house late yesterday had approved the last of the 22 charges which constitute the impeachment bill. These are illegal issuance of state police commissions to numbers of irresponsible persons, censorship of the press, issuance of two deficiency warrants when no occasion existed, falsifying the report of his cam-paign expenses, abuse of the pardon and parele power, receiving funds from various persons for his personal benefit and general incom-

All of the charges come under the general allegations of corruption in office, moral turpitude, willful negoffice, moral turpique, whilst hear-lect of duty and incompetency. In setting the trial date the sen-ate court allowed the executive six days in which to answer the charges and enter his plea. If these condi-tions are complied with before the prescribed time has elapsed the court said the trial would begin at in the dity jail awaiting transfer to the county on a charge of burglarising the Shain Jewelry & Loan Company on Obio avenue about midnight Friday. The boy was arrested in the railroad yards about 30 minutes after the report was made to city officers that the plate glass in the display window had been broken and some watches and jewelry taken. Six watches, valued by the proprietors of the concern at $250

Officers who were called to the cene of the burglary found the window smashed and the handle of an ice cream freezer on the side walk. Shortly after the first call notifying them of the burglary, officers were informed from the railroad yards that a boy was trying to sell watches to some of the employes at the roundhouse.

A number of citizens who were on the street at the time joined in the search and were with the officers a few minutes later when the boy is alleged to have come into the roundhouse and tried to sell the watches to Special Agents Somer ville and McClure. He was arrested and placed in the city jail. He told Night Chief Allen that he and had decided to go to his brother watched the jewelry shop window for about two hours and when the for about two hours and when the street was clear he broke the glass and took the watches. Since October the first there has been a marked increase in the price of wheat and corn and of some other crops and hence if the figures were available at the moment, the increase for these sixteen crops, at the present time would be very much larger than the figures given. On October the first, for instance, the cotton crop showed a gain over the same date last were a take age.

the same date last year of $485,000. 000, but since October the first the $100,000,000 over the average price then prevailing for the value of this

If all farm products could be included in this calculation it is quite certain that the net result would be a gain of largely over $2,000,000,-000 as compared with the value for farm products one year ago, and indications rather point to an in-creasing price of farm products which would doubtless still further enhance this gain to the credit of he farmers. The success of big steel companies in Pittsburgh in shipping their products down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers for redistribution throughout the south and southwest and for export has been so pronounced that the Jones & Laughlin Company wire the Manufacturers Record that they have purchased eight acres of land at Memphis, Tenn., on which they will build a Tenn., on which they will build a storage and distributing depot for steel products and have river and rail terminal facilities. They state that since their inauguration of shipments down the river they have sent fifteen large shipments south on the Ohio and the Mississippi in their own steel barges, each shipment carrying from five to accept ment carrying from five to seven thousand tons of steel pipes, structural shapes, bars, plates, wire products, etc., and that with g river shipments they are adding as dditional fleet of new barges and ow boats. Among other interesting develop progress reported in the Manufacturers Record during the past week are the following: The Kanawha & Michigan Railway Company, a subaidiary of the New York Central lines, is consider-ing tentative plans with the city of Charleston, W. Va., for the con-struction of overhead and under NR ARBOR Mich. Oct. 37.—In Herbert Steper, sensational University of Michigan halfneck, followers of the Maise and Blue football sleven see another candidate for All-America honors.

Steper, today, ranks as one of the best gridders foot has hed in sessons. Captain Harry Kipke not excepted. Flost of foot, a good forward passer, splendid punter, and an expert field goal bloker, the former Cab Park lad is triple threat artist de luga. There is no gutting away from that. He also is as good a bet as the Wptverlane boast on the receiving end of a pass, having the uncanny ability to grab 'em out of the air on almost impossible chances.

This is Steper's accord year on the Yout maFrankie Frisch, Giants' Crack Player Looms Up as Baseball's Greatest Star

We Will Be Closed Sunday

Being law abiding citizens and desirous of complying with the laws regarding the Sunday closing, as it is to be enforced in Wichita Falls, our place of business will be closed all day Sunday.

