POLLY'S POINTERS

A Little Thought Makes Saving Fun

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR POLLY — I hope someone will tell me how to clean my gold satin lamp shades that are trimmed with brown and edged with gold braid.

Now that we are all conscious of saving money, food stuffs and most anything you can name I cut off celery stalk leaves. I wash and dry them in the sun and put them in a jar with a top to save for seasoning. Also I save the empty, clean bags that come in boxes of instant potatoes, cake mixes, etc., to use for sandwich bags. — ANNIE.

DEAR ANNIE — Regular cleaning with a soft brush or the soft brush attachment on your vacuum should keep lamp shades dust free. When they need more, rayon and silk shades with stitched on (not glued) trim can usually be washed safely by hand. Since yours are satin they should doubtless go to a dry cleaner. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that so many motorists forget that they, too, are pedestrians and vice versa. If we would all remember this there would be more consideration for each other and doubtless fewer accidents.

I did Judi's Pointer for putting vitamin pills and prescription bottles on her spice rack out of the children's way. I do not think hanging it above the stove is such a good idea. Some medication does not take well to heat but needs a dry, cool, dark place. Over the stove might not be the best place. — TERRY.

DEAR POLLY — I reverse the more usual procedure of mending after laundering and do it before clothes and household items are washed. This not only saves sorting time but keeps rips and tears from becoming larger from washing and drying. — MARY T.

DEAR POLLY — Driplex candles are expensive and not always available in all colors. I use the others but got sick of scraping candle wax off my silver candelholders and tablecloths. Now I cut 3 1/2 inch (larger or smaller to suit the candle size) circles from lightweight aluminum foil, using a tumbler for tracing a perfect circle. A candle is placed in the center of a foil circle and then firmly pushed into the candle holder allowing the edges to flare out so they catch the drip. — MRS. R.R.A.

Chapter Honors Towers Residents

Refreshments were served, and games were played. The winners were Winnie Mae Giddings, Marjorie Willis, Kenneth B. Holmes, Ethel Allen, Emmett Wynn, Bill Beaty, Dorothy Ross, Marion Adams and Maude Blakney.

The chapter also entertained children of members with a party in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. Special guests were Charla and Scott McAninch, children of Mr. and Mrs. Jim McAninch; Lessa Kay Boatman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boatman; Jodi and Joel Hearne, children of Mr. and Mrs. Marty Hearne; Jody Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwan Martin; Teri and Scott Cooley, children of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Cooley; Ricky Riordan and Rhonda Hartzoge, children of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hartzoge; Kimberly and Holl Barber, children of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Barber; Nicki Blackman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dorman Blackman; Lance Etheredge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Etheredge, and Dayna and Derek Dees, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Dees.

Mrs. Dees, a guest of Mrs. Barber, also attended.

Recipe Shower Fetes Bride-Elect

A kitchen and recipe shower was held recently in the home of Mrs. W. H. Crowe, 1700 Cimmaron St., honoring Carol Frazier, who will be married Jan. 4 in the chapel of the First Baptist Church to Roger Holmes of Lubbock.

Hostesses with Mrs. Crowe were Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, Mrs. W. H. Nelson, Mrs. Fred McMann, Mrs. R. G. McCuisition, Mrs. Hazel Russell, Mrs. V. C. Willis and Mrs. Elton Ramsey.

Corsages were presented to the honoree, her mother, Mrs. E. R. Frazier, and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Louise Frazier of San Antonio. Also to Susie Frazier.

Recipes were displayed on a burlap-covered door. A crate filled with fruit and white chrysanthemums was centered on the serving table.

Hostesses with Mrs. Crowe were Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, Mrs. W. H. Nelson, Mrs. Fred McMann, Mrs. R. G. McCuisition, Mrs. Hazel Russell, Mrs. V. C. Willis and Mrs. Elton Ramsey.

Home Ceremony Unites Couple

TULSA, Okla. — Timothy Charles Dube, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon C. Dube of Midland, Tex., married Jacquelyne Kaye Ledbetter in a double ring ceremony at 10 a.m. Dec. 20 in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ledbetter of Tulsa.

The Rev. Paul McBride of the Christian Church officiated for the ceremony.

Witnesses to the service were Pamela Dube of Midland, sister of the bridegroom, and Jeri Ledbetter, the bridegroom's sister.

Mr. Ledbetter presented his daughter in marriage. She wore an off-white gown with Empire waistline and long sleeves accented with wide ruffles at the wrists. The bodice also had a lace yoke insert with lace ruffle and stand-up collar. She carried a nosegay of blue feathered carnations and white tea roses with baby's breath.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held. After a trip to Manalona, Mich., for skiing, the couple will reside at 1803 Darr St., Apartment 119, in Irving.

The bride and bridegroom are attending Ryder Technical Institute in Dallas.

File sheets, towels and other linens vertically in drawers or closets, like books on a shelf. Takes up less space — and you are less likely to use the same ones over and over since you won't need to lift a stack of linens to get to those underneath.

Med Students Concerned With Small Town Situation

PHILADELPHIA, (AP) — Twenty-year-old Bonnie Metzger and 19-year-old Maureen Maguire are so concerned about physician shortages in the small towns where they were born and raised that they're doing something about it. They're studying to become country doctors.

Friends since the seventh grade, the girls grew up near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., an area which has only one physician for every 3,500 residents — sharply below the one-per-1,000 figure generally considered adequate.

Both Bonnie and Maureen are freshmen at Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital, a major Philadelphia medical center which believes it has the answer to physician scarcities in outlying areas.

"Start out with the right medical students, and you'll soon end the national shortage of 'country doctors,'" declares Wharton Shober, Hahnemann's president and chief executive officer. "We have a program to accomplish just that. Its essence is the painstaking care with which students are chosen.

"The only way we're ever going to have doctors in rural areas is to select medical students who are happiest there. This is a free society. You can't force people to work where you want them to — even for the most persuasive of reasons."

Family Medicine
Shober said the accelerated Satellite Campus program was undertaken by Hahnemann, regional colleges and community hospitals in upstate Pennsylvania to turn out doctors who are committed in advance to practice family medicine in their home towns.

"Bonnie and Maureen are typical of the group. They're 'superkids,'" says Dr. Wilbur Oaks, chairman of Hahnemann's Department of Medicine and one of the architects of the Satellite Campus program. Adds colleague Douglas Geary, the department's executive director: "These students are handpicked for their personal attributes as well as for their academic attainments. They are warm, outgoing young people who care very much about the welfare of others."

Bonnie and Maureen are emphatic about their intention to practice medicine in a rural environment after graduation. Bonnie, from Parsons, Pa., states:

"For me to be a doctor I would want a close personal relationship with the people I'm serving. In Parsons, this would be an expansion of a relationship which already exists. My neighbors are really waiting for me to come back."

Maureen comes from Bear Creek, Pa. "My roots are planted there. My family and friends are there."

Each of the girls chose medicine as a vocation early. "I was 9 or 10 when I first became interested in medicine," Maureen recalls. "In tenth grade I took my first chemistry course and became interested in science as a major," says Bonnie. "I looked around for something to do with it, to combine it with my interest in people, and it seemed that medicine was the logical choice."

Their grades are outstanding. Maureen graduated fifth in a class of 200 at Coughlin High School, Wilkes-Barre, and Bonnie ranked seventh in the same class.

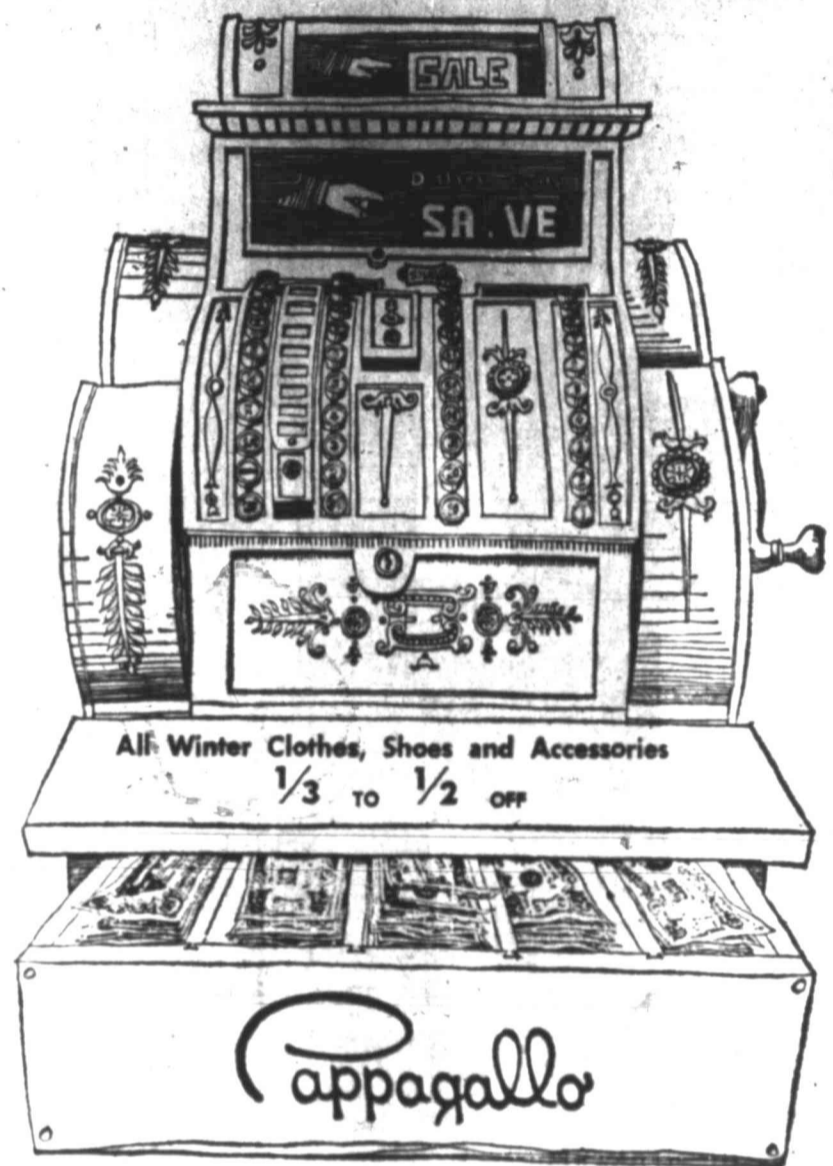

Each hopes to combine her medical career with raising a family. "I would like to get into a clinical setting because there a doctor has more time to spend with his or her family," says Bonnie.

"Before I get married I'm going to tell my future husband that I'm not going to give up my career," Bonnie declares, decisively. "He'll have to be somebody special."

Sharing an apartment in a new, high-rise building within walking distance of Hahnemann, Bonnie and Maureen are too busy with their studies to get homesick. But, says Bonnie: "Living in Philadelphia confirms that I really would like to go back home after graduation."

British Member Of Parliament Ordered Held Another Week In Australia

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — John Stonehouse, the runaway member of the British Parliament, was ordered held today for another week while the Australian government decides whether to deport him for entering the country on a false passport.

Stonehouse failed to produce the full explanation of his flight which his lawyer had said he would make today. But Stonehouse told the magistrate who ordered him held that he was fleeing from "the incredible tensions and pressures I have suffered in the last two years in the United Kingdom."

"I am not a criminal in the strict sense of the word. I may have only committed a technical offense in Britain."

Stonehouse, a Labor party member of the British House of Commons since 1957 and a member of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's cabinet in the 1960s, said he hoped to remain in Australia as an immigrant.

President Maps Out Busy Work Schedule

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — After a family Christmas here in the Rockies, President Ford has mapped out a busy work schedule for the rest of the week, including conferences with energy and economic advisers.

Due here late today from Washington via a military courier flight was what Ford termed a "rather voluminous" report on allegations that the Central Intelligence Agency engaged in widespread illegal domestic spying before he took office.

On Christmas Eve, the Ford went to the home of friends for a buffet dinner and then attended interdenominational services at Vail's interfaith chapel. The church was packed and Ford refused a front row seat.

Two British papers reported after the disappearance that Stonehouse had also been accused of spying for the Communists and for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, but Wilson told the House of Commons that these allegations had been disproved.

The President will be making decisions this week on whether to sign or veto dozens of bills that Congress passed in the final days of its 1974 session. Since coming here Sunday, Ford has vetoed two bills and signed 15 others.

Acting Insp. John Mitchell Sullivan told the magistrate that Stonehouse admitted entering Australia with the false Markham passport on Nov. 27. He left the next day and returned on Dec. 19, Sullivan said.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford would study the CIA report, prepared by agency director William E. Colby, before deciding "on any action to be taken."

The President will meet Friday at his snow-covered ski chalet with members of his Energy Resources Council. On Saturday he will confer with his economic policy board.

Nessen said neither meeting would produce final policy decisions. Instead, the sessions are part of Ford's preparation for January policy announcements in his State of the Union address, economic report and proposed federal budget.

Day After Christmas Begins New Season

NEW YORK (AP) — The day after Christmas begins a new season, the season to pay up, clean up, recover. It is a different mood: it is bleak winter again, no time to be jolly.

The toys that looked so freshly painted yesterday are smashed today, and so are a lot of resolutions to be moderate in all things. Excess is its own penalty.

Christmas, and includes the post-Christmas sales that, in contradiction of the calendar, begin as early as Christmas Eve, when wrapping papers, cards, toys and other items are marked down.

Acting Insp. John Mitchell Sullivan told the magistrate that Stonehouse admitted entering Australia with the false Anticipation, like an old wrapping, has lost its brilliance, and satiety immerses everything. Idealism is strained and hard reality lies ahead.

Yesterday's feast becomes the bones to pick today. Don't you know there's a recession?

By tradition, that season becomes active after Thanksgiving Day, but some anxious merchants have been known to use Halloween as a starting block, luring customers with layaway plans, big stocks, low prices and no crowds.

Acting Insp. John Mitchell Sullivan told the magistrate that Stonehouse admitted entering Australia with the false

The air remains charged, it is true, but it has a different vitality. It is time now for paying bills and returning gifts, and where is the money or time coming from?

DEAR ABBY: I'm 26, happily married and flat as a board. My husband knows that I've always wanted a big bosom, so he agreed for me to see a plastic surgeon about silicone implants. The date for my surgery has been set, but my problem is, what do I tell people?

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my guilt. I had a very unhappy childhood because of my father. He used to beat my mother (and still does) and he'd beat us kids until we were a mass of welts. I hate him, and can't tell you the number of times I wished him dead. He doesn't drink, and he goes to church, but you'd never know it. He only hits people who can't fight back. It's always someone weaker than he is. He's the cruelest man I know. He went into a rage once after he beat mom up and broke all the windows in our house.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please clear up something for me? My husband has two children by a former marriage. They live with their mother.

DEAR WHO: Your husband is right. A stepmother is the wife of one's father by a subsequent marriage.

I know it's none of their business, but this is a rather small town, and gossip is what the people around here live on.

We are all married now and can't understand why mom still stays with him. We've all told her she can come and live with any of us.

I feel so guilty having a wonderful husband and family and knowing what mom is putting up with. Thanks for listening.

EVERYONE HAS A PROBLEM. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

My husband and I run a small cafe. He cooks and I serve, and all our customers know I've got no bust, and if I suddenly go into the hospital for two days, am off work for two weeks, and then I show up at the cafe with a pair of 38s, won't they figure it out?

My husband welcomes my mother in our home, but not my father because my father once started slapping mom around in our house and my husband has barred him from our property ever since.

DEAR WHO: Your husband is right. A stepmother is the wife of one's father by a subsequent marriage.

EVERYONE HAS A PROBLEM. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

I'm a lousy liar, and if the truth gets out, I'm afraid people will be coming to the cafe to get a look at me.

My husband welcomes my mother in our home, but not my father because my father once started slapping mom around in our house and my husband has barred him from our property ever since.

What To Tell People About Blooming Bosom

DEAR ABBY: I'm 26, happily married and flat as a board. My husband knows that I've always wanted a big bosom, so he agreed for me to see a plastic surgeon about silicone implants. The date for my surgery has been set, but my problem is, what do I tell people?

I know it's none of their business, but this is a rather small town, and gossip is what the people around here live on.

My husband and I run a small cafe. He cooks and I serve, and all our customers know I've got no bust, and if I suddenly go into the hospital for two days, am off work for two weeks, and then I show up at the cafe with a pair of 38s, won't they figure it out?

I'm a lousy liar, and if the truth gets out, I'm afraid people will be coming to the cafe to get a look at me.

Please tell me what to do.

Proxmire Helps Salvation Army

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, a Santa Claus hat on his head, spent part of Christmas helping prepare and serve dinner for about 80 persons at a Salvation Army's men's social services center.

"It is one of the most pleasant Christmases I've spent in a long time," the Wisconsin Democrat said.

Proxmire sliced pineapples for the dinner, helped serve, ate, then helped clean a large potato pot.

As Proxmire moved in to tackle the dirty dishes, Curtis McCurdy, 36, a resident at the center, moved out of his way.

"Can't beat a replacement like that, can I?" McCurdy said.

Violence Mars Christmas For Some

By The Associated Press
Violence marred the Christmas holiday for many Texas families. Including five persons killed in a single car-train crash south of Houston, traffic accidents claimed 19 lives. Six fatal shootings and a fire death raised the tragic toll to 29.

The fatalities occurred between 6 p.m. Tuesday and midnight Wednesday. In advance the Texas Highway Patrol had estimated 14 persons would die in the streets and highways during that period.

60,000 Cambodians Flee To Vietnam

By MATT FRANJOLA
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP)—A Cambodian embassy official here says 60,000 refugees have crossed into South Vietnam from Communist-held territory in Cambodia. A group of 10 of these refugees, interviewed here in Saigon, said Cambodians have been crossing into South Vietnam in increasing numbers since early last year when the Cambodian Communists instituted a collectivization program in territory under their control. A number of philanthropic organizations, as well as the Cambodian government, have been feeding the refugees, said Lim Say, the press officer at the Cambodian embassy here.

The Christmas Eve accident near Houston, involving a pickup truck and a train, killed Patsy Ross, 33, and her children—Wesley, 14; Kevin, 12; Ronnie, 11, and Michael, 9. Their husband and father, Olen Ray, was taken to an Alvin hospital with injuries. This is how some of the others died: Evelyn Stockton, 48, and William H. Cudd, 14, both of Houston, were killed there Wednesday in a two-car collision. Samuel P. Williams, 71, of Huntsville, was killed Wednesday in a broadside crash on U.S. 190 one mile east of Huntsville.

AT COVER-UP TRIAL—

Lawyer Is Determined Nixon's Absence To Be In Minds Of Jurors

WASHINGTON (AP)—At least one defense lawyer at the Watergate cover-up trial is determined that the absence of Richard M. Nixon from the courtroom will be in the minds of the jurors when they begin deliberations.

Referring to Nixon as the "orchestra leader," William S. Frates, lawyer for former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman, said in his closing argument to the jury before the Christmas recess: "Ladies and gentlemen, we're missing one person here, the orchestra leader, that's who we're missing in this case."

Frates was scheduled to complete his summation today. The jurors, sequestered since the trial began Oct. 11, spent Christmas Day with relatives at a local hotel. Deputy U.S. marshals were present during the Christmas party and traditional dinner to assure that the trial was not discussed.

