House Committee Asks Navy Records of Honolulu Affair

SPECT OF MURDER CAUSES LITTLE STIR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The naval affairs committee today on the navy department to deal with all records concerning Honolulu riots and the situation led up to the recent charges being placed against Thomas H. Masie and Mrs. Rubens Fortescue.

EXCITEMENT AT HONOLULU.

HONOLULU, Jan. 11.—Prospect of a national investigation of conditions in Hawaii created little excitement here today as the territorial government prepared for the trial of the prominent American and three navy men accused of "honor" murder of Joe Wal, young native.

From the mainland that the naval affairs committee had upon the navy to supply all concerning attacks on girls and women, one of which asserted the abduction and murder of Wal, was received with mixed feelings.

Officials and civil authorities here to feel that naval officials were under stress on the military. The other side issued statements declaring "women are unsafe here" at they would welcome a military inquiry.

While City Attorney Gilliland argued with plans for the trial of Mrs. Gravelle Fortescue, a law and Washington social lieutenant, Thomas H. Masie, a law, and E. J. Lord and James, enlisted men, charged with the murder.

Four are charged with first murder which upon conviction by life imprisonment hanging.

One Falls in Love, Kidnap Gang Caught

Because one of its members fell in love with the pretty wife of one of its victims, Chicago detectives believe they have broken up the kidnap ring responsible for many of the kidnappings in that city during the past year. Gus Sanger, confessed member of the ring, fell in love with Mrs. George Gecht, shown at the left wife of Dr. Max Gecht, and made a date with her after her husband had paid his ransom when he called to fill his date. The police were there too. He implicated the six men shown above. Left to right standing they are Guy Wyckoff, Ward Swelwell, a former assistant state's attorney at Chicago, and Albert Russell, Siting, Edward Finen, William Thomas and O-car Martin.

TOTAL CAPITAL OF NEW FIRMS IS $86,096,000

AUSTIN, Jan. 11.—Although the total number of new firms which received charters from the secretary of state during 1921 was 3.6 per cent under that for 1920, there was an increase in total capitalization for the year of about 16 per cent, according to the Bureau of Business Research of The University of Texas.

The total capitalization of the 2,116 companies which were incorporated during the year was $86,096,000, or practically $12,000,000 more than in 1920. The Bureau's report said. "Even with this increase, however, total capitalization for 1921 is small as measured by the totals for the ten years beginning with 1920 and pales before the records set in 1927, 1928, and 1929 of $269,000,000, $390,388,000, and $283,612,000 respectively. The number of new corporations on the other hand, showed up rather well in comparison with previous years.

Oil companies accounted for 463, or about one-fifth of all of the new charters granted in 1921, and the number for the year made a gain of 68 per cent over that for the previous year. The number of banking and finance corporations increased to 123, or 35 per cent over the total for 1920, although the record for 1921 is not particularly large as compared with that for previous years.

"Thirty-six public service companies were incorporated both in 1920 and in 1921, the number of manufacturing concerns declined 3 per cent from the previous year to a total of 247 in 1921. The real estate and building group included 182 firms, or 5.2 per cent more than in 1920.

"The number of one-of-state corporations which were granted permits to do business in Texas equaled the all-time high set in 1928. "There has been a gradual falling off in the number of new oil corporations since last spring, and the total for December was only 28 as compared with 34 in the previous month. Oil companies, however, were still the largest individual group and amounted to approximately one-fifth of the total for the month. Two public service companies were incorporated, as were ten banking and finance corporations and 21 real estate and building firms; the latter two groups made subsequent gains over the total for November. Only seventeen manufacturing concerns were incorporated in December as compared with 21 in the previous month. Of the total of 132 companies which were granted charters in December, 40 were capitalized at less than $5,000 and eight had capital stock of $100,000 or more. Total capitalization gained 42 per cent over November to reach $4,407,000 in December."

SKINKS DELAY STUDIES
STORIA S. D., Jan. 11.—Pupils and the teachers in the Peterson school house near here held noses and refused to go on with the regular daily routine of lessons. Farmers and hunters were called in to investigate the peculiar odor of the school room. A family of skunks had made its home beneath the building.

