

Clara Says Honduran Officials Begged Her to Barter Honor For Her Freedom and Romantic Life

By Universal Service. LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Clara Phillips today in chapter five of her narrative, tells of her arrest in Honduras and her subsequent escape.

play of "Romeo and Juliet." It was from here that so many natives made slaves of her, showered their smiles upon us, threw kisses at us and offered to take us away to freedom if we wished.

CHAPTER V
By CLARA PHILLIPS

The minister then asked, "Which is Mrs. E. M. Young?" Carson pointed to my sister. Carson had told her to take his name as he had gotten her Guatemalan passport under the name of Young.

From the very first we took a dislike to Chief of Police Ruten. He also took a dislike to us. He was our only native enemy, but we reciprocated in kind and did everything we could to embarrass him. When we wanted something that he would not do for us, we went to the higher-ups. That was why the chief could not force us to have our pictures taken or measurements made.

The minister then asked me what size shoe I wore. I told him "2 1/2." He then asked me to take off my hat so he could get a good profile view of me. He looked at my teeth and also examined my hair.
Keep it neatly combed, advised the minister. He had advised that Carson was wanted in the United States for arson. Carson denied this, but was told to put on his hat and go to the penitentiary.
At first it was planned that all three of us should go to the penitentiary. Chief Ruten, however, arranged for a room next to the office of the chief of police, which overlooked the city jail of Tegucigalpa, and my sister and I were allowed to go there. A bed was set up and also our meals were brought in from the Ambros Mundos Hotel.
Of course I did not admit that I was Clara Phillips.
The first night in the Tegucigalpa jail made me feel far worse than I felt the first night I was taken by the Los Angeles county jail. The reason was Etta Mae, but, poor little soul, she was awfully brave and very consoling to me. We had books and would read. We also did some sewing.

At the very outset we received the most prominent and influential persons of Honduras as visitors. Every day they came in numbers. Our visitors were permitted to call, usually by appointment, in the afternoon. We were never to see the chief that we did not care to see anyone in the morning.
Sent Love Notes.
He also wanted us to arise at 7 o'clock in the morning for breakfast. We told him that was too early and requested him to send us our breakfast at 8 o'clock. On some days we had breakfast in bed. We knew that higher officials were for us, so we did these things just to aggravate the chief of police.
"Dosses of notes were thrown through the windows to us. These included requests for appointments, well wishes, plots for escape and everything imaginable.
One day I noticed a little light playing on the ceiling of the room. I went to the window and there I saw a boy flashing a mirror to note up to me. The note was from a man, stating:
"I am at your service. All you need to do is to call on me. It makes my heart ache to see you looking out that window so wistfully. Let me help you."
The boy was acting as a messenger for a man about 32 years old. He was a very nice native. The whole purpose of the notes was to obtain information as to whether I would escape.
Etta Mae said in one of the notes, that he would flash a light at night in the distance. If I cared to go I was to leave my room dark. Everything would be arranged, he declared. He had fixed matters for me to pass the guards on duty.
He instructed me to strike a match if I did not care to go. I did this that night after I saw his signal. I did not care to go. The interception of one of these notes resulted in the arrest of 18 boys, who were freed later.
Another handsome man brought me some rope stuck in his trousers under his coat. He was one of two visitors who frequently called upon me.

Officials Offer Freedom.
Several prominent officials also called upon me in the jail. They offered me my freedom in exchange for my honor. If I would be willing to establish a home there, they said, I could have been liberated at any time, despite all the efforts to hold me.
The most vigorous man connected with our detention was Chief Ruten. Despite his orders we had things pretty much our own way around the police station. We used the telephones when we wished, and we had newspapers to read.
We played ball on the inner court of the police station.
Time went fast in Tegucigalpa despite our confinement.
You can imagine our great interest in all persons coming to the station. We watched every one. One day in the early part of May, Etta spied some one she thought was from Los Angeles. She called me to the window. It was Mr. Lavigne of the Los Angeles Examiner.