Before adjourning on Monday, U.S. District Judge John

Royce D. Sterdt, executive housekeeper at Midland Memorial Hospital, has completed a 12-month correspondence course in housekeeping management offered through the Catholic Hospital Association in cooperation with St. Louis University for Hospital Continuing Education.

Wayne E. Ulrich, hospital administrator, said, "Sterdt rated in the upper 12 per cent of a class of 50 hospital executive housekeepers from across the nation" who took the management course.

The course detailed such subjects as management, communications, planning, staffing, budget preparation and purchasing within health care institutions.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Nancy Rogers, whose discriminating taste buds made her the nation's top collegiate judge of milk, drinks the instant-mix variety on campus. "I'm a student, so I try to get by as cheaply as possible," said the 20-year-old junior from Elmhurst.

Glider Descends From 17,100 Feet

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP)—Hang gliding addict Dennis Kulberg sailed safely to earth Christmas Day from an altitude of 17,100 feet. Equipped with oxygen and bundled in warm clothing against a temperature aloft of 11 degrees below zero, Kulberg was carried to his starting point by a balloon piloted by Brent Stockwell. Thirty-five minutes after the 22-year-old Pacheco, Calif., man and his rig were released above Lick Observatory on Mt. Hamilton, the kite-like craft glided south 13 1/2 miles to Morgan Hill, 70 miles south of San Francisco.

UAW Chief Expects New Health Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers and chairman of a citizens health insurance committee, is predicting that another health insurance bill will be introduced in the new Congress.

No American ever again would have to pay for hospital or doctor's care if the measure is enacted, Woodcock said in a statement Wednesday. The bill would cover every resident of the United States and would pay for all hospital and physicians' services, as well as other specified health needs, such as eyeglasses, hearing aids and dental services.

Dual Financing

Woodcock did not estimate the cost of the program. However, he said the health program would be financed half from general revenues and half from special taxes.

The taxes would include a 1 per cent tax on individual earnings up to $20,000 a year; 3 1/2 per cent tax on employers' payrolls and 2 1/2 per cent on the self-employed, up to $20,000 income.

Woodcock said the payroll tax would offset the elimination of premium payments for private health insurance.

He said the new bill will be introduced with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. James C. Corman, D-Calif., as chief sponsors.

Watergate Top '74 Story

By The Associated Press
The Watergate scandal, climaxing with the resignation of Richard Nixon and the inauguration of President Ford, has been voted the top news story of 1974.

In their annual poll, editors and news directors of Associated Press member newspapers and radio and television stations placed three other Watergate-related stories among the Top Ten of the year. The three were Ford's pardon of former President Nixon, the Democratic sweep in the November elections, and Nelson Rockefeller's vice presidential nomination.

The Watergate scandal also was voted the top story in 1973. Besides Watergate, the Top Ten stories, in the order of their selection, were:

2. The economy — Inflation above 10 per cent, and a business decline that began in January and became a recession by fall.

3. The energy crisis — The oil embargo ended in March but the steadily rising cost of petroleum added to the economic gloom.

4. The kidnapping of Patricia Hearst and her conversion to membership in the Symbionese Liberation Army, the guerrilla group that had kidnapped her.

5. Ford's "free, full and absolute pardon" of Nixon on Sept. 8.

6. The Democratic sweep in First Underwater Passage

The nuclear powered submarine Seadrone, USN, made the first east-west underwater transit through the Northwest Passage during August 1960.

7. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's diplomatic efforts toward a Middle East peace agreement.

8. Ford's conditional amnesty for deserters and draft resisters of the Vietnam war era.

9. The eruption in Cyprus — The Greek-sponsored coup against President Makarios led to the invasion of the island by Turkey and the downfall of Greece's military government.

10. Ford's nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president, and revelations of Rockefeller's wealth and gift-giving.

Rep. Aspin Charges Army Is Lining Up Manufacturers Of Nerve Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the House Armed Services Committee has charged that the Army is lining up manufacturers for nerve gas.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Wednesday the Army either is ignoring a congressional directive that nerve gas activities be limited to research or it plans to convince Congress to change the law.

Aspin said he would seek emergency hearings on the matter when the new Congress convenes next month.

An Army spokesman said Christmas night that he could not respond to questions about the Aspin allegation until he gets in touch with officials involved in chemical warfare programs.

Aspin, in a written statement, said he was basing his assertions on a Dec. 11 entry in the Commerce Department's "Business Daily," a listing of government contract notices.

The entry was a query to chemical companies about their willingness to convert their facilities to produce "ton quantities" of two chemicals, dimethyl polysulfide and ethyl 2-Diisopropylaminoethyl.

An Aspin aide said these chemicals are the components of a nerve gas called VX, an odorless, colorless compound that attacks the nervous system when inhaled or absorbed through the skin. A quart jar of VX allegedly contains "several million lethal doses," the aide said.

About the same time the notice to chemical companies appeared, the Army announced a search for a company to produce artillery projectiles that would be filled with "nontoxic chemical solutions," the Aspin aide said.

The projectiles will be used to carry the VX components, the aide said. He conceded that he had not discussed his interpretation of the two notices with Army officials.

The House by a 214-186 vote last Aug. 6 deleted funds to make new artillery ammunition and a new nerve gas. The gas program then was to be limited to research, Aspin said.

But when the shell impacts, the two components mix, creating VX is a binary gas, meaning the gas.

IRS Agent May Be Watching Quiz Shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Among viewers of television quiz shows these days may be an Internal Revenue Service agent.

The IRS agents' interest is not in entertainment, but to make sure the government gets its tax share of the prizes.

When it comes time for the quiz show winner to pay taxes, the IRS may check to make sure that the winnings were declared. If not, the taxpayer may be invited in to talk about it.

The IRS isn't interested in just money prizes. It expects taxpayers to declare as income the value of any merchandise prizes, such as an automobile or refrigerator.

The growing number of official state lotteries and the new popularity of television quiz shows has prompted queries to about the larger prizes, especially those of $600 or over.

For one thing, lotteries, race tracks and quiz show sponsors are required to report to the IRS prizes of $600 or more. These reports then can be checked against the winner's tax return.

In addition, it is not uncommon for IRS agents to monitor quiz shows and clip newspaper accounts of lottery and other prize winners, although agents are not regularly assigned to such monitoring activities.

Tax returns of professional gamblers also may be subjected to special scrutiny, an IRS spokesman said.

Tax returns for 1974 went in the mail immediately after Christmas. The IRS estimates about $3 million returns will be filed for 1974, compared with $1 million last year.

Technically, taxpayers should declare as income all prize or gambling income, even a $10 office football pool or money won in a weekend poker game, regardless of whether it was legally obtained.

Vietnamese Communists Overrun Two More Towns

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong overrun two more district towns, shot down a C130 transport plane on a supply mission and fired 37 rockets into the Bien Hoa air base, the South Vietnamese military command announced today.

Don Luan, 55 miles north of Saigon, and Tanh Linh, 70 miles northeast of the capital, were the fourth and fifth district towns lost since the Communists stepped up their attacks in the southern part of the country on Dec. 6. The Saigon government now has lost 10 district towns since the ceasefire agreement nearly two years ago.

Tanks Attacking

The Saigon command said the attacking forces poured thousands of shells into Don Luan and Tanh Linh. The Don Luan garrison reported shortly before it broke radio contact with Saigon that North Vietnamese tanks were attacking from the west.

South Vietnam's 250 district towns, guarded by local militiamen, are similar to county seats in the United States. Several others were reported under attack, including Hoi Duc, 15 miles north of Tanh Linh.

The North Vietnamese downed the big C130 as it approached the isolated provincial capital of Phuoc Long, five miles north of Tanh Linh. The plane's five crewmen were killed, officials said.

The rocket attack on Bien Hoa was the first shelling in nearly two months of the big base 15 miles northeast of Saigon. The command said 37 100-pound rockets landed along the outer perimeter and near a barracks, but there were no casualties and only light damage. However, other military sources said more than 10 servicemen were killed or wounded.

Trial Suspended

On the political front, a Saigon court suspended the trial of four newspapers accused of slandering President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice President Tran Van Huong by printing opposition politicians' charges that they covered up a corruption case against a province chief. About 100 national assemblymen and other politicians marched through downtown Saigon to the court, expressing support for the papers and calling for Thieu's resignation.

The trial was suspended until Feb. 20 after defense attorneys demanded that Thieu and Huong be called as witnesses.

In Cambodia, 10 soldiers were executed for robbing Phnom Penh gold shops of thousands of dollars worth of gold, military sources reported.

The sources said three other soldiers convicted with them are serving 20-year prison sentences.

Guard Ordered

The government of Thailand ordered troops and police to mount a special guard on the Laotian border near the town of Ban Houei Sai, which was taken over Tuesday by about 100 rebel Laotian soldiers. Deputy Premier Prakorb Hutasing said in Bangkok that his government had reports that the rebels and loyal army forces were still fighting.

More than 300 Pathet Lao troops crossed over the ceasefire line in northwest Laos today and moved into Ban Houei Sai, a spokesman for the conservative-neutralist faction in the Vietnamese government reported today.

The situation was not clear. The spokesman charged that there were three companies of North Vietnamese troops around the town. An official of the United States Embassy said there were 11 American civilians in the town, and they were reported under house arrest.

Escapee Arrested At Brownwood

BROWNWOOD, Tex. (AP) — A man in his 20s who has escaped from the Comanche County Jail twice in the last two months was in custody in maximum security at Brown County Jail here today.

Brown County officers acting on an anonymous tip Wednesday arrested Paul Lammons at a Brownwood motel.

Lammons escaped from jail in Comanche Dec. 16 by apparently forcing a piece of pipe through the bars and sliding through the pipe.

The breakout was made about an hour before he was to have been transferred to the Huntsville state prison in connection with a group of charges that included his first jail escape in November.

Decision Big Victory For Indians

By DAVID AMMONS
GIG HARBOR, Wash. (AP)

— For the Quinault, the Lummi, the Nisqually, the Puyallup and other tribes, Judge Boldt's ruling was the biggest victory over the white man since Custer's last stand.

Because of the ruling, Indians in the State of Washington are becoming commercial fishermen for the first time in decades. And the white fishermen who had dominated the industry say they're being put out of business.

Suddenly 2,000 white commercial fishermen have been limited to only 50 per cent of the "harvestable catch" each year — a figure determined by state officials under court order. The Indians are guaranteed the other 50 per cent.

Income Drops Sharply
The result has been a sharp drop in income for men like George Ancich, who operates a 56-foot fishing boat out of this Puget Sound village. "I lost $15,000 or $20,000 in good clear money this fall; I earned only $600," Ancich, 50, says of the restricted salmon catch. "I can't last another year. Unless I can fish like we always have, I'll have to sell my boat, my gear. And what can I do at my age?"

Paul Anderson, of the Purse Sein Vessels Association, said that fishing boat owners once average $15,000 to $20,000 annually. But this year they earned $500 to $2,000 because of the restrictions imposed on non-Indian fishermen by U.S. District Court Judge George Boldt. Hardly A Concession

Boldt's ruling last spring interpreted an 1854 treaty between Indians in this area and the U.S. government. Because they were ceding land to settlers the Indians worried they might lose their fishing rights, too. So the treaty stated that "Indians shall have the right to fish in common with white men."

It was hardly a concession for the settlers. Until nearly 1900 they concentrated on farming and the Indian tribes did 90 per cent of the commercial fishing. The Indians sold their catch of chinook salmon — Washington's most important commercial fish — to the whites.

'Case To End All Cases'
The 20th Century was another matter. The Indians charged that whites not only dominated commercial fishing but stopped Indians from fishing in Puget Sound. Most of the salmon catch, and also small harvests of herring and trout, comes from Puget Sound, a 200-mile long body of water which extends into Washington like an arm of the Pacific Ocean.

For several years, Indian fishermen had charged in court cases that they were harassed and their gear confiscated by state authorities when they fished off their reservations. "We needed a case to end all cases," said U.S. Atty. Gen. Pitkin, who brought the suit before Judge Boldt on the Indians' behalf.

Judge Boldt ruled that the Indians have an inalienable right under the 1854 treaty to fish in the state and along its coast, but non-Indians have only a privilege which can be modified by law or withdrawn.

Decision Appealed
The state government has appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco for a reversal of the ruling. And there have been protests. After 500 angry fishermen and their families marched on the state capitol in October, Gov. Dan Evans asked President Ford to declare a disaster area because of the depressed fishing industry. But the White House replied that a disaster could be declared only in the event of an earthquake or some other natural calamity, and Judge Boldt's ruling didn't fall into this classification.

So the white fishermen, operating one thousand fishing boats, were limited to a catch of 110,000 salmon this year. The 900 Indians engaged in commercial fishing, mostly in row-boats, were authorized to take an equal number.

The 1973 salmon run, by comparison was far better than this year's and the catch was 927,000 fish, nearly all of them taken by white fishermen, the state Fisheries Department says.

New Quake Detection System Set

By ALFONSO CHARDY
MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico plans to install a new seismological network to pinpoint the centers of earthquakes five minutes after they occur anywhere in North and Central America and the Caribbean.

Julian Adem Chain, director of the National University's Geophysical Institute said in a recent speech:

"Mexico will be the first country in the world to establish a continental seismological network..." His speech, to the annual Mexican Geophysics Conference here, was reproduced in the University Gazette.

He said once the network is installed, probably in the next two years, seismologists in Mexico will be able to detect an earthquake over an area estimated at nearly half a million square miles, including Alaska, Canada, the United States, Mexico, Central America and the Caribbean.

Improvement Predicted
The current seismological office in Mexico covers only about 100,000 square miles, officials said.

"We have estimated that with the new network we will be able to obtain in less than five minutes the exact epicenter of any earthquake over 4 degrees on the Richter Scale in Mexico and surrounding territorial seas," Chain said.

He said that the epicenters of earthquakes measuring more than 5 degrees in North and Central America as well as the Caribbean will also be detected, in less than five minutes.

At present the seismological office here, with two monitors operating, requires 15 to 20 minutes to detect an epicenter because of insufficient equipment, officials at the office said.

Hundreds Yearly
The Richter scale measures the ground's motion in a tremor. A tremor of 4 or 5 degrees is considered mild. One of 6 is deemed severe and one of 7 can cause widespread damage. The San Francisco quake of 1906 registered 8.3 degrees on the scale.

Hundreds of small to mild to strong earthquakes hit Mexico and Central America and the Caribbean every year, officials said. Some of these earthquakes' epicenters cannot be determined.

The worst earthquake to hit the region in recent history was the Dec. 23, 1972, tremor that devastated Managua, Nicaragua, killing an estimated 10,000 people. An earthquake that hit south-central Mexico Aug. 28, 1973, leveled scores of towns and left upwards of 700 people dead.

System Can't Predict
Chain, the university's geophysical expert, said the projected network would consist of four "trunk lines" or monitor stations around the nation that would gather data when a quake hits and send it through electronic equipment to two already existing reception centers in Mexico City.

With the data gathered by the monitors outside the Mexican capital, the two stations here will pinpoint the quake's epicenter through a system of coordinates. He said the system will not be able to predict an earthquake before it hits.

Tidal Wave Detection
The network will also be able to detect quakes out at sea and pinpoint epicenters there to see if tidal waves could affect land in the region that the system will cover, Chain added.

He said two of these earthquake monitors would be set up in the Mexican ports of Mazatlan and Acapulco on the west coast.

"We will be able to send information to Mexican ports and also to Hawaii and Japan so they can take precautions," he said.

The network may also be used to detect volcanic activity in Mexico and Central America. As a bonus, it will also be constantly used to examine the subsol of Mexico to find out its structure, Chain said. He added that such knowledge will help in the search for mineral and oil wealth as well as the discovery of geothermic vapor sources.

The network will be managed by the university and the plans have already been drafted by the Mexican Federal Communications Ministry and the Science and Technology Council.

Self-Proclaimed Messiah Crashes Closed White House Gate In Auto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials say they expect to review and improve White House security measures following a Christmas morning gate-crashing by a self-proclaimed "messiah" who kept guards at bay for hours with bogus explosives.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said the incident, which came 10 months after a young GI crashed a stolen Army helicopter on the White House lawn, demonstrates the need "to see how similar things could be prevented from happening again."

Simon also commended the Secret Service, a Treasury Department agency, for its "professional" handling of Wednesday's intruder, who rammed his automobile through a closed White House gate.

President Ford and his family were away on a skiing vacation in Colorado. A Secret Service spokesman said that for that reason, White House guards had reacted in a more "compassionate" way.

No shots were fired during the tense four-hour confrontation as the man, wearing make-shift Arab garb and wired to what guards feared were explosives, stood near the north portico where presidents frequently greet visiting foreign dignitaries.

After he surrendered, the Secret Service said agents found that the intruder, identified as Marshall H. Fields, 25, of suburban Silver Spring, Md., had no explosives.

Fields, the son of a deceased State Department official who had served in Arab countries, was then taken to a mental hospital for observation.

Japanese Leader Reports On Assets

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Takeo Miki, in a move unprecedented in Japan, made public today his personal assets, which totaled about $1,054,000, including real estate, stocks and bank deposits.

Miki took over the prime minister's post Dec. 8 from Kakuei Tanaka, who resigned under fire over failing to stop inflation and alleged use of public office to amass his private fortune.

In a rambling statement mailed recently to several Washington area news organizations, a man identifying himself as Fields had indicated he would take some sort of action against the government on Christmas Day, declaring, "I am the Messiah to those who wish to believe."

Chief Earl Drescher of the Executive Protective Service, said, "I'm sure there will be studies and evaluation of this incident."

Drescher said security absolute enough to rule out the possibility of a similar intrusion probably would be unattainable without turning the White House into "an armed camp."

A Secret Service spokesman said the response of agents on Wednesday would have been different if Ford or members of his family had been at the White House. He didn't say what agents would have done but did say Fields could have been stopped before he reached the building.

The intruder surrendered after hearing on his car radio a broadcast by the Howard University radio station of his demand to talk with Sahabuddin Yaqub Kahn, Pakistan's ambassador to the United States.

A spokesman for the Pakistani embassy later said the ambassador had never heard of Fields and refused to see him. Police said they had no idea why Fields wanted to talk with the ambassador.

The Secret Service said Fields was the son of Marshall L. Fields, a former official of the U.S. Agency for International Development who died of cancer last May.

Brezhnev Sends Sadat Message

CAIRO (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev sent an urgent message today to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, the Middle East News Agency reported.

It was not immediately known if the message dealt with Brezhnev's visit to Egypt scheduled for Jan. 15. Neither Egyptian officials nor Soviet Embassy officials were available for comment.

Minor Absurdities Mirror Crisis, Shortages Of 1974

By TERRANCE ROSKIN
NEA Service

The great crises of the past year — shortages, wars, inflation, Watergate — were mirrored by thousands of little absurdities, often buried under columns of dire events, which gave the news of 1974 a distinctly offbeat flavor.

In the spring, for example, people began to air their frustrations in short bursts of streaking across the world's stage.

Alone or in teams, streakers bared themselves during the televised Academy Awards, on trains, in planes, waterskiing in Hong Kong and even sightseeing at St. Peter's Square in the Vatican.

Streaking never caught on in China, perhaps because Chinese youth were too busy singing one of the top popular songs there: "How I Love To Carry Fertilizer Up the Mountainside for the Commune."