DEATH TOLL OF WEEK-END REACHES 14

DALLAS, Jan. 11.—Fires and explosion took a toll of life that boosted the usual number of violent deaths in Texas over the weekend. A survey today revealed 14 persons suffered violent deaths in the state over the weekend. Of these 14, three died as a result of fires or explosions, three in automobile accidents, three were suicides, one was killed in an airplane crash, one was killed by a train, a man was murdered and another man died of wounds when his shotgun accidentally discharged.

Another Version Of Meanest Thief

The meanest thief in all the world is the thief who steals a preacher's overcoat while he is preaching a sermon against stealing," declared the Rev. H. D. Tucker who last night lost a new overcoat during services at the First Methodist church, Statham Ricks, a member of the church, lost a new hat at the same time.

Both garments had been left in the pastor's study during the services. A pair of gloves went with the stolen overcoat.

The thief did not disturb sundry bibles, locks on theology and Sunday literature stored in the study, the Rev. Mr. Tucker pointed out.

Relay Prayers to Precede Revival

In preparation for the forthcoming revival, the church of the Nazarene organized yesterday at the morning service, what is commonly known as "relay prayer meetings."

All the hours of the day and night were quickly taken by the various members of the congregation. The plan calls for each individual to pray the hour of his or her choice of the day or night. One will spend the time from 1 to 2 in prayer, another from 2 to 3, forming an unbroken chain of prayer for the meeting from now until the revival closes, a period of three weeks. Expectations are hopeful for a mighty spiritual awakening.

SPEAKERSHIP MEANS HARDER WORK FOR MRS. JOHN GARNER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The elevation of John N. Garner, of Texas, to the house speakership meant harder work for his wife, Mrs. Garner. A quiet secretarial work for a congressman's secretary.

With three assistants, Mrs. Garner has typed at top speed since his election in answering letters and telegrams of congratulation.

Outside of being given a much more stultifying office, the election of her husband to the speakership has not meant much difference to Mrs. Garner. A quiet secretarial work for a congressman's secretary.

The room was decorated for the territories committee when the West was young, and names of the territories—New Mexico, Nebraska, Minnesota and the rest—are around the room.

BRIDGE CO. SUIT AGAINST TEXAS OPENS

AUSTIN, Jan. 11.—Suit of the Red River Bridge company against the state of Texas went to trial today before Judge W. F. Robertson here.

Claiming that the state violated a contract entered by the Texas highway commission, the bridge company seeks damages for toll bridge revenue lost when the free bridge across Red River near Denison was opened to traffic last summer.

Attorney General James V. Allred claims the contract with the bridge company, signed when Gov. Ross Sterling was chairman of the highway commission, is invalid.

The commission had no authority to agree to pay to the Red River company the entire amount which it claims under the contract. Allred declared.

Texas statutes provide the commission cannot contribute more than one-half of the amount necessary to acquire, construct, or maintain an interstate bridge, and can contribute that amount only when the adjoining state agrees to contribute a like amount, the attorney general contended.

Because Oklahoma refuses to pay the bridge company any sum whatsoever, the Texas highway commission had no authority to enter the contract, said Allred.

The bridge company claims an exclusive franchise, secured from the Chickasaw Indian Nation in 1916, to the portion of Red River spanned by the inter-state free bridge.

Oklahoma and Texas have answered that the franchise is not exclusive and if it were exclusive, the Chickasaw Nation would have no power to grant such a franchise.

PROTEST OF INNOCENCE IS BROKEN DOWN

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 11.—A story of how he kidnaped six-year-old Marian McLean from her play and took her to a cellar where he slowly killed her, was told today by Charles Bischoff, 45, an eccentric white-haired whose hobby was studying crime.

Bischoff told interviewers of the gruesome event which caused the child's death of leading her to the cellar of his home where he made brutal attacks upon her, of watching her slow death and of hiding her body until he feared his house would be searched.

After 19 days of que-ting stage "Marian's body was "discovered" by Bischoff in the cellar on December 22, Sheriff Asa Butterfield and Prosecutor Robert Gorman announced they had broken Bischoff's claim of innocence and secured his written confession that he killed the little girl "in a fit of insanity."

