

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

GOLDEN SOLDIERS OF JESUS CHRIST

International Sunday School Lesson for June 18, 1944.

GOLDEN TEXT: — "Suffer hardships with me, as a good soldier of Christ Jesus."— Timothy 2: 3.

Lesson Text: I Tim. 2: 1-4, 8-12; 4: 5-8.

The two epistles of Timothy and the epistle of Titus have been called "The Pastoral Epistles," because they were written by Paul from the pastoral viewpoint. Paul not only preached and founded churches, he also chose and trained pastors to continue his work in those churches. It is believed that both of his letters to Timothy were written while Paul was a prisoner at Rome, but that several years intervened between their writing.

The Second Epistle to Timothy is believed to be the last letter Paul ever penned and is referred to as "The last will and testament of Paul, and swan song." This letter is a very personal letter to a young preacher whom Paul thought of almost as a son, referring to him as "my child."

The relationship between Paul and Timothy is not merely a beautiful story, but is representative of one of the greatest forces for righteousness in Christian history. All down through the ages of the Christian era, the greatest moments in the history of the church have been those unseen, unnoticed moments when one man of God, perhaps grown old in His service, places his hands on the shoulders of a young man and, in the name of Jesus Christ, claims him for the gospel ministry.

The story is told of a missionary to the Indians in Alaska, who, on his death-bed, handed a Bible to the young Indian who was attending him, telling the lad to read the book and then teach it to his people. The young Indian, who had never known nor cared much about the missionary's work, did as the old missionary had bade him. After burying the missionary, the lad sat down to read the book. Then he went back to the missionary settlement and asked to be taught with the result that he is now carrying on the work begun by the older missionary.

In asking Timothy to carry on his work, Paul did not offer him a bed of roses. Paul's life had been a very hard and tempestuous one. He had suffered severe persecutions and had passed through a great many perils for the gospel's sake. When he invited Timothy to come into the work of a Christian servant, he told him: "The times are hard;

Future Farmers Put Food Profits in Bonds

Throughout the nation the FFA boys are making a substantial contribution to the war effort through the production of the all-important food supply and purchase of War Bonds with their profits. Shown here are some instances. No. 1 shows Robert Hill of the Welcome Chapter FFA, North Carolina, with three of his eight registered dairy calves. North Carolina FFA boys owned 9,299 dairy cows and invested profits in War Bonds totalling $308,650. No. 2 shows two Wilson County, Tennessee, boys of the Green Gale Chapter at Lebanon repairing farm equipment. At an auction of this farm equipment, a total of $85,000 went into War Bonds. No. 3—Edward Jones of Pittsboro Chapter FFA, North Carolina, and some of his 455 high-producing victory hens. Edward made a net profit of $548.12 from his flock last year and is putting his profits in War Bonds. No. 4 shows Colin English, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Herbert Shuman, president Palmetto Chapter FFA, and Harrison E. Barringer, State Senator, all of Florida, at the high light of an annual Father-and-Son banquet. The Florida Future Farmers bought a $1,000 War Bond with the funds from their farm produce grown on their own class project. Back the Attack—Buy More Than Before.

there is much danger in the life of the Christian; there are many perils to pass through. Now do you want to come on and take your share of these hardships as a good soldier of Jesus Christ?" It is relatively easy for one to be a member of a Christian church today, but it takes almost as much bravery and courage for a man, woman or child to be a real Christian today as it did in the days of Paul. Too many people, we fear, have their names on the roll of Christian churches who never consider what it means to be a follower of Jesus Christ. That accounts, in large degree, for much of the criticism of the church by those outside the church—there's so little difference in the lives of those who profess to be Christians and those who do not.

As a soldier is not allowed to tangle himself in the things of the world, so a Christian should not hold on to the things of the world with one hand, while desperately trying to cling to God's hand with the other. Christians are commanded to "come ye out from among them and be ye separate." Instead of living the transformed life, too many are living a life of "conformity." When Paul caught the vision of Christ, his old life was put behind him and a new life opened out before him. He compares his life to a race-course and himself to a racer. He says, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give to me at that day; and not to only, but also to all them that have loved his appearing." Spurgeon once said: "There are no crown-wearers in heaven who were not cross-bearers here below."

'AMERICA'S WAY'

Raising a country is something like raising children. I want my children to have spirit. I want them to be free, happy, independent individuals. I want them to live their own lives—not to be carbon copies of me. That means I must not try to keep them in the nest too long. I must let them learn to fly, though they will have some falls that will hurt them and me too. I must leave them alone a lot. Of course I want my children to realize responsibilities. I have to give them a little guidance and discipline—but not nearly as much as my instincts dictate. I could pester them to death with directions if I didn't hold back. All these things may be right, too, for a government and its citizens. Shall a government encourage its citizens to have spirit and to be individuals? Shall it let them learn to fly? Or shall it produce a nation of mamma's boys, scared to let go of its apron strings?

Duck Creek Soil Conservation District NEWS NOTES

RILEY WOOTEN, Chm. OSCAR MCGINTY, Sec. WILL WRIGHT TOM MURDOCK A. A. FRY

The top layer of earth, called "top soil," is nature's richest endowment laid down on our earth vegetation life-cycles. As America over centuries upon centuries of ica exploited her land, she cut down trees, plowed fields, burned grass area—left unprotected the very means of her greatness. Rains, overflowing streams, and winds have washed and blown away tens of millions of tons of this precious top soil, never to be recovered.