The concluding chapter of this remarkable story will appear in the Times tomorrow.
SOME DETERIORATION IN WINTER WHEAT REPORTED
WASHINGTON, June 4.—Some deterioration in winter wheat in all areas except parts of the southwest and on the Pacific coast is reported by the United States department of agriculture in its semi-monthly crop review issued today. The crop generally is reported as having good condition. Oats are in fair condition, only needing sunshine and warmer weather. Barley is in excellent condition. Corn planting has been delayed by rains, while earlier planted corn is weeded and drought and floods have caused injury to the crop in the south and southwest. Hlands generally are good but the crop as a whole is backward.
Cotton is showing deterioration in eastern sections, with considerable replanting necessary and growth has been retarded by rains and cool weather over large areas. Weevils are at work in southern Texas.
Peaches are showing improvement. The outlook for fruits generally is good.
Livestock generally is in good condition, though rather thin in eastern areas due to short pasturage.

BURKBURNETT STORE ENTERED BY BURGLARS
BURKBURNETT, TEXAS, June 4.—Burghart's effect entries to the Liberty Drug Store Monday night sometime after 11 o'clock by forcing the rear door. The cash register drawer was pried open but it contained nothing of value. An ivory miniature set with other ivory goods was taken as well as a number of fountain pens and miscellaneous sundry articles.
An overcoat was left by the intruder as well as some fresh foot prints, which is the only clue of their escape in the case.

GREAT BRITAIN IS TO STRIKE BLOW AT AMERICAN COTTON

PLAN TAX ON ALL RAW COTTON USED BY MANUFACTURERS.

PASSAGE ASSURED IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Bill is Designed to Promote Cotton Growing Within the Empire.

By Universal Service. WASHINGTON, June 5.—What is regarded here as a move by Great Britain to strike a blow at the American cotton industry was made known today.
Commercial Attache Walter J.

Tosar cabled to the department of commerce from London that a bill has been introduced in the British House of Commons providing for a tax on all raw cotton used by manufacturers, the tax to go into a fund for the promotion of cotton growing within the empire.

Passage of the bill seems assured, the cablegram stated, as it has not only the approval of the powerful Empire Cotton Growing Association and of the federation of British industries, but also the sanction and support of the government.

The bill, if passed, will impose upon British textile manufacturers a levy of six pence on each bale of cotton used by them. The funds thus raised will be turned over to the Empire Cotton Growing Association to finance cotton growing experiments in various colonial possessions where climate conditions are thought favorable for its culture.

Officials here interpret the introduction of the bill as a "direct threat against the American cotton industry. They say that for some time British commercial interests have been canvassing the chance of success in an effort to kill the American industry or reduce it to secondary importance, and obtain for themselves a monopoly such as they enjoy in the rubber industry. The passage of the British bill, if it is enacted, will result in a similar situation for the American industry under government supervision. It means, officials decide, that the British have passed from talk to action in their campaign for control of the world's cotton, and that competition of the most serious nature will confront American cotton growers within a very few years.

It is recalled that 15 or 20 years ago less than five per cent of the world's commercial rubber was grown in British possessions, and that under government encouragement British rubber interests have captured the world's markets. During the late war United States rubber users were at the mercy of the British government and could not obtain a pound of the raw material without a special permit.

While declining to comment upon the British cotton bill for quotation, officials here made it clear that the interests of the American cotton industry will be guarded by this government. Protective measures will be recommended at the proper time if they prove to be necessary, it was stated.

MRS. TUCKER'S looks good enough to eat just that way, doesn't it? It's so perfectly clean! That is a remark we have heard made about Mrs. Tucker's time and again. And that is just the way you will feel the first time you open a can of Mrs. Tucker's and see its creaminess and snowy whiteness.

Mrs. Tucker's Shortening is clean and an absolutely pure vegetable shortening. It has all the richness of butter, yet is no more expensive than ordinary shortening. And it comes to you always fresh, for Mrs. Tucker's is made right here in the South.