AUSTIN, Jan. 11.—Continuation of the trend for improvement noted first in November was observed in the commercial failures for December as reported to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

"Although normally December rises with January for first place in the number of firms which go into bankruptcy, in December 1921 there were only 76 failures, the smallest number for any month since July," the Bureau's report said. "In spite of the seasonal tendency for an increase of about 25 per cent, failures in December were 27 per cent less than in November. The rate of failures per week dropped from 26 in November to only 19 in December, the same as in December, 1920.

"Average liabilities per failure rose from $15,538 in November to $19,895, so that total liabilities for December did not show so large a decline from the previous month as did the number of failures. At $1,512,000 total liabilities for December, 1921, are 6.4 per cent under November and compare with $1,661,000 in December, 1920. Average liabilities per failure in December 1920 were $20,862.

"That the number of failures increased to 92, or more than 50 per cent during 1921 as compared with the 66 failures reported in the previous year while total liabilities declined by 38 per cent evidences the fact that 1921 was particularly a hard year for small firms. Average liability per failure, at $17,897 were less than half those for 1920.

"Dan's Review says that the failures reported in the entire United States during 1921 is the highest on record, with approximately 28,275 firms going into bankruptcy. These firms had total liabilities amounting to $733,000,000 as compared with liabilities totaling $668,284,990 for the 26,335 firms which failed in 1920."

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

THE SAINT'S ASSURANCE:—O fear the Lord, ye his saints: for there is no want to them that fear him. The young lions do lack, and suffer hunger; but they that seek the Lord shall not want any good thing. —Psalm 34: 9, 10.

AMERICAN COTTON IN THE ORIENT.

Japan is one of the largest buyers of American cotton. There is a Chinese boycott on Japanese textile goods which is offset by the Gandhi boycott on British textile goods. Japanese traders are doing a big business in India, while the mills of Manchester and Birmingham are doing a brisk business in China.

According to a Wall Street Exchange the far east has registered the greatest increase in the taking of American cotton over last season, using approximately 191,000 bales in November, compared with 109,000 in the same month in 1930. Great Britain shows the next largest relative increase with a consumption of 107,000 bales against 94,000 in 1930. As for the United States it used somewhat more than in 1930, spinning 408,000 bales against 200,000. Europe is lagging behind last season, consuming 264,000 last year. According to the latest census, the five great industrial nations of Europe and counting the smaller nations more or less industrial there are 10,000,000 unemployed workers without counting Russia. This is also a reminder that the cost of armament for these European countries is $1,500,000,000 greater annually than before the coming of the World War. And yet their leading statesmen are calling for the cancellation of war debts with the exception of France. This country not only calls for the payment of all reparations and real war debts, but a world pledge of security before the French government shall agree to disarmament.

BACK-HAND SUPPORT.

If Speaker Garner's fancy is still tickled at the mention of his name in a speech, or the appearance of his name in type, then William Randolph Hearst may be pleasing the sturdy warrior of the Rio Grande.

Otherwise the Hearst "Garner for president" crusade doesn't mean much.

Mr. Hearst has led too many crusades, has championed too many causes, has discovered too many candidates and met too many defeats, to contribute to what seems to be quite a substantial democratic movement for Garner's nomination.

Just now, Hearst, as the personal exponent of a wine and beer program to lift the nation out of economic distress, is in the odd position of championing for president a man from one of the driest of the dry states, a leader from a state that would remain bone-dry in constitution and law if the 18th amendment were repealed.

Mr. Hearst's speeches and arguments for Speaker Garner smack of spite attacks upon President Hoover, his choice four years ago.

The Garner movement may affect democratic action in many states. Texas would be honored in Garner's nomination. Texans believe no able leader could be found anywhere.

But we doubt that Mr. Garner is being helped any by the back-fire efforts of William Randolph Hearst to strike at others by championing him.

MONEY APPEARS TO BE A MERCILESS DRIVER.

This is an age of the machine and science. This is the age known as the industrial, and the scientist and the chemist and their laboratories have transformed the agricultural age to a great extent into an industrial age. This has revolutionized conditions the civilized world over.

Now the stage has been set for the trial of the ouster suits against the major oil companies. Now the owners of natural gas properties, speaking of the independents, claim that they are unable to provide a market for this natural resource and are threatened with financial loss and almost complete disaster by the powerful companies with their half billion dollar pipe lines and alleged monopolistic control.