To protect this heritage, we must all take an active interest in the means of conserving our land. We must help in the program of educating the American people to the necessity of immediate remedial measures.

Every citizen has a patriotic responsibility in this program. Even though you are a city dweller, you are dependent upon the farm and the range for food.

Yours is the task of knowing the need for soil conservation, of adding your voice to that of others to talk and publicize this mighty project until every land owner in this country realizes the need and importance of soil conservation and practices those methods which will keep our country forever the greatest producer in the world.

Tells How Army Treats Burns

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. . . Major Boardman Bosworth, U. S. Army Medical Corps, who led mobile surgery units into fierce North African battles, is shown as he told the Conference of American College of Surgeons how "the method of treating burns seems to be swinging back to a modified version of grandma's remedy." Major Bosworth declared that the U. S. Army has adopted as standard treatment the use of petrolatum, also known as petroleum jelly, for healing burns. He explained that petrolatum lessened pain by sealing burns from air and when used with pressure dressings it helped reduce loss of blood plasma and to permit the body's natural healing agents to work freely.

The next time you write to your fighting man or fighting woman tell him or her what you have done about the Fifth War Loan. You can take the word of General Eisenhower that your man or woman in uniform will be deeply interested.

Your War Bond buying is a good tip-off to them about the state of affairs in your home. The headlines in this newspaper on the progress of the drive, the items about participating individuals, the character of the Fifth War Loan special events—all these things reflect the morale back home.

Do you like to read a sorry headline about the invasion fronts. Our fighting forces, made up of individuals with the same reactions to good and bad as you, will not be heartened to read "Fifth War Loan Lags."

Your silence in your letter about your part in the Fifth War Loan will mean non-interest, perhaps non-participation to the recipients. It's up to you to make your letters cheerful. Write today. Write often. Write about your war work, your war support. Double your best previous War Bond buying record and then shout it to the rooftops—just to that special service man.

MRS. GARVIE BOOTH TRI-COMMUNITY CLUB HOSTESS LAST THURSDAY

Mrs. Garvie Booth was hostess to the Tri-Community Home Demonstration club in her lovely new home on Thursday, June 8. Each member answered roll call by showing some garment they had made or remade.

After the business session, Roosevelt's prayer on the night of the invasion was read aloud. A pencil and paper game was played and Mrs. E. W. Smith, the winner, received an attractive hand-made handkerchief bag.

Mrs. Agnes M. Marrs, county home demonstration agent, gave an interesting and very instructive demonstration on cleaning a sewing machine. She took the machine apart a few pieces at a time and cleaned each piece thoroughly with naphtha. "Be sure to rub the head of your machine well with machine oil after you have used the naphtha," said Mrs. Marrs, to avoid having the paint taken off.

Refreshments of chocolate cake and fruit punch were served to Mmes. W. W. Pickens, Agnes M. Marrs, Loy Johnson, E. W. Smith, Lee Parker and the hostess, Mrs. Booth.

THIS BUSINESS OF LIVING

BY SUSAN THAYER

I WANT A HOUSE

My dream of the future takes the shape of a house I'd like to own.

I want a little house that looks as if it grew from the ground, so right and natural its contours.

I want a huge living room with a fireplace at one end, my grandmother's graceful black walnut chairs and pearl-inlaid writing cabinet. But I also want a wall of glass on the west that will bring the outdoors in.

I want the new, tiny, hidden radiators I've read about, and a heating system that minds itself—but I want miles and miles of bookshelves so I can bring all the old friends down out of the attic—yes, even "The Little Colonel" and "Anne of Green Gables!"

I'd like the last word in kitchens, with a postwar refrigerator—the kind that's going to have running ice water and all sorts of gadgets—and every other convenience that the mind and "know-how" of industry may devise and produce. But I want a garden of old-fashioned flowers and morning glories of the trellis.

I want to keep the old things that give meaning and continuity to living. But I want to refresh and embellish the past out of exciting postwar thinking.

The best of the old and the best of the new—that's my idea of what the future should be, for me and for America.

Then we went on up in Iran and started running convoys to Russia. We sure had a tough time. The weather was so hot and we had to do most of our driving at night and the eats were hell and had to sleep on the ground part of the time. The boys back here don't know how lucky they are. I sure hated to leave the boys in such a hell hole, and I would like very much to see them all. When "Texas" gets home, I'm sure coming down to see him.

Business Training In Great Demand

From all the information available on what the post-war era will bring, it seems that this country will experience several years of genuine prosperity.

Business must re-tool for what is ahead. In the transition from war to peace, there is going to be an enormous demand for all types of business trained workers. So many young people desiring to help out in the emergency went immediately out of high school into defense work. The records reveal that right now there is a great shortage of trained business employees. With this condition existing, it seems to be the better part of wisdom for this year's high school graduates to turn their attention to a career in business.

Business pays well. It is interesting work, and the more experience accumulated, the more efficient the work done. In other words, your training becomes more valuable the more you use it. There are hundreds of fine openings now for well trained young men and women and no one to fill them.

Should it be business training for you as a career or profession, we do not know of a better school in which to get your preparation than the Tyler Commercial College, Tyler, Texas. This school has trained more business executives than perhaps all the business schools combined in the Southwest. You may have one of their catalogs by writing to them at Tyler, Texas.

Human beings rarely see things the same way but there is no use to have a war every time there is a disagreement.

When the political races for the year 1944 have been completed the people of the country may be able to think sensibly.

