BURKBURNETT, Texas, Sept. 15. Burk Burnett's community fair will be held September 21 and 22. A special program of entertainment has been planned consisting of pie eating contests, horse shoe pitching, etc.

The following committee has been appointed to make a house to house canvass to secure funds for the Red Cross drive: A. R. Thomas, R. D. Cunningham, Will Dickson, Glenn Kincaid, R. H. Henry, M. Majors and Mrs. J. M. F. Gill.

Dr. Pool of Baylor University, and Earl Bryant, superintendent of Wichita county schools, were the principal speakers at regular meeting of the Lions Club here this week.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the W. M. U. was held at the Baptist church Wednesday, September 13, with more than 150 members present.

An appeal was made for funds for the maintenance of Buckner's Orphan Home by Mrs. Sloan after which a collection was made, resulting in raising a vast sum for the immediate needs of the institution.

Y. W. A. and O. A. leaders, Mrs. W. W. Wray, Bushman Sadler, Louis Whitman, etc.

During the meeting of the teachers institute held in Wichita Falls last week, it was voted to hold the next interscholastic league meet at Burk Burnett.

There will also be athletic contests, track and field events, baseball, etc. The field events will be held at the Hardin Athletic Park and indoor contests at the new high school building.

The vital statistics report filed by City Health Officer Carl T. Steen for the month of August shows the number of female births to be as follows: Male 7, female 14.

The Burk Burnett public schools were opened last Monday at 9 a. m. and that means that all have been reported and for that reason comes rather high. Poultry is exceedingly cheap.

A practically new Ford car caught fire while standing against the street curb in front of the First National Bank Friday evening and was almost completely destroyed before being extinguished by the fire department.

"BIG JIM" GALVIN IS KILLED IN NEW YORK NEW YORK, Sept. 15. (AP)—James "Big Jim" Galvin, noted as a heavy weight wrestler a decade ago, died in a hospital today of a bullet wound received last Saturday for which Policeman John Hagan is held.

Proposed restrictions in transit privileges at the new high school building at the new high school building were discussed by the interstate commerce commission.

Do you believe that God punishes nations and individuals for sin? What was the sin of Japan and was the punishment too severe? Hear Rev. N. F. Gratton Sunday evening at the First Presbyterian Church.

Austria Recovering Fast From War Time Conditions But Economical Characteristics Have Disappeared

Austria is recovering rapidly from the conditions brought about by the world war and Vienna is taking back its pre-war life. However, the Austrians have lost one characteristic for which they were renowned. This is frugality.

Professor Katz returned home this past week after visiting in Austria, Switzerland and France. He left here on the first of June and during his stay in Vienna he studied music and visited with his relatives who still reside there.

"The people are thrifty," Professor Katz said. "By that I mean everyone is employed, but that old characteristic of saving money has been dropped out."

"Living conditions are good. Almost everything sells for reasonable prices. There is one exception and that is meat. All meat is imported and for that reason comes rather high. Poultry is exceedingly cheap. You can purchase a large sized chicken, dressed, for the equivalent of thirty cents in American money."

ation who inhabit Austria proper. There are approximately six and a half million people in the country, with Vienna, the capital, housing two and a half million of that number.

The rent on apartments is very cheap, provided you can rent direct from the landlord. In Vienna they have no small houses as we have in our towns and cities here. Everything is apartment houses.

He spoke of the many bootblacks seen on the streets of Vienna, and in every instance the bootblack is a cripple.

The government has given every man who fought in the war and who is crippled, some sort of an occupation. Many men who were injured in their limbs were granted a space on the street to ply the trade of a bootblack.

Street cars, the main mode of conveyance and travel in the city, are back and running full time. "The entire city of Vienna," Mr. Katz served, "has, I believe, not any more automobiles than Wichita. Pords are far ahead of any other make of car and when they go

New Method Oven and Broiler Construction Patented Differs entirely from the oven construction of other gas ranges. The flames from the side burners do not come in direct contact with the oven bottom, causing more even baking. The broiling or toasting being under a solid sheet of flame is done evenly without burning. Shows upright Nitrogen Oven Thermometer.

Friction Practically Eliminated in the New Method Burner The friction in the passage of the gas and air through the jet holes is practically eliminated, which is the reason why the New Method Steel Burner will reduce gas bills 30 per cent to 40 per cent over burners in which there is friction; also the reason why New Method Burners will burn when the gas pressure is so low that cast iron burners are popping back.

"Robert Shaw" Oven Heat Controller A Thermostat is connected on some of the New Method Gas Range models. The thermostat works automatically and affords a simple and convenient means of securing the required temperature of the oven and maintaining this exact temperature for any length of time without any attention whatsoever. No necessity to stay in or near the kitchen to frequently adjust a gas cook as the thermostat will automatically do that work for you. Simply push the porcelain handle of the thermostat up to whatever degree of temperature is required and forget it, until the proper time for the removal of the food. A "slow," "moderate," "hot," "quick" or "very hot" oven can be secured by simply moving the knob to the proper indication.

New Method Swinging Simmering Burner Patented Is furnished with all New Method Gas Ranges without charge. Its great advantage over the burner lighters that can now be obtained with other gas ranges at an extra price, is that it is also a simmering burner that can be used under any part of the front top, also, that it will never choke or get out of order. It is the most used and convenient attachment ever out on a gas range.

Don't pass this opportunity. Make your selection while showing is complete.

Husband in Jail, Woman Makes and Sells Choctaw Beer to Buy Scant Edible Food for Her Children

"The severity of the Criminal Law," was vividly exemplified for the second time this week Saturday when a woman, the mother of five children, ranging from two to 14 years of age, was brought to the court under arrest for making and selling choctaw beer.

Her husband, the father of the children, is in jail—held on a charge of theft. He told officers that he stole because his wife and children were hungry. She told of how she needed money to purchase the scant necessities of life for her children.

School Clothes BUILT FOR REGULAR BOYS

It's a real problem, keeping clothes on a growing boy in school time. You take pride in his appearance, but you can't make a little china doll out of him, if he's a regular boy.

We planned our Boys' School Clothing department this fall to give you a maximum of service with a maximum of looks—to provide wearables of which you and he will both be proud, and which at the same time will withstand the rough usage and hard knocks that a healthy, growing boy's clothes are sure to get.

The "Penrod" Suit dispenses of the biggest part of the School Clothes problem. It has looks and style, plus wear-ability in generous measure.

That extra pair of trousers practically doubles the life of the suit, for it's the trousers that get the hard wear.

Colors and patterns to suit both your fancy and the boy's. Comes in tweeds, cashmeres, unfinished worsteds and whipcords, and in greys, browns, tans and blues, with checks, pin-stripes and mixtures.

Sizes 6 to 16. Priced at $10 to $20

Two Long Lost Friends Found at Last

By WILL MOORE

Well, sir, I have a real message for my readers this week. It looked like it would be just the ordinary article with no flavor or backbone to it, and with no real underlying story or wisdom. But, as I read the first few lines, I thought it would be good. As I read the first line of the article I thought it would be good. As I read the first line of the article I thought it would be good. As I read the first line of the article I thought it would be good.

Both of these boys were on the big time and were well known all over the circuit, and any time they took the platform standing by side of a pitcher of ice water and a glass, why, it just meant six more minutes starting on the front page and ending among the west ads. I can't keep it any longer. I did want to keep it till the final of the year but I must tell you now who they are—William J. Bryan and Billy Sunday.

Neither did I, but they are, and looking fine. You know, you have lost any one, look out here because sooner or later they will come here to visit relatives, for anybody that has a relative comes here so he can write back to other relatives. They are both just resting here, (so in everybody else). Mr. Bryan is still in the state of mind where the next Democratic Convention will be held, and he is ready to knock any aspiring Presidential candidate on the head the minute it shows above the mob.

Now the only crisis that Mr. Collidge can possibly get into, him's running out of Republicans to appoint. In that case he would be to appoint a Democrat, which would bring on a worse crisis than he can possibly get into. I don't know what he is doing. I am sure he is not here to talk about it, and what he is doing. I am sure he is not here to talk about it, and what he is doing. I am sure he is not here to talk about it, and what he is doing.

There without any German help, this securing her reparations. The Berlin government's influence will be situated in the Rhineland since the Rhineland high commission, which is entirely under the French influence, will continue to have the right to all the rights of the German officials there.

That will mean the actual end of Germany and does not mean that France has attached her purpose of crushing her most dangerous enemy, a purpose which she was unable to attain between 1914 and 1918.

That is not France's ally, she is the ally of France. It would not disturb Premier Poincare in the least," he declared. "All our reports from Paris confirm the fact that France will not budge an inch from its present stand."

That is most difficult to say, because Poincare has not been in the mind of anyone that is willing to negotiate with Germany only through official channels, and will not be satisfied with an agreement between the industrial section of the two countries in which the government is not a party.

W.J. BRYAN LECTURE BILLY SUNDAY MEETING

Sooner or later they all arrive here and start fighting off the Real Estate Men. He had to train physically for a sermon. He brought more converts to Prohibition before the 18th Amendment came in, than the 18th Amendment has converted to Prohibition since it went in.

He is the first preacher to specialize on Liquor. While Bryan's oratorical wrath in the later years has been hurled at Darwin, Billy Sunday picked his opponent with a carelessness that is almost reckless. I suppose that he has had more mortal worldly combats with the Devil himself than any man living. He has challenged the Devil publicly more times than Willie, the Negro, has Jack Dempsey.

Now, of course, you can get a fellow wrong. Billy used to lay all the drinking on to this Devil, and claimed that if we had Prohibition we could lick this Devil. Now we got prohibition. I don't think he can legitimately lay the present drinking onto the Devil.

Now of course, from this I don't want you to think I am taking sides in this thing. I don't know either one personally. But, as I say, there is a chance that they both may have each other wrong. As I say, Billy must have something on the Devil or he wouldn't dare to call him what he does, especially if the Devil can hear him, and I tell you the Devil must be pretty low if he don't answer him, that is, if he hears him.

I have always figured that the reason that the Devil didn't arise and respond was Billy's slang was too much for him. But Billy sure did do a lot of good in the old days, and no matter if you didn't like his style of sermon, you sure didn't get a chance to do any sleeping.

So I hope we can keep them both out here with us, and help to get some of our population's mind on the Church on Sunday instead of being continually looking for lots.

ANNIVERSARY OF MEXICAN FREEDOM CELEBRATED HERE

The festivities of the Mexican colony in celebration of the 137th anniversary of Mexican independence from Spain with an added celebration of the recent recognition of Mexico by the United States, began at the Labor Temple Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock with James Gonzalez as master of ceremonies.

Mr. Gonzalez welcomed the Americans who had gathered to take part in the celebration and spoke briefly on the history of the Mexican republic down to the time of the revolution which brought about her independence from Spain and talk of the growth and progress which had been made since that time. He made special mention of the recent recognition by the United States of Mexico and spoke of the increased prosperity which was expected to result from both countries as the outgrowth of the renewal of friendly relations.

Florentin Garcia followed on the program and read the Mexican Declaration of Independence which was signed in 1810 on September 16. Garcia commented briefly in Spanish on the declaration and what it meant to the Mexican people. Other speakers at the afternoon program were V. Ribabes, Basilio Garcia and Bruno Torres.

