The Civic League Met Tuesday 18th

The Civic League met in the courthouse Monday. It was decided that an entertainment, probably a vaudeville will be arranged in the future and committees were appointed.

Plans were discussed for the beautifying of the courthouse lawn but no trees will be planted right away on account of the borers working south and various other reasons.

The next meeting will be held at the courthouse Monday, January 31.

Parent-Teachers Met January 15

Jan. 15, the P. T. A. held their second regular meeting. They were greatly encouraged by the large number of new members. They were as follows: Mesdames McCarty, Jr., Pressly, Kirby, Hutto, Shirley, Collier, Cunningham, Mathews, Scribner, Harper Lee and Messrs. D. Reed and B. McClure.

The per centage of each room is as follows: 1st grade 22 2-9 2nd grade 33 1-3, 3rd grade 33 1-3 4th grade 25, 5th and 6th grade, 9 1-10, 7th grade 11 3-7, 8th 4 9-23 9th grade 4, 10th grade 0, 11th grade 20.

Next meeting Jan. 29.

Nurse is Visiting Many Communities

Miss Wentland visited the Figure 2 Goodland and Wilson school last week and was busy checking up on the school inspections and monthly weighing. She found that the children have all gained in weight and the boys are leading the girls. She will spend the major portion of this week in class work and finishing her inspection work. She will be in the Muleshoe school most of next week and invites all the parents to be present. She will then visit the homes of all the children she has inspected.

The girls in the club of the Y L school have been studying First Aid and have practiced it on children who have been hurt.

Miss Wentland is trying to install First Aid Kits in all the schools and will have completed the work soon.

McCarty-Gupton Buildings Soon To Be Completed

This week will likely see the finishing touches put on the McCarty and Gupton buildings.

A. V. McCarty Jr. is completing a two story cream colored brick on the corner lot in front of Muleshoe Motor Co. The first floor will be occupied by his drug store. The representative that installed the furniture and fixtures stated to the Journal man, "There is not a store in Dallas according to size any finer than this one and not one in West Texas any better." This goes to show you we have a real sure enough up-to-date drug store as good and fine as the best. We are really proud of it and know the entire county is. Up stairs there will be some private offices and a lodge hall.

On the next lot A. V. McCarty Sr. is completing a modern store building with plate glass windows like a real up town store. M. P. Smith will move his store to this building and fix the people a real up-to-date business house. The dry goods department will open on main street and the grocery store will open on the street by the Hotel James. When Mr. Smith gets his stock in this building he will be able to take care of your needs in a much better manner and will be able to display his big stock of goods.

We understand the Drug store and grocery will open for business about Jan. 30th. The other concerns have not made known their opening dates but will be about the same time we think.

C. E. Locke Died Monday Morning

C. E. Locke, one of our prominent farmers in the irrigated district north of town died Monday morning at 2 a. m. He has been in poor health for sometime, several days ago he contracted flu and then other complications set up.

He was born in Hart County Ky., in 1877 came to Bailey county in 1921 where he lived until his death. He is survived by his wife and eight children who were at his bedside when the last came.

Geo. Locke of Amarillo, Mrs. C. L. McKinley of Sudan, Mrs. J. D. McBrazen of Lorene, Mrs. L. D. Tipton of Muleshoe, J. H. Locke of Plainview, W. W. Locke of Stamford and Mrs. Delon Kirk of Spearman, are the children.

CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENT

Rev. D. R. Doak of Lubbock will preach at the Methodist church Sun. 7:30 p. m. Our first Quarterly Conference will be held at close of service. The pastor will preach at the morning hour. All are invited to attend and part in services of the day.

Mr. McCarty Sr. is not sparing money or trouble in making this one of the keenest buildings in all the West.

On the next lot C. D. Gupton & Son will open a cafe down stairs and a rooming house on the second floor. The cafe is arranged very attractive with a lobby in front and a dining room and kitchen in the rear. We have not learned who will have charge of the cafe but Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Gupton will have charge of the rooming house. It will be furnished through-out with Simmons steel furniture. In each room he will have running water and later will put in steam heat.

On the next lot the Guptons will have their Grocery and Market. This will be a credit to any town of many times the size of Muleshoe. The front is very attractive with a plate glass and gray brick.

This gives us four modern buildings all in a row with uniform concrete sidewalk and awnings.

We understand the Drug store and grocery will open for business about Jan. 30th. The other concerns have not made known their opening dates but will be about the same time we think.

Legion Minstrel Makes Big Success

Last Friday night the Ben Richardson Legion Post put on their minstrel at the high school auditorium. The house was packed and some were standing. The Roubinek brothers assisted by members of Crofts Orchestra of Clovis furnished the music and Mrs. D. O. Smith was at the piano for the legion parts.

All the boys played their part fine and the show was a laugh from start to finish. They were all dressed in typical negro clothes with wigs imitating real colored mens hair. In fact it was a real high class minstrel and showed some splendid work on the part of the director as well as the boys.

According to all reports every one was well pleased with the show. This was the first show of any kind ever put on here where the admission was $1.50 per seat and the house was packed.

The Baby Clinic Made Good Last Thursday

Twenty four children were examined at the Baby Clinic last Thursday. Dr. Lammon was the examining physician and he complimented this county on being so well interested in this important work. These clinics will be held often and should greatly interest all the people of Bailey county. This is a summary of the results of the clinic; 24 present, 20 found defective, 6 found more than 10 per cent underweight, 8 diseased tonsils and adenoids and many other minor defects. This averages more than one defect per child.

These clinics will be held at least every other month and everyone is asked to attend them. Everyone bring your child and keep track of their health. A record will be kept in Miss Wentlands office and you may refer to it at any time.

Miss Wentland wants to thank all the people for their interest in the clinic and again invites everyone to visit her office at the courthouse. Bring any problem concerning your children and she will be glad to give you any advice that she can and help in the care of them.

Young Man of Near Spring Lake Worked 1250 Acres

J. F. Waide of the Springlake country was in Wednesday and stated that he would cultivate 1250 acres in crop this year. He uses mules and two McCormick Deering tractors. Planting wheat and row crops commonly grown here. Of course he uses some hired help at times. He said if a fellow could make money on 160 acres he should make a cleaning on 1250 acres. He is young and a hustler. We are going to watch and see what success he will make and will report to you after the next crop is harvested.

To The Voters of Bailey County

I want to be your next District Attorney. I realize that I am a stranger to numbers of you and will give you a few statements of my life, together with my qualifications for this important office.

