Winter Throws Punch At State

Traveler's Advisory Issued Here

By The Associated Press
Texas' pleasant weather exploded Saturday with the fury and sound of thunderstorms in the east and the icy breath of a cold front that brought snow and sub-freezing temperatures to the northwestern section of the state.

Late in the afternoon temperatures were below freezing levels across northwest Texas to a line from Lubbock to Childress and light snow and freezing rain occurred intermittently in the Panhandle.

Midland's spring-like weather, too, was reined back into winter Saturday afternoon with temperatures plummeting from a high of 66 to a low near midnight of 33.

Light Mist Falls
A light mist fell Saturday night, and forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal issued a traveler's advisory for early today due to 20 per cent possibility of light freezing rain or drizzle during the early hours of the morning.

The weatherman said skies should clear somewhat today and the temperature reach the upper 40s, with the skies again overcast on Monday.

Tonight's low should drop into the low 30s and the maximum on Monday should be in the 50s.

Southeast of the cold front heavy thunderstorms raked the southeastern portion of Texas and flash flood warnings issued as a result of the activity.

A cluster of very heavy thunderstorms was reported extending 20 miles northeast of College Station northeastward in a 40 mile wide band over Lufkin to near Nacogdoches. They were part of an area of showers and thundershowers that extended from College Station northeastward to near Longview.

Kissinger, Faisal Air Long-Term Oil Deals

BONN, Germany (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger discussed with Saudi Arabian King Faisal a U.S. plan for long-term oil deals between producers and consumers and then flew here Saturday for energy talks with West German leaders.

Newsman traveling with Kissinger were told that at least one unidentified producing country had expressed interest in the plan. The chief purpose is to bring down oil prices from the current cartel-set price of $10.50 a barrel to a minimum of $6 or $7.

U.S. officials said the consuming nations are not yet in position to negotiate a long-term deal at a fixed price, but there are signs of support from West Germany, Britain, France and, privately, Japan.

Initially the impression was that the United States was seeking bilateral deals with individual producers. But on the plane en route to Bonn from Riyadh, Arabia, newsman were told that was "without foundation." The secretary of State, in a brief comment to the American Broadcasting Co. at the Cologne-Bonn airport, said "there is no new policy."

Kissinger planned a day-long series of meetings today with German officials, beginning at breakfast with Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher who met him at the airport. He will lunch with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and then fly to Geneva for a dinner session with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

U.S. officials were guarded in describing Faisal's reaction to Kissinger's "floor price" proposal during their 90-minute session.

Booming Business Pressing Staff Of Salvation Army Here

By JAN WILLIAMS
As Midland is booming, so is the Salvation Army here. With the influx of persons from all over the country looking for work, the Salvation Army is being pressed hard to take care of all of those who seek assistance.

And, a spokesman said, the staff that is being pressed to point that it is becoming a problem.

Last month, in anticipation of the influx of unemployed persons here, the Salvation Army leased the old Buckner Hotel on Fort Worth Street to provide shelter for those unable to provide it for themselves.

Capt. Bob Vincent, in charge of the Salvation Army in Midland County, says most of the unemployed who are able to find jobs, have spent all of their money getting here and won't get paychecks for two weeks.

"They have to have a place to stay, so we help out with rent, food and whatever else we can."

Most people coming to the Salvation Army for help are younger families who have been laid off from jobs elsewhere. And most are here because they've heard about the good employment situation.

But most had not anticipated a housing shortage. They are having to settle for substandard housing, and are considered lucky to get that.

"We (the Salvation Army) anticipated this and are working toward solving the problem, but it is getting to the point where it is beyond our capabilities. Hopefully the number of people will start stacking off, but currently there is no indication of that," Capt. Vincent said in an interview.

Late Bulletins

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI-paid informants frequently travel abroad to keep watch on organizations which have activities extending beyond U.S. borders, an FBI spokesman said Saturday night.

NACOGDOCHES (AP) — Two Nacogdoches creeks overflowed their banks for the second time in a little more than two weeks Saturday night, forcing more than 100 persons in low-lying areas of the city to flee their homes.

Search For Alternate Sources Of West Texas Water Continues

By GEORGE MASSEY, Staff Writer
AMARILLO — U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower of Vernon told more than 200 members of Water, Inc., here Saturday that since an $8 million federal water study had concluded that importation of supplemental water to Texas is "financially unfeasible," other sources must be pursued.

Congressman Hightower spoke to the group of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico residents during the eighth annual membership meeting of Water, Inc., a regional organization which seeks to have supplemental water imported into West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

Hightower said, "The study has told us water importation is not feasible, but we must find a solution. We have to feed and clothe ourselves along with a large part of the world."

The congressman said it would be impossible to determine the future cost of water in West Texas. He asked, "How much is a cup of water worth?"

"I can't answer that question," he said, "but how much progress would this country have made during the last 200 years if cost had been the deciding factor?"

"We must move ahead on all fronts. Texans must form a united front and modify the water plan into something workable."

It's Bad To Get Mad

According to tradition, a man approached Mohammed and asked of the prophet a suggestion for spiritual benefit. "Do not get angry," Mohammed replied. Thinking the prophet had misunderstood the question the man repeated it. Again Mohammed answered, "Do not get angry."

Anger is one of the trickiest personal problems. The folklore and religious teachings of history are full of warnings about its bad effects.

Will Rogers cracked: "People who fly into a rage always make a bad landing." All these people are saying, "It's bad to get mad."

Anger of the slow-burning variety, commonly known as resentment, sometimes does more damage than do fits of violent temper. Easier to conceal, oftentimes hiding in the unconscious, it is harder to come to grips with and difficult to cure. John Ellis Large relates an interesting case of smoldering resentment.

George had become quite a problem to his wife, to himself, to everybody. He was irritable, irascible, critical of everyone, always out of sorts. His state of mind affected his health, and he suffered from nervous tension — got so he took a dozen kinds of pills.

George's boss, also concerned, told Sara that her husband was contentious, hard to get along with, downright cranky.

So Sara tried to get a few thoughts across to her husband. But he responded, "Get off my neck! Everybody else is on my neck. Now you've climbed on it. Is that the way a wife is supposed to act?"

The troubled woman then went to see Dr. Large.

Sara was then given what seemed strange advice. She was told to awaken when her husband was in deep sleep, and to work mentally and prayerfully to project creative thoughts into George's deep unconscious. In thought she was to picture this man as peaceful and free of tension; she was to visualize him as affable and friendly in his relationships.

So this devoted wife got herself awake early every morning and followed directions. Weeks went by without any sign that George felt different in any way. Then one day he said, "Wonder how come everybody at the office is so much nicer than they used to be? They must have begun to realize how badly they'd been treating me."

Some weeks later the boss called George in and informed him, "I'm making you a division manager."

George was astonished. "But why?" he involuntarily asked. "Because of the way you've changed," the boss said.

That evening when George told his wife the good news he added wonderingly, "Sure is something, isn't it? Really something."

Sara merely said, "And how!"

Bird Plea Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has rejected an 11th-hour request by an animal-protection group that he block the Army's planned extermination of millions of birds in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Burger turned down without comment Friday a request by the Society for Animals Rights that he set aside an order by the U.S. Court of Appeals permitting the killings. The society has filed suit in U.S. District Court to halt the operation permanently.

The Army extermination program is to take place at Ft. Campbell, Ky., and at the Milan Army Ammunition Depot in Robertson and Giles counties in Tennessee. A similar program is expected to be carried out by civilian officials in Paducah, Ky.

The Army and local officials said the 13 million birds—grackles, blackbirds, starlings and cow birds—have interfered with aircraft operations at Ft. Campbell and may carry histoplasmosis, an occasionally fatal lung disease.

The birds are to be exterminated by being sprayed with the detergent chemical Tertigol, which removes oil from their feathers and causes them to die of exposure to rain and cold weather.

Texas GOP Leaders Want No Part Of Conservative Party Efforts

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Republican leaders made it clear Saturday they want no part of efforts to form a new national political party for conservatives.

"With this third party talk the time has come to make my position clear," Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., told a regular meeting of the State Republican Executive Committee at nearby Lakeway Resort. He noted that some of his Senate colleagues appeared Saturday at a meeting of the American Conservative Union in Washington.

"All my life I have worked to build the Republican party in Texas. I have no intention of abandoning my party now," Tower said. There was long, loud applause.

"If the strong conservatives do cut away (from the GOP) it would, in my opinion, have two bad effects," said Rita Bass, Dallas, national committee woman. "First it would weaken the Republican Party and second it would fragment the voice of conservatism even more."

Much of the committee's session was spent discussing ways to recuperate from the 1974 election defeats in time for 1976.

Mrs. Bass said a recent meeting on the national level in Washington was told that a survey shows only 9 per cent of young people are becoming Republicans. "This is one segment we really have to reach out and touch," she said. Another survey figure showed that "only 30 per cent of Southern whites are Democrats with many moving to independents. This is another segment we really need to work on."

Florida's Citrus Growers Experiencing Largest Surplus Of Labor In 25 Years

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Unemployed workers desperate for jobs at any price are pouring into Florida's citrus groves by the thousands, creating the largest harvest-time labor surplus here in 25 years, officials say.

And growers are responding to the influx by cutting wages, using tactics one union leader says are reminiscent of the Great Depression.

Wage Rates Cut

Orange and grapefruit growers, hard hit by spiraling production costs, have cut wage rates by as much as 10 cents a box because of the flood of would-be pickers, according to industry sources.

"It's the old law of supply and demand," said Clark Ghiselin, director of the Citrus Industrial Council. He estimated that pickers currently earn 35 to 40 cents a box, compared with 40 to 45 cents a box earned last season.

Don S. Bryan, a citrus grower in Bartow, said that last season, an average picker could produce about 60 boxes a day. At last year's rate of 45 cents a box, a picker would earn about $27 a day.

Because of the labor surplus this season, Bryan said, some growers are limiting their pickers' hours and have cut them back to four-day work weeks, although Bryan's pickers are not being restricted.