The Strongest of Bonds—Your Dad and Your Country, Is the Slogan of Father's Day, June 18—Buy Bonds

WASHINGTON, D. C.—June 10—Father's Day which falls on June 18th, 1944, will be a different kind of celebration of this event than in days before the war. This year finds that one underlying motivation. The battle cry for the Father Bond Drive and for the observance connected with Father's Day this year is "The Strongest of Bonds—Your Pictured here is Ted R. Gamble, National Director of the Treasury's War Finance Division, and his son, Ted R. Jr. The youngster is pinning a Father's Day rosette in his dad's coat lapel. The rosettes are made up of War Stamps. Girl Scouts and others will sell the rosettes on Father's Day, June 18.

American fathers away from home and family and by hundreds of thousands in uniforms of the Armed Services of our country. Many fathers are overseas. So this year's Father's Day is America's "Salute to our Fighting Dads". The National Father's Day Committee, in conjunction with the United States Treasury, is conducting a gigantic Father Bond Drive. There is an earnest and all-abiding awareness to push on to victory in the observance of this year's Father's Day. And every move being planned for the event is keyed to Dad and Your Country. Buy a Bond for Father's Day. Father, himself, needs no reminding and will take note of the holiday created in his honor by himself buying bonds for Father's Day. The family is being urged to remember Dad—with War Bonds. The nation is being asked to wear the Father Rosette, a floral decoration made of War Stamps—a gentle reminder to all that there is only one idea in anyone's mind for this year's Father's Day and that is the winning of the war as quickly as possible and that means War Bonds and More War Bonds.

A veteran, entitled to reemployment rights has recourse in the courts to recover back pay, even after reinstatement if it was improperly delayed or postponed by the employer.

A veteran entitled to reemployment may not be discharged from his restoration "without cause within one year after such restoration." The question of what constitutes "cause" is to be determined by "standards of common sense" and is to be measured by "practices and customs generally acceptable in industry or practices and customs in common and accepted use in the particular place of employment."

A veteran who has been reinstated in his former position cannot within one year be displaced by another, on the ground that the latter has greater seniority rights.

A soldier who is placed in an inactive status and transferred to the Enlisted Reserve Corps, at his own request, on the condition that he will engage in essential industry, loses his reemployment rights if he does not apply to his former employer for reinstatement within 40 days after his transfer.

When it is claimed that a veteran has waived his reemployment rights, the waiver must be proved by clear and positive evidence. The burden of proof is upon the employer to prove a VOLUNTARY waiver by the veteran.

The veteran's medical history and diagnosis, as contained in the Report of Separation provided to the elective Service System, has been determined to be confidential and may not be disclosed or furnished to or examined by any person, including the veteran, other than those in the Selective Service System who have reason for the use of such information. Such information is the property of the War and Navy departments, respectively, and any registrant or other person desiring such information will be referred to the branch of the service from which the veteran has been separated. An employer has no right to establish as a condition precedent to a veteran's reinstatement in his former position that he sign a waiver of his rights to keep his medical history and diagnosis confidential, or to insist as a condition precedent to reinstatement that the veteran authorize the employer to secure such information from the War or Navy department.

General Page said that local boards and their reemployment committees have been instructed to submit to the Veterans Personnel division at State Selective Service headquarters all cases where there is doubt as to a veterans rights. Where the need for legal proceedings is indicated, he said, the file will be sent to National Headquarters for review and or forwarding to the Department of Justice for proper action.

Miss Murl Bacot Is First Entry In Cowboy Reunion

STAMFORD, June 14.—Several Texas cities and towns have named their sponsor to the Texas Cowboy Reunion, July 3 and 4, according to R. E. Hall, chairman of the Sponsors' committee, and, judging from the number of inquiries received, a record number of cow-girl sponsors will take part in this year's show.

First town to designate a sponsor was Spur, where Miss Murl Bacot was named. Other towns who have named sponsors, and their sponsor, include, Haskell, Miss Eva Rae Gay; Big Spring, Miss Louise Ann Bennett; Wichita Falls, Miss Barbara Richardson; Colorado City, Mrs. Wayne McCabe; Benjamin, Mrs. Bobby Burnett; Albany, Miss Marilynne Homsley; Throckmorton, Mrs. Margie Somerville; Shamrock, Miss Sally Jim Small; and Guthrie, Miss Waddell Rucker.

Visiting sponsors will be greeted and entertained while in Stamford by Mrs. Harry W. Yates, prominent young Stamford matron, who is the Reunion's official hostess. She will be assisted by Miss Leomore Fuqua, daughter of Mrs. Jack Fuqua, who will be Stamford's cow-girl sponsor for the Reunion.

The sponsors will be part of each arena performance. They will be judged 30 per cent on riding ability, 20 per cent on togs and equipment, 30 per cent on the performance of the horse, and confirmation and equipment will rate 20 per cent.

A special hand-made saddle will be awarded first place winner, and prizes will be given through fourth place. Appropriate favors will be presented each sponsor by the Texas Cowboy Reunion.

Aball game in the Pavilion on the night of July 3 will honor the visiting cow-girls, when their escorts are formally presented. This dance is open only to sponsors, their escorts and their invited guests. Sponsors and escorts will be entertained with a chuck wagon dinner at noon, July 4.

State Selective Service Board Outlines Policy for Re-employing World War 2 Vets

With the constant increase in the number of veterans of World War II, individual problems are now naturally arising in connection with their reinstatement in former jobs, it was disclosed this week by Gen. J. Watt Page, state selective service director.