I was born and reared in Callahan County, Texas, coming to the Plains some twelve years ago. I was educated in the public and private schools of this State, spending six years in our own State University at Austin and receiving from it the Academic degree of B. A. and the law Degree of LL. B. A greater part of this time I was partially and wholly self supporting. I entered the U. S. Army at the outbreak of the war and served until shortly after the Armistice. Returning to Swisher County I was there for about one year, the latter part of which I served as County Attorney. I came to Plainview in 1920 and have practiced law there since that time and am now serving my second term as County Judge of Hale county. I believe that I am qualified to fill the place as your District Attorney and that I can make you a good one. Also that the office will assist me to rise in my chosen profession of the law.

If I am successful in my campaign, I promise you that I will do all in my power to aid the enforcement of the laws and to bring about a speedy trial of an accused to the end that Justice may be efficiently administered. I believe in giving a fair and impartial trial and in the persecution of no one. I am under no obligations to any man or set of men and will treat all violators of the law alike.

I am going to do my best to do my very best to see each and everyone of you and personally to solicit your vote and influence before the campaign closes, but in case I should be unable to do this, I want you to know that I certainly desire your support and influence.

This is your office and it is your duty to fill it in the best possible manner and I invite your investigation of me and my abilities and if you think I am the best man for the place, I will greatly appreciate anything and everything you can do for me in the advancement of my candidacy for District Attorney of this Judicial District.

Bird of the Arctic

The snow goose is an Arctic goose seen in the United States during its migration, sometimes in vast numbers. It is pure white except in the black wing quills, washed on the head with reddish; the beak, which is strongly toothed, is pink and the feet reddish. An adult male measures 27 inches long and weighs 5 1/4 pounds. Ross' snow goose is a miniature of the other and is known all over Hudson Bay country as the "horned wavy."

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply with the fingers and works right away. Often it prevents a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster without the blister.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bite—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

DANGER AHEAD FOR CATARRH SUFFERERS

Catarrh, Even in Mild Form, Often Leads to Distressing Complications.

Here is a Simple, Safe, Inexpensive and Pleasant Method That Will Rid the Head, Nose and Throat of Catarrh.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable, or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh, often producing chronic headaches and deafness, affecting the eyes and voice, and frequently weakening the lungs. You can now get rid of catarrh by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy, discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is composed of medicinal herbs, berries and flowers, which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette. The smoke vapour is inhaled into the air passages of the nose, head, throat and lungs, and carries medicines where sprays, douches and ointments cannot possibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing, and as it contains no tobacco or cubebs is perfectly harmless, and may be used by women and children as well as men.

If you suffer from catarrh, asthma, catarrhal deafness, or if subject to frequent colds, you should try Dr. Blosser's Remedy which may be had at any drug store; or if you desire proof of its beneficial and pleasant effect, send ten cents (coin or stamps) to The Blosser Co., 73 G. H. Atlanta, Ga., for a trial package.

When Jesus Speaks Your Name

By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D. Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—She supposing him to be the gardener.—John 20:15.

A weeping woman was asked twice within a short time why she was weeping. She may not have seen very clearly nor have heard very well. Does not a weeping person ask again and again, "What did you say?" Mary tells the reason for her tears—"They have taken away my Lord." For the time being she has lost her Lord. But one speaks to her, calling her by name, and forthwith she answers, "Rabboni," "Master." Lo, he whom, she, blinded with tears, had supposed was the gardener, is really her risen Lord. In English her response means "Teacher," and what a lesson is here taught. She learns that Jesus, although coming in lowliness and without "comeliness," is Lord over death. He had raised others from death. He had said plainly, "I am the resurrection and the life." He had repeated more than once his authoritative statement that He would Himself rise from the dead. Now Mary learns something of what it means to live on this side of Calvary. He whom she had mistaken for a servant of Joseph of Arimathea is really the conqueror of this enemy called death. In the sepulcher now there is light, perpetual light piercing the darkness of death. Mary has been taught that Jesus, although His body had lain in the sepulcher, has made good His promises. How well she believed in His promise that He would rise again must be seen in her conduct at the time rather than in any direct statement. She had referred to the "third day," and she was there at the sepulcher looking for Him. Whatever her attitude, Jesus had done as He said He would do. He always does so. His promises may to men seem impossible of fulfillment, "exceeding great and precious promises" but not so much as one fails. And if one had ever failed, then how swiftly would sinful man proceed to doubt them all. It is enough to be assured that He has promised. "That the promise might be s-u-r-e" is the guarantee. No uncertainty may be indulged. Nor sepulcher, nor hours, nor days, nor centuries of time have yet sufficed to cast a shadow of uncertainty over one word of His promises. The third day or the third millennium, it matters not, He neither subtracts from the covenant nor forgets its minutest terms. Well was it for Mary that she started the new day right where the fulfilled promise met her.

Henry Ostrom, D.D.

Mary has been further taught that when He calls the name, His voice assures what weeping eyes and sobbed hearing cannot discover. We hear of the musical voice, the soothing voice "softer than silence." But who could describe the quality of Jesus' voice? And He is calling her (as all the other dear ones) by her name—MARY.

How precious His voice! We hear of the "precious promises" and the "precious blood of Christ." His voice is precious amid the common tones, the jargon sounds. Its melody is heard by the one who "listens in" and hears the voice of God speaking in His holy Word. We never realize the music of the heavenly call until we make it personal. It is the Lord's will to be personal. He singles blind Bartimeus out of the crowd; and among the thousand in Jerusalem His voice calls that one who is at the place in the early morning. So it is today. There is the crowd, but thou, oh man, art the called one. The best is offered thee. Grace for thy sorrows and sins. Has He been to thee common as a gardener? Oh, accept and call Him Lord, Lord for thyself. Nor do I exaggerate by saying thus. Does He not call "them all by their names"? It is all personal. Once you have heard Him you will know it.

Don't Blame God!

It has been well said that no man ever sank under the burden of the day. It is when tomorrow's burden is added to the burden of today, that the weight is more than a man can bear. Never load yourselves so, my friends. If you find yourselves so loaded, at least remember this: It is your doing, not God's. He begs you to leave the future to Him, and mind the present. What more or what else could He do to take the burden off you?—George MacDonald.

The Human Love of Jesus

The human love of Jesus was as sensitive as the needle of the most exquisite compass. It was more discerning of changing atmosphere than the most sensitive barometer. It was more tremulous than the seismograph which registers the finest shock of earthquake in the most distant parts of the world.—J. H. Jowett, D. D.

Heavenly Beatitude

Man, by living wholly in submission to the Divine Influence, becomes surrounded with and creates for himself internal pleasures infinitely greater than any he can otherwise attain to—a state of heavenly beatitude.—J. P. Greaves.

