Memorial Service

The W. M. S. met Wednesday, July 20th, at the Methodist church in order to have a memorial service in honor of our beloved member, Mrs. Hart, whom we all miss so much.

The meeting place for Wednesday, July 27th, will be announced Sunday morning by Rev. Payne at the church.

A young bride in Muleshoe asked her husband to copy off a radio recipe she wanted. He did his best but got two stations at once, one of which was broadcasting the morning exercises and the other the recipe. This is what he took down:

Hands on hips, place one cup of flour on the shoulders, raise knees and depress toes and mix in thoroughly one-half cup of milk. Repeat six times. Inhale quickly one-half teaspoonful of baking powder, lower the legs and mash two hardboiled eggs in a sieve and exhale, breathe naturally and sip into a bowl. Attention. Lie flat on the floor and roll the white of an egg backward until it comes to a boil. In ten minutes remove from the fire and rub smartly with a rough towel. Breathe naturally, dress in warm flannel and serve with fish soup.

Watch Muleshoe grow!

Locust Trees Are Doomed to Go

Read the following editorial from the Plainview News of last week. This should be a warning to the people of Muleshoe and surrounding territory. Plant Chinese Elm, American Elm, Maple and other shade trees this fall to take the place of your locust trees. The locust borer is taking everything as they come to it. Amarillo, Canyon and Hereford are already ridding their town of the Black Locust. Make your plans to have shade trees, but don't plant Locust.

And still the borers work. Locust trees in all parts of Plainview are being destroyed by their pest. How much better it would be to employ an experienced man to stop the ravages and destruction of this pest than it would be to replant with young trees and await the years to again have the shade that has won for Plainview the name of being the most beautiful little city in West Texas.

"It is a serious time in the life of our shade trees. It is a matter now of but a few years when there will not be a living locust tree in Plainview unless something is done to place the locust borer under control now."

"To allow a tree to grow from the seedling to maturity, then sit idly by and let an enemy that could be controlled bring an unnatural death is not much different than allowing a dog, cat, horse or cow to go in a like manner. But when the foot and mouth disease or cholera hits our livestock we go to work. To Plainview our shade trees have always been one of the greatest pulling powers for new home-seekers and an investment now by the city in the salary of a tree doctor will bring profitable returns if we consider the future."

Peddlers Cannot Sell To Newspaper Men

A clothing peddler was in Canyon Friday and accidentally dropped into the News office. He looked around for a moment and stated that he was selling good clothes, but did not offer to open his samples.

When told that not one in this office patronized peddlers, but bought their clothing at home, he replied, "I don't know what is the matter with you fellows, but I am never able to make a sale to a newspaper man. You fellows all seem to trade at home.—Canyon News."

Once a lion was telling a leopard why he roared in the jungles.

Doing business openly and with plenty of advertising is the only way I got my reputation, he said. I earned the name of king of beasts by blowing my horn.

"Always let the other fellow know you are around and they will respect and never bother you."

A rabbit hiding nearby heard the advise and decided to try it. So he filled his lungs with a great breath and started out to terrify all the other animals by roaring like a lion. A wolf, learning of the rabbit's whereabouts by his roar, hopped onto the rabbit and ate him up.

If you haven't got the goods there is need in advertising. And if you don't advertise, it is a pretty good sign that you haven't the goods.—Exchange.

Third Cutting Alfalfa on Market Last Week

The third cutting of Alfalfa was placed on the market here last week. Alfalfa is bringing around fifteen dollars a ton in car load lots. The farmers who are raising Alfalfa tell us it is one of the best paying crops produced here under irrigation.

Hundreds of acres of this rich valley should be seeded to Alfalfa. Some time ago we received a letter from a southern grain and hay dealer asking for price on twenty car load shipments. The outside world knows we have plenty of water for irrigation and the land is suited for the production of this valuable hay. What's the matter with us? Why don't we get busy and produce the hay? There is a demand. What are you going to do about it?

Picnic in Honor of Mr. Mrs. Taylor White

Monday nite a number of Mr. and Mrs. White's friends took supper and went out to the grove of trees on Mr. and Mrs. Ross Glaze farm, there the supper was spread and everyone seemed to enjoy it. There was plenty of good fried chicken, sandwiches, pickles, salads, pie, cake and ice cream. After supper Mrs. Glaze invited everyone in to sing. First the group was favored with a humorous reading by Reu Saffle. Then old and new religious songs were sung. Everyone had a glorious time, and were happy to have their good friends, Mr. and Mrs. White with them. Those who enjoyed the good time were: Mr. and Mrs. Barron and children, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Taylor and children, Mrs. Coker and children, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor White Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Ballew, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Griffiths, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Beller, Mr. and Mrs. Dodson, Sr. Reu Saffle, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Glaze and children, Misses Mozelle Alsop, Alna Douglass, Bessie Mae Lasater, Floy Beller, Messrs. Les Dodson, Carrol Griffiths, Clay Buchannon, Ethridge Payne, Harold Griffiths, and Charlie Williams.

