines."

"Thousands of people are just like the man in this story," Mr. Robertson declared. "Knowing that the Star car sells at an extremely low price, and believing from what they have seen in the past, that a high standard of quality cannot be gotten for that price, they are looking forward to seeing the usual thing."

"The Star car is wholly lacking in the construction and design of the typical low priced, small automobile. And therefore it is not recognized for what it is, a beautiful, sturdy, and beautiful."

"Consider for instance, the matter of beauty. The appearance of a sedan rests largely on the design of the back. Right here the Star car stands out as superior. Built low to the ground and with large generous curves, its back has the distinction of grace and beauty."

"This is equally true of either the

THE MOTORISTS' PROBLEMS

By WILLIAM H. STEWART, JR.

Motor Department: I have a 1920 rebuilt Cleveland Six. It has had its knock in it ever since I have had it. I think it's in the cam shaft, as the knock dies down as I tighten one of the adjusting screws, but does not stop until all the play has been taken up. I have had it adjusted several times, but it keeps coming back. Would you advise me to have the engine or shaft on low speed, but have good light speed regulator, or the adjustments on the valve stems mentioned above. I have a good carburetor and cleaned. The compression is good. One of the cylinders is scored. One quite bad, and the compression seems weak on two cylinders when cranking. Do you think this is the cause of the knocking motor? I have heard that they are wearing scored cylinders. Is this kind of a job considered good? My car has a magneto for running and a battery for the lights, horn and starter. In case of the battery being out of commission, can the magneto be used for lights and horn? If so, how do we connect it up? Will it advance or retard spark on this car when starting? OWNER.

Probably your trouble is in the valve mechanism. The 1923 model has improved this mechanism and it would be advisable for you to make a complete new outfit. Installation of the new style valve lifter guides, etc., will probably cost you about twenty-five dollars. Have your car in the service station of your local dealer and have this suggestion confirmed. You cannot expect a good running motor unless each cylinder has good compression. Better have the cylinders reground and new pistons and rings fitted. The cause of noise occurs every time I turn a corner. As I throw out the clutch and apply the brake pedal a low grating noise occurs. What shall I do to remedy the trouble? O. T.

Motor Department: Please tell me the cause of noise that occurs every time I turn a corner. As I throw out the clutch and apply the brake pedal a low grating noise occurs. What shall I do to remedy the trouble? READER.

Probably the clutch collar and clutch bearings are somewhat worn or the thrust bearings are loose. Run car with floor boards removed and observe action. Perhaps the differential is at fault. This unit is called into action in turning corners. Jack up one wheel and note results. With engine running and a gear in speed.

Helpful Hint
On cars having stiff clutch springs it is advisable to cover the clutch pedal foot rest with rubber to prevent the foot from slipping. Especially in wet weather. Will this be found helpful and restful to the driver. One can also control the clutch to better advantage.

One of the many mistakes beginners frequently make is to rest the feet on clutch and brake pedals. It wears out clutch collar, making it noisy, and may also cause brakes to drag, wearing them also. The best position is to have both feet near the pedals ready for instant use.

A little oil on the clutch thrust bearings may facilitate gear shifting. It surely will prolong the life of that important member.

The leather of a cone clutch frequently needs an application of neatsfoot oil to prevent slipping. Most of the modern power plants are of the unit construction, where-in the clutch operates within a housing. A quantity of oil may be poured into the housing and the motor started. By dipping the clutch the whole leather may be thoroughly saturated. After this is done the oil should be drawn from the housing and saved for future use. It is advisable to do this at night so that the clutch may be left in disengaged position for some time to permit thorough saturation of leather.

Keep your clutch properly adjusted at all times. If not tight enough, you will soon find it necessary to renew the clutch facing. If too tight, then you will find it difficult to start the car without jerking. This latter trouble is very serious on the other driving members, such as universal, differential, axle shafts, etc.