A new directive, issued in the form of a memorandum for the guidance of local boards and the reemployment committees attached to the boards, outlines the policies and principles governing administration of the reemployment provisions of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, he said.

The memorandum analyzes each section of the act as it applies to reemployment of veterans. It outlines the principles to be followed in determining the "permanent" or "temporary" nature of employment, deals with problems affecting qualifications of veterans for reinstatement and the duties and obligations of employers, and answers questions concerning seniority rights.

Highlights of the memorandum include:

Eligibility for benefits under the act are persons who entered the Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guards (male or female) subsequent to May 1, 1940, but the veterans seeking benefits must have a "certificate" indicating satisfactory completion of service in the armed forces.

Members of the Coast Guard auxiliary are not eligible, nor do the reemployment provisions apply to employees of states, although the act declares it to be the sense of Congress that such persons should be restored to their former positions or to positions of like seniority, status and pay. The policy of the Selective Service system is to render all possible aid to such persons.

Conscientious objectors have no reemployment rights under the law and the Selective Service system has no responsibility to aid them in regaining former positions or obtaining new positions.

The act requires the veteran to make application for reemployment "within 40 days after he is relieved from "training and service." This is mandatory and compliance is essential if the veteran is to enforce his reemployment rights over the objection of the employer.

A veteran, in order to claim reinstatement in a position, must be qualified to perform the duties and functions of that position, and this is a question of fact to be determined by common sense and experience. The employer cannot set up arbitrary or unreasonable standards. The real question is "Can the veteran do his job in the manner in which he did it before he left?" So long as there is any doubt the veteran is entitled to a chance to prove that he can do so. If unable to qualify for an upgraded job, he is nevertheless, entitled to a position equal in seniority, status and pay to the one which he left.

A veteran is entitled to reinstatement in his former position pay, even though such reinstatement or one of like seniority, status or merit necessitates the discharge of a non-veteran with greater seniority.

Seniority rights accumulate during the veteran's period of active service in the armed forces in the same manner as they would have accumulated had he remained continuously at work in his civilian occupation.

In the case of jobs created by war expansion, the "permanent" or "temporary" character of the job likewise depends upon the facts and circumstances in each individual case.

The memorandum further points out that:

What news will Gen. Eisenhower get from us?

You know now what we've heard from him.

We've heard that Eisenhower and his Americans have hurled themselves like a thunderbolt against the bristling defenses of Hitler's Wehrmacht!

We've heard that they are battering and smashing at our foe—sparing neither steel nor sweat nor blood in one final, furious assault that marks the supreme military effort of this War!

And what news do Eisenhower and his men expect from us?

Men and women of America—what the Invasion is to our fighting men, the 5th War Loan is to us at home!

For us, as well as for them, this is the crisis—the time for tremendous, overwhelming effort! Make no mistake! The 5th War Loan is the biggest, most vitally important financial effort of this whole War!

If the 5th War Loan is to succeed, each one of us must do more than ever before—must buy double . . . yes, triple . . . the Bonds we bought last time.

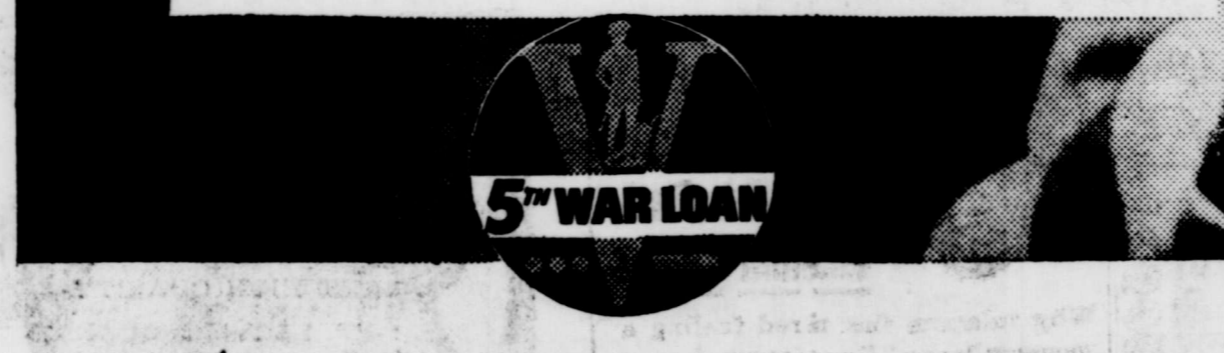

Our men expect to hear that we are buying double—that we are matching their sacrifice as best we can—that the American nation, soldiers and civilians together, is making one gigantic effort to win this War!

That's the news our men expect to hear from us.

Will you personally see that they get it?

- And here are 5 more reasons for buying Extra Bonds in the 5th!
1. War Bonds are the best, the safest investment in the world!
 2. War Bonds return you $4 for every $3 in 10 years.
 3. War Bonds help keep prices down.
 4. War Bonds will help win the Peace by increasing purchasing power after the War.
 5. War Bonds mean education for your children, security for you, funds for retirement.

Back the Attack!—BUY MORE THAN BEFORE!

UNITY IN THE REPUBLIC

While thousands of persons, including the governors of 34 states, looked on, Governor Broughton, of North Carolina, representing the South, and Governor Saltonstall of Massachusetts, representing the North, shook hands on the battlefield of Gettysburg to symbolize the unity of 48 American states.

