"Expressions of Endearment"

By VANDA ANDERSON
CREECH
Editor

In today's society "huggers" are becoming extinct. Now what I am referring to are those people who consistently greet you with a big bear hug.

The Hutchins boys, who were all raised in Cross Plains, come to mind. They flash that friendly smile and then hug with a genuine expression of caring. Alvin comes into the Review office nearly every week and Deborah and I receive a bear hug.

My aunt, Joe Watson, is one who greets everyone with a big hug. You know every individual needs to know that someone loves them and can express just that. If you don't naturally have this talent, you can develop it.

Bob Pipes, minister of the Church of Christ, hugs everybody as they depart from the church service. Members stand in line to say farewell and I think to receive his kind bear hug. Of course, the little children are there to get the candy he dispenses, too!

At the Nimrod Baptist Church Bill Armstrong, the pastor, along with everyone in the congregation greets each person who arrives with a hug. It is very refreshing and you feel like you are among true Christian friends. Following the service they depart with another hug. Well, as Bill says, "You feel you are on hallowed land."

I was talking with Wilda Edington this week and she held my hand during the conversation and I thought, how sweet. At one time in my life I would have been embarrassed, but now I know better. It is so wonderful to let another person feel they have some significance. She makes me feel special following a conversation with her -- what a great gift.

Personally, I am not big on hugging (just like to receive them), except for the older people, they need to be held and encouraged the most (in my opinion) because they usually live alone. However, I have a habit of touching, even strangers, on the arm or hand in a manner of acknowledging my concern or compassion toward them. I hope the day never arrives when we can no longer express any physical feelings out of fear of reprimand.

My point is this, the Bible teaches to greet your brother with a holy kiss, so you know this can't be wrong. We must not allow all human touch to be destroyed by the overshadowing of sexual harassment, etc. If we do, we have bent too far the other direction.

"Choice"

If you could visit any four countries in the world, which countries would you choose? We already live in the United States of America so we will exclude America from the four choices.

I have already visited Old Mexico, my first few forays were across the border to Palomos, Mexico. Then later to the Pro'nauf in Juarez, and later still down into Old Juarez.

If I could visit four other countries, my first three choices would be France, Ireland, and Holland. The fourth country I am undecided as to which to choose.

France, I have always wanted to visit as far back as I can remember. My fathers mother was of French ancestry. Her fathers mother was a Du Pre'. Other reasons for wishing to go to France are the Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, and other sights; famous and not so famous. Another attraction for which France is renowned is the French cuisine. It would be quite an experience to sample some of it. French fries and French toast do not come under this category. There's a somewhat huge difference between just plain ordinary food and cuisine, besides the spelling and pronunciation. Cuisine would include such delicacies as hors d'oeuvres, coq a vin (chicken in wine), filet mignon (beef steak), the inevitable escargot or snails, cherries jubilee, crepes suzette etc. Crepes are like little thin pancakes which you spoon something similar to cherry pie filling onto and then fold over, then top with ice cream laced with brandy and next set the whole thing ablaze. After which you then have before you crepes Suzette. Then your coffee in demitasse and last an excellent champagne.

While we are into French, there's lingerie, bustiere, Riviera, and Au Paire and well that's a whole 'nother story.

Next choice for me, I believe would be Ireland; a.k.a. the emerald isle. Both my maternal and paternal grandfathers were of Irish descent.

One thing I know that I would like to see in Ireland is the Loch Ness Monster. I would like to ask him why he is so evasive. Also, I would probably run like crazy if the monster were to show up, Loch Ness or no!

In Ireland, I would like to view some old Irish castles, visit a few

Irish Pubs (just from a tourists standpoint you understand) and see some thatch-roofed cottages. If possible, my wish would be to mingle with some of the country people and see how they go about leading their everyday lives. The Blarney stone would be on my list of must sees and who knows I might be lucky enough to spot a leprechaun or so.

Some other things I would like to do while there is to study and learn to speak the Gaelic language and also try and trace my Irish ancestors. Naturally some foods to try would be Irish Soda bread, ale, Irish coffee, Haegus, and other regional fare. What great fun it would be to ride in a pony cart pulled by none other than!!!!

My maternal grandmother was black dutch which I understand were Germans who migrated at some time in the past to Holland.

Some of my "would like to sees" in Holland would be renowned for, wooden shoes, Dutch windmills, the dikes, quaint houses and beautiful countryside. They are said to make wonderful cheeses, butters, and baked goods.

As far as my fourth choice, it's a toss up between Spain, Hawaii, or Japan. My sister-in-law, Marvin's brothers wife is from Madrid, Spain or was until she married Johnny and came to America. Now she is an American citizen. So I would kind of like to visit Spain.