MRS. BUTLER'S TERRIBLE PAINS

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

W. Philadelphia, Pa.—"When I cleaned house last April I must have overfilled, for after a few days I had terrible pains and aches all the time and was so discouraged I could hardly do my own housework, and I could not carry a basket of groceries from the store, nor walk even four or five squares without getting terrible pains in my back and abdomen and other limbs. I went to visit a friend in Mt. Holly, N. J., and she said, 'Mrs. Butler, why don't you take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My husband said that it did her so much good for the same trouble, I should try it. So I have taken it and it is doing me good. Whenever I feel heavy or bad, it puts me right on my feet again. I am able to do my work with pleasure and am getting strong and stout."—Mrs. CHARLES BUTLER, 1232 S. Hanson St., W. Philadelphia, Pa.

Today's Best Poem

"I WILL LAY HOLD OF GOD."
As the marsh hen secretly builds on the watery sod,
Behold, I will build me a nest on the greatness of God;
I will fly in the greatness of God, as the marsh hen flies,
In the freedom that fills all the space 'twixt the marsh and the skies;
By so many roots as the marsh grass greets in the sod,
I will hearily lay me about the greatness of God.

The Tangle

Letter From John Allen Prescott to His Friend, Sydney Lanier.

DEAR SYD:
You are a friend, I'll tell the world, I don't care what you called me after I saw the check. You have made a mistake, I have not received a basket of flowers. This is quite an entirely different complexion on the foot gift.

You could see, old scout, how much chance I would have had, after she had seen that bill of mackintosh. I believe that I cared nothing more for Paula now when I told her of the tender passages between us before marriage and she had proof that I was still interested to the value of sixteen dollars.

Good Lord, Syd, I never dreamed that there were so many things that you had to look out for when you got married. A man has to "mind his P's and Q's" even with Leslie, who up to date has not shown signs of being jealous.

I have a very decided notion, however, that when Mrs. Leslie Prescott decides Mr. John Prescott is paying the slightest personal attention to any other woman, Mr. John Prescott's name will be "Dennis."

Then to cap the climax, I had a letter from mother the other day in which she plaintively asked me for money and laid it all to poor Leslie's extravagance, that I have not sent her any since I married.

I know that is some of that old maid Bradford's dirty work.

Come on over and advise me, Syd. I am in a devil of a muddle.

JACK.

Tomorrow, Alice Hamilton to her sister, Leslie.—A confession about the necktie.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

If any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and it is worse than an infidelity. — 1 Tim. 5:8. You are not very good if you are not better than your best friends imagine you to be. — Lavater.

HOARDERS.

Have you a weakness for hoarding any particular article—such as old coins, stamps, toasters, china or picture postals? In Galton, Ohio, an auctioneer has been selling an amazing mass of "treasures" accumulated by the late eccentric Mrs. Emma Lee.

Her old house, when she died recently, was found packed to the ceiling from cellar to garret with a clutter of dishes, tinware and thousands of household articles which she had been accumulating and adding to her hoard for 80 years.

The house looked like a warehouse for a general store. So much stuff stood about in boxes and barrels, piled on top of each other, that the owner had only a narrow lane for moving through the rooms.

Through 77 wagonloads of "junk" have been hauled to the dump, the auctioneer says it will take weeks to sell what's left.

Older readers will recall that Cassie Chadwick had a similar weakness for collecting, though she cluttered her home with precious articles such as oriental rugs and porcelains.

The people of Galton are puzzled to understand what caused Mrs. Lee to hoard such an array of articles that she never used—for instance, dishes by the thousands.

But she was merely the victim of an exaggeration of the hoarding instinct that is in all of us. The stamp collector is in her class, on a smaller scale.

And Mrs. Lee, in hoarding thousands of articles, was just as sane as the millionaire who hoards more money than he needs. The rich man can't take his dollars with him when he dies, any more than Mrs. Lee could take her old curiosity shop.