DAIRY FACTS

CARRY BUTTERMILK IN SEPARATE CAN

"Sour, moldy, and off-flavor cream can often be traced to the practice of carrying buttermilk in cream cans from the creamery to the home," says Harold Macy of the division of dairy husbandry, University of Minnesota. Cream cans, he believes, should be used only for the transportation of cream. Mr. Macy says:

"With the facilities available at the average creamery, it is a difficult task at best to clean and sterilize the cream cans properly. The process is much more difficult where the buttermilk is transported in the cans.

"It is exceedingly hard to keep the buttermilk tank in such condition that the product does not sour or decompose, particularly in the flush of the summer season. Such buttermilk has a high bacterial and moldy content of many undesirable types which contaminate the cream so badly that one cannot expect to get a good product from the patron who fails to wash or sterilize his cans after they are emptied.

"On many farms the cream can never receive the attention which it deserves. Many times the buttermilk is simply poured into the barrel in the hog pen and the can rinsed out in cold water. In this condition the can remains until it is stuck under the separator spout. This sort of thing goes on from day to day, so that one marvels that much of the cream is as good as it is.

"The best way to solve the buttermilk problem is to contract with the individual for the whole batch. This takes it off the operator's hands and makes cream grading much easier. The powdering of the sweet cream buttermilk is also another outlet and often very profitable. If the farmers insist upon having their buttermilk, it is well for the operator to influence his board to require the use of other cans for the purpose.

"Eliminate this practice of placing buttermilk in cream cans and creamery operators will be one more long step nearer the standard which they wish to reach—all first-class cream."

Improvement of Flavor and Quality of Butter

M. Mortensen of the Iowa experiment station made a comparison "of the effect of the pasteurization temperature and acidity of sour cream on the flavor and keeping quality of butter made from cream; samples of cream were pasteurized at 145 degrees Fahrenheit for 30 minutes and at 170 degrees and 180 degrees for 20 minutes. The butter was scored on arrival at the market and after from 2 to 9 months' storage at 0 degree.

The results of 17 comparisons indicated that a pasteurization temperature of 170 degrees produced a slightly superior product to that resulting when the cream was pasteurized at 145 degrees; but butter pasteurized at the higher temperature did not appear to keep as well over a nine months' storage period. Pasteurization at 180 degrees did not give quite as satisfactory results as at 170 degrees in nine experiments.

The neutralization of sour cream was also found to improve the quality and reduce the amount of deterioration occurring in the butter.

Calves Fed for Spring Market Most Profitable

There is less risk and greater profit in feeding calves for the late spring or early summer market than in feeding any other class of live stock, according to Dr. C. W. McCampbell of the Kansas State Agricultural college. "In feeding calves for the market," Doctor McCampbell points out, "it is important to remember that a calf should be prime to sell at a profit. No other class of cattle is discriminated against so severely as the half-fed calf.

"A heavy feed of grain is necessary to put the calf in condition to sell at advantage. We find that it requires approximately 180 days as a minimum feeding period and about 40 bushels of corn to put the calf in best market condition."

Dairy Hints

Never feed more than 1 1/2 pounds of cottonseed meal a day for any length of time to a cow.

It's surprising how a scrub cow can reach into your pocket and take money.

Milk the cow as rapidly as possible, and continue the milking without cessation until the cow is milked clean.

To produce good butter, it is important that milk pails, cans and separator be well cleaned and well sterilized after each using.

Clean cows with fluffy white switches may not make any more milk, but they are much more pleasant to care for.

This is the time of the year when the dairy cow appreciates a bucket of water in her stall. Driving her out in a blizzard to drink ice water means a decrease in the flow of her milk.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

PUZZLING RELATION

Elizabeth came to school one day in a state of suppressed excitement. Going straight to the teacher's desk, she exclaimed, exultantly: "I've got a new little sister!" "How very nice," replied the teacher. "Yes," said Elizabeth; "but this is only a half-sister." "Why, that doesn't make any difference, does it?" "No, but I never can understand where the other half is."—Harper's Magazine.

Build your body back to Health

Tanlac is a great natural builder. It revitalizes the blood, stimulates the digestive organs, rejuvenates the liver and pep's you up all over.

From the four corners of the earth we gather the roots, barks and herbs that go into Tanlac. We compound them after the famous Tanlac formula that has brought health to millions.

Our files are crammed with testimonials from men and women in every walk of life, who state gratefully that Tanlac has brought them back to vigorous strength.

If you suffer from indigestion, loss of appetite, can't sleep or rest; if rheumatism is making life a torture; if your liver is out of sorts and your body has run down to skin and bones, get a bottle of Tanlac at your druggist's and start taking it right away.

You'll be amazed to note the improvement that comes at once. For the first time in months you'll feel like eating some good solid food. You'll wake up in the morning rested and refreshed, ready for a good day's work. First thing you know you'll have some color in your cheeks and the sparkle of health back in your eyes. Don't delay taking Tanlac. Begin

Was So Nervous Could Not Sleep

"When I began taking Tanlac I was completely run-down; suffering from indigestion, headaches, dizzy spells, bad nerves, heart palpitation and pains across my back. But now I eat and sleep like a child and feel fine in every way. I believe Tanlac will help anyone troubled as I was."

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purg" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

Every Home Should Have This Wonder Cook Stove

Every woman can now enjoy the convenience, cleanliness and comfort of cooking with gas. This new Albert Lea Kitchen-kook makes its own gas from common gasoline, burns a clear blue flame, free from smoke, soot and odor, with 50 to 100 per cent more heat than common oil or gasoline stoves.

It not only produces a hotter fire, but the flame comes in direct contact with cooking utensils. There are no heat-wasting "chimneys," no wicks; burners cannot clog and never require cleaning.

The Penitential Pig

By BERTHA C. PORTER

(Copyright.)
THE last sharp quarrel had been the proverbial straw, Mr. Brown representing the camel.

In this last battle royal Mrs. Brown, Miss Brown, Master Brown, the Brown servant, and even the Brown baby had borne each a noble part. Mr. Brown, the noncombatant, wore scars, though they were all in the rear. He had fled as soon as possible, wisely silent, but with a bright idea flickering in his brain.

On the way home from his office he visited the five-cent store and emerged bearing under his arm a fat and untidy bundle.

When the aggressive Brown family gathered round their festive dinner table great was the commotion. Mrs. Brown's fern-dish reposed on the floor in a corner, and in its place stood a placid and plethoric pig. Of heavy earthenware he was, mottled yellow and brown; his feet resembled those of a well-nurtured elephant and his snout matched his feet. Midway down his spine yawned invitingly a generous slit.

When there was a sufficient lull in the conversation to allow of his being heard Mr. Brown spoke gently:

"Yes, it is a pig. He came from the five-cent store. He cost ten cents. He is ours. There is going to be a new rule in the family. Whenever there is any disturbance here like the one this morning, each and all persons taking part in it are to put their smallest piece of change, whatever it may be, in his back. When he is full we will break him and count the money. I will add the same amount, and we will spend it on some jollification for all of us. This includes Della," he added, remembering certain sounds of strife that often floated out from the kitchen. The hubbub broke forth anew.