Other features of the program were discourses, "Mexico and Spain," and "France and Mexico," by Misses Maria Gonzalez and Otis Salazar, and readings by Misses Agnes and Belinda Gonzalez, and Genaro Gonzalez.

Music by a chorus of twelve Mexican girls in costume and an orchestra directed by Ventura Flores, interpreted the program. The program was opened with the Mexican national anthem and closed with the Star Spangled Banner.

Saturday evening about 75 couples danced at the Labor Temple ballroom to music furnished by Ventura Flores' orchestra. Dancing continued until one o'clock Sunday morning.

OSBORNE GIVES CRABS BUT THREE HITS AND WINS BATTLE

Barrett's Double and Jonnard's Single With Two Out in Ninth Bring 1 to 0 Win to Spudders

Bob Osborne, the lanky youngster whose sale to the Chicago Cubs was announced several days ago, Saturday showed the fans why the Cubs want his services when he turned in one of the best pitched games of the season and blanked the Galveston Sandcrabs, 1 to 0.

The Spudders got four hits off Connally, while Osborne allowed just one loss.

Spudders and Sandcrabs close the Texas League season Sunday afternoon with a double-header starting at 3:30 o'clock.

Carlson and Morgan are billed to work for the home club, while Graham and Dewey probably will go for the visitors.

Both Are Wild.

It was a dark day, which was a decided advantage for the hurlers and fans, but the wind was blowing in with plenty on it.

There was a strong wind blowing in from the outfield that made it almost impossible to catch the ball over the fly catcher's head, but this made little difference, as few balls were hit hard aside from those that went into the bleachers.

Both of the hurlers were wild as the proverbial March hare, and each tossed five during the nine innings.

Connally hit a couple, besides his half of the ten walks, but none of the passes or hit batsmen figured in the loss of the game.

The Spudders had a crippled lineup in the ninth, but despite the fact that an outfielder was placed in the infield and a catcher in the outfield, the support accorded Osborne was useless.

Connally Fields Well.

Rockie Coombs was back at short for the first time in quite some time and he handled all of nine chances, eight of them ground balls, without a miscue.

Bischoff performed in the outfield and handled his only two chances. The regulars who were out during the season were injured by one shot or another.

A record crowd for a Spudders game saw one of the best fielded and pitched games of the season—18 fans by exact count. It was the smallest crowd ever to witness a game at the stadium since the opening of the new ballpark.

Waco franchise was brought here to the stadium.

The "two-basemen" game was a close one, but neither team was able to take advantage of the free hits. Only one Sandcrab got a hit, and that was a single.

Connally opened the second inning with a hit and went to the far corner on a couple of hits. He was out on a fly to the outfield.

Two hits in the third and Connally fanned Bischoff for the third time. Barrett walked to start the second and advanced to second on a hit by Barrett.

COFFEE CRUIER HOPES BOOSTED BY RETURN OF LINE STAR

High School and Junior College Squads Given First Scrimmage; Opening Game Probably Saturday

By JAKE CALVERT. Gerald Coffey, for two years a near all-time leader, will again don a Coyote uniform this season. It was the general opinion that the 1922 football season would be the last time Coffey would play for the Coyotes and Black Line because of the fact that he had taken part in High school athletics for four years.

However, a telegram from Roy B. Henderson of the Interscholastic league, Friday, stated that Coffey would again be eligible for High school football. The W. F. state that Coffey had taken part in a basketball game in January, 1924. Since a player is given four years of athletics from the time of his first participation, Coffey can play until January, 1924.

Season's First Scrimmage For two years Coffey has been the foundation of the Coyote line at tackle and it appears as though he will go to the top for the third season. Coffey's chances are high in places on the Coyote line. The first scrimmage of the season Saturday morning tended to show up the strength of the Junior College football team. While nothing startling in the way of "bonuses" was brought to light, little mixing took out the players. Coach McCallum divided the large squad into teams, giving every one a chance. Only simple plays were used, short quarters were called, and the boys enjoyed the brief workout.

Work Out Together. Evan Harris, a Coyote star in 1921, 1922, and 1923 is running a good stand on the Coyote line. He is probably the first ball kicked by a college player in the first contact will be booted by Walker. Leo Haney is the third captain of the Coyote line. Haney played in the first team when a freshman in high school. Walker is a kick-off man, his weight standing him in good stead on this score. For three years he has been kicking for the local high school squad, and it is probable that he will continue to play a college player in the first contact will be booted by Walker.

Meanwhile, Richard added, he is ready to match Firpo and Harry Wills, New Orleans negro, who has been clamoring for a title bout for more than a year. The promoter, who has already signed Firpo to a contract to fight Wills, preferably next April in the Argentine, said he would seek Wills' signature to a contract and guarantee the victor a bout with Dempsey.

COOLIDGE HAS PREFERRED POSITION IN REPUBLICAN RACE

Nomination Not Inevitable and He May Have Active Opposition; Future Divided Into Two Periods

By MARK SULLIVAN

Political Correspondent of the New York Tribune and Copyright, 1923, by the New York Tribune

Some of the emphasis laid by the present writer in this paper last week on the strength of Coolidge's chances for renomination is now to be clearly understood.

It is true that Coolidge is in an immensely preferred position—a position so clearly preferred that even to print the present qualification of it may lead to misunderstanding in a contrary direction. All that is meant here is to indicate that any nomination made in the event of the renomination of Mr. Coolidge is unassessably inevitable, or that he will not have any serious opposition.

We may divide Coolidge's immediate future into two periods: First, the period between now and January 1, and second, the period from January 1 until the holding of the Republican national convention in early June. January 1 is chosen as the dividing line for two reasons: One is that that is about the last day when candidates for presidential nominations can announce themselves with any reasonable expectation of success. In several important cases it has been demonstrated that a man who announces his candidacy for a presidential nomination as late as February is almost unassessably under a fatal handicap. If Coolidge should reach January 1 without any other announcements of candidacy on the part of men of sufficient prominence to be formidable he will be very likely to go on to the nominating convention in the same happy position.

The second reason for choosing January 1 is that by that time Congress will be in session. All the members of the lower houses and all the members of the upper house will have arrived in Washington for the opening of the first Monday in December. Out of the reports they bring from their respective sections of the country as to the impression Coolidge has made, and out of the reports of the meetings of the various committees, and out of the conversations with each other, will come the determination whether or not Coolidge is to be regarded as the inevitable candidate, with generally no competition, or whether it is to be an open field.

If Coolidge has made a uniform record of success; if he has done nothing that strikes the country with marked disapproval; if no unfavorable condition arises, economic or otherwise, beyond his power to control, Coolidge will be in an extremely strong position. The reason is that such a record reflects all other potential candidates as an access for announcing themselves. Part of the strength of Coolidge is that he does not need to announce himself as a candidate, nor give reasons for his nomination, nor give whatever Coolidge is more or less automatically a candidate by virtue of the position he holds in the country. However, must announce themselves, and in that necessity to their embarrassment and their loss of honor. All other candidates for the presidency as he will but in order to put himself before the country in the various ways and have a platform. It is not sufficient for a man merely to say "I want the presidency" and to expect the country to have it. He must make some sort of public utterance which justifies his entering the arena, and which gives a rallying ground for those who believe in him. Such a statement can only be based on some sort of record of achievement, or on a platform of a sort likely to appeal to considerable numbers of people. He will be in a very strong position, indeed.

Nevertheless, even under these conditions the Republican leaders are going to be disposed to foreclose themselves. They are going to be unwilling to go to the extreme length of nominating Coolidge on the 1st of January, when the convention does not come until five months later. They will want to manage things that they will be able to have an anchor to windward in case of circumstances arise that will alter the course of the race. They will look forward to the second meeting of Coolidge's future, the period from January 1 until the convention meets in June. They will want to admit that Coolidge has made no mistakes so far, and in an ideal position such that they must nominate Coolidge, anyhow, and be prepared of the possibility of selecting another alternative. During the five months from January 1 until the convention meets Coolidge will run more risks, have greater opportunities to get "in bad" with the country, than during the coming three months. During that five months Congress will be in session, and while Congress is in session the public will tend to judge Coolidge not only by his own actions, but also by things he cannot control in the course of his administration. Congress is unpopular. Coolidge to some extent will share that lack of approval. During that five months Coolidge may be compelled, for example, to veto or not veto a soldier's bonus. He may have to express himself on the international situation, and there will be many other difficult questions necessarily entailing disapproval from some groups.

The risk of which, in that event, even though Coolidge may be so popular on January 1 that no other substantial candidate will feel like announcing himself, even though Congress may be unpopular, many things adverse to him can arise between January 1 and the June convention. For this reason it will be so managed that the Republican party will have other strings to its bow, other candidates, or at least the possibility of formally avowed candidates, but they will be in the shape of favorable news of various states and other favorable reports of the kind which will indicate to the party that it should develop during the five months preceding the convention that Coolidge's candidacy is not so unassessably inevitable in the largest sense or will be unacceptable to the party leaders. There are ways short of formal announcement of General Pershing might have been the withdrawal of General Grant's name. (Another fact to be remembered is that our ex-soldiers now are not so large a proportion of the total electorate as after the Civil War, when our veterans made a considerable difference.)

As regards the feeling of the ex-soldiers, some politicians say that with this thing will disappear. They say that in the years to go the ex-soldiers will tend to forget everything in their experience that was unprofitable to their emotions. Only the agreeable recollections will remain. And if the theory is correct, the American Legion will have a greater and greater conscientious solidarity, a greater disposition to put forward their leaders for political honors. Gladly, among other things, the claim is made that the soldiers will tend to think more and more highly of General Pershing, and that they will be more and more ready to support him after the war it is well known that the returned soldiers had no great emotion for Pershing. They were not in the army with him.

Perhaps one ought not to leave this allusion without saying that whatever may develop in the future, General Pershing is not today in the same class with Senator Johnson and ex-Governor Lowden and some others as a potentiality for the next Republican presidential nomination.

The practical political difficulties ahead of the friends of men like Senator Johnson and ex-Governor Lowden are embarrassing in the extreme. Their problem is to avoid the odium of announcing open opposition to Coolidge at a time when the public mood about Coolidge is not clear, and yet at the same time to establish and preserve their standing as potential candidates. These things will be done under conditions. One obvious way to quality is to run merely as a "free agent." To confine their candidacies to their own states, refraining from making any fight against Coolidge outside. But even this course requires that they involve risks. Few men are so popular that they have no political enemies in their own states.

In the case of Senator Johnson, California, is strikingly true. If Senator Johnson or Senator Johnson's friends should say, directly or indirectly, that they will back the California delegation to go to the next national convention, they will be making a statement which will be interpreted as an endorsement of Coolidge. Their problem is to avoid the odium of announcing open opposition to Coolidge at a time when the public mood about Coolidge is not clear, and yet at the same time to establish and preserve their standing as potential candidates. These things will be done under conditions. One obvious way to quality is to run merely as a "free agent." To confine their candidacies to their own states, refraining from making any fight against Coolidge outside. But even this course requires that they involve risks. Few men are so popular that they have no political enemies in their own states.