"A lot of crews are being limited to two trailers a day, and that figures out to about 20 boxes per picker," said Diana Lyons, an organizer for the United Farm Workers Union who says some pickers are getting as little as 25 to 30 cents a box. "And that comes to us little as $6 a day."

"It's the same kind of situation we had when people fled the dust bowls for California during the Great Depression. Back then, employers bargained for an over-supply of labor to get the cheapest labor possible and that's what's happening now," she said.

Whole Crews Idle

"I haven't seen this kind of surplus since the late '40s," Ghiselin said. "There's no way to get a census on people looking for jobs, but all the harvesting operations tell me they've got whole crews who can't get work."

Despite the lack of hard statistics, other industry sources estimate that two or three workers are applying for each of this year's 26,000 picking jobs. The main harvesting period runs from the end of December into the spring months.

"We've got labor running out of our ears," said Hal Schwert, an area supervisor for the Florida Office of Rural Manpower Services.

Unskilled Pickers

Officials say workers with no previous picking experience have begun showing up at hiring halls along with a large number of out-of-work men from northern states.

"There are skilled construction workers trying to pick but not every man can do it," said Wilson McGee, director of United Growers Inc., a citrus growers cooperative.

Despite decreased labor costs because of the overflow of applicants for picker jobs, industry sources say there is little likelihood of a drop in the price of citrus fruits or citrus fruit products.

Stronger Effort Urged

Tower recommended that Texas Republicans in 1976 exert unusual effort to elect more GOP county judges and commissioners and more GOP state legislators. "I am convinced we have to work harder from the grass roots level," he said.

Tower said he thought Republicans should work harder than ever to reduce the intervention of federal government into other levels of government. "It is up to you to stimulate in any way you can by popular demand that the government get out of your every day affairs," he said.

Tower predicted "the Democrats will nominate someone totally unacceptable to Texas and I think we will re-elect our President."

Report Presented

Fred Agnich, Dallas, national committee man, presented a Positive Action Committee report, which he said was designed to broaden the state and national parties "by education, by what we stand for."

"I totally reject the idea of broadening our party if it prostitutes the beliefs of our great party," he said. "If we do we will find ourselves like the Democrats who have tried to encompass everyone from the Ku Klux Klan to the Communists."

The Positive Action Committee report was adopted and will go to the 1976 state convention for consideration in changing party rules.

One change was made at the insistence of Doug DeCluit, Waco. On his motion a provision was removed that would let any one make a speech at a state convention if he got a petition signed by 20 per cent of the 31 senatorial district chairmen.

Attorney Protests

"This rule could be used to completely destroy a convention," protested Duncan Beckman, Dallas, a party attorney. "This is the most dangerous rule we have considered in a long time."

Another speaker to the meeting was Rep. Bill Archer, R-Tex., of Houston, who also stressed the need for Texas Republicans to attract support of young people. "Young people today are completely different from what they were three or four years ago," he said. "They believe in what we believe in. They are fearful of big government. . . . We can draw on this for future support. We must go into the high schools and colleges."

State GOP Chairman Jack Warren announced the resignation of Brad O'Leary as executive director of state GOP headquarters.

Coffee Producers Hold Meeting On Increasing Prices

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Representatives of 42 countries producing coffee held closed meetings Saturday seeking agreement on how to boost the price of the coffee and by representatives of the larger producing nations such as Brazil.

An international agreement on coffee sales was allowed to expire two years ago after some producing nations protested their export quotas were too low in comparison with their national production.

Coffee prices started to drop and have fallen about 25 percent in the past 12 months, making coffee one of the few basic commodities reflecting a price decrease in the world inflationary spiral.

Delegates from Latin America, Africa and Europe opened their discussions Friday with a meeting that lasted until almost midnight.

Fausto Cantu Pena of Mexico, chairman of the world coffee producers group, said five proposals were offered at the session, all aimed at forming a world cartel to withhold coffee from the market when prices are low or to get from consuming nations a guaranteed minimum price.

"We are discussing those alternatives now and should reach a decision late tonight," Cantu Pena said in an interview. "We will probably decide on some sort of combination of two or more of the alternatives, some sort of compromise."

"Never before in these meetings have we talked with such frankness and determination."

despite the fact that the dust bowls for California during the Great Depression. Back then, employers bargained for an over-supply of labor to get the cheapest labor possible and that's what's happening now," she said.

"I haven't seen this kind of surplus since the late '40s," Ghiselin said. "There's no way to get a census on people looking for jobs, but all the harvesting operations tell me they've got whole crews who can't get work."

Search For Alternate Water Sources In West Texas Is Continuing

Gen. James M. Rose, director of the High Plains Water Task Force, told the water-minded West Texans that the state and Water, Inc., have the same goal, "long-range water resource development."

Rose outlined the overall state water development program and said it was the Water Task Force's opinion that state-constructed water would be inadequate to meet Texas water needs in less than 50 years.

He said the task force has plans for 27 water projects to be completed within the next five years.

Rose said Texans must unite in support of financial efforts such as the $3 billion state bond issue that failed by approximately 3,000 votes five years ago for the Mississippi water project.

He said the West Texas farmer will now play a vital role in this world food crisis only if an adequate water supply can be maintained. Clayton warned that 37 per cent of Texas' farm production, that of West Texas and the High Plains, is in danger of vanishing if water cannot be imported from other sources such as the Mississippi River.

The House speaker said a food crisis brought about because of a depletion of the water supply

Neill Seeking City Council Re-Election

Incumbent councilman Martin Neill announced Saturday he will seek election to a full term in Place 1 on the Midland City Council in the city election slated for April 1.

Neill was appointed to fill the Place 1 slot on the council last year following the resignation of Thornton Hardie Jr.

Neill served from 1968 to 1972 as councilman in Place 4. He did not seek re-election after his second term.

Neill has served as chairman of the planning and zoning commission, Mayor pro-tem and Region IV president of the Texas Municipal League.

Neill, who is in the mechanical contracting business, has been a resident of Midland 38 years. He is active in civic and church affairs, serving on the Legislative Committee and the Midland Area Sales Team of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. He recently was elected vice chairman of the Human Welfare Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

"It is fundamental to me," Neill said, "that good municipal government be responsive to the needs and wishes of its citizens, and serve them as efficiently, and economically as possible. It is to this purpose that I present myself as a candidate for Place 1 in the April 1 city election."

Midland Court Measure Filed

AUSTIN — Rep. Tom Craddock of Midland has filed a bill, that would make Midland's municipal court a court of record.

The difference between a court of record and the present system, Craddock explained, is that currently in appeals to the county court the whole case has to be retried.

But with the municipal court a court of record, the county court would hear appeals which allege an error in the municipal court trial, much the way appeals from district courts to the courts of civil appeals are handled.

Staff Of Salvation Army Pressed

When, and if, housing is found, the Salvation Army pays the first two weeks rent and issues a food purchase order. The amount for food is based on the number in the family and the length of time before the first paycheck.

Typically, a family of four department has received $25 to $30 for rent for families during this period. The two weeks and $15 "for food" average number is about 90 for two weeks. Some are also families per month.

The grocery orders have more than doubled this month compared to the same time last year. For the period Feb. 1-12, 29 food orders have been given out, while only 22 were given out last year for the whole month of February.

Almost all recipients for the Feb. 1 through 12 period have been non-residents of the county. The Salvation Army still has its normal case load of county residents to handle, which is usually 90 to 100 families needing help with rent, food or utility bills.

The Salvation Army fiscal 1975 budget is $30,000. Family Services, which handles rent and food orders for those not in the emergency home, gets $12,000. The emergency home budget out of which comes food served there, salaries for two employees and rent of the building which is $3,000 per year, gets $18,000.

Vincent says at this point there are no budget problems, but if they have to keep up the present pace there may be problems.

The Family Services' budget is broken into twelfths and in January, the department was $350 over its budget for that month. When the department runs short for one month, it can borrow from another month and hope to be able to make it up later in the year.

"We may reach a point where we can no longer do that," Mrs. Thomson said. "I don't know what's going to happen when we do."

The emergency home has already overspent its food budget for this month, but donations of venison and beef have helped.

"We have a fantastic cook who can do wonders," Vincent said.

As far as employment is concerned, the Texas Employment Commission here late last week reported 67 job openings for unskilled workers, mostly in the food services category.

Most people coming into the area are unskilled and semi-skilled workers, while most job openings are in the skilled worker category.

The Salvation Army has four workers in the Family Services department and two workers at the emergency home. Vincent says there is no money in the budget to hire additional staff which now is badly needed.

"It's getting to the point where we can't do any more. It has become a community problem. Maybe employers could help by not holding back on pay. But it's very rapidly getting to the place where we can't handle it."

Vincent says three other United Way agencies in the county are trying to help within their own guidelines, but their situations are no better. He also says the Salvation Army has more funds than the other three agencies.

Vincent predicts the influx of people won't start to slack off until at least April. Meanwhile, the Salvation Army will continue to try to cope with the situation, but it's going to need help—from other agencies, employers, civic organizations, the city and the community.

Martial Law Declared In Eritrea Province

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Ethiopia's military rulers declared martial law Saturday throughout rebellious Eritrea province and removed Eritreans from all top security posts.

The clampdown came as Sudanese government sources in Khartoum reported that Ethiopia's ruling military council had agreed to a cease-fire with Eritrea's Moslem and Marxist insurgents. But no statement was made by government officials here about Sudanese President Jaafar el Numairi's efforts to mediate a truce.

The Sudanese sources said the Ethiopian government had agreed to a cease-fire, general amnesty for rebels and truce talks without preconditions. They added that a high ranking Ethiopian would arrive in Khartoum soon "to discuss application of the three points," Numairi said Monday that leaders of the Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF) had accepted his peace proposals.

Fighting continued throughout the week, however, centering around the provincial capital of Asmara and its 200,000 residents.