Johnny jingled the pig gleefully for the next few days, as he grew heavier and heavier. But when he himself was caught, and his only piece of money was his week's allowance of a quarter, it wasn't nearly so funny. He raged as he dropped it into the yawning slit, but he raged inwardly.

Mrs. Brown felt much the same when, her patience giving out, she had a good, old-fashioned tantrum and then found her pocketbook contained nothing but a silver dollar.

"That certainly won't go in," she thought hopefully, but the gaping orifice swallowed it greedily.

At first the pig fared well; then the supply grew scarcer and Mr. Brown was happy in the unaccustomed atmosphere of peace and calm which hovered over his household. Occasional spasms, however, had their inevitable results, and at last the pig was full.

One Saturday afternoon the family assembled in solemn conclave. The penitential pig was about to be sacrificed.

"We'll go up into the library," said Mr. Brown, "and take a vote and decide."

"Pa," shouted Johnny as he clambered up the stairs hearing the still placid and unsuspecting pig, "can I bust his stummick?"

Gathered in the library, the pig was placed on a small table against an open window, and the family, including Della, seated themselves. The Brown baby ran about the room unnoticed. Below in the street a hand-organ man ground out wheezy tunes. His monkey crouched on his shoulder.

"Now, what shall we do with it?" asked Mr. Brown, beaming. The hand-organ man struggled bravely with the latest addition to his repertoire. The monkey ran up the spout and perched on the window sill, but nobody noticed him except the Brown baby.

"I have been thinking," said Mr. Brown; "I have given this matter serious consideration, and what do you say to this plan? Suppose we partially adopt Johnny's suggestion and hire an auto for a day. We will go somewhere up the river on a picnic; we can either take our lunch or buy it."

The chorus of acclamation which followed this suggestion, mingling with the strains of "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?" from the persistent hand-organ, completely drowned a terrific crash on the sidewalk.

"Well, then, we will adopt that plan," said Mr. Brown; "Johnny, you may now bust his stummick."

Johnny with a delighted whoop made for the table where had reposed the sacrifice. He stopped midway and the blank dismay on his face was reflected on the countenances of the whole family.

"Why, where is—"
"Where can he be?"
"Where is the pig?"

There was a slight diversion while Mrs. Brown hauled the Brown baby back from a perilous position on the window sill, where he hung, gazing blissfully at something below. As she leaned out to grasp him she saw something on the sidewalk. Her scream brought the others to the window.

There on the pavement lay the fragments of the penitential pig—sacrificed indeed! At that moment the projected automobile picnic vanished into thin air. There was not left even the smell of gasoline!

Up the street was disappearing a delighted hand-organ man, richer by an unknown sum. The monkey on his shoulder spasmodically doffed his cap, and soon into the silence of the room came, faint and far-away, the jubilant strains of "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo!"

Don't forget to wait for the Journal Calander samples. Will be here any day now. We can save you money on your 1927 calender. And we need the money too.

How about planting some trees this spring? Lets make this county one of the most beautiful in the west. Plant trees and beautify your home or farm.

MANY APPETIZING WAYS

A Baked Apple Never Fails to Appeal.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Baked apples, at first thought, are just baked apples—scrubbed, cored, left with the peel on, and having each cavity filled with sugar, and a bit of butter, perhaps, and baked with a very little water in the pan to keep them from scorching. Apples baked in this way should, of course, be basted occasionally with the sirup that forms the water, apple juice, and sugar. If a variety of apples is used which is also good for jelly making, such as the Maiden Blush, Jonathan, Tompkins King, or Northern Spy, and if care is taken not to add too much water, this sirup will be more or less jellied when the apples are tender and cooled.

Baking in Skins.

Baking apples in their skins is but one way of baking them. Some people like to pare the apples as well as to core them, and to bake them in a heavy sirup, with a suggestion of lemon or spice flavoring, or both. They may be immersed in the sirup, or simply set in a small amount of it and basted frequently. Pared apples may be baked on squares or rounds of bread, with the crusts removed, set in a little sirup which is used for basting. The bread becomes saturated with the jellied sirup. To make these look very attractive, a little red vegetable coloring may be added to the sirup and a candied cherry or cranberry set on top. These apples are good without cream, but extra fine if you have it.

Stuffing in Cores.

Whether pared or cooked in their skins, apples to be baked may have the cores replaced by various stuffings, such as nut meats, chopped raisins, figs, dates, or combinations of these fillings, or by preserves of distinctive flavor such as apricot or orange marmalade, strawberry jam, grape jelly, or plum preserve. A glass pie plate is useful for baking apples, because it can be brought to the table without transferring the apples to another dish, and without loss of the sirup.

Use of Spices.

As people generally are very decided about the flavoring used on cooked apples—those who like them plain never agree with those who like them spiced—it is well for the housekeeper to make a few inquiries before she sprinkles her apples with cinnamon or nutmeg.

TO GET MOST FROM FAMILY'S DOLLARS

Co-Operation Is Necessary to Get Best Results.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Most farm women try to stretch their housekeeping dollars as far as possible, but their skill in this art varies widely. This is shown by cost of living studies made by the Department of Agriculture. Many farm families fall to get the quantity of vegetables and fruits that could be had from the farm at low cost in comparison with the market prices of these products.

Less than one-half of the total amount of food products consumed by 110 farm families in New London, Conn., in 1923 was furnished by the farms. The remainder was provided by direct purchase. Similar high percentages of purchased as compared with farm-grown table supplies have been recorded in other localities. Farm families, it is declared, could live more cheaply were their meals better planned and prepared, and provided to a greater extent from the farm and the garden.

Savings are often possible, says the department, through more efficient use of fuel and household supplies. Sometimes waste in the use of the automobile and excessive auto operation costs can be lessened. Expenditures for education and "advancement" are desirable, but money for these purposes should not be spent lavishly, merely because the purpose is regarded as educational or spiritual.

One way of stretching the dollar is by setting up a definite goal for family improvement. Failure to plan expenditures often means that vital needs, such as those for insurance, health and recreation, cannot be met. When all members of the farm family understand where the family income goes and co-operate in attaining a definite goal in family living, a given amount of money will go much further.

In the Connecticut study the average annual expenditure of 110 families was found to be $1,492, compared with $1,540 for 182 families in Ohio, $1,669 for 472 families in Iowa and $1,558 for 187 families in Alabama. Only 4.6 per cent of the Connecticut farm homes studied were completely modern. Expenditure for advancement averaged $81 per family, or 5.4 per cent of the total value of goods consumed. This proportion was lower than that of the families in Alabama and Iowa, but slightly higher than that of the families in Ohio.