Washington, Sept. 15.—The British government today wiped out the obligation it incurred here through the purchase of silver for use as the major coinage in India during the world war. It paid to the American treasury $11,511,000 as the last installment of principal and interest on an original borrowing of $12,500,000.

and possessed by any except those who have been active in public life. It was to fill this semi-public function, as distinct from the political function, that Senator Johnson was chosen. For this function the new secretary is well equipped. Everybody knows that one of the largest burdens on any president's time and vitality consist of matters of patronage, the appointment of local postmasters and the like. All of this mass of business comes to the white house through senators and congressmen. What every president needs is a secretary who by experience knows the members of Congress, knows what congressmen must do to meet the legitimate desires of their constituents, and knows political conditions throughout the country. Such a man is Mr. Slomp. For many years he was himself a member of Congress. Out of 455 members of the lower house Mr. Slomp was one of the few who were called by their first names. Any congressman who as an inevitable incident of his political preservation, receives and must attend to requests from his constituents dealing with patronage will probably be more comfortable in handling such questions with Secretary Slomp than with President Coolidge direct. And the president will be spared one of the most serious drains on his time and vitality. He will be free to give thought to the fundamentally important problems of his office.

It is not meant to impute to Secretary Slomp any such degree of cold self-interest as would refuse to help his chief's political fortunes where the occasion offers. Any secretary who would fail to do that would lack something in loyalty and most certainly would not be a secretary. But the main point is that the choice of Mr. Slomp represents an unqualified conception of the function of secretary to the president, as being in addition to other duties, in part of liaison officer between the white house and congress, one who talks the language and understands the needs and limitations of both.

Many Lovely Parties Given Past Week for Popular Bride-elect; Invitations Out for Wedding

Invitations are out for the Bonner-Montgomery wedding, which is to take place Thursday evening, September 27th, at the First Presbyterian church, the ceremony to be said by Rev. Nat F. Grafton at 9 o'clock.

The past few days have been filled with overflowing with lovely hospitality for the bride-elect, attesting the popularity of one of the most interesting and attractive girls in the city. These compliments have included the beautiful luncheon given the bride's party Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Leslie Stringer, the party and linen shower given by Mrs. A. H. Carrigan and Mrs. Carter McGreggor at the Carrigan home Wednesday, the party given Thursday by Mrs. Alfred Miller and Mrs. Charles I. Francis, and the breakfast for the bride and her party Saturday morning at Kemp Kort given by Mrs. W. J. Daugherty and Miss Annette Walsh.

This week more parties are planned and several complimentary affairs will be given just before the wedding by the groom's attendants, honoring the bride-elect and her party.

Breakfast at Kemp Kort
The breakfast at Kemp Kort Saturday morning, when Mrs. W. J. Daugherty and Miss Annette Walsh complimented the bride and her party, was one of the loveliest affairs of its kind ever given for any bride.

The table, beautifully laid with crystal and silver, presented a most attractive and elegant affair. One of the most attractive features of the breakfast was the beautiful little floral arrangement which was placed on the table. The bride and groom, standing under a wedding bell in pink and orchid, were the center of attention. From there, members of the party "proceeded" in an aisle of fern down the table, the little flower girls and ring bearer, and, at a miniature piano, the accompanist and soloist, complete even to the infinitesimal squeak of music in the singer's hands.

The scene was beautiful and complete with the ivory painted little post for the bride-elect and the full nuptial candlestick, that the bride-elect and the delectable four-course breakfast in favor.

After breakfast the two hostesses presented Miss Montgomery with a beautiful French lace and silver crystal gift box, in a tuile tin container, and her party with a gift of the occasion, a shower of exquisite lines and lace handkerchiefs was presented the bride-elect. Covers with orchids and the bride's, were laid for Mesdames L. H. Callum, Leslie Stringer, John Martin of Breckenridge, Alfred Miller, Charles I. Francis, T. Eugene Greenwood, Louella B. Thompson, O. E. Mear, E. B. Gorline, E. B. Gorline Jr. and E. P. Walsh, Mesdames Kahn, and the hostesses, Mrs. Daugherty and Miss Walsh.

Luncheon Thursday
Mesdames Charles I. Francis and Alfred Miller were hostesses Thursday for the bride and her party with a beautifully planned pink and orchid luncheon at the Wichita Club.

The table was covered with a bowl of lovely blossoms, and the table appointments, place cards and nil cups, carried out the pretty color scheme. Covers were laid for Mesdames J. T. Montgomery, M. M. E. Darnell, Bonner of Houston, G. D. Anderson, J. A. Richolt, A. H. Brittain, W. J. Daugherty, L. Callum, John Martin, Leslie Stringer, O. E. Mear, T. B. Greenwood, and Louella B. Thompson, Mesdames Walsh, Montgomery and Kahn, and the hostesses; Mesdames Francis and Miller. The hostesses gift to the bride, presented during luncheon, was an exquisite orchid taffeta and lace bonnet. Luncheon was served in four courses.

With Mrs. Carrigan
The bride-elect and her party spent a most delightful afternoon with Mrs. A. H. Carrigan and Mrs. Carter McGreggor at the Carrigan home on Austin Wednesday afternoon, when members of the Unity and Unity Junior clubs were entertained in their special honor.

The very lovely hospitality carried out a custom which Mrs. Carrigan has observed for a number of years in the hospitality extended to such of the bride-elects from the ranks of the Old Unity club and the Junior branch of daughters. In the case of the present honoree there was special interest among members of both clubs, as her grandmother, Mrs. J. W. Stone, is a charter member and her mother a member of the senior club, and she herself is a member of the Junior club.

The pretty feature of the party was a beautiful linen shower, presented in a delightfully appointed and complimentary manner by little Miss Osa Bell Brittain, a member of the bride's party, with the first of gifts in a pink and white, bride's stipple wrought of flowers. Other dainty little pink-tulle tied bundles were brought to the bride-elect during the course of a flower dance beautifully accompanied by the talented little dancer.

The Penwomen held their first meeting Thursday afternoon at Kemp library, the 1922 Study Club held theirs Friday, and the Standard Club, which does not meet until October, held a get-together meeting. There is a great deal of interest and beginning of activity along all lines of women's interest, and there are one or two new club organizations on foot. Among these will be the new Delphian Club, being organized especially among the young business women.

Two of the Parent-Teachers organizations held their first meetings last week, but the Parent-Teacher Federation and most of the clubs will meet in October, holding off until after the fair. The Civic League is working all the time, but the activities among the branch leagues will start with new interest this month and next.

One of the new members, Mrs. W. C. Sherman, refilled the Medicine Kit which was appreciated very much by the organization.

The next meeting, which will be a business session, will be held September 27 with Mrs. B. Blackwell and the next meeting at the school house will be the second Thursday in October. It was announced.

Miss Thornton, Archie Lamb and the host, Mrs. Henry, were assisted in entertaining the little folks by Mesdames Hanks, Stearns, Finley and Thompson.

"DOWN EIGHTH STREET" -By Jane Tramp

"For men may rise on stepping stones of their dead selves to higher things." Do you know what stepping stones you use to rise on? I heard a woman friend make a remark the other day that made me wonder if we ever apply that "stepping stones" to the mass of little, everyday things whose very disimilarity sometimes make us about the ultimate importance.

Indifference would she, by a third person who was merely saying her own mind? And haven't you heard comments under the head of the third instance hundreds of times? "I'm sorry about Alice, of course. But the poor child certainly makes a mess of dressing herself. You'd think her grandmother had been a washerwoman. Of course, I don't know what her grandmother WAS, for that matter." The most unkind—literally, the meanest criticism that can be made is that sugar-coated, wolf-in-sheep's-clothing affair that always begins with a compliment. And it's invariably from a less popular person concerning a more popular person.

COTTON OPENING RAPIDLY WHILE PICKERS ARE FEW

Cotton in Wichita county is opening rapidly, County Agent Guy R. Jones stated Saturday. Practically all of the fields are showing innumerable open bolls. Cotton pickers are very few and the situation is very acute, he said. No damage will be done to the cotton crop due to the failure of farmers to secure assistance to pick it unless it rains or heavy winds arise, it is stated. The skies Saturday, however, were threatening and it is feared that damage would result.

Tractors Using Kerosene Will Be Shown at Fair

Farm tractors using kerosene as fuel, instead of gasoline, will be featured in the machinery show at the Texas-Oklahoma Fair and Exposition to be held here Oct. 1 to 7, inclusive. The high price of gasoline is forcing the manufacturers of small farm tractors to perfect machines capable of using cheap fuel. Carburetors burning kerosene—and even distillate—are being installed on tractors. They are proving so successful that the farm engineers predict that these fuels will be used almost entirely in the near future. No freak types of tractors will be on exhibit at the coming fair. Many of these were exhibited at fairs a few years ago when the industry was in its infancy. Today, with more than 200,000 small farm tractors in use, the principles of construction have been worked out so thoroughly that only a few standard types of machines are being made. Inventions intended to make machinery of all kinds usable on farms where the tractor supplies the motive power will be exhibited at the fair. Among the kinds of machines now driven by tractors are plows, discs, harrows, cultivators, corn planters, seeders, mowers, binders, and rakes. Efforts are being made by the fair management to induce all exhibitors to keep their exhibits in motion, if possible, so as to make them more interesting to visitors. Moving displays are more instructive, say officials, since they show how the machinery works when in use.

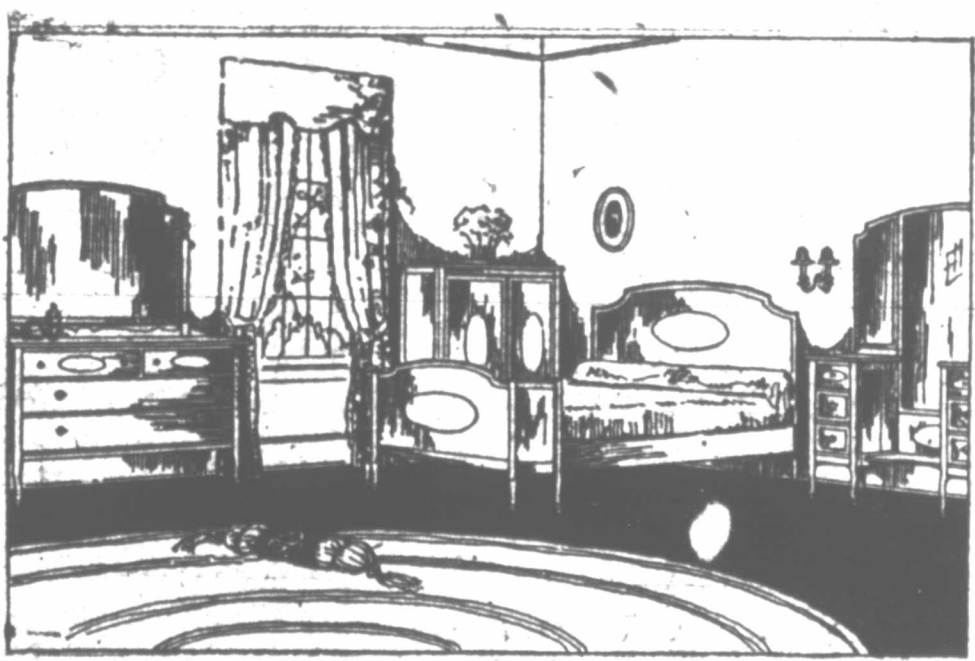

"Better Dairy" Cattle Slogan Fair Officials

Efforts are being made to induce every farmer in the vicinity of Wichita Falls to visit the dairy cattle show at the Texas-Oklahoma Fair and Exposition to be held here Oct. 1 to 7, inclusive, according to an announcement made today. "Put a pure bred bull on every farm." This slogan is being used in putting on a big campaign for pure bred dairy sire. It is a part of the general campaign to interest farmers in stocking their farms with better livestock of all kinds, launched by the Texas-Oklahoma Fair and Exposition. This year's campaign will reach its climax during the week of the fair. Exhibitors of pure bred dairy cattle who are coming to the fair assert that the use of a pure bred bull at the head of a herd of scrub cows will convert it into a profitable high grade herd in two or three generations. The half blood daughters of a herd of common cows and a pure bred sire will yield 20 per cent more butter fat than their mothers. The grand-daughters will produce twice as much butter fat as their grandmothers. Fair officials are urging owners of pure bred dairy cattle who will have exhibits at the fair to list their surplus stock for sale at the show. Farmers who intend to grade up their herds of common cattle and get into the dairy business on a more profitable basis are being invited to attend the fair and make their selections there. FASHIONABLE DRAPERIES for Fashionable Windows