Sporadic violence has spread to Addis Ababa, where thousands of Eritrean-born women, children and old people were packing up and leaving for their home province, fearful of government reprisals.

Amtrak Reports Business, Earnings Gains For 1974

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government railroad corporation, Amtrak, Saturday reported it carried more passengers and had higher earned revenues in 1974 than during any year since its founding in 1971.

In addition the trains were running more and more on time, 75.3 per cent compared with an average of 61.7 per cent in 1973, even in the face of increasing demand for service, Amtrak said.

Amtrak President Roger Lewis in his annual report also said, "The Amtrak nationwide ticketing and reservation system was completed in 1974, enabling our ticketing and reservation personnel to provide far better service than ever before."

"Without this system our daily call capacity in the summer was 50,000. By last summer we were able to handle as many as 78,000 calls a day, with a higher degree of efficiency," Lewis said.

One area we must always watch carefully is the growth of Amtrak's route structure. The high fuel efficiency of rail travel in the context of a chronic fuel shortage has led to increasing demand for the initiation of new intercity rail service."

Responding to this demand, Lewis said, Amtrak initiated seven new routes during 1974 with the financial participation of Illinois, Michigan and New York and two at the direction of Congress and the secretary of transportation.

Lewis said that "because of the need to retire worn-out equipment, the total Amtrak car fleet will increase only 12 per cent" under its five-year program.

Magazine Ads For Antitank Helicopters Now Read Like Promotions For Aspirin

Navy Due Second Woman Admiral

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy will soon have its second woman admiral, Capt. Maxine Conder.

She is expected to succeed Rear Adm. Alene B. Duerk next summer as director of the Navy Nurse Corps. Capt. Conder, 48, a native of Bingham Canyon, Utah, has served more than 23 years in the Navy.

Her name appeared on a list released Friday of 33 captains chosen for promotion to flag rank.

The Army and Air Force have two women generals each.

read like Madison Avenue promotions for aspirin, the nation's largest helicopter manufacturer boosts its line of $1-million attack aircraft in internationally circulated magazines.

Bell Helicopter Co. of Fort Worth, Tex., will provide 202 of its fast, rocket-firing Sea Cobra helicopters and 287 utility helicopters to Iran. Meanwhile, a sister company, Bell Helicopter International, holds a contract to train an Iranian army combat strike force modeled on American units in Vietnam.

Many companies which build both military and civilian products feature their war hardware in advertising, usually to emphasize achievements in research and development. Rarely do the ads contain the unabashed appeal to potential military buyers of the Bell ad which appeared in publications recently.

Next to a drawing of a Cobra attack helicopter in action, the ad extols its death-dealing capabilities:

"The Cobra strikes at long range from concealed defensive positions. Target in view, it leaps up from ground cover. Unleashes its ordnance with precision accuracy. Then leaves. Fast!"

It ends with the slogan, "Peacekeepers around the world depend on Bell Helicopter."

Company officials say their sales of such products probably result mostly from demonstration tours and are handled through diplomatic channels, but that the advertising in general circulation magazines helps to attract the attention of heads of state and other influential people.

Marty Reisch, a Bell Helicopter spokesman, said his firm competes with British, French and other American companies "and there's an awareness factor in a competitive situation, in which the ads serve a certain purpose.

"It's like a person buying a car. He has a number of options and he picks the one he wants."

Bell has sold 2,000 helicopters to foreign buyers since 1947. All such military purchases are through the U.S. government air programs or direct to customers with State Department approval.

Reisch said that before the deal with Iran, Spain was the only country to have bought Cobras — eight of them.

GOP Urged To Become More Conservative

WASHINGTON (AP) — The only hope for the Republican party is to become the majority party to be a conservative alternative to the Democrats, Sen. James L. Buckley said Saturday.

"Otherwise, the Republican Party may have no future," the New York Conservative Republican senator told the Conservative Political Action Conference meeting here this weekend.

Buckley said "the next five years could prove decisive for the future of the republic" in determining whether the nation will plunge "into the abyss of a centralized, regulated society" or whether it will break the restraints being imposed on individual freedom.

He said the conference, which has been filled with talk of a conservative third party to challenge the Republicans and Democrats in 1976, can be "a turning point on the road back to political balance and sanity."

Buckley, who expects to run for re-election in 1976 as a Republican, after winning election originally on the ticket of New York's Conservative party, avoided any direct third party talk but called on the conference "to go forward from this meeting to do what is necessary: To effect a conservative political majority in America."

The senator talked of the need for the Republican Party to adopt a consistently conservative policy.

"Unless the Republican Party brings itself to stand for a coherent philosophy of political alternatives, it will continue along its constant decline," Buckley said.

He added that "Republicanism of the kind that accepts, in the name of moderation, half the liberal Democratic program holds no appeal to those conservative-minded independents and Democrats who were essential to the victorious presidential election coalition of 1972."

"The one chance for the Republican Party to become the majority party is to do what ought to come naturally, and that is to identify itself with the conservative alternative to the liberalism that now dictates Democratic policy," he said.

"Otherwise, the Republican Party may have no future," he said.

Earlier Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who was an unsuccessful presidential candidate on the State's Rights ticket in 1948, told reporters "the way always ought to be left open" for a third political party.

But Thurmond said it's now premature to make a decision whether conservatives should form a new party.

He said he ran on the State's Rights ticket in 1948 to give the American people a choice. Thurmond was opposed by Democratic Harry Truman the winner, and Republican Thomas Dewey.

Asked if former California governor Ronald Reagan, a Republican, would be acceptable on a third-party ticket, Thurmond replied: "I think he's a wonderful man and a fine leader on any ticket he'll run on."

However, he said he understands that Reagan won't run if President Ford seeks re-election.

Algerian President Says Industrialized Nations Trying To Block Development Of 'Third World'

ALGIERS (AP) — Algerian President Houari Boumediene accused the industrialized countries Saturday of trying to block the full-scale industrialization of the Third World to perpetuate their economic domination of the poor countries.

Opening a four-day meeting of the developing nations, the Algerian leader urged a substantial reform and strengthening of the Vienna-based U.N. Industrial Development Organization to serve what he called the interests of the poor countries.

He said the U.N. body should: —Become an organ of study and execution of industrialization projects and programs in the service of the Third World countries. —Have the power to give the developing countries whatever assistance they may need "for the recovery of their own natural resources."

—Help the developing countries "to process on their own territories the natural, agricultural and mineral resources they possess."

Boumediene was the only major speaker at the opening session of the meeting, convened by Algeria to coordinate the policies of the developing nations at the U.N. Conference on Industrial Development scheduled for March 12-28 in Lima, Peru.

Algerian Industry Minister Belaid Abdessalam was unanimously elected chairman of the meeting, which is to be held mostly behind closed doors in the International Conference Center overlooking the Mediterranean, 20 miles west of Algiers.

Representatives of more than 80 nations took part, including numerous ministers or other high officials of the developing countries. They are expected to draft a plan of action for promoting the Third World's industrialization, to be submitted to the Lima conference jointly by the so-called "Group of 77" developing countries—which have now grown to 104. Not all were present when the meeting opened.

Boumediene asserted that the industrialized nations consented to the industrialization of Third World countries only reluctantly and by encouraging "industries that have become undesirable in the developed countries."

"The Third World must reject any attempt to impose a system under which 'there are some industries suitable for underdeveloped countries and other industries which remain the prerogative of the rich countries which thereby set themselves up as a sort of dominant aristocracy in the world of industry,'" Boumediene declared.

Boumediene reiterated the Algerian view that the worldwide inflation and recession was not due to the sharp increase in the price of oil, but rather to the industrialized countries' selfishness in "keeping the immense majority of the human race in misery and underdevelopment."

Building Permits Total $135,400

It was a below-average week at the city's inspection department, with 17 building permits issued for a total of $135,400.

The construction total for the first six weeks of the year now stands at $2.2 million — for a weekly average of about $360,000 — with residential housing projects making up the lion's share of the total.

Last week, two permits were issued for new home construction — both to Wallace Construction Co. for $45,000 single-family structures to be located at 1207 and 1210 Shirley Lane.

Two new commercial building permits were issued for a total of $23,000. Those permits went to L. E. Waynick for a $15,000 warehouse to be located at 1003 South L St., and to E. C. Brannon for 12 commercial storage units, worth $8,000, to be located on FM 868, west of Midkiff Street.

Residential alteration and repair permits totaled $22,400 during the week on the strength of 13 applications. Those permits were issued to Lloyd French, 1303 W. Illinois St., $1,200, repair home; John Brewer, 618 W. Storey St., $500, add garage; Berland-Ingram, 2216 Sycamore St., $1,200, add garage; D. L. Sparks, 2407 Darlington St., $3,500, add room; W. E. Robertson, 608 Raymond St., $3,000, add garage; L. A. Simmons, 3219 W. Brigg, 3111 Auburn Drive, $150, add storage facility; Nancy White, 4505 Anetta St., $3,500, enclose garage and add fireplace; James Stewart, 4418 Monty St., $350, enclose garage; Bob Pufal, 3801 Gaston St., $700, add den; and Neil Byron, 2811 Byron St., $850, add storage facility.

The price of gold topped the $200 mark in December when there was speculation that demand would go to record levels after Americans were permitted to legally trade in gold for the first time in 41 years, but they showed little interest and prices fell off.

The price rose $5 in London on Thursday and another $5 Friday to close at $184.25 an ounce. In Zurich, Europe's biggest market, the price was up $8 Friday and closed at the London level.

Southwestern Bell Ordered To Justify Rate Hike In Court

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. must defend itself in court for the first time against a suit by the attorney general challenging the reasonableness of its intrastate, long distance rates.

State District Court Judge Tom Blackwell ruled Friday he has the jurisdiction to hear the suit and that Atty. Gen. John Hill has the authority to file it on behalf of the people of Texas.

Hearing Tuesday

A 2 p.m. Tuesday hearing is scheduled on a temporary injunction to stop Bell from charging Texans $45 million more a year, beginning March 1.