Motor Department: I have a Ford and have a lot of trouble with grease working out of the rear axle bearings. I have had the left side packed with felt wicks, and the grease worked out after running the car two weeks each time. Is there any permanent way of fixing it? K. S.

Perhaps the bearing is badly worn or the shaft scored on this side. Either of which causes will make an off tight joint difficult to make. Try using a heavier felt and fit it tightly. Also are that shaft is not bent at this point. Use a heavier grease in the differential especially in warm weather.

Motor Department: I have a Model 66 Overland touring car and would like to know how to take the differential apart. The crown gear is chipped and I would like to replace it with a new one. Any information you might give will be appreciated. H. E.

Take off the rear wheels and axle housing cover. Loosen the two large nuts, one on each side of the differential on the axle shafts. Pull the axle shafts out and then by unscrewing the four bolts that hold the differential housing the differential may be lifted out.

Motor Department: In your next issue will you give me the valve timing of the Hudson Super Six, and oblige. OWNER.

Inlet valve opens seven degrees past upper dead center and closes 43 degrees after bottom center. Exhaust opens 55 degrees before bottom center and closes eight degrees after top center.

Motor Department: I have a Cadillac with a Stewart vacuum system. If I happen to run out of gasoline I have to pour some through the plug in top of tank. Is there any easier way of getting the system working again? READER.

Close throttle and choke valve and crank by means of self-starter. This will provide the necessary suction and the tank will fill almost instantly. Then open throttle and engine should start.

Motor Department: I have an Overland car on which the right brake is beginning to give me some trouble. About three weeks ago I had the differential fixed with grease and ever since then I notice that quite an amount of it leaks out through the "right-hand" brake. What shall I do to remedy the trouble? O. T.

Remove wheel and see if felt washer is in place in axle tube. If not, install one. Make sure that the new washer is properly fitted, or you will experience the same trouble.

Motor Department: Please tell me the cause of noise that occurs every time I turn a corner. As I throw out the clutch and apply the brake pedal a low grating noise occurs. What shall I do to remedy the trouble? READER.

are demolished by reckless drivers who try to beat trains to the railroad crossings. Thousands have been wantonly destroyed by running them into water holes in old stone quarries, into lakes or even the ocean, in order to collect insurance.

"Other thousands are dismantled slowly by rural owners who find use for the parts about their farms. Great ingenuity is shown by some of them in utilizing the still good mechanisms of otherwise useless cars.

"In addition to all of these there remain tens of thousands still to be accounted for. There are about 12 million cars in use in this country today. The annual output at present is approximately two million. In 1921, according to statistics official cars were eliminated from service. According to the same report over a million were eliminated in 1922. This means that the number of cars 'passing out' is much larger than can be accounted for in any of the ways discussed.

"A majority of the worn out machines go into the hands of motor undertakers and by them are scrapped so expertly that almost every thing but the sound of the horn becomes a source of salvage. The trade knows these men as 'parts men' specializing in second hand parts for orphan cars and for models so old that manufacturers' stocks have become depleted.

"A visit to one of these motor junk yards is novel. In one corner may be a pile of radiators, in another a heap of axles. Scattered around are large piles of springs, motor blocks, frames and wheels. Even the old frayed cars yield profit. Some of the larger dealers handle several hundred cars every year. In their yards may be found remnants of cars of every make and vintage, dating from 20 years ago."

"Even without hills it is easy to prove that the engine has unusual power. Instead of putting the car up steep grades in high gear, the power can be shown by acceleration tests, making rapid getaways in high gear from a standstill.

"Of course, the power that enables the Pike Peak motor to ascend in high many of the famous test hills of the country serves also to give the car a corresponding advantage in acceleration tests. The demand on the motor is exactly the same for a quick getaway as for a steep hill. The engine doesn't know whether it is going up hill or not. It feels the same load thrown on it in either case, whether it be pulling the weight of the car up hill or overcoming the inertia of the car in starting and picking up speed.