You can't expect your room to look stylish if your windows are dressed in old fashioned clothes, even though the rest of the room be right up to date. Windows play such an important part in a room too and one's attention is always called towards them first. And really there is no reason for having old fashioned windows when stylish ones may be had at very moderate cost. The new Fall Draperies have many new interesting details and the colors are unusually attractive.

- VELOURS For the Living Room. Velour Draperies are best for the living room. They are just formal enough to look dignified and their richness gives a soft finish to the room. Prices range from, per yard $3.50 to $5.00. SILKS for the Bedroom. It just seems natural for Silk Draperies to belong in the bedroom. Perhaps because they give an air of refinement. You'll like these new Silk Draperies because they're so fresh looking. Made to order and by the yard. $1.50 to $5.00. CRETONNES for the Sunroom. It seems that all the colors in the world have been used in these beautiful Cretonnes. And while they are recommended chiefly for sunrooms, there are styles here that will look well in most any room. Prices from, per yard 45c to $3.00.

Queer Features of the Life and Customs in a War-Born Republic; Baltic Barons and the Peasants

How the Lands Are Being Divided—The Pioneers and Their Log Cabins—Women Who Act as Cow-Milkers—The Latvians versus Our Colonials—A Country of Schools—200,000 Folk Songs Recently Published.

Oh poor German guest,
This is no place for thee to rest;
What wouldst thou in our wretched hut?
Within it thou canst not remain.
The smoke will drive thee forth again;
Thou canst not stay within the yard,
For in the yard are wind and rain—
Listen, I will advise thee well!
Go to the bottommost part of Hell,
Where the devil makes his fire!
There's the place to cool thy ire;
For there is neither smoke nor rain!

This verse is from an old folksong of the Latvians. It gives the feeling of the new republic in regard to the German Balts whose lands have been confiscated and divided among the peasants. In a former letter I wrote of this movement in Rethonia, the Lithuanian republic, which has joined this movement in the north. The same conditions prevail here. All the large properties are being divided, the Baltic barons who owned them being left out from 240 acres out of the thousands each had in the past.

The estates of the Balts comprised more than 60 per cent of the whole country. There were hundreds of them and their average size was over 4,000 acres. There were many of 10,000 acres, and some which ran up into 100,000 acres and more. The estate of Daudzaga, for instance, contained 100,000 acres. These estates have been built up throughout the centuries in which the lands have been in the hands of the Balts. They have brought the lands under cultivation, have scientifically farmed them, introducing modern machinery and all modern agricultural methods. In many cases they have built mansions where they have entertained and lived like feudal lords, the peasants cultivating their lands and taking somewhat the place the retainers had in the Middle Ages.

Today the barons have given up all hope of holding their properties. Some of the estates have already been confiscated, and eight hundred of these nobles of the past are now reduced to about 115 acres. Thirty thousand new farms have been laid out since the republic was organized, and thirty thousand more will be created this year. More than one hundred thousand new landowners living on properties which were held by a few hundred barons are now being surveyed as large as the state of Massachusetts has thus been opened to settlement. Hundreds of surveyors are at work, and the new holdings are being distributed as fast as the lines can be drawn. Not only the estates of the barons and government lands and others are being allotted, and an entire new land system is being created.

The Bank for Farms
The desire for real estate in Europe surpasses that of all other lands and there are applicants for every good piece of property. I am told that there are at least 150,000 men who want to buy land. Their desires vary with their conditions and surroundings and their peculiar ambitions. The tracts to be allotted are of various sizes, ranging from industrial sites near the towns, and garden patches of five or ten acres, up to the hundred acres or more that the dirt farmers who expect to live on the land and get all of their sustenance from it. Many of the estates are being divided into thirty-five acre and other sizes. In each case the land is sold at low prices, with long terms of payment. Some of the mortgages run from thirty to fifty years, and for the first five years no interest is charged. The men pay nothing upon taking over the lands, but they must prove their good faith and their prospects.

Metemorphosis in Latvia
I have just returned from a trip with the assistant secretary of agriculture through the country near Riga. We have motored over some of the estates that are now being subdivided and have talked with the farmers. So far the chief allotments have been in the three provinces of Livonia, Courland and Vidzau. Latvia, which is near Rumania and is inhabited largely by Roman Catholics, has not been much subdivided. The property there remains in the hands of the barons living in the villages and going out to work on the lands. In the first three provinces the estates are being subdivided into small farms like those of Germany. It is to them that this letter relates.

The assistant secretary of agriculture tells me that some of the land is being granted on long leases, with a low valuation and a nominal rental in such a way that the man can pay for his property gradually and finally get a fee simple title. The whole country has been subdivided into districts and each district has its own land organization. Each applicant must prove that he has enough help to cultivate his holding, and horses and cows and sufficient machinery. He must give his experience as a farmer, and furnish also a reputation for thrift and good character. This evidence is brought before the local committee, and if they approve the application, it is sent to the district committee which passes upon it and forwards it to the state central committee which has final decision.

I was asked as to agricultural conditions. The agricultural official replied: "It is large and embraces the best classes of our people. One half of the members belong to the parliament, and among the others are special government officials and a technical staff."

Among the Farmers
As we drove over the country I could see buildings going up everywhere. The old cabins are everywhere, and new cabins are everywhere.

where being constructed. The new houses of the farmers are about like those of our pioneers, when they cut down the logs to make foundations. In the days of the colonists. The ordinary cabin has two or three rooms, and near by an additional building for stables and storage. The buildings are better than those with which our country was started. They have good foundations, and all of the houses have stoves of brick which run from the floor to the ceiling and send warmth throughout the whole house. Once heated, the stove will keep warm all day and all night. There are ovens in many of the houses, and in one six room house I visited there was a hall through the center, on each side of which was a stove in the wall, warming both the hall and the room adjoining. This house was unplastered. It had as yet no furniture, and the people sleep on the floor.

Nearly every farm has its potato cellar, a dug-out where the potatoes are stored away and covered with straw to keep them from freezing in winter. Potatoes are among the chief foods of the people and one of the great crops of Latvia. Every farmer expects to have his own bath-house, but in the present building conditions one bath serves for several families. The use of such a house is like those of Finland in which cold water is thrown on the coals of a stove, filling the one room with vapor. The bathers lie naked on shelves running around the walls, and hot steam sweats the dirt out of their pores. A bath of this kind is the only one that makes a man really clean.

Women Farm Labor
Everywhere we went we saw the women working with the men in the fields. Sometimes there would be half dozen girls and one man, who apparently was heading the job. This should be remembered in the rebuilding of Latvia. The labor force is doubled by the number of women. They do everything that men do, and they are worked from daylight till dark. Even the children have the work of the laborer, and this is especially so in watching the cattle, sheep, and hogs in the pastures. Most of these young women are from the old world, a young girl, or a boy may spend days as if he were tending two or three animals. I remember one young woman whom I saw watching two cows eating the grass of a meadow, with nothing in sight for a mile. I asked her what she was doing, and she said she was milking. I saw many women spading and hoeing potatoes, and in some of the fields they were plowing with the plowmen to throw the manure into the furrows. They all looked overworked and, with their short skirts and clumsy shoes, almost unsexed. Many of the women wear men's boots and some have dirty work clothes. Their faces are tanned and their hair sometimes bleached by the sun. Most of them are wearing aprons wrapped around their heads, and one can see how the Balts, raised in luxury, are different upon the peasants as a matter of fact, and with practically no rights that he was bound to respect.

Women's Work in Riga
The women do most of the work of the cities. I see them in great pushing carts and carrying great loads of wood in bags on their backs. There are more women than men in the markets, and such stalls as sell the products of home industry are usually managed by women, who carry their wares for miles into town and, when the market is over, take back home what they need. These are the first signs that met my eyes as the train came into the capital of Latvia was a dozen flat-bed cars piled high with hand-made bannocks and a score of women, thirty, forty, and fifty years of age, with short skirts and big shoes, and handkerchiefs wrapped round their heads, leading the sand into the cars with long handled shovels. I could see the heading over, and forcing the scoops into the sand with their feet, and with a toss that showed their bare arms throwing it into the cars. They were broad-faced and rough looking, and each bore the marks of a decade of toil. The sun was then rising and I venture to say that they were wrapped in rags, are sweeping the streets of the city.

I see, also, many women pushing and pulling and showing wheelbarrows. The human horse traffic here is as common as in Germany and France. The women bend over as they force their way through the streets. The wind is strong and it blows their hair back. It is cold in the early morning and they wear heavy wraps, and then stop and slip their arms, or if walking without loads, tuck their hands into their sleeves, as they march onward, half double facing the wind.

Latvians versus Our Colonials
Today, at the beginning of their independence, the Latvians are in much the same condition as our forefathers were when they established the republic. The United States was then largely a forest. We had to cut our houses out of the woods, and we lived in log cabins. We made our own clothes from the wool of the sheep and from the cotton lint which we picked by hand from the seeds. Nearly everything we ate came from the farms, and we were practically independent of stores and factories. The same is true of the Latvian peasant, except that he has so land to clear, and the farm he is getting is practically ready for crops. The Balts were students of agriculture, and their estates were so large that they could profitably use modern machinery. Many of them had tractors, gang plows and mowers, reapers and threshers. It cost a hundred dollars per acre to till the land and set out the stumps. They had to build up everything from the ground. The Latvian pioneers have their farms ready made. They have cities and villages, good roads and railways. They have excellent schools, and even now they are better educated, by and large, than the United States.

comparative philology, methods of teaching, elocution, and the history of English literature and language. I am surprised at the culture of the better classes of Letts, and even of the peasants. The Latvian tongue is one of the oldest in Europe and it is so closely allied to the Sanskrit that a noted philologist who was recently here said he found so many Sanskrit words in the newspapers that he could almost read Lettish without having studied the language. He said the Latvian is more akin to the English than is French, and that the people learn it more easily.