Texas is the only state that has no statewide regulation of utilities, and Bell attorney Will Sears of Houston told the judge that Hill was "attempting to smuggle the legislative power into the back door of the court."

Hill's Argument

Hill argued that he was not asking Blackwell to legislate telephone rates but simply to declare Bell's proposed rates unreasonable. Then it would be up to Bell, Hill said, to set reasonable rates.

Both the English common (case) law, adopted by Texas in 1840, and the Texas Constitution authorize the attorney general to file such a suit, Hill said.

Sears argued that Hill was saying, "There ought to be a remedy, and Judge Blackwell, fashion one and put it into the statute."

Hill responded that Sears' argument "puts us in the preposterous position of admitting the public has a right to be charged a reasonable rate, but no one can enforce that right."

"If they have nothing to hide . . . what's wrong with public disclosure of those facts?"

A pending civil suit alleges Bell kept two sets of books to persuade cities with false cost figures to set higher local telephone rates. The same suit accuses Bell of making illegal corporate contributions to politicians through its officers.

Hornswoggle Foe With Discards

The commonest form of deceptive play is the falsecard — the play of a high card when a lower card would do the job. For example, suppose you have the A-K-Q of spades and that the opening lead against your contract of three notrump is a low spade. You might win the first trick with the ace of spades instead of the queen to conceal your strength. This would be important if you gave up a trick to the opponents, since you would want them to return another spade rather than look elsewhere for your weak suit.

This would be a clumsy falsecard against experienced opponents: you must never tell a man more than he will believe. If a man will believe that you have caught a 20-pound fish don't say a word about 30 pounds. You might turn him into a blackhearted skeptic, and then he might discover that you hadn't even gone fishing. Likewise, when you have the A-K-Q of spades, don't win the first trick with your ace if your opponents are blackhearted skeptics. Try the king and see if they'll believe that.

This leads us to another principle of sophisticated fibbing. If you tell the truth to a skeptical opponent he will never believe you. It's hard for a man to believe that you're telling the truth when he'd be lying if he were in your boots.

If spades are opened, and you have A-x in the dummy and x-x in your own hand, you can't really accomplish much at no-trump by refusing the first trick. Take the ace at once. Skeptical opponents will think you are concealing spade strength, and may therefore shift to a different suit where you let them in.

Another way to deceive the opponents is to discard from strength when they expect you to discard from weakness. For example, you have A-Q-2 of spades and discard the deuce of spades on a trick won by the opponent at your left. Surprisingly, often he will hurry to return a spade to attack your "weakness."

This sort of discard works because the opponents cannot see your hand, but it may work even if you discard from the dummy. The opponents can see dummy's strength and weakness, but what they misread is which suits you have an interest in.

West opened the king of hearts, and South ruffed in dummy, reflecting bitterly that his slam would be unbeatable if he had the ace of diamonds instead of the ace of hearts. As it was, West surely had several diamonds headed by the ace and would eventually take two diamond tricks to defeat the slam.

A beginner might ruff one of dummy's spades at the second trump just for the shock value. You see beginners do this time and time again when they should let the void suit come as a surprise later in the hand. Since South was no beginner, he got to ruff out his other low heart and proceeded to run the trumps. When South led his fourth trump he had to discard from the dummy. South did not consider discarding any of dummy's useless spades; instead he discarded a low diamond.

South led a fifth trump to throw another diamond from the dummy and then led a sixth trump. West, perspiring, saved two spades and three diamonds. Dummy finally released one low spade. When South next led his ace of hearts, West stopped ruffing and began to sweat. He had to throw the queen of spades or the nine of diamonds, and either discard would be fatal if South had K-x-x in that suit.

Perhaps East should have discarded informatively, but you know how partners are. East had blissfully thrown all of his hearts and one diamond, telling West exactly nothing.

West remembered that South's first discards from the dummy had been diamonds, perhaps indicating that South was not interested in that suit. West therefore discarded the nine of diamonds, and the hand was over. South led a diamond and lost only one diamond trick.

I can just hear somebody complaining that West was a clumsy oaf. If South held K-x-x of spades he would discard spades from the dummy to deceive West. The diamond discards should warn West to hold diamonds.

It boils down to knowing your customers. If West believed the opposite of what he saw, South would discard spades from the dummy. Since West was actually a rather trusting soul, South discarded diamonds from the dummy.

It doesn't matter whether you tell the truth or a lie. What matters is how others will react to what you tell them.

Influenza Deaths Continue Above Epidemic Level

ATLANTA (AP) — For the fifth consecutive week, flu-related deaths were above the epidemic level last week, the national Center for Disease Control reports.

The center said Friday most new cases occurred in the mid-Atlantic, south Atlantic and Pacific regions.

Some 816 flu-related deaths were reported by 121 cities last week, 250 more than the expected number, the center said. An epidemic occurs when deaths exceed the number forecast by 50.

Mid-Atlantic deaths increased from 158 to 236 over the previous week; south Atlantic deaths increased from 63 to 80; and Pacific region deaths increased from 67 to 96.

In New York City, flu-related deaths rose to 114 from 76 the week before. However, a spokesman said this may have been because of increased reporting rather than an actual increase in the number.

In other areas, the flu-related death rates varied only slightly, the CDC said in its weekly morbidity and mortality report.

Unintended Pension Bonus Could Be Costly For Taxpayers

By DICK BARNES
WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal retirees can get billions of extra dollars at taxpayer expense because a formula designed to keep their pensions in step with inflation actually propels them increasingly ahead.

The unintended bonus could easily cost taxpayers $100 billion or more by 1990, according to projections by The Associated Press—projections which Congress failed to make before it approved the formula.

So many variable factors are involved, the exact cost of the bonanza for today's nearly two million federal pensioners can't be determined.

But AP calculations show that a typical federal employee who retired in January 1973 could, during the rest of his life, draw more than $27,500 beyond what he would receive if his pension merely kept even, month by month, with the cost of living index.

Put another way, at a point when the cost of living would have risen 46 per cent since this employee's retirement day, his monthly pension check would be up by 57 per cent.

The pension overpayments come about because under a 1969 law retirees are given an extra permanent one per cent pension increase each time their checks are adjusted for changes in the Consumer Price Index. The CPI is the standard measuring tool for the cost of living.

The extra one per cent is supposed to compensate for money lost during the lag between the time living costs increase and the time retirement checks are adjusted to meet those increases.

But in reality, the extra one per cent compounds over the years, pushing retirement checks farther and farther ahead of any rise in the cost of living.

In fact, the faster the cost of living increases, the farther and faster federal pensions move ahead.

Civil servants, congressmen and retired military personnel all benefit from the extra one per cent formula, which Congress approved in 1969.

Despite its existence for more than five years, the lucrative operation of the retirement pay formula has never drawn significant public attention.

In his budget message to Congress on Feb. 3, however, President Ford called for a comprehensive evaluation of the federal retirement system. He referred briefly to "cost-of-living adjustments with over-compensate by providing for permanent annuity increases in excess of changes in the Consumer Price Index."

Ralph J. Devlin, who was top staff assistant on the House subcommittee which first approved the formula, expressed surprise in an interview about how it was operating in practice.

But he acknowledged that in 1969 no detailed projections of its effect had been made. He characterized the formula as "a throw-in in a bill that had some goodies."

The General Accounting Office warned the committee of a spiral effect, but even GAO did not make long-range projections.

Referring to the recent rapid rise in the cost of living, Devlin said: "Nobody had a crystal ball that could tell what would happen."

But AP calculations show that overpayments occur to some degree whether the cost of living rises slowly or rapidly.

Take an employee who retired in January 1973 at $400 per month, who was the average civil service retirement age of 57 and who lives the 18 years predicted by insurance industry tables.

If future inflation continues at an average rate of one-half per cent per month, or a bit more than six per cent per year, he'll be over-paid in pension checks by $27,588.62.

If future inflation is at a low rate of 3-plus per cent a year, he'll be overpaid $13,688.29. But if it continues at the present high rate of 12-plus per cent per year, his overpayment will total $78,388.59.

When Congress more recently tied Social Security benefits to the cost of living, it did not add in the extra one per cent factor.

Total costs of the federal retiree overpayments in future years depend on so many factors they are difficult to compute. Rates of retirement, age of retirement, federal pay levels and the cost of living all affect calculations.

But for just the 133,318 civil servants who retired in the year ended June 30, 1974, the cost of extra payments in their lifetimes could exceed $5 billion if the cost of living rose steadily at one-half per cent per month—a rate well below current levels.

Add in another 800,000 civilians already retired, try to estimate future retirements in the 2.5 million person federal work force, figure in nearly 1 million retired military personnel, who tend to retire earlier and draw benefits longer, and the cost of these overpayments by 1990 could easily exceed $100 billion.

For several years leading up to the 1969 change, federal retirees' pensions followed the cost of living this way: When the cost of living increased three per cent from the most recent base month and stayed at that level or higher for three consecutive months, pension checks would be increased by the percentage rise in cost of living from the base month to the highest month during the three-month period.

The increase would take effect two months later. The high month during the three-month period would then become the new base for any subsequent increase.

By 1969, however, employe organizations were arguing that retirees were losing money because of the time lag between increases in the cost of living and the effective date of pension increases.

Valley Forge Encampment Re-Enactment In Progress

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — A re-enactment of George Washington's winter encampment at Valley Forge will be followed as closely as possible this weekend as the nation celebrates the birthday of its first president.

The only exception is that women will not be allowed to spend the night with the troops here. It's against park rules.

"Sure we'll have our camp followers," said a spokesman for the Second Pennsylvania Regiment of the Continental Line which will relive history in spartan log cabins used by the Colonials in the bitter winter of 1777-78.

"We're trying to come as close as we possibly can to the way it was 200 years ago," he said. "The followers will act as wives, girl friends, maybe even ladies of the night. But they're not going to be in the huts."

Historians claim as many as 20,000 women followed America's first Army from battle to battle. They did their cooking and baking in the fields and slept with the troops.

