Bayou Philosopher Unworried Over Chances Of Farmer Going Way Of Whooping Crane

osopher on his Johnson grassfarm on the Bayou takes a con-Mrs. Tom Taylor, live on Route 1, fident view of farming, his letter this week reveals. Dear editar:

Last night I was thumbing through a magazine wondering if there was anything in it I'd be interested in reading, most articles in magazines are written for neurotic women and I usually just skim through em, when I noticed an article about farmin and I settled down to read on it.

That is, it wasn't exactly about farming, it was been dropping steadily, as towns and cities grew bigger and bigger, and today it's only 19 percent. That's right, the article said, only 19 percent of the population of this country are farmers, and furthermore, it adds, the percentage is dropping at the rate of 1 percent a year.

Now it doesn't take any mathematician to figure that if this trend continues, in 19 years there won't be any farmers left.

This bowled me over. I knew there were possobilities of the

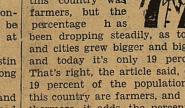

Editor's note: The Bayou Phil- | country running out of oil, gascoal, uranium, plutonium and whooping cranes, but didn't know us farmers were in the same category. I had always figured you couldn't run out of farmers anymore than you could run out of candidates for office, that as long as there was any land left, a farmer would show up with a plow, the same as when an office becomes vacant, a candidate al> ways turns up with a promise. But if these figures are true, this represents a real crisis and some department of the government ought to get to work, say the wildlife department, which could divide its efforts between vanishing farmers and the disappearing whooping cranes. They could set up a national preserve for farmers, check em with their binoculars every spring to see how many made it through the winter, and leave food scattered around to let em know the rest of the nation was still friendly.

However, this morning I came outside and started checking around myself and as best I can tell, every piece of land around here is still being farmed like it was for generations and if farmers are disappearing, you can't tell it by looking. I'll be glad to have some food scattered around for me, but I ain't planning on

HEART DISEASE PROBABLY HAS NOT INCREASED ...

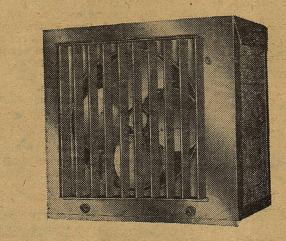

The increasing number of reports of heart disorders as a cause of death has been brought about by the success of medicine. Many persons who formerly might have died of other diseases now live long and useful lives—eventually to succumb to a failing heart which has performed its lifetime of dure of duty.

Therefore—as we grow older, the care of the heart must be considered in our every activity. Have regular check-ups by your Doctor, and follow his guidance carefully. He probably can help to keep your heart functioning for many extra years of buoyant and happy life. Whenever medication is required, we will be happy to have you bring your prescriptions to this Pharmacy.

- Natrual gas, trading Austin stamps, cigars, cigarettes, snuff gasoline, uranium, and beer license fees would be taxable under the bill to provide $100 million additional state revenue for the next two years. Revealing sharp difference of pinion over the bill was the fact hat it passed House engrossment by a close vote of 74 to 69. Without surprise, the Legislature found it easier to spend money than to raise it. A few examples: Governor Allan Shivers asked for emergency consideration by the Legislature of a bill to pay indemnity to owners of sheep and goats destroyed in an effort to halt a scabies epidemic.

Extension of the veterans land program was approved by a Senate committee. (Theoretically, this program is self-financing. The state issues bonds to buy the land, and the bonds are retired as the veterans make payment on their property.) Requested by the governor was an appropriation to give underprivileged children the Salk polio vac-

Proposals were made by the Travis County delegation, that the state sponsor a supplement to state employee retirement benefits in the amount of $600,000 per year. Car Dealers Licenses

Seventeen amendments were added in the House before the car dealers licensing bill gained initial approval

Principal provisions of the bill would: Make new car dealers pay $50 for sellers' license, and used car dealers $25; prohibit offering for sale as a new car any vehicle that had been driven or towed more than 50 miles; and require dealers to post $10,000 bond. Original purpose of the bill, before the amendments were added, was to prevent used car dealers from offering latest model cars for sale as "new" cars. Trinity Bill Fades

A big segment of the Texas population lives in the Trinity River valley. Hopes of those people for an organization to administer flood conrol, water conservation, and irrigation were dimmed when the Senate Water Committee rejected a Trinity River Authority Bill and sent it to a subcommittee. Representative Barefoot Sanders of Dallas, who pushed the bill through the House, blamed the railroad lobby for its failure in Senate committee. Said Sanders: "The railroads, in the final analysis, are responsible for this setack because of the propaganda

Water Bill Falters Trouble was ahead for a proposed constitutional amendment rated high on the list of administrationrecommended water legislation. Purpose of the measure would be to let the people vote on whether to authorize $100 million in bonds to finance water projects of the state. Passed by the House, the resolution was patched with amendments.

The Senate refused to concur and asked for a conference committee. Veterans Land Probe For from abating, the veterans and investigating was expanding and reaching as far afield as Minnesota Cecil E. Burney, special assistant attorney general, told the Senate Investigating Committee that two years ago, when Attorney General John Ben Shepperd was vacationing in Minnesota, he happened to see former land commissioner Bascom Giles.

Giles invited Shepperd to visit his Minnesota farm of 8,600 acres. When the veterans land investgations began, Shepperd sent an investigator to Minnesota.

As a result of that investigation, Burney predicted, the people will hear that money from the veterans land program went to Minnesota to buy land for Texas. "It is amazing" said Burney, "that some of the same people who were anxious to buy cheap Minnesota