At the other end of the fertilizer business, cows in Atsugi, Japan, were fed newspapers as part of a government experiment seeing cheap hay substitutes. The cows continued to produce good milk and it seemed likely newspapers would be headed for greater ends than birdcage bottoms.

While the cows were busy digesting the news of the day, bulls in Madrid, Spain, were awaiting their first confrontation with women. Government officials there decreed an end to discriminatory laws which prevented women from killing bulls publicly. Thrice-gored Latin American bullfighter Angela Hernandez, who had fought for the right to fight in Spain, declared the sport "superbly suited for modern woman."

Perhaps a bit more suited to the tastes of most modern women was the career achievement of Naval Lt. (jg.) Barbara Allen, who became the first woman flier in the military service. Lt. Allen was one of eight women admitted into the Navy's flight program last year. Five remained in the program, one washed out due to airsickness and the last resigned after marrying her recruiter.

Economic pinches did nothing to improve the crime situation, except perhaps in Milan, Italy, where thieves loaded a truck with cartons of stolen loot, sped away and promptly ran out of gas.

An armed robber fared even worse in Miami when he jumped into what he thought was his getaway car — actually an unmarked patrol car which took him, and his getaway driver, to jail.

No more piqued, but more surprised, was a Houston prisoner who, wriggling his way toward freedom through the county jail's air-conditioning ducts, fell through a weak spot and crashed to the courtroom below.

But no thief was more surprised than the unknown purloiner of a sack taken from the back seat of a Miami auto. Inside the bag was a seven-foot rattlesnake.

Crooked moxie of the year honors, though, must go to the burglar who entered an empty courtroom in the Columbus, Ohio, police headquarters and slipped away with just about everything that wasn't nailed down — including the presiding judge's nameplate, which was.

But at least one lawbreaker saw the light. He wrote Canadian tax authorities: "I haven't been able to sleep since cheating on my income tax. I enclose a check for $500. If still unable to sleep, will send you the balance."

Shortages, real and imagined, were prominent in the news of the year. With high priced gasoline in short supply at the end of long gas lines, walking and bicycling took on greater appeal.

Drivers in Utah who chose not to take any unnecessary auto trips saved fuel, more than gasoline. During a 30-day period early in 1974 there were no highway fatalities in the state, an unprecedented event.

Drinkers in Warsaw, Poland, were driven — into the moonshine business. With vodka rising in price by 23 per cent, sales dropped by one-fourth. Coincidentally, sugar and yeast sales began to boom.

Some citizens in Leningrad wrestled with a local drinking problem as they first built, then destroyed a neighborhood recreation spot. Tables and chairs arranged for chess playing, reading and lounging soon attracted vodka-soaked drunks. When all attempts to dislodge them failed, an outraged citizen took an axe to the tables. Now the neighborhood is without a chess center, but the drunks remain, drinking on their feet — where the tables had been — until they collapse.

Whether or not a shortage prompted his all-out effort to produce a four-and-one-quarter pound tomato is unknown, but an Eastport, England, man did reveal his technique: He said he put earphones around the jumbo tomato and played stereo music to it.

In Katmandu, Nepal, the government announced that worshippers could not sacrifice any more local animals during the Hindu festival to the goddess Durga Bhawani. Since animal sacrifices outstrip supply at festival time, 10,000 sheep and mountain goats were imported.

The number of sheep in Spokane, Wash., was reduced by eight this year when a pack of dogs jumped a 12-foot fence to attack and eat the experimental animals. The sheep were part of a state-funded study on ways to train coyotes not to eat sheep.

Perhaps the most notable shortage in the off-beat news-of-the-year was no shortage at all. Following a congressman's news release warning of a possible shortage of toilet paper, newscasters picked up the story.

Millions of Americans stripped tens of millions of rolls of toilet paper off the grocery shelves. In the end, the shortage was simply a rumor. Supplies were soon replenished and, it seems, the tissue issue is behind us.

And finally, to cheer any soul bearing even the smallest spark of vindictiveness the weather forecasters' annual picnic in Seattle was cancelled this year — due to rain.

Midlander, Four Odessans Will Face Arraignment Jan. 2 In U.S. Court

Five men, one from Midland and the others from Odessa, are to be arraigned in federal court here at 9:30 a.m. Jan. 2 on indictments ranging from escape from custody to wire tapping and failure to deposit withholding taxes.

The five are to be arraigned before U.S. Dist. Judge D. W. Suttle in the Midland-Odessa Division of the Western District of Texas.

Illegal Telephone Tap

To enter their pleas before the federal judge are:

—Morris Olen Crocker, 40, of 2905 Lockheed, Midland, indicted by a federal grand jury in November for allegedly unlawfully placing a tap on a telephone at 1409 1/2 W. Ohio St., Midland. The indictment charges that Crocker "unlawfully did intercept and endeavor to intercept wire communications" by calling to and from a telephone at the Ohio Street address. Maximum punishment for the offense is a $10,000 fine and a five-year term in the penitentiary. The defendant was released on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond.

—Odessa barber T. J. Taylor, 45, was indicted on 11 counts of failure to deposit $403.16 in withholding taxes and Social Security (Federal Insurance Contributions Act) taxes this year.

The indictment alleges that Taylor failed to make 11 deposits from April 9 through June 18, 1974, and was notified of his delinquency. Maximum punishment on conviction of each count is $5,000 fine and a year's imprisonment. Taylor was owner-operator of the Rockhill Barber Shop, 823 Maple St., Odessa, during the period covered by the indictment. He was released on a $10,000 personal recognizance bond.

Firearms Transaction

—Arlie W. J. Loftin, 45, of 7407 W. University, Odessa, was indicted for allegedly making false statements on a Treasury Department firearm transaction record form in purchasing a .38-caliber revolver from a licensed dealer in firearms. Loftin was being held in federal custody in lieu of $20,000 surety bond. Maximum punishment for the offense is a $5,000 fine and five-year prison sentence.

—William Estes Wood, 46, of Odessa was indicted for escaping from custody on Sept. 27 while serving a sentence for forging and cashing a U.S. Treasury check. He was sentenced on Jan. 2, 1974, in the Midland-Odessa Division here. Maximum punishment on the escape-from-custody charge is a $5,000 fine and a five-year prison sentence.

—Roy Glenn Wheeler, 39, of Odessa also was indicted for escaping from federal custody. He was serving a sentence for violation of the Dyer Act and transporting a stolen vehicle across state lines at the time of his escape about July 22, 1974. Maximum punishment on conviction of escape from custody is a $5,000 fine and a five-year prison sentence.

RETIRING — Leonard K. Robey, manager of the Village Station, will retire from the U.S. Postal Service Tuesday after 23 years of service.

Most Outstanding Prisoners

the inmates involved in the disturbance.

Jackson rejected two inmate demands — that he remove the security director for the maximum security portion of the prison and that he guarantee there would be no prosecutions in connection with the disturbance.

As the inmates and prison officials negotiated across a 15-foot-long table next to a decorated Christmas tree in the prison's visitors' room, Virginia state police found the get-away car, an auto belonging to one of the guards, not far from the reformatory.

The body of one of the escapees was found inside. The circumstances of his shooting death were not immediately known.

Fairfax (Va.) County police said a resident of the area where the abandoned auto was found later told police that three men matching the descriptions of the other escapees jumped into his car and ordered him to drive them to Washington.

The man said he complied and dropped them off at three separate points. The citizen was unharmed.

Rotary Club Hosts Downtown Lions

The Midland Rotary Club hosted the Downtown Lions to today during a noon luncheon of the clubs' Christmas holiday joint session in the American Legion Hall.

Featured speaker at the joint session was Bill Cormack. Cormack is employed by the Midland Independent School System as coordinator of the fine arts and migrant programs.

Cormack presented a slide and talk show featuring the "good aspects of American life." He said the show is narrated by movie star John Wayne and is titled "I Am An American."

The presentation includes four parts, "America, Why I Love Her; The People; The Good Things and the Pledge of Allegiance."

Cormack said that he put the slide and narrative presentation together following the Watergate and other recent crises of the country to depict "a positive program on our country." He said the program is "simply a slice of what's good about America."

Jewish Volunteers Man Police Offices

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Twenty-four Jewish men worked at police headquarters and the jail on Christmas Day so the regular employees could spend the holiday with their families.

Members of the Jewish community in Charlotte do this without pay each Christmas as a sign of brotherhood.

Bay May Be Drying Up

Hudson Bay may be drying up. About 6,000 to 7,000 years ago it was an immense inland sea covering the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba. Ice, believed a mile thick, began to melt, the weight pushed down or warped the earth beneath and the runoff water collected in a depressed basin called the Tyrrell Sea. During the centuries the sea drained off to its present Hudson Bay size.

Drug Burglary Suspect Held In Lieu Of Bail

Gregory Allen Owens, of the Desert Inn Motel, remained in city jail today in lieu of $5,000 bond on charges of burglary.

Owens was arrested inside the Imperial Drug, 3207 W. Wadley St., about 1:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Three police officers responded to a burglar alarm at the drug store early Tuesday and found pry marks on the rear door. Police entered the building and arrested Owens in the pharmacy area of the store.

Justice of the Peace Bob Pine set bond and charged Owens with the burglary.

Normal communications were wiped out by the storm — equivalent to a hurricane or typhoon elsewhere in the world — that demolished homes, sank ships, smashed parked planes, hurled cars across streets and sent glass windshields and iron roofing flying through the air.

light rain or drizzle persisted in slight warmer areas of South Central Texas and along the Upper Texas Coast.

Forecasts looked for the cold and wet weather in the storm, which started developing Christmas Day, to extend into Friday and to spread toward the northeast.

Temperatures near dawn ranged down to 17 degrees at Guadalupe Pass and to the warmest spot in the state was Galveston on the coast, where the reading at the same hour was 49.

Law Dating Back To Napoleon's Day Makes Farce Out Of French Divorces

PARIS (AP) — Getting a divorce in France can be an elaborately orchestrated farce in which petitioner, lawyers and even the judge collaborate to circumvent a civil code instituted by Napoleon 171 years ago.

Under the code, the judge is required to formally pronounce one of the parties guilty before granting a divorce. The concept of guilty and innocent in the breakup of a marriage was a concession to the Roman Catholic Church and was meant to discourage divorce.

Sordid Play-Acting

But nowadays it often leads only to sordid play-acting by all concerned in a divorce case. The law is widely felt to have become outmoded, just like the legislation on abortion, which is now being modernized.

The government is drafting more liberal legislation permitting divorce by mutual consent and for other reasons long accepted in the United States and other Western countries.

There has been no outcry from conservative forces yet, but the project may run into heavy flak when it reaches the National Assembly in the spring.

Insulting Letters

Meanwhile, if Mr. and Mrs. Dupont have had the old spurt and fully agree they want to break up, they have to go through something like this to get a divorce:

—One party must send in insulting letters, even if he or she has no pronounced ill-feeling.

—This often arouses bitter hostility where there was none at the start," says a prominent Paris lawyer who handles divorce suits.

—When enough letters pile up in the file, the "aggrieved" party asks for a divorce. The two appear before a judge, who under the law must make an effort to conciliate them. Instead, the "guilty" party exhibits more false signs of abuse.

—The perfunctory attempt at conciliation over with, the judge conducts a formal hearing and grants the divorce. His decision on property disposal is often illegally arranged by the couple in advance of the court action.

The law stipulates that the judge must automatically pronounce one party guilty and grant the divorce if there is evidence of adultery or a criminal conviction. In what the law books call "cases of excesses, cruelty and insults" the outcome is at the discretion of the judge, but if a divorce is decreed one partner must still be found guilty.

The latest available Justice Ministry statistics show there were 41,800 divorces in 1970. In 47.5 per cent the husband was found guilty, in 26.7 per cent the wife and in the remaining cases both spouses were at fault. Officials said the figures have been about the same since then.

Christmas Snow Falls In Midland

While Midland, Andrews and Crane had some snow on Christmas Day, Odessa was apparently the only area city where it covered the ground.

All communities in The Reporter-Telegram distribution area reported rain, sleet and ice, with both Big Spring and Lameta reporting a slight increase in traffic accidents.

A spokesman at Sterling City described weather conditions like "pea soup," and most areas indicated roads harbored icy patches and slick bridge and overpass areas.

The Midland forecast calls for high this afternoon and Friday in the upper 30s and a low tonight in the middle 20s. The high mercury mark, Wednesday was 35, followed by an overnight low of 31.

Midlander's Leg Crushed By Cars

A hit and run auto accident Christmas day has resulted in the hospitalization of a Midland man after his leg was crushed between two parked cars.

Injured was Henderson Broadnax, 46, of 1904 E. Indiana St., who is listed in fair condition with a fractured right leg at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Police said that Broadnax was standing between two cars parked in front of his home and was attempting to jump-start the vehicles.

Witnesses at the scene told police that another vehicle struck one of the parked cars in the rear and pushed the two parked cars together, crushing Broadnax's leg between them.

One report said 90 per cent of the houses and other buildings were destroyed or damaged.

Continuing rains and winds gusting up to 30 miles an hour compounded the misery of the survivors and hampered relief work.

Many Abandoned, Orphaned Children Face Clouded Future In Bangladesh

By MYRON L. BELKIND
ULIPUR, Bangladesh (AP)

The children squat shivering in the morning cold, many wearing only a name tag. There's Ganesh, 7; Jaminah, 5; Nur Jahan, 5; Luki, 4. And there's one little girl, about 2, sitting all alone, with flies crawling over her naked, limp body. Her tag is blank. No one knows her name.

Throughout Bangladesh's remote Kurigram subdivision, there are at least 2,000 more children like them.

They are "ezeems," Bengali for orphans.

Some lost their mothers and fathers in the severe famine that ravaged northern Bangladesh this autumn after floods washed away their homes and their crops.

Others were abandoned by parents who could no longer care for them.

They were found along roadsides in towns, at railway stations and in rice fields in the villages.

In past years when other natural calamities struck the country, the children were allowed to die.

This year, many of them are being saved.

In Ulipur and seven other towns of Kurigram subdivision, special government centers have been opened to care for the orphaned and the abandoned, to provide them with high-protein food flown in by international relief agencies.

"The children were brought here more dead than alive," said one official. "Now look at them."

Outside, many were doing physical exercises. Their big brown eyes, for which Bengalis are known, sparkled in the sunlight.

In another section of the center, nursing attendants rubbed in mustard oil to soothe the dried skin of infants whose bodies were slowly regaining strength after deteriorating to virtual skeletons.

When the special centers were opened in late October, they had more than 4,000 children. Since then, about half have been returned to their homes now that their parents can feed them following the start of the rice harvesting season.

But the remaining 2,000 face an uncertain future. They have nowhere to go. And as winter sets in, many have no clothes to wear, no blankets to protect them at night.

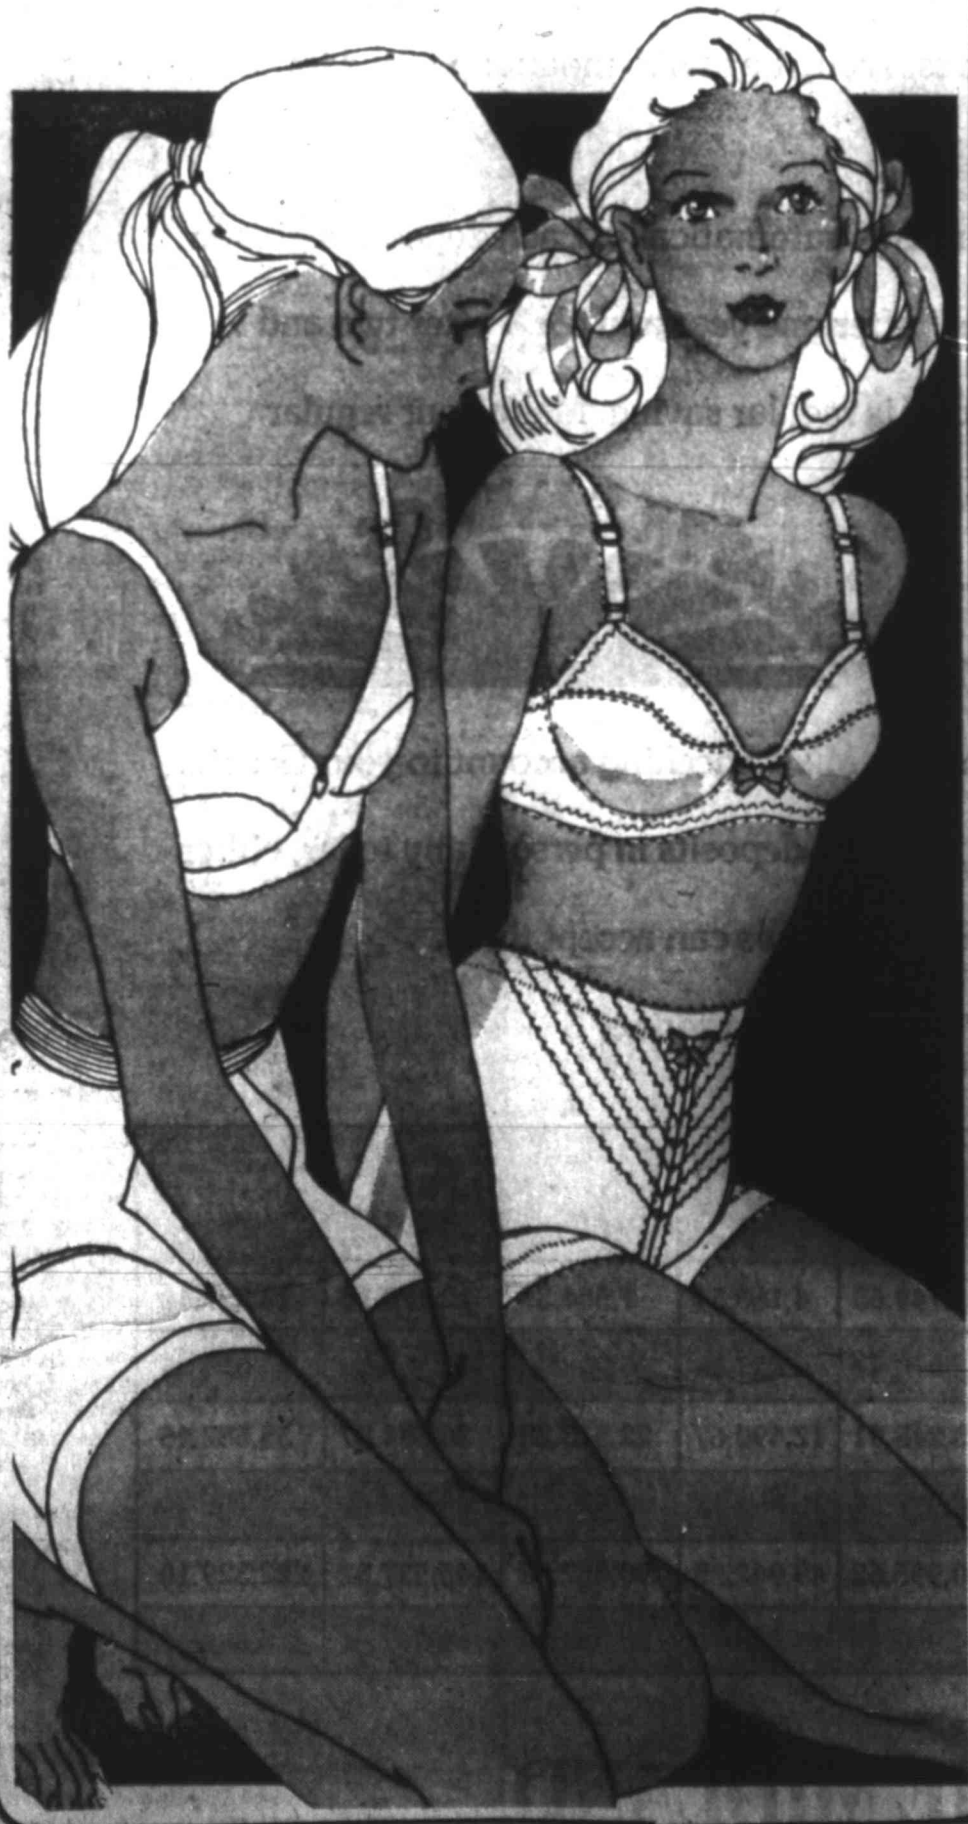

Says Dilwar Hussein, the director of one center at nearby Chilmari, where 400 children stay:

"We have kept these children alive with food for six weeks. Now they may die because they have no clothing. They are suffering from excessive cold."