It has even been said that Washington took his wife Martha along on some military adventures.

But park officials find such overnight thersness in the now-hallowed shrine a bit unseemly.

Thirty men, authentically uniformed and equipped, were to live in the huts in the Fort Mifflin section of the park from Friday night until this afternoon. The rolling fields are icy and snow-covered.

$6,000 Missing From Hidalgo Jail

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — About $6,000 in bond and fine money is missing from the Hidalgo County jail, County Auditor Bob McLeish said Friday.

The auditor said safekeeping of the money was the responsibility of Chief Jailer Santos Perez, who died in a recent automobile accident.

McLeish said three other persons had access to the money.

Perez, 44, of McAllen, died Jan. 29 when his automobile left U.S. 281 near Pharr and struck a palm tree.

Pharr Police Chief Raul Reyna, who said Friday the accident is still being investigated, said there were no skid marks and the pavement was dry at the time of the accident. The automobile remains impounded.

McLeish said he is turning over information about the missing money to the district attorney's office.

This is the largest junior livestock show in the country.

These young people will join adult exhibitors in seeking premiums of more than $400,000, a new record for the Houston show. Around 19,000 entries are expected.

The show will again be held in the show's $12.5 million facility with rodeo performances in the Astrodome. First rodeo performances are scheduled for Friday.

EAST MEADOW, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Lucille DeGregoria, 43, got Valentine's Day flowers but they carried a $5,100 price tag.

Two bogus bouquet bearers rang the door bell Friday, handed her the flowers and after producing a silver-plated gun made off with $5,100 in cash in the house.

Mrs. DeGregoria said she had been expecting flowers because it was her husband's way of remembering Valentine's Day.

OPEC Postpones Vienna Sessions Until Feb. 25

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Financial experts from OPEC have been meeting here since Feb. 8 to draft working papers for their chiefs of state to be used in the eventual dialogue with the main industrialized nations of the West.

Informed sources said the oil ministers were expected to discuss possible steps to cope with the decline of dollar exchange rates, production cuts and the documents prepared by the financial experts currently in session here.

OPEC Secretary General M. O. Feyide of Nigeria suggested to reporters several days ago that the oil ministers could decide on a price boost for crude oil to cope with losses in their income due to the dollar weakness. But he added, "I am not saying that they will."

The Venezuelan minister of mines and hydrocarbons, Valentin Hernandez, later said OPEC was not considering a new increase in the price of oil.

California Congressman Dies When Plane Crashes

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Jerry Pettis, killed when his single-engine plane crashed near here, excelled in many fields and brought his knowledge to Congress, President Ford says.

The five-term congressman and veteran pilot died Friday when his plane went down in the San Bernardino Mountains. He was alone in the craft.

The President said Pettis "excelled as a rancher, teacher, aviator, religious leader and businessman. Jerry brought the insights he gained in these various fields to Congress and his position of leadership among House Republicans."

The California congressman was the third-ranking Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee and deputy Republican whip.

"The plane crash cut off a brilliant career in a tragic and untimely way," said Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes, a close friend of the 56-year-old Pettis. "We in California and this nation have lost one of the ablest members of Congress."

Pettis frequently used his plane to visit constituents in his far-flung 33rd Congressional District, which covers most of San Bernardino and Riverside counties.

Pettis' Beechcraft Bonanza was spotted by a sheriff's helicopter shortly after noon Friday in a ravine at the 4,500-foot level of a 9,000-foot mountain peak about 20 miles east of San Bernardino.

The congressman had left Palm Springs at 8:15 a.m. on a 30-minute flight to San Bernardino, where he was to attend a meeting of the state Public Utilities Commission.

His wife, Shirley, was waiting for him at Tri-City Airport and notified authorities when he failed to arrive.

Pettis left the airport in clear weather but was met by clouds and fog in Banning Pass, with visibility of one mile, federal officials said. A pilot for 35 years, was flying by visual flight rules. Officials said no radio contact was made with the plane after takeoff. The cause of the crash was under investigation.

Pettis once was a pilot for United Airlines. He helped organize the nation's first pilots union and served as its first president. He later was a special assistant to the president of United Air Lines.

In the late 1930s he was known as "the flying minister" when, as a Seventh Day Adventist minister, he used a plane to tend his scattered congregation in western Arizona and southeastern California.

He was an economics professor at Loma Linda University from 1948-1960 and later vice president for development.

EMINENT DOMAIN

A home may be a man's castle, but even the king of his castle has little clout if his property is needed for public use — be it urban renewal, schools or public highways. The process is known as eminent domain. It is the power built into the federal and all state constitutions to take private property for public use upon payment of "just compensation" — which has been interpreted by the courts to mean "fair market value."

Your land is deemed to be taken even though you may not be physically deprived of it. It is a taking if you are simply deprived of the normal use of your property. Only the amount of the property which is necessary for the intended public use may be taken away from you. If there is only a partial taking, you are entitled to the difference between the fair market value of your whole property before the partial taking and the fair market value of the remaining part of your land after the taking.

'We Can Make It...'

Rogers C. B. Morton, secretary of the Interior and chairman of the Energy Resources Council, is a forceful speaker, but more than this he is a speaker who lays it on the line as it is... take it or leave it.

Most of his listeners at the Midland Chamber of Commerce banquet last Tuesday night apparently liked what he said. They accepted his remarks as fact... coming from a Cabinet member who knows the score and who isn't afraid to state his position.

Serving as the President's chief energy adviser, it is well that the secretary understands the problem in order that he will be able to come up with some possible solutions.

Certainly, the secretary speaks the administration line: One hardly could expect otherwise... but had you considered that this well might be the secretary's line which the administration has adopted.

"We're going to have to re-structure our energy pattern to hold the free world and our economy together," Morton told his chamber of commerce banquet listeners. "Our job is to get everybody working together to formulate a new energy ethic and a new sense of independence."

"We must come up with a new ethic that doesn't waste resources. This will give us time in this century to develop new technologies which eventually will allow the complete replacement of fossil fuels."

Complete replacement of fossil fuels, of course, is something of which most persons in this vast region of oil and gas production hadn't previously given much thought. But deep down, many persons know that this is the case. We're going to have to start burning some coal in Texas, as Morton said. This won't be too bad under the circumstances, but it is hoped that other sections of the nation also will start using coal, which Morton referred to as "our big casino."

He called on his listeners to take the lead in using an energy mix, so the United States will not be dependent on only one fuel.

It is true that Americans must make some adjustments in order to overcome the energy crunch.

Bible Verse

ST JOHN'S JOURNAL—

IBM's Triumph Over Antitrust Tyranny!

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN Copley News Service

NEW YORK — "The entire structure of antitrust," asserted economist Alan Greenspan, "is a jumble of economic irrationality and ignorance. It is the product of a gross misinterpretation of history, and of rather naive, and certainly unrealistic, economic theories."

The current chief economic adviser to President Ford made that statement in a paper given at an antitrust seminar in Cleveland, Ohio, on Sept. 25, 1961—13 years before becoming chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Greenspan must have smiled with quiet satisfaction when on Jan. 24, 1975, in Denver, Colo., a trio of circuit judges on the U. S. Court of Appeals reversed a landmark antitrust suit against International Business Machines Corp. (IBM) brought by a competitor, Telex Corp. IBM had been found guilty at the end of a 29-day trial on Sept. 17, 1973.

We wrote shortly after that infamous decision that IBM was found guilty of its success. The 94-page opinion of the Appeals Court that overturned the decision drew fundamentally the same because "we can't afford to have decisions affecting us made in other parts of the world."

Morton said that the energy crunch also threatens the stability of American military and political alliances.

"We must alter our energy ethic and be willing to pay the price, even if it means making a few sacrifices," the speaker declared. "And we must turn around our taxing and spending programs."

"We've got to turn around this constant growth of expenditures, so we're not going to be dead broke by 1990."

The secretary said he was sure the petroleum industry could meet the independence goal... "if we don't burden you with regulations."

Morton concluded his address with some comments which ring so true, and to which everyone should give serious thought.

"We've got to start (shifting government philosophy) right here in the Permian Basin," he said, "because here is where it's all-together."

"If we make up our minds as a nation to develop a new energy ethic," and to improve the decision-making process, "we can make it and again be a great force in the world. Not only a military force, but a force of hope that freedom is the right way to go."

Rogers Morton told his listeners some of the things they wanted to hear and perhaps some they didn't. But he also gave everyone something to think about in the on-going of this great nation. This is what counts.

conclusion. The 10th Circuit Court used strong language in its reversal, citing the trial judge with a failure in his basic definitions, erring "in defining market or markets as the term is used in the antitrust laws" and that "this fundamental misconception affected the remainder of the court's decision."

Further, the Appeals Court contended IBM was not guilty of "predatory" and monopolistic practices in the computer field, rather that "the evidence establishes that IBM's actions constituted valid competitive practice."

The significance of this decision is twofold. First, it is the first tangible act of genuine justice after years of antitrust findings by the courts that have handed down findings contradictory in arguments, false in their assumptions, and irrational in their conclusions. The Denver Court of Appeals has asserted in the IBM-Telex case that such practices can no longer govern antitrust enforcement.

The second significant development was that happened on Wall Street after the IBM-Telex reversal by the Appeals Court.

'C'mon - Lesh Have One For The Road'

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Early on the fog-shrouded morning of Oct. 27, 1964, the East German freighter Magdeberg steamed slowly down the Thames River toward the North Sea. Lashed to her decks were several buses bound for Cuba.

Suddenly, out of the mists appeared a Japanese cargo ship, the Yamashiro Maru, which plowed bow-first into the Magdeberg's side. Fidel Castro's buses wound up ingloriously in the Thames.

An official inquiry concluded that the collision was an unfortunate accident and to this day the records contain not the slightest hint to the contrary.

But competent sources have said the forgotten mishap on the Thames quietly was arranged by the Central Intelligence Agency to keep the buses from reaching Cuba. We now have confirmed the fascinating details from sources in both the CIA and the National Security Agency.