The Letts are proud of their literature, and of their music and artistic culture. They have recently published a huge collection of folk-songs containing more than two hundred thousand original ones by unknown authors of centuries ago. This work is in eight volumes of 1000 pages each and it is considered an invaluable storehouse of Aryan culture for the ethnographer and philologist.

The language of these people has been in print for hundreds of years. The first Lettish book was published long before there was a settlement of any kind on the North American continent, and the first Lettish newspaper appeared more than one hundred years ago. When the world war opened there were fifty-nine periodicals being published in Lettish, and of these twenty-seven were newspapers. There were twice as many newspapers in Latvia in proportion to the number of inhabitants as in Russia, and today Riga has ten Lettish dailies with an average circulation each of from fifty to one hundred thousand copies.

SURPLUS WAR STOCKS OF UNDERWEAR TO JAPANESE
UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 15. (AP)—All the surplus war stock of knitted underwear remaining in possession of the government is to be shipped to Japan for the relief of earthquake victims. It was announced here today by Roy A. Cheney, secretary of the Associated Knit Underwear Manufacturers of America, after a telephone conversation with officials at Washington.

A shipment of 25,000 dozen pieces from manufacturers will be sent to Japan in a few days. The manufacturers found that the available supply was insufficient so Mr. Cheney appealed to Washington.

'MERRY-GO-ROUND' BIG FEATURE AT OLYMPIC ALL THIS WEEK

'Merry-Go Round' Olympic Feature For Entire Week

Robert E. Sherwood, whose brilliant pen has won him hosts of readers throughout the United States, after reviewing the world's premier of "Merry-Go-Round" at the magnificent photoplay palace, The Rivoli, in New York city, wrote: "Merry-Go-Round" is one of the finest pictures that has ever been shown at this beautiful theater. In its essence it is a masterpiece of art, its scenes are marvellously reproduced and its flavor is distinctly continental.

The story revolves about a marriage-plot in a Viennese parlor—the same sort of carousel that Lillian Barker for in Monna Lisa. The characters are mostly women, the various concessions in the park; a villainous fellow who operates the merry-go-round, a picturesque showman, a beautiful, pathetic daughter and her lover, a hunchback who is entrusted with the care of the Viennese apartment. Into this scene stalks a staff officer of Franz Joseph's court, a swaggering, unscrupulous fellow with waxed mustaches and a regrettable unimpaired code of ethics. He covets the clown's daughter and subjects her to the usual advances. Although his base machinations prove highly successful, her purity serves to bring his better nature to life and he falls honestly in love. Although he is slightly handicapped by the presence of a wife who has been saddled upon him at the emperor's request, he presses his courtship with the humble girl and then, when the great war has cleared away the mists of misunderstanding, he marries her.

This rather unimportant story has been developed in a remarkably imaginative manner, providing that in spite of all that, the Author's League may have to say, the plot of the picture is insignificant as compared with the treatment.

"Merry-Go-Round" has a solidity of construction, a smoothness and a polish that is a credit to Rupert Julian.

"We looked hard at 'Merry-Go-Round,' because it is a picture that compels close attention, but we could find no flaw in its atmospheric detail or in the logic of its story. Its development is consistently sound, a great deal more than we could say for Von Stroheim's backgrounds are wonderfully true. 'Polish Wives'—The types and the editing of the various scenes is faultless.

character work as the showman, Dale Fuller is as usual, thoroughly competent. Norman's habitual stiffness is an asset rather than a defect in this picture; he appears as an Austrian officer.

"Merry-Go-Round" deserves very high rating in every respect. If it is typical of the new Universal pictures, we most emphatically want to see more of them.

"Merry-Go-Round" comes to the Olympic theater for the entire week.

Great Race Scene 'Pride of Palomar' At Gem on Sunday

One of the thrilling scenes in "The Pride of Palomar," Peter B. Kyne's romance of Southern California as pictured by Cosmopolitan for Paramount release, is the race where Don Mike's pet, Pancho, with the range burrs still in his mane, runs away from a field of hangers and brings home the bacon to the Rancho Palomar.

Since the feature was added the problem for the producers was to get a crowded grandstand for the occasion. Fortunately, the Spanish-American spirit still survives in Southern California, and a horse race takes precedence over everything.

Advertisements were inserted in the local papers that the race scenes of "The Pride of Palomar" would be filmed at the Ventura track, and as a special attraction there would be a chariot race between Tom Clark, county supervisor, and Bob Anderson, a well known rancher. The result was a crowd of about 5,000 persons, whose enthusiasm for the local favorite was fine for the cameramen, and saved Director Frank Borzage a lot of work.

The only feature missing was the book-makers, and even at that, Clark's backers managed to collect a lot of money when he won.

BIG GRIFFITH PICTURE 'THE WHITE ROSE' STRAND WEDNESDAY

Story of Fallen Man Is Given in 'The White Rose'

"The fallen woman no longer falls alone," says Sophie Irene Loeb. She is president of the Child Welfare Board of New York City and has much information brought to her about fallen women—and fallen men.

You know the old fashioned stories of the fallen girl. But have you ever seen a play about a fallen man?

Yesterday men eyed their wife out as a female of course, never taking the results seriously. Society seemed to say it was their privilege.

Things are changing. Today when men and women sin through love, do not many men suffer, too?

Take an actual story from real life of a young virgin man, with high ideals inculcated by his mother, who goes out to study humanity that he may fit himself to help mankind.

Glenn of Shadow-Silken Ankles It happens in the center of the stage in the form of a little jass baby, a dance hall pet. He is stirred by the moan of the jass horns, the faint perfume of femininity, the swirl of lifting drapery, the light tapping of soft shoes, the gleam of dainty shadow-silken ankles, and the swaying graceful, girlish bodies in the dance. Everywhere lights, laughter and merriment.

Old, too; but he is a young miser, and his eyes meet the eyes of the jass baby. An older man whom he knows, winks and nods knowingly toward the dancing girls, particularly toward the one. He asks the young man how he can lead humanity unless he knows mankind, and how can he know mankind unless he has experience with it.

It is the old, old cry that has caused many a heart-ache, and wrecked many a life in love's game. Heart-ache—flowers and stamens. Later comes a moment when the sound of distant low songs, gleaming gold on the water. He follows the girl. Fragrance of new flowers, all about—a long embrace—a darkness—a and the silence.

Soon again he faces the world. He stands before a mirror, and in the robes of the Church. Only a close observer can see the anguish burning in the eyes; but none can see the terrible yearning for that one wild love of his past calling in his heart.

No voice can thrill, no eloquence so astound the world as his. The world's greatest honors and glories are before him, but to gain them he must sacrifice the only love of his life; how can he take with him the scandal-stained girl with the illegitimate child at her breast?

And what of the stained little girl-woman looking scarcely bigger than the baby at her bosom? What of her tears? Her yearnings?

Secrets of the Fallen Man Such as these are the secrets of the fallen man; and to know more about him, and about her, you must see D. W. Griffith's newest picture, "The White Rose," at the Strand theatre Wednesday for four days. It is real, it is new, for this is the play of which Sophie Irene Loeb, great publicist and humanitarian, spoke regarding the fallen man.

You will understand their rap- ture, the shock of their awakening and the rousing glories of their love. Into this story enter gay parties, dancing, happiness and laughter.

"Almed straight at the heart, it hits the mark," says the New York World.

"Easily ranks with the best pictures made in America," says the New York Sun.

"And splendid comedy," says the New York Times.

And this is the first important drama ever presented of the fallen man.

VIOLA DANA in a Dramatic Scene from "ROUGED LIPS"

Life of Screen Star Is Insured For $250,000.00

Few motion picture theatrogoers of Wichita Falls will be aware when they see Madge Kennedy in "The Purple Highway" at the Empress Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, that her life was insured for $250,000.00 by the Kaema corporation, who made this production for Paramount release, to insure them against loss should Miss Kennedy's life be sacrificed during the filming of the thrilling and hazardous water scenes that abound in the picture. Fortunately for all concerned the charming star went through the ordeal of production without the slightest mishap.

In "The Purple Highway," Madge Kennedy appears as April Blair, who, beginning her career as a little slave in a public home for Artistic Paupers, mounts the ladder to majesty and splendor and at the top finds a love which makes her know that all her struggles have been worth while. Miss Kennedy has been starring on the stage for three years in notable successes—"Twin Beds," "Fair and Warmer," "Lull," "Café" and "The Purple Highway," signaling her re-appearance on the screen.

Miss Kennedy says that the story and scenes of "The Purple Highway" so surpass those of any other production in which she has appeared that she feels as though she were really appearing in motion pictures for the first time. Every endeavor was made to make "The Purple Highway" as "different" from other motion pictures productions as is possible, and it appears the producers were successful.

Henry Kolker, who directed George Arliss in "Dixie," and who recently returned from Italy after staking the massive Italian spectacle, "Saint Ilario," directed "The Purple Highway." Rufus Steele adapted the story from the John Golden stage success, "Dear Me," by Hale Hamilton and Luther Reed. The play itself, which proved one of the biggest winners of the thrilling and hazardous water scenes that abound in the picture. Fortunately for all concerned the charming star went through the ordeal of production without the slightest mishap.

In "The Purple Highway," Madge Kennedy appears as April Blair, who, beginning her career as a little slave in a public home for Artistic Paupers, mounts the ladder to majesty and splendor and at the top finds a love which makes her know that all her struggles have been worth while. Miss Kennedy has been starring on the stage for three years in notable successes—"Twin Beds," "Fair and Warmer," "Lull," "Café" and "The Purple Highway," signaling her re-appearance on the screen.

Miss Kennedy says that the story and scenes of "The Purple Highway" so surpass those of any other production in which she has appeared that she feels as though she were really appearing in motion pictures for the first time. Every adventure, and has won praise of the first order wherever already shown. Rintintin is credited with almost uncanny intuition, acting like a true veteran of screendom.

It is a Warner Brothers classic of the screen, directed by Chester H. Franklin. The story deals with Gabriel Dupre, a young French Canadian trapper, who returns from a far north trip and finds the Hudson Bay trading post in construction over the disappearance of five men, missing after setting out singly with loads of fur Gabriel undertakes to make the trip leaving Felice McTavish, his sweetheart behind, to the tender mercies of Shad Galloway, the tyrannical factor.

The cast of "The Purple Highway" includes such well known players as Monte Blue, Vincent Coleman, Pedro de Cordoba, Emily Fitzroy, William H. Toole, Winifred Harris and John W. Jenkins, all of whom have earned distinction by their work upon the screen.

"Beasts of the North," a screen drama featuring Rintintin, the famous dog, will play at the Empress theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It is a drama set in the far north silence with a woman for prize, in which a dog's instincts and intelligence thwart the diabolic cunning of a brute-man. The picture is reported to be replete with mystery, glamour and against false alarms. AUSTIN—As a result of numerous false fire alarms here, the city council is considering adoption of an ordinance which would subject those turning in such an alarm to a fine of from $15 to $500. Fire department officials say the ordinance would serve as a "cure" against false alarms.