No doubt, she got as much satisfaction out of sitting and contemplating her hoard as the rich man chuckling over his bankbook. She, at least, saved something useful.

The squirrel hoards just enough nuts to last him and his family through the winter. When he gets sufficient, he quits.

The hoarding instinct, peculiarly characteristic of man, is found in very few forms of life. Rats and mice occasionally hoard articles useless to them. In the Yukon there is a mountain rodent known as the "trade rat," which will rot a cabin of everything it can carry to its nest—and leave, in exchange for such stores, a twig or chip of wood. A prospector up there is apt to return to his home and find it filled, with a pile of chips heaped on the floor in trade.

The black bear also will plunder a cabin, even taking a store to pieces, but he carries each article in a different direction—scatters the floor on the ground and the other articles so far apart and away that the owner would have to hunt a year to gather his furnishings together again.

MONEY WON'T START A DEAD HORSE IN A POLITICAL RACE.

Louis T. Carpenter, of Dallas, in announcing that he will be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in 1934 expresses the belief that the "expulsion of a large sum of money in the campaign will be unnecessary," and adds that in his case it will be impossible for him to get it and wouldn't be inclined to spend it if he had.

We are doubtful whether large expenditures of money in campaigns in Texas get the candidates very far. It is necessary, of course, for the candidates to visit the different sections of the state. This alone costs a considerable amount, but if a candidate's record, his platform and his speeches cannot stir up enthusiasm all the money that might be poured out in his behalf will not get him anywhere. The same is largely true with presidential candidates.

The man and his record must be right and his principles must appeal to the people. If these three qualifications are met not much money will be necessary for his campaign. If they are not right all the money that might be expended in his behalf would not get him started in the race.

TOO MUCH SPACE GIVEN CLARA PHILLIPS' STORY.

The Times, along with most of the other newspapers of the country, has been giving entirely too much space to one Clara Phillips, so-called hammer-woman. If any good purpose has been served by all the stuff that has been printed it must be in establishing that those who sin must pay the penalty, or that women are now paying it.

There is a tendency to attempt to make heroines out of women murderers. The attempt has utterly failed in the instance of Clara Phillips. Her story is a particularly good one. There may be some good in printing it. We may as well confess that we doubt this.

Be hospitable, but don't let the flies out with you.

THE POLLY OF POLITICAL APPOINTMENTS FOR EDUCATIONAL POSITIONS.

Governor Walton, of Oklahoma, paid a political debt by appointing George Wilson, farm-labor leader, head of the Oklahoma A. & M. College. Wilson was active in Walton's behalf in the latter's successful campaign for the democratic nomination last summer.

Now Wilson's appointment has raised a storm of protest throughout Oklahoma and especially from the students of the college and members of the faculty. Two members of the faculty have resigned in a body and it is expected that more will do so. Many of the students will not return to the institution next year.

We cannot express any opinion as to Wilson's fitness or unfitness for the place to which he has been appointed. He may be as well qualified as Governor Walton appears to believe he is, or he may be as unfit for such a position as a great many people in Oklahoma believe him to be. But the turmoil and confusion that has arisen over his appointment is an illustration of what can happen when political appointments are made for state educational institutions. Our schools ought always to be kept out of politics. Oklahoma's experience is a good thing for Texas to bear in mind at this time.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHEN IT'S DARK.

When darkness begins to hover over an ending day and the stars begin to flicker like freshly lighted candles in a large room, how our very thoughts soften and our restless spirits reach out for quiet and comfort.

Wonderful as is the light, it does seem as though the darkness were necessary that we might fully appreciate the light.

And so the night comes—with stars, so that we may not be wholly alone and lonely.

But sometimes it is as dark that we have to put our hands out in front of us not to stumble and fall. We may not even be able to see as far as our hands reach—yet by the very fact that we are able to reach, we are assured, in the same manner as when we place our hand in the hand of one we love and feel that we are understood.