Watch Bacon Carefully if You Wish It Crisp

Frying bacon so that it is thoroughly delicious and crisp, though unburned, is a hard thing to accomplish, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Frying bacon so that it is crisp is chiefly a matter of getting the water and excess fat out of it. In order not to burn it, one should be very careful that neither the bacon nor the fat in the pan becomes overheated. Throughout the process the fat should remain a light brown color and should not be allowed to get dark brown. It is easier therefore, to cook it slowly.

To be crisp bacon does not need to drain while it is cooking. It can even be fried in deep fat with excellent results. But after it is cooked and has been taken from the pan it should be thoroughly drained while still hot, then served promptly.

Beans May Be Cooked in Several Different Ways

Baked beans may be cooked in many ways. Here is a recipe furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture:

Cook the dried beans gently until the skins begin to break, then drain off the water. Put a layer of beans in a bean pot or deep earthen dish, and on this layer, in the center of the dish, place a piece of salt pork ("streak of fat and streak of lean") having the rind side up, using for one quart of beans a half pound of pork; the rind should be scored. Fill up the dish with the beans, and add seasonings and water to cover the beans.

The simplest seasoning for beans is one tablespoonful of salt and a half teaspoonful of pepper to a quart of beans. Mix the salt and pepper with the water. If liked, a tablespoonful of mustard may be added, as well as an onion and a tablespoonful or more of molasses. Instead of the pork a piece of salt or fat beef or mutton may be employed. In this case there should be from 1½ to 2 pounds of the meat to a quart of beans. If fresh meat be used, add more salt to the beans. If salt meat is used, probably one teaspoonful of salt will be enough. When mutton is employed, trim off every particle of the skin.

Bake the beans in a very moderate oven for eight or ten hours. Add a little boiling water from time to time, but never enough to bring the water beyond the top of the beans. Any kind of bean may be baked in this manner. However, the small pea bean is the best for "Boston baked beans." The lima and large white beans are best for the deep earthen dish. Do not cover the beans while baking.

Other flavors liked with baked beans are those supplied by tomato sauce, tomato catsup, brown gravy, and mushroom sauce.

Bacon Gives Needed Zest to Various Other Foods

By using bacon frequently the housewife adds greatly to the flavor and interest of the food she serves, points out the United States Department of Agriculture. Bacon can be cooked and served with greens and beans, and used to garnish and give flavor to many vegetables, poultry and meat dishes. A small amount previously cooked and cut up makes any soup tastier. Bacon with eggs, scrambled or fried, is hearty enough for a dinner dish occasionally.

Savory rolls made out of chopped meat, such as beef and pork minced, a round steak, are improved by laying over them thin slices of bacon, which keep the surface moistened with fat during the baking. These slices should be scored on the edge, so that they will not curl up in cooking. The bacon is particularly needed for flavor and fat when the chopped meat is chiefly beef. Two or three slices of bacon placed under the roll in the baking pan will prevent the meat from sticking and add to the fat available for gravy-making.

Choice and Common Beef

"Choice" beef has an abundance of white, firm fat, a bright attractive red color in the lean, and is firm and dry, yet velvety to the touch. "Common" beef has a scanty covering of dark or yellowish fat, a dark or blackish red lean, and is soft, wet, and glistening. These differences are the signs by which a housewife can determine the character of the meat purchased, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

SMART FROCK WITH SHORT SKIRT; PARIS COSTUME FOR STREET WEAR

THE youthful brides insist on dressing becomingly rather than conventionally. No formal bridal robe for her, but a smart frock with short skirt is her choice. The sort that later on, with its sleeves removed, serves as an adorable dance frock with just a pink rose or two for the shoulder. Perhaps with a filmy, flowery scarf it will coax all eyes to turn toward the happy girl bride who attends midwinter grand opera. The model in the picture shows how effectively a girlish dress of white satin may be worn with veil on train.

For the bride who elects to wed on joyous St. Valentine's day this dress

Strictly tailored styling is not a leading characteristic of the French couturier. The Paris designer shows a greater art, that of presenting a delightful feminine interpretation of cloth, fur and novelty detail, which because of the inspiration of true genius in nowise contradicts its appropriateness for street wear.

The handsome costumes here pictured very charmingly illustrate this point, that two-piece suits and ensembles need not be severely conventional to serve as stylish exponents of correct street modes.

The vogue for skirt and blouse effect is emphasized in the costume to

of gleaming white satin studded with pearls is truly a lovely creation. The long sleeves bespeak smart style, the low round neck declares flattering becomingness. What more is there to wish for? An heirloom veil of point lace, to be sure, and a bouquet of lilies of the valley with streamers of gauze and narrow satin ribbons, exactly as the picture portrays.

Another youthful bridal gown uses broadened satin for its medium. It is styled with a long-waisted semi-fitted upper portion, with a deep set-on flounce which shows an uneven hemline, short in front, sweeping somewhat lower toward the back. Long, tight-fitting sleeves grace this gown with a low, round, youthful neck.

The fact that the bridal gown in the picture is all-over embroidered in pearls proves that beaded effects in-the left. The high collar, the wide-buckled belt, the inverted plaits in the skirt are style details observed throughout the mode. Gazelle fur is employed on this two-piece mode of cinnamon-colored suede cloth. Fur also borders the ensemble coat to the right, which further bespeaks a feminine touch in the tying of velvet ribbon bows at the front opening and at the underarm seams.

There is much favor for sports costumes which consist of jumper with plaited skirt with a long coat to match, the latter in straightline. Composite suits are worked out in ingenious manner, in that while a strict matching is not observed there is a relationship expressed in responsive colorings and certain details. For instance, a costume may be linked together in that its general coloring denotes Chinese origination. Perhaps the general tone of the outfit may trend to Russian or mid-European. The general impression may be accentuated through suggesting a peasant blouse in the tunic with a printed lining to the coat patterned in gay Russian design. In other words, genuine artistry is expended in the fashioning of the ensemble, so that it presents a perfect unit in its entirety.

An achievement of French styling for spring is the long overblouse of heavy all-over lace which poses over the modishly flared skirt topped with its matching three-quarter length coat.

Padlocking Against Liquor Sales.

When the government's plan of padlocking places that persist in violating the liquor laws becomes more general there will be better observance of the laws. The prohibition enforcement officers, after notifying owners of hotels and other places, where liquor is sold, that their houses are being used for unlawful purposes, have been padlocking some places that pay no attention to the notices. Bell boys in hotels will bootleg liquor to guests so long as the proprietors wink at it and perhaps share profits. Intoxicants will be sold at cold drink stands, or at some of them, as long as the owners of the buildings and proprietors of the stands permit it. The law will be respected when law-breaking hotels are closed, when drug stores operated principally as liquor houses are locked, and when liquor prescribing physicians have their licenses revoked after it is shown that they are law-breakers.

