

Bailey County Lands Must Be Cultivated

You have been awaiting the time when you could feel justified in selling or improving that acreage you own in Bailey County or the lots you own in Muleshoe. You have held them thru medium to bad years, and weather, crop and financial conditions have not seemed to justify improvements which you had hoped someday to make.

Last year was a good year to make those improvements, and much improvement was made. This year is a better year. If today you could drive over Bailey County and make an inspection tour of Muleshoe you would be sold on the idea that the time is ripe for you to put your plans in to action.

If you decide to sell you can get more than a good set of improvements will cost you in the sale price difference whether in town or in the country. The army of folks coming in are demanding improved places where they can start at once to living and farming.

The demand is far exceeding the supply. With more than half the acres of Bailey County untilled, folks who are coming here are coming here to live are finding it difficult to locate. They want improved places.

We want to appeal to you, as other interests in Muleshoe have done to help us in our plight of taking advantage of this immigration and holding it by every owner making it possible for those good folks to find improved places to locate on. The demand for houses in Muleshoe is as great as the demand for improved places in the country so if you have either, won't you show your appreciation of the increased value of your property by still further increasing it and help meet this most urgent need?

Never has building in Bailey County been as brisk as it is today, but the improvements being made are only a small fraction of the total improvements needed to care for those who would call this home.

We feel that you are just as much interested in this advancement and big immigration as we are and we feel sure that you will be just as willing to do your part as we are if you get really acquainted with the present need. This is the reason we are directing these appeals to you with the very urgent request that you act now in making your holdings more valuable and in helping to meet our housing problem.

J. A. DeBord Made Good on Onions

A. DeBord has finished gathering his onions and makes the wig report on a one acre rest. This is the first year that he has tried the onions and his success was quite satisfactory, but not as good a yield as some others made. On this one acre he made 18,000 pounds, at 5c per pound this would make him $900 per acre.

Sweet Potato Expert Will Locate Here

M. E. Bradley of Portales, N. Mex., originator of the Bradley yam, was here the first of week and said he would go into the potato business on a big scale next year. We believe he is using good judgment in making his location as the sweet potato experiments this year have been more than satisfactory. Every farmer that planted potatoes reported a wonderful crop and well please with the business. We look for a big acreage next year. With the assistance of Mr. Bradley, with his years of experience in this line we believe we will in a short time make Portales get up and go, to stay ahead of us in the potato business. Sweet potatoes have made the town of Portales. They are going to play a great part in the making of Muleshoe. Watch what we say.

Ice Sunday Night; Frost Monday Night

Mr. Jack Frost has come at last to lay away the green vegetation until spring. Sunday night we had a light crust of ice over the lakes and standing water. Monday night we had an old time frost all over this territory putting the fixings to the green vegetation.

The farmers and truck growers were lucky to have a late fall to let their crops grow until the 18 of October.

Most of the farmers were ready for the frost and had their crops taken care of.

Brick Business House Starts Up on Square

Alvin George of Portales, N. Mex. was here Tuesday and let the contract for a modern brick business house to be erected on his lot on the west side of the square. A. C. West of Portales has the contract and started on the foundation Wednesday. The building will be 25x80 and will have a modern plate glass front.

He expects to open about the first of the year but in the meantime he will be working this territory lining up business.

It is rumored that two other brick business houses will start up on the west side of the square soon.

During the past few weeks there have been numbers of business men here looking over the city with a view of locating. The people from all over the United States have their eye on West Texas and Muleshoe is coming in for her share of the new people.

With all our fine lands and the everlasting supply of shallow water for irrigation makes this one of the garden spots of the west.

Yellow Jackets Are Flashy In Olton Attack

Last Friday afternoon the Yellow Jackets were defeated in a hard fought battle with the crack eleven from Olton. The game was well played on the part of both teams but Muleshoe was slightly unlucky. Up until the third quarter the game was well played and was an exhibition of clean and good sportsmanship but the game became a little bit one-sided favor until the fourth quarter began.

Due to the inability to call the game on the part of the referee the boys were given a severe shock. Twice in the game the referee penalized the Yellow Jackets to within two yards of their own goal. This was an unfair decision as the rule only permits a penalty of half the distance to the goal at any time.

The Yellow Jackets showed a decidedly reversal in form prior to a week ago at Texico. Their running game and passing work was much improved and punting of the home boys was a feature. The line had been shifted quite a bit since the last struggle and seemed to improve all previous defects.

To name the boys that starred would be hard because they all played as a unit and showed stellar work. However, Glasscock at end, and Moore and Lee at tackles were strong factors in holding the running attack of Olton in check. McCarty at quarter and Hart at full played in championship form when end runs and line plunges were needed.

Let's back the boys in their remaining games as follow: Oct. 23 Sudan at Sudan, Oct. 30 Farwell at Muleshoe (Tentatively) Nov. 6 Sudan at Muleshoe, Nov. 11 Olton at Muleshoe, (Armistice) Nov. 20 Farwell at Farwell (tentatively) Nov. 26 Texico at Muleshoe (Thanksgiving).

Matthieson's Sweet Potatoes Set Record

Digging sweet potatoes was the order of the day Tuesday and Wednesday. On making a survey of the valley we find the best yield so far a one acre block on the Bill Matthieson farm. It will make over three hundred bushels to the acre. At the present price this acre of sweet potatoes will bring the grower about $450.

The entire crop potatoes in the valley will make a wonderful yield.

John Kropff is them in...

3,000 Tons of Corn Packed Wells Factory

B. D. Garmon sends us the following clipping taken from the Rochester Post-Bulletin:

One million seven hundred thousand cans or 22 carloads, 3,000 tons of sweet corn were backed at the cannery at Wells this year it is announced.

The corn will be shipped to all parts of the United States and possibly into Canada, advertising Wells in on small way by the Wells label on each can. The product is of the finest and for some time Donaldsons of Minneapolis have been featuring the Wells Golden Bantam corn in their grocery department and advertising it in the city papers.

One thousand acres of corn was grown and hauled to the factory and an average of $42. an acre goes to the grower. In addition four tons of the finest fodder was cut from the average acre. This fodder has unusual value owing to the high sugar content of the stalk and makes wonderful milk producing dairy feed. Fodder on the canning factory ground is usually sold for $4 per ton.

Henry Krohnber was paid the highest record price per acre. His field of golden bantam averaged him $67.50 an acre. Thirty acres of ground brought Rush Campbell a check for $1,301.