PRESSING FOR FOOD — Homeless peasant women and children press forward in a food receiving line at a camp run by the Indian government in West Bengal state. The government has announced plans to close the feeding centers. (AP Wirephoto.)

Term Applies Selectively

'Depression' Not Descriptive Of Entire Economy

By JOHN CUNIFF
 NEW YORK (AP) — The term "depression" might not apply to the economy as a whole, but it certainly is descriptive of individual industries, such as autos, housing, stocks and savings and loan, or thrift, industry at the moment, with more than a quarter-million workers idled and prospects growing for more layoffs early in 1975.

CLOSE FOCUS—It's an exciting moment for 5-year-old Donna Wanek as a wandering butterfly pauses briefly on her nose for a big closeup at Santa Fe, N.M. (NEA Photomat.)

and employment situation makes autos the critical industry at the moment, with more than a quarter-million workers idled and prospects growing for more layoffs early in 1975.

Automotive analysts vary in their estimates, but it is safe to say the idleness of one automotive worker endangers the jobs of 2 to 3 workers in related industries, spreading the ailment cancerously.

The question automotive men remain puzzled about is when recovery can be expected. Their experience has been that one forecast after another was too optimistic.

Albert Sindlinger, the pollster and an authority on the automotive market, insists that even now production might be too high. Opinions vary, however, and estimates of 1975 sales range from 6.3 million to 9 million units, compared with about 9.25 million this year.

Sindlinger is at the low end, between 6.4 million and 6.8 million units, imports included. "Our surveys show that more than 7 million cars, or one-third of all those sold during the past year, were for hedging purposes. People bought in advance to beat rising prices."

As a result, he says, new car sales will be hurt well into 1976.

The thrift industry offers a contrast: already it is moving up out of the depression into which it was pitched by high interest rates. Like the tide, money is flowing back into its savings accounts.

So long as interest rates continue to fall, savings and loans and mutual savings banks should do well. But, if interest rates rise again, it would be bad news, because thrifts are limited in the rate of interest they can pay.

If the thrifts continue to recover from their depression — and the consensus of opinion seems to favor a continuation of the trend — it will mean good news for the housing industry, which went into a nose-dive this year.

Housing executives and government housing officials aren't convinced that lower interest rates will turn the depression into a recovery. But that has almost always been the turn of events in years past.

Some stock market analysts, in fact, are suggesting that some housing stocks and related building products stocks might be worth considering for investing.

Overall, however, the stock market's prospects appear not to be very promising, so long as profits are squeezed and industries related to autos fight to maintain their lives.

Wise investors never forget, however, that the market isn't so much a reflection of current events as future events. And they have observed also that the turn comes somewhere in the darkness when the news is grimest.

"WOMEN LIBBERS" NO. 3

For the last two Wednesdays I have dealt with the unholy movement of the WOMEN LIBBERS to get enough states to pass the EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT, in order for the Amendment to become part of the Federal Constitution. Their cry is for legalized unisex! Now they have been crying lately that what I have had to say is not the truth... but they have not, and I predict they will not, challenge me personally to meet them before the public in debate on the issue.

I want to charge in the remaining space that such a movement if made law will absolutely defy the plain truth as set forth in the Word of God about the rank and role of women in life. Open your Bible to 1 Corinthians 11:3 and read it! "But I would have you to understand that Christ is the head of every man, AND THE MAN IS THE HEAD OF THE WOMAN, and God is the head of Christ." How on earth could you believe that citation and support this ungodly unisex movement???

The context of 1 Timothy 2:9-15 clearly shows what her attitude toward the man is to be. Now, if you will note with care the language in verses 11 and 12 and accept them you will reject this unscriptural and immoral Amendment (ERA). "Let a woman quietly receive instruction with entire SUBMISSIVENESS. But I do not allow a woman to teach or exercise AUTHORITY over a man, but to remain quite." Now the question is—Why? Because Adam was first created and Eve was deceived! (Verse 13, 14)

Turn now and read Ephesians 5:22-33. In so doing you will read in language plain enough to understand that the HUSBAND is the HEAD of the WIFE. That the WIFE is to be in SUBJECTION to her HUSBAND. But not the WOMEN LIBBERS, reader friend! They claim their so-called "equal rights" and reject the headship of the husband. Oh they say, "If a woman likes that arrangement alright, but she must not be forced into that role if she does not want it." That is defiance of the Word of God!

Ladies of America, contact your state legislators today and oppose this Amendment. Your womanhood is at stake!

Mao, 81 Today, Is Still Dominant Figure In China

TOKYO (AP) — Chairman Mao Tse-tung is 81 today and still the dominant figure in Communist China despite his advanced age.

As usual, neither Peking Radio nor the controlled press made any mention of the anniversary. Since the Chinese Communists regard birthdays as private affairs, there were no official celebrations.

The secrecy surrounding the operation of the governing apparatus in China makes it impossible to evaluate accurately Mao's role in the Chinese political arena.

But his name and his writings continue to be invoked at every level of life. The philosophies or policies of other Chinese leaders are virtually ignored, and their speeches generally reflect Maoist positions, attitudes and phraseology.

Mao's impact on the 23-million-member party and on the state is communicated through his immense prestige. He is believed to lay down the broad outlines of policy which subordinates carry out.

Though he has met a succession of foreign visitors in 1974, his exact whereabouts have been kept a mystery. Recent visitors have been flown to a spot outside Peking and asked not to disclose its location. It is not known whether he has quit the capital for a warmer climate or is planning some new political move.

Few men in public life today have maintained a grip on party and state power for so long a period. Since 1935 he has in effect headed the Chinese Communist party. And he has been the No. One man in China since he proclaimed the Communist republic in 1949, though his influence waned for a time in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Despite his pre-eminence, his position is not as secure as he would wish it. He has been involved in a struggle for control of the 23-million-man People's Liberation Army since the end of the 1966-69 Great Cultural Revolution.

As a consequence of that massive purge, Defense Minister Lin Biao emerged five years ago as his chief challenger, vying with him for command of the army as well as direction of the state. Thwarted, Lin is said to have plotted to assassinate Mao. He was reported killed in a plane crash in September, 1971, as he fled from the country.

Lin's disappearance left pools of discontent in the armed forces that persist. A nationwide campaign against the dead Lin and the ancient philosopher Confucius, aims at eradicating the influence of both from modern China. The legacy of each man, though dead, is a rival to the thoughts of Mao.

The question of Mao's succession is unresolved. Lin Biao was his designated heir, and with him gone, Premier Chou En-lai is the logical successor. But he is 76 and has spent much of this year in a hospital because of heart disease.

Other possibilities are Mao's wife, Chiang Ching; her protégé Wang Hung-wen, 38, and Chang Chun-chiao, the mayor of Shanghai.

Hey Bulldogs! Did ya'll get your stockings filled with your wishes Christmas Day? We did!

A reminder: Be sure and take all Christmas decorations down by the 1st or bad luck will fall on your household. Eat 75 black-eyed peas for the New Year and after that you should be cleared of evil spirits.

Putting those balls in the baskets were our Bulldogs quietest. Tuesday night the Pack dribbled to a 59-43 victory over Lubbock Monterey. The Thriller of the week occurred Friday night as the Bulldogs took revenge over Hobbs by a two-point margin, 64-62. Playing in the Hobbs Holidays Tournament today, Midland met El Paso Jefferson in a 1:30 p.m. battle.

for Dallas is Danny Norwood with Amarillo-bound George Mothershead and Vicki McLeod traveling to Pontotoc. Our farthest bound Bulldog is Becky Hyer who is going to Europe, with Leslie Morgan running second as she cruises around the Caribbean. Other people venturing to far away places are Beth Johnston to California and a bunch of Spanish students to Mexico with Mr. and Mrs. Horchler. The lucky ones are Holly Hartwell, Francie Parker, Susan Mendenhall, Billy Hickey, Clay Pollard, Leaf Fallier, Darnain Reed, Johnny Mayberry, and Michael Leede. These are just a few travelers that got to get out of town, as we are sure the rest of you had a good time, too.

Youth Center hours for the holidays are the same, as on school days, but it will not be open Dec. 23, 24, 25, 26, and New Year's Eve and day.

Have you noticed the unusually strong winds blowing around MHS lately? No, it's not another sandstorm. It's Happy Bulldogs blowing out their birthday candles. Eating cake are Susan Mendenhall (a belated birthday), Tim Blomkvist, Dec. 28, Katie VanHorn and Chris Gholston, Jan. 2.

The Junior Class wishes to thank everyone for participating in Sucker Day and especially the enthusiastic sellers. After we get back to school the Junior Class will begin selling T-shirts again this year.

Paper Mill That Was To Close Three Years Ago Gives Bonuses To Employees

NIAGARA, Wis. (AP) — Three years after the paper mill that employs 650 residents of this northern Wisconsin community was to be closed, its employees split a pre-Christmas fund, $500,000 in profit-sharing funds.

The bonuses represent about three weeks' pay for workers at the Niagara of Wisconsin Paper Corp. mill and mark a climb upward for the community and the employees.

Kimberly-Clark Corp., which had owned the mill since 1966, announced three years ago that it was seeking to sell the operation "to improve the company's future profitability."

The news hit hard in this community of 2,300 on the Menominee River and in nearby Upper Michigan, where most of the firm's employees live. The mill was the area's major industry.

Kimberly-Clark said it wanted out because the publication-grade paper market was down and it had pollution-control problems with the state. The company said if it couldn't sell, it planned to shut down the plant.

Pentair Industries of Minneapolis purchased the property after Local 208 of the Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, which represents 550 production workers, agreed to a new three-year contract that excluded pay increases.

One provision of the agreement called for the creation of a profit-sharing this year. And just in time for Christmas 1974, the mill workers took home their rewards.

"We've seen a lot of people rally around a mutual goal which has resulted in increased production and quality," said William Beerman, executive vice president and general manager of Niagara of Wisconsin. "Everybody knows if they produce they will share the profits."

Martin Ponzio, president of the union, said the experiment "shows you can still believe in people and that there is still honesty in business."

"I had my doubts when we signed our contract with Pentair. But just about everything they told us then has happened."

There was also some outside help.

The state agreed to delay pollution abatement orders two years and seek a corporate tax break, which was passed by the 1973 legislature. Pentair installed a $1.6 million pollution abatement facility this year.

The market for the mill's coated papers, used for magazines and catalogs, also improved, pushing Pentair's net income from $378,000 in 1971 to $1.3 million for 1973. The firm estimates that 85 per cent of its profits were created by the paper mill.

Although the contract which expires next April did not call for any pay increases, Pentair volunteered two 23-cent-an-hour raises, one in September 1973 and another last May, Ponzio said.

He said the average production wage is now about $4.50 per hour.

The firm also voluntarily began contributing $55 per month per employee to a union pension plan, he said.

Dad's Interview, After Robbing Bank, Nets His Family Yule Presents, Food

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — There were presents and food aplenty at the Leonard Harris home Christmas Day. But the head of the house was missing. He was in jail on a bank robbery charge.

"Man, I had to do it," Harris told a television newsmen in an interview broadcast Tuesday shortly after the robbery. "Tomorrow's Christmas, my babies don't have anything. There's no food in the icebox."

The interview prompted a sudden spate of donations — food, gifts and $200 in cash. By midnight Christmas Eve, the family was swamped, said Harris' wife, Patricia.

"I was really shocked ... especially as hard a time as people are having with jobs and prices," she said. "My refrigerator and cabinets are loaded. The kids had a wonderful Christmas. The only thing that was missing was their father..."

Japan Oil Spill Fouls Inland Sea

TOKYO (AP) — The government has ordered oil companies to inspect all their tanks following a crack in a refinery tank that spilled 18,000 barrels of crude oil into the scenic Inland Sea.

The leak from Mitsubishi Oil's Mizushima refinery in southwest Japan a week ago is estimated to have done more than $30 million damage to fisheries and beaches so far. It is still spreading despite a fight by 21 patrol boats and more than 30 fishing boats trying to check it.

Stowaways Spend Christmas Aboard U.S. Freighter

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Immigration authorities are trying to decide whether to grant political asylum to two mainland Chinese stowaways who spent Christmas Day on an American freighter docked here.

According to the Chinese Information Service, an official Taiwan agency, Liang Kuochiang and Wu Chao were "freedom seekers from Communist China."

The two were aboard the SS Thomas Cadee, which sailed from Hong Kong Dec. 5. The ship is due to leave Los Angeles harbor Friday and immigration officials say they'll have a decision on the men's fate by then.

The pair reportedly fled the Canton area of China and slipped aboard the American ship in Hong Kong.

Anti-Park Newspaper Feels Pinch

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The New Democratic party accused President Chung Hee Park's government today of trying to starve South Korea's biggest and oldest newspaper, the independent Dong-A Ilbo, by pressuring advertisers to quit the paper.

A spokesman for the chief opposition party said the paper is in serious financial trouble because about 20 major advertisers stopped buying space in it on Tuesday "without any reasons." More than half the ad space in today's edition was blank.

Government Pressure Alleged
The New Democratic spokesman said leaders of his party agreed that the advertisers apparently acted under government pressure. He said the party leaders formed a committee of five national assemblymen to investigate and requested a meeting of the National Assembly's cultural and information committee.

There was no immediate reaction from the government or from Park's Democratic Republican party.

Officials of Dong-A Ilbo said the advertisers informed them the business slump forced steps to curtail advertising. However, the advertisers were continuing to buy space in other papers, the officials said.

Freedom House Award
In its 54-year history, the paper has always been critical of the party in power. It recently received an award for press freedom from Freedom House in New York.

The management of the paper said circulation increased from 600,000 to 700,000 after its reporters declared Oct. 24 that they rejected government censorship and began reporting demonstrations and other anti-government activities by students, church groups, intellectuals and civic leaders demanding democratic reforms.

Police arrested 17 anti-government demonstrators near the capitol today. They carried placards demanding that the government annul the recent deportation of American Methodist missionary George Ogle and release political prisoners. Ogle was expelled from the country Dec. 14 on charges of agitating against the government.

Gulf Ports Expect Curb On Seatrain

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — A company which offers land-sea service to shippers of cargo to Europe and the United Kingdom will be enjoined from diverting such cargo away from Gulf Coast ports, an official of the port of Beaumont says.

Doyle Owens, traffic director for the port, said he received a copy of a letter from U.S. District Court Judge Joe Fisher saying he will issue a temporary restraining order to keep Seatrain International from engaging in the diversion practices.

Restraint Delayed
Owens said he received a copy of a letter from Fisher to David Hughes, assistant Texas attorney general, informing Hughes of the judge's decision.

However, Fisher said Wednesday he does not expect to issue the restraining order before Jan. 6 although he has already written an opinion in the case.

An injunction suit against Seatrain was filed by the State of Texas, Lykes Brothers Steamship Lines and the Gulf Coast district of the International Association of Longshoremen.

Unfair Division Charged
Seatrain was accused in the suit of unfairly diverting cargo from ports of Houston, Beaumont and others for shipment from other ports.

According to Owens, the letter said Fisher's order will instruct Seatrain to put a temporary halt to the practices which led to the suit, and gives the company until Jan. 6 to enter a recommended order in the case.

The port of Beaumont was not a direct party to the suit, but officials of the port entered testimony that Seatrain was causing economic loss to the port by the diversion of cargo.

Conservationists Claim Victory In Stopping Bridge

By ROLAND PRINZ
VIENNA (AP) — Conservationists claim to have won a prestigious victory by barring construction of a colossal highway bridge that would have dwarfed an ancient monastery, an architectural jewel hidden in the Vienna Woods.

The project — it caused an uproar among nature lovers, architects and leading artists and professors — was scheduled to emerge a stone's throw away from the country's oldest Cistercian Monastery of Heiligenkreuz (Saint's Cross).

Heiligenkreuz was founded in 1135 A.D. by Leopold III, the Holy, a margrave of the Babenbergs, Austria's first ruling dynasty.

Containing elements of Romanesque architecture in the nave of the collegiate church and examples of other style periods, such as the early Baroque main building, the monastery was well known to Catholic pilgrims and holidaymakers touring the environs of Vienna.

When newspapers reported in December, 1973, that a large Autobahn bridge was to be built about 400 yards south of the church steeple, reaction was harsh and immediate.

Planners and architects in an institute for location and land use sent an urgent letter to Lower Austria's governor Andreas Maurer.