Some young ladies enjoying the men folks winking.

Clay Buchannon wishing the Baptist Hospital was nearer to Mr. Glaze's home, at least for Monday nite.

Some ladies eating ice cream with their coats on and begging Mrs. Gage to build a fire.

Dog Days and a Tribute to "Man's Best Friend,"

These are "Dog Days," this hot summer period when Sirius, the dog star, is in the ascendancy. But every day is a "dog day" for those who love the animal which is regarded as man's best friend.

Once upon a time an eloquent Missourian paid a tribute to the dog which has become a classic of American oratory and which made the man who uttered it world-famous. The story of the circumstances under which this eulogy was uttered has often been retold and often told inaccurately. If you would know the true story of Senator Vest's famous "Dog Eulogy" read the feature article "Dog Days" by Elmo Scott Watson in this issue of the Journal.

Dairy Industry Moves Forward

On the heels of the announcement that a cheese factory would be established in Wichita Falls comes another piece of news that should please those who are interested in the development of the dairy industry in the Southwest. A condensed milk plant capable of an initial consumption of the product of 5000 cows is to be one of the new industries in Sherman, Texas. This new industry lends encouragement to those who believe in dairy cows, but who have had some fear that profitable markets would not be established as rapidly as the increase in the number of cows justified. Not only beginning with the first months of its operation, if that number is available, but its backers and promoters state that they hope to be able to use the product of from 30,000 to 50,000 cows within a period of five years. The withdrawal of Sherman territory dairy products from the Dallas and Ft. Worth markets should encourage better and larger herds in the territory of these cities in order to care for the city demand.

Only a small beginning has been made in establishing creameries, cream stations, and condensed milk plants. Texas, the ranking state in the consumption of ice cream, and an importer of fifty million dollars worth of dairy products annually, has a long way to go before home consumption is increasing. There should be no fear of overdoing the industry if plants are properly located and economically managed.

The development of the dairy industry means much more than just supplying a market for cream and milk. The dairy industry cannot thrive without the production of feedstuffs. Therefore, it means diversification of crop rotation. It means the keeping of more hogs and a re-bull soil. The dairy industry saved the impoverished lands of Wisconsin. It can and will do as much for Texas and other Southwestern States — Farm and Ranch.

Human Pageant of the North

All the interesting human characters of the North—hunters, traders, trappers, prospectors, adventurers, Mounted Police and half-breeds—are in the story, "Men Marooned," the latest serial offering of the Journal. It is a startling epic of romance and adventure in the wild regions around Hudson and James Bays. And woven into it is a splendid story of the half wild but so essential and dependable sled dogs of the region; and last, but not least, a story of human hearts—a very tender love story. You will be sure to like it.

STUBBY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THESE are dog days, that period in the months of July and August, when Sirius, the dog star, rises and sets with the sun, and it is the time when, unless the weather is unusually capricious, man can expect the warmest weather during the whole year.

But for the dog lover every day in the year is a "dog day," marked by the warmth of his affection for the animal which is traditionally known as "man's best friend." That man recognizes this fact is shown by the numerous instances in which he has paid signal honor to certain individuals of this race, of what is often so inappropriately referred to as "dumb animals."

There is the case of Sergeant Major Jiggs, the mascot of the United States marine corps, who died on January 9 of this year and was buried with all military honors by his friends, who are proud to call themselves "devil dogs."

There is the case of Stubby, the internationally famous mascot of the A. E. F. veteran of four major engagements, wearer of one wound stripe, and recipient of numerous medals and decorations, who also died recently but who has been mounted and given a place of honor in the American Red Cross museum at Washington.

There is Rufus, the Newfoundland here, who accompanied Westcott Heck, the "Samaritan of Death Valley," on all of his errands of mercy into that eerily infertile to rescue prospectors perishing from thirst and who is honored with his master, since their deaths, with a monument in the city of Los Angeles.

Who has forgotten Balm, the Alaskan husky, who once made his dash to Nome two years ago as the leader of a dog team bearing the diphtheria serum to the plague-stricken city? According to present dispatches, Balm is to have a permanent home in the Cleveland zoo for the rest of his life instead of leading the wandering life of a vaudeville trouper or a sideshow exhibit.

But monuments are not the only enduring memorials to the dog's fidelity to man. Another memorial, and perhaps the most famous of all is the eulogy once pronounced by Senator George G. Vest of Missouri, which, delivered before a jury in that state famous for its hound dogs, has been reprinted in newspapers and regarded as a popular bit of American oratory more times, since it was uttered fifty years ago, than any other speech of his kind.