Just the other day came the story from Hollywood that drastic slashing of overhead expenses and sweeping reductions in salaries for all concerned was the order of the day. The bankers of the east who furnished the money for the moving picture industry had bluntly told the cinema kings that business is business and that loaned capital must earn interest. Incidentally, it may be the same in the petroleum industry. Great capitalists or financial corporations make huge loans to the major companies and their ever pressing demand is large returns on their loans. Yes, money; money invested in mighty industries, is loaned to earn interest regardless of who is pinched or who is thrown out. This is the cry in the moving picture world. It is the cry in the petroleum production and refining and selling camps. It is the cry of the little fellows the nation over. They fear actual elimination and the loss of all they hold in these mighty contests for control of the industrial forces of American life. Really, it is the battle of all the ages and it appears to be the battle this time of the unorganized many against the organized few. Now the oil ouster suits will be thrashed out in the courts. Now the complaints of owners of natural gas producing lands held by so-called independents will be thrashed out before the railroad commission and perhaps the courts will be called into action.

These spectacular contests should engage the attention of all the people. They concern the welfare of all the people. They concern investors as well as the vast army of consumers. There must be a high, middle ground somewhere on which the interests of all may be protected. The pursuit of life and liberty and happiness, which means prosperity in the last analysis, should be guaranteed to all alike.

OTHER OPINIONS

ABOUT MR. HEARST

William Randolph Hearst, the well-known publisher of a chain of newspapers, gives the "Garner for president" boom a shove—whether up or down remains to be seen. In a recent statement he lauded the speaker as "another Champ Clark" and asserted President Hoover's unprecedented unpopularity "is because he has always been a Wilson."

Opinion among Texas editorial writers seems to differ as to the value of Mr. Hearst's endorsement of Mr. Garner—or any other man, for that matter. One paper bases its objections to the endorsement on the endorsement on the fact that Mr. Hearst seldom, if ever, puts his money on the right "horse," classifying him as a "presidential tout" whose tip always turns sour.

But another editorial writer, who holds Mr. Hearst in the same "high regard," is willing to overlook temporarily at least—the faults of Mr. Hearst. He says:

"When the great chain publisher took up the cudgel for John Nance Garner as a Democratic Presidential possibility we could not help but breathe an appreciative amen. Mr. Hearst may be wrong about a lot of things—as many people believe, but in offering the name of Congressman Garner Mr. Hearst has offered the name of a man whose type is sorely needed in high office."

"Hard-working, practical and at times almost blunt, Mr. Garner is probably closer to the people than any man whose name is today coupled with Presidential possibility. Further, he is not an overnight national character. He has spent more than a score of years in a minority party all the while becoming more and more an American leader in politics and in legislation."

Doubtless Mr. Hearst meant to be complimentary to the speaker, and that for his unwarranted attack on Woodrow Wilson, his speech might have been accorded better reception in Texas.

Texas was a Wilson stronghold during the lifetime of Woodrow Wilson, and still cherishes the memory of the great democratic president. Loyal to the Wilson ideals, it is doubtful if any presidential candidate could gain support of Texas democrats who does not adhere to those principles.

But Mr. Garner, in his own words, bears "no presidential bees buzzing" around his office. Until he does, there is little need to become unduly alarmed at what Mr. Hearst says, or thinks, of Mr. Garner—or any other presidential possibility.—Editorial Digest.

Did You Ever Stop to Think?

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma.

R. B. Kennedy, editor of the Whittier (California) News says:

That perhaps we are all sort of heading back for some Moses to lead us out of the wilderness and as individuals we are overlooking some of the sign posts that might speed up the ordeal. Any wood-man will tell you that the moss is different on the north and the south sides of the tree and the lost wood-man is lost indeed if he neglects to study these simple signs.

Here we are with a protected home market which properly organized will keep all of our 120,000,000 people busy, well fed and contented. We own half of the gold of the world, more than half of the machinery, most of the automobiles and skyscrapers, and our share of really smart business men. We seem to be out of gear and our car-buretors are flooded. We have been trying to start the machinery with one foot on the brake and the other on the gas and it can't be done. During this past year we have realized that the carburetor must be drained before we start feeding in the gas again, but we still have our feet on the brake and our hands on the emergency.