Eleven thousand dollars has been turned back into the community in wages during the pack. Four thousand more will be paid for the labor of labeling, shipping and other work throughout the year. - Panhandle Herald

There is no reason why the people of this territory can not get together and secure a canning factory here. We have the water and land, all we have to do is to get the people interested in the work.

Mrs. F. G. Rice planted a quarter acre of tomatoes and kept a record on them. She gathered 2783 pounds and sold about half of them. Many bushels were wasted in the patch on account of so much rain. According to this report one could produce about $400. to $500 per acre on tomatoes.

Fair Showing State's Resources.

The Texas State Fair at Dallas is an exposition worthy of a great state like Texas. It has been a thing of slow but steady growth and in that it typifies the steadily increasing prosperity of Texas.

Just as Texas has been largely dependent upon agriculture and commercialism in the past, the State Fair has had to depend on agricultural and mercantile exhibits for its success, gradually adding the industrial as Texas has added industries. Perhaps it will always be distinctively an agricultural and commercial fair, and it may be best that it should be, but the time has come when the manufacturing interests need greater recognition than they have been getting. Fairs are intended largely to point the way to prosperity than follow in the wake of success. Farm exhibits showing fine results from farming stimulate farmers to greater effort. We progress by comparative study more than from any special desire for progress. A result-bringing fair is one that compels a study of the things most needed for the good of the people.

Needs Stimulation in Manufacture.

What Texas needs just now more than anything else is to study its manufacturing possibilities and to turn its idle capital into industrial enterprises. The Texas State Fair has a wonderful opportunity to assist in bringing this about. It has buildings devoted to the trades—to showing merchandise of every kind—but Texans need to see at their fair exhibits of the industrial arts and to be shown that industrial manufacturing is now necessary for their continued prosperity. It is all right to be shown beautiful exhibits of dresses, house-furnishings, automobiles and other things that make for the pleasure and comfort of the people, but the masses need more to be taught through our fairs how they may best acquire the money with which to obtain these things.

The next great enterprise of the Texas State Fair should be the erection of a mammoth industrial building and the substantial encouragement of manufacturers, both in and out of the State, in making exhibits that will show the possibilities of the fullest industrial development of the State.

Devil's River Development.

Most Texans, who have not seen it, have been accustomed to think of Devil's River and the surrounding country as something wild and untamable, but those who have seen the river have wondered at its marvelous possibilities, and have been appalled at the great waste of its resources. In the scheme of Texas development a company financially strong enough to harness and utilize its resources has had its attention directed to its possibilities, and is now making a preliminary survey with a view to damming and using its waters, now wasting, and making it assist in building a greater Texas.

Capital has its eyes fixed on the numerous spring-fed streams of Southwest Texas, and in time there is sure to be an expansion of Texas resources that will startle those who have been accustomed to think of us as a slow-moving people.

Road Contracts Cancelled.

Road maintenance contracts in nine counties of Texas have been cancelled because the county judges and commissioners have had the courage to complain that the contractors are doing their work poorly. Whether it is justified or not, there is an opinion that many of the road maintenance contracts are either poorly or unwisely drawn and that they allow contractors to shirk their work without very much danger of the poor work being discovered, unless officials and interested citizens are unusually diligent in discovering and reporting poor maintenance work. Texas needs good roads, but it should get full value for the money expended.

Texas Technological College Needed.

The attendance of nearly one thousand students at Texas Technological College at the opening of the first session, without any appreciable decrease, at other State schools, justifies the wisdom of the legislature in establishing the school. Here is room in Texas for all its schools and they should work in harmony for the education of the youth of the State.

Marble Falls Cotton Mills.

A contract has been let for the building of a low dam across the Colorado river at Marble Falls at a cost of $75,000 to furnish power for the cotton mills now under construction there. The dream of the lamented and venerable Adam Johnson, Sr., of Marble Falls as a great manufacturing town, will soon be an active realization.

Banks Make Good Showing.

Texas banks are full of money despite the "hard times" cry that has been heard in many parts of the State. Where the banks have more money than they can safely loan there is unusual prosperity, for the banks mostly lend the money of their depositors. In many few localities crops were expected to be ruined by the rains that are now pouring over the State.

Lore for Dog-Owners

By Albert Payson Terhune

BOARD AND LODGING FOR YOUR DOG

Tie Around His Neck the Next Chicken He Kills and Leave It Hanging There for Three or Four Days.

THE air was fresh from a furious little thunderstorm which had swept Vine street. Old Man Negley climbed the steps of the Veller porch, where sundry of the street's dog-owners were waiting to get his advice on their canine pets' hot weather condition.

"Nice thunderstorm we had," commented the old man, as he sat down on the topmost step. "My three dogs told me it was coming, long before there was a cloud in the sky."

"I suppose they consulted their barometer," ventured Mrs. Pahl with elaborate sarcasm.

"Yes'm," returned Old Man Negley, simply, "that's just what they did. Anyone who has made a study of dogs can tell, hours beforehand, when a thunderstorm is coming up. 'Specially if one of the dogs happens to be scared of thunder."

"How?" challenged Pete Veller.

"For one thing," answered the old man, "a dog's breathing apparatus and a dog's nerves are geared different from yours and mine. There's a sort of breathlessness, just before a thunderstorm, that even us humans can notice. The dogs notice it a long time before it gets strong enough to reach us.

"They pant; and they get restless; and those of them that hate thunder stay close to their masters and want to be in the house. Anyone who's made a study of it can tell in a single glance at them.

"By the way, we were speaking, last night, about long-haired dogs shedding their coats in hot weather. You folks who own collies and chows and setters, and the like, can help them a lot by remembering to give them a good hard brushing with a good hard brush, every single day.

"That gets rid of a mass of the dead hair that otherwise would fall all over the floor and the chairs. And it stimulates the skin and helps the new coat to come in. It's a big saving, all around.

"Don't yank out the tufts of dead hair with a comb. If you do, you're liable to tear loose some of the new undercoat. Use a stiff brush; and use it hard. If there are tangles don't pull at them. Untangle them; as you'd untangle a snarl in a child's hair.

"It will take a little longer; but it'll mean all the difference in the world to your dog's next year's coat.

"Miss Cressan, you were asking me how to feed those three-month-old pointer puppies of yours. You said they turn up their noses at all the new-fangled prepared foods you've been getting for them. Some dogs do that.

"The only value of any prepared food is whole wheat, plus whatever amount of dried meat is ground up in it. Most pups like it. Some don't.