Famous as is this eulogy, there has gathered around it a cloud of myth and tradition which has obscured the facts of the case and the circumstances under which it was uttered. The true story of the lawsuit over the killing of Old Drum, the hound dog, made famous by Vest's eulogy, was recently made public by H. C. Merritt, editor of the Rocky Mountain Herald at Denver, Colo., who was a nephew of the two litigants in the case and who is thought to be in a position to know the facts. Mr. Merritt's story follows:

This hound case seems to be developing in the East many a legend, a myth as those exaggerated tales of Zane Grey. The litigants in this case were two uncles of the same name, but the inside family story is the killing of Old Drum really was an accident, the result of an overcharge of beans in a shotgun which was "loaded" to give him a good scare. If proper explanations had been given, the whole affair might have been settled amicably, but the explanations were neglected and as a result two families were involved in a bitter court feud and the hound came to grief.

The squabble came into public notice when Leonidas Hornsby, my mother's brother, was accused of the murder, who had married my mother's sister, of having killed Hornsby's favorite hunting dog, Drum.

Both families were well-to-do, or the case never would have been so glibly and again carried to the Supreme court of Missouri in lengthy and expensive litigation.

Drum was as popular at the Hornsby place in Johnson county, Missouri, as at the farm of his master, Charles Burden, who lived nearby. Drum would go over to the Hornsby's and during those visits was often used by Uncle Leon and others for hunting. Game was then abundant in that part of Missouri, which had been much desolated by the Civil war.

Some animal, wild or tame, was disturbing the peace of the Hornsby family; finally it was discovered that Drum was the guilty one. Uncle Leon, as I have heard the story, suggested to one of the younger members of the family, that he load a shotgun with beans and pepper old Drum with a shot. It so happened that the shotgun was overloaded, so the range was too close, and instead of giving Drum a good "peppering" he was killed. There was no intention at all, according to this story, to kill Drum. This story about a poor man loading his favorite hound through the wicked act of another is Eastern myth.

The mistake was that Uncle Charles was not informed of the accidental

Senator Vest's Tribute

The best friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads.

The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog. A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground, where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer; he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert, he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journey through the heavens.

If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him, to guard him against danger, to fight against his enemies. And when the last scene of all comes and death takes his master to its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way; there by the grave side will the noble dog be found, his head between his master's paws, his eyes sad, but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even in death.

Relieving Body's Tension

French gymnastics are to make the body flexible and to free it from habits of muscular tension, and relaxing exercises are used. These consist in making absolutely limp one part of the body after another, and finally the whole at once by removing all tension from the articulation.

WOODPECKERS' BAND

The Woodpecker family were around on various trees drumming, drumming on the bark.

Mr. Hairy Woodpecker, Mr. Downy Woodpecker and Mr. Red-headed Woodpecker were hard at work.

"Let's start a band," suggested Mr. Hairy Woodpecker.

"What's that you say?" asked Mr. Red-headed Woodpecker, who had been so busy at work that he had not heard what Mr. Hairy Woodpecker had been suggesting.

"A band," repeated Mr. Hairy Woodpecker.

"What sort of a band?" asked Mr. Red-headed Woodpecker.

"In the first place," continued Mr. Hairy Woodpecker, "our bills are not only fine tools for the work we have to get the insects from the trees, and burrowing for our nests, but they should be splendid to use in beating the drums in a band."

"Where would we get the drums?" asked Mr. Red-headed Woodpecker.

"The trees, of course, you silly!" said Mr. Hairy Woodpecker.

And Mr. Downy Woodpecker said: "Of course, of course. The trees will be our drums."

"Well, get the other birds," said Mr. Hairy Woodpecker, "to help us."

"We need something in a band besides the drums. We will ask the goldfinches, the mocking birds, the bobolinks, the phoebes, and chickadee families, all of the warbler and vireo families, and the robins of course."

"Then I think we'll ask the orioles and the whippoorwills, the thrush family and the song sparrows."

"Oh, yes, yes," agreed Mr. Red-headed Woodpecker.

And Mr. Downy Woodpecker said: "What kind of an instrument is that?"

"Shoe horn."

"What does it play?"

"Foot notes," St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"Oh," said Mr. Hairy Woodpecker, "I never thought about that."

"I better mind; you can have little parts to sing alone, and other choruses where you will all sing together."

"I am sure it will be a very fine band affair we have practiced."

"Oh," said Mr. Hairy Woodpecker, "if the bird band isn't to be the finest in the land, at least we'll make a cheerful noise."

"And how," said the farmer's wife, 'did you come to lose such a nice home?'

"Term expired," said the tramp.

Join our band. We will beat the drums.

"And just what do you want us to do?" asked Mr. Robin Redbreast, who was always such a snob.