If as individuals we will stop riding the brake during the year 1932, our economic machine can be started again. It may cough and back fire for a time, but by the middle of the year we will be hitting on all eight. No one leader can hold the feet of 120,000,000 and it is the combined lack of confidence that is furnishing the brake pressure. Let's quit listening for new noises in the economic machinery and start on our march towards the rising sun of prosperity.

It was so good not to have to ride home with Phil and quarrel and quarrel. Odd, she didn't feel furiously angry with Phil; not any longer. Odd, she didn't seem to feel much of anything. Numb? No not exactly. Excited? That would pass. She was not lonely, as yet. She was not sad. She would be, later.

The edges of the road were lighted now; fruit and vegetable stands were spreading on either side; places to eat — Chicken — Chicken — Chicken. Places to dance; places to get gasoline; bright lights—but with big dark spaces crouching among them.

"Or," he laughed, "wouldn't you know about that?"

Ann started. For more than a mile she had not heard a word that he had said. "I'm afraid I wouldn't," she answered.

"Gee!" he said. "You're great! I'll tell the world that's the best swap I ever made in my life, and I'm some swapping yellow-haired boy, if I do say it."

"I hope," said Ann, "that I haven't made a lot of trouble for you and Miss King and that you get things straightened out—"

"Not a chance!" he interrupted happily. "I acted like the devil back there on the road, but that was because I was sort at being made a monkey of—not nothing more for less, I guess I talked pretty rough. I didn't know you then. Sorry and everything."

"It's all right. I think you had reason enough to be angry."

"I'll say I did. But so did you. All that lovely-darling bonolony—on purpose for you to hear. But you weren't sore."

"Yes, I think I was. I've forgotten."

"Any girl who'd do that to another girl, horn in like that and all, is a bum sport. It's not square shooting. It's rotten—that's what it is."

There was the explanation. There was the reason she was not suffering—not heartbroken, just had not been sporting—he had lied to her. He was not a square shooter. He was rotten. If she could remember that—not sporting, not a square shooter, rotten—perhaps she could forestall the heartache entirely. And the loneliness? And the long days coming on to long, long evenings? And the long, long life? She had forgotten that life, all of life was ahead. Life without Phil? But that, too, could come later—

"Or," Kenneth said, "wouldn't you know about that, either?"

His voice had been going on, all this while. What had he been saying? What had she said before? "Well, yes," she answered, "I might possibly know about that."

"Gee! But you are great. You are—well, if I do say it, you are absolutely the most different girl I ever met in my life."

How restless this boy, this funny, impossible boy, was. How costly! How unmerciful! There was a poem she had read. She had liked it well enough to copy it; she had had Mary-Frances in mind, though it did not entirely suit Mary-Frances, and it did suit this boy. How had it gone? "Innocently wicked, innocently wise, innocently impudent—innocently gay. . . That was what this Kenneth was, now that he was over being cross. He was gay. Gay. The rest of the poem, after that? Something about youth being an alien race, speaking an alien tongue, and then the lines for Mary-Frances, "These are the darlings of my heart; These are the young."

He had come to another short silence, and she spoke impulsively. "You are so young," she said.

"I like that," he disputed. "Youth's ears are seldom tuned to tenderness—"I am not. If I do say it myself, I'm a lot older than you are. Experience and everything, I don't want to hand it to myself, but just the same . . ."

She let him run along with that, but she listened but lightly. She thought only to postpone thinking.

"Do you know, a girl like you, she could really mean something in a man's life? Just having this ride with you tonight—it's meant a lot to me. I can't tell you how much driving with you tonight has meant to me. It would mean a lot to any man."

"But," she protested, not too tactfully, "I haven't said anything at all."

"That's it," he pronounced. "It's what you don't say. No line—no wisecracking, or trying to, or anything. It's the way you listen to a man and understand. You—well, you're deep. Deep. Knowing you, if I do say it myself, is like—well, it's kind of like going for a swim in the surf after a fellow's been wading in a kid's wading pool. Do you know, you are the first girl, absolutely the first girl who's come into my life that understood, just right off without asking questions or anything—well, all about me, and my getting kicked out of the university and all. What you are—I know. Wait till I get the word. Inspirational. It's what you are. Inspirational."

Ann had no idea what to do with that, there was so much of it, so she said nothing.