"I'll tell you a great secret about feeding puppies and grown dogs, too. I learned it forty years ago when I owned my first litter of pups.

"They were finicky eaters. I tried them on everything that anybody suggested to me. It didn't do much good. Then my wife gave me the idea. She said:

"'Jim, whatever is good for a human child is good for a dog child. I've got sense enough to know that. We feed our own children on bread and milk. Try it on the pups.'

"Well, I tried it. Those puppies just fairly swallowed in bread and milk. They grew husky and strong and there never was any more finicky eating.

"I fed it to puppies and I fed it to grown dogs, too. It's the one diet, so far as I ever could find out, that no dog ever gets tired of, after he's once accustomed to it and the one diet that never makes him sick and that keeps him strong and hearty.

"I feed my big dogs a little meat and a bone or two twice or three times a week, and the rest of the time I give them bread and milk. Stale bread scraps and milk."

Mr. Cooley, your cook got mad at me last week, when I stopped her from using your airdale a plateful of chicken bones. But maybe I saved the dog's life, at that.

"A dog can get away with poultry bones once in a while, without their killing him. But soon or late they'll murder him.

"More dogs have been killed by eating poultry bones than by poison. The silvers cut into the stomach or throat or intestines as no other kind of bones do.

"It's a funny thing that foxes and wolves and coyotes can eat chickens or turkeys or ducks, bones and all, and not be harmed, while it's death to a dog. I think it's probably because wild animals eat the bones raw, and dogs eat them after the fowl has been cooked. The cooking makes the bones brittle and dangerous.

"Wasn't it you, Colonel Prouse, who asked me how to cure your pup of killing chickens? The best way I know of is to tie around his neck the next chicken he kills and leave it hanging there for three or four days.

"In hot weather like this the pup will have all he wants of the chicken's company by that time, and the chances are that he's going to leave chickens alone in the future.

"Speaking of feeding—dogs are like us humans in another way. More of them die from overeating than from undereating. A dog over a year old needs only one meal a day. One good big meal, at about the same time, every day. Best give it to him after sunset. A puppy, up to six months, ought to have three meals a day, and two meals a day after that till he's a year old.

"I've told you people the dark mysterious secret of feeding your dogs on bread and milk. Now let me tell you a still more mysterious medicine secret.

"If ever you have a dog that begins to seem out of sorts, in any way at all—whether he's off his feed or dull looking or whatever seems to all him—give him a big tablespoonful of plain castor oil. Three times out of four it will cure him. And it can't possibly hurt him. It's the grandest medicine on earth, both for dogs and for humans. (For my own part, I won't take the horrible stuff, but I've made many a dog and many a child take it, and they usually get well.)

"Remember something else, too: If your dog doesn't improve right away after his dose of castor oil, send for the nearest first-rate veterinary you can find. It's bad economy to save a $3 veterinary fee by giving home treatment to a $300 dog that's sick.

"A dessertspoonful of codliver oil a day is grand tonic and health builder, too, for any dog. Not an emulsion, but the plain unflavored codliver oil. Generally dogs like it. Generally they hate castor oil and you have to give it to them by force.

"Mr. Greer, you asked me what kind of bedding to put in your dog's kennel in summer. None at all. Leave the boards bare. In winter the best bedding is cedar shavings. They make his coat smell sweet and they scare off fleas. But in summer he doesn't need any bedding. On hot days don't scold him if he digs a hole in the cool floor of a flower border to lie in. It does him good and it keeps the heat from wearing him down."

The Test of Time Proves the Value of

RE-RU-NA

Under the date of March 6, 1902, Mrs. Maggie Durbin, 139 Riverside Ave., Little Rock, Arkansas, has this to say about her experience: "I was troubled for five years with a chronic disease. I tried everything I heard of, but nothing did me any good. Some doctors said my trouble was catarrh of the bowels, others consumption of the bowels. The medicine I took did no good. A friend advised me to try PE-RU-NA. I did. After taking two bottles I found it was helping me and continued. Am now sound and well."

A letter from Mrs. Durbin, dated December 12, 1923, shows that, even after two years, she is in the best of health: "I still recommend PE-RU-NA to my friends who need a good medicine and everybody is pleased. I thank you many times for what PE-RU-NA has done for me."

There is nothing strange in this experience of Mrs. Durbin. It has been repeated thousands of times by sufferers from catarrh and catarrhal diseases.

For sale everywhere in tablet or liquid form.

Send 4 cents postage to the PE-RU-NA COMPANY, Columbus, Ohio, for booklet on catarrh.

Simple Chords

The simplest chord in music is a note with its third, either major or minor, and a fifth whether played together or in the form of an arpeggio. The more extended chords in general use are, the chords of the seventh, ninth, eleventh, and the thirteenth, and their inversions. Several of the latter are known by different names when they are inverted.

BROUGHT RELIEF AFTER 2 YEARS SUFFERING

"The makers of Tanlac will always be my warmest thanks, for I don't consider it any exaggeration to say I owe my life and present good health to Tanlac." is the striking statement of Andrew Groeschner, Bremen.

Words simply can't express the misery I endured for 2 years from indigestion. At times gas pains would catch me around the heart and almost cut off my breath. These awful pains would last two and three hours. My nerves were all unstrung. I slept poorly and got in such a bad way that my days seemed to be shortening rapidly.

"I tried everything, but disappointment was my only reward until I began taking Tanlac. I have been taking Tanlac off and on for a year now and feel so different that there's no room for comparison. I eat good and sleep good and feel that Tanlac has given me a new lease on life."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute.

A COVINGTON, KY., WOMAN

Makes Remarkable Recovery

Mrs. Harry Ashcroft Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Severe Illness and Pain

MRS. HARRY ASHCROFT
632 BEECH AVENUE, COVINGTON, KY.

Covington, Ky.—"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework as I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen. I sat down most of the time and did what I could do in that way—as washing dishes, etc. One day a book describing Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine was put in my mail box. I saw how the Vegetable Compound had helped others so I gave it a trial. I had to take about a dozen bottles before I gained my strength, but I certainly praise this medicine. Then I took Lydia E.

Pinkham's Blood Medicine for poor blood. I was cold all the time. I would be so cold I could hardly sit still and in the palms of my hands there would be drops of sweat. I also used the Sanative Wash and I recommend it also. You may publish this letter and I will gladly answer letters from women and advise my neighbors about these medicines."

—Mrs. HARRY ASHCROFT, 632 Beech Avenue, Covington, Kentucky.