The tableaux was appropriate, despite minor irritations which sometimes attract unwarranted public attention. Loyalty and unity pervade the Republic with little trace of the bitter hatred that prevailed less than 80 years ago.

Because the Union successfully withstood the threat of secession and stands stronger than ever among the nations of the earth today does not mean, however, that it is immune to the processes that sometimes result in the dissolution of nations.

It is not disloyalty to suggest, even in the midst of the present war, that the future greatness of the country depends upon the wisdom and restraint of a strong federal government which must be willing to recognize and respect the inalienable rights of the people of the separate states.

To this end, it will be necessary for the people of the United States, in the course of the coming years, to determine and define the area in which federal authority shall be supreme. That this is necessary in order to meet the problems of the present age is certain.

Just as apparent is the necessity for definite restrictions upon the power exercised by the central government. There must be generous recognition of the rights of the people to local self-government through the instrumentality of state and municipal governments.

SMALL NATIONS AND PEACE

It is easy to understand the desire of the so-called small nations of the world to have equal voice with larger nations in all matters affecting world peace, despite their inability to carry an appreciable portion of the burden of maintaining world order.

It is not so easy to understand the necessity, however, of patiently proclaiming our intention to be fair to these smaller nations at the present time. Their choice lies between accepting Nazi Germany or the United Nations and it ought not to be difficult for them to make up their minds on the basis of the record.

The League of Nations gave to small nations equal voice with the large powers. Thus Liberia cast a vote equal to that of the United States. Regardless of principles of liberty and freedom this was nonsensical. It permitted smaller nations to outvote the larger nations upon the basis of sovereignty and without regard to population or power.

If there is to be peace in the world, at any time, it will exist solely because the large nations are willing to assume the responsibility of safeguarding peace. No combination of small powers will be able to provide security and it is foolish to permit them to occupy a position that might endanger peace.

PROGRESS IN TRANSPORTATION

Speaking recently to the Florida State Bar association, Thurman W. Arnold, of the United States court of appeals, said that railroads are waging a campaign to block the development of new transportation which would permit industries to grow up in the South and West.

Judge Arnold called attention to the $26,000,000,000 of railroad capital securities which might be threatened by the competition of airlines. He seems to believe that railroad executives are anxious to throttle competition in order to maintain the security of their invested capital.

It would be entirely human for the rail executives to do this and, consequently, there is reason to believe that a basis of fact exists for Judge Arnold's statement. Those interested in the free development of transportation facilities, regardless of effect upon existing investments, should be as alert as those interested in railroads and make it their business to see that the way is open or progress in the transportation field.

Whenever a man tells you something "confidently" you might as well be a little bit suspicious.

Incidentally, does anybody know whether that pile of gold at Fort Knox is helping us win the war?

The pessimist probably permits knowledge of himself to influence his judgment of his fellow-man.

There are individuals of the human race that wear themselves out accepting favors from other people.

The world is not interested in the excellent excuse that you have for your failure to deliver the goods.

Make your plans to spend a reasonable part of your life sensibly; after all you are supposed to be smart.

The trouble with much of the war news that we hear and read is that it is not as much news as adjectives.

If you want to cooperate with the fighting men, now at the front, buy War Bonds to the limit of your capacity.

There are two forms of patriotism; the soldier facing death at the front and people at home who grouse and grumble.

The peace of the world, when the present struggle ends, will depend, we think, upon squelching American isolationists.

Automobiles continue to kill Americans on the highways of the nation but, maybe, in another generation the pedestrians will develop a faster jump.

If Germany can withstand the combined assaults of the Anglo-American army it might be a good idea to ascertain what makes the Teutons tick.

LOOKING AHEAD

MANAGED ECONOMY

Business took me to Indianapolis in the last week of May, just in time to witness another sickening fluke of man handled economy. Dead hogs lay uncounted on the ground by the roadside in the sun, 100 per cent loss to their owners, to the nation's wealth and to the world's food supply. It was a blunder, of course. Surely this time nobody will say, "We planned it this way."

It was two years ago that the government named an arbitrary price on fat hogs and guaranteed it for two years. The aim was for the people of the United States to have just the right amount of pork at the right price. Obviously price-fixing was only the first step. In order to get just the right amount of pork, the government rationed corn, essential in the growing of pork.

Ferred Piggishness

The next measure was to ration pork so the right number of hogs would feed just the right number of people just the right number of days. It was assumed that smart bureaucrats knew precisely how many pounds of grain it took to produce a pound of pork and could figure how many eaters there were and how much ham and bacon they ought to eat per family per day, or per county per degree Fahrenheit, or something.

If there is one reader of this column who lacks such knowledge, may I offer some facts of life about hogs: Just 10 months from the day a farmer consents to tolerate another family of pigs on his estate, he can be selling 250 pound, prime hogs. America is now in the third generation of swine since the government guaranteed the price. Apparently pig culture has become a national hobby.

Grown For Profit

Now when pigs are right to eat, they are ready to sell, and the creaking timbers of America's bulging pig-pen have been heard in Washington for several weeks. Finally OPA lowered the bars, took ration points off pork and released the squalling deluge. Had the big-wigs figured right? No! Hog receipts at 11 main packing centers exceeded processing capacity. Result: embargo.