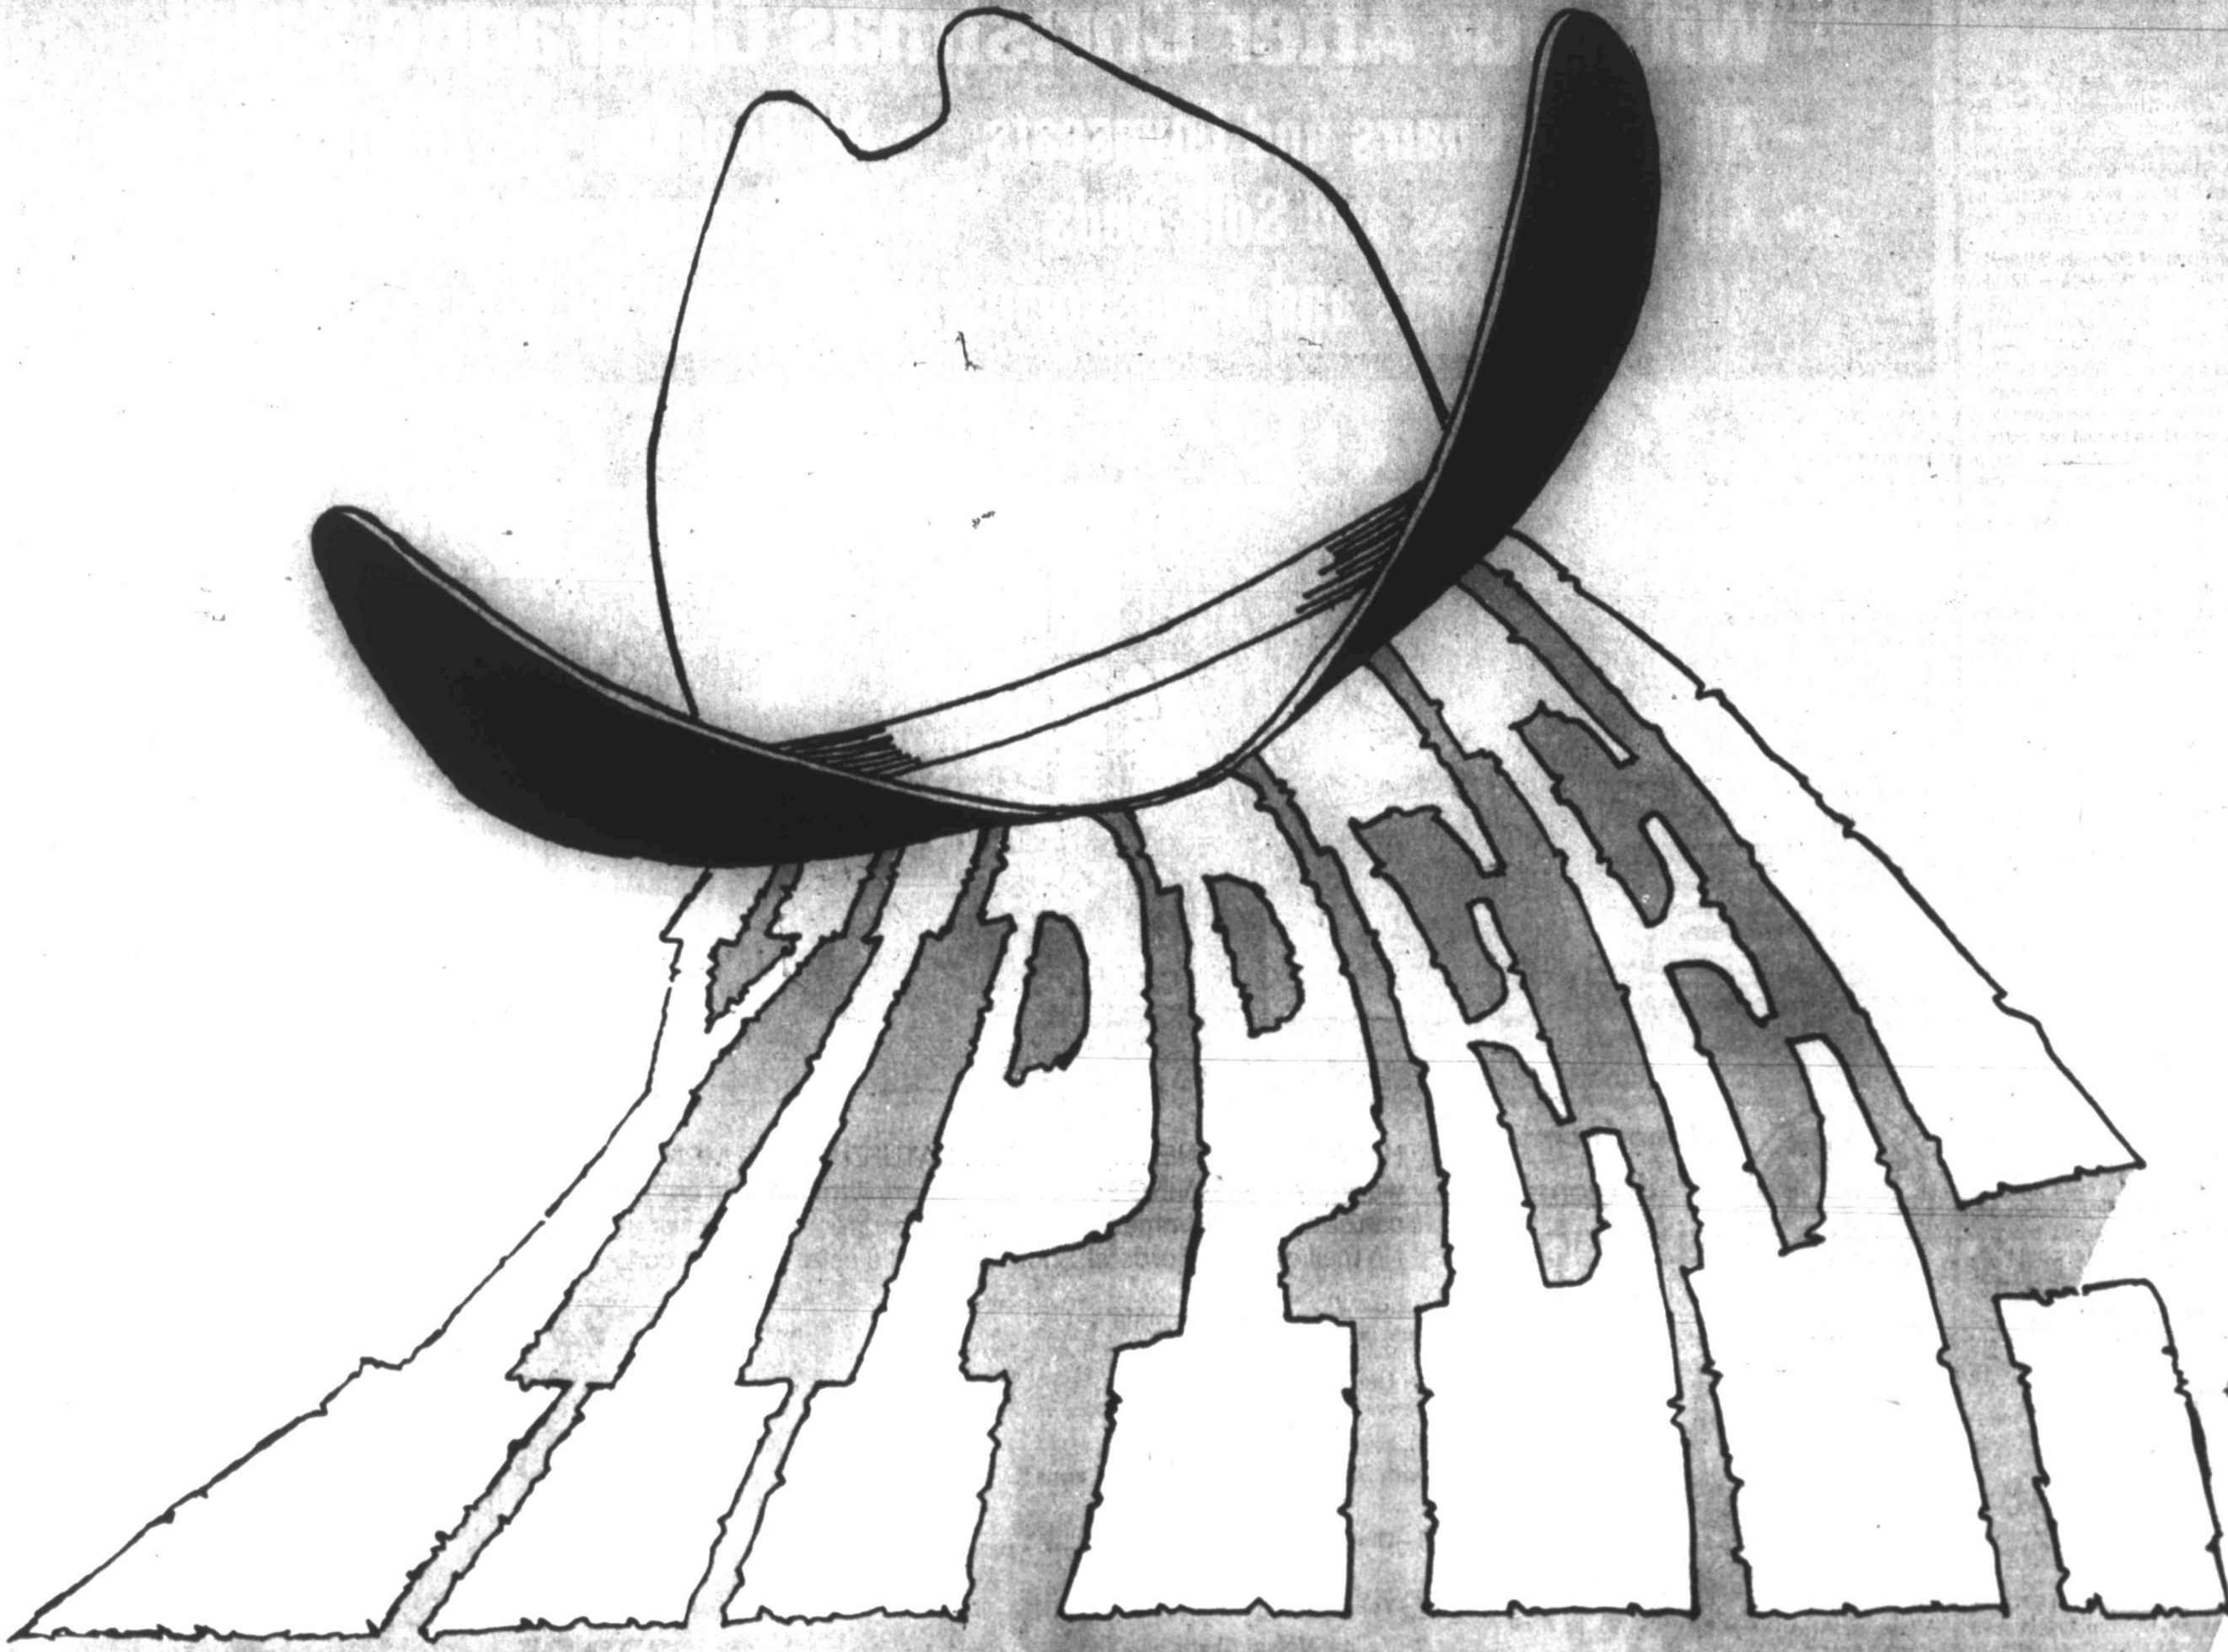

"Mr. Governor, please do all in your power to avoid such barbarism," the team said.

Leading officials of the Federal Bureau of Monuments and the so-called art senate, a loose group of artists and architects, joined in the protest.

And director Friedrich

Hoedlmoser, economic superintendent of the monastery, said he conducted endless negotiations with the planning team to defend the historic place.

"We told them that a monument of such magnitude could not be measured in monetary terms after we learned that the bridge construction near our cloister walls would save a lot of money," Hoedlmoser told The Associated Press.

Fans To Pay For Catfish

One thing and another, and, quick now, can you name the coach who preceded Ara Parseghian at Notre Dame? ... Did you know that 10 Penn Staters were drafted by the pros last year and, what's more, nine of them stuck? ... If the Texas Rangers land Jim (Catfish) Hunter for the offered $1.5 million, Ranger fans will pick up the tab with an increase in the price of the ticket going up from $4.50 to $5 for boxes and $2 to $2.25 in the bleachers. That means Catfish had better produce, Baby, or the fans could get victims. ...

Did you ever expect to see the day when college recruiting violations were so bad that polygraph tests were introduced for coaches and players? Most surprising of all is that the coaches seem to agree that "It's the only way." ...

Billie Jean King doesn't think it's fair that college athletes on scholarships can't receive money. Ellis Rainsberger, offensive coordinator at Wisconsin, finally wound up with the Kansas State head coaching job. Former Midlander Don Boyce, an assistant at Oklahoma State, was given serious consideration for the vacancy. ...

Nebraska basketball Coach Joe Cipriano took time out Christmas Day before leaving for the Big Eight Tournament in Kansas City to call and inform that Ron Taylor, 6-9 former Midland High cager, made the all-tournament team in the recent Hoosier Classic. ...

It was a bit unusual since the other four first team choices were from the No. 2 ranked Indiana University quint. Ron hit 12 of 14 shots from the field in the title game loss to the Hoosiers. ...

Cipriano said Taylor continued his outstanding work a couple of nights later when he hit eight of 10 in the Cornhuskers win over Vanderbilt. ...

"If he keeps improving, Ron can be a big help and make a big difference in our season." ...

With a nationally ranked Kansas around, Cipriano doesn't see a Big Eight title in the Huskers future, but is hopeful of finishing in the top three or four. ...

The Beauty Of Covering NTS

North Texas State might have lacked winning class on the football field last fall, but none of the writers covering the Eagles were complaining about their job. Pressbox hostesses for Fred Graham were Shirley Cochran, the current Miss America, and Becky Bloomer, the Miss Texas runner-up. ...

We would have enjoyed playing Texas again, but the fact that it's Baylor's first time in the Cotton Bowl makes it a little more exciting." ...

Texas aren't flocking to Louisiana Downs (Bossier City, La.) in the numbers expected when the track flung open its gates a couple of months ago and track operators sat back to watch long lines develop at the pari-mutuel windows. UT-El Paso's Coach Don Haskins loves Gary Brewer, his 6-4 find from Midland, for his ability to play defense. A couple of weeks ago he held New Mexico State center Ken Bostick to six points and also pumped in eight of 10 from the field. However, it was his four-for-four from the free throw line in the final 35 seconds that nailed it down for the Miners, 48-41, with Brewer scoring 20. ...

But you guessed Joe Kuharich or even Terry Brennan was the immediate predecessor of Parseghian at Notre Dame. It was Hugh Devore who took it over for one year after Kuharich. ...

DAVIS EARNS TOHL TROPHY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new award, inspired by Southern Cal's invincible 1954 comeback triumph over Notre Dame, was presented Monday night to Trojan tailback Anthony Davis.

Actor Pat O'Brien, who portrayed the life of Notre Dame Coach Knute Rockne in a movie, gave the first Bernard Tohl Trophy at a dinner. Tohl is a Southern Cal alumnus.

The six-foot-tall trophy will be awarded annually to the California athlete who best exemplified turning defeat into victory.

Davis returned the second half kickoff for a touchdown and scored three other touchdowns after Notre Dame had jumped off to a 24-0 lead in the Nov. 26 game.

Raiders Pick By 6 Over Steelers

The Oakland Reporter-Telegram

SPORTS

1B—THURSDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1974

By The Associated Press
Three quarterbacks who have been under the gun before, plus one newcomer to National Football League playoff pressure, will be aiming Sunday for berths in pro football's biggest shootout, the Super Bowl.

The American Conference battle in Oakland pits the Raiders' outstanding passer, Ken Stabler, against the Pittsburgh Steelers' young Terry Bradshaw, a rugged signal-caller coming off what his coach, Chuck Knox, called the best game of his pro career last week.

Meanwhile, in Bloomington, Minn., the National Conference title game pits the Los Angeles Rams, guided by playoff newcomer James Harris, against the rugged Minnesota Vikings, with 14-year veteran Fran Tarkenton at the helm.

Oakland is rated a six-point favorite over Pittsburgh, and one of the big reasons in its passing attack, triggered by the left-handed Stabler. The wily veteran, who celebrated his 29th birthday Christmas Day, was among the top passers in the league during the regular season and was most impressive in driving his team to a 26-26 victory over the Miami Dolphins in the playoff opener last week.

Stabler's wide receivers complement each other perfectly. Cliff Branch, the deep threat with the game-breaking speed, and Fred Biletnikoff, with the superb hands, the precise moves and the experience to find the seams in any zone defense.

But Bradshaw was just as impressive in Pittsburgh's playoff opener, when he destroyed the Buffalo defense with precise passing and timely runs.

"Baby, they've arrived," Mean Joe Greene, the leader of the Steeler defensive unit, said of his team's offense. "It was the day Terry Bradshaw proved to everybody that he had finally become our offensive leader."

Los Angeles, a three-point underdog to Minnesota in the NFC championship, is counting on big James Harris to rise to the occasion. A strong runner who has passed well when he has had to, Harris was handed the starting job in midseason when the Rams dealt John Hadl to Green Bay.

But he is still relatively untested by playoff pressure; although he led the Rams past Washington 19-10 last week, his task was considerably eased by six Rashkin turnovers.

The Vikings' Tarkenton is the most experienced of the remaining quarterbacks, a 14-year veteran who can break a game open with his passing or his running. And he'll be going against a secondary which some observers have called the Rams' weakness.

Dick Allen Obtains Trainers' License

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dick Allen, who made his fame as a baseball slugger, has branched into a new field and become a licensed trainer of thoroughbred horses.

The American League home run champion, recently traded by the Chicago White Sox to the National League's Atlanta Braves, passed his trainer's examination Tuesday at Keystone Race Track.

A friend said Allen has seven race horses on his farm.

"He's doing all the work, clearing out stalls and everything," the friend said.

Donald H. Shanklin, steward at Keystone, reported that Allen passed the standard written test for trainers.

"He was very adequately prepared," Shanklin said. "He really seems dedicated and has put quite a bit of money into racing. I think he'll be a fine addition to the sport."

Allen owns all the horses he'll be training. In addition to the seven on the farm, he has four quartered at Keystone.

The 32-year-old Allen, who reportedly said he was retiring from baseball when he left the White Sox in mid-September, has declined to sign with the Braves. He never, however, officially submitted his written retirement from the game. "Everybody said I'm retired except me," Allen proclaimed last month. "I'm only retired if they don't want me back. I'm going to play somewhere next year, even if it's Jenkintown (a Philadelphia suburb)."

He has even hinted at playing in Japan.

Golf Hall May Change Status

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — The World Golf Hall of Fame would become a foundation, and be made independent of the Diamondhead Corp., owner of the golfing resort of Pinehurst, if plans are realized.

Donald C. Collett, president of the hall, also has announced that he has discussed with Deane Berman, PGA commissioner, the second World Open Tournament which will be played at Pinehurst next Sept. 11-14. "We are seeking a format that will support both the Hall of Fame and a major tournament on a continuing basis," Collett said.

He added that he would like to see continuation of the idea of inducting new members of the hall during the time of the World Open.

HIGH-SCORING GAME PREDICTED—

Bulldogs Leave For Sun

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP)—It'll be a good ball game to see." The Mississippi State Bulldogs planned to leave today for El Paso, Tex., and the Sun Bowl, the team's first post-season game in 11 years.

State, whose explosive veer offense helped carry it to an 8-3 regular season record, will compete Saturday against North Carolina, a high-scoring team with a 7-4 record.

"A lot of people have suggested the possibility of a high-scoring game, and I think one or two say it might be low-scoring," said Bulldogs Coach Bob Tyler.

"No matter which, I think

Holiday Classics Crowd Schedule

By The Associated Press
 Louisville, Southern California, South Carolina and Providence, four of the nation's top-rated teams, lend their rank to the traditional army of holiday basketball tournaments which begin tonight.

Louisville's fourth-ranked Cardinals host the Holiday Classic at Louisville, Ky.; Southern California, ranked No. 6 in the country, is entered in the Holiday Festival in New York and No. 11 South Carolina will be competing in the Ocean State Holiday Tournament at Providence, R. I., along with the 12th-rated Friars.

Along with those major tournaments, the sparkling holiday fare also includes the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii; the All-College Tournament at Oklahoma City; the Far West Classic in Portland, Ore.; the Big Eight at Kansas City; the Poinsetta Classic at Greenville, N.C., and the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla. among several lesser lights.

Louisville meets Western Kentucky in a first-round game of the Louisville tournament while Purdue plays Florida State.

Southern California has drawn a bye and will play Saturday night at Madison Square Garden against the winner of tonight's Rutgers-Seton Hall game which opens the Holiday Festival. The night's second game is an all-New York City match between Manhattan, the defending champion, and Fordham. Rutgers is ranked No. 20 in the country.