Mrs. Boyer Also Found Help
Gilman City, Missouri.—"I was in such a condition that I could not eat nor sleep to do me any good and I felt draggy all the time. My head ached, my right side and back would almost kill me at times, and I could be on my feet only a short while at a time. I was irregular and so nervous, irritable and despondent that I thought I could not stand the strain much longer. I had been this way more or less for ten years, but the last two years was just terrible. I took medicines, but got little relief until I began to take the Vegetable Compound. I took three bottles before I could see any change at all. I have taken seven in all and an improving right along. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and take the Liver Pills. I can do most of my work now, and I live on a farm and there is lots of it to do. I wash, iron, hoe the garden, raise chickens and tend to the milk."—Mrs. T. M. BOYER, Gilman City, Missouri.

Elderly Wives Preferred

Judge T. G. Allen, who has been probate judge of Chase county for the last seven years, during which time he has issued licenses for and married hundreds of couples, has observed a peculiar fact with reference to Mexican couples who come to his court for matrimonial purposes, says the Topeka Capital. He has found that in the majority of cases Mexican bridegrooms bring to the marriage altar brides who are older in years than the grooms themselves. That trait is not noticeable in any other nationality, the judge finds, as in the big majority of cases the bridegrooms are older than the brides. Just why the Mexicans should prefer a wife older is not quite clear, at least to this matrimonial court.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"Age is not the time for constantly whipping the bowels into activity. A lash can not be used every few days."

—DR. CALDWELL

If Past Forty, Adopt a Regulating Laxative

Most men and women past forty must give to the bowels some occasional help, else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting regularity for weeks and often for months—or must you "purge" and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

One dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

The Senior girls and boys of Y L and the Springlake school played a basketball game at Y L Friday Oct. 9th. The girls of Springlake and the boys of Y L were the winners.

The girls played first and resulted in 16 to 20 in Springlake's favor. The boys game resulted in 6 to 8 in favor of Y L.

Both teams were well cheered and the games were enjoyed by many people of the Y L community.

I. F. Willman left Friday for Louisiana to look after his pecan orchard in that state.

Sunday, Oct. 11, many singers of Y L, Oklahoma Lane and Plainview met at the Plainview school house, to sing.

As the Plainview singers had some of the new 1926 stamp books "Silver Stains." We learned several new songs. A man in the crowd was heard to say, after a song, that it sounded like the Clovis quartette. Our singing must be improving.

Mr. Hennington of Plainview led in many of the songs. We think that Mr. Hennington is one of the best singers in this part of the country.

Tuesday, Oct. 6th the boys and girls met with the teachers and organized our basketball teams.

We are the girl's team:

CATARRH NEGLECTED CAUSES DEAFNESS

Read How You May Get Rid of It by a Safe Reliable Way.

If you have catarrh you are in danger of losing your hearing; the first symptoms of catarrhal deafness are roaring or buzzing sensations and a stopped-up feeling in the ears. A neglected cold, or an uncurbed cold, leads to catarrh, and as everybody knows catarrh affects the eyes, ears, nose, throat, lungs and frequently undermines the general health.

The secret of the successful medication of these hidden parts was discovered by Dr. Blosser in his medical practice. This remedy is applied by smoking a certain combination of medicinal herbs (containing no tobacco) in a pipe or cigarette. Dr. Blosser's Remedy produces a dense smoke vapour which is inhaled or forced into the Eustachian tubes leading to the middle ear. It penetrates to parts impossible to reach with balms, salves, sprays, douches, pills, tablets, liquids and so-called "constitutional treatments." This Remedy is absolutely harmless and is being used successfully by men, women and children.

If you suffer from catarrh, asthma, catarrhal deafness, or if subject to frequent colds, you should try Dr. Blosser's Remedy which may be had at any drug store; or if you desire proof of its beneficial and pleasant effect, send ten cents (coin or stamps) to The Blosser Co., 72 G. H. Atlanta, Ga., for a trial package.

IN WINSOME FALL CLOTHES; THE REALM OF NEGLIGEEES

ANGULAR little misses, from six to fourteen, do not hear themselves described as at the awkward age; nowadays, they are "intermediate." When special designers of children's clothes came in—in force—the awkward age went out, and now Miss Intermediate finds herself cleverly clad in clothes that are to her faults a little blind and to her virtues not unkind.

A practical quality is, of course, the most important thing to be considered to all the young school girl's belongings—this goes without saying among stylists. Next to it, when her frocks are under consideration, come correct styling and pretty, appealing details in

In the realm of the negligee women will try anything once—even the art of the modernist or cubist, as applied to apparel. They are accustomed to turning the fancy loose, to rove where it will, in search of inspiration for the negligee and every corner of the earth has contributed something to the fanciful and varied garments that are worn within the walls of home and nowhere else. Why not, finishing and trimmings. There is an attractive list of fabrics, in solid colors, checks, stripes and plaids, to make them of. In wools there are twill, flannel, balbrigan, jersey and challis and in materials for tub frocks there are percales, prints, linen and gingham—the latter in novelty patterns. Velvet is a very important contribution to the fabric list and is used in many ways, as in jumpers, boleros, jackets and as a trimming. It is often chosen for coats. The pretty frock pictured shows velveteen in combination with twill in a pretty

But no one has to be educated up to the negligees shown in the shops. Some of them are made of flannel in brilliant Roman stripes, cozy and attractive, with generous pockets and becoming necklines. Others are of quilted satin in pink, blue or rose, with frock that tells its own story. Metallic buttons are on hand to give it the glint which everything carries this fall.

On both one-piece frocks and jumpers or blouses, for all young girls, there is a fad for a single large motif, embroidered, or applied at or near the front and hemline. A dog's head, a squirrel, or duckling—or any other fancy of the designer—stands boldly to the fore, in bright or light colors. One frock of Scotch heather jersey has a metal buckle on the belt and a dog's head, done in suede, is applied at the front, near a pocket. Sir Dog warm light wool interlinings. Just as good-looking are the corduroy lounging robes in warm rich colors—rose, wistaria, golden brown, red or blue. Two-piece pajamas in gay colors with Chinese patterns used in their decoration, have a permanent place among negligee styles, but the lounging robe is first in popularity. Striped sport flannels bound with braid make very pretty and practical ones, and are now being shown.

HOW TO MAKE TOOTH SOME FRUIT BUTTERS

In Many Communities Apple Butter is Made Over an Open Fire.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To many people fruit butter means apple butter and nothing else; but good as well-made apple butter is, that made from pears and peaches is equally good, and a supply made from different fruits will add variety to the preserve shelf.