'Lightnin' Brings Cast of Players Specially Chosen

Playgoers of Wichita Falls and vicinity will be privileged to witness the most successful play in the history of the American stage when John Golden presents "Lightnin'" at the Palace theatre Monday and Tuesday, September 17 and 18.

This is a widely discussed comedy classic which shattered Broadway's long run record with 1291 consecutive performances in its three years' stay at the Gaiety theatre. Until "Lightnin'" flashed upon the world's metropolis the endurance record was held by the old Hoyt farce, "A Trip to Chinatown," with 657 performances.

In Chicago, "Lightnin'" is also the long run champion. At the Blackstone theatre it registered 601 performances in 18 months. No other play has run longer than a year in the western metropolis.

John Golden has assembled a special "Lightnin'" cast, headed by Thomas Jefferson, for a tour of important cities that clamored for four years to meet Bill Jones, the flirtatious vaudeville actress, the Reno judge and the other characters who contribute to the mingled laughs and thrills of the most eagerly awaited play of the generation. It is this organization that will introduce the play to this city under the auspices of the generation. It is this organization that will introduce the play to this city under the auspices of the generation.

It will lack none of the smartness or charm that characterized the Broadway presentation. Winchell Smith, who wrote "Lightnin'" in collaboration with Frank Bacon, has personally staged the production.

Mr. Jefferson, whom local playgoers will see as "Lightnin'" in a gentle mannered old mountain truant and prevaricator not unlike Rip Van Winkle and it is a happy coincidence that the character will be introduced here by a son of Rip's beloved creator.

Mail orders for "Lightnin'" will be filled at once in the order received.

Bestie Bacon, daughter of Frank Bacon, will be seen in the role of the vaudeville actress, and Charles N. Evans, veteran of "A Parlor Match" fame, will be seen as the Reno Judge, Margaret Mosier, who appeared as Mildred Buckley during

About a girl who couldn't stop loving

"One of the 'biggest' pictures made in years is 'The White Rose' because it is so very, very humane . . . comes as near being a real picture as we have seen in years. . . . It is an unqualified success . . . and Mae Marsh reaches out and twangs away at a mighty and little sympathy on one's heartstrings, and never strikes a discord."—Don Allen in Eve World.

"Almed straight at your heart, it hits the mark—boldly tearing away the old dual standard of morals, and showing man accepting blame for the sin along with the woman—inspiring and moving—one of the finest things D. W. Griffith has ever made. And if you want to see art in the cinema, see Mae Marsh in 'The White Rose.'"—Quinn Martin in 'The World'.

"It easily ranks with the most important pictures made in America. The acting is magnificent; as fine as the screen can boast."—The Sun.

"The 'White Rose' is indeed a triumph for its splendid cast."—P. W. Gallice in The News.

"It is the best picture Mr. Griffith has made since 'The Birth of a Nation'—try as you may to resist its appeal, it will make you smile, laugh and weep—the dawning of love between the preacher and this flowerlike girl magnificent, one of the most gloriously beautiful passages in all Mr. Griffith's pictures—once you are into the heart of the story, it is inescapable."—Leo Pollock, Eve Journal.

"A singularly fine picture—and the treatment of the big dramatic moments is superb—it is beautified and exalted by the presence of that exquisite creature, Mae Marsh, the divinely inspired. The scenes are marvellously beautiful."—Robert Sharwood in The Herald.

"Another pictorial and sentimental gem—doubtful if the Magician Griffith has ever done anything finer—an unusually superior picture, and one that reaches the heart with its presentation of a few moral code and establishes the dual responsibility in the moral code in which the woman pays, perhaps, but not alone."

—Journal of Commerce.

"Again 'The White Rose' proves Griffith the master of the screen technique—always the audience—a very human bit of life with a very strong heart appeal."—Morning Telegraph.

"The 'White Rose' is a sermon, poem, and great love drama, all in one, with laughter full of tears—presenting the big moments in little lives; beauty in simple and even sordid; the basic principle in which the world—yours and mine—actually moves."

"It sends one home with something unforgettable, with a heart hunger for a better humanity."—Sophie Irene Loeb, famous publicist and president of the Child Welfare Board.

"Lightnin'" recent run of seven months in Boston, has the role of Mildred Buckley.

Newspaper reviewers have agreed that "Lightnin'" strongest interest lies in the quaint originality of its central character, Bill Jones, a gentle mannered old mountain truant and prevaricator not unlike Rip Van Winkle and it is a happy coincidence that the character will be introduced here by a son of Rip's beloved creator.

Mail orders for "Lightnin'" will be filled at once in the order received.

Viola Dana in 'Rouged Lips' at Strand Theatre

A series of novel features are included in "Rouged Lips," Viola Dana's newest Metro starring picture, which will be seen at the Strand Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

There is a complete reproduction of the interior of a theatre. In addition to a thousand seats it includes an orchestra pit, a glass surfaced runway, with electric lighting beneath, and a complete stage.

Of the various unique stage settings which serve as a background for the activities of the "daisy chorus of thirty under twenty" in "Rouged Lips," the chief one depicts a cave of devils. Each chorus girl is attired in a red devil costume consisting of red tights, a pair of horns and a sort of cape attached to the arms so that when the arms are raised the cape lends the appearance of wings. In addition each girl carries a long three-pronged fork.

A pit, supposedly bottomless and leading direct to Hades, is vividly depicted in the center of the stage on the screen. Leading into it from the wings at the back of the stage the studio apparatus erected in metal slides. Lighting effects make it appear that there are flames within the pit and when victims garbed in the attire of blue law "villains" and representing Glenn Fessenden and other enemies of Joe, are sent sliding down the chute and out of sight into the pit, puffing smoke arise.

"Rouged Lips" was written by Rita Weiman, and was directed by Harold Shaw. It was adapted to the screen by Thomas J. Hopkins.

THE DIRECT PATH.

It's vision that gives to a man the ability to see in a direct path. Where others see nothing but cloud and mist, he with vision cannot understand why any one could see otherwise than as clearly as he does.

I was reading recently of a great publisher whose name is now a household word throughout the world.

"It will all come back," was this believing man's reply when his advisers gasped.

As a rule, however, the most difficult path is the one with the most interest, for you have a new problem every minute—and problems make both great men and great achievements.

It takes some people an entire lifetime to come to the simple realization that the shortest distance between two points is the straight line.

There is only one path impossible to get lost in, and that's the direct path.

I'm truly sorry for the man. Though wrapped in luxuries he's living. Who follows but a selfish plan And has not found the joy of giving.

In all the catalogue of bliss Designed to give us satisfaction. There's nothing quite so sweet as this. The knowledge of a kindly action.

To meet a tramp upon the street. A shabby, soiled and sorry figure. And give him coin for bread and meat Will make the biggest man feel bigger.

To soothe a sigh or break a tear. To ease a care or dry a fester. To know that he's been useful here. Will make the best of men feel better.

To earn another's gratitude. To leave a smiling face behind him. Will make him feel, however rude, He's served the Master who designed him.

A Lesson in Real Americanism Given by Son of an Immigrant

By THOMAS A. MARSHALL

Early in April, 1922, a young man I had never met sought an interview with me. His name I shall not attempt to spell. I can't pronounce it even yet. Had one been searching for an American this young man would have been the best among the hundreds and thousands.

At the time I had not yet learned how much show of force it would be necessary for us to suppress the youth of America. It was in at once. His answer was that in the 40's of the last century a flame for the freedom of a people had flashed, seeking to burn up the tyrant of America.

It was the story of his family. I need not name the country of his ancestors. It is sufficient to say that in the 40's of the last century a flame for the freedom of a people had flashed, seeking to burn up the tyrant of America.

From the lips of this young man I learned that he was born in America while his father was still an immigrant. He followed the path of the republic through battle, murder and sudden death for four long years of that fatal conflict.

higher than pre-war. Cheap German labor is going to be our biggest foreign trade problem as soon as allied restrictions are removed and Germany has a 50-50 chance in world markets.

Our larger cities have quite a flood of immoral picture magazines printed in Europe. Here and there the various societies for the suppression of vice are causing the arrest of newsdealers selling these wares.

As usual, the favorite defense is that these immoral publications are "art"—but few of the buyers are artistic. We can be thankful that our civilization is not old enough to produce much real "art," which in its so-called higher forms is next door to decadency and a weathering of social decay.

Our president doesn't go into office until four months after election, because in the days of slow communication and stage coach transportation it took that long to find out who was elected and get him to Washington.

Now the votes can be counted and the president rushed by airplane to the white house almost overnight. So it's sound sense, the recommendation by American Bar Association for the arrest of a gold basis.

The mark drops in value so fast that it's impossible for German workers to keep their wages rising as rapidly as the cost of living. So wages throughout Germany have been put on a gold basis.

That will be interesting competition for other countries, also on a gold-wage basis but with wages

I know seven men that don't never worry about what's gonna happen tomorrow, an ever one of 'em has three or mo' houn dogs an smokes a pipe with that kind o' smell.

When the boys who worked for him and the boys who worked for one of his distinguished relatives got into a row concerning grazing rights, Abraham sent for his kinsman and said to him, in effect: "This is a large world and there appears to be grass everywhere. There is no profit in fighting about it. You take your crowd and go one way and I'll take my crowd and go another, and thus we shall avoid another row-ho-ho."

The point is that Abraham did the logical and expedient thing, and the man who will employ hard sense upon one occasion very likely will employ it upon another. He was an isolationist because the world was full of unusual parking space.

NEW OAKLAND CAR TO BE SHOWN HERE IN COURSE OF TRIP

Arthur Huff, local Oakland dealer, has received advice that one of the new 1924 True Blue Oakland models which are being sent out over the United States and Canada will pass through this city on route to the Gulf of Mexico, exact date to be announced later.

This car, which left Pontiac, Michigan, September 8, will follow a route including Indianapolis, Kansas City, Oklahoma City, Wichita, Falls, Dallas and San Antonio, with numbers of stops between these locations, it was not stated.

Statements declare that in dispatching a fleet of their new 1924 models to every section of the United States, the Oakland Motor Car Company, Inc., is making a thorough demonstration of a line of motor cars probably never attempted in the auto industry.

On a "trial" day in Pontiac, where nearly half the population of the city and the entire factory force of 1,500 turned out to witness the Oakland True Blue travelers "God-speed" as they started off on their journey to points on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, the Cadillac hotel and the Gulf of Mexico.

As the cars halted in front of the Oakland administration building, the drivers were in a short period of time by George H. Hannum, president of the company, and C. J. Nephew, general sales manager. Hannum also gave the boys a parting word with letters to be delivered to the various points of the compass.

The long tour of the new 1924 Oakland models are being made to demonstrate the performance which can be expected from the new Oakland six as well as the many new features that tend to make motor car driving safer for both the operator and the pedestrian.

In a most of the places through which the cars pass, police department officials will be given a demonstration of the better control devised in the new models, particularly the four wheel brakes and the speed control controlled on the steering wheel.

The demonstration of the four wheel brakes will show the additional safety provided in the new models as well as the fact that when the application of the ordinary two wheel brakes would mean a crowd and a stop on steep hills and in crowded city streets.