Indianapolis was only a sample. Hogs arrived too fast to kill. Packers quit bidding for them. Farmers with trucks full of hogs formed caravans on the roads. Traffic jammed. Lines waited and waited some more. Pigs died of thirst and hunger and were piled outside the stockyards. Then the green flies came. They didn't have to wait on the OPA—purely unofficial.

To Err Is Human

Carpenters hide their mistakes with putty. Doctors, it has been said, bury theirs. I hope no Washington braintruster was too disappointed when (after points were lifted off pork) the American people failed to eat up the consequences of his error. After all, enough pork is enough. And what happened was no worse than this nation had every right to expect.

The law of supply and demand is a law of nature, no less than the law of gravity. In like degree they are God's laws and no mortal can make headway against them. Even doubters say pork is probably the easiest market of all markets to guess; and what a flop! War caused no part of

ALLIED INVASION MEANS THE END FOR HER HITLER

Progress In Normandy Suggests Early Collapse of Germany After Reds Strike

By HUBO S. SIMS

The invasion of Western Europe sets in motion the stupendous war machine that has been created to crush Nazi Germany and which is likely to accomplish the task faster than most Americans imagine.

Initial landings on the Normandy peninsula were highly successful. Our losses were unexpectedly light in the air and on the sea. Bitter fighting occurred on land but German resistance was spotty and, in general, less than expected, despite fierce combat in certain localities.

The idea that the Germans were taken by surprise is untenable. The more likely explanation for our early successes is to be found in the overwhelming force thrown into the fray at a selected point. It was impossible for the Hitlerites to have similar strength all along the coastline and, consequently, the defenders were undoubtedly outnumbered.

German Defenders Overwhelmed

It is too early to speculate upon the progress that will be made infrom the vantage point gained in Normandy. Not until the Germans launch their counter-attacks will we be able to gauge the strength of the highly-touted defensive system which must save the German state from military disaster if it is to continue the war.

Nobody knows the exact strength of the allied invasion forces but from available details it is evident that a considerable number of fighting men were employed. They were served and protected by a mammoth fleet of ships and thousands of aircraft. German coastal defenses were simply overwhelmed.

The Normandy landings do not represent the full force of the allied invasion. The German high command is confronted with the knowledge that other areas are under constant threat and the ridiculous pig fiasco. If such tinkering should become a national post-war policy, we would be in for a sad season of man-made muddles.

that any shift of strength will invite a heavier blow and a greater danger elsewhere. In fact, for days it will not be clear whether the Normandy operations represent the main, or a subsidiary, offensive.

Nazis in Serious Difficulty

We have repeatedly called attention to the serious position of the German armies. More than a year of successive defeats implies difficulties that seem insurmountable when confronted with the great attack that is underway as two or three million Anglo-American soldiers go into action.

The experts estimate present German military strength at about 7,000,000 men. Against this the Allies have developed some 14,000,000 men. The Nazis have no superiority in weapons, either in quality or quantity, and the luftwaffe has been beaten into the shadow of its former structure. It is difficult to find a reason for prolonged German resistance when the full power of the United Nations is applied at the same time.

Blitz Victory Possible

While we are not certain that the "guess" is correct there is an idea that the Nazis have less than a million men in Western Europe.

These occupy formidable defenses but new methods of attack render fixed positions less certain than ever and a vigorous attack by determined men, in superior numbers, can break any defensive position. The dilemma of the Nazis is that a single break-through will eventually mean complete disaster.

This is the basis of the belief, shared by many competent military leaders, that the campaign in Western Europe can develop into a blitz battle, comparable to the fast-moving sweep of mechanized units that obliterated French resistance four years ago. Undoubtedly, when our forces have been landed in Normandy, or elsewhere, we will be prepared to exploit a favorable opportunity and to roll up the German armies that are stretched from the low countries to the border of Spain.

Long Lull to End in Russia

There are signs that the lull on the Russian front will be broken soon by a tremendous offensive which the Red army expects to produce the pressure that will break the Nazis. No major action on the eastern front preceded the beginning of the cross-channel invasion and the Soviet has had ample time to prepare a large-scale assault.

This 1,400-mile front has been quiet for weeks. On the Baltic it has lasted more than three months, in Poland the Red army slowed its attack early in April and two months have elapsed since the fall of Odessa climaxed the Russian campaign. The significance of this period of relative quiet is seen when we recall that there was a pause of less than a month between the major phases of the Russian campaign last fall.

With the bulk of their forces Germans dare not invite disconcerting the Russians, the ter in the east by transferring the Nazis are between two hard-division to the west. Plainly, hitting armies, each of which is strong enough to smash the Nazis before them. When both armies launch massive blows, at the same time, the strain on Nazi resources and reserves will produce disaster somewhere along the extensive battlefronts.

Nazis Weakness in Italy

The progress of the Anglo-American forces in Italy should not be overlooked in the excitement of following the course of the invasion from British bases. The capture of Rome and the rapid exploitation of the collapse of German resistance indicates, very plainly, that the Germans have not sufficient strength to rescue their retreating veterans in Italy.

Certainly, the Nazis did not voluntarily retire from strong positions out by stronger armies because they were unable to risk dwindling reserves in a desperate venture in Italy while confronted with greater peril in Western Europe and in Poland.

Farm House Embraces Office, Play Room, Workshop

What with all the paper work the farmer is now called upon to do, this design by H. E. Wichers of Kansas State College and appearing in the current issue of Small Homes Guide should offer some real ideas to rural builders in the post-war era. In this farmhouse a shady living porch is separate from the workshop and the workroom is in the basement. However, the office could be used as a workshop, in which case the partition to hall could be eliminated, or the office could become, with little alteration of the basic plan, a dining room or bedroom.