The following recipes for various kinds of fruit butters have been tested in the laboratories of the United States Department of Agriculture, and are recommended as delicious and wholesome:

Apple Butter With Cider.

The peeled and sliced apples may be cooked in the boiled cider to make the butter in one operation or they may be made first into apple sauce, which is then cooked in the boiled cider. With apples of coarse texture the latter method is no doubt preferable; otherwise the method to be used is one of personal choice, as both make equally good butter. The cooking should be continued until the cider and apples do not separate, and the butter, when cold, will be as thick as good apple sauce. The thickness is determined at frequent intervals by cooling small portions.

It usually takes about equal quantities of sweet cider and peeled and sliced apples to make butter of the right consistency. In other words, 5 gallons of sweet cider should be boiled down to 2½ gallons, and 5 gallons of peeled and sliced apples should be added to it either uncooked or as apple sauce.

Two of the essentials of making good apple butter are long, slow cooking (4 to 5 hours) and constant stirring. If sugar is used, it should be added after the cooking of cider and apples is about two-thirds done. About a pound of sugar white or brown sugar is the usual proportion per gallon of apple butter, but more or less (or not any) may be used, to suit the taste. Apple butter is spiced according to taste, about half a teaspoonful each of ground cinnamon, cloves, and allspice being used for each gallon. These are stirred into it when the cooking is finished.

While still boiling hot, apple butter should be packed in hot sterilized glasses, glass jars, or hermetically sealed stone jars, with tightly fitting covers, and processed in a steamer, if it is to be kept for some weeks or months.

Apple Butter With Grape Juice.

If a grape flavor is desired in apple butter it may be obtained by the use of grape juice. To each gallon of peeled and sliced apples, cooked into sauce and strained, 1 pint of grape juice, 1 cup of brown sugar, and ¼ of a teaspoonful of salt should be added. These should cook slowly and be stirred often for two hours or until of the desired thickness, then stir in 1 teaspoonful of cinnamon and pack hot in hot containers and sterilize.

Pear Butter.

The pears should be ripe enough to cook up well. After being peeled they are cored and sliced, put in a preserving kettle with a little water, and cooked slowly until soft. The sugar is then added, 1 cup to 1 quart of sliced pears, and cooking is continued very slowly, with frequent stirring, for 1½ to 2 hours. The butter should then be smooth and of the consistency of thick apple sauce. A little lemon juice, with ginger, cinnamon, or other spices to taste, should be well stirred into the hot butter. Pack while hot in hot scalded containers and process with steam.

Peach Butter.

Put the peaches in a wire basket and dip them in boiling water a few seconds until the skin slips—test by raising the fruit out of the water and rubbing the skin between the fingers. Dip the peaches into cold water, peel, and pit them. Well-ripened freestone varieties are best. Mash the pulp, and cook it in its own juice without adding water. If it is rather coarse, put it through a colander or coarse wire sieve to make a butter of fine texture.

To each measure of pulp add a half measure of sugar, cook slowly, and stir frequently until the product is of the desired thickness. The meats of several pits may be cooked either whole or sliced in each gallon of butter. While still hot pack in scalded jars or glasses with tight-fitting tops and process, or cover with hot paraffin.

CAN AND SAVE ALL SURPLUS APPLES

Many of Early Varieties Do Not Hold Up in Storing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Storing apples fresh for later use is of course the best possible way of keeping them if it can be done. Many of the early maturing varieties, however, will not hold up in storage, and also there are oftentimes windfalls and imperfect apples that must be used at once if used at all. To prevent wasting these apples, the United States Department of Agriculture suggests "putting them up" in various ways.

The housewife may can her apples in any of the ways which will result in a canned product that is easy to use in the form she is apt to need it. For instance, if she makes apple pie often, she may prefer simply to pare, core, and slice or quarter the apples, so that when she opens a can it is ready to be made into pie. In this case avoid adding too much water. If the family likes apple sauce, some of the surplus and windfall apples may be cooked first and the hot sauce then canned. Green apples make a particularly good sauce with a taste of nutmeg or cinnamon for those who like spices. Another way is to can the apples whole, either boiled in sirup or baked as for serving. Canned baked apples may be dressed up for company use and special occasions, by being spiced and colored with cinnamon drops. These whole apples are canned hot.

The water-bath method of canning is recommended for apples by the department. A water-bath may be a wash-boiler or any covered vessel of sufficient depth for the jars or cans to be completely immersed while processing, and equipped with a rack or false bottom. The pressure canner at 212 degrees F. may also be used for apples.

When the apples have been cut in pieces, they are usually packed directly into the jars and covered with boiling hot medium sirup. This is made by bringing to the boiling point one part of sugar to two parts of water. The rubbers and tops are placed on the jars, and springs are adjusted halfway, or screw-tops placed or loosely. If the canning is done in tin cans are sealed completely. The jars or cans are then placed in the canner. Quart jars are processed for 20 minutes, pint jars for 15 minutes, and No. 2 or No. 3 cans for 10 minutes, counting the time as soon as the water surrounding the jars begins to boil actively.

Apple sauce is packed hot into the jars and processed for five minutes. Baked or boiled apples are covered with hot medium sirup and also processed five minutes. When the time is up, remove the jars from the canner, seal airtight at once, invert, and place out of drafts. Cool tin cans immediately by plunging them in cold water.

All jars and cans should be so marked that each lot can be identified. Keep them at room temperature for at least a week. Discard any showing signs of spoilage and watch others of the same lot until it is certain that they are keeping.

Toast Bread Scraps

A good way to toast scraps of bread is to toss them in a corn pepper over a hot fire.

After all, man is improving. As a rule, he doesn't swear very much when he is tinkering up the family automobile.

"YOU WAIT!"

SYNOPSIS—PART ONE—At a merry party in the studio apartment of Carter Blake, New York, Jerry (Geraldine Harmer, Prudence's daughter, meets Duane Allerton, wealthy idealist. He admires her tremendously, and she likes him. But Allerton gets a bit exasperated, with unfortunate results. Jerry, resenting his assumption of familiarity, leaves the party abruptly. The story turns to Jerry's childhood and youth at her home in Des Moines. Only child of a wealthy father, when she is twenty she feels the call of Art and asks her parents to let her go to New York for study. With some misgiving, they agree to her going. In New York Jerry makes her home with a Mrs. Delaney ("Mimi"), an actress, who, with Theresa, a painter, occupies the house. Jerry takes an immediate liking to Theresa, who is talented and eccentric, and the two become fast friends. Jerry now devotes herself to Theresa, who returns her liking. Jerry poses for Theresa's masterpiece, "The Ocean Rider." Allerton calls on Jerry. The girl refuses to see him. At a hotel dinner Jerry sees Duane and is conscious of his admiration, but refuses to change her attitude toward him.