"You can all sing so differently," chirped a song sparrow. "We know different tunes and different songs."

"Oh," said Mr. Hairy Woodpecker, "I never thought about that."

"I better mind; you can have little parts to sing alone, and other choruses where you will all sing together."

"I am sure it will be a very fine band affair we have practiced."

"Oh," said Mr. Hairy Woodpecker, "if the bird band isn't to be the finest in the land, at least we'll make a cheerful noise."

CHILD'S BEST LAXATIVE IS CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

HURRY MOTHER! A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" now will thoroughly clean the little bowels and in a few hours you have a well, playful child again. Even if cross, feverish, bilious, constipated or full of cold, children love its pleasant taste.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother, you must say "California." Refuse any imitation.

CALOMEL ATTACKS THE BONES AND DEADENS THE BOWELS

Never take calomel. It is mercury—a dangerous drug. If you are constipated, bilious, sick, headachy, stomachic, sour, meals don't taste right, hot days make you drowsy and lazy, take Dodson's Liver Tonic. That's all you need. Calomel salivates. That's why you have to take salts the next day to get it out of your system so it will not act on your bowels. You have to stay at home a day to recuperate from the shock it gives you. No wonder Dodson's Liver

Tonic is so popular. All you do is take a spoonful at night. By morning you are cleaned out good, head is clear, you feel as light as a feather; you are not sick, no danger of salivation, and you can eat anything you want. Think of that.

Get the big bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic from your nearest store. They all have it. Keep it in the house so you will have it handy to take right before going to bed.

Geographic Division

"Piedmont Plain" is a name used in the physiography of the United States to designate that part of the Atlantic coast plain which lies between the Appalachian highland and the low coastal plain proper. It is distinguished from the latter topographically by being more rugged and eroded with deeper river valleys and geologically by consisting of much older and harder rock strata. The change from the hard to the soft and recent formation is marked by a definite line of escarpments over which nearly all the Atlantic rivers fall in rapids or cataracts, and the line is known as the "Fall Line." The Piedmont plain is less defined in New England than in the southern states. It is narrowest and also approaches closest to the sea in New York and broadens southward, being about 300 miles wide in North Carolina.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

BY REV. H. H. FLETCHER, D.D., Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, (C. 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for July 24 DAVID AND GOLIATH

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 17:1-58. GOLDEN TEXT—"The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?"

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Boy Overcomes a Giant. JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy's Brave Deed. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why David Was Not Afraid. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Victories of Faith.

I. The Contending Armies (17:1-3). On the north side of the Valley of Elah, on the highlands, stood Saul and his army, and on the south side stood the Philistine hosts, eyeing each other for battle.

(a) He was a giant (v. 4), perhaps eleven and one-half feet in height. The appearance of such a man greatly intimidated the Israelites. Saul, who once was brave, made no attempt or effort to meet this giant.

(b) He was filled with proud conceit. His size, his buffery of war, and his strength, caused him to believe that no evil could befall him. His conceit became his snare.

(c) He was boastful. No doubt he was a much-talked-of man among the Philistines. Their possession of such a man recalled the former experience of their nation when Samson, the Israelite giant, wrought such great mischief among them.

(d) He was defiant. He openly defied the army of Israel—the people of the Most High. That is just like the champion of Satan's army today. He is becoming more and more defiant of the Lord's people, and ultimately will defy the Almighty Himself.

(e) He was scornful. He treated the Israelites with the utmost contempt. This is what Satan is doing daily. He treats God's people with the utmost contempt.

2. David, the Israelite. In the providence of God, David was sent to the camp at a time to hear the blatant boasting of this proud and contemptible Philistine champion. His three eldest brethren were in the army, and his father sent him with some provisions for them as well as for the captain.

For this "useful as well as ornamental" beach robe striped khaki kilt is the preferred medium. The cap is also of this homony-striped material.

Of all the interesting beach styles none are perhaps more interesting, at least from the point of novelty, than are the capes and coats made of heavy unbleached muslin, decorated to simulate hand-painting. For instance an artful all-enveloping cape with scarf ties at the throat is bordered to a considerable depth with a huge colorful fish and seashell design.

This new fashion of hand-painted unbleached muslin for resort wear bids fair to assume the proportions of a widespread vogue before the summer is past. One can make such clever cooie coats of the muslin, painting them as amusingly and gorgeously gay as one chooses.

Gingham, too, is receiving its share of notice for beach apparel and bathing suits. Cretonne, also, continues to enliven the beach style, as it appears made up in robes, parasols,

IV. The Victory (vv. 49-53). The presumptuous champion was killed and the army routed. This victory is a prophesy of a greater one when the devil, the defiant enemy of God and man, shall be slain and his army put to flight. David is thus the type of Christ and Goliath a type of Satan.