South Carolina opens against Assumption while Providence takes on Holy Cross.

Knicks Trade With Pistons

NEW YORK — The New York Knicks traded forward Howard Porter to Detroit for the Pistons' No. 1 choice in the National Basketball Association's 1975 college player draft.

In the Rainbow Classic tonight, it'll be Tulsa against Villanova and Hawaii vs. San Jose State.

The All-College Tournament matches Centenary with the University of Pacific and Oklahoma City against Xavier, Ohio.

A doubleheader involving Boston College and Arizona State and Oregon against Creighton triggers the Far West Classic. Oregon, ranked No. 19, is also entered in the tourney.

In the first round of the Big Eight, it's Nebraska against Oklahoma and Kansas vs. Oklahoma State.

Jacksonville faces Penn State and Memphis State, the country's No. 16 team, plays Temple in the first night of the Gator Bowl tournament.

TRADE WORTH LONESOMENESS—

Some Christmas Present

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Andy Maurer of the Minnesota Vikings spent a lonely Christmas Wednesday, but he's not complaining too loudly.

"It was pretty depressing alone in the apartment without my family," said Maurer, the Vikings' 250-pound left guard. "But being in the playoffs is something new and I know they'll understand."

Maurer was acquired from New Orleans for a future draft choice. He immediately moved into the starting lineup and Ed White was moved to guard on the right side of Minnesota's offensive line.

"Andy has made a great difference in our team," said Vikings Coach Bud Grant. "He's a very good athlete and has good speed and quickness for a guard. He has certainly contributed to our success."

Maurer expected he'd be home for Christmas two months ago.

"The playoffs were the furthest thing from my mind in September," said Maurer. "In fact, I could hardly wait for the season to end."

Maurer, who has the blondish features of Viking ancestry, couldn't believe it when he heard he'd been traded to the Vikings from New Orleans.

"What a bunch of guys here," he said. "This is one of the closest organizations I've ever been involved with. These guys went out of their way from the first day I was here to make me feel welcome."

However, Maurer knew he had to prove that he had the ability to play on a championship team after earlier stints with the Saints and Atlanta.

Maurer's size and mobility were a welcome asset to Minnesota's offensive line, which has been revamped nearly totally since the Vikings' 1970-1971 season.

"It's a tremendous pleasure playing next to guys with the talent of Charlie Goodrum and Mick Tinglehoff," said Maurer.

"Of course, we're not too bad on the right side of the line with Ed White and Ron Yary side-by-side."

Durability was perhaps the quality which convinced Grant that Maurer could help Minnesota.

"He's always played," said Grant. "The ability to play with nicks and scrapes is what has made Mick Tinglehoff a great offensive lineman and Andy's got that same quality."

Oh yes, about his Christmas. Andy Maurer found a new game under his tree. It was a football game, a game he said is fun again.

No 'Welcome' Sign Out For Lynn Swann's Return

OAKLAND (AP) — Lynn Swann, a native of the San Francisco Bay area, returns home this weekend — but he can expect few cheers.

Swann, who grew up in nearby Foster City and later became a Southern California football great, has blossomed as a wide receiver for the Pittsburgh Steelers in the past five games.

He likely will start for the Steelers when they clash with the Oakland Raiders here Sunday in the National Football League's playoff game for a spot in the Super Bowl.

Swann is particularly pleased with his performance last Sunday in the Steelers' victory over the Buffalo Bills, in which he caught three passes for a 60-yard total.

"It had to be my best performance in my short pro career," said the rookie. "Even though I didn't score, it was great to realize I had contributed important plays in one of the most important games."

Recalling the Raiders' regular season 17-0 victory over the Steelers, Swann said he hoped his folks "won't be disappointed this time. I played most of the game but we never did get going. Now I'm sure it will be different."

Swann has 11 receptions to his credit this season for 208 yards, his longest a 41-yarder for a touchdown. He also has returned 41 punts for 577 yards and a 14.1 yard average, the longest return being a 69-yard scoring spree.

The only Raider on the doubtful list for the American Conference championship tilt is cornerback Willie Brown, still bothered by leg problems.

Weather No Sweat For Minnesota, Los Angeles

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Coach Bud Grant and his Minnesota Vikings aren't worried about the weather, Los Angeles Rams Coach Chuck Knox says he's not worried about it, but the National Football League is.

The Vikings flew to Tulsa, Okla., Wednesday night for two days of practice on a better field. "Field conditions aren't the best here," Grant said.

Grant had hoped to keep the Minnesota club in Tulsa until Saturday, but NFL officials directed that the Vikings come back Friday night, in case the weather turns bad and forces the airport to close.

It seems the NFL has little confidence in Minnesota weather and in weather forecasters, who predict good temperatures—mid 20s—and partly cloudy skies through Sunday.

The Rams can take heart from the National Weather Service, which said Wednesday there is no chance of below-zero temperatures Sunday for the National Football Conference championship.

"The weather isn't really why we leave," said Grant. "But we must be concerned with field conditions and at this time of year there aren't many

WOOD WANTS ROSE BOWL REVENGE—

Purely Personal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Wood feels he has personal scores to settle against the Ohio State Buckeyes in the 61st Rose Bowl football game New Year's Day.

To be specific, he has carried 42 grudges for a year.

"Oh, yeah, they got 42 points, and I didn't expect that," Southern California's three-time All-American linebacker said of the revenge he seeks. "I'd never had 42 points scored on me in all my days of football."

"I took that personally," Wood said of the 42-21 loss to Ohio State last Jan. 1. "I'm thinking to myself that it has to be the other way around this time."

I couldn't hit anybody as hard as I wanted.

"This year I'm in perfect health. I know how good Ohio State is — a well-oiled football machine. I know how good their offensive line is. I know I'm going to be ready. This is my last game at USC, and I'm going to win my last game."

After the last Rose Bowl, Wood had a small amount of blood oozing from a cut on the bridge of his nose, a result of collisions with Pete Johnson, Ohio State's 236-pound fullback.

"I'd like to put a few cuts and scars on somebody, but if I do, it's because it just happened, just like it happened to me. You have to expect things like that in football. I'm not out to get revenge over a little machine. I know how good they are."

Wood said he and the Trojans feel the 42-21 score was cutting enough.

HOCKEY — The Washington Capitals of the National Hockey League obtained their second black hockey player, center Bill Riley of the International Hockey League Dayton Gems.

The Schedule Is Brutal

By NED WIRTH
Copley News Service
OAKLAND, Calif. — The suggestion that the life of a professional football coach is really a totally consuming effort brings an immediate response from John Madden, head coach of the Oakland Raiders.

"It's a h..."

He began elaborating on the subject.

"I wasn't saying the job was the schedule," said 6-foot-4, 260-pound Madden, his countenance rather cherubic.

"What it boils down to is that it's not a job. It's not a profession. It's too big for that. Years ago, I remember (Alabama coach) Bear Bryant telling players who wanted to coach, 'Don't go into it unless you can't live without it! You don't have any hours. You don't have a set schedule. It's a totally consuming effort.'

"You'd like to stay family, and of course, religion. Really, there's no time for family. It's a total commitment."

On Merry-Go-Round

Life is a merry-go-round for the 35-year-old Madden.

"You either get on and stay, or get off. There's no keeping one foot on and the other off. There is no day off between the Fourth of July and the first of February after the draft."

Madden said his wife, Virginia, was not a football fan until I got into this. She's become one.

"This has to be her way of life. This is a part of our life. There's not much else."

"A coach has to have a wife who can take care of herself, entertain herself. The only night I'm home during the season is Friday. I get home about 10 Thursday night and sometimes she's up."

Mrs. Madden, a literature major, has taught but is taking a leave of absence this year.

Madden's oldest son, 11-year-old Mike, has a definite interest in sports. Madden has not determined whether or not Joe, who is two years younger than Mike, will have similar interests.

During the off-season, Madden said, "I do take time off. The kids are in school and my wife has been teaching. I don't want to go anywhere by myself. There are enough things going on."

"There's a league meeting after the draft, then there's a head coaches' meeting. I have speaking engagements and clinics. These allow me to get away."

"The only break I take with my family is the last two weeks of June, just before spring training starts. We usually go somewhere for about a week."

Relaxation and hobbies are not a part of Madden's life. Madden does not allow for them.

"I used to go to a Friday night high school game. It was a helluva way to relax. It was good mental gymnastics."

Coach's Hobbies

"You can cross a situation, and the same as you're handling. The game creates a situation and you put yourself into the position to solve it. That's what I liked about the high school game. I didn't pay any attention to the personnel or plays."

"I quit going because people began to know I would be there. It got to be a real hassle. I was interrupted so much I couldn't concentrate."

Madden's responsibilities as he talked and the coaches during a game for which he is noted are deceiving.

"I can raise hell with an official," he said. "I can chew out a player."

His players appear to have a real rapport and generally a good relationship with Madden. Criticism of Coach Madden by the players is rarely heard, if at all. He will laugh with the players.

Gene Upshaw, the Raiders' running guard, once said, "John's always seemed just like one of us. I guess that's because of his youth."

As for the news media, Madden said, "I realize they have a job to do."

"If the guy criticizes me from the fact, I don't mind. What the hell, it's his opinion. When they criticize us and the facts are wrong, that burns me. And when they editorialize on untrue facts, that burns me. I don't listen to them. I may argue with them, or call them a dirty... but it doesn't affect my thinking."

"If you're not a calm person, I don't think you can calm yourself down. To me, your personality and emotions make up what you are. If you're an introvert, you're an introvert. If you're an extrovert, you're a... you react the way you're built."

Always Confident

When, at the age of 23, Madden was offered the head coaching job, he said, "I'd always had a lot of confidence in myself. As an assistant, I thought like a head coach."

"I wasn't second-guessing, just thinking about how I would handle things in different situations."

Born in Austin, Minn., and raised in Daly City, Madden started his coaching career at Hancock Junior College in Santa Maria in 1960, at the age of 23. After two years as an assistant, he became head coach and compiled a 13-5 record for two seasons. In 1963, his Hancock team won the league championship and was ranked ninth in the country with an 8-1 record.

Cal Poly Grad

Madden spent one year, 1959, with the Philadelphia Eagles, but a knee injury shortened his career.

He was graduated from California Polytechnic College, where he was an all-conference tackle and a catcher on the baseball team.

He earned a Bachelor of Science degree in education and a Master of Arts degree in education, with emphasis on physical education.

Madden began his professional coaching career with the Raiders in 1967, serving as linebacker coach for two years after a three-year stint as defensive coordinator on the San Diego (Calif.) State staff.

The red-haired Madden said, "The first two years of college I was in prelegal. But I realized after what little taste of law I got, it wasn't what I thought it was. So I just said to hell with it, I'm kidding myself. I'd been in sports all my life. I played all the sports and that's all I enjoyed."

Hasn't Changed

As a coach, Madden does not feel that he is a lot different than he was when he first started coaching the Raiders, seven seasons ago.

"There's growth, of course," he said. "As a person, I've become more withdrawn. I never go out. I just like being at home... I like working around home."

Madden said, "I handle the players with honesty. If you're going to be in the game a long time, be with a group of people a long time and expect to be at one place a long time, that's the only way to deal with it. If you're honest, they can't say you're a liar."

JUST LIKE PATERNO SAID— Buttle Enjoys Life At State

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — Joe Paterno keeps telling his Penn State football players that he wants them to enjoy all that college has to offer.

"We want our players to enjoy college," Paterno says. "We don't want them just tied to a football program. College should be a great time. It is the only time a person is really free."

One of the freest of the free spirits on the Penn State football team is junior linebacker Greg Buttle, who takes up various activities the same way he plays football: all systems go.

Buttle, a 6-4, 214-pound Larwood, N.J., native, lives in a fraternity (Paterno doesn't believe in athletic dormitories), sings bass in a barbershop quartet, competes in rowing competitions, lists scuba diving and water skiing as favorite hobbies and generally enjoys life.

He also finds time to maintain a solid academic average as a law enforcement and corrections major in the College of Human Development.

During his spare time, he leads Penn State in tackles, interceptions, opponent fumble recoveries and calls the defensive signals.

His season totals are 165 tackles, including 86 solo; three interceptions; and four opponent fumble recoveries.

"Greg is a very enthusiastic, emotional player," Paterno says. "He has played well and has been one of the leaders of our defense this year."

His top games statistically were against West Virginia (24 tackles), North Carolina State (23) and Army (19).

"I knew when I came here to be recruited that this was a great place," Buttle says. "They told me football wasn't the most important thing here and I would have time to do other things. That's just the way it has worked out."

McNeill, Bears Showed 'Em

WACO — Baylor fullback Pat McNeill started sports writers back in September when the Southwest Conference press tour stopped off in Waco for a visit with the Bears. The outspoken 5-10, 210-pound junior letterman told the group that they were "less competent" about Baylor and that the Bears were "going all the way." He also pointed out that while he was probably the most unpublicized fullback in the conference, he had some talent, running with the ball.

Well, now comes December and everything comes into focus: The Bears, indeed, did go all the way to the Cotton Bowl and McNeill had a great year both carrying the ball and blocking for his more heralded teammates. And, he still wound up with less recognition than did the likes of Earl Campbell and Roosevelt Leaks of Texas, Bucky Sams of the Texas Aggies and David Bostick of SMU.

McNeill says that he is his own source of inspiration as a player "because of my own self motivation to make good." However, he is quick to credit new backfield coach Del Shesly with the revitalized Baylor offense.

"All the writers could talk about last year was that we had some kind of fumbling problem. Coach Shesly came in and started doing something about it... but he didn't dwell on it. He mentioned it just one time... he told us we were rushing backs and that we didn't leave the ball on the ground. He comes at you with a mature viewpoint and he respects us as individuals."

And, for the record the Bruins did cut down on fumbling... from a record 50 in 1973 to a respectable 31 in their 11 games this year against nationally-ranked opposition.

Leonard at 7-1.

Lafayette has a 4-1 season record and depends on guard Todd Tripeks, who is averaging 20 points a game.

Baylor, under second-year Coach Carroll Dawson, is off to a slow start, losing four of its first five games. The spark of the Baylor attack is 6-8 Tom Hutchinson with a 15.3 points per game average.

The losers will meet in a consolation game Friday night with the title game to follow.

Baylor Plays Lafayette In Poinsetta Opener

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—Host Furman is favored to take the title in the 16th Poinsetta Classic basketball tournament opening tonight at Greenville Memorial Auditorium.

The 7 p.m. game matches Lafayette vs. Baylor, followed at 9 p.m. by Furman vs. George Washington.

The Paladins took their lumps early in the season, but apparently have settled down and are looking like the team that went to the NCAA Eastern Regionals last year.

George Washington has five returning veterans, including Clyde Burnwell at 6 feet-11 and Kevin Hall at 7 feet-1.

It will be facing Furman's Clyde Mayes at 6-6 and Fessor

Greene at 7-1.

Lafayette has a 4-1 season record and depends on guard Todd Tripeks, who is averaging 20 points a game.

Baylor, under second-year Coach Carroll Dawson, is off to a slow start, losing four of its first five games. The spark of the Baylor attack is 6-8 Tom Hutchinson with a 15.3 points per game average.

The losers will meet in a consolation game Friday night with the title game to follow.

Wild Pigeons Plague Superdome

Birds Trapped Inside When Roof Went On

By NEIL MORGAN
Copley News Service

NEW ORLEANS — The Superdome is a year or so behind schedule and $100 million or more over budget, but that's not the problem of the moment here. It's pigeons.

You gase up into the wild gray yonder, on past where workmen are boiling those 72,000 seats, on above the multi-sided tv instant-replay screen which will make it almost as good as watching from home, and you see flights of pigeons swooping off in the distance.

Fine, you say, and turn back with your next question to Moon Mullins, the beleaguered man in charge of this monstrous hall. Then you stop in mid-sentence. Pigeons? PIGEONS? Mullins nods sickly.

Trapped Is Dime
"They've been in here since we closed in the dome," he says. "No telling how many. They live off the workmen's lunches. You know how long it takes to breed a pigeon?"

seventeen days. We're losing ground."

Naturally in New Orleans, a most civilized city, there are taxpayers who fight for the lives of these pigeons. Poison will not do. Hot wires don't get them to rush for the exits. Trapping might be mortal.

So Mullins mulls his predicament. Maybe it is not the worst thing that could happen to him, because in New Orleans people seem angrier about the pigeon problem than about the fact that the Superdome will not be ready for the Super Bowl, that its cost has orbited, and that there is no likely chance on earth of ever making it pay.

It is the largest unobstructed hall ever built, with nine acres under the dome and a ground level enclosing 13 acres, a gargantuan, bulging phenomenon about 25 stories in height. It had to be bigger than Houston's Astrodome to make it worth starting, and it is. But there are some in New Orleans who wonder if it's worth finishing.

Another man named Mayor Moon Landrieu, does not brook such disheartening cynicism. To him the Superdome is the symbol of New Orleans' downtown revitalization, a wonder of the world that will rebuild tourism and restore this handsome old city's self-respect.

It will take a lot of help from the tourist, for the hotel-motel tax is the prime subsidy for the Superdome, and not even Mayor Landrieu suggests the thing could make money before 1985—44 room tax revenues soar as projected.

The Superdome has inspired enthusiastic downtown development, he says doggedly. "It has replaced 80 acres of blighted warehouse district. Only one family was displaced by the Superdome. Big new hotels are being built in the area. We are thinking of a cultural center in terms of Copenhagen's Tivoli."

city. It will house offices and a convention center with 44 meeting rooms. There will be a medical clinic and drive-in bank. Its private boxes are supposed to gross $3 million yearly, and its huge indoor advertising signs could be worth a lot—if the Superdome stays busy.

The building contract for the Superdome was let in 1970, when the figure of $35 million was still fresh in the minds of lots of New Orleans voters. But that was for a lesser hall, at 1966 prices.

Today the official price tag stands at $168 million, and so one seems anxious to stand by that as a final cost. There is talk of having the place ready by May, but the people of New Orleans have begun to display the same kind of numb complacency that appeared in Sydney during the decade or so that the Australian city's opera house was under construction.

Follis' Tors Seek 700th

LAMESA — Lamesa Coach O. W. Follis, in his 29th year as head coach of the Golden Tornadoes, will be seeking his 700th career basketball victory here Friday and Saturday in the fourth annual Lamesa Invitational cage tourney.

The Tors will be seeking win No. 699 at noon Friday against Kermitt and if that proves to be successful, the Tornadoes will be seeking the magic number 700 on Saturday morning against the winner of the Fort Stockton-Lake View contest, which is set for 1:30 p.m. Friday.

In other first round action, Brownfield will test Pecos at 3 p.m. while Levelland will play Lovington, N.M. at 5:30 p.m. Friday to end the first day's action.

The championship contest will unfold at 8 p.m. Saturday with the third place contest to tip-off at 6:30 p.m. Consolation honors will be decided at 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

is "definitely the best offensive team we've played."

In 11 games, North Carolina scored 340 points and piled up 4,691 yards in total offense. Tailbacks James Betterson and Mike Voight each gained more than 1,000 yards.

Other top Tar Heels are 254-pound offensive guard Ken Huff, who made All America, and quarterback Chris Kupec, who set an NCAA record by competing 89.3 per cent of his passes.