Keeping the Farmers Puzzled.

If the farmer could know with some degree of certainty that when he grows anything he can find a market for it at a fairly remunerative price, farming would be a more attractive business. He has to gamble with the seasons to make a crop and with the markets to sell it. He is urged to make his acres produce more and in the same breath is told that if he produces more he will ruin the market. He must use all his land or his working capital will be idle, but if he works it industriously and scientifically and "busts his barns", he is likely not to realize enough to repair the barns, while the crop gamblers will enrich themselves at his expense. Before the farmer is encouraged to produce more crops he should in some way be assured that he can market them at a price above production costs. Give the farmer a market and he will find some way to make the crops.

Marketing a National Problem.

The farm marketing problem may be helped, but it can not be solved, by community action alone. Except where the acreage is very restricted, as with the Laredo onion crop, communities or districts can not fix prices. Texas, with all its cotton crop, can not stabilize the price of cotton, with all the other cotton growing states in competition. No state is strong enough to establish a price for wheat, corn, potatoes or other staple crops. Only the national government can do it. Railroads lost money until they were placed under government control and protection. This was justified on the ground that they were public utilities and that government prosperity depended on their success. Farming is the very backbone of government prosperity, but is allowed to fight its own way against all the organized finance of the world. Repulsive as the thought may be to those of us reared to oppose any kind of price-fixing, and inoculated from before birth with opposition to every thing that looks like centralization of power, we are being forced to admit that if farming is to continue profitable, some centralized effort must be made to improve marketing of farm products.

To Build a Woolen Mill.

Kerrville has a committee looking into the advisability of building a $1,000,000 woolen mill. Why not? Kerrville is right in the heart of the leading wool and mohair producing country of the United States, and Eastern manufacturers are growing rich making that wool into clothing. Kerrville has all the facilities for making the clothing at a much less cost than it can be made in the East, except the mill. It has enough idle money to build the mill and operate it. With splendid climate, excellent water, cheap labor, and money, all going to waste, Kerrville should build that mill. The same thing applies with equal force to the cotton mill project being considered for Center Point, in the same county.

The World Progressing.

San Antonio is having a great radio exposition at which scores of kinds of radios are being shown. Radio broadcasting and reception are being improved every week and it will not be long until it will be as easy to hear Hong Kong as to talk to your neighbor on the telephone. Ten years ago what is now being done would have been thought impossible. When we can hear around the world at a cost within reach of all, we will come to know the world; and knowing, hatred and war will end. War comes from ignorance. Misunderstanding is largely lack of understanding. The radio is likely to become the great educator of nations.

From 26 to 36.

Nine years is not too long a time in which to make ready for a great Centennial Exposition, such as is now proposed for Texas. It would only be too much time if the time is wasted instead of being used. There is a general inclination to put off doing a thing until so late that it has to be rushed to such an extent that it is poorly done. That is the danger that is now confronting the Texas Centennial movement. There is so much to be done in an educational way even before a start is made toward the centennial itself that there is danger that it may not be done well.

Painted Hats for Paris

Some fashionable Parisiennes have decided to wear painted hats this winter and to dispense with all such trimmings as buckles and feathers. This mode is not expected to be popular with the milliners, for, with a few deft strokes, it is said, an artist can transform a shabby velvet or felt hat into something chic and seemingly brand new. Lore for Dog-Owners

By Albert Payson Terhune

FOX AND HOUNDS

When the Fox Got to the Top of the Hill He Stopped Trotting and Sat Down.

A GROUP of Vine street children and two nursemaids were looking amusedly at Doctor Glure's gentle old pointer dog who lay on the top step of his master's veranda.

Old Man Nagley was passing by, on his way to weed the doctor's flower beds. Seeing the little group in front of the veranda he paused to find out why they had paused there.

Glancing over the top of the nearer nursemaid's cap, he saw the pointer reposing on the porch. Then he saw that a fluffy black kitten was curled up asleep between the dog's forepaws. The big pointer did not molest the youngster, but seemed to have an air of benign protectiveness as he looked down at her. As for the kitten, it was evident that she had felt no fear at all of the powerful dog, since she had crept between his front paws for her morning nap.

"Did you ever see the like?" exclaimed one of the nursemaids as Old Man Nagley came up. "And yet they say cats and dogs hate one another! Look how old Prince acts to that kitty. It's like 'the lamb and the lion lying down together!'"

"The lamb and the lion have lain down together, lots of times, outside the Scriptures," spoke up Old Man Nagley. "I remember a circus where they had a lion in the same cage with a lamb. It was a big attraction; though I always had my own private opinion that the circus people had to renew the lamb every now and then on the sly. Maybe I was mistaken at that."

"Yes, Prince and that kitten are chums. Do you know why? A pointer is one of the very wisest of dogs. Prince has been taught never to bother any of Doctor Glure's house cats."

"That kitten was born in the Glure house. She remembers Prince as far back as she remembers her own mother. She's never seen any other dogs so she doesn't know dogs and cats are sworn enemies. The first time she sees a strange dog, that ancestral instinct will make her spit at him and know he's her enemy. She doesn't know Prince is. So she snuggles up to him. And he lets her do it because she's little and helpless."

"It is funny the way instance can be fooled, sometimes. For instance, back in the 1890's I used to be one of the kennelmen at a fashionable hunt club that had just been formed. The members were all rich and they all tried to ape the English. At that period a lot of people used to try, you know."

"Well, they formed a hunt club and they imported a high-priced pack of foxhounds from England and they were ready to hunt. Then all at once they found out that the club wasn't in a part of the country where there were any foxes."

"So what does the master of the hounds do but send up to the Berkshires to a trapper and buy a young fox. It was too late in the season to do any hunting that year. So he had the fox sent to the kennels and he gave us orders to put him in a pen and see he was fed and watered so they could turn him loose the next season for the hounds to chase. The master was bound there should be at least one good day's sport for the club, anyhow."

"Next season all the members assembled, on their best horses and in their imported red coats. The fox was taken out of his pen and turned loose and given fifteen minutes' start to the hounds. Then the hounds were led, and they caught the trail in a trice."

"They ran, baying and at top with all the red-coated huntsmen and women galloping in pursuit, looked like it was going to be a chase. Presently the fox came trotting up a hill about half a mile. The hounds tore after the fox got to the top of the hill and he stopped trotting and he ands surged up the slope and the riders galloped after the hounds. Some of the tender-hearted huntfolks turned their heads away. They didn't want to see the poor harmless little fox torn to shreds by those twenty ravening hounds.