Goliath's sword was turned against himself and speared the Christ, shall turn Satan's weapons against him for his own destruction.

Souls That Surrender The Lord has the witness of the Spirit given and they will know beyond one doubt whether or not they belong to the Lord.—Ephesians.

ABOUT BEACH ENSEMBLES AND MATCHING PARASOLS

WHEN madam or mademoiselle tells so happily, lazily under her vivid beach parasol or promenade in the warm sands or perhaps prettily poses upon the pier as she does in this picture, she is expected to do so in gorgeous array.

exercises as fastidious taste as she does in the choosing of her most formal and fetching ballroom attire.

This demand for harmony in dress has resulted in a genuine "get together" spirit among couturier, milliner, bootmaker, jeweler and others who contribute to the costuming of the fair sex.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he constantly advised mothers to give only a harmless laxative which would help to establish natural bowel "regularity."

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin mothers have a regulating laxative which they can depend upon whenever a child is constipated, bilious, feverish or sick from a cold, indigestion or shade of scenic print silk to match the scarf and hat which milady chooses to perfect her ensemble such as is shown in this picture.

The latest in for handbag and parasol to show some relationship, perhaps in color, perhaps in material. Snakeskin trimmings are finding their way into the realm of woman's fashions most successfully.

Ribbon plays an important part in relating the hat to the parasol and the identical kind used to trim the former also borders the latter. Ombre grosgrain ribbon is mostly favored for this.

cushions and also lounging pads. It's the "nooks" that counts, whether it be this of one's new motor car, one's mansion or bungalow, one's yacht or one's airplane, or one's costume if you please. "Epiquer" as applied to the latter sums up in one word—accessories. A simple matter perhaps, that of purchasing a frock, a coat or both, but the responsibility does not end there. It is but at its beginning. The real challenge to good taste—and incidentally to one's pocket-book—rests in the matching up of headwear, neckwear, footwear, gloves, handbag, parasol, jewelry, boutonniere and other items down to the minutest detail. Especially is this so, since fashion has become so arbitrary on the subject, accepting as an evidence of correct dress, nothing less than a perfectly appointed—a unified ensemble.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

QUEER QUIRKS IN HUMAN DESTINY

By HARRY R. CALKINS

Russia Founded by Pirates
THE Empire of Russia was founded by pirates who had been invited by the citizens of Novgorod to defend them against other pirates.
Novgorod in the north of Russia was a republic and for many years one of the mightiest cities of the earth. Its position was unique. Surrounded on all sides by tribes of barbarians who roamed over the vast plains of two continents, Novgorod alone of all settlements of Scythians attained a degree of civilization. Its Russian people who drank the blood of their enemies, scalped them and used their scalps as napkins and who ate the flesh of their parents...

Once arrived at our destination, I stepped and briefly surveyed our surroundings. To the south extended, for a short distance, a row of trees; but beyond this the whole surface of the stream lay exposed to the view of the blacks; my chances, though none of the best, would leave me no overwhelmingly against me.
To take to the water, then; swim forth into midchannel while I was still sheltered by the woods, and then make straight for the island—a poor enough expedient, but the best I could devise. If I only had a boat of some description and could dash for the island at full speed, I might make it.

There have been times in my life when I have felt that things have gone exactly and precisely as they should on this occasion, at least, they were to go exactly and precisely right, for, as I took one last look, first down, then up the river, in the vain hope of discovering a craft of some kind, lo and behold! there to the north of me and not over fifty yards distant, I beheld a canoe.
It was not, however, a canoe unoccupied, apparently sprung into existence from nowhere simply because I had wished for it. Fate was not so kind as that. Still, it was a canoe, and the one in the bow was a stalwart specimen, his companion in the stern smaller and remarkably ugly, with lips of prodigious thickness and the usual retreating forehead of his race. Both men had paddles in their hands and were propelling the light craft, downstream in a leisurely manner. Clearly enough, this rising of the slaves was general in its extent, and these blacks were doubtless coming from some plantation up the river to exchange news with their fellow rebels on the McAllister domain. That their rising had been successful I had no doubt, for the muzzle of a rifle protruded over the side of the canoe within easy reach of the paddler in the bow.

I was in a quandary. I hated the thought of taking human life, but I had no quarrel, and with whom I sympathized for the heavy burden of their oppressive lot. Yet that canoe I must have, and my first thought was to step from the bushes as they neared my hiding place, level my rifle at them, and order them to bring their craft ashore. There, I thought, I could draw the odds drawback to this scheme. In the first place, they were two to my one and might have pistols as well as my rifle, so that it had better be a grapple I would be no more than a child in his hands. And then, with a sudden inspiration, I remembered my companion, "Quashy." I whispered to him, "I step out of the woods, shout to them—in their own tongue—to jump aboard for their lives. I'll attend to the rest."