CARE AND TRAINING OF CHILDREN

(Part Five)

Remember that persistent constipation destroys health. See that your child drinks three or four glasses of water between meals. Do not permit him to form the soft drink habit. The sugars and chemicals which they contain are injurious when indulged in too frequently, especially by children.

There is nothing more important than health. Many a brilliant person has made a failure of life on account of the handicap of ill health, acquired in childhood or youth.

The school teachers are supposed to teach at least the rudiments of health. This is well, but far too many duties and responsibilities which properly belong to parents are shoved off on teachers. At least an attempt is made to do so, with the result that an over-worked teacher cannot find time nor strength to devote to such a variety of subjects as is expected of her.

The mother is the natural custodian of her child's health. It is her duty to train him in good health habits. The teacher can do no more than teach him his school physiology and lay down general health rules. She cannot see that they are carried out, for she has a room full of little squirming, wiggling children to instruct them in the intricacies of grammar, mathematics or other subjects.

It is the duty of the mother to see that her children practice correct health habits. Children often suffer from unnecessary sickness which could be prevented if mothers were well informed upon health subjects, and alert in guarding against physical ills.

A mother has a 24-hour task, which it is her duty to perform. Children need a mother more than the public or industry needs her services. It is distressing to read of the delinquent children with whom our country is being plagued.

It is a shame that so many women are neglecting their God-given tasks of training their children. They permit them to roam the streets or leave them with incompetent servants, in order that they may go out and amuse themselves. Far too many mothers are away from home working for money which they could do without.

They crave more luxuries and in order to obtain them, their children must be sacrificed.

Meeting Pop Half-Way

"Young man, do you think you can support my daughters on forty dollars a week?"
"I'm willing to try sir—if that's the best you can do."

Will You Smile?

Exception

Bride—You didn't talk that way before we were married.
Groom—What way?

Bride—You said you would go through fire and water for me, and now you refuse every time I ask you for money.
Groom—But I never said I'd go through bankruptcy for you.

Cause For Pride

"Are you the man that made that long drive from the last tee?"
"Yes siree, I'm the man." (proudly).
"Are you sure it was you?"
"Yep, certain. Pretty, wasn't it—270 yards." (More proudly).
"Well, you owe me a new windshield, and rear window."

Like Lots of Us

"Are you a good extemporaneous speaker?"
"Positively the best. I never remember a thing I wish to say when I get before an audience."

It Depends

Schmaltz—Can you swim?
Miss Neiho—It all depends on how handsome the lifeguard.

Naturally

Pycraft—Do you suffer from the heat in the summer?
Skeeve—Yes, more than at any other season.

CARD OF THANKS

Words cannot express our heartfelt thanks for the kind words spoken and sympathetic consolation shown us during the loss of our darling soldier son and brother. May God richly bless you all.
Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Sparks and family.

Clothes Closets Come of Age

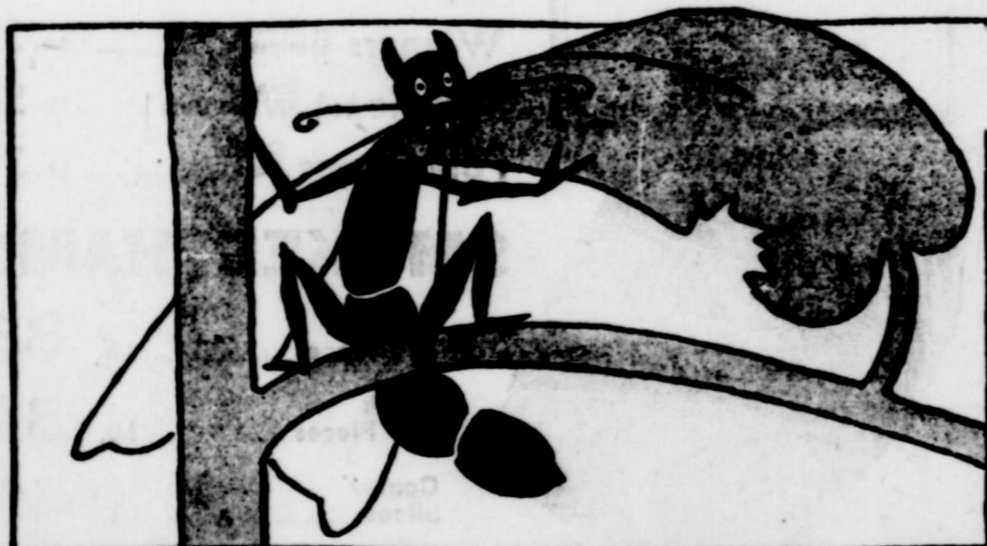

Ask a woman, almost any woman, what single pet she has in her present home or apartment, and the chances are more than good that she will say "the closets." This is no idle statement, but a sound fact proven by the recent Small Homes Guide survey where 2500 readers expressed their ideas on their post-war home.

A shallow metal closet attached to the kitchen door adds loads of space for pots and pans, or perhaps for cleaning tools and supplies.

Then, too, there are clothes closets with the high top shelf of glass—so you can see what's up there. And a mirror on the inside of the door practically is a necessity.