"The hounds came dashing up to where the fox was. But they didn't do any killing. They frisked around the fox, wagging their tails. The fox and some of the younger dogs began to romp together in a friendly way."

"They were all having a lovely time when the fox caught sight of the crowd of riders bearing down at him. Then he yawned and stretched himself and trotted off down the other side of the hill to the woods. Did the hounds chase him? They did not."

"Those hounds just stood wagging their tails kind of wistful-like, as if they were sorry their playfellow was leaving them so soon."

"The riders just sat with their mouths wide open. The whole thing was a mystery to them. But it wasn't any mystery to me. Here's the answer:

"When the fox had come to the hunt club from the Berkshires, he was such a likeable little cuss that I took a fancy to him. I figured he might be lonesome. So I put him in a pen next to the hounds."

"By and by they began to get used to him being there and they'd touch noses with him. After a while I took a chance by letting him take his exercise every day in the big enclosure with some of the hounds. By that time they'd gotten to know him so well they didn't bother him at all. At last he and the hounds all used to exercise together and live together."

"Well, long before the hunting season began the fox and the hounds were chums. So when they were turned loose after him they were glad enough to go looking for him. For it was a couple of days since they had seen him. You see, I had put him in another pen as soon as the hunt people began to come back to the club."

"They followed him and caught up with him and had a nice frolic with him. And then he got tired of playing and he loafed away. They let him go. Why wouldn't they?"

"The hunt people were furious. The story got into the papers and all sorts of fun was poked at the hunters. The master of the hounds made inquiries and found out what had happened; and he fired me."

"He was right to. It was all my fault. You see I hadn't much liked the idea of getting a pet fox and taking care of it for six or eight months, just for the sake of turning it loose to be murdered. So I had put the matter up to the hounds just as I've told you. And they decided it my way."

"Yes, I deserved to be fired, all right, all right. I wanted to be."

Plant Life Abundant in Philippine Islands

American botanists have classified more than 10,000 species of plant life in the Philippines, to many of which, heretofore unknown, they have given scientific names. Among the 10,000 are 532 food plants, a fact explaining why famine is unknown in the islands. If crops fail the people simply resort to the wild growth, especially many varieties of tubers which can readily be found everywhere in the forests and serve excellently in lieu of bread or rice. Bamboo shoots, a delicacy in the United States, are a common dish on the poorest man's table in the Philippines. Some palms in the islands produce many edible products as well as commercial. The buri palm probably leads all others, yielding as it does 27 different products, including sugar, flour, several fibers and wine. These resources will remain undeveloped until American capital introduces them to the world's markets.

"Asia's" Literal Meaning
Asla meant "land of the dawn," in the ancient Sanskrit language.

Vireos Are Fond of Caterpillars

Scale Insects and Other Tree Pests Are Relished by Birds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
During the summer almost anywhere in the United States at least one species of vireo, and usually more than one, is to be found flitting about in the trees or shrubbery. In the East and Central regions the common species is the red-eyed vireo, but the white-eyed, warbling, and yellow-throated vireos also are abundant. The Philadelphia, blue-headed, hutton, and Bell vireos are more or less widely distributed.

Are Vireos Beneficial?
As with other common species of birds, the question as to whether or not vireos are beneficial is legitimately raised, and to answer it, the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture has made a study of their food habits, by examining the stomach contents of a great many of these birds.

The conclusions reached are set forth in a recent report (Department Bulletin, 1355) "Food Habits of the Vireos: A Family of Insectivorous Birds." The food of the several vireos is shown to be very similar though sometimes varying in proportions. Most of the insects eaten are either neutral or definitely injurious in their economic relations, and may be placed on the credit side of the account of these birds.

Fond of Caterpillars.
All vireos are especially fond of caterpillars. Scale insects are a notable item of vireo food, and other tree pests are freely eaten. Many destructive weevils were found in the stomachs examined, including such forms as the clover-leaf, clover-root, cotton-boll, and nut weevils, the plum curculio and bark beetles. Vireos also destroy ants and grasshoppers. Useful insects taken by the vireos include some of the hymenopterans, predaceous bugs and beetles, among which are ladybird beetles, which are almost uniformly beneficial. Although it is regretted that vireos consume as many ladybirds as the evidence indicates, yet they also devour many of the pests attacked by the ladybirds, which must, in part excuse them. As fruit eaters the vireos are practically harmless.

Those interested in the bulletin may obtain a copy, while the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C.

American Turken Found to Be Extremely Hardy

Have you ever heard of the turken? It is not a new bird but it is new to America. It has been bred for centuries in Russia, where it was the favored and protected bird of the royal family. Three of these birds were brought to California by George P. Schaefer, proprietor of "Halo Sacre" breeding farm, Menlo Park, Cal. Mr. Schaefer crossed these birds with Rhode Island Reds, the resultant issue being the much-talked-of fowl, the American turken. The economical value of the fowl is said to be very considerable, it being the producer of a high average of large white eggs, while its abundant flesh is juicy and white. The breed is extremely hardy and the chicks mature quickly. The writer has personal knowledge of a 50 per cent hatch of eggs shipped from California. The chicks were hardy and strong and easily raised, the mortality being far below that of ordinary chicks. At present the supply is limited, but for the future this may become a widely-raised breed.—Seed World.

Egg-Producing Pullets Need Good Protein Feed

For egg production pullets should have access to protein feed. The best method of supplying the protein feed is by feeding dry mash from a self-feeder.

The following dry mash is recommended for your attention:

- One part by weight of wheat bran.
- One part by weight of middlings.
- One part by weight of ground corn or corn meal.
- One part by weight of heavy oats.
- One part by weight of meat scrap.
- Another dry mash used with success is:

Equal parts of ground wheat, oats, corn and meat scrap. The amount of meat scrap used can be somewhat reduced if milk is fed. A good scratch feed of home-grown feeds and as good as can be had is:

Five parts wheat, three parts corn, and two part oats.

Dairy Cows Need Plenty of Water During Winter

Lots of farmers, who milk a few cows during the winter months, have the idea that because the water is cold, it cuts down on the milk flow. This is hardly the correct way of putting it, for you will find that the real reason dairy cows don't give full milk production when given ice water, is because they don't drink enough of it.

Professor Weaver of the Iowa experiment station has found that it takes about four pounds of water for every pound of milk a cow gives, no matter what temperature the water is. When the water is so cold that the cows drink less, they give less milk. Try heating the water for them, and see if it doesn't make a difference.

Treating Potatoes Destroys Diseases

Corrosive Sublimate Kills Germs of Spores.

Treating seed potatoes with corrosive sublimate before planting kills the germs or spores that cause scab, Rhizoctonia, and blackleg diseases. Although the tubers appear free from disease it is safest to treat all seed, says Paul E. Tilford, potato disease specialist at the Ohio experiment station, as even a small amount of disease in the seed with a favorable season for its development is likely to produce a loss of marketable tubers.