The child doesn't worry so long as its tiny finger may clasp the larger, rougher hand that leads it. When it's dark, we look up. There is nothing to inspire one by looking down after dark. And so we talk to the stars and play in the blue fields of the night sky.

What a change comes over the world when it's dark! Even the leaves of the tree droop and the flowers take their heavy nap.

But when it's dark, we are soberest—we can see clearer into our hearts, and into the hearts of others. At such a time the noise of the day is stilled and we are led by an unseen friend into the library of life where its books are explained and its lessons made plain.

We are all very ignorant in some ways. Much of our days is veiled in darkness. But when it's dark, we feel the need of light the most!

JUST FOLKS

ADVISING A BOY.

This is all that I would say As you face the world today: Life, with all its care and doubt And the dangers strewn about. All its hardships and its griefs And its many straggle belts, Has incited joys to give If it honor you will live.

You'll discover many creeds Satisfying human needs, Many ways for men to take For the fortunes they would make; You will see men dwelling high On the mountain of a lie, But the hand that flitches fame Is forever soiled with shame.

Do the thing you know is right, Though you win or lose the fight; Take the loss in gold or fame, Not in self respect or shame; Never leave a dead behind That you fear the world to find. For the bitterest of men meet 'Are the children of Secrit.

Play the friend and play the man, Lead and give whenever you can, And when doubts of right and wrong Rise to fret you, then be strong; However large the gain, Keep your conscience free from stain. If but this, my boy, you do, All the world's most honor you. (Copyright, 1923, by Edgar A. Guest.)

Skin of the human palm is 75 times as thick as the eyelids, so why keep your hands in your pockets?

Things always could be worse. Wouldn't you have a awful time eating if you had no elbows?

Plants grow fastest early in the morning, so you might buy your garden an alarm clock.

Have a story? Do you understand money? Muffin's ambition. Hard to steal circulation.

By ARTHUR BISHOP

(Copyright, 1932, The Star Co.)

The American Agriculturalist tells of a French family, farmers, the Poulains, who have worked the same farm since 1820. For 120 years that family, living in the same house, have cultivated the same acreage. They were plowing there when Joan of Arc was buried alive; when Calvin, the great Protestant, was burning Catholics in Geneva. They have been working that farm more than 600 years, when Columbus found America. The present farmer, Louis Poulain, is the twenty-fourth generation on his farm of two hundred acres. The French people are not dying out. But it's too bad they don't have more children. The desire not to divide the farms keeps the families so small.

Probably the Poulains, as regards the money business, are not doing any royal or noble family in Europe. Letaire said the oldest noble family in his day descended from thieves that had fled from the mainland and settled on the marsh-lands of the coast.

Who can understand money? The mysticists think money is like electricity. We all use it, none of us understand it.

Germany money drops below Austrian and Polish currency. You would say, "You financiers know all about this. You know what Germany has." But at the same time the French franc drops.

Then from Athens came news of a panic among Greek financiers. The Greek money had fallen in value by a sudden increase in the value of Greek money.

When the currency of a nation goes down, it is a disaster. It is when it goes up there is panic. Explain that, please.

Mr. Mussolini, ambitious Italian, evidently a born ruler—for a while claims the Mediterranean for his empire. For a long time the Mediterranean belonged to Carthage, the great Semitic trading empire, and strong enough to tell Rome just where her ships might go.

Then Rome killed Carthage and Rome has had another similar situation. The eastern shore of the Adriatic, civilized and built by Rome, belongs to various temporary hands. It is still a hot spot.

As for the Mediterranean, England has one eye, Gibraltar. The United States has another eye, the Dardanelles, and will hold it probably until Russia takes it. The Mediterranean, cradle of most of us, is not easy.

Frank Munsey bought the Globe and paid for it two million dollars cash. That is the official figure. The Globe is now owned by a trust which combines it with his New York Evening Sun. Numerous little evening papers are being bought and merged into the Globe.

Munsey probably will create it by buying some more of them and knocking them on the head. An appropriate revenge.