He nodded understandingly, and without further parley, for the canoe was now close at hand, I left the shelter of the trees and stepped forth full at the man in the bow. At the same instant I heard Quashy's guttural shout, and almost instantaneously the plunge of the oars which shattered the river's calm, and two black heads cut through the water, heading upstream and taking a quartering course for the island, with the loss of a second, I waded out, finding the water unexpectedly shallow, and in an instant I had drawn the canoe to shore, and, leaping in, started in the direction of the island.
Progress in one of these light crafts is rapid, even with an unskilled hand at the paddle, and in a very few moments I had gained a position where I might turn and make straight down the river. For an instant I thought of continuing to the western shore and thus baffling the negroes on the plantation, but I remembered in time that there were other estates beyond the hills, and even now skirmishes might be lurking in the dense vegetation ahead of me. With the memory of my own aggrandisement so fresh in mind, I had no wish to meet a similar fate, and therefore I turned about my course and headed the bow of the canoe for the south. Undoubtedly that sweep of the paddle saved me, for a second later, to my surprise, I felt a sharp report, a bullet whizzed past me, and I bent to my work in earnest, praying that my assailant was accounting algae, and not my body of company. Apparently this was the case, for no more shots followed, but to balance matters I heard lusty yells from the plantation, and, catching a hasty glance in that direction, I could see them shoving off two boats to intercept me before I could gain the shelter of the island.

There was now necessity for speed and nothing else, and I plied my paddle for my very life. For a time the issue seemed doubtful, the leading boat, well manned and driven forward at rapid speed, presently reached a position where two negroes in the bow dropped their oars and commenced firing; but fortunately for me their aim was poor and their bullets went wild. Quite instinctively, and without stopping to weigh the advisability of my act, I stopped paddling long enough to pick up my own rifle and take a flying shot at one of the marksmen, who was standing erect in the bow. In the act of ramming home a charge, the shot could not be called difficult, though I may say in my own behalf that my hand was unsteady from my exertions, and that the motion both of my own craft and that of my pursuers was not conducive to exactness of aim. Therefore I did not kill the man, but only wounded him; yet the man who probably in my favor, lost with a loud cry of pain, he staggered, lost his balance and fell at full length among the rowers, completely demoralizing the crew. At the same moment, my own boat, in an excitement they had taken no thought of their approach to the island, I veered from the house stretched the other rifeless man, and the man usually, completed their discomfiture, and both boats immediately abandoned the pursuit, and got out of range with all possible speed, leaving me free to continue on my way unmolested. A minute or two later I drove my frail craft high on the beach, and hurried ashore toward the house, to find myself to receive me, and an instant later, with a great feeling of thankfulness in my heart, I darted in and closed the door behind me. Clearly enough, some what might, now at least I could be fighting for the girl I loved.

a closer look at him, I could see, to my dismay, that his wiry figure and keen-featured face, with bright eyes peering from under tufted eyebrows, betokened a man of action. And at once he answered me, readily enough, "I do not drink, young man, and my brains, I dare venture, are equal to your own." Then, turning to McAllister, he continued: "I mean precisely what I say. This youth bears a remarkable—say, a startling resemblance to my client, but he is not the man. I have known Robert McAllister since he lay in his cradle. This man is shorter, broader in the shoulder; his voice is deeper; his eyes are lighter—in a score of ways he differs from the other. I give you my word—my oath, if you like—he is not your nephew!"
At once I determined to hazard a bold stroke. "Uncle," I cried, "we waste time. Whether I am your nephew or not makes no difference now. These slaves of yours have for you on a sheet of paper the months of the year, and the words, 'Respected Uncle' and 'Your obedient nephew.'"

Now there is nothing more certain than the world than this; that truth, in the end, will prevail; and I could feel that the stranger's bristliness and his quiet air of being in the right were having their effect on McAllister. "Very well," he agreed; and as he motioned me to come forward I noted with a pang, that he made the gesture with his left hand, while his right held his pistol, aimed at my breast in a manner which strongly reminded me of Barclay. "Here are paper, ink and quill," he said; "I will get the letters." And then, to me, he added, in a manner which spoke volumes, "Place your pistol on that chair; then come hither and write as he suggests."

For one and a half hour of drawing then and there, and of trying to drill McAllister with a bullet, but a moment's reflection showed me the folly of such a course. A hundred to one he would kill me first, and, even if he did not, and my shot went home, there would still be the stranger and the mad dog and the mad dog and the mad dog, there seemed, indeed, small choice between dying now or later, when my falsehood stood revealed, yet there remained the slender chance that something might intervene to save me, and on this hazard I determined to rely. Accordingly, I placed my pistol on the chair and turned my back to the table with an air of confidence which I was far from feeling.