The story began with Castro's attempt to break the U.S. economic boycott by purchasing buses from Leyland Motor Corp., the largest vehicle manufacturer in Britain.

Long before the deal was announced, the U.S. government became aware of the negotiations and sought to squash the sale. It would rip an immense hole, Washington feared, in the economic embargo.

Leyland, nevertheless, agreed to supply Cuba with 400 buses and spare parts for $12.2 million. Castro also took an option to buy 1,000 additional city buses for another $20 million.

In Washington, Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges didn't attempt to conceal his displeasure. "I don't like it a bit," he fumed. "This hurts us." A State Department spokesman concurred that the sale "certainly does not help."

Officially, a U.S. spokesman warned that any vessel hauling buses to Cuba would be blacklisted and denied government-financed cargoes. Unofficially, the CIA began booking for ways to prevent the delivery of the buses.

British intelligence kept Washington advised, according to our sources, on the progress of the negotiations and shipping arrangements. The information came, in part, from a wiretap which the British maintained on Cuban offices in London, our sources say.

Even in a thick London fog, collisions on the Thames are highly unusual. We could find a record of only four major accidents on the river during the entire 1960s, the other three involving smaller vessels. That one of these rare accidents, the biggest collision of the decade, should sink Castro's buses was a coincidence that apparently didn't strike the British.

Our associate Joe Spear spoke with Leyland official David Boole in London. There was "never any scandal!" about the accident, he recalled. A deliberate

Jack Anderson

The information was transmitted, like other intelligence of mutual interest, by diplomatic pouch to a British intelligence liaison office in the National Security Agency at Ft. Meade, Md. The details about the buses were relayed by Telex to the CIA.

The first shipment of 16 Leyland buses, nevertheless, arrived safely in Havana aboard an East German cargo ship on July 15, 1964. Our sources don't know whether the CIA attempted to sabotage this shipment. Perhaps there wasn't enough fog on the Thames for a successful ramming.

But the fog was just right when the Magdeberg shoved off with the second load of buses. The Yamashiro Maru struck the East German vessel broadside. Over the Magdeberg's side, 54 crewmen and two passengers scrambled down rope ladders into rescue boats.

Then the big ship keeled over on its side and the tide dragged it up on the beach. The Yamashiro Maru received minor bow damage but steamed up the river on its own power to the Royal Docks.

Fidel Castro's buses, of course, were baptized in the Thames. British newspaper accounts of the incident report that 42 buses received a damaging drenching. Leyland's own records indicate only 24 buses were aboard the Magdeberg.

INSIDE REPORT—

Baghdad, Moscow And Washington!

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

BASRA, Iraq — The fact that Saddam Hussein, the leader of Iraq's revolutionary Ba'ath government, personally lifted the secrecy veil so that we could visit the "Soviet naval base" at Um Qasr on the Persian Gulf tells much about the subtleties of Iraq's nationalistic foreign policy.

Despite the Iraqi-Soviet treaty of 1972, the force of Arab nationalism which gave the Ba'ath party dictatorial power in the 1968 revolution acts as a brake on Soviet or any other foreign influence. That helps explain Saddam Hussein's response when we asked about alleged Soviet base rights to Um Qasr.

Um Qasr is, indeed, a mini-naval base. However, the Iraqi patrol and torpedo boat navy base we saw, along with fishing and small cargo ships, seemed far removed from the "Soviet naval base" the Pentagon listed last year as one of three major Soviet bases in the Persian Gulf-Indian Ocean regions, chips in super-power rivalry for control of strategic oil lanes.

Um Qasr lies on a shallow, narrow estuary at the northwest edge of the Persian Gulf. It consists of half a dozen jetties or piers built out into the estuary from naked sand, three of which are incomplete, plus housing for 1,200 officers and men of the minuscule Iraqi navy.

In last November, after President Ford asked for funds for a new U. sinking, he said, was "certainly something we were blissfully ignorant of."

The waterlogged buses were pulled out of the Thames, dried out and put to use in England. Castro eventually got new buses as replacements.

Footnote: A spokesman said the CIA had nothing to do with the Thames River accident. He called our account "utter and total poppycock."

BICENTENNIAL BOMBS: Law enforcement experts fear that revolutionaries, citing the 1776 revolution as justification may use violence to attract attention to their radical causes during the Bicentennial celebrations next year.

This threat of terrorism has prompted the Law Enforcement Administration to set aside $1 million to help beef up police forces in the 13 original colonies.

Most of the LEAA money will be spent in Washington, Philadelphia and Boston where the largest Bicentennial crowds are expected. But the revolutionaries are also expected to stage incidents in the small historic villages along the East Coast where the original revolution was fought.

In these towns, the police aren't trained or equipped for such emergencies. Some LEAA funds, therefore, may go for antiterrorist training and equipment.

The Country Parson

By Frank A. Clark

"That movie made to appear in the worst in us are labeled 'For Adults Only' may say something about adults."

Evans Novak

S. Navy installation on the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia, the Pentagon listed Um Qasr along with two other Soviet bases — Aden, in South Yemen, and Berbera in African Somalia — as the reasons. Aden and Berbera do indeed harbor and service Soviet naval vessels. Even if they did not, the proposed American installation at Diego Garcia to counter the muscular Soviet presence in South Asian waters has more than ample justification.

But as of today, U. S. fears that the mini-port of Um Qasr is also a Soviet naval base seem grossly inflated.

We flew there from Basra in a French-built Alouette III helicopter across perhaps 50 miles of flat, empty sand, barren of any habitation, until we reached the cluster of sheds, housing and headquarters buildings of the Iraqi navy at Um Qasr. Riding at anchor in a slow current of the narrow estuary were a couple of small freighters. We saw no sign of heavy naval stores, ammunition, spare parts, guns and other accoutrements of a Soviet naval base.

Before embarking on our tour, the Iraqi naval commander, Adm. Abdul-Dairy, told us in Basra with heavy sarcasm that it was "important to know the truth about our Soviet naval base at Um Qasr."

"Warships have to be on water," he said. "They cannot hide. If the Soviet navy is bringing its warships to Um Qasr, they must go through the Strait of Hormuz (at the entrance to the Persian Gulf). The Iranians see every ship that goes through the strait."

The admiral claimed that the Soviet flag has been seen in waters around Um Qasr only when Iraq took delivery of a Soviet-made patrol or minesweeping vessel. Indeed, he said, the northern edge of the Persian Gulf is dangerously shallow, suited only for the small-bore vessels the Iraqi navy services at Um Qasr: minesweepers, coastal patrol, torpedo boats and small Soviet-built rocket ships.

Western European specialists in Baghdad, who have never been permitted to inspect the Um Qasr port facilities, told us that although destroyer-size vessels can navigate the estuary up to Um Qasr, the port's confinement and vulnerability to channel obstruction make it highly undesirable as a "naval base" for Moscow or anyone else.

The significance of opening Um Qasr to Western view, however, transcends its dubious utility, present or future, as a "Soviet naval base." Rather, it underlines this ambiguity: despite its Moscow treaty, the single most nationalistic, anti-Western Arab state now courts Western help to achieve rapid economic growth financed by vast oil riches.

Its capital city, the legendary Baghdad, was reduced to ashes by Mongol invaders in 1258, ending its glory as one of the world's richest centers of learning and culture. Then came provincialism under centuries of the Ottoman Empire and, after World War I, British rule. Against that background, the "revolutionary transformation" of Iraq under the iron rule of Ba'athist socialism does in fact scorn any semblance of foreign control. Iraq makes Washington the devil in its noisy propaganda, but it is quietly hunting commercial contracts with the U. S. worth hundreds of millions of dollars, a subject for another column.

Student Loan Rip-Off

It should be unnecessary to remind anyone that a person is responsible for paying his just debts. And yet the poor record of repayment of student loans guaranteed by the federal government seems to indicate that a reminder is needed.

Debts owed to the government are just as real an obligation as debts owed to a bank or an individual. The mere fact that the lender can collect from the government if the borrower defaults does not relieve the borrower of the responsibility to pay.

The loan program is a good one. Most borrowers make an honest effort to repay. But the bad apples, those who treat their loans as a rip-off on the government, threaten the whole student loan program. The deserving students of the future may be the real victims. (Copley Newspapers)

Where Is Austerity?

To The Editor:
 Last Year the federal government printed thousands of gasoline rationing stamps for use if and when needed. The original cost was reported in excess of ten million dollars. Now the stamps are stored and guarded at much additional cost to taxpayers.
 Recently it was discovered that the stamps can never be used, because they are the same size as a one-dollar bill (no paper shortage in Washington?), and also bear a picture of George Washington, and for that reason can be used to obtain a dollar in coins from change making machines.
 Who was responsible for the complete loss of these many millions? Many of our national problems stem from the fact that persons guilty of such colossal blunders are never called to account. Often the public never hears of the loss.
 Our Washington leaders would have us believe that they are working night and day trying to cut expenses and balance the budget. Obviously not so. Every week we read of their plush surroundings, and how they are spending more and more millions on new and bigger offices, courtrooms and lounges, all being finished in wall-to-wall luxury. Apparently the word "austerity" is for the hinterlands only.

Paint's A Problem

To The Editor:
 Recently I had the pleasure of talking with Mr. George Wolf of the City Planning Office, here in Midland, concerning the lack of lane stripes painted on streets and discovered some interesting facts.
 The paint originally used to paint the stripes took just under thirty minutes to dry and had the advantage of being a long-lived paint lasting several years. This paint, however, contained a chemical derived from soy beans. As a result of the recent large exports of soy beans to other countries by the United States, this chemical became in very short supply and not available to use in this paint.
 Recently the city has been using a substitute paint which has the advantage of being instant drying paint. However, it was soon discovered that this paint wore off within a matter of months.

 The chemical used in the original long-lasting paint is now available and the city has just received bids for its purchase, and plans to begin re-stripping the streets in the near future.