Don'ts for gardeners

Don't let the bugs beat you to it

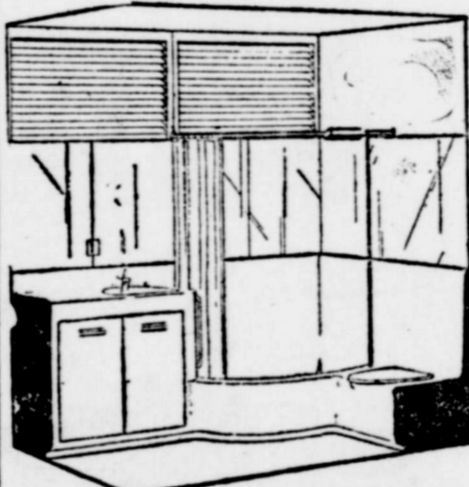

Gardeners must be on the alert from beginning to end for insect armies and the onset of disease. Be ready with spray gun and duster and the proper death-dealing ammunition.

Plastic Baths In Post-war Era?

L. Morgan Yost, architectural editor of Small Homes Guide, raises the question on the possibility of prefabricated plastic baths in the post-war era, with the presentation of this sketch in the current issue of the magazine.

The walls would be composed of mirror-front cabinets with lighting coming through a frosted glass band in this row of mirrors. This bath unit would fit in a space 5 by 8 feet with the door in either of the two free sides.

OPINION DIVIDED

Approximately 50 per cent of the persons answering a questionnaire in Small Homes Guide said they wanted a first floor utility room instead of a basement.

NOTICE OF EXECUTION SALE

State of Texas, County of Dickens. In the County Court of Dickens County, Texas. S. W. Hughes, Plaintiff, vs. S. L. Davis, Defendant. Electricity Builds Ships!

Electric Power Is America's Busiest War Worker

- In Unity, Manpower and Electricity there is POWER to win a decisive Victory. Of these essentials, America is blessed with plenty to do the job effectively.
- For many years, the sound expansion program of electric companies has made us well-prepared to meet the severe demands for power in the production of war materials. Our industries are accomplishing amazing records . . . thanks to electricity.
- Uncle Sam's demands on us come first, but there is plenty of electricity for you, too. Use it to save time, strength and energy for the work you have to do. As electricity helps you to do a better job, it also helps America at War!

Bank Leader Says Buying Bonds Is Sound Investment

The Fifth War Loan provides the investors of America with a security to fit every investment need, whether it is a corporation seeking the investment of a temporary surplus of funds for a few months or an individual or institution desiring a long term security with an attractive interest return and a minimum of risk. Regardless of the type selected, there is no safer investment in the world, and the purchaser, in addition to getting a good return on his money, is performing a patriotic service by loaning money to his government at a time when funds are urgently needed to carry on the war.

For the average man and woman, there is no better Bond than the Series E Savings Bond, and this should be the basis of every portfolio of securities. It provides the maximum return of all government securities, yielding 2.9 per cent if held to maturity, which is ten years from the month of issue. This is a better return than can be obtained from money invested in a savings bank or in any comparable security of a private corporation. Bought at a discount—75 per cent of maturity value—these bonds, at maturity, return $4 for every $3 invested. Even if circumstances compel a person to redeem them before they mature, the purchaser never gets less than he paid for them although the redemption value provides a lesser interest return if they are cashed before they come due. Denominations range from $25 ($18.75 purchase price) to $1,000 (-750 purchase price), and purchases are limited to -5,000 maturity value ($3,750 purchase price) in any one calendar year although with respect to bonds held in co-ownership, the amount may be applied to either person or apportioned between them.

The Series E Bond has many uses. It is an excellent birthday, Christmas or other gift. It provides an excellent method for accumulating funds for the education of children, or a person desiring to set up his own retirement plan.

Series F and G Bonds are designed primarily for the larger individual investor or for small corporations, associations, church societies and others. The Series F Bond, like the Series E, is a discount Bond, which is sold at 74% of maturity value. It runs for 12 years and yields approximately 2.53% if held to maturity. The Series G Bond is issued at par and is attractive for persons desiring steady income as semi-annual interest at the rate of 2 1/2 per cent a year is paid by Treasury check. The G Bond is particularly attractive for elderly persons as it is payable at par on the death of the owner or co-owner. Series G Bonds are redeemable six months after issue, at the option of the owner, at fixed redemption values printed on the Bond, which are less than the face amount of the Bonds to provide for a lesser interest return if redeemed before maturity.

Series C Savings Notes provide an excellent means of providing for Federal income, estate and gift taxes as they may be presented in payment of such taxes, current or back, at par and accrued interest, at any time during and after the second calendar month after the month of purchase. They are eligible as collateral for bank loans, and may be redeemed for cash six months after the month of the purchase, so they also provide an excellent vehicle for short term investments in the event that they are not used for taxes. The 2 1/2 per cent Treasury Bonds run for 26 years and are obtainable in either coupon or registered form. The bearer Bonds are readily marketable. They are attractive long term investments for insurance companies, and other large investors, corporate and individual, and may be used as collateral for bank loans.

The 2% Bonds of 1952-54 are an excellent medium term, readily marketable security for investors of all kinds.

A newcomer to the basket are the 1 1/2% Series B Notes of 1947 (about 2 1/2 years) which provide an excellent investment medium for corporations building up post-war reserves for inventories and war plant conversions, or for the temporary investment of depreciation, depletion and other reserves.

Therefore, whatever your investment need may be, you can find the security you are looking for in the Fifth War Loan basket.