In honor of the International Advertising convention at Atlantic City many clergymen mention advertising in their sermons. The most common is to compare it with the devil in the sky. The black clouds of warning are the big black type. The lightning flash is the red type. The rain is the advertisement in color.

Let those that criticize big type ads or advertising in beautiful colors observe how the sky is "advertising" to them. The rain is the advertisement in color.

The Reverend Mr. Knox, chaplain of Columbia University, tells the young students that the devil is their worst enemy. That's a fact. A thousand million human beings say to the devil, "I am your enemy." They never do what they might do.

Mr. Knox says "whoever sners fears." Darwin says that when we sneer we imitate the wolf as it stalks his prey. The wolf is the best, sharpest tooth, getting ready to bite. Sneer, now, and observe what happens to you. The wolf is the right side is uncovered—if you still have it.

Fear, curiously enough, according to the scientists, has a good deal to do with the useless glands. One gland, the thyroid, is the most important. Weakness in another gland makes him an idiot. We are very curiously constructed.

When you speed your car recklessly you are risking the lives of other people. A woman, her daughter and three others put on speed when they were on the road. A rear tire blew out and because of high speed the car left the road, struck a tree, and the three with fractured skulls, concussion of the brain, etc., are expected to die. When you drive 50 miles an hour you bet your life against the possibility of a life blowing out or a wheel coming off. Bear that in mind.

A PUZZLE A DAY.

A clock strikes the hours and every half hour rings a single stroke. How many single strokes will it make during an entire day?

Yesterday's Answer.

That's quite an echo, considering that ever half a century has passed since the man who was the first to use a clock, a matter which side was.

Fifty years from now, future editorial writers will be commending you because you were so accurate. By that time the world's people will have enough money saved up for the politicians to start another war.

Divorces. The divorce rate is increasing because the divorce law is so easy. It is in one year. Shouldn't there be a law that says that a man who has been married in our country for one divorce, should be a million marriages and over 112,000 divorces.

EMERGENCY. How do you act in emergency? Go to pieces or throw your wits into high and speed ahead?

Dr. Frank McGowan, New York surgeon, breaks his right arm when a touring car smashes into the ambulance in which he is rushing to an emergency case. What would he do? Turned the job over to another doctor? Not McGowan. He and his assistant set his arm, bandaged it and drove the ambulance ahead, McGowan apologizing to his patient for arriving late.

Interesting example of how we don't throw the sponge and quit.

You started out here on purpose to buy the lease, but he got it for a fraction of what you offered. You're a sucker."

SEA OF MATRIMONY

By Morris

"The right here in this hotel?" "Buddy, you're developing." Gray exclaimed, with apparent admiration.

"I've been showing her the sights—the lake, the city, the mountains. She lets me take her around in places—trusts me, you understand. She thinks I'm awfully good."

"How do you mean?" "Why, ask her to find another good-looking girl for me—I assure she is good looking—then we can make it a foursome. I'm a great entertainer and Buddy was in love with her. The slightest objection, she's gone."

"She's leaving her here. Buddy broke in, stiffly. His enthusiasm had cooled; he regarded Gray with veiled displeasure. "An' besides, she ain't that kind of a girl."

"Oh! Sorry! I thought from your said—that headcase—bottles in your closet. Look! My mistake, Buddy."

"I'm—Buddy gulped. "I'm going to marry her."

"Oh, fine! Gray's enthusiasm was positively electric. He seized Buddy's hand and crushed it. "Education, indeed! No use for that now, is there?"

"I mean I'm going to, if I can; if she'll consent. She's a real beauty."

"Let me go! With your money? Why, she'll jump at the chance. No doubt you have already asked her—of the amount?"

"The lad shook his head. "She don't have to marry anybody. She's got money—an estate."

"She's older 'n' I am. I reckon she's maybe twenty-five. I'm only a kid."

"Naturally. How did you meet her? Where? Where? I'm a terrible romantic old fool." Gray blushed, his face closer and leaned forward. His face grew with interest.

