Local Post American Legion Elect Officers For Coming Year

On Friday, November 11, Ben Richardson Post, American Legion, met at the Legion Home for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. There were a good number of the men present, and as the meeting was held at noon, an excellent lunch was served. Right here we want to thank the good ladies who helped make this dinner the success that it was, and let the absent members know just what they missed.

Being Armistice Day, thoughts and conversation naturally turned to incidents of nine years ago. An hour or so was soon spent in "swapping yarns," after which the business of the day was taken up. Those elected to fill offices for another term were: Connie Gupton, Post Commander; C. S. Holland, Post Adjutant; K. K. Smith, Vice-Commander; J. E. Aldridge, Finance Officer; D. E. Keeney, Sergeant-at-Arms, and L. C. Jones, Chaplain.

There are quite a number of ex-service men in the community who do not belong to the Legion, and it is hoped that they will join, and not only join but take an active part in the affairs of the organization. Meetings will be held each month and the boys earnestly request that all ex-service men attend, whether you are a member or not.

One Killed, Three Injured in Car Wreck Friday

Four young people of Portales, N. M., enroute to Muleshoe, last Friday night, met with a serious automobile accident near Farwell, when the car in which they were riding overturned on a sharp curve. Francis Lyons, 23, was killed almost instantly, his skull being crushed. The others escaped with minor injuries. According to the people seeing the car after the accident it was practically ruined. It is thought that the driver was unable to see the sharp curve in time to check the speed of the car, and in trying to make the turn the wheels on one side crumpled.

Post Office Moves Into New Quarters First of Week

Monday the post office moved into new quarters just south of the old location. Need for larger space was one reason for the change. Workmen were busy last week getting everything in shape for the new home of the office. There is a new concrete walk in front, while inside there is space for additional boxes as the demand arises.

Second Lyceum Number Was Well Attended Friday Night

The second number of the Lyceum Course was well attended last Friday night. Mr. George Emerson Francis gave an interesting lecture to the young people on the Jazz Jungle. He is a very entertaining talker and much good should be derived from such programs. Watch for announcement of the next number at an early date.

Highway Officials to Meet January 9th

County Highway officials, representing each of the 3070 counties of the United States, will assemble in Cleveland, Ohio, on January 9th for the first annual meeting of the national association of county highway officials. The meeting will be one of the most important ever held by those connected with the construction, maintenance and operation of county highways.

The meeting was called following the organization last June of a new County Highway Officials' Division of the American Road Builders' Association, of which Thomas J. Wasser of Jersey City, N. J., is president.

The sessions will comprise the reports of various standards committees, the objectives of which are to draw up standards for county administration, finance, legislation, construction, maintenance and operation of county roads. The reports will consist of a summary of the best practices as now in force in the various counties of the United States, together with recommended standards.

The convention which will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, is the world's largest good roads convention and in connection with it will be held a road machinery and equipment exposition of over 300 carloads of road building maintenance equipment, covering more than four acres of floor space.

New Improvement for Chevrolet Trucks

In order to enlarge the field of service of the trucks manufactured by the Chevrolet Motor company, Sidney Corbett, manager of the Commercial Car Division, today announced that a four speed transmission is now available for all Chevrolet one-ton types.

This new transmission, Mr. Corbett said, will provide 107 per cent greater application of engine power than the regularly equipped three speed transmission, and is particularly adapted to such work as pulling out of plowed fields, sand pits and similar heavy duty service. Provision also is made in it, Mr. Corbett said, for a power take-off so that the power from the engine may be applied to various devices such as hydraulic hoist, pressure units for sprayers, pumps, etc.

The monthly meeting of the commissioners court was held Monday, at which the usual business was transacted.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Vincent, father and mother of Mrs. D. E. Keeney, experienced a serious automobile accident Monday, while enroute to Muleshoe from Mutual, Okla. Just east of Dimmitt, while making a sharp turn, the Buick sedan in which they were riding, skidded into the ditch, striking a bank and almost completely ruining the car. Mr. and Mrs. Vincent escaped with minor injuries. The car was brought into Muleshoe by Mr. Keeney Monday afternoon.

A very pleasant evening was spent, and they will meet next week with Mrs. Daniel.

