Paneis in both houses are delving into circumstances leading to the bankruptcy of the ICT Insurance Co. of Dallas. The more they investigate the more widespread and complicated the involvements.

Recent disclosures from testimony: former Insurance Commission Chairman Garland Smith was on several occasions the guest of Ben Jack Cage, one-time ICT head, on pleasure trips. Smith's son-inlaw, Max Wayne Rychlik, received $8,400 in salary from Cage, for a job with no duties. ICT lost $2. 000,000 in a series of stock transactions with Pierce Brooks, head of National Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Dallas.

Meanwhile, the Senate passed a bill by Sen. William S. Fly of Victoria to reorganize the Insurance Commission. It abolishes the present board and substitutes an executive director and a part-time, three-in Austin Owen contended that the state should not be paying rent to an insurance company over which it exercises control. Opponents counter that irsurance companies of Texas pay the rent and the money does not come out of the state's general

Daniel gave unqualified endorsement of 15 "Better Government legislative measures recommended by the Texas Press Association.

Daniel extended his personal compliments to TPA and the press of Texas for "unselfish effort in the fight to bring better government to the State and its citizens.

In his endorsement the Governor said "the 15 bills sponsored by the press of Texas would supply some badly needed laws, and strengthen several existing laws. They have my unqualified endorsement."

New Water Board -- Another phase of the water conservation program has reached conference committee stage. Bills to create the Texas Water Development Board passed Senate version calls for a fivemember board; House, three members. Board's responsibility would be to administer the proposed $200,-000,000 bond issue. Money is to be loaned to local districts for conservation projects.

Truckers Seek Increase .- A bill to increase truck-load limits has stirred the perennial controversy between the motor freight and railroad industries.

Truckers are pushing a bill to increase the limit, now 58,420 to 72,-000 pounds. Backers contend that putting the increased weight on an extra axle would mean no more wear and tear on roads than present loads. Truckers, they add, paid $97, 000,000 or 41 per cent of state highway use taxes in 1956.

A State Highway Department bridge designer said that a 72,000pound load would shorten the lives of Texas bridges. A railroad spokesman warned that truckers "can't pay enough for the damage done to Texas highways."

Loan Laws Urged - Measures to regulate small loan businesses are being studied in the House. At committee hearings Former Secretary of State Tom Reavley, the Texas Junfor Bar, and a military official made strong appeals for loan regulation. They cited cases of interest and charges allegedly running to nearly 300 per cent.

A bill by Rep. Tony Korioth of Sherman would license persons making loans up to $500, allow 10 per cent interest and other charges up to 3 per cent a month on unpaid balance of less than $100.

Mental Health Department -- Session's trend toward reorganizing state agencies has extended to mental hospitals.

A last-minute Senate bill incorporates the recommendations of a national authority who surveyed the Texas hospital system. Dr. Francis J. Gerty of Chicago proposed "disentangling" mental hospitals from "unrelated services" (tuberculosis hospitals and special schools). He also suggested a model demonstration program at a new 500-bed hospital in the Houston-Galveston area. New bill would create a Department of Mental Health under the present State Board for Hospitals