"The ability to accelerate rapidly is of special importance in city use. It is a matter of common experience that the car with the quick acceleration ability, driving on a thoroughfare where there are frequent halts on account of traffic, will out-distance other cars, even though its maximum speed be no greater than the others. The car has the ability to take advantage of every gap in the traffic lanes.

If you pay a thousand dollars for a car and have to buy a new one each year, it is at least twice as expensive as a fifteen hundred and fifty dollar car that looks like new at the end of three years. We believe a Studebaker Sedan is good for five to ten years of useful, satisfactory life. We are not positive as to the real life because none has yet worn out. If, when you trade in your car, you learn that you can get only three or four hundred dollars for it because there is no second-hand market for that make of car, then you must add this extra depreciation to arrive at the real cost of the car. The trade-in price of Studebaker cars shows a very small depreciation, in many sections the smallest of all makes of motor cars. And there is always a ready market for used cars of Studebaker manufacture. Motor car values find their proper levels in used car salesrooms. Visit one and compare Studebaker second-hand prices with others. The result will be illuminating. The built-in value proves itself each thousand miles of use.

"BEST IN THE LONG RUN"

Most Car Models Are Sixes, Though Most Cars Are 4's

Six cylinder cars are gaining in popularity. This is in spite of the fact that 70 per cent of the automobiles being driven today are of the four cylinder type.

But based on the number of different models produced today, 45 per cent are sixes.

These figures are taken from a recent investigation into the production of automobiles in the United States. According to this survey, the number of automobile manufacturers has decreased from 123 in 1921 to 105 at the end of last year. Models produced also diminished, although not as greatly—from 199 to 156.

Production of sixes in 1922 amounted to about 60 per cent of the total. Now it is around 67 per cent. The percentage of eight and 12-cylinder autos remains about the same, while the number of four-cylinder models has dropped from 30 per cent in 1922 to 22 per cent this year.

Ford Methods Applied To Wheat Production

The story of bread is more than 30 centuries old. As far back as history takes us there has always been a cry for bread. Man has labored long and incessantly to wrest from the earth the few grains of wheat necessary to keep him alive, and in some parts of the world even today men and women and children are fighting for bread—just plain common everyday bread, the kind we have in abundance at every meal.

If all the wheat in the world but a single grain were destroyed, that tiny bit of life would be worth more to mankind than all the gold the world has ever known. True, other grains can be used to make bread but no other flour adapts itself to the variety of uses as does that made from wheat and none is so nutritious or palatable.

The sun never sets on the wheat fields of the world and the clock of the reaper is heard every month in the year. Imagine a wheat field of 300,000 square miles, reaching from the tropics to the edge of the Arctic zone—producing a harvest of more than 3,000,000,000 bushels a year.

It was in the United States that wheat raising received its mighty impetus and on measuring the long strides of progress taken by the American people during the last century we can not overlook the part played by the Ford tractor.

When a modern farmer with a little scientific knowledge and a tractor can raise more wheat with a few weeks' labor than could an old Roman had he worked 10 hours a day all the days of his allotted three score and 10 years.

What modern farming methods have done toward abolishing the bread line is nowhere better exemplified than on the Henry Ford farm. When the first flush of autumn has touched the leaves and after the summer's crop has been harvested scores of tractors are put into the wheat fields on the Ford farm to prepare for the next crop. The acreage approximates 2,800 varying according to the amount of other crops. Many people driving out Michigan avenue from Detroit have paused in wonder at this busy scene—one tractor following close upon another, each turning the

License All Drivers Is Plan Of Safety Organizations in Seeking to Prevent Accidents

Safe Drivers Clubs throughout the United States are trying to effect the passage of laws which would require the licensing of every automobile driver in the country.

Thus, they maintain, the chauff would be cleaned, from the wheat, a higher sense of responsibility behind the steering wheel would be felt and automobile accidents in general would be diminished.