Then Ross, swinging up a Trap Door.

butchered Stively and his men. They'll attack the island next; perhaps at any moment. An hour from now we may all be dead. Let's defend ourselves first. If my life is spared, I'll prove this man to be a liar and a cheat."
My stratagem, however, was doomed to failure. With a braver man it would, I believe, have succeeded, but as it was, McAllister's overmastering dread of Barclay and his morbid fears of treachery or surprise, were now thoroughly aroused. And thus he answered me, "They won't attack us yet; I've been watching them. They're still at work on their ladders. And if they do attack," he added, with a still blacker glance at me, "I want no spots among my troops." Then, after a moment's thought, he turned to the stranger. "Well," he challenged, "you lawyers are said to be artful at the devil himself. How can you prove to me this lad is not Robert McAllister?"

The lawyer reflected for an instant; then, asked, "Have you any letters from your nephew?"
"I have," McAllister answered. "Half a dozen, at least. In my chest, upstairs."
I heard question and answer with a sinking heart. That the lawyer meant to compare my handwriting with McAllister's was evident; and it was obvious, also, that I could not meet the test, for my fingers, though skillful with a rifle, have never held the pen, and I have always written—when forced to write—in a most ill-formed and sprawling hand. That it would resemble the writing of Robert McAllister there was not one chance in a million. I felt that I was doomed.
And now the lawyer spoke again, remorselessly pursuing his plan. "Then get them," he ordered, "and in the meantime ask this gentleman to write

CHAPTER XIII

"Port After Stormy Seas."

For a moment I was too spent to notice anything; but, to my mingled joy and dismay, I saw that it was Helen who had opened the door, and I should have clasped her in my arms, but as she turned toward me, she lifted a restraining hand. "Flick," she whispered, "two of my men are there—a man here—a lawyer—looking for Robert McAllister. They come from the same town; he's known McAllister all his life. What shall we do?"
I gazed at her, aghast, while a great resentment at the ways of fate filled my heart. I had striven hard for our safety, and I was to be left, in the face of odds, to reach the island—and now to be greeted like this! How could we escape? The room, with its single window, I thought, I could not open, for the resemblance and the scar across my cheek. Should I take the chance, and try to pass for McAllister? Or should we run for it, risking both the danger of pursuit and the peril of capture by the slaves. That, it seemed, would be almost certain death. And then I thought, "What if I could open the door, and I should have clasped her in my arms, but as she turned toward me, she lifted a restraining hand. 'Flick,' she whispered, 'two of my men are there—a man here—a lawyer—looking for Robert McAllister. They come from the same town; he's known McAllister all his life. What shall we do?'"

"Here's an old friend of yours, Robert," said McAllister, "with news for you from your home."
At the words the man stepped forward, cordially enough and with outstretched hand, but as our fingers touched, he caught me by the wrist, and I felt a sharp tug. This greeting sharply toward the Scotchman. "This isn't Bob McAllister," he cried.
Andrew McAllister stared, as well he might, for the man who had just greeted me, was not the man who had just greeted me. "Not Robert McAllister?"
"Who do you mean by that?"
It seemed to me it was time for me to take a hand. "What madman charged you here, uncle?" I exclaimed. "He'll be telling you next that you're not Andrew McAllister. Is he drunk or crazy?"
But the stranger, having alight right upon his side, was not so easily put down. And at I had a chance to take

Johnson Saw No Good Qualities in Merchant

Doctor Johnson was bitterly prejudiced against all merchants, says the Standard. "Exchange is the life of the laborer, but he is happy in reflecting that by his labor, he contributes to the fertility of the earth and the support of his fellow creatures, but we find in such philosophical day laborer. A merchant may, perhaps, be a man of an enlarged mind, but there is nothing in trade connected with a large mind."
"Give Name to Association"
The name "Lloyd's" applied to the Underwriters' Association of London, is derived from a coffee house kept by Edward Lloyd in Tower Street in the Seventeenth century, where underwriters met to transact business.
"Nauff Said!"
"Keep quiet, you idiot!" shouted a crowd in court. And everyone's present did.—Saginaw News-Courier.

Master of Music Had Novel Piano in Mind

Berlioz, the illustrious master whose name dominates French music of the last century, ordered from a piano manufacturer a specially constructed instrument, so fashioned that the strings could be used as a harp.
Berlioz loved to play stringed instruments and in his early days gave lessons on the harp. In spite of the poverty which he mentions in his memoirs, he had succeeded in buying a piano, but it was not the sort of instrument he wanted. "Quite!" To the southerly point. There's a boat there. It's our only chance.
And, rushing to the floor, she unbarred for her the trap door. I gazed down. For an instant I thought that she had lost her wits, for what was the use in attempting to escape, if we thus told the lawyer of our destination? But the next second I understood, for with finger on lip she caught up my rifle and pistol, thrust them into my hands, and motioning me to follow, led the way, on tiptoe, down the hall and into the dining room; then hurriedly explained: "There's a fellow coming in. I found it yesterday. We've thrown them off the track. Now we can hide."