Chamber of Commerce Met Tuesday Night

The Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce, which has been inactive for several weeks, met in the commissioners court room Wednesday night to discuss plans and a possible program to be followed the coming year. The different business houses were well represented, however there should have been more present. The second Wednesday night in each month was decided on as meeting nights, and an effort will be made to get every business man in the town to come out to these meetings. It will be to the interest of everyone in the city to take part in the activities of this organization, as the day is now, when a town without an active Chamber of Commerce is not even in the running. There are innumerable problems coming up every day that are of vital interest to the entire community that can be handled successfully only through a Chamber of Commerce. Let's all fall in line and work for a more prosperous town and community. Don't forget the next meeting night, the second Wednesday in next month, and be on hand.

Sheep Increase 40 Per Cent In One Year

An increase of 40 per cent in the number of sheep on Hale county farms this year over last is the estimate of D. F. Sansom, veteran livestock buyer of Plainview. Experiences of farmers with these profitable animals have led others to adopt them as an important sideline in their business.

That they are profitable is shown by the report of one man who only nine months ago purchased his first mature ewes. He states that counting the price of the ewes raised this spring and the wool clipped, he has made 130 per cent on the money he originally invested in the animals.

A farm of 160 acres can with ease accommodate 50 ewes, Mr. Sansom believes, while some in this county have as many as 200 without inconvenience and with small expense.—Plainview News 130 per cent is good returns on money invested. No doubt there are farmers in this community who could follow the example of our Hale county neighbors with the same results. It seems that the successful farmer is the one who has sheep, hogs, cows and chickens to feed the surplus farm products to, thereby turning waste into cash.

Messrs. A. W. Coker, Sam Welch, J. J. Lawler, L. S. Baron and Byron Griffith were shopping in Clovis last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Henington were Clovis visitors Sunday.

Muleshoe Ships Large Number of Thanksgiving Turkeys

Muleshoe is not to be left off the map when it comes to the production of turkeys. Turkeys have been coming in in large numbers for the past week, one produce house having bought and shipped a carload Monday and Tuesday. The Thanksgiving market has been good and many farmers have added to their bank account by raising these birds. Farmers all over the country are beginning to realize that the one crop system leads to ruin, and are finding that the best and most profitable way to sell their feed is by the chicken, turkey, cow and hog route. In talking to the man that started the first produce house in Muleshoe, the Journal man was told that three years ago at the beginning of his produce business, it took him one week to get one can of cream. Today there is approximately 100 cans a week shipped from Muleshoe, and the price is good practically the year round. The chicken market is nearly always good too, and several thousand pounds are being shipped weekly. One essential point in the success of the dairy, poultry and hog business is feed. The country around Muleshoe is blessed with plenty of good land for raising this, so why not do it and market the product in a way that will bring real returns.

"The Cat's Pajamas" at Brooks Theatre Friday and Saturday

"A serious comedy" is what Ernest Vajda, brilliant Hungarian dramatist, calls this picture. It is a tale, half serious, half humorous, of a little seamstress and a grand opera singer—a romance of modern life in which two extremes of American society meet.

Also "The Mystery Pilot." Here's another good Zane Grey picture. "The Vanishing American" will be shown on Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 23 and 24 at the price of 15 and 30c. Never before has this picture been shown at this low price of admission.

Here at last is the great romance of the American Indian—revealing in the swift march of its events the tragedy and the glory of a whole race, and the true essence of the West, as only Zane Grey can express it. It is the romance of Nopahie, the young Nopah warrior, cursed with the strange and conflicting heritage of a white man's education and the fierce soul of an Indian. How Marian Warner, golden-haired, fascinating, came from the East to the bleak table lands of the great Western reservation, and how she shared with Nopahie his struggles in behalf of his people, make a story more enthralling than any Zane Grey has before written. He has portrayed unforgettably a situation unique in fiction, the story of a love which, passionate and unconventional, gathered its strength from the great crimson-canyon tops where Nopahie and Marian met.

Vance Wagon, who is attending college at Canyon, Texas, visited homefolks last week-end.

Freeman Ford, a student of Texas Tech, visited Chas. White last week-end.

"Miss Quarrier, you know my wishes... "Mr. Guthrie is an educated gentleman..."

"It is not difficult to tell who's commanding here," chuckled Guthrie. "I don't like to humiliate the little man..."

"Oh, yes! I've been useful to them—that's what he does, does that sort of authority which my honorable brother bestowed upon him..."

"If I had told you, would you have turned to see me?" she asked, turning her head and meeting his eyes with frank, impersonal gaze.

"I hope so." He was thrilled by the thought that Joan Quarrier's friendship was like that...

"I would like to ask you a question," he said at length because—because what?...

"The question won't wait," he replied. "Has your brother written you of my engagement?"