Seed potatoes are treated by soaking them in a corrosive sublimate solution for an hour and a half. Corrosive sublimate may be bought at a drug store. A stock solution is made up by dissolving the powder in hot water at the rate of four ounces per gallon. A gallon of the solution is diluted to 30 gallons with water. The strength of the solution depreciates with use so that three-eighths to one-half ounce of the powder or a little less than a pint of the stock solution should be added after each batch of potatoes is treated. Even with this precaution the solution should not be used more than four or five times until it is discarded and a fresh supply made up.

As corrosive sublimate reacts in metals, it must be handled in wooden vessels, such as candy buckets or barrels. A convenient way to handle the potatoes is to place them in bags, which may be lowered into and lifted from the barrel of solution by an overhead rope and pulley. After treatment the potatoes may be left in the bags or spread on a floor to green if greening is done before late planting.

Fertilizer Experiments Conducted in Wisconsin

Some very interesting data are to be found in research bulletin No. 65, "Fertilizer Experiments," issued by the agricultural experiment station, Madison, Wis. For example, it was found that much greater results are to be obtained when the commercial fertilizer is applied one-half inch above the planted corn. Fertilizer mixed with the seed often retards or eliminates germination. For this reason many users of commercial fertilizer have been disappointed in the results secured. They got the fertilizer too close to the seed.

Oats, as a rule, do not need applications of commercial fertilizer. Some fields were benefited, though not many.

In the case of a peat soil, 300 pounds per acre of 0-10-10 fertilizer applied in the row increased the yield of cabbage more than when 1,200 pounds was applied broadcast. Application in the row thus seems to be more economical than broadcast application for cabbage.

Application of fertilizer below or to the side of the potato seed usually results in a much better stand and yield than application with or directly above the seed.

Potato sprouts are very tender and are easily injured if they come in contact with high concentrations of fertilizers as occurs with applications directly above the seed.

Fall or Spring Plowing for Improved Corn Crop

Whether fall or spring plowing is better for corn depends on soil conditions to a large extent. Soils that are heavy and approximating the gumbo types are better plowed in the fall so the elements will act on them in the winter. On the other hand soils which have but little humus in them and which run together hard before spring will do better when plowed in the spring. One purpose of plowing is to aerate the soil so as to let air in to hasten the decomposition of humus for the liberation of plant food, but when this operation is given too far ahead of a growing crop the aeration may lose its action before the crops begin to grow.

There are not many soils of this type, however, so as a rule it is better to plow in the fall when the soil contains a fair amount of humus or when it is dark in color; or when a good amount of fresh organic matter, such as clover or manure, is to be plowed under. The action of the organic matter or humus is to keep the soil from running together. Fall plowing also serves to spread a large part of heavy work over a longer period of the year instead of having so much just at planting time.

Farm Hints

It's weather, not wear, that destroys machinery.

Heavy-weight hens will usually bring more on the market than they produce in eggs.

The time to prune fruit trees is here. This work can best be done during open weather.

Just as water cannot rise higher than its source, so no farmer is ever richer than his land.

Two or three days spent in building a dropping board for the poultry house, more convenient roosts, and a poultry self-feeder will soon be repaid in time saved and production increase.

FARM STOCK

PROPER FEEDS FOR FATTENING CATTLE

Cottonseed meal may be used profitably in the fattening of beef cattle for market, and only fat cattle will pay returns to the feeder.

"In feeding beef cattle, we must take advantage of certain facts, then give attention to the details," says Prof. R. S. Curtis of the animal husbandry department at the North Carolina State college. "One of these facts is that the staple fattening food for beef cattle is a nitrogenous one which normally produces growth rather than fat. But this cottonseed meal is a good fat producer if fed properly, and from 75 to 85 per cent of its fertilizing value is incorporated in the manure. The other fact is that to sell beef cattle profitably, they must be fat."

Professor Curtis states that people do not like fat beef and sometimes compel the butcher to trim off part of the fat; yet, the fact remains that to properly condition a beef animal, he must be fat, and naturally there is some surplus deposited in certain places, as over the back, the loins, ribs and intestines. This is nature's way.

A steer may be put in condition by using cottonseed meal as the concentrate. The steer must never be allowed to get off feed but should be started off on one pound of cottonseed meal per day, supplemented by all the roughage he will consume. Professor Curtis points out that cattle have four stomachs, and if they are to get everything out of their feed, there must be a sufficient amount of roughage to fill the paunch reasonably full each day.

Professor Curtis suggests that one pound of cottonseed meal be used with five pounds of hulls or more to start with. Gradually increase this amount of cottonseed meal during a 30-day period until each animal is getting one pound of the meal to each 100 pounds of live weight. This can easily be figured out and the increase made gradually about two or three times each week until the full amount is being fed. Steers should be fed twice each day and the troughs kept clean and sweet.

Science of Animal Feed Promises Some Changes

In addition to the question of vitamins, there is still another recent discovery in the science of animal feeding which promises to bring about just as radical changes in our feed practices. It has been known for many years that the feeding of cereal grains and other substances low in mineral matter or ash was not only uneconomical but in many cases was dangerous. Very little thought was given to this question, but of late years the conclusion has been reached by the leading nutrition experts that this was due to the low mineral matter as ash content of such feeds. Practically all grains and carbohydrate feeds are low in mineral matter or ash, while the protein feeds are unusually rich in them. This accounts for the fact that protein feeds have met with such universal success in the usual feeding rations.

Corn Meal Found to Be Satisfactory for Calf

Corn meal has been found to be a satisfactory grain to use in raising skim-milk calves. As the calves approach weaning time this should be changed to a mixture of corn, oats and bran. Some oil meal can be added, if more protein is needed. The change of grains is to supply the protein which was supplied by the skim milk.

Calves will begin to eat hay about as soon as they begin to eat grain. Care must be taken in feeding clover or alfalfa that it does not produce scours. If any indication of scours appears, the amount should be limited. Some prefer to feed calves on timothy or some other hay of that character.

Live Stock Items

Sheep require some kind of a succulent food more than other stock.

The older the hog gets the more it costs to put a pound of meat on it.

Proper attention to sanitation with farm animals will prevent many losses.

English hogs tend more to the bacon type than do those raised in America.

The growing pig should be fed at least 2 per cent its own weight in grain, daily.

One of the easiest ways to stiffen a horse is to compel him to stand on a plank floor when not at work.

Get a start with pure breeds now. They may cost a little more, but they're worth it, and then some.

Lambs should be docked when they are seven to fourteen days of age. Some use docking pliers which are heated to blue heat and the tail is seared off. The argument in favor of this method of docking is that there is no loss of blood.