"Gee!" he said, "but you're great!"

"I suppose," he said, when finally—and to Ann it had dragged out to a long finally—the car had stopped in the driveway in front of her house, "there's no chance for that date tomorrow?"

"I'm sorry," she said.

"Pretty well dated up, I suppose?"

"Well—yes."

"Surely, I might have known it. Would you kiss me good night?"

"No," said Ann. "I wouldn't think of such a thing."

"Gee! You're great. Well, I'll give you a buzz. I'm hornin' in. You know the girl who said she was easy to court but hard to wed? She's a distant relative of mine. I'm easy to catch, but hard to lose."

As Ann went tiptoeing up the stairs she thought, "Wouldn't it be wonderful if Phil and I had been married for a long time and that sweet, crazy boy were our son?"

TWO STRONG OPPONENTS FOR COWBOY FIVE

ABILENE, Jan. 11—Simmons university's basketball team will swing into action this week against two strong opponents in a four game series before returning to the state capital to start their Texas Conference schedule next week.

On Monday and Tuesday nights, the Cowboys will meet the East Texas Teachers at Comanche. They oppose the strong North Texas Teachers at Denton the next two evenings. Although the green Simmons team, which is made up entirely of sophomores is conceded little chance to win them these two quintets, they hope to get some valuable experience that will put them in better condition to begin their conference battle race.

Coach Leslie Cranfill has been working since December 31 with a squad of fifteen men. Having no veteran material this year, other than sophomores, he recognizes the great task of trying to repeat and win a fourth straight championship for the Cowboys.

The regular line-up thus far has consisted of Carl Pee and Bernard Seed at forwards, Jim Neely at center, and Eugene McCollum and G. L. Huestis at guards. Other promising material has showed up in Lee Vurle Andrus, who has been used as utility man, Richard Coody, W. I. Byron, forwards, Carr Sprabrey, Pinkey Koonce, and W. J. Wransky, guards.

Every man on the regular line-up is a sophomore and all are 19 years old except Pee, who is only 20.

WALL STREET IS CHEERED BY STOCK ADVANCE

In its weekly review of business and financial conditions The Wall Street Journal says:

Wall Street was cheered during the past week by the most convincing advance witnessed in the security markets since the upturn started in early October by formation of the National Credit Corp. to stabilize banking conditions. After a further sinking spell, which carried pivotal industrial stocks to a new average low for the major decline at last Tuesday's close, prices turned upward on a broad front, and sweeping advances took place in both the bond and share lists.

Probably the most potent influence in this refreshing change for the better was the outlook for prompt authorization of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. Under the spur of the administration, Congress was hastening consummation of this government agency, and hopes were entertained that credit supplies would be available from this source within 30 days.

This prospect undoubtedly accounted to a large extent, for the vastly improved tone of the general bond market. As currently outlined, the Reconstruction Finance Corp. will have credit resources running up to $2,000,000,000 to make loans to railroads, industrial enterprises, banks and other financial institutions. Such a reservoir will end the necessity of forced liquidation of frozen assets at panic prices, and lift the burden that has been weighing down bond prices for many months.

With relief from this pressure in sight, fixed revenue securities enjoyed substantial recoveries, recapturing nearly half the ground lost during the persistent liquidating movement from November 10 to December 17. No development more conducive to the restoration of financial confidence could have happened, and the rising tendencies of bond quotations were quickly translated into spirited gains in the main body of stock.

Although the steel industry started the new year without conspicuous developments of a bullish nature, nevertheless several indications of an underlying improvement in the basic situation were apparent. Operations for the industry, following the holiday shutdown, which brought the rate for the country at large down to 30 per cent made a modest recovery in the week. Resumption of several furnaces, which had been on the idle list made it plain, that an extension of this gain was likely to be reported in the immediate future.

Scrap prices at Youngstown show their first signs of strength in month, advancing 50 cents a ton for the heavy melting grade. This evidence of improvement was not followed by similar gains at Pittsburgh and Chicago, but it was considered cheering because steel scrap is considered a reliable barometer of steel activity and business in general. Prices for steel sheets and strip, after being particularly weak for the past month or two, showed better resistance to the decline.