CHAPTER V—Continued

When they arose to go, she turned and looked squarely in his direction. She could have answered the call of his sober eyes, gone softly to him, touched his hand.

"Are you ready?" she said to Mimi, drawing up the folds of her cloak as the amorous youth placed it about her shoulders.

Duane's eyes followed them as they passed out. Jerry would not turn her head, to look away from him, pretend she did not see him. She would have been ashamed of subterfuge. She looked at him frankly, and did not know him.

"Jerry, there's your friend," whispered Mimi. "Isn't he the best-looking thing you ever saw?"

She turned her effective lashes upon him brightly, and Duane nodded to her, and smiled. Jerry said nothing.

On the following morning Theresa went down to Jerry's room before the usual time for the daily breakfast tray. This was an occurrence of such infrequency that Jerry could not take a flutter of flattered pleasure when she appeared in the doorway. But Theresa, even in her most formal moments, wasted no time in idle talk. She came for a purpose, and went with sturdy directness.

"See here, Jerry, I thought of something last night," she began briskly. "Are you sure you want to give up studying Art?"

"Absolutely sure."

"Sure you won't change your mind after a little, and begin again?"

"Absolutely sure."

"What are you going to do with the lessons? You paid a whole term in advance, didn't you? Are you going to get your money back?"

"I don't think I can. I'll just have to let it go."

"See here, Jerry, you shouldn't waste such an opportunity. Now, poor old McDowell needs the money; he teaches for his bread and butter, you know. But if you stop so soon, he may feel he has to make a partial refund anyhow. Why don't you transfer the lessons to some one who would like them, but can't afford them?"

"To whom, for instance? You have someone in mind, haven't you?"

Theresa admitted that she had, that she had just thought of it. The one she had in mind was Greta Val, an unprepossessing country girl, who had appeared suddenly from somewhere, and was earning a hard existence by serving as chambermaid at the old Griller studios on Ninth street. Jerry had seen her once when she went to one of the studios with Mimi for tea, and remembered her as a stiffly rigid young person, with whom one would more likely associate scrub buckets and brooms than delicate paints and brushes.

"Um, she's ugly," said Theresa. "But that kid's a genius, all the same. She knows nothing, has never had a lesson in her life—and God only knows what she came here for, without friends, without money. Oh, you know how people are, Jerry. They think if they can only squeeze into the Village they'll just naturally absorb Art with the air they breathe. Well, she doesn't do so badly, for all that. The fellows are all good to her, give her scraps of paint and canvas, and tell her little things that help her."

Val may be ugly, she may be stiff, but she's got it, Jerry, and over some time, you mark my words, she'll be a painter. Jerry was almost childish.

"Oh, Theresa, get her a paint, can have all my things—paint, everything! Get away, won't you? I'll be better when it's all out."

And while Theresa went to the telephone, Jerry, with enthusiasm, set to work boxes of paint and brushes and books, th in readiness for the girl who had had this thing that Jerry himself had not.

She came at once, Greta Val, and Theresa took her down to Jerry—a slim, straight girl as she had vaguely remembered, with thin, unsmiling lips and wide, unsmiling eyes. Jerry caught her hand and drew her impulsively into the room.

"Are you Greta Val? Listen! I have paid for a term of lessons with Graves McDowell, and I don't want them, I don't want to study Art. But they are all paid for, and it is a shame to waste them, so I want you to take them in my place. And look!" She ran quickly to the table, and flung an inclusive hand over the boxes and jars piled high. "I have all these things, canvases, brushes, paints, just going to waste, for I can't use them. I want to get rid of them, I don't even like to have them about. And my easel—it nearly fell down on me in the tub last night and might have killed me—will you take it, and use it, and—and the lessons, and everything?"

"Are you making fun of me?" demanded Greta Val in a passionate, throaty, strangled voice.

"Oh, no, how can you think"—Jerry laughed, nervously—"how can you think of such a thing? I just want to get rid of it. It takes up such a lot of room, it makes me nervous to have it piled about and—"

"How dare you make fun of me!" Greta Val lifted a sharp, resentful hand and struck Jerry angrily across the face, and then, with a cyclonic burst of tears, whirled about and ran from the room, the door reverberating loudly in her tempestuous wake.

Jerry stood as one petrified, a slender hand upraised and motionless, her face showing deathly white except for the splash of red where Greta's hand had struck. Her eyes were wide with horror, her lips parted in mute bewilderment, while Theresa flung herself upon the couch and screamed with helpless laughter.

"How dare you make fun of me?" demanded Greta Val in a passionate, throaty, strangled voice.

"Oh, no, how can you think"—Jerry laughed, nervously—"how can you think of such a thing? I just want to get rid of it. It takes up such a lot of room, it makes me nervous to have it piled about and—"

"How Dare You Make Fun of Me?"

CHAPTER VI

Jerry Adrift

For a long time Jerry stood, breathless, bewildered, in the center of her room, a rigid, lovely figure in her amazement, while Theresa rolled on the couch with choking laughter.

"Did you see what—that creature—did to me?" she gasped at last.

"Oh, Jerry!" cried Theresa, struggling up to a sitting posture, wiping her eyes with the sleeve of her paint-stained smock. "Did I see it—I can see it now!" Theresa flung herself joyously among the cushions again.

"The insolent—impudent!"

"I'll bet you never got one like that before," interrupted Theresa. "The little spitfire! Were you ever slapped before, Jerry?"

Jerry shook her head; she was still awed, still breathless with the unexpectedness of it. "Never! I was never deliberately hurt—by anybody—in my life. Prudence doesn't do such things."

Theresa sobered suddenly. "It's a shame," she said sympathetically. "The poor kid! She was so happy she didn't know what—"

"Happy! Do you call that happiness! Well, if that's the way a genius feels happy, thank God I'm commonplace. I'm glad she was happy! I'll bet you never got one like that before," interrupted Theresa. "The little spitfire! Were you ever slapped before, Jerry?"

little tramp leads. She was amazed beyond reason, she couldn't believe it—you were so bright and so joyous—of course she thought you were making fun. It was too good to be true. These things don't happen once in a lifetime. She'll be sick about this, you'll see. Why, she didn't know what she was doing, she's an awfully nice little thing—I hope you aren't going to hold it against her, and—"

"Oh, she can have the stuff, if that's what you mean. But keep her out of my sight! I never want to see her again! I hate her!"