We ask our customers to bear this in mind and to purchase their Sunday supply of gasoline Saturday.

Let us drain your crankcase and refill it with good Veedol Oil, Amalie or other foremost oils.

CHAPTER IV
The Meeting of the Wardens Clare Jewett stared with burning, angry eyes a sthe door that closed upon Jerry Goodkind. It seemed as though he had paused on the other side to leer at her through the heavy oak panel. As she took a step forward, an echo announced the closing of the outer door and she turned back.
She looked down to see that her hands, doubling unconsciously in nervous tensity, were crushing the marvous tensity, were crushing the tissue-wrapped packages she still held. Fuming, she hurled them at the foot of the tree where others lay, piled high just as Dr. Wadham came from the choir room,

"Why—Miss Jewett!" the minister protested in surprise.

She looked up, embarrassed.

"I'm nervous," she cried petulantity, "I want to finish up and go home." She rushed past him through the door he had just opened. Bewildered, the minister stopped and rearranged the disordered packages.

The noise of the outer door pressaged a visitor and Dr. Wadham rose hastily and dusted himself off.

"Ah Mr. Goodkind," he said as the henlor warden came in briskly.

Tou're early."

Frontre early."
George F. Goodkind. Jerry's father, carried the air of a busy before with him everywhere. Even evening clothes or the heavy over-ig at his crisp orders.

He had Jerry's amiability, the miability of wealth. He had Jerry's "Helio, George!" he greeted. "Helio, George!" he greeted. "How'd'y, doctor. Am I late?" "We've been waiting for you," suitable ourse. Jerry was selfish because said Dr. Wadham nervously, He was he had been brought up with all his wants supplied. The elder Goodkind was selfinsh because he had fought for all he had and felt that it was his, and his alone, by right of conquest. He was by no means niggardly. He did what he cancelying long enough. All I got to say has community and his God—and he wanted all three to appreciate it. "How do you do doctor," he said brusquesty. "Walked out of a meeting. There's a man out there wants o see Mr. Gilchrist," he apologized.
"What kind of a man?" asked Dr.

"A poor man. I think he's a Jew." Mr. Goodkind scorned, "Mr. Gilchrist isn't here," inter-posed Dr. Wadham. "I told him that, but he won't go away. Why don't he go over to the ayangogue instead of hanging around a Christian church? Mr. Gli-christ gave him his overcoat this morning and I guess he's come back for the gloves."

"All right. And if he don't insist?"

"He stays."

Benfield turned on the advancing figure savagely. A torrent of vituperation surged through his brain. But somehow the tranquility of the figure before him disarmed him completely. His attack became nothing more than a second and the state of Mabel Wright as Miss Cornelia Van Gorder; Ernest Howard as Doctor Wells, and G. A figure before him disarmed him completely. His attack became nothing more than a scowl and when this met a smile his rout was complete. He stormed past Gil-christ and the slam of the door a moment later was the only audible indication of his ire.

"Mr. Benfield is a little—ah—a little—" soothed Dr. Wadham, rubbing his hands uneasily,

"Yes," said Daniel, "a little." His face still glowed from the cold outside. Goodkind picked up his hat and sauntered toward him.

"Pneumonia wasther. Deniel" "Pneumonia weather, Daniel," he dvised in a fatherly tone. "Where's our overcoat?"
"Outside," was the response.

Will Letters Solve Hall-Mills Murder?

MOTIVE

Modern detectives don't bother with dark-lanterns. Clues are more valuable in convincing a jury than in detecting a criminal. Experience has changed the dictom "Find the Woman" to "Discover the motive and

But in the Elwell and Hall-Mills' murders too many had motive. In the Jimmy Glass kidnaping and Taylor shooting there was no motive. That is why these cases are among the darkest mysteries of American crime.

For six years director of the bureau of criminal investigation of Scotland Yard, the man who frustrated the German and Bolsheviki secret service has an experience in criminal motives so vast that he suggests solutions when all other detectives have been hampered.