Tyler said he respects the North Carolina defense too. "They had two fine linebackers who were injured before the start of the season... (but) who will be ready for us," he said.

Mississippi State's team, led by quarterback Rocky Felker, tailback Walter Packer, linebacker Jimmy Webb and others, is reported in good physical condition for the game.

Tyler said the Bulldogs would work out in El Paso for about 20 minutes today and about 10 minutes Friday. "They'll be just quick drills for us to be together and polish just a little bit."

Tyler said his team will have a few new plays and alignments but that State will stick with the basic formations—it has relied upon throughout the season.

Weather No Sweat

places we can practice in Minnesota."

The Vikings probably will work on a defensive wrinkle designed late in the season. When Los Angeles beat Minnesota 20-17 in November, Rams' quarterback James Harris picked the Vikings' prevent defense apart in the closing minutes for the victory.

At that time, the Vikings were using three pass rushers and eight secondary defenders. Minnesota incorporated a five-man rush with six defensive backs against Atlanta, and that alignment devastated young Falcon quarterback Kim McQuilken and had mixed success in the Vikings' first playoff game against St. Louis.

NO STOPPING FRED — Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff, 25, is in the process of one-handedly this touchdown pass from quarterback Ken Stabler, despite the clutching efforts of Miami defensive back Tim Foley in AFC semifinal playoff at Oakland Saturday. (AP Wirephoto).

CONTENDER — Teri Jewell, 30-year-old housewife, puts all of her strength into a practice session for the U.S. Professional Armwrestling Championship starting Saturday at Busch Gardens in Van Nuys, Calif.

Slim Housewife Flexes Muscles

By LYNNE BARRETT
 Copley News Service
 LOS ANGELES — Teri Jewell isn't ready for someone the size of Muhammad Ali, but in time she says she might be.

"Here, feel my forearm," says the slim 30-year-old suburban Mission Hills housewife, offering her right arm for inspection. "See, it's already getting firm and I've only been working on it since June."

It doesn't bring Popeye to mind, but the arm is solid and should be in top form for the national arm wrestling showdown Dec. 28 at Busch Gardens in nearby Van Nuys. The event is the U.S. Professional Arm Wrestling Championship, the first pro tournament ever held, and Teri is one of about 50 women who will compete.

About 1,000 participants are expected. "It would be fantastic if I won it," says the 5-foot-7, 125-pound blonde. "I've never done anything as exciting as this in my life."

Fights Odds
 The odds would seem to be against her even though she has a good coach. Her husband, Dennis, a 36-year-old ironworker, ranks third in the world in his arm wrestling division.

He, too, will be at Busch Gardens to make an attempt at the No. 1 spot and a share of the $5,000 worth of savings bonds being awarded to winners in all five divisions.

Teri, who has three children ranging in age from 1 to 8 years at home, lost her only previous official arm wrestling match at Petaluma, Calif., and may have to face women twice her size.

Although there are four weight divisions for men, there is only one for women.

Quickness Counts
 "That's because there aren't enough women arm wrestlers yet to set up weight divisions," Teri says, "but it doesn't matter. Technique means more than size and brute strength anyway. I might beat a gal who weighs 250 pounds by being quicker."

Teri became interested in arm wrestling last June when her husband entered his first event.

"They asked girls to come down and compete," she says, "and I thought that was silly. I didn't know anything about it. By the end of the tournament, I was jumping up and down and going crazy like everyone else."

With 17-inch biceps, Dennis Jewell does bring Popeye to mind.

He has been working out with weights for more than 20 years, according to Teri, but the June event was his first attempt at arm wrestling.

Suffered Injury
 "He hurt himself during that first match because he didn't know what he was doing," Teri says. "You have to learn to use your wrists and leverage instead of muscle. It's very important."

Dennis was eliminated quickly in that first match but his hours of practice paid off when he placed third in the middleweight division of the national amateur tournament in Petaluma.

Teri says she and her husband have been working on their techniques daily since June and she doesn't think her one loss will hurt her confidence in the Busch Gardens tournament.

More Experienced
 "The other girl had more experience than I did," she says, "and I got off to a bad start. The person who gets the best start will usually win."

Although techniques vary among arm wrestlers, the sport itself is easy for spectators to follow. Opponents sit or stand on opposite sides of a table.

For added leverage, they lock legs with the table and, at a referee's signal, they strain to bring the opponent's hand down. Matches can last from a fraction of a second to several minutes and one loss eliminates a wrestler from the competition.

Teri's daily training program includes an hour working out with 15- and 25-pound weights and tune-up matches with teenage boys in the neighborhood.

She says she always wins against this competition.

Teri was a medical assistant to a dermatologist in nearby Glendale before settling down as a housewife several years ago. She says she was a tomboy as a young girl, but her only adult sports activity was an occasional football game on television—until arm wrestling came along.

"Like most women, I thought sports were for men," she says, "somewhat ruefully. Now I've found something I can enjoy doing myself and it's great."

Bart Starr To Delegate Packer Responsibilities

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Bart Starr, the new coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers, foresees a relaxed hand on the reins of authority over the staff he inherited from Don Devine.

"I believe in delegating authority," he said. "People will have much more responsibility than they have ever had before. And I mean all of our people—the captains, the assistant coaches and the people in the office."

The idea of dispersing authority contrasts with the image of rigid administration under the late coach Vince Lombardi in the 1960s, when Starr, a record-setting quarterback, led the Packers to five National Football League titles.

Devine quit the two jobs Dec. 18 after four years. Only one of the four seasons was a winner; that was 1972 when Starr served as a quarterback coach before retiring to his business ventures.

They Want To Keep Croupiers Hawk-Eyed

By RON WELLS
Copley News Service
In Las Vegas, a million dollars changes hands every few minutes.

Hawk-eyed dealers and croupiers skillfully sort out winners from losers, deftly and accurately increasing or decreasing the fortunes of equally sharp-eyed patrons.

Few professions put as much emphasis on an individual's vision as do those in a casino, where the chips are always down and the pressure always there.

"Good vision is an essential part of the croupier's job," said Jack Flick, a casino executive at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas.

"Our dealers have to see well. There are many things they have to do and actions they have to initiate just by looking at the gaming table."

Flick explained that craps dealers, for instance, must watch eight people's movements, two dice, take money in and pay money out, while at the same time looking across a 12-foot-long table.

Color vision is immensely important, too, Flick emphasized, because colored checks (chips) denote different amounts of money. Add in the elements of fast play and pressure to perform accurately and one can get an idea of what the dealer's job entails.

Flick, who has worked around gambling tables for years, says because of the pressures of the work, many dealers experience visual problems such as eyestrain.

"We can see that a dealer is having trouble with his eyes by the way he fumbles or cuts into checks," said Flick. "If his eyesight isn't good, he won't be able to cut into checks cleanly. It would not do to have a dealer leaving extra checks around."

According to a report by the Society for Visual Care in New York, croupiers working the 2 a.m. to 10 a.m. "graveyard shift" are particularly susceptible to eyestrain.

In order that the dealers perform at top levels, Flick explained that they are given frequent breaks in their working schedules to relax, ease the

French Jurist Aids Fellow Dwarfs

By ELIAS ANTAR
PARIS (AP) — The most successful dwarf in France is neither a clown nor jockey but a brilliant 71-year-old jurist, mountain climber and ace pistol shot who hopes to help thousands of French dwarfs out of their misery.

Jean Brisse-Saint-Macary, 4-foot-5, suffered through a tortured childhood and a lifetime of prejudice and discrimination before reaching a haven of respect and recognition in the normal world.

Brisse holds a doctorate in law, is a recognized expert on rural economy, was a vice-president of the Congress of French Notaries Public and was a counselor at the French justice ministry. He made a career as a notary public, an official who in France undertakes many of the functions of a lawyer.

Last year, he retired to a little village in the Pyrenees Mountains and is now completing a book on his life. He hopes it will inspire other dwarfs.

Brisse estimates there are 10,000 dwarfs in France, although no census ever has been taken and the state does not recognize them as handicapped persons. Many Frenchmen consider dwarfs figures of fun.

"I hope my book will draw attention to their plight, which can be summed up in one word — miserable," Brisse said in an interview. "Then I will use my contacts in government and the justice ministry to try to form an association of dwarfs duly recognized by the state."

Brisse said it will be difficult to group together all the dwarfs in France. Some have gained notoriety as clowns and circus acrobats, itinerant peddlers or odd-job men.

"Most of them have great difficulty finding any kind of regular, rewarding employment," Brisse said. "I know of one man who is a treasurer in the Toulouse municipality, but otherwise the life of a dwarf in France is not a favored one."

"As for prejudice, well, I can tell you, monsieur, that it is very rooted."

A few years ago, a group of youngsters threw stones at tension and to recoup their strength.

At the Sands, craps dealers work for 60 minutes and get the next 20 minutes off.

Roulette and blackjack dealers work 40 minutes with a 20-minute rest interval.

To make sure the dealers are seeing properly, the hotel pays a percentage of their eye examinations and subsidizes the cost of frames and corrective lenses.

Flick firmly believes that all casinos should follow the Sands' lead and "make periodic vision checks available to the dealers."

Ray Forbes, a craps dealer at the Sands, notes that table glare is a real problem. He said that it was difficult to get table lighting in proper focus because he is constantly looking from the brightly lit playing surface to the softly lit surrounding areas.

But Forbes' biggest visual complaint deals with peripheral vision because he has to "see so much out of the corners of my eyes."

"You have to see quick movements and have to make split-second decisions," Forbes said. "Visual mistakes, which almost never happen, can cause errors which cost money and you have to keep decorum. When you figure I have to make at least six decisions in 10 seconds, improper vision could be dangerous."

Forbes, who visits his eye-care specialist annually and changes prescriptions almost every two years, also says that depth perception plays an important role.

He looks down on the playing surface some 36 inches or more away from his eyes, and must distinguish the elements on the board clearly.

A real test, he said, is when a player calls out that he is betting seven chips and actually puts down nine.

"It's up to the dealer to catch that just by looking at the stack of chips," said Forbes. "Feeling takes too long and inhibits the pace of the game."

Brisse in the street. "I finally turned on them and slapped one in the face. His mother stepped out of a doorway, slapped me, knocked me to the ground and poured insults on me."

"In 1970, I was sitting in a cafe and four English girls came in and sat at the next table. They soon made it very clear that they wanted to sleep with a dwarf," he said. "When I told them I was a law official, they got up and left in a hurry."

"As you can understand, the life of a dwarf is not easy."

Brisse was prompted to write about his life after a Paris theater director staged an adaptation of the opera "Turandot," starring one woman and 18 dwarfs. The production won favorable reviews and this persuaded Brisse there was public interest in the plight of dwarfs.

Brisse was born with achondroplasia, an affliction which leaves a person with a normal head and torso but shrunken or deformed limbs. Everyone else in the family was normal, and Brisse's father — a doctor and a general in the French Army — insisted that young Jean fit the family mold.

As a child, he was strapped in bed and underwent an excruciatingly painful process to soften his bones and stretch him. "This treatment lasted three months," Brisse writes in his book. Still he remained a dwarf. His legs were then bound into painful, cumbersome steel bars for four years. It did no good.

School was a psychological minefield. His fellows taunted him and Brisse says his teacher enjoyed making him suffer. "Brisse, you are abnormal, an imbecile, a dangerous being. Everything that comes from you is evil. I will break you," the teacher told him.

One intolerable afternoon, Brisse climbed to the roof of the school. "Just as I was leaping into the stairwell, someone grabbed my leg," he writes. "It was Father Segond, the most humble man in the school. He had understood what I was going to do. I don't know which of us was crying the most."

Despite continued opposition from his father, Brisse went on to law school. At 23, he had a tubercular inflammation of the breastbone, and he recovered. He attributes it to a night spent in meditation in the grotto at Lourdes.

He tried to find peace in a Trappist monastery, but after two years he was told that he didn't have what it took to become a monk. Brisse says that in these painful, formative years, he started climbing the 10,000-foot peaks of the Pyrenees to find solace in the natural beauty of the surroundings. He also took up pistol and rifle shooting, becoming an acknowledged expert.

As his career flourished, Brisse married a normal woman and had a daughter who was normal. But a son with symptoms of dwarfism died at the age of eight.

From the serenity of his retirement, Brisse tells other dwarfs of France in the preface to his book, "Memoirs of an Achondroplasiac."

"Wherever destiny has placed us, it is essential for us, my infirm brothers, to work, to create and to give. We must face things squarely without ever giving way to the desire to escape."

VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP) — A Valparaiso man who waited more than three months for delivery of his new car had driven only 60 miles when the car started to fall apart.

Architect Douglas Pierce took his 1974 car to a garage, where mechanics told him a tie rod had fallen off, bolts inside and outside the transmission, in the bell housing and in the tie rod system were loose and the clutch linkage was dangling. When Pierce complained, an observer quipped, "What do you expect for $4,000?"

War Between Argentina, Britain?—Farfetched, But Not Impossible

By CARLOS VIEJO
Copy News Service
BUENOS AIRES — Armed conflict between Argentina and Britain might sound like a rather farfetched possibility, but there is talk of the sort here in the Argentine capital.

The point of contention is the Falkland Islands, a lightly populated archipelago, consisting of two large and some 200 smaller islands, about 300 miles from the bottom end of the South American continent.

The Falklands, which Argentina prefers to call the Malvinas, have been under British control since about 1833.

Now some Argentines are talking about retaking them, by force.

Depend On Sheep
While the islands were once of some importance to whalers and seal hunters, in more modern times the Falklanders have come to depend primarily on sheep raising for their livelihood.

Argentina has periodically reasserted its claim to sovereignty over the two 2,600-square-mile islands and the estimated 2,000 people who live on them, but it has done so peacefully.

Last Serious Clash
In fact, some histories indicate that the last serious armed clash there occurred almost a century and a half ago, in 1881, and that involved a U.S. naval force which, during a dispute between the governments in Washington and Buenos Aires, destroyed the small colony at Port Louis.

However, with the heightening world oil crisis, attention has been turned to the islands and to the possibility there may be submarine petroleum deposits in the Atlantic waters off their shores.

One Argentine news magazine,

Panorama, quoted unnamed U.S. oilmen as hazarding the opinion that the Falkland Islands could be "a new Kuwait." Kuwait, on the Persian Gulf, is the world's sixth most important petroleum exporter.

The British reportedly have completed an oil survey of the islands and a Canadian oil company is said to be seeking oil rights there.

Despite the newspaper talk, including interviews with unnamed Argentine military men who were quoted as saying the feasibility of an invasion of the islands, official Argentine government spokesmen disavow the idea.

Argentine Foreign Minister Alberto J. Vignes said that this country has been negotiating with Britain about the Falkland Islands and "should continue negotiating."

Quite obviously, though, some Argentine periodicals would like to stir up popular feeling in favor of seizure of the Falklands.

The mass circulation newspaper, Cronica, for example, recently carried a headline across the top of the page, affirming that "as long as one lone Argentine remains, we will be reclaiming the Malvinas."

Panorama magazine ran a cover story on the subject, with a headline that asked, "Will it be necessary to invade the Malvinas?"

Argentina's claim to the islands can be traced back to the Papal bulls of 1493. But it was not until 1767, after both the British and the French had established small colonies there, that the Spanish declared the islands to be part of the jurisdiction of the captain general of Buenos Aires. The British have maintained a presence on the islands since 1833 when Capt. John James Onslow of the HMS Uruguay or Chile than they do

Spain and established a British naval base.

Now, most Falklanders reportedly consider themselves British subjects. Some speak Spanish in addition to English but even those who are bilingual seem to have closer ties with Uruguay or Chile than they do with Argentina.

Two Midlanders Named To Scout Drive Positions

Two Midlanders have been named to positions on the Buffalo Trail Council Scout Camp and Program Development Fund by Bernard Hanson, general chairman.

Rudy Wright will be major firm chairman for the fund, and Keith Van Horn will head the East Area.

The Scout Development Fund is being conducted to raise $200,000 for a new camp and quality program and facility improvements for scouting in the area. Midland steering committee members are Frank Cowden Jr. and C. J. Kelly.

Wright, division manager for Mobil Pipeline Co., has been involved in scouting several years. He is a member of the Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce, and is active in the First Baptist Church.

Van Horn, manager of Cities Service, is an active member of St. Luke's United Methodist Church. Active in scouting over 17 years, he is currently Council campaign chairman.

Rear-End Crash Helps Save Life

LARGO, Fla. (AP) — An Eagle Scout's training drove him into a rear-end collision that helped save a life.

William B. Davis was driving his 10-year-old car when the vehicle ahead of him stalled on the railroad track at an unguarded crossing near here. He saw the young woman driver desperately trying to restart her automobile as a freight train bore down on her. The 17-year-old Scout quickly rammed the car ahead of him, forcing it forward. The locomotive hit the rear of the first car and the front end of the Scout's auto, damaging both extensively, but both Mrs. Deborah Robertson and Davis escaped serious injury.

For his act of heroism and quick thinking in an emergency, Davis was awarded the highest award in Scouting — the Boy Scout Honor Medal with crossed palms.

He Beats Rat Race By Joining

AVON, Ind. (AP) — If you can't beat the rat race, join it. That seems to be the philosophy of Bob Murphy, a central Indiana farmer with a new breed of livestock. As they say in the business, Murphy is a "rat rancher."

He is capitalizing on the current demand for mice and rats in animal research, something Indiana University spent $25,000 on last year.

In fact, the university buys 90 per cent of its mice and rats from Murphy.

Murphy, 39, was a typical farmer until five years ago when his brother, a veterinarian, gave him the idea of beginning to raise the rodents for profit.

What started from a few cages in a small trailer is now Murphy Breeding Laboratories, Inc., a giant "rat factory" producing about 5,000 mice, 1,000 rats and 800 guinea pigs a week.

The rat ranch is situated on 42 acres owned by Murphy's corporation west of here. The building contains 14 large rooms where mice, rats and guinea pigs are bred. Double Space Planned

"We want to double the building space we have now to make one entire building for guinea pigs," says Murphy. "Right now we are the largest breeders of guinea pigs in the U.S."

Murphy says five years of hard work, 19 hours a day every day, have been put into the business. "The last five years all the profits have been going back into the business," he explained.

"I'll never retire, but if we keep on going like we have been, we'll be able to retire at a young age — if we don't kill ourselves."

About 200 mice and 75 rats of Murphy's are used weekly in various departments at IU. The psychology department is running a series of tests on causes of aggression in mice, and the microbiology department uses mice for experiments to determine toxic doses of drugs.

In addition to Indiana, Murphy also ships mice to Purdue and Illinois universities. He is also under government contract to produce 4,000 mice a week.

"It's hard work," Murphy said. "I used to farm, but that's strictly sideline now."

At 50 cents per mouse, $2.50 per rat and $5 per guinea pig, Murphy is not complaining. He built a better mouse.