"Thank you! I wanted to tell you that it has been broken—by her—in this Christmas season..."

"I told you last night he was a blessing in disguise." She looked squarely in his eyes as she said...

"No, I don't see," she said, hoarsely, gazing straight ahead. "My brother has told that story in Montreal—my brother!"

"I'm sorry I told you," he replied, shocked at the depth of her emotion. "But I wanted you to know that my checks are off—I'm a free man. I wanted you to know..."

"My brother—How low, utterly low!" he heard her say. Then she got herself in hand—straightened, and said: "I will write at once to your brother..."

"You'd do no such thing. Do you suppose I'd allow you to soil yourself with this family row? Your brother has undertaken to do me a service, for which I thank him..."

"I mean every syllable of it. Now let's forget it all and get on to the Camerons before you freeze out here! It's growing sharp," she said, but he meant was his caution—but how gruesome it was—awful!"

"As he walked beside her under the frosted stars to the mission, Guthrie strove to shift the conversation to the personal—to recapture the note struck with such poignancy when she learned the aftermath of her brother's story in Montreal, but the armor of her reserve defied him..."

"The man whose love had been on his lips when his hand touched her shoulder—the new mood of the girl defied analysis. He had left the Camerons full of what Joan Quarrier had come to mean to him—hungry to tell her there above the white Albany what he had first sensed that September night, caught in the magic of her nearness..."

CHAPTER XI She was waiting in the clearing when Shot looked up, sniffed, looked at her curiously, then pawed her joyfully with fore feet. "Shot, you know me?" she asked...

"He has a good memory for his friends," said Garth, as the dog leaped in the air around the pleased girl. "I think it quite wonderful, though, that he should remember me. He knew me but five days..."

"His master had reason to remember the guests who insulted him in his own house." "One of his guests," countered Guthrie, "was an angel of mercy. We seldom forget the visitation of angels, do we?"

"I told you last night he was a blessing in disguise." She looked squarely in his eyes as she said: "But I did not believe you, Mr. Exlie." With a gesture of helplessness, he insisted, "But how am I to prove it to an unbeliever?"

"You're trying again for the spring trade from the island?" she asked. "No, with South there, and the echo in his, and Indian voices in their ears, we shall hold the hunters who crossed the strait..."

"I mean, Joan Quarrier, that you have shot your love to the truth," he plunged in impetuously. "I mean that you are coupling me with ghost-dead memories; that you will not see—understand—" In his eagerness to clarify her vision of him—erase the memory of Ethel with whom, in spite of his denials, he still seemed hopelessly involved, Garth floundered—came to a halt through sheer excess of emotion...

"From de Kapskau. I go to de boat to trade some fox." "You get dat done from de boat—steal it!" hazarded Etienne, guessing at the nature of the bulky load on the Indian's sled.

"The Cree nodded. "Dey not use it now." "I'm going over to find out. It's my duty. Boucher will wait for days. They may not all be dead. I'm going."

"Suppose et was a trick? Suppose de ones not dead wait for der revenge, w'en we come?" "We'll stalk 'em and see."

"Dropping his mittens and deliberately reaching for his capote, Etienne drew his skinning knife. Carefully running a thumb over the edge, he thrust his face into that of the distance, looking at the sled-like eyes snapped as he hit off the words: "You were holding on to our friendship," she said bluntly, extended her hand.

"Hour by hour, over the coast ice, the light sled reeled off the miles. So good was the going, so keen the five dogs and the hungry men turned in to the river mouth to build a fire from driftwood and boll their kettle.

"I'd give a good deal to know how they took the news over there of the loss of the northern fur, Etienne said Guthrie busy with his plate of beans and bacon. "Hello! There's a team coming in over the ice. Wonder who it is..."

A mile from the noon camp at the river the sled, evidently headed for the mouth of the Kapskau, drew inshore. "A hunter from de Kapskau. We veel now hear how dey swear on de snow about our Christmas."

"You see from dere—you see den?" demanded the astute Etienne. "I were spee from?" snarled Savanne, thrusting a face fierce with suspicion, into the Cree's.

"The Indian had seen but one body and fled, so he said; but the schooner had been silent as a tomb. Queer that he had called repeatedly from the deck, without answer, except once, faintly, he had heard something—like the voice of a spirit."

"You see dead man. No answer when I yell," insisted the other, and seemingly at the memory of the ship of the dead, his small eyes filled with dread. "What happened? Was this man shot?" demanded Garth, exchanging glances with Savanne.