Oh, very well Theresa knew the temper of this kind of human flint with which they had to deal. She knew no kindly messenger could bridge the gap Greta had so dramatically created between herself and the one who wished to help her—that she would accept of no second-hand bounty after her stormy passion. No use to send a word of forgiveness, for Greta would not believe.

And so Theresa, knowing that Jerry herself must reach across the breach, stayed with her, petted her, coaxed her into yielding.

"Oh, very well, have it your own way, then," Jerry said at last. "I know I'm a weak-minded little dunce, and let you twist me around your little finger. Come on then. Let's go and find the wild little heathen, and tell her what we think of her."

Theresa promptly accepted the submission, knowing full well she could trust the end to Jerry's inherent sweetness, and the two girls set out together, at once, in search of Jerry's spitefire. She did not answer their ring at the Griller studios, and after persistent pressing on the button one of the artists on the second floor looked out from the window, and recognizing Theresa, agreed to press his buzzer to give them admittance.

"We want Greta Val," said Theresa. "Where is her room?"

"In the basement," he called cheerfully. "And dark as the deuce, so watch your step as you go down. The door on the right, clear at the end."

Very gingerly they made their way, hand in hand, down the dark stairs, and through the dark basement corridor to the door at the end, on the right.

"Listen," Theresa whispered. "Didn't I tell you?"

The sound of passionate, strangled sobbing came out to them from behind the door. Theresa knocked smartly, but received no answer. She turned the knob, but the door was locked from within. She pounded heavily, incessantly, and presently the strangled sobbing ceased, and intense silence prevailed.

"Greta, come here and open this door," ordered Theresa.

"Go away," was the muffled rejoinder.

"Open the door, you little simpleton," said Theresa. "Right away. It is Theresa Brady."

"Go away, I tell you!"

"Greta, you ought to be ashamed of yourself! Now you come and open this door as fast as ever you can, or I'll bang it down!"

The sternness of her voice had its effect at last. Greta shuffled across the room and opened the door. A pitiful figure, she stood before them, her thin hair stringing about her face, her cheap blouse twisted and pulled away, her unlovely face swollen with weeping and stained with tears. When she realized that it was Jerry who stood with Theresa in the dark hallway, she cried out faintly and covered her face with her hands. Theresa stood back, made way for Jerry. She had done her part. She knew that Jerry now could be given a free, loose rein. Jerry ran into the dingy basement room at once, and put both arms about the wretched, cowering figure.

"Don't cry," she said, "don't cry. I don't mind a bit, honestly I don't. We all do silly things when we're excited."

She pulled her softly across the room toward the cot, and sat beside her, holding her in her arms, calling her soft caressive names, "silly little goose," and "foolish child," while Theresa watched them soberly, her unfathomable eyes not on Greta, who by rights should have been the center of the scene, but on Jerry's tender, sorry face. After a little, when Greta lay quiet in her arm, except for an occasional racking shudder of her thin shoulders, Jerry explained:

"You see, I thought perhaps I could paint a little myself, but I can't really, and I don't want to be bothered. But it would be wicked to throw those lovely things away, and when Theresa told me about you I was so happy I could hardly wait to get hold of you. It was very stupid, the way I told you. I do things so quickly, all in a flash, on the spur of the moment, and I don't wonder you thought I was crazy. But I really do not want the things, and it will make me so happy if you will just take them off my hands, you know."

Greta did not speak, but pressed her thin, unlovely, fervent lips upon Jerry's fur-wrapped shoulder. A few minutes later, when Greta was straightened and washed and brushed, they returned, the three of them together, to Jerry's room, and J carries down to the street the boxes, the easel, the blocks of canvas. Jerry called a taxi, and they drove away to Greta's room with her priceless treasures.

When Theresa and Jerry were turning at last to leave her alone with her riches, suddenly the power of speech returned. She caught Jerry's hand.

"Miss Harmer," she stammered, the words tripping each other up on her eager tongue, "the first picture I get hung at the academy—you shall have it—for nothing!"

The air with which she said it was triumphant, and Jerry thanked her sweetly. But when they were on the street alone she smiled about it.

Theresa turned upon her sulkily. "Don't laugh. It may be years from now, but some day you'll get that picture. And one day, Jerry, you'll be proud and glad to remember you gave the poor little fool her first chance. You wait!"

The days passed slowly and Jerry did not find an avenue for the active expression of her personality she so ardently desired. She had no illusions in regard to herself, she was an ordinary, midwestern girl, very charming, very beautiful, but one who had not been drawn upon the knees of the gods. She could play nicely, sing very sweetly, but could do no more with music than amuse herself. Upon her college work she could obtain a certificate for teaching school, but she felt no such inclination. She might take a business course and become one of the countless alert-eyed, trim-clad business girls of the great city, girls who stirred her warmest admiration without creating in her a desire to become one of them. The grandeur of work, as work, did not impress her. She required a motive.

If her father had died suddenly Jerry would have swept courageously into his great motor factory in Iowa, studied it, struggled with it, learned to control it—a reason there for her effort. But with Jerrrod himself in such shrewd and successful dominance of his own business, she saw no such occasion. And still she believed that somewhere, somehow, she must strike on a thing that would command her effort and hold her interest. In the meanwhile she devoted her time to catering sweetly to Theresa—Theresa, who was working with a more consuming passion than ever before, and with ever-increasing disregard for every natural safeguard of health.

When she went up to the studio at ten o'clock one morning with the breakfast tray for Theresa, she was surprised to find Mimi there before her. Mimi seldom intruded and was always curtly discouraged by Theresa when she did.

It was Mimi who spoke to Jerry first. "Come right in," she said. "We're having our daily battle, but—you won't mind."

"Oh, please don't let me interfere with the war," said Jerry, laughing. "I'll run down and wait till the signing of the treaty."

"No, don't go," said Theresa gloomily. "She may cut it short if you stay. She's bothering me frightfully."

"Jerry, do something with her," pleaded Mimi. "She's a perfect fool. We're invited—both of us—to Atlantic City for the week-end, all expenses paid and everything, and she won't even talk about it."

"I don't want to go, and I can't go, and I won't go. What is there to say about it?" Theresa disposed of the subject brusquely.

"It would be lovely," said Jerry. "Perhaps it would do you good, Theresa, you look so tired."