Fifteen of the 48 states already have automobile drivers' license laws, but even these laws are considered inadequate. Five of these 15 states place no limit on the age of the driver, while in other states the minimum driving age varies from 14 to 18. Only 11 of the states require mental and physical examinations of the candidate for a license.

Fourteen of the states in the country haven't even a chauffeurs' licensing law.

After Incompetents

These safety clubs do not demand license laws for the taxation to be derived from them, or even the record to be had. Their only purpose is to find some way by which the incompetent, irresponsible driver will be eliminated. To this end, they demand a thorough examination of each applicant before a license is furnished him.

Such an examination would require: Driving over a specified road, accompanied by a police officer, and again under his observation from a machine following behind the applicant.

Working knowledge of the traffic laws.

Working knowledge of the English language, so every driver may understand road signs.

Physical fitness to drive an automobile.

Incapacitated Persons

The last requirement has aroused considerable controversy. There are some advocates of a licensing law who would bar deaf persons from the steering wheel.

They would also disqualify one-legged or one-armed persons, unless they had attachments which would serve as well as their lost limbs for driving.

But in cases where such physically incapacitated persons showed they could handle a car as well as a person with two arms and two legs, these say, the laws should be lenient enough to give them the privilege of driving.

ONE AND HALF FARE FOR MEETING AT SAN ANGELO

SAN ANGELO, TEXAS, April 7.—A fare of one and one-half will be effective on all west Texas railroads for the fifth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to be held here May 21 and 22. Confirmation of this action by Texas lines at a meeting at Galveston this month has been received by Porter A. Whaley, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Definition of the territory within which reduced rates will apply has not yet been announced, Mr. Whaley said. The convention method rather than the certificate plan will govern rates of tickets, it was said.

It is believed that not less than 10,000 persons will attend the convention, at least half of whom will journey by rail.

Wild Animals of All Kinds Rapidly Disappearing

A short time ago the American Society of Mammalogists held a meeting at the American Museum of Natural History, Central Park West, and Seventy-seventh street, New York City. At this meeting were a large number of eminent scientists, among whom was Henry Fairfield Osborn, the president of the museum, William T. Hornaday, director of New York zoological park, Harold E. Anthony, assistant curator of mammals of the museum, and Prof. C. C. Adams of the State University, an eminent zoologist. They all expressed the belief that wild animals of all kinds will in time disappear if something is not done to conserve the wild life. The tendencies of modern civilization were chiefly blamed for this. Dr. Osborn in the course of his remarks, stated:

"We are now witnessing the close of the age of mammals. This elimination by man commenced about 400,000 years ago, but became more acute in recent years."

The doctor stated that when he first went west in 1847 wild game was still everywhere, while even as late as 1850, elk, deer and antelope were abundant in the uplands of Colorado. Nothing in the history of creation has paralleled the ravages of the fur and hide trade, which now, with the bone fertilizing trade, threatens the entire vertebrate kingdom. The legitimate use of furs for protection in cold weather has long since passed. Furs are now a fashion, just as feathers were 20 years ago. Furs are worn in midsummer purely for ornamentation and personal adornment or to make a show of wealth. This condition can be arrested through the creation of sound sentiment and the education of women and children, in the same manner as the National Association of Audubon Society has arrested the destruction of birds but such a movement will be extremely difficult because the fur trade all over the world offers opportunities for money-making with very little effort and no risk. Dr. Hornaday stated that in New York State figures show there are 400 destructionists for every conservationist. In the west there are 1000 to one, in Alaska the ratio is 2000 to one, in Africa there are 100,000 persons destroying wild life to every one preserving it.

These figures are certainly startling and it does look as if it would not be a great long time before all kinds of wild animals become extinct. Here, however, is where the fur farmer comes in, but it will take many thousands of fur farmers to make up in a slight degree for the loss that is continually taking place in the wild. Although these eminent gentlemen are undoubtedly doing their best to do away with the destruction of wild life, we understand that some of them at least are not very great advocates of fur farming; why, we do not know.