The centralized arrangement of all the operating controls on the steering wheel instead of the dashboard tends to cut down the possibility of mishap since it is not necessary for the driver to remove his hands from the steering wheel save to shift gears.

The fact that a driver can shift lights from driving to dash, without reaching to the dash, is of particular value in night driving when many serious accidents occur.

The Oakland 15000 mile engine guarantee is also in effect on the new models as well as the special mileage bonus plan.

THE MOTORISTS' PROBLEMS

By WILLIAM H. STEWART, JR.

Motor Department: Please tell me just what causes an engine to knock. Knocking an engine produces enormous strains on the connecting rod and crankshaft bearings, leading to faster wear, and, in some cases, to engine failure. Sometimes it leads to a connecting rod snap, so that the crank gives a side blow, tearing out the side of the case. It makes a noise upon top of the piston, causing carbon, and if continued makes engine overheat.

Motor Department: I have a five passenger car and I notice that when a certain spot on front wheels reaches the ground it causes a sudden jerk which is very annoying. It is as if the valve opening in the roller is not quite air escaping. Full car ahead and see if speedometer cable or other part is loose. Perhaps the roller is not quite dampish rim used replacing or tightening.

Motor Department: I have been told that the front wheels run at the same speed while the outside rear wheel runs slightly slower than the inside wheel. Is this correct? If all the wheels and tires are of the same size there is no reason why any one should turn any faster than the other. The drive wheels may slip at times, due to poor traction but this is not intended.

Motor Department: Which way should the timing of a chain be placed when on a lift? I am told that if they are put on wrong the chain will come off. READER: Drop the chain over the wheel with the clamps to the rear. When they strike the mud as they revolve they are drawn shut. If applied the other way they are more likely to be forced open by mud, rust, etc.

Motor Department: Please let me know why the planetary gear set is only used on the Ford. It has many advantages why do not all cars use it? READER: Some years ago it was used on several cars which have since dropped it. It has the advantage of simplicity of control, making it easy to learn to operate. This is probably why the Ford Company still use it.

Motor Department: Which is the better way to clean the car body—by flowing water over it, or by spraying a prepared oil on it and then wiping it off with a piece of waste? READER: Any winter while the grit is still on the polished surface must catch it. Water should be flowed over the surface, carrying away what dirt it can. The sponge is used gently afterward, and then the chamber should be cleaned with a brush and water.

Sometimes it leads to a connecting rod snap, so that the crank gives a side blow, tearing out the side of the case. It makes a noise upon top of the piston, causing carbon, and if continued makes engine overheat.

Motor Department: I have a five passenger car and I notice that when a certain spot on front wheels reaches the ground it causes a sudden jerk which is very annoying. It is as if the valve opening in the roller is not quite air escaping. Full car ahead and see if speedometer cable or other part is loose. Perhaps the roller is not quite dampish rim used replacing or tightening.

Motor Department: I have been told that the front wheels run at the same speed while the outside rear wheel runs slightly slower than the inside wheel. Is this correct? If all the wheels and tires are of the same size there is no reason why any one should turn any faster than the other. The drive wheels may slip at times, due to poor traction but this is not intended.

Motor Department: Which way should the timing of a chain be placed when on a lift? I am told that if they are put on wrong the chain will come off. READER: Drop the chain over the wheel with the clamps to the rear. When they strike the mud as they revolve they are drawn shut. If applied the other way they are more likely to be forced open by mud, rust, etc.

Motor Department: Please let me know why the planetary gear set is only used on the Ford. It has many advantages why do not all cars use it? READER: Some years ago it was used on several cars which have since dropped it. It has the advantage of simplicity of control, making it easy to learn to operate. This is probably why the Ford Company still use it.

Motor Department: Which is the better way to clean the car body—by flowing water over it, or by spraying a prepared oil on it and then wiping it off with a piece of waste? READER: Any winter while the grit is still on the polished surface must catch it. Water should be flowed over the surface, carrying away what dirt it can. The sponge is used gently

The Price of This Car Is Misleading

Some buyers take it for granted that cars which sell at about the same price are equal in value. This is distinctly not the case. To buy on this basis would be an injustice to yourself.

You can pay several hundred dollars more than the Light-Six price and get a car that represents no greater, if as great, intrinsic value as the Studebaker Light-Six.

Or you can pay about the same price as the Light-Six, or less, and get a car that is high-priced when compared with the Light-Six because it does not represent as much for the money invested.

And in the Light-Six you enjoy all the advantages of smooth, flexible, dependable, six-cylinder performance.

You get a beautiful, substantial, well-built, roomy and comfortable car.

The practical absence of vibration in the Light-Six is a notable achievement. It is due largely to the fact that the Light-Six crankshaft and connecting rods are machined on all surfaces. This is an exclusive Studebaker practice on cars within hundreds of dollars of the Light-Six price.

Stop in and see the 1924 Model Light-Six. Test it for yourself—drive it and make your comparisons. Driving is believing.

After seventy-one years of service the name Studebaker enjoys confidence and respect more than ever.

STUDEBAKER BEATS 1922 SALES RECORD IN FIRST 8 MONTHS

With four months remaining in 1923, the Studebaker Corporation has already surpassed its entire production for 1922, according to a report just received from the Studebaker factory by Frank Klein, local Studebaker dealer. Production for the first eight months of 1923 was 119,440 cars as compared with 109,222 for the full calendar year of 1922.

August production was 15,790 cars, and broke all previous records. Production for the first eight months of 1923 was more than 50 per cent in excess of the first eight months of last year.

Sales are expected to exceed 119,000 this year as against 110,000 last year. And they are well ahead of production which amounts to about 20,000 cars for the first two months of the present quarter as compared with 20,100 for the full third quarter last year.

All plants are running at capacity to meet the continuing large demand for Studebaker cars from all sections of the country, and indications point to a heavy fall business. The sales of the last few months of the year will therefore represent this year's increase over the 1922 record.

Buildings are now under construction at South Bend, Indiana, which will increase Studebaker manufacturing facilities still further in order to meet the increasing demand for Studebaker cars. Work on these additions, requiring an investment of approximately $2,000,000 is progressing rapidly.

The new six-story body building, now nearing completion, contains 48,000 square feet of floor space. It is expected that this building will be ready for use before snow flying shipping will be facilitated by a new four-story storage building and a train shed which are being added to the present facilities. Dimensions of each of these additions are 72x24 feet, and both are being practically under roof and will be soon ready for use.

The mammoth new foundry, alone costing approximately $1,000,000, will measure 122x52 feet, and is now well under way. When finished this will be the largest iron foundry in the automotive industry.

Studebaker's plant facilities today are unequalled in the industry, and its reputation as a manufacturer of splendidly constructed and subject of favorable discussion in business circles and among motorists throughout the country.

MARMON MEN PLAN TRIP TO EUROPE ON THE LEVIATHAN

The "Leviathan fever" has extended to the men of the new who sell Marmon automobiles. The world's largest ocean-going liner is attracting passengers from all parts of the country, and the last of them next month will be some Marmon salesmen who have been running a race for the last few weeks to see who will make the trip.

The contest, which was launched by the Marmon and Marmon Company last June, was to see who could get to Europe first. The man who sells a Marmon without something, the trip to Europe, which is being given to the winner by the Marmon Company, is especially romantic to the purchaser. Dick Meigs, selling schedule and descriptive booklet of the Leviathan, and itineraries of European travel have constituted most of the content reading of Marmon salesmen, and have attracted wide interest among their friends and customers. As a matter of fact, our customers are as much interested in the ship and European travel as any of the men who expect to go there, and find it a topic of consuming interest.

The contest will give some Marmon salesmen a month in Europe, and messages over and back have been received on the 8th of the men who sell a Marmon without something, the trip to Europe, which is being given to the winner by the Marmon Company, is especially romantic to the purchaser.

CHIEF HODGINS OFFERS APPROVAL 4-WHEEL BRAKES

Complimentary remarks regarding four-wheel brakes have been coming in rapidly from the local dealers who various models are equipped with them, but probably none are more enthusiastic than Chief of Police George Hodgins of the local force.

In company with Charles W. Nolan of the Dixon Motor Company, local Buick dealers, Chief Hodgins and several other members of the force were taken for a demonstration of the new brakes in one of the Buick models from the local company.

In describing the trip Chief Hodgins remarked: "In my estimation no greater improvement has been made in motor-car construction since the introduction of the self starter."

"Any traffic officer welcomes the prospect of any improvement which tends to lessen accidents. In the four-wheel brake, as I have just seen it demonstrated, a great step has been taken in the elimination of traffic fatalities, for with proper braking facilities, will probably cause a decrease of eighty per cent of traffic accidents. Every traffic officer in the country will welcome four-wheel brakes, and I believe their universal adoption will mean the end of many needless accidents."

Chief Hodgins' endorsement, and the fact that it is now being used by a chief of police, the highest in the law enforcement, is a strong recommendation.

Wichita County Stands Fourth in Increase of Registrations First Eight Months 1923 Over All of 1922

According to registrations of the state highway department Wichita county stands fourth in the matter of increase during the first eight months of 1923 over the entire year of 1922, having a gain of 2842.

The total number of motor vehicle registrations in Texas in the eight months of 1923 ending August 31 was 267,722. This is 121,591 more than were registered during the same period of 1922 and 19,225 more than were registered during the first eight months of 1923.

This shows that previous estimates of the department that registrations would reach the 250,000 mark for 1923 were very conservative, indications now are that they will exceed this amount, probably reaching 312,000.

Only fourteen counties show decreases when compared with the entire year of 1922, and these decreases will probably be wiped out during the next four months. Large increases are shown in most of the counties. Dallas leads with 49,843, Harris in second with 47,642, Bexar third with 32,842, Wichita fourth with 28,425, Tarrant fifth with 22,227.

Archer county shows an increase of 201, Taylor of 121, Bowie of 94, Clay of 81, and Wilbarger of 79, according to the records.

Texas Leads All States as to Total Mileage and Amount of Money Spent On Road Building and Improvement

(From "Texas Opportunities")

A great American general, who won distinction in the late European wars is credited with saying: "If the war which was fought in Europe had been fought in America, under similar weather conditions, our deaths would have totaled millions; our wounded would have run to death. Our roads are such that they would have been impassable, thus rendering the bringing up of supplies an impossible task."

They did have lots of rain in France, but the old roads that have been built for hundreds of years, and repeatedly repaired and built up, were able to stand the traffic, the fighting forces and food, and the guns never went begging for repairs.

Since 1866 America has experienced an awakening to the importance of road building, resulting in the greatest program of road building ever experienced by any nation. Almost half a billion dollars has been spent, and the end is not yet in sight. The end is not yet in sight. The end is not yet in sight.

A half a billion dollars is quite a good deal of money, but this total, taken into account only roads that have received Federal aid. While the grand total is not available, it certainly would be much greater than half a billion. And for the half billion, we have gotten or are getting, 25,128 miles of good roads, ranging from gravel to drained to brick surfaced, at an average cost of $17,539 a mile.

For all other states, together as to total mileage and amount of money being spent. The estimated cost of road building in Texas is $2,524,000,000. Federal aid has amounted to $1,227,027,72, and the mileage approximately 7,468. Pennsylvania is second to Texas in the amount expended, which is estimated at $2,422,798,60. Federal aid amounting to $1,091,814,41. The total mileage in Pennsylvania is about 128.