Theresa said nothing.

"I'm getting sick of it," said Mimi quite furiously. "I need a little companionship, I tell you. If you don't stop being so stinky and so pigish, Theresa, I'll get married, and then—"

"Oh, good Lord! Again!" Theresa burst into scornful laughter. "Jerry, witness this. I've stuck along here through the last two husbands, but I'm through. You get married again, Mimi, and I'm off. And that's final."

Mimi laughed lightly. "Oh, you can't tell, I might have good luck another time."

"Not you. You don't know how to pick them."

"Oh, I think I'll run on down—" interrupted Jerry in some confusion.

"You stay where you are," said Theresa.

"Don't go on my account," said Mimi. "I don't mind Theresa. She's just jealous."

Well, Jerry is adrift now, without occupation. Her dream dissolved. Will she go home—or marry Allerton?

Practical Evidence Wanted

"John Marrows," said the farmer's wife, coming out to the back porch where her husband sat tilted back in his chair, his feet on a railing, "didn't I hear you tell the parson when he was here that you had strong views on the temperance movement?"

"Yes," Mr. Marrows replied, rather stiffly. "I said so, and you know that I have."

"Well," said Mrs. Marrows, "suppose you go and express a few of them on the pump handle. I want a pair of water."

Possible Reason

During a cross-examination an undertaker produced his business card on which was a telegraphic address. He was asked why the latter should be necessary.

"Oh," interposed the judge, "I suppose it is for the convenience of those who want to be buried."

CORN SILAGE FOR SHEEP IS FAVORED

In reviewing some of the experiment station sheep-feeding tests it is interesting to note that in practically every case corn silage has proved a valuable sheep ration. While these station reports are given wide circulation, it is doubtful if the rank and file of sheep feeders know the true value of corn silage as a ration. It is with this thought in mind that I am recording some of the recent sheep-feeding tests, writes A. L. Haecker in the Iowa Farmer.

Indiana experiment station compared hay with silage for sheep, and with a thorough test covering three years, found silage economical as a sheep ration. They were able to get larger and cheaper gains on both ewes and lambs by feeding silage with hay, than with hay alone.

In the Iowa test they found corn silage greatly lowered the cost of feeding both ewes and lambs. In some tests the silage group cost half as much as the hay and grain group.

At the Colorado experiment station, silage was compared with hay in feeding lambs and ewes, and the result of the experiment showed the silage-fed group gave four pounds more gain than the group that was fed hay alone. The lambs from the silage-fed ewes were larger and stronger. Corn silage was made to pay a value of $6.80 per ton for wintering ewes. This would give a profit on silage of $2.80 per ton, basing $4 per ton as cost for silage. With a 100-ton silo this would allow the sheep feeder $280 profit on his siloed corn over and above corn harvested for grain alone.

The Michigan experiment station has thoroughly tested out the feeding of corn silage to lambs and ewes, and in all cases found silage a valuable and economical ration. Farmers keeping sheep or intending to feed sheep would do well to look into these recent experiments. We are likely to see an increase in the growing of sheep in this country, and economic feeding is the most important item of the business.

Farmers Advised to Be on Lookout for Cholera

An outbreak of hog cholera this fall would be peculiarly unfortunate, because hogs look like good property, and farmers need all they can get out of them. A dead hog pays neither interest nor taxes. Dr. R. A. Craig of Purdue university notes the existence of some cholera in Indiana and urges precautions against its spread. The warning is particularly timely because, as he says, "vaccination of hogs against cholera has not been practiced generally in the corn belt this year." Herds haven't been vaccinated because there wasn't much cholera—which is just the time to be on watch. When cholera is prevalent everybody is on guard and no warning is needed.

Doctor Craig advises farmers to be on the lookout for sick hogs, to warn neighbors of the existence of cholera, to be especially careful at silo filling time on account of the exchange of work, and of course to vaccinate in case of an outbreak. "An early diagnosis of hog cholera will result in saving a large percentage of the herd if vaccination is practiced," he points out. And, he might have added, will stop the spread of the disease in the neighborhood, and so save many thousands of dollars.

Pigs Fed Minerals Will Make Most Rapid Gains

Minerals in the ration for pigs prevented lameness and gave the best gains in a series of winter or dry lot tests conducted at the Ohio experiment station. The mixture of two parts ground limestone, two parts bone meal, and one part salt, as heretofore recommended by that station, again proved the best in a long list of mineral mixtures in the swine ration in which soy bean oil meal was fed as the protein feed with yellow corn.

This mixture, it was explained to visitors on Live Stock day, supplied not only the necessary salt, but also all the calcium and phosphorus needed. The latter are prime essentials. Without these elements in the grain ration pigs soon contracted rickets and lameness.

Ground limestone was superior to a refined grade of lime or calcium carbonate, due in part apparently to the small amount of iron carried by the limestone and required by the pigs for proper development. This fact has not been appreciated heretofore, and is evidence of further need of much careful investigation in the feeding of live stock.

Building for Sheep

Barns and sheds used during the lambing season need not be very elaborate affairs nor is it necessary to provide much extra equipment. There are, however, several precautions which, if observed, will not only increase the comfort of both ewes and lambs, but will also assist in raising them.

Needless to say, the buildings should be well lighted and well ventilated. They should also be protected from wind and snow. The floor should be well packed and smooth. The walls should be well plastered and the roof well covered with straw or other material to keep out the cold.

The Simple Tractor That Develops More Power with Less Weight

Power increased—weight decreased—the John Deere develops 15-H. P. at the drawbar and 27-H. P. on the belt—and it weighs only 4,000 pounds—hundreds of pounds lighter than other tractors of the same rating. It neither packs the soil nor mires down in fields that can be worked.

Remaining parts extra strong—the strength necessary to give highly profitable service has not been sacrificed in the John Deere. All parts are extra strong. The bearings, crank shaft, gears, frame, drive chains—in fact every part of this tractor is built to stand the heavy duty farm work—up-keep costs are mighty low.

Hundreds of parts simpler. Take of hundreds of parts from the ordinary tractor, many of which create friction and require power—only then can you appreciate the simplicity of the John Deere. You don't need a mechanic to keep this tractor in good running order.

All-around farm power plant—no tractor ever built is better fitted for drawbar and belt work. Its power permits operating machines of economical size. It is short, low, narrow and turns in close quarters. Its compact design fits it particularly for work in small fields and orchards.

DON'T FAIL TO SEE this remarkable farm power plant. We will gladly demonstrate its performance.