Rabbit Furs Coming Into Their Own

Here is where the rabbit raiser comes in, and far ahead of the other large raisers of expensive furs. The rabbit at the age of 12 months has a fur as good as the larger animals and in a far shorter space of time, saving in feed bill, while the others require a longer period to develop. The American fur-buyer for September has the following to say regarding the rabbit fur industry:

Rabbit skin dressers and dyers have improved their product immensely during the past few years and what was formerly an ordinary pel, which could only be made up to sell at a low price, has now become one of the best selling articles in the trade. The dressing has become so good that the leather has considerable strength; the dyeing is lustrous and rich. The finished skins make up into very fine looking garments and the result is that women with limited incomes may be very becomingly furred at reasonable cost. That rabbit skins can be transformed into serviceable furs reflects great credit upon the ability of the fur dresser and dyer. It is one of the interesting features of a business noted for unusual things. Surely this is encouraging information to rabbit raisers, especially as advertisements in the journals have opened a special department for rabbit breeders, enabling their families to be becomingly dressed in the latest mode in the fur, the White New Zealand is as fine as the famous Himalayan fur and they grow to about twice the size of the Himalayan. They are sure to be very popular among the fanciers that are growing fur rabbits. A fur in the natural color is going to be in the best demand. The New Zealand Whites have a heavy coat of fur of the finest texture and I have raised to keep in condition, and you know that means a good hide, for a hide in poor condition will never make good fur. By request of the breeders of the White New Zealand that were present at the 1921 convention of the American Federation of New Zealand Breeders, the following standard was adopted for that variety: The type, weights and points on condition for the New Zealand White to be same as given for the New Zealand Red. Just one more item. Let us compare the New Zealand White with the New Zealand Red. In the white we have a hare that has a beautiful white coat of fur that requires no dyeing, also matures just as soon as the New Zealand Red, and what is more will come up to the standard weight the same small amount of food it takes to mature the Red, the fur being one solid color. Right here is where they have the New Zealand Red beat. The time is coming when the New Zealand Red will be one solid color all over, and when this arrives the New Zealand White will lead them all. Breeders of this beautiful hare, do your part and show the fancy what a fine hare we have in the New Zealand White.

In spite of the tremendous strides of the electrical industry, the gas industry today employs five times as many men and twenty times as much capital as in 1890.

ANNOUNCEMENT

of Interest to MILLIONS of FAMILIES

"I will build a car for the multitude"

Said Henry Ford in 1903—Read how the fulfillment of that prophecy is now made possible through the

Ford Weekly Purchase Plan

For many years it has been Henry Ford's personal ambition to make the Ford the universal family car—to put it within the reach of the millions of people who have never been privileged to enjoy the benefits of motor car ownership.

During the past fifteen years over 7,500,000 Ford cars have been placed in the hands of retail customers—more than a million and a half of them within the past twelve months—and yet there are still millions of families who are hopefully looking forward to the day when they can own a Ford.

And now the way is open.

Under the terms of this plan you can select your Ford Car, set aside a small amount each week and you will be surprised how soon you will own it. In the meantime your money will be safely deposited to your credit in one of the local banks where it will draw interest.

Think it over. Five dollars will start an account. The whole family can participate in it—father, mother, brothers and sisters each doing a little.

Why not start today. Stop in and talk it over with your local Ford dealer. He will be glad to fully explain the details of the plan and help you get started toward the ownership of a Ford car.

LEAGUE NATIONS 'HOBBLED' BY FRANCE SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

FRANCO-GERMAN DISPUTE MAY END IN DESTRUCTIVE CONFLICT IS VIEW OF FORMER PREMIER

THE RIGHT HONORABLE DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, O. M. M. P. (Former British Premier)

Copyright 1923 by United Feature Syndicate. Copyright in Great Britain by the London Chronicle. Copyright in Australia by Australian Press Association. Exclusive World Rights Held by United Feature Syndicate. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited. All rights reserved.