Steel men are not looking for any seasonal rebound in demand from consumers. They hope for an upturn in February as a result of better buying of motor cars, and admit that the public's reception at the Auto Show in New York and Chicago will be the determining factor in stimulating this type of demand. On the whole, the steel producers will be satisfied if they can make creeping progress through the early months of this year, and are deferring their hopes of a substantial revival until later in the year.

This week's range of the Dow-Jones averages follow:

High	Low	Close
26 Industrial	$91.20	$71.24
26 Railroads	36.83	31.35
26 Utilities	33.40	29.64

PENNSYLVANIA PLANS TO CUT ITS DEER HERD

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 11.—Game conditions in Pennsylvania have reached the point where reduction of several species is more desirable than further propagation of wild life.

This applies especially to the deer herd, which now totals about 1,000,000 animals, 80 per cent of which are does.

The 1931 deer kill was estimated at 65,000, "far too few" in the opinion of the State Game Commission, which now is seeking a method of reducing the size of the herd considerably and of establishing a better ratio between the sexes.

Wide Powers

The commission may act as it sees fit in meeting the problem for the legislature has vested wide discretionary powers in this agency, which has in 37 years developed wild life in the state from a "shot-out" condition to a total approximation that which roamed the state in pioneer days.

The entire state game system is based on this vested power in the commission to open or close seasons as it chooses to place what limit on bags and on other hunting conditions and in what number game will be protected.

When the commission was created in 1895, white-tailed deer were on the verge of extermination; there was a pitiful supply of cottontail rabbits and squirrel; and wild turkeys were becoming a memory," according to the survey published by the body.

Supply of Rabbits

Today 3,600,000 rabbits and 1,000,000 squirrels are killed annually without making an appreciable dent in the supply; a record kill of 65,000 deer, twice the average total taken, would be "which should have been killed" and bags of ring-necked pheasants, black bear, and wild turkeys are increasing annually.

The first act of the newly created Game Commission was to stop market hunting, particularly of deer. Within the first decade a game refuge system had been established to protect the wild animals.

In 1907 a bag was placed on hunting white-tailed deer and the extraordinary growth of the deer herd began. The same year automatic shut-outs were ruled illegal.

Important Step

Six years later the state took what is considered its most important step in the development of the system by passage of the resident hunters' license law. The license fees have made the Game Commission a self-supporting administrative agency in the state government and have enabled it to extend its game refuge system.

The revenue of the Commission now total $1,100,000 annually, received from the licenses, from collection of fines and the issuance of various kind of special permits. Seventy-five per cent of the revenue received from resident hunters is allocated immediately to development of public hunting grounds and game refuges. The state budget provided $511,776 to be spent for these purposes for the 1931 biennial period.

The Commission control 300,000 acres devoted to refuge purposes.

Lots of people are talking about the weather now, in view of the remarkably warm winter which is breaking all known records in some sections, recent floods in the Mississippi Valley and in California and destructive tornadoes in the southwest.

Therefore, this paper and NEA Service have asked one of the nation's foremost authorities on the weather to write a series of 12 daily articles. He is Charles Fitzhugh Talman, librarian of the U. S. 6 LETTERMEN RETURN FROM S.M.U. QUINCY

DALLAS, Jan. 11.—When term from last year to backbone of his quintet, the present season Coach J. Another Big Wolf Taken by Trapper

State Trapper F. B. Mathews has captured another wolf of unusual size. The wolf was an almost exact replica of the 45-pound veteran he took several days ago. It weighed the same and was captured on the same place, the Tomlinson Brothers ranch about seven miles northwest of Cisco.

The animal was taken Saturday morning but was not reported to the Daily News until today.

Mr. Mathews said that there is quite a drift among the wolves at this season. The animals are traveling in packs. He recently saw several

HORSE AND MAN ARE COMRADES FOR 17 YEARS

ARCHER CITY, Jan. 11.—A companionship that is almost human, between his faithful horse, "Buster Brown" and Judge John Purcell, of Archer City, has existed for 17 years in this community.

"If there is a place for animals in the 'spirit world' as there is a heaven for the redeemed souls of men, doubtless 'old Buster Brown' would be there when the roll is called up yonder," the retired attorney says of his faithful horse.

In the last 17 years Judge Purcell estimates he has ridden Buster Brown 51,000 miles and has paid at least $300 for shoes alone in that