Texas is still leading in good road building, and the roads have not only served the public because of their service to our citizenship, but have attracted tourists from all parts of America. With the completion of the great highway program now under way in Texas, it is safe to say that the fame of Texas, as a scenic wonderland and place to spend a vacation, will spread far and wide and be instrumental in developing a new crop in Texas—the Tourist Crop. As Col. Frank P. Holland has said: "Climate is one thing you can sell; it is another thing you cannot. Climate is one thing you can sell; it is another thing you cannot. Climate is one thing you can sell; it is another thing you cannot."

Over Million Dollars Worth Grease And Oil for Cement Mills Each Year

If you were to ask a dozen automobile experts how much grease their cars consume in a year's time it is doubtful if any two answers would be the same. Manufacturers of high priced cars will tell you that from 14 to 20 pounds of grease should be used every 4,000 miles, while lower priced cars demand only a small percentage of this amount.

Manufacturers of portable engines require the heaviest kind of machinery. Some of the giant rotary mills weigh 400,000 lbs. and use 200,000 pounds of grease each year. The largest rock crushers weigh 65,000 pounds. Running in a dense atmosphere the bearing parts of this heavy machinery are subjected to exceptionally hard wear and tear. Large quantities of grease and oil must be applied frequently to assure smooth and efficient operation.

The grease requirements of the cement industry last year would supply over 217,000 high priced automobiles for a 4,000-mile trip. They would supply the 4,000-cube ft. of one of the largest taxicab companies in the country for 41 years. The lubricating oil used last year on cement machinery would operate 12,000 taxicabs for a year, with each car using one quart of oil per day.

It would supply approximately 225,000 high priced automobiles for a 5,000-mile trip.

In other words, the cement industry last year used over 2,250,000 pounds of grease and over 1,750,000 gallons of lubricating oil—costing over a million dollars. Although a low grade of oil is suitable for some of the heavy kilns and crushers, the power plants and fine machinery demand the highest quality lubrication, and only the best oils are used.

In addition to the heavy grinding and crushing machinery, constant lubrication is necessary on steam shovels and railroad equipment from the quarry to the mill; mixing machines, sack cleaners and repairing machines, and other mill equipment.

Lubrication of conveyor machinery is a considerable item, for hundreds of miles of conveyors are in use in cement plants.

In spite of the frequent and excessive use of grease and oil, the life of machinery in cement plants is probably less than in any other manufacturing industry.

One out of every five operative employees in a cement plant is required for repair work.

and the right comfort has been demonstrated thoroughly. It is felt in both the front and rear seats, regardless of position or road conditions. There is no jostling or the feeling of unusual comfort and the definite impression of stability and solidity which contribute so materially to satisfaction in driving.

The splendid riding comfort of the new Dodge Brothers cars is largely to the type of rear spring suspension employed. The rear springs which are extremely long, also have been lengthened and lowered to make the car sit more firmly to the road's surface. The new car is in every sense, a remarkably easy riding car.

WILD RUSH FOR HOMES IN OKLAHOMA RECALLED TWO GOOD ROADS ADVOCATES WELL KNOWN IN SOUTHWEST

View on the border of Kansas, opened from a photograph made on Sept. 15, 1909, when lands of the Cherokee Outlet were thrown open to settlement.

By NEA Service. OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA., Sept. 15.—Today is the anniversary of the maddest race for land and homes in American history. On Sept. 16, 20 years ago, thousands of land-hungry settlers rushed over the borders of the "Greenback Strip." At a signal from federal soldiers, at noon, under a blistering sun, the horde of home seekers rushed into the promised land. A broad strip of territory, held previously for the Indians, was thrown open for settlement by the national government. The rule was first come, first served. The first man who drove his stake into the virgin soil had established his claim in the face of numerous competitors, was winner. In the space of a few hours a great territory was settled, cities sprang up as if by magic, and the task of making a cattle range into an agricultural region had begun. How well the work was done is shown now by a happy, smiling land, filled with prosperous farmers and dotted with populous towns. Then, the land was barren, scorched by a blazing September sun, with water at a premium, and the land seekers died in numbers from heat and thirst in mad efforts to "stake a claim."

Major Strong Gives Some Facts Concerning Settlement of Wichita And Clay Counties; First Ranches

Editor the Times: I have many times listened to fellows trying to appear wise and to know all about early frontier days in West and Northwest Texas. By sitting and standing still and keeping my mouth shut I have heard many ridiculous stories. I have heard men tell things that have happened in Wichita Falls sixty-eight years ago, and even lived in or around the Falls. I saw an article some time ago about whether there was ever a fall in the river there or not. I will say there was a fall of about four feet. Joe Ward, John Woodhouse, Robert E. Huff and some others knew this—also Major Davis. They lived in the town when the citizens, under the direction of Major Foreman, built the dam, which was a good piece of work, only that it built on top of the rock at the top of the falls and no bed made for the foundation, and the Major had his with the hollow side of the curved dam up the river so it would catch all the force of the strain in the center. I tried to show him that if he would turn sides and make the bow up stream it would stay. He laughed and I believe the dam was the first real big head of water coming down would wash it out. The water was three or four feet over it several times but when the river got good and full and a lot of drift came down it went out; the dam went out. If it had been built with the curve upstream and the foundation tied into the rock I believe the dam would still have been there.

Naming of Henrietta I see a piece in your paper about the name of Henrietta which is an error. Cambridge, called by the Henrietta people Pinhook, never was the county seat of Clay County. Doctor Eldridge, the founder of Cambridge, owned the land where Henrietta was started after the war and gained the town of Lawrence. Dr. Davis of Gainesville was his attorney. Captain W. S. Ikerd owned 100 acres south of the site of the original town. He started on and donated a site for a court house and sold lots on the other. I think your informant was wrong in to be the sheriff just as to the M. K. & T. being in there several months prior to August 7, 1871. The M. K. & T. never came to Henrietta until 1871, or long after the town of Wichita Falls was started and the Fort Worth & Denver started. I think your correspondent was wrong as to the first sheriff of Clay County. I never knew a man named Newsome, but knew Dick Newsome and I think Thomas Gees was the first sheriff. I know the name Henrietta was from another source. A man named Rayburn settled before the war about one and half miles northeast of the site of Henrietta (more east than north) farther down on the high prairie where Mr. Tanner afterward built a rock house, and intended to make it the county seat, and called it for his wife, and the place was called Henrietta when only a "ald spot on the prairie. But many old settlers knew of Henrietta when there was no settlement of a town, only some rocks were in a pile from the chimney. I don't know whether Mr. Rayburn came from Montague and returned to Montague. He lived at the place mentioned when Colonel Gilbert lived near the mouth of the creek that bears his name, and a post oak grove east of where he lived, was given the name of Gilbert. I think your correspondent was wrong as to the line of Clay and Wichita Counties.

Mr. Kouch settled about a mile southeast of where Charlie Taylor built a house and store and called it Charlie. This is between Red and Wichita rivers. Bill Kouch, about ninety years old, who lives at Zackabow, was a young man then. The Indians became troublesome having killed some of Colonel Gilbert's men and one of his sons. I believe I know one who was severely wounded, and the other Kouches left the country. Colonel Gilbert returned to Clay County. His wounded son was living there a few

W. G. Turner and A. R. Cook, federal government engineer for the Southwest, discussing good roads.

An ardent pioneer good roads advocate visited Wichita Falls Friday in the person of W. G. Turner, of Fort Worth. Mr. Turner came to Texas in 1878 from Tennessee and has been active since the day of his arrival in the development of this section of the country, particularly in the building of good roads. Mr. and Mrs. Turner drove up from Fort Worth and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Mercer here. While the roads between Fort Worth and Wichita Falls are not the best in the country, Mr. Turner commented on their condition very optimistically, recalling that they are passable and not comparable to the roads of earlier times. He was pleased with the improvement program under way here and said that his past experience had shown that good roads were slow in being constructed sometimes, but the spirit of the people of Texas is indomitable and will prevail. Mr. Turner drove over the paved highway to Electric Friday afternoon and enjoyed a visit with one of his close friends there. During his long business career Mr. Turner has taken a personal interest in assisting young men to advancement in the business world. The southwest is dotted with institutions whose proprietors or managers are at one time associates in the "Viking" spiritism in which Mr. Turner has been at the head. The principal among them being Fikes & Company of Fort Worth. Mr. Turner is at present president of the Hub Furniture Co. and a director of the Fort Worth Life Insurance Co. and Fort Worth Record

He took a course in law in the University of Oklahoma for two years and will now enter the university of his home state to conclude his course. During his work this summer he assisted in prosecuting cases in both the county and district courts.

You Are Glad to Note This Prosperity

When agriculture prospers, all Texas is happy. When you hear of a farmer who has done well you congratulate him sincerely. And when a man starts a store, and that store grows so that he has a nice business built up, you are glad with him, for he helps the community. Also you are pleased when the factories in your town get substantial orders, employ more men, and distribute money in your community. You realize that these all add to your own prosperity and make your community stronger. You help when you can to make the farmers prosperous, you are pleased with the merchants' success, and you are a booster for the factories.

THESE HELP YOU TOO

Why not take the same attitude toward your public utilities? They, too, in even larger measure, contribute to your community's upbuilding; they employ many people (we have about 1400), and they spend their money in your local enterprises. We spend millions in Texas each year. Their successful operations bring prosperity to you; they save you money and time, and they invest enormous sums in plants and operations in your State. Reasonable prosperity for you—and this better service well as time. Aren't they, them means better service for actually saves you money as too, entitled to a fair share of prosperity?

William Jennings Bryan's Weekly Bible Talk
Timothy, a Good Minister

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

Timothy is a beautiful character. He stands out in bold outlines against the sky; he was not the heroic type, like Peter and Paul, but a more reserved class and, therefore, his example will be of practical assistance to a larger number—his those who have his own.

Timothy was a helper and, as a helper, came near being a perfect example. In the first place, he had a good start. If, as the proverb goes, "the beginning is half the battle," we may credit his grandmother, Lois, and his mother, Eunice, with half of his success—they started him right. Paul refers to Timothy's "undefiled faith" and reminds him that it first came in his grandmother and then in his mother.

Next of Today's Bible Talk by Mr. Bryan. TIMOTHY, A GOOD MINISTER. (I Timothy 1:1-11; 2:1-12; 3:1-13) Paul, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, according to the promise of life which is in Christ Jesus, writes to Timothy, my beloved son: Grace, mercy, and peace, from God the Father and Jesus Christ our Lord. I thank God, whom I serve with pure conscience, that without ceasing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day. Greatly desiring to see thee, being mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy.

from just above freezing up to boiling point; raising the temperature is, therefore, a work in which Christians can help each other. This is one of the most beneficial results of church gatherings, national and local. Paul's letter to Timothy. Finally Timothy may be measured by the confidence reposed in him. We are known by the character of those who trust us. No one was nearer to Paul or more completely trusted by him. In his epistle to the Philippians Paul pays an extraordinary tribute to Timothy in commending him to the church there.