LONDON, April 7.—Is the league of nations a success? It is impossible to answer this question candidly without giving offense to rival partisans. If you indicate the successes already placed to the account of the league, its opponents decry or minimize these triumphs and suggest that you are blinded by attachment to a chimera. The extreme zealots of the league get angry and hint that you are a secret enemy. I mean nevertheless to attempt an answer, for much depends on fearless examination of the progress made or missed.

My first answer would be that it is scarcely fair to pose this question just after the league has been founded only three years ago—much too short a period to afford a test of the working of a significant complex but very delicate and sensitive human machine. There has been hardly time enough even to catalogue and chart the myriads of successes that thread its system. You cannot move a finger at the council of Geneva without touching some delicate nerve and setting it to a condition of quivering protest. The league has, however, been long enough in existence to reveal its strength and its weakness, its power, its potentialities and its perils. It has already achieved triumphs of which its founders may well be proud. The restoration of Austria to life when it seemed to have been hopelessly submerged in the debris of economic, financial and political disaster which had overwhelmed it, is a notable feat of official respiration. The successful effort organized by the league to stamp out typhus in eastern Europe and prevent its spread to the west is also a success worthy of record. The league has conducted a successful campaign, that terrible disease would have ravaged Russia and central Europe and laid low millions out of populations so enfeebled by hunger and privation as to become easy victims to its devastating assaults.

League Branch Active
The labor branch of the league has also been specially active and energetic, and its persistent endeavor to raise and coordinate standards of toil in all countries is producing marked and important results. In addition, great credit is due to the league for the splendid work it has accomplished in alleviating distress which prevailed amongst the famine-stricken areas of eastern Europe and amongst the refugees who fled from the horrors of victorious Bolshevism in Russia and the still greater horrors of Turkish savagery in Asia Minor.

But these humanitarian tasks, praiseworthy though they be, were not primary objects of the foundation of the league. Its main purpose was the averting of future wars by setting up some tribunal to which nations would be bound by their own covenant and pressure of other nations to resort in order to settle their differences. Its failure or success as an experiment will be judged by this test alone. How does it stand in this respect? It succeeded in effecting settlement of the dangerous dispute between Sweden and Finland over possession of the Aland Islands. That success was on the line of its main purpose. Here the methods of the league gave confidence in its complete impartiality. So much can be fortunately not be said of another question where it was in the line of its decision. Its Silesian award has been set on but hardly accepted by both parties as a fair settlement. That is due to the manner adopted in reaching the judgment. Instead of following the precedent in the choice of tribunal, it pursued a course which engendered suspicion of its motives. It created the regrettable impression of anxiety to retain a certain measure of control over the decision. There was suspicion of intrigue in the choice of tribunal and conduct of the proceedings.

The Aland case no great power was particularly interested in influencing the conclusions arrived at either way. Here two powers of great authority in the league—France and Poland—were passionately engaged in securing a result adverse to Germany. The other party to the dispute had no friends and was, moreover, not a member of the league. Britain stood for fair play, but it was not a protagonist of the claims of Germany. Poland had a powerful advocate on the league—a country with a vital interest in securing a pro-Polish decision. In these circumstances, the league ought to have exercised the most scrupulous care to avoid any shadow of doubt as to its freedom from all bias. Had it chosen distinguished jurists, outside its own body to try the case as it did in the Aland case, all would have been well. It preferred, however, to retain the matter in its own hands. Hence doubts and misgivings with which the judgment of the league has been received not only by the whole of Germany, but by many outside Germany.