During the census taking in Russia, government officials charged with this task encountered strong and persistent opposition in certain peasant districts against the census. He explained to the authorities that counting the human beings and the horses would bring bad luck and that this was an ancient belief, which had many times been put to the test. This strange feeling of impending danger in the face of counting possessions is not restricted to Russia. Flemish peasants never count their sheep or geese before they go to bed.

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and soothe any little ill. Greatfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria's worth its weight in gold.

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. With your kidneys getting sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach aches, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

Take Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, refreshing little water drink. Drink lots of soft water.

Not His Kind Bob—The girl I marry must have lots of personality. Bert—I don't like her fat.

Boschee's Syrup Soothes the Throat loosens the phlegm, promotes expectoration, gives a clear, sweet taste free from coughing, 30c and 50c bottles, combined with little, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

President Asks Nation to Observe Thanksgiving

Washington, Oct. 26.—Declaring that the nation has passed through a year of domestic successes and tranquility marked with friendly relations with other countries of the world, President Coolidge called upon the people to set aside Thursday, November 24, as Thanksgiving Day on which they might consider the "manifold blessings which have come to them."

While the country has enjoyed material success, he said, there has also been an advance in "wisdom and spiritual understanding" and an increased desire for "the things that minister to the mind and soul."

Recalling that disaster has visited some states during the year, Mr. Coolidge declared that in continuing to remember those in affliction the country should rejoice in its power to extend a helping hand.

Eleven Months

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

IT'S—well, let's see—it's very near Eleven months, almost a year. Since you put on your hat one day And said good-bye and went away; And you, you smiled, and I smiled, too, That's all one ever dares to do; And then I heard a door that closed, And—well, whoever yet supposed Eleven months could follow then Before that door would swing again, That is, before that door would swing, And really mean a single thing!

Eleven months, or maybe more, Before one heard a swinging door Just seem to swing some certain way, I can't describe, that seemed to say, "He's here! He's home! He's on the stair!" Now where's my puff? and how's my hair?

Eleven months—and yet a week It was before I dared to speak, Or hardly dared to speak, for fear Somebody else around might hear Me—well, me gulping something down Because one man was out of town.

Now, isn't this a shameless note?—The worst a woman ever wrote, But I've been thinking more and more That ever since you shut the door, That anywhere you perchanced to be, That maybe you were just like me, And, just because I let you go, You didn't see, and didn't know, And didn't really understand; And wouldn't it be awful—land!—If somehow somewhere sometime you Were coming months and minutes, too!

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

UNIONS

TRULY, "In union there is strength," And it is this same principle, old as the ages, that started the first union, the medieval guild, as it was called, from "gild" meaning a payment. It is a travesty that the original "unions" were not organizations of "labor," but of employers. They were boards of trades formed by the proprietors of the industries of each town, for protection against "foreign" competition. The rules of the guild against trading with "foreigners" except under certain conditions preserved for the trade men of each town a monopoly of local business. Capitalists! The authority of the guilds in the regulation of trade was greater even than that enjoyed by the town governments.

With the development of industry the general merchant guild was superseded by the craft guilds—individual organizations for every trade or industry in the town. As the merchant guild had regulated the trade of the town in general the craft guild supervised its own trade or occupation.

So powerful were these craft guilds that it was impossible for a man to carry on business without subjecting himself to the rules of his guild. The guilds controlled a man's standing in his trade. Every worker had to serve for seven years as an apprentice without pay, when he became a "journeyman." This word was taken from the French "journée," which means day. For the men were employed and paid by the day. When a journeyman had saved enough money to open his own little shop he became a "master" tradesman. And here again we have capitalism in the trade unions, for only masters could become full-fledged members of the craft guild; but we learn that the proprietors and their employees worked in harmonious accord, without partisan interests, for the good of their craft. The millennium was here—about 500 years ago!

W. G. Harlan and Lela Mae Barron acted as host and hostess Saturday afternoon to some 22 little guests. The occasion was the celebration of W. G.'s 5th birthday and Lela Mae's 4th. The little folks began to arrive at 2 o'clock. They enjoyed a number of little games on the lawn. They were then called into the house where they enjoyed the delicious homemade candy, and last but not least all were called to the dining room where the birthday cakes were cut. The host and hostess were seated in front of their cakes each cutting their cakes and passing a piece to each little guest. All present were successful in blowing out the candles. W. G. and Lela Mae received many little gifts. Between 4 and 5 o'clock the guests after assuring their hosts' of a big time and wishing them many more happy birthdays, departed for their homes.