Of course, I find Japan very interesting also. The architecture, the culture, the communal baths, the people, Japans history and various and sundry other items of interest. Food, somehow, I always find food fascinating. In Japan, one could look forward to sushi, saki, rice, fish, and of course chopsticks with which to partake of all that food.

However, I believe I will choose Hawaii. The beach at Waikiki should be fascinating, a luau with poi and Don Ho and roast pig and a lei. Boy, couldn't I have fun. Viva grass skirts and the hula.

I guess that's all I have time to say this column. I don't have enough time to write any more. That's because I've gotta get fitted for a new swimsuit, shop for a grass skirt, practice the hula, look up Don Ho's phone number, etc. etc. etc., plus purchase airline tickets. Volcano, here I come!

Terry Ann Edington McAdams Former Rodeo Queen in a New World

Editor's Note: This was a feature story in the Colorado City Record, Thursday, July 30, 1998. Vanda Anderson Creech

Terry Ann McAdams of Colorado City always watches rodeo queen contests with interest because back in the late 1970's, as a Texas Tech University student, she was Miss Rodeo Texas and then Miss Rodeo America.

"A lot of parents feel like if they throw a lot of money at something, it should just happen," she said. "But it doesn't matter if you have a $2,000 leather outfit on if you ride like a sack of potatoes."

"You really have to be able to ride because you don't get to ride your own horse. You draw from the pool, and you never know what you're going to get."

Ms. McAdams, 43, has remained active in Miss Rodeo America circles, helping judge the competition twice since it was moved to Las Vegas, Nevada, and once judging Miss Rodeo Texas in San Antonio.

She won the national title in 1977 when the National Finals Rodeo was still in Oklahoma City, and incredibly, her Tech roommate, Debbie Johnston, won two years later in Las Vegas.

Miss Johnston later married former Dallas Cowboys running back and well-known cowboy Walt Garrison.

Ms. McAdams was on the Tech rodeo team, only roping and goat-tying because she "didn't have the horse" to be a barrel racer, and was working in a Lubbock western clothing store when she was asked to enter the Miss Rodeo Texas Tech contest.

"I had never entered one of these things in my entire life, but I thought, why not?" she said.

She was runner-up at the College National Finals in Bozeman, Montana, but won the horsemanship contest and the Miss Rodeo Texas title in Stephenville that September.

Then she went to Oklahoma City that December and took the national title with its $30,000 crown of Black Hills gold, pearls and Alexandrite and the belt buckle with diamonds, rubies and sapphires.

The crown and buckle are passed on to the next queen, but Miss Rodeo Americas are given a golden trophy buckle stating the year they won to wear for the rest of their lives.

After she won, she called several former Miss Rodeo Americas who lived in Texas and then visited them to get advice about her upcoming year of travel.

"Had it not been for them, I would have not known how to prepare for it," Terry Ann said. "I would suggest that anybody that's going to try something like that go and try to learn from those who have been there."

"It doesn't matter if it was 20 years ago because it doesn't change that much."

PIONEER NEWS

By PIONEER QUILTING CLUB

This Monday morning is the last day of August 1998. Tomorrow will be the 1st day of September, which falls on a Tuesday and the Quilting Club resumes its quilting. It is planned for us to eat out together tomorrow and also next Tuesday which will be our regular 2nd Tuesday. So men, you will have to wait until Tuesday the 15th for a good meal at the Club House!

Earlene Burge was visited by her cousin Mildred and Delbert Naylor of Abilene and also Christine and Lester King this week.

Cowan and Laverne Hutton's grandson Matt Hutton and a friend from Savannah Georgia visited the Huttons. They came Wednesday and left for Utah Friday morning.

Friday Larry Martinuea visited and had lunch with Cowan and Laverne. Danny and Trish Hutton and sons Robert and Anthony went on a mini vacation to Sulfer Springs Camp on the Colorado River. There was great excitement when Robert and Anthony caught a 15 pound yellow cat!

Jamie Hutton and family had

Sunday dinner with J.D. and Sandy Hutton. Their daughter and husband, Shanna and Ben Honea who lived in the Cross Cut Community, moved to Cisco Saturday, so Ben will be close to where he works in Cisco.

Community news is short this week as no one has called in.

In the U.S.A. Weekend paper the question was asked: Is peanut butter good for you? Yes, when it's simply ground peanuts as found in health food stores and some supermarkets. But commercial peanut butters are made with artery-hurting sugar, hydrogenated fats and salt. Some contain only 60 percent peanuts.