This decision, and the way Poland has flouted the league over Vilna, served to confirm the idea which prevails in Russia that France and Poland dominate the league. This Silesian award may be just what the fact remains that it will take a long series of decisions beyond evil to restore, or rather to establish, German and Russian confidence in the league. It is unfortunate that countries which cover more than half of Europe should feel thus about a body whose success depends entirely on the confidence reposed in its impartiality by all nations which may be called upon to carry out its decrees, even though these may be adverse to their views or supposed interests. The Vilna fiasco, the Armenian failure, the suspicions that surround the Silesian award, the timidity which prevents the tackling of reparations, which is one question disturbing the peace of Europe today, futile conversations and committees on disarmament which every one knows will not succeed in scrapping one flight of aeroplanes or one company of infantry, all these disappointments arise from one predominant cause. What is it?

Represents Only Half
Undoubtedly the great weakness of the league comes from the fact that it only represents one-half of the great powers of the world. Until the others join, you might as well call the Holy Alliance a league of nations.

The ostensible purpose of that combination was also to prevent the recurrence of wars that had for years scourged Europe, and to establish European peace on the firm basis of a joint guarantee of delimited frontiers. But certain powers with selfish ambitions dictated its policy. It terrorized Europe into submission, and called that peace. No historical parallel is quite complete, but there is enough material in occurrence of today to justify the league, to be a reality, must represent the whole civilized world. That is necessary to give it balance as well as authority. That was the original conception. To ask why that failed is to provoke a bitter and a barren controversy.

I do not propose to express any opinion as to the merits of the maneuvers which led to the defeat of the treaty in America. Whether the senate should have honored the signature of an American president given in the name of his country at an international conference, or whether the commitment was too fundamentally at variance with American ideas to justify sanction, whether the amendments demanded as a condition of approval would have crippled the league and ought to have been rejected, or whether they were harmless and ought to have been accepted—these are questions which it would serve no helpful purpose for me to discuss.

Hobbled by Its Choice

But as to the effect of American refusal to adhere to the league there can be no doubt. It robbed that body of all chance of dominating success in the immediate future. It is true that three great powers remained in the league, but Russia was excluded, Germany was not included, and when America decided not to go in, Britain, France and Italy alone remained of the great powers. The effect has been paralyzing. Where these three powers disagree on important issues where action is required, nothing is done. The smaller powers cannot, on questions where one or more of the great powers have deep and acute feeling, impose their will, and no two great powers will take the responsibility of overruling the third.

Only Minor Questions

It has been allowed to degenerate upon the destiny of the Aland Islands over the rate of which Sweden and Finland had a controversy. It has taken cognizance of disputes between Poland and Lithuania about Vilna, although here its decision has been ignored by the parties. But the acute and threatening quarrel which has broken out between France and Germany over the question of reparations the former resolutely declines to submit to consideration by the league. The treaty of Versailles is so wide in its application and so comprehensive and far-reaching in its character that it touches international interests almost at every point. So that French refusal to agree to reference of all problems, in which they are concerned which may arise out of this treaty has had the effect of hobbling the league. As long as that attitude is maintained, the league is impotent to discharge its main function of restoring and keeping peace.

The dispute over reparations clouds the sky today and only one is finally settled it will cause grave atmospheric disturbances for a whole generation. It is not an impossibility that it may end in the most destructive conflict that ever broke over the earth. It is churning up deadly passions. If ever there was an occasion which called for intervention of an organization set up for the express purpose of finding peaceable solutions for trouble-charged international feuds, surely this is pre-eminently such a case. Not only do the French government decline to entertain the idea of putting the covenant, which constitutes the first and foremost, which threatens peace shall be part of the treaty of Versailles, into operation; they have gone so far as to intimate that they will treat any proposal of the kind as an unfriendly act. The constitution of the league stipulates that it will be the friendly duty of any power to move that any international dispute of

League Is Hobbled by France's Refusal to Submit Question of Reparations—Lloyd George

FRANCO-GERMAN DISPUTE MAY END IN MOST DESTRUCTIVE CONFLICT THAT EVER BROKE OVER EARTH, EX-PREMIER'S VIEW

Is the League of Nations a success? * * * Its main purpose was averting of future wars by setting up some tribunal to which nations would be bound * * * to resort in order to settle their differences. Its failure or success * * * will be judged by this test alone.