Officially Finally Decide To Build Bucharest Subway
BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — After 20 years of engineering problems and hesitation, Romanian leaders have finally decided to build a subway in Bucharest.
Official announcements have said that actual construction of the first 11-mile line will start next year. It will run from East to West, connecting the center of the city with two residential and industrial suburbs, each with a 200,000 population.
The line is supposed to begin carrying passengers by 1978.
Work at the initial subway started in the early 1960s, when several splendid but virtually unachievable projects had been initiated.
One of them, considered a symbol of Soviet domination, urged the construction of a Danube River-Black Sea canal, reportedly on orders from Stalin. But after Stalin's death in 1953, both the canal and the subway were abruptly abandoned.
Extravagant Planning
When the subway was abandoned, officials and specialists alike blamed not only the extravagant planning which was beyond Bucharest's means at the time, but also treacherous sand and subsurface water.
Meanwhile, it seems the soil has become less sandy and the water has evaporated.
The subway will have a 50,000 passenger transport capacity per hour and will run at an average speed of 25 miles.
Electric trains will be used, each able to carry 1,500 passengers. The stops will be located at about one mile from one another and will be provided with platforms and escalators.
"The only way to speed the traffic and make Bucharest a modern city, avoiding air pollution and cutting down noise, is the construction of the subway," a recent newspaper editorial said.

U.S. Treasury Wants 'Cashless, Checkless Society'

By DANIEL J. FOLEY
Copley News Service
WASHINGTON — Every month, the U.S. Treasury issues more than 43 million checks to the aged, to the needy and to salaried government employes, creating a real mountain of paperwork.

The checks must first be handled by Treasury officials, then the postman, then recipient and finally the bank or other financial institution.

But under a new Treasury program, begun recently on a pilot basis in Georgia, some of the middlemen—including the beneficiary of the check—will be eliminated when Treasury directly deposits checks into an individual's bank account.

Within a few years, Treasury even hopes to eliminate the need for checks altogether by transferring funds electronically, thus moving the country toward what some see as an eventual 'cashless, checkless society.'

The Georgia experiment and one to begin in Florida in April involve direct deposits of Social Security and Supplemental Security income checks only, but those two programs account for almost three-fourths of the Treasury checks handled each month.

Some 700,000 Georgia beneficiaries of those two programs are being given the opportunity to have their checks mailed directly to their banks, savings and loan institutions or credit unions for deposit.

Treasury officials estimate that 30,000 to 40,000 took advantage of the voluntary program in the first month. They hope to sign up 100,000 by the end of March.

Treasury plans to go nationwide with the direct deposit program in July 1975.

For the recipients of government checks, the direct deposit program offers a number of advantages, according to Treasury officials.

It reduces the risk of loss, theft or forgery of checks, provides for uninterrupted deposit of checks during the time an individual is away from home and eliminates problems such as travel to and from check-cashing facilities and standing in lines.

Banks and other financial institutions are enthusiastic about the program because they see it as a way of gaining new depositors. It also will reduce operating and forgery costs and be more efficient from the banks' standpoint.

Some banks estimate it will cut their paper processing costs on those transactions by one-half to two-thirds.

For the federal government, the eventual shift to electronic funds transfer should provide significant savings. One Treasury official said that elimination of checks would save two cents per item on handling and 10 cents on postage.

If Treasury achieves its goal of having 16 million beneficiaries—roughly 40 per cent of those eligible—participate in the direct deposit program by 1978, it could save the government $16 million a year, according to a Treasury estimate.

The nationwide shift from checks to electronic funds transfer is now scheduled for the end of 1976 if all goes well.

Here's how the electronic funds transfer system would work:

First, the Treasury would furnish the federal reserve system with magnetic tape records of the payments to be made. This information would be sent by computer tape message over the federal reserve's wire system to all parts of the country.

Second, federal reserve banks would be provided with paper, card or magnetic tape records against Treasury's account and to the account of each financial institution (depending on the institution's capability) of the amounts to be credited to the account of beneficiaries with accounts in each beneficiary.

the bank, savings and loan or credit union.

Third, the financial institution would charge against Treasury's account and to the account of each financial institution the amount of payments owed to beneficiaries with accounts in each beneficiary.

Crude Saver

NEW YORK (AP) — A recent article for "Lighting Design and Application," the journal of the Society of Illuminating Engineers, estimated that if all America were equipped with dimmers, and dimmed down only 10 per cent, it would save 100 million barrels of oil per year.

Basic Decor

NEW YORK (AP) — Sturdy and damage-proof, fiber-glass furniture is fast becoming basic decor in high-traffic, high-use public places.

At Kennedy Airport, more than 5,000 fiber-glass chairs in the International Arrivals and Departures Building are retaining their appearance and soundness despite extensive

HE'S GOING TO RUN AGAIN—Ben Jacobsen, a 92-year-old former mayor, still has political aspirations. Jacobsen has served seven two-year terms as mayor of Maquoketa, Iowa, since 1954—the last ending Dec. 31, 1973—and he plans to enter the mayoral race again in 1975. Jacobsen says, if elected again, he will abolish "the blooming parking meters." (AP Wirephoto.)

Will The E.R.A. help working women?

As noted above, it will NOT provide higher pay or increased job opportunities. It WILL NOT cause a husband to do more work around the house. It WILL, however, very adversely affect women in industry, by invalidating ALL PROTECTIVE LAWS FOR WOMEN... laws regulating weight lifting restrictions, rest periods, excessive working hours and maternity leaves.

The ERA will do nothing for teachers. Their protection is already guaranteed by law. It WILL, however, adversely affect education by eliminating all single sex schools - military schools, seminaries, or women's colleges.

How ERA has already affected working women: "A State court has decided that a business firm which gave taxi fare to women ending their work shifts late at night was discriminating against male employees. Rather than give a similar but unnecessary service to men, the company stopped the service to women." Houston Tribune 2/22/73.

"In another case, a company which provided a rest lounge for women workers was found to be discriminating against men; so it must either provide a lounge for men or close the lounge for women. As leaders of organized labor in California had feared, the law is being used to eliminate special services previously provided for women." Houston Tribune, 2/22/73.

What can you do about it?

1. Find out who your State Legislators are (you can call your local Democratic or Republican Headquarters). Write them. Ask them to oppose the ERA.
2. If possible, visit your representative personally.

50-Cent Car Caused Texas' Most Baffling Double Murder

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

The new, luxury automobile cost the owner the fantastic sum of $50,000. And it is probable the vehicle caused Texas' most baffling double murder.

Remembrance of the Frome murder case was aroused again with a just-published book written by an old friend, William J. Hooten, retired editor of the El Paso Times.

The book is "Fifty-two Years a Newsmen," published by Texas Western Press of the University of Texas at El Paso. Hooten has seen just about everything.

He began as an Associated Press telegrapher. In those days, each newspaper had its own AP man to listen to the Morse key and type out the stories on old-fashioned typewriters.

Hooten's professional descendants today write their stories on an electronic device connected directly to a computer and transmit the stories to thousands of newspapers simultaneously, often at more than 1,000 words a minute.

When technology scrapped the Morse key, Hooten became a reporter, then editor of a newspaper in one of the best news cities in America. His book is a walk back through time.

Mrs. Weston G. (Hazel) Frome, 48, and her attractive, dark-haired daughter, Nancy, 23, died on a lonely desert stretch near Van Horn, Tex. They had been tortured and strangled.

The two often traveled together and usually stripped off all jewelry to avoid tempting robbers, but not on this trip.

They started from Berkeley, Calif., where they were socialites, to visit a daughter and sister in Paradise Island, N.C.

Their car developed trouble at El Paso and the Fromes visited some of the hot spots in Juarez across the border in Mexico.

They left Hotel Cortez at 11:30 a.m. on March 27, 1958, and at about 3 p.m. met their fate in the sand just off the highway a hundred miles south-east.

Both women had been largely disrobed but not raped. Nancy's right hand was burned repeatedly with cigarettes or cigars. She had been badly stomped. The mother had been struck viciously on the head with a blunt instrument, and flesh had been gouged from her right arm.

A small-caliber, German-made weapon was used to shoot each victim in the left temple.

An alert truck driver, Jim Milam, led officers to the scene as soon as he heard about the missing women and automobile.

The Fromes' new Packard passed him four days earlier with a smaller car containing a man and woman behind it.

That same day, he noted both cars pulling from the desert onto the highway. A woman was driving the Frome car.

The only clues were left by Nancy, something of an athlete-expert swimmer, horsewoman and dancer. In her death throes, she clutched a folder of matches and a man's handkerchief with the initial "P." She had scratched someone—there was skin and blood under her fingernails.

In the following year, 300 to 500 useless tips a month poured in from across the nation and all had to be checked. More than 300 pistols were inspected by ballistics experts. Officers questioned more than 2,500 persons in the next 20 years.

Why these vicious murders? Could it have been robbers? Unlikely. The couple did take a diamond ring and $90 from Mrs. Frome and a bracelet from Nancy, but other jewelry was not touched.

The Packard was found days later near Balmorhea, about 60 miles east of Van Horn. The vehicle had been wiped clean of fingerprints.

Revenge was considered but pursuit of that line got officers nowhere.

Col. Homer Garrison, the late great director of the Department of Public Safety, said 15 years ago, "They were tortured. There's no doubt about that. Somebody wanted information." One theory seems more logical than others after the distance of 37 years.

This is not to hint that the mother and daughters were willing transporters of drugs.

But it is possible that dealers concealed drugs in a Packard of the same description as the Fromes'. Too, the victims had been away from their automobile several days while it was being repaired and drug dealers may have put drugs inside, expecting to retrieve the narcotics when the Fromes got out of town.

When the Fromes could tell them nothing, the murderers could have thought they were lying and tortured them to make them reveal the hiding place.

Or it could be that the murderers made a simple error and were looking for another Packard.

About that 50-cent car. Weston G. Frome, an executive of the Atlas Powder Co., bought a 50-cent Community Chest raffle ticket while attending a Wilmington, Del., convention, walked off with the big prize, and gave the car to Nancy.

Ford's Popularity Continues Decline

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The number of American adults who approve of President Ford's performance in office has slipped to 42 per cent as his popularity continues to decline, according to the latest Gallup Poll.

The polling organization said Wednesday that 41 per cent of the respondents in a survey taken between Dec. 6 and Dec. 9 said they disapproved of Ford's performance and 17 per cent gave no opinion.

Down From November In a similar survey of some 1,500 adults conducted just after the November congressional elections, 48 per cent of the respondents expressed approval, 32 per cent said they disapproved and 20 per cent offered no opinion.

George Gallup, president of the polling organization, noted that former President Richard M. Nixon was in office more than four years before his popularity had declined to the point where as many disapproved of him as approved.

Economy Main Factor Widespread concern over the national economy is a key reason for Ford's 29-point decline in popularity since he took office in August, Gallup said.

Goodwill trips abroad have traditionally generated public support for a president, but the latest survey — taken after Ford's meeting with Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in Vladivostok and his trips to Korea and Japan — shows no such trend, Gallup said.

"In fact, Ford's efforts abroad are generating some criticism among a public whose focus of concern is currently inward on economic and other domestic problems," the pollster said.

Surprise Snow Blankets Many Southwest States

By The Associated Press A winter storm surprised the southwestern states with a crisp blanket of snow from two to four inches deep at places today.

Snow and ice spread across northern Arizona into most of New Mexico and extreme West Texas and freezing rain glazed parts of West Central and Northwest Texas.

El Paso, Tex., measured 4 inches of snow and Alamo, N.M., was covered by 2 inches. New Mexicans in the southern half of the state, unaccustomed to snow, had a white Christmas with up to 2 inches at Silver City.

Rain, Drizzle, Too Rain and drizzle dampened areas from South Texas to Louisiana and cloudy skies prevailed over the rest of the Gulf Coast.

Cloudy conditions also extended up the Mississippi Valley to the Great Lakes region and eastward to the northern Atlantic Coast.

A few snow showers dotted areas from Michigan and Ohio into southern New England.

Cloudy conditions prevailed from the northern Pacific Coast into the northern Rockies and northwestern Plains.

Most of the remainder of the nation enjoyed clear skies. Many areas had cold temperatures with the desert Southwest reporting subzero readings.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 10 at Craig, Colo., to 75 at Key West, Fla.

Temperatures Plummet — Some other reports: Anchorage 24 freezing drizzle, Atlanta 26 cloudy, Boston 25 snow flurries, Buffalo 25 clear, Chicago 14 clear, Cincinnati 24 cloudy, Cleveland 25 snow flurries, Dallas 35 cloudy, Denver 21 partly cloudy, Detroit 25 cloudy, Honolulu 74 light rain showers, Indianapolis 18 clear, Kansas City 24 clear, Los Angeles 47 clear, Louisville 27 cloudy, Miami 72 clear, Minneapolis-St. Paul 19 clear, Nashville 30 cloudy, New York 32 clear, Philadelphia 34 clear, Pittsburgh 27 snow flurries, St. Louis 18 partly cloudy, San Francisco 39 clear, Seattle 38 cloudy, Washington 37 partly cloudy.

Television Star Trying To Breed Asian Red Crabs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Asian Red crabs might be the answer to the world's food problems if it weren't for cannibalism, actor Ted Hartley believes.

Mother crab has about 1.5 million babies, but she eats all but three or four. Shortly thereafter, the father crab eats the mother.

Hartley, star of last season's "Chopper One" television series, says he hopes he can change all that and put two crabs in every pot.

Hartley has imported meaty Asian Reds from Indonesia and is studying them in a 10-by-40-foot saltwater pond at his Burbank mansion.

He is seeking ways to help more baby crabs live longer. Within a couple of years, Hartley thinks he can come up with a crab-growing system that will cut supermarket prices to 50 cents a pound.

Hartley says he has invested $80,000 in the project and has brought crab experts from Indonesia and Ceylon in to help him.

Using More Resources In Food Production Urged

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — All importation and local production of tobacco, liquor and television sets should be terminated in those nations with food shortages, and the resources instead should be used for food production, says Columbia University sociologist Amitai Etzioni.

He also proposes that students and civil servants in those countries be trained to work on farms in order to disseminate agricultural skills to other citizens. But, he says: "These and other such measures ... are detested because they entail suspension of some civil rights."

Nevertheless these steps should be undertaken before a government decides to divide the remaining food supply by simply condemning some of its citizens to starvation, Etzioni said.

"Careful, rational allocation of scarce resources, making tough choices, ends by saving lives in toto, while actively condemning some individuals," he said. "Any other approach, it is said, may seem more humane, but will condemn more."

Etzioni, director of the Center for Policy Research, is the author of "The Active Society: A Theory of Societal and Political Processes," and "Genetic Fix." In a recent wide-ranging interview, he discussed his ideas on everything from scarce food to criminal and social justice to the energy crisis. Here are some of the questions and answers:

Q: What do you mean by an active society?

A: An active society is a society that is able to identify its problems. We simply don't know how to do things, technically. We don't know how to help an alcoholic on a mass basis. We don't know how to treat most mental patients. Now, it's not accidental that we don't know these things. We put our money into developing better weapons and better missiles.

Q: Have mismanagement and poor planning been major stumbling blocks?

A: We have not found the proper planning and administrative tools. One of the lessons of the Great Society, and there were some good intentions, was that practically every program was fouled up unbelievably. And so we have to find the better administrative tools. We cannot find the proper administrative tools until we get the proper power balance when enough citizens who have a vested interest in a better society get more active.

Q: If priorities are to be implemented for improving American life, what should some of them be?

A: First, we have to repeal 80 per cent of the laws and enforce the other 20 per cent. Second, we should put $10 billion into solar energy. Third, we have to find more effective ways of helping people. There are a lot of groups who have not participated in the affluent society.

Q: Let's take the laws first. What kinds of laws should be repealed?

A: There are endless laws that should not be on the book. All the laws against crimes without victims — prostitution, gambling, homosexuality, marijuana. We must enforce the laws on high-level corruption, on serious things. One-quarter of the arrests in this country go for pedestrian alcoholics. This is an absurd investment.

Look, they've suggested legislation on pets. It'll cost $450 million a year to enforce it. To take our few cops, who most of the time aren't spending their time on law enforcement either, and send them to see if people curb their pets, is just a very bad way of proceeding. Somebody the other day stood next to a 55 mile per hour sign and counted how many cars went by, and most of them went by above 55 m.p.h. That's very bad for society. We should take those goddamn signs down and put 55 m.p.h. on them. Or, you have to have a greater enforcement. There are some things called "medicaid mills." You go in and say you have a cavity, and they're not going to let you out until they've done every medical test on you, including a spinal tap, which endangers your life, so they can collect an extra $400. It's a violation of the law, it's endangering your life and it displaces medical resources. Let them go after this instead of curbing the dog and arresting pedestrian alcoholics.

Q: What about the area of social justice? Do we need more social programs?

A: I'm not sure what specifically needs to be done. I think the most urgent part would be the income redistribution, rather than the social services. Too much has been eaten up by the social services.

Q: How would the affluent American respond to a redistribution of wealth?

A: There is one out of a thousand who will react to the fiscal crisis by saying: "I'm cutting out of the consumer race. This business about energy and inflation — I'm cutting out. I want to spend more time with family, interacting, reading, rapping." It's kind of a diluted version of the hippie values. It would have a very interesting multiple effect. First of all, it would help us solve the energy problem. These are all low energy consumers. Second, it would help kill the inflation problem because there wouldn't be that much demand for the limited amount of goods. It's only if the privileged part of America is no longer hip to material goods that you can hope for serious resolutions.

Q: You mentioned the energy problem and solar energy. Why are you so big on solar energy?

A: It's clean. It's a big outlay at the beginning; but then you won't need spare parts or fuel. I would cancel the space race, or whatever's left of it, and put that money toward the solar. Just announcing it will have an enormous political effect.

Q: You recently proposed taxing automobiles rather than gasoline as another way to curb the energy crisis. How would this work?

A: By putting an annual tax on cars, taxing heavier cars more than light cars. From the social justice point of view, the amount of gas you use is not a reflection on your economic status. If you use a car for leisure, you use it little. If you use a car for work, you use it a lot. To tax gas, you would basically be penalizing people who use a car for their livelihood. The heavy car, aside from using more gasoline per mile, in itself constitutes an energy waste, because the extra tons of steel and coal which go into building a huge car are an enormous consumption of energy through mining them to transporting them. So, if you encourage people to buy smaller cars, you get a kind of triple energy saving.

Q: If anyone is to benefit from the energy crisis, who will it be?

A: The U.S. and West Germany. Other countries, like Japan and France, will be knocked to their knees. Economically, we're going to be like in 1946: at the top of the mountain, while other countries will be as devastated by this as they were during World War II.

Q: Why?

A: Basically, because we have so many primary resources. West Germany has four times as much as we do, which is what the oil producing countries need to buy. In the end, those countries are going to buy industrial plants for themselves and other Muslim countries. There are two kinds of oil producing countries. Countries like Algeria and Venezuela, who need the money for themselves, and countries like Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, which can't possibly use it. They will give it in various ways to other countries they favor, not because they are so altruistic, but because that's the way they can protect their regimes.

The Arabs don't trust Italy or France to repay loans, so we'll have to be the intermediary. And, of course, the intermediary benefits. We will have an advantage in the long run. Therefore, I'm not as pessimistic as many people are for the U.S. I'm very pessimistic for the other Western countries.

Dental Problem Solved

NASA has solved the nagging problem of toothache in space by training astronauts to cope with their own dental emergencies, including filling or pulling each other's troublesome teeth.

Psychiatrist Shortage

In a country of 100,000,000 people, Japan has less than 100 psychiatrists in private practice and research; America, with double the population of Japan, has over 21,000 psychiatrists.