In a recent nutritional review of nuts, peanuts had the most nutrients per calorie. They are rich in fiber, E and B vitamins, magnesium, copper, manganese, bone-building boron and resveratrol, an antioxidant said to combat cholesterol and thin the blood.

MA & PA

By JAMES NICHOLS

Ma and Pa's youngest son, Ellis, lived in the edge of Kilgore. Ellis kept several hens (mostly Rhode Island Reds) at the back of his lot.

The hens were allowed the freedom of a small pen fenced with net wire. The wire was only thirty inches tall and it offered little or no resistance to any hen that wanted out.

Jaonna Harris Selected as CJC Blue Jacket for 1998-99 Year

Selected to serve as Blue Jackets for the 1998-1999 school year at Cisco Junior College are Jennifer Bergfield, Double Oak; Crystal Dennis, Cisco; Leslee Gerhardt, Cisco; Jaonna Harris, Cross Plains; Jennifer Ingvarsdn, Baytown; Leslee Jacobs, Merkel; Amy Kenney, Coleman; Kimberly Reich, Cisco; and Shelly Sullivan, Ozona.

Blue Jackets is founded on the formal purposes of serving as a hostess group on the campus,

When a neighbor asked about the situation, Ellis promptly replied, "No, it is really no problem! Whenever a hen gets out I dress and eat her."

Needless to say Ellis did not have a very large flock of hens, but those that he did have were strictly the stay-at-home type.

Is It A Teaspoon?

Household spoons vary in the amount they hold. When taking liquid medicine or when giving it to children, it is best to use a special marked measuring spoon or cup. With some drugs, small variations in the amount taken can cause problems. Always follow the directions when taking any medication.

"Fred's a pain!"

"A pain? He's more than a pain! Why he's so low, so bothersome, so ridiculous..."

"Shhh! Here he comes now. Hello, Fred. We were just talking about you. I bet your ears were really burning, huh?"

"Yeah, we were just mentioning how you really leave an impression on people -- you know that? You really do. Well, have a nice day, Fred."

"Poor old Fred. How anybody could be so dumb..."

Such is idle talk and malicious gossip! Evil slander and hypocrisy -- and such is condemned by the Maker and by sheer common sense and respect! Razor-sharp tongues in repulsive mouths slice through frail lives, dissecting characters, destroying influences and staining reputations. Fiery tongues which are set on fire -- "on fire by hell," James says (James 3:6) -- hungrily licking at the weaknesses and frailties, temptations and stumblings of struggling human beings. And yet, the restless tongue really condemns the one in whom it dwells!

"For I say to you, that every careless word that men shall speak, they shall render account for it in the day of judgment. For by your words you shall be justified, and by your words you shall be condemned." (Matthew 12:36-37)

Solomon wrote, "He who has knowledge spares his words, and a man of understanding is of a calm spirit." (Proverbs 17:27) Wouldn't it be much better for all concerned to follow Paul's instructions -- to meditate upon things that are true, noble, just, pure, lovely, of good report, virtuous, praiseworthy (Philippians 4:8) -- and to apply this in regard to talking about others?

Come let us strive together toward purer lives before God -- and kinder ones toward others...

with your children about the time of day that works best for them.

"Many children prefer 'time off' for play or for an after-school snack, but others will do best completing assignments before television time or engaging in other activities," she said.

Flexibility is another key ingredient to creating the right homework environment. Eddins cautions parents to remember that what works for them may not be right for their child.

"You may need uninterrupted quiet to get work done, but your child may like music in the background," she said. "The important thing is to experiment and learn what works best for your child."

Homework success also depends on good communication between the parents and teacher. Parents should learn what the school expects of the child and of the parents.

If remembering homework has been a problem in the past, ask the teacher if send home written notices of homework assignments. This system allows parents to monitor assignments and reward their child for completing assigned work.

"A minimal reward for remembering assignments four nights out of five puts the focus on the positive, not the negative," Eddins said. "Taking time to notice your child's efforts can make a big difference."

Improving homework habits important to all student's overall scholastic achievements

HOUSTON — A structured environment can turn homework woes into successes.

"If doing homework has been a problem in the past, use the new school year as a time to implement change," said Dr. Florence Eddins, a child psychiatrist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "Work with your child to settle key homework issues of where, when and the surroundings."

One homework essential is adequate study space with good lighting and few distractions.

"Desks in rooms can be fine if they aren't covered with clothes or other belongings," Eddins said. "However, the dining room or kitchen table often works well and makes parental supervision a little easier."

For young children, Eddins encourages parents to sit nearby with work of their own.

However, parents should pull back as soon as possible, so the child can learn to work independently. Check in periodically on older children rather than hovering over them.