"Well, sir, it's a regular story. Like in a book. I was in a restaurant with a couple of fellows and a girl she was with struck her."

THE MARKETS

COTTON—GRAIN—FINANCIAL—LIVESTOCK—PRODUCE

COTTON MARKET

New York Cotton. NEW YORK, June 5.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of nine to 25 points. Liverpool futures were not quite up to expectations but a continued good spot demand was reported in the English market, and there was covering by recent local sellers, owing to less favorable weather reports from the south. There was some irregularity right after the opening as a result of continued liquidation but the offerings were soon absorbed and the market sold about 20 to 25 points net higher during the early trading with the latter advancing to 33 1/2, or the highest price touched since the break last week. There were private reports of rains in parts of Georgia, Florida and Arkansas and traders seemed to expect a short run of weather conditions generally. The early advance, which varied from 23 1/2 for October and 23 1/2 for December or about 20 to 25 points net higher. The official weather report showed less rain than had been expected by private estimates from the central belt and prices eased off some 20 to 25 points under scattering liquidation. Trading remained quiet however, and the tone was steady. Liquidation remained moderate for new crop shipments from the southwest and that some cotton was being sold out of the local stock. Cotton futures closed firm. Cotton futures closed firm. Cotton futures closed firm.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE

CHICAGO, June 5.—Wheat market took an upward swing today near the end of the board of trade session. Speculation for might lead to settlement with France counted also as a bullish factor. Wheat closed unsettled, 1.00 1/2 to 1 1/8 higher, July $1.00 1/2 to 1.00 1/4 and September $1.00 to 1.00 1/4. CHICAGO, June 5.—Although some speculative buying gave an uptick to wheat prices at the opening today a softening quickly ensued, the purchasing orders having been filled. On the decline July and September both went down below 1.00 for the first time. Influenced more or less by assertions that domestic and foreign demand was inadequate to take care of prospective hedging sales, the majority of traders appeared to favor the bear side. The early advance, which varied from 1/2 to 3/4 higher, July 1.00 1/2 to 1.00 1/4 and September 1.00 to 1.00 1/4. The market was followed by declines all around to well below yesterday's finish. Corn and oats were relatively firm, owing to continued scarcity of available supplies of corn. After opening at a shade lower to advance, July 50 1/2, corn fluctuated between 49 1/2 and 50 1/2. Oats advanced to 26 1/2, net higher, July 26 1/2. Subsequently rose to within less than one cent of the highest price record this season. Shipping demand was persistent but there was a commission business. Corn closed 50 1/2, net higher, July 50 1/2. Oats advanced to 26 1/2, net higher, July 26 1/2. CHICAGO Produce. Poultry: Live, lower, fowls 22 1/2, broilers 30 1/2. Butter: lower, creamery extras 23 1/2. Eggs: first 24 1/2.

LACK OF DRAINAGE ON MONROE AVENUE CAUSES COMPLAINT

PROPERTY OWNERS COMMITTEE APPEARS BEFORE CITY COUNCIL

NO DECISION MADE ON DOWNTOWN PAVING

Council Considers Matter in Executive Session; Personal Injury Adjustment Court Asked.

A committee of property owners from the section of the city which they referred to as "Lake Monroe" between 10th and 12th on Monroe street, appeared before the city council Monday night with the complaint that on account of the poor drainage in that section their property had been damaged and the community made unsanitary and asked for some relief from the present situation.

Al Ellis, Harold Stacey, Harry Taylor, and Jim Waggoner, acting as spokesmen for the committee, called the attention of the council to the conditions as they are said to exist in that section and that the city had knowingly allowed the street to be damaged up and down the city block and that the unfortunate situation which confronts them.

The committee announced that court action would be instituted Tuesday against the owner of the property at the time the place was built but requested the city to furnish them immediate relief until the question could be settled.

Commissioner Young promised that the fire department would continue to pump the flooded water but until some semi-permanent relief could be obtained. The council also agreed to put off on the basis of water which stands under cultivation in an effort to prevent mosquitoes.