No Need For Fear

To The Editor:
 Let us not cloud the issue by asserting that a handful of "young Turks" have seized control of the Congress. A number of committee chairmanships have been challenged. Some chairmen have bitten the dust, others have retained their seats. The determining factor has been whether the chairman has been running the committee in a dictatorial fashion or a democratic fashion; whether the chairman defers to special interests or to public interest; whether the chairman holds closed hearings or open hearings.
 The Congress is safe from any takeover by ultra-liberals. The American people have demonstrated they do not like either the extreme right (Goldwater, '64) or the extreme left (McGovern, '72). The composition of the present Congress reflects the American people's preference to remain near the center.

Area Should Benefit

To The Editor:
 I am sure many Midlanders join me in commending The Reporter-Telegram for adding a "Letters to the Editor" feature. I believe this feature can be, and will be a tremendous benefit for our community as well as the entire Permian Basin area.

There are many ways in which the public can make its views known on important community issues, but no way is as effective as through the readers forum of the local newspaper. I hope many readers will take the opportunity to express themselves in a responsible and constructive way through this medium.
 Again, I heartily applaud this welcome addition to The Reporter-Telegram.

Problem Solving

To The Editor:
 The three-inch squib concerning "Letters to the Editor" in Sunday's Reporter-Telegram should have occupied a banner headline. Your decision to entertain comment from your subscribers represents a breath of fresh air for the Midland area and a tremendous step forward for your newspaper.
 A lively "Letters to the Editor" column will provide a needed forum for minority opinion which is often healthy, stimulating, and vital for meaningful community dialogue. The encouragement of communication between citizens of differing opinion can only be beneficial in solving those problems which concern us all.
 I will not ask you to justify the absence of such a feature in the past, but only rejoice that you have put The Reporter-Telegram on the road to being a truly first-class newspaper.

Mars Makes Life Easier

By SAM STEWART
 Capley News Service

And it came to pass that an American spacecraft landed on the planet of Mars, and two American astronauts emerged to find, to their surprise, a welcoming committee of Mars men.
 "Greetings," said the spokesman for the Mars men. "We've been expecting you."
 "Thank you very much," said Astronaut No. 1. "But actually, we didn't expect to find your planet inhabited."
 "As a matter of fact," said the spokesman for Mars. "We've been up here for aeons, just minding our own business."
 "We don't put too much stock in messing around with our planet neighbors."
 "Boy, I can hardly wait to get home," said Astronaut No. 1, turning to Astronaut No. 2. "A whole new emerging nation! The administration can get a program of aid going, and we can get them into the United Nations."
 "United Nations? What is that?" asked the Mars man.
 "Oh," said No. 2, "that is a banding together of nations to prevent war."

 "War? What is war?" demanded the Mars man.
 "This is what happens when one country can't get what it wants from another by peaceful means," said Astronaut No. 2. "It means fighting and killing."
 The Mars man shook his head.
 "It seems like a frightful waste," he said. "Here we do not fight. We do not kill. We live in harmony."
 "Do Mars people ever get sick?" asked No. 1.
 "Oh, yes, from time to time," said the Mars man. "Our doctors treat those who can't afford their services, knowing that they'll pay, eventually, when they can. Most of us manage to keep up with our bills, however."
 "Your people seem to live in nice homes," observed Astronaut No. 2.
 "We're very proud," said the Mars man. "Those of us who can afford it build our own homes. Others rent. A man lives as well as he is able, by the fruits of his own labors."
 "You mean no urban redevelopment? No rent subsidy? No assistance to impooverished areas?" demanded No. 2.

 "No," said the Mars man.
 "Another question," No. 2 went on, addressing the Mars man. "How much income tax do you pay? What is your national debt? Does your Social Security tax go up every year? How do you meet your energy crisis? How do you combat inflation?"
 "Please, sir, I beg your pardon," said the Mars man. "Income tax? National debt? Social Security? Energy? Inflation? I fear we have encountered a language barrier. Will you translate, please?"
 "Boy!" cried Astronaut No. 1. "Wait until we report back that there's a whole new planet up here that never heard of income taxes and can't tell a recession from inflation. Let's get going, No. 2."
 "So long," said No. 2. "Give everybody my regards. I came on this hop for a big adventure, but I never imagined we'd run into anything as wild as this. I think I'll stay and give it a try. I'll be thinking of you on April 15, rebate and all."

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Bentsen Faces Long Road In Quest

Austin Bureau
 By STUART LONG

AUSTIN — Monday, another Texan will set out on that long, long trail which he hopes will lead him from Houston to the White House.
 He starts out from further back than the previous Texan who became president, because Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has not had the national exposure which Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson had had as majority leader of the Senate when he set out in 1960 to try to win the Democratic presidential nomination.
 Bentsen is a junior senator with just four years in the Senate and six years in the House, and has not been out in front as Johnson was, being a major policymaker for the nation while the presidency was quiet during the Eisenhower years.
 While Bentsen does not have the competition Johnson had in John F. Kennedy, he might be willing to settle for the vice presidency as Johnson did in 1960.
 A series of interviews with leading Democrats in Washington gave convincing proof that this year and next will see campaigns for the Democratic nomination which are truly wide open.
 Sen. Mike Mansfield, the Senate majority leader, sat in the part of his office he calls the "Kennedy Room" and listed Bentsen as one of four Democrats he thought might wind up with the nomination.
 Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Sen. George McGovern, the last two titular heads of the Democratic party, both said that they are out of consideration. Humphrey felt that the party might well leave the Potomac for its presidential candidate, taking a governor or mayor who had not been in Washington for the taint of Watergate to stain. McGovern saw no real need for a "new face," considering the fact that both President Ford and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller are certainly "old faces".

 Sen. Edward Kennedy made it clear that he will not run, but he felt that some strong Democrat would emerge to win the nomination. Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, who is Bentsen's strongest competitor for the more moderate wing of the party, felt that he could win the nomination on the economic issues.
 Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, since an avowed candidate, analyzed the convention wisely when he said that no one would reach the convention with enough delegates to win, and the candidates finally chosen will be a pair able to put together a majority because they are acceptable enough to all sorts of people.
 Bentsen's chances were assayed by a Texas member of Congress the other day as "slim" because of "the anti-Texas mood" among Democrats. That mood is due, he said, to oil and gas problems "which they blame partly on Texas," and to the defection from the Democratic party of former Gov. John Connally, who helped Bentsen wrest the Senate seat away from Sen. Ralph Yarborough.
 "Congressmen Bob Poage and Wright

Patman would not have been ousted as committee chairmen if they had been from Arkansas," he said. "The fact that they were from Texas was the difference, not their age."
 As Bentsen is making his round of announcements Monday in Washington and Houston, a committee in Austin will be having hearings on two bills which would make it possible for Bentsen to make a good, early showing to boost his presidential chances. The bills by Rep. Tom Schieffer of Fort Worth and Dan Kubiak of Rockdale call for the holding of presidential primaries in Texas for the first time, along with the regular May primary election.
 Bentsen has been pushing that idea, in the hope of nailing down a majority of the Texas delegation to the national convention in 1976.
 Last week, he was given a big reception in Austin by the State Building and Construction Trades Council, AFL-CIO, and by a group of supporters he had put together from his previous campaigns. The turnouts were good, indicating that Bentsen will be able to make a mighty strong run for the delegates at a primary, if one is held.
 But Bentsen has a long, long way to go, in addition to the 200,000 miles he has already traveled getting acquainted with Democrats all over the country. So far he has been in 34 states, talking to all kinds of gatherings, and raising money to finance the campaign he is now about to start, lasting 17 months if he loses, and 21 if he wins the nomination. It's a tough, tough row to hoe.

Complete Transcript Of Morton News Conference

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the complete transcript of a news conference held Wednesday morning by Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton in the 1st National Room of the First National Bank.

Morton's first comments are a critique of a Midland Chamber of Commerce film which is used to explain the petroleum industry to government and congressional leaders.

Following the critique, Morton was questioned by a panel of four Midland oil and business executives. Questions were compiled from suggestions submitted by Midland businessmen, petroleum company executives and chamber officials.

Morton also responded to questions from Midland newsmen.

Morton's comments are in light face type. Questions or answers by all others are in bold face type.

I believe the public would be well to appreciate (the complexity of the oil industry) because it is a very complicated operation. I think people think that you set an auger bit up on the surface and crank it a few times and the next thing you are, is a millionaire. That's kind of a common misconception. I think from the point of view of educating the Congress a little bit, though it (the chamber film) could deal a little more with the economics of it. I think it would turn on investment as an item that has to be explored and understood better. The thing that has happened in the Congress is that the total numbers have overwhelmed people. A major oil company, for example, that makes $500 million a year may be making only a 7 or 8 per cent return on capital, and if they are they are in deep trouble . . . in terms of their capacity to expand and replace resources.

This is the most misunderstood thing, I think, in the Congress. We have the consumer group economists led by people who are very prominent in the news—Ralph Nader, Barry Commoner and others—who are condemning bigness and in the condemnation of bigness, I think, leave some very serious misunderstanding of how our capital system works. And my suggestion is that you get a little bit more on the economics as to where the oil dollar goes and where it comes from. It requires a great deal of new investment . . . from equity holders, from the cash flow within the business itself. Nobody understands the reason for the depletion allowance, the necessity for capital growth in this business . . . It is my feeling you can do yourself some good if you will lay it out just the way it is.

As a result of the President's new proposed taxes, it would appear that the value of crude oil to the producer before deducting his costs and federal and state income taxes would be in the range of $7 per barrel.

Does the administration believe that his value is adequate to achieve independence in crude oil production?

I think we're flexible on that. There is an argument within the administration as to how the taxing should really proceed. The main mission, of course, is to deregulate oil, and then the question is as to how politically you can do this. If you just deregulated oil and let all oil go to the world market I think you'd be up against a political stone wall and you wouldn't get the job done.