QUEEN

out overnight delays in airports and sometimes being forgotten by welcoming committees to being met by country singer Buck Owens and riding into Reno, Nevada on the trunk of a Cadillac convertible with steer horns on the front and six-guns for door handles.

She appeared at a number of rodeos with western movie stars Slim Pickens and Ben Johnson.

"They were some really cool people," she said. "Slim Pickens was so funny. He was my good buddy."

"My mother and I made every stitch I wore except for the Wrangler," Terry Ann said.

"I have heard of families borrowing $30,000 and $40,000 in order to clothe these girls in leather and furs. It has gotten out of sight. I could not afford to do it now."

She grew up near Cross Plains, where her father, Hick Edington, and mother Wilda grew wheat and cotton and raised cattle in Callahan and Coleman counties. Her mother, now 84, still looks after 60 cattle at the ranch. Her father died 17 years ago.

"He roped and harassed me," she said. "That was his job. He was real sweet and real proud of me."

"I'm a '54 colt."

Ms. McAdams is in charge of grant management and project development at Mitchell County Hospital, where she also writes the monthly employees' newsletter and conducts in-service training.

Her former husband Jim is assistant manager of the Ellwood and Renderbrook Spade Ranches. Their son Will is a junior at Colorado High School.

She has a sister, Sue Branch, who is married to a rancher and lives between Aspermont and Rotan.

She earned a bachelor's degree in human science at Texas Tech and master's degree in consumer economics at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville.

Terry Ann does not ride much anymore because she herded cattle from her early girlhood and she only associates horseback riding with work.

"I don't look at it as pleasure," she said. "I'd rather go play golf or something."

She points out that rodeo queen contests undergo a very different process from girls in traditional beauty pageants.

"Speaking ability is very important," she said. "Your speech is 20 percent of your score, horsemanship 30 percent, appearance 30 percent and personality 20 percent."

"I studied hard because they had veterinarians and American Quarter Horse Association board members as judges, and they asked a lot of very pointed questions."

"I learned a lot more equine anatomy and a little bit of common veterinary medicine."

Terry Ann said the most beneficial aspect of her title year was the $2,000 of stock she won in the Mary Kay cosmetics company.

"Four or five years later it had split three or four times and become worth quite a bit of money, so I unloaded it," she said.

The bad part was that December 1977 was very cold in Oklahoma City.

"I burned the toes off my boots standing in front of a heater and never even felt it," she said.

MR. AND MRS. STAN COPPINGER

Walker-Coppinger Exchanged Wedding Vows August 8

Sharon Alene Walker and Stanley Kenneth Coppinger were united in marriage Saturday, August 8, at 2:00 p.m. at Tallowood Baptist Church in Houston.

Mary Lee Hamilton of Wharton and Garland H. Walker of Houston are the bride's parents. The groom is the son Mr. and Mrs. Joe Coppinger of Cross Plains.

Ann Quinn, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Lora Walker, sister-in-law of the bride, Pam Camp and Linda Howell, friends of the bride, all of Houston.

Best man was Kim Quinn, brother-in-law of the bride. Groomsman were Dr. Randy Popken of Stephenville, Dr. Doug Edwards of Huntsville, friends of the groom, and Wayne Walker of Wharton, brother of the bride. Ushers were Justin Walker of Wharton and Danny Schochler of Houston, nephews of the bride.

Presiding at the bride's book were Julie Walker and Stacey Schochler, nieces of the bride.

Joe Coppinger, father of the groom, officiated.

Church decorations included an arbor of ivy featuring a top spray of flowers in pink Gerber daisies, hot pink roses, white roses and alstroemeria. Hot pink Gerber daisies cascaded down either side of the arbor. Two fluted columns on either side of the arbor supported baskets of fern and pink gladiolas.

The bride's gown was designed by Lazaro. The floor length gown was a short sleeve, off the shoulder, jewel embellished bodice with a crystal pleated silk tulle skirt. The elbow length veil was silk satin embellished with pearls. She carried a bouquet of hot pink roses, pink Gerber daisies and cascading ivy.

The bride's attendants wore floor length Peacock blue gowns made of Shutung silk. They carried nosegays of hot pink roses and pink Gerber daisies.

Immediately following the ceremony, the reception buffet was held in the church's fellowship hall.

The bride attended Abilene Christian University and is employed as a manager with Research for Health in Houston. The groom is a graduate of Biola University in La Mirada, California and Tarleton State University in Stephenville. He is presently on a sabbatical leave from Howard Payne University while working on his doctorate at Baylor University.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at Papadeaux's restaurant in Houston. The bride's luncheon was held at Lakeside Country Club in Houston.

Following their wedding trip to Seaside, Florida, the couple will be making their home in Houston.