Voice Distinction

The distinction between a soprano and mezzo-soprano is range. In the case of lyric and dramatic voices the difference is in timbre. Grove's dictionary calls attention to the fact that many mezzo-soprano can sing higher notes than many soprano; but there is a middle to every voice, which, as a rule, is not difficult to find, and about this the tessitura of the music (literally, the texture) and the practice should be woven.

A Chinese newspaper published this letter from an applicant for work: "Sir: I am Wing-I can drive typewriter with good noise and my English is great—My last job left itself from me, for good reason that large man has dead. Volcanoes Mar Gayurers Volcanic eruptions in 1886 destroyed the gayurers and the gayurers in many instances, Iceland also has some notable gayurers, and, strangely enough, their waters are the hottest in Europe.

$350,000 Hatching Chicks

The opportunity for some one to make a million dollars right here in Muleshoe is knocking at your door. Who will be the party to make this neat fortune? Thousands of chicks were shipped into this city last season. Many more thousands will come in next year. Here is a chance of a lifetime for some one.

Many people still think the poultry business is only a pin money proposition. They think you may be able to make a couple of hundred dollars in the chicken business, but that at best, it is a "small potato business." For these reasons I have selected the above heading. Mr. D. T. Farror of Illinois, in eleven years, has made over $350,000 hatching chicks. The story goes that 12 years ago he stood on the streets of this city jobless, then he made an unsuccessful attempt in another business. It was actually only seven years ago he started out in the business, hatchegg chick.

He has mammoth incubators holding 1,034,000 eggs at one setting. Each year he hatches a total of 7,000,000 eggs. He has 65 people on the job from January until July. He ships more than 4,800,000 chicks each year. As many as 40,000 chicks have been hatched in one day and as many as 270,000 in one week. The yearly turnover in sales exceeds a half million dollars. At times during the season he has received as many as 525 orders, totaling over $10,000. He has had to return as high as 150 orders in a day because he had more business than he could handle. More than a quarter million chicks are sold over the counter in the hatching building each year. To obtain the necessary eggs, more than 1000 carefully selected farm flocks, ranging in size from 75 to 1000 hens, making a total of 200,000 breeder, are required.

Just what does such an enterprise mean to a community? The breeds in the community eat 60,000 tons of feed each year. Over three hundred thousand dollars is invested in poultry houses on the farms, where the breeders are kept. The local feedman, lumberman, banker and hardware dealer, in fact everybody comes under the influence of this chick hatching business.

Do you think the people in that community are shouting overproduction? In Texas and Oklahoma, I have known of many cases where somebody would put in 12,000 egg incubator, his neighbors would begin whispering to each other, and extend sympathy to his wife, because surely soon she must be in dire need of food and clothes.

In every community, right today are wonderful opportunities. Young men, they are knocking at your door. In every community there is a great need for one or more public incubators of great capacities. In every community there is a need for several dozen poultry breeding farms.

Your town needs a large number of commercial egg farms, yes, real egg factories. Some towns make special efforts to secure the locations for more and larger factories. Why not go after a few real egg factories, so that fresh infertile eggs can be shipped out in car load lots.

Here again we better make a statement to sidetrack the calamity howlers, by bringing out the fact that right now Texas and Oklahoma are importing eggs from the North in car load lots. Hundreds of car loads of eggs come from the North and are shipped thru Texas into Mexico, Cuba and South America. What a wonderful market we have. What opportunities for our young people, if only you are willing to work. You do not have to leave your community, your community offers as many opportunities as any other.—By F. W. Kazmier, Bryan, Texas.

Up to June 1st about five million chicks were shipped, a gain of 10 per cent over the corresponding period in 1926. During March, April and May a carload of chicks is despatched every Monday and Tuesday. These cars are of the standard sixty foot mail car type, and each is loaded with 86,000 chicks. During the balance of the week individual shipments are constantly going out.

Oh you calamity howlers, where are you? Do such facts make any impression at all?

At Silver Lake, Indiana, a railroad engineer got tired of his job and after getting a little experience he launches out in the 'hatching chicks' business. He started with two hens in 1919 and today he hatches each year over one million chicks, and he is still each year increasing his capacity. In the State of Indiana there are over 200 other hatcheries, all doing a great business.

In every community, right today are wonderful opportunities. Young men, they are knocking at your door. In every community there is a great need for one or more public incubators of great capacities. In every community there is a need for several dozen poultry breeding farms.