MICAH CHAMPIONS THE OP-PRESSED

LESSON TEXT—Micah, chs. 2, 3 and 4.
GOLDEN TEXT—What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God.
PRIMARY TOPIC—What God Wants
Us to Do.
JUNIOR TOPIC—What God Requires
of Us.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
What God Requires of Us.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
The Prophetic Interpretation of Religion.

Micah prophesied during the reign of Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, in Judah, but his message largely concerned Israel. He is called the prophet of the poor. He proclaimed impending doom upon the workers of unrighteousness and heralded the coming of the Messiah.

1. Evil Workers Denounced (2:1-3).
1. How they worked (v. 1).
Their evil work was not a matter of impulse, but of deliberate purpose.
(1) It was conceived in their mind.
They gave themselves to the devising of evil schemes.
(2) They worked evil upon their beds. They used the quiet hours of the night while honest people were sleeping for planning ways to work out their schemes.

(3) They executed their plans in the morning light. Having power to carry out their schemes, they did what their wicked minds devised.
2. What they do (v. 2).
(1) They covet fields (v. 2).
In this they violated the tenth commandment.
(2) They violently take fields and houses.

A covetous spirit will eventually lead to death unless restrained.
(3) They oppress a man and his house (v. 2).
By house is meant a man's descendants, the inheritors of his property.

3. Their punishment (v. 3).
Against such evil doers God is devising a righteous retribution which will fall upon them with such weight
as to humble them.
II. Upon Whom Judgment Shall Fall
(3:1-12).

1. The unfaithful rulers (v. 1-4).
Because of love for the evil and hatred for the good the rulers mercilessly destroyed the people.
2. The false prophets (v. 5-8).
They served for hire. As long as supplied with food, they propitiated to please the people.
3. The judgment which is to fall upon (v. 9-12).

Jerusalem was destroyed because of the sins of the people. Just as the righteous retribution fell then, we can be assured that there will be no escape from the coming judgment for those who destroy the people.

III. God's Controversy (6:1-13)
Wicked men may go on to a certain time with their schemes, but eventually the Lord's requirements shall be met.

1. The hills and the mountains called to bear witness against Israel (v. 2).
The people had turned a deaf ear to God so that inanimate creation was called upon to witness against them.

2. The guilty party left to state the case (v. 3).
The King of the universe abdicates
His rights and allows His sinning people to make charges against Him.

3. God recounts His mercies upon the people (vv. 4, 5).
Having paused for the charge and none having been brought, the Lord thrust home upon their conscience the mercy of His great mercies.

(1) He brought them out of Egyptian bondage (v. 4).
He has done even more for us who were under bondage to sin and Satan.

(2) Sent before them a trio of leaders (v. 4).
Moses, the lawgiver; Aaron, the high priest; and Miriam, the prophetess, were sent to bear witness.

(3) Turned Balaak's curse into a blessing through Balaak (v. 5).
4. God's requirements (vv. 6-13).

(1) The great question, "Wherewith shall I come before the Lord?"
The Jews could not deny the charge brought against them by the Almighty.

(2) The complete answer (v. 8).
a. "To do justly." Strict equity was to characterize all their dealings with their fellowmen.
b. "To love mercy." The heart was to be diligently set to do good to our fellows.

c. "To walk humbly with thy God."
This meant to recognize that we are sinners before God, with no claim upon Him except His pardoning love.

Spiritual Power
Spiritual power is developed in action, just as muscles are developed.
The more we try to help others, the more firmly shall we be established and the more we shall grow.—D. I.

To Regenerate the World
The only way to regenerate the world is to do the duty which lies nearest to us and not to hunt after grand, far-fetched ones for ourselves.
—Charles Kingsley.

A Benefactor
A physician who reaches out to benefit humanity leaves a record behind him that is worth while. Such a man was Dr.
R. V. Pierce.
His study along
medical lines,
and his knowledge of the remedial qualities of herbs
and plants led to the discovery of his wonderful herbal remedy, Doctor
Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is just the tonic required if a woman is borne down by pain and sufferings at regular or irregular intervals, by nervousness or dizzy spells, headache or backache.
Favorite Prescription can be had in tablet form as well as liquid at your neighborhood store.