A petition requesting the council to appoint a committee of citizens to investigate and settle if possible, in the case of Marie Grossinger, was presented by W. J. Townsend, representing Martin Grossinger, the child's father. It is alleged in the petition that Marie Grossinger, the five-year-old girl, was injured on May 2 when the bank of a ditch was being dug preparatory to laying a city water line at Monroe and avenue F.

Ride on the contract for the paving of Park street between avenue G and H, and H and I, were opened and the contract awarded to the L. E. Whitcomb Construction Co. for concrete paving. A public hearing for concrete paving is being held at the city hall on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Upon the recommendation of Fire Chief McClure, the council awarded an order for the purchase of 1,000 feet of fire hose from the Public Hose Company of New York. The new hose was purchased at a cost of $130 per foot; bids were received from several other firms. Two thousand feet of the hose was bought for immediate delivery; the other thousand will be shipped in October.

The contract for painting and renovating the interior of the city hall was awarded to the J. W. Whitcomb Construction Co. with a bid of $23 on the job; eight bids were received. It is understood that the work on the new cells for which the contract was awarded last week, and on the painting job will commence at once.

A discussion was held on the advisability of continuing the fire insurance on the city fire stations which were not fire proof ended with the fire. The plan to make every effort to speed the plan to completion.

What I Have Learned in 47 Years Practice

I HAVE been watching the results of constipation for 47 years, since I began the practice of medicine back in 1876. I am now 83 years old, and though from time to time the medical profession makes some wonderfully interesting experiments and tests, the fundamentals of causes and relief in this particular ailment are unchanged.

But the people take greater interest today in their health, in diet, exercise and the drinking of water. Constipation, however, will occur from time to time no matter how one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. I believe in getting as close to nature as possible, hence, my remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It is made of Egyptian figs and prunes with agreeable aromatics. Children will not willingly take bitter things. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not grip. Thousands of mothers have written me to that effect.

Over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are now sold every year, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world. I say family laxative because all in the family can use it with safety. It is mild enough for the infant in arms, effective in the most chronic constipation of an adult. The formula is on every package.

Recently there has been a new wave of drastic physics, Calomel, a mercurial that softens and loosens the bowels, has been revived; salt waters and powders that draw needed constituents from the blood; coal tar dissolved in kerosene that causes skin eruptions. In a practice of 47 years I have never seen any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping, and without shock to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It lowers your strength 25 per cent, hardens the arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope but go to a druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a generous-size bottle. Take a teaspoonful that night and by morning you will be well. The cost is only about a cent a dose. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, indigestion, our and cramps, stomach, piles, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the bowels clear, the feet warm, the bowels open.

the songbirds, you are making the whole world just that much less beautiful to live in," he told them. The boys were turned in by a neighbor, over the telephone, and when the officer arrived at the given address he found them "armed" with round pebbles, with a mockingbird in a nearby tree their target. They were hustled down to the station. "With the help of the Times, and anybody else who will give a little time to the cause, we are going to educate these boys to what they are doing," Mr. Bralley said.

It is not necessarily a bad boy who shoots at the birds. It is simply an ignorant one. A Boy Scout won't do it, because Boy Scouts are educated in woodcraft to some extent. They have learned a wholesome respect for the beautiful and useful. Neither will a boy with very thoughtful parents do it. But most boys who are turned loose on the streets with air rifles and nigger-shooters will shoot any interesting target they can find, and probably because of the little spark of viciousness that is in almost every human being; they seem to turn as naturally to the songbirds as the sunflower to the sun.

Tell your little boy—or your big boy—something about the birds. They save the country millions of dollars a year by destroying the harmful insects. As for what they add to the community by their beautiful song, that is wholly incalculable. One housekeeper phoned to the Times a day or two ago that she had had a mockingbird for several years in a tree near her house, and that she was almost having to sit up nights to protect it from half a dozen boys on the street.