In effecting settlement of the dangerous dispute between Sweden and Finland over possession of the Aland Islands * * * the methods of the league gave confidence in its complete impartiality. Undoubtedly the great weakness of the league comes from the fact that it represents only one-half of the great powers of the world. Until the others join, you might as well call the Holy Alliance a League of Nations. The league, to be a reality, must represent the whole civilized world. The dispute over reparations * * * may end in the most destructive conflict that ever broke over the earth. It is churning up deadly passions. If there ever was an occasion which called for intervention of an organization set up for the express purpose of finding peaceable solutions for trouble-charged international feuds, surely this is pre-eminently such a case.

This emphatic repudiation of its solemn contract by one of its promoters * * * is the gravest check * * * it has yet sustained. I do not believe it would have occurred had America with or without clause 10, been a member of this body.

Wherein lies the real power of the league, or, to be more accurate, its possibility of power? It brings together the leading citizens of most of the civilized states of the world to discuss all questions affecting or likely to affect peace and concord among nations. The men assembled at Geneva do not come there of their own initiative, nor do they merely represent propagandist societies engaged in preaching the

Reparation Accepted

This emphatic repudiation of its solemn contract by one of its promoters has been acquiesced in by all the other signatories. Repudiation and acquiescence complete the electrocuting circuit. This limitation of the activities of the league is the gravest check which has occurred had America, with or without clause 10, been an active member of this body. Its great authority, added to that of Britain and Italy, would have made pressure irresistible and its presence on the council would have helped materially to give such confidence in the stability and impartiality of the league that Germany would have accepted, the conclusions come to without demur and acted upon them without chicanery.

A rational settlement of the reparations problem of the league would have established its authority throughout the world. Germany, Russia and Turkey, who now treat its deliberations with distrust and dislike, tinged with contempt, would be forced to respect its councils. The covenant would thus become a charter-respected, feared, honored and obeyed by all. There would still be injustice, but redress would be sought and fought for in halls of the league. There would still be oppression but freedom would be wrung from the clauses of the covenant. Argument, debate and intercession would be recognized substitutes for shot, shell and sword. Wars would cease until the ends of the earth and the reign of law would be supreme.

Feasibility of Power

Wherein lies the real power of the league, or, to be more accurate, its possibility of power? It brings together the leading citizens of most of the civilized states of the world to discuss all questions affecting or likely to affect peace and concord among nations. The men assembled at Geneva do not come there of their own initiative, nor do they merely represent propagandist societies engaged in preaching the gospel of peace. They are chosen emissaries of their respective governments. They are authorized spokesmen of these governments. When in doubt they refer to their instructions and receive their instructions and proceedings are reported direct to the governments. They meet often and regularly and they debate their problems with complete candour as well as courtesy. It is in itself a good thing to accustom nations to discuss their difficulties face to face in a public assembly where reasons have to be sought and given for their attitude which will persuade and satisfy neutral minds of its justice and fairness. It is a practice to be cultivated. It is the practice that is essential in eliminating the arbitrariness of sword in the internal affairs of nations.

It is only thus that international disputes will gradually drift into the debating chamber instead of onto the battlefield for settlement. Wars are precipitated by motives which the statesmen responsible for them dare not publicly avow. A public discussion would drag these motives in their nudity into the open where they would draw exposure to the withering contempt of humanity. The league, by developing the habit amongst nations of debating their differences in the presence of the world, and of curing the judgment of the world upon the merits of their case, is gradually edging out war as a settler of quarrels. That is the greatest service it can render mankind. Will it be allowed to render that service? If not, then it will perish like many another laudable experiment attempted by mankind in the effort to save itself. But if it dies, hope of establishing peace on earth will be buried in the same tomb.

Greece hopes to reclaim 2,700,000 acres of submerged and marshy lands to provide farms for Greek refugees driven out of Turkey.