Conscience Bads Him Comfort "Other Six"
Dr. R. D. McKenzie, the well known sociologist of the University of Washington said at a dinner in Seattle:
"Criminals are queer. They may not be exactly insane, but they have queer notions about right and wrong—
queer, absurd notions."
"A detective tells how a notorious bigamist whom he'd tracked down sent for him one day from the jail.
It was a case of conscience. The bigamist, in his queer, criminal way, felt twinges of remorse."
"Sitting there in his cell, he said:
"My conscience has been troubling me. I don't care a darn about my first three wives; they can go to Jericho as far as I'm concerned; but the other six are all right, and I wish you'd take them a message from me, will you? Thanks. Just tell that I've been faithful to them in thought and deed."

The Experience
of a Nurse
in the Use of CARDUI

THE following statement, describing her use of Cardui, was given by Mrs. Selma Meissner, a practical nurse of considerable experience. The portrait below was reproduced from a photograph taken recently at her home, 1072 Harrison Avenue, Beaumont, Texas.

"I have known of Cardui for nearly twenty-five years," says Mrs. Meissner. "During that time, I have taken it several times myself, and have frequently recommended it to others, for it is a splendid medicine and I am glad to give people the benefit of my experience.

"I have been a nurse for several years and have often come in contact with patients who were run-down and weak.
Often I have told these sufferers about Cardui, and the way I, myself, had been helped after taking it, and advised them to give it a trial. Many of them have since thanked me for what I told them, so I am willing that other women should know about it, too.

"I first took Cardui because I was awfully run-down. I had no appetite, and was weak and listless. It was hard to keep going under such conditions, and I looked for something which would help me.
"I had read of Cardui and decided to try it. After taking it, I improved so much that I have taken it since, whenever I needed a tonic. My work is the kind that is a drain on the strength, and often the long, hard hours wore away my endurance.
"When I would find myself getting to this point, I would take a bottle of Cardui, and soon would be feeling fine and able to meet the exhausting demands of my profession.

"My health is very good now, and I have little need of taking any kind of medicine, but I am glad to say what Cardui did for me in the past, and if I have future need I can always obtain it."

Our Commercialized Public Highways

This writer frankly accepts the motor vehicle as an essential to modern economic life. It follows, logically, that highly improved highways to carry the motor vehicle are equally necessary. But it does not follow, logically, that without some measure of compensating return, our public highways constructed at public expense, should be commercialized for purposes of private gain. Governmental exploitation of the whole people for the financial profit of the few is repugnant to every principle of a square deal that should be accorded to all private industry.

In every walk of life other than that of our commercialized public highways, property not owned by the user, yet in whole or in part used for private gain, exacts from the user a fair return. Just why in this one case the state's policy of equal rights to all and special privileges to none should be brushed aside challenges intelligent reasoning. Since it cannot be doubted that motor vehicles operated for private gain derive a special benefit from the use of publicly constructed, owned and maintained highways, it would seem but reasonable and a matter of fair dealing, both as between the public and such uses and as between competing private enterprise, that in return for such use of the public's property a fair charge should be exacted by the public.

To contend that motor vehicles engaged in the business of public carriers are now paying a fair return, measured by license fees and a gasoline tax, but begs the question. In proportion to cost of highway upkeep, no small part of which is directly the result of commercialized highway traffic, license fees do not, to an appreciable extent, approximate the public outlay. In contrast with the competing lines of transportation, they escape entirely any tax upon the roadbeds over which they operate. As for the gasoline tax they pay neither more nor less, in proportion to their use and abuse of the highways, than do vehicles operated for private use and not engaged in the business of public carriers.

Furthermore, being in position to fix their own service charges, they are likewise in position to include and do include, their license fees and gasoline taxes in their rates and thus shunt them over on to their patrons. Who in the world couldn't prosper in a business conducted under such favored industry policy? By way of contrast the state isn't furnishing land without charge for farmers to operate, tax free and all. To the contrary its policy is to bond and tax the land that others, more profitably engaged, may prosper more. The man on the land must pay the bonds—not the motor vehicle operator.

In the principle the motor carrier is not different from any other common carrier. It is when we undertake to discuss the attitude of the state that the contrasts appear and comparisons fail. In the case of the railways for example, or interurban electric lines, cost of roadway must be provided by private capital. Maintenance must come out of operating revenues or else, again out of private capital. In no event will the state, by a levy upon the industry to the people provide either.

As stated in the opening paragraph, this writer accepts the motor vehicle as an essential to modern life. He does not, however, subscribe to the doctrine that his and his neighbors' land should be bonded, taxed and made to pay for construction and upkeep of facilities to be used by a favored few engaged in a far more profitable and hazardous industrial pursuit.—Willey's Texas Facts and Fiction.