There are those of us who feel that the windfall profits tax should only apply to old oil that is deregulated, which then actually would increase the average price considerably over the $7. I would hope that we would be nearer an $8-$8.50 average when the thing all works out. It will depend entirely on what method the Congress finally decides to go.

The general feeling was that we would like to take about $30 billion out of the economy and put $30 billion back in the economy. About $3.5 billion of this would come from the industry itself through the windfall profits tax. Whether we're talking $7 oil or $8.50 oil remains to be seen. I would think today at today's costs in world oil, and particularly with what oil costs in the marine environment, that we would aim a little higher than $7.

Why is the administration seemingly agreeable to the elimination of the depletion allowance of the oil and gas industry when it has not suggested the elimination of the depletion allowance of the other 100 minerals to which Congress has granted a depletion allowance as a recognition of those and our industries' wasting nature?

I think this is a fair and very good question. Maybe we miscalculated our political strategy. It looked as though early on in the game that the (House) Ways and Means Committee was going to take a very firm position in eliminating the oil depletion allowance and it looked as though we were not able to influence that.

This was based on lots of consultation with committee members on both sides of the aisle. The feeling was that if we took a hard position and put ourselves in bed with the oil industry that we would lose politically and would be pretty well isolated.

There wasn't any way we could influence the committee and the President felt, I think, that if we stayed out of the oil depletion allowance fight we would have a better chance to get deregulation of gas than if we just took a hard position simply that we were not for elimination or removable of the depletion allowance.

That is the President's position, except with foreign depletion. That's where we are today, and we probably are going to get rolled over on that.

We may have some trading stamps that we will be able to use by accepting it. We have not yet accepted the depletion allowance, but we didn't think we would be able to gain anything for our position by making a big public show of it. We thought that if we worked quietly we might be able to, at least, hold the line at some reasonable amount.

Whether we were right or wrong in this strategy remains to be seen, but the President, just simply took the position, and we all did, that we would oppose any removal of the depletion allowance and therefore were opposed to it for other minerals just as much as we are for oil and that is where we stand.

I don't think we can possibly sustain a veto on that issue at this point in time. Now if we can bundle this whole thing up so that we have the tax, depletion allowance thing and can use our trading stamps to minimize the negative impact I think we are better off than trying to review the whole package than we would be trying just to make a fight on the depletion allowance. So it is a question of strategy.

Why has the oil and gas industry been singled out for a so-called windfall profits tax when at least four other major industries now have a higher rate of return on the invested capital? In other words, where has the philosophy developed that the good years belong to the government or the consumer and the bad years belong to the investor?

Well, the philosophy developed in the Democratic caucus (in the House). Hell, there is no question about that. And, that is something this part of the world had better get to understand, too.

The real problem here is how do you decontrol this oil? I don't think there is anybody in here that's associated with the oil industry or with its wellbeing, whether it's a service company or whether it's a producer or whether it's a bank or what have you, that feels that we can continue to live with the two-tier price system for oil. It is a nightmare to man from every point of view. We put an equalization program in to try to take care of the northern tier of refineries that are depending on Canadian oil primarily or imported oil from some source and we have gotten into more trouble with that thing.

It has been a catastrophe, a disaster. We have hurt more people than we have helped and we consequently tried to help it. Now, we got regional distortion in the whole thing. So, we have to get rid of the two-tier system, so help me, and deregulate old oil.

Now, what political price do you pay to do that? Unfortunately, the quadrupling of world prices of oil from $3 to $12 a barrel all in one afternoon, virtually, created a tremendous windfall for the international oil industry.

For the biggies, the seven sisters, Shell and Arco and everybody else. All are aware of this. There is no question about it. It had nothing to do with return on investment. It had to do with inventory writeups, but nevertheless it impacted the public and it created in the public mind there was a tremendous windfall and that is how the whole thing got started.

The general feeling was that if we could deregulate oil and oil went from five and a quarter up to the world price, which we think it would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $11, that again would create an investment writeup and would create a thing that would be of such a political nature that we wouldn't get the authority from the Congress to do it.

Somebody had to devise a tax system which would phase out — self-destruct over a period of time, phase out, that was satisfactory and yet under which the oil companies could live.

Now, the plowback provision was one of the things that was added in order to do that. The administration took the position — great, the Congress did this so let's let it stay in place. Don't fight it. Make sure the people understand this was a congressional and move and not an administrative move. I think that's good. I think we will get a good plowback decision.

I don't think the Ways and Means Committee, though it's a new breed of cats from what it was last year, I think they will stick to their concept and if we make sure we are not pulling new oil down and can also devise a system in here where we continue wholesome return on investment to provide capital growth necessary. I think politically we can then deregulate old oil. And, if we deregulated old oil now and oil went from five and a quarter right up to $12 and we didn't have windfall profits tax, you would have the biggest force you have ever seen to nationalize the oil industry right in the Congress of the United States.

The chairman of my appropriations committee, Interior appropriations, a new chairman, is for nationalizing the oil industry, nationalizing, putting it all in the federal government. You better pray for some warm winters after that happens.

And, so that is why the windfall profits tax. Now we got to adjust it. The President is flexible, I'm flexible. We all want to do it, but it has got to make political sense so that we can get this thing done. And, the better you guys do your job with the Congress and get George (Mahon) who understands this business, there are not a whole lot of members of the House and Senate that really understand the business, but he does, and he has got a lot of influence, and go into where the trouble is with the Ottingers and the Bella Abzugs and all of those.

You do not have to spend a lot of time with John Tower. He knows what it is all about and he is a good fighter and a tenacious guy on this. But, we have got to be able to get the government out of being in charge of this industry and get it back to the industry. And, this windfall profits tax with appropriate phaseout is part of the bait, I don't mean bait, the price.

You mentioned the plowback in your comment just now, Mr. Secretary. We do consider that as vital, not only as a matter of necessity for getting the job done in the future, but as equity for those investors who have made their investments over the past 18 months on the basis of higher prices for new oil.

So, really the question is, why has the President proposed no plowback provision? Or, why did he not propose one in his original program of his energy program?

Well, the reason he didn't is because of the revenue aspects of it and in the windfall profits tax that was devised by, as I said before, by the Ways and Means Committee, the plowback provision existed and our whole program is based on the rebate of all of the money that is taken in as a result of excise taxes and windfall profits taxes and tariffs and everything and put it right back in the economy. Give it right back along the formula that I described last night — or I can go into detail here today on who gets what.

The plowback will probably reduce the revenue by about somewhere in the neighborhood of $3.5 billion and that's understandable. And, that really is not of too serious concern, but the plowback provision is something added by Congress and we are trying to get the Congress to take a little more responsibility here to do the job.

I think there is no question about accepting the plowback provision, but somehow this thing has to get a joint effort between the administration and the Congress and we are trying to motivate the Congress to do things.

And, when they do do things, I think we will be in good shape. And, if we had taken a hard line decision on plowback from the beginning, I don't know, then we would have been accused of being in bed with the oil companies again and the Congress would have hardened up, and, it's a matter of political judgment.

We are faced with severe shortages in all areas of oil field supplies. Because of this, it has been disturbing to hear rumors that the federal government has pre-empted a large allocation of oil well casing for the implied purpose of developing federal oil reserves in California and Alaska.

Is this a fact? And, if so, would it be possible to delay taking of the pipe, at least until Congress has approved substantial production from the various fields involved?

Well, we haven't taken the pipe. We are looking at about a 1 per cent allocation, 1.2 per cent, possible allocation of tubular oil country goods for petroleum reserves. I don't think we have accumulated any of this and we haven't restricted the market as a result of it. I would have to check it. I don't think we have because we do not have the authority to move into Elk Hills and we aren't — at present we have sort of an in-house program for the exploration of petroleum for which, in my opinion, is a disaster, but that is something else.

We have set up the machinery to take about 1 per cent of it for this purpose, up to filling our one point two per cent — we haven't actually taken it.

I think I talked to steel people. I have been in the roof bolt business and in the pipe business all year and you know every cloud has its silver lining. Automobile industry shutdown. Steel started running around the streets like water. This pipe situation ought to be easing up a little bit here in the first quarter of this year and also in the second quarter. That is my understanding.

Now, the rig production is something in my opinion that is a little more difficult and one of the reasons is that nobody knows the rules of the game.

And, we can't expect people to put — go into banks and put themselves on the line for large investments either for floating rigs or onshore rigs until they know what kind of payback they can expect out of this industry.

This, to me, is one of the difficulties of doing business with our system of government which is frustrating, but still, as Churchill said, probably is the best one in the world.

And, hopefully we do — that is one of the reasons the President hit them in the head with a two-by-four with the tariff is to make them come up with a program so we get the rules out on the table and investments can be made. I am more concerned about rigs today than any part of it.

I think we are going to work out of the pipe situation in the next four or five months, but I don't see any immediate solution to the rig situation.

My second question doesn't deal with equipment or machinery, but it does have to do with the fact that oil operators are being deluged with requests for statistical information from various and sundry agents of the government and we wonder if the administration would consider a program that would put all of the compilation of reserve data in the FEA (Federal Energy Administration) so they would have to be the official group in charge of estimates that other federal agencies could then obtain the information from the FEA.

Well, we are trying to do that, and the trouble is the Federal Power Commission and the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) and, are an autonomous independent thing, these so-called independent agencies that are set up by the Congress are — they don't trust anybody else. And, I think with computers and everything we have been able to centralize a great deal of our mineral statistics and this is one that is on the top burner and hopefully we are able to do it.

I think that the way we just send out forms indiscriminately to the industry — I just started a small corporation which is interesting, that is to do nothing in the world but to hire two employees to finish plastic hulls that are molded up in New England down in the Chesapeake area, for people that want to develop fishing boats. And, I have received as a result of forming that corporation, which is in my barn, 600 government forms of one kind or another — state, county and federal, most of them federal.

So, I have really gotten to be a bug on this thing. I had a meeting with John Masficus of the Federal Power Commission. I think there is some hope that we can do this. Again, you get back to the jurisdictional question of the Congress.

Various committees, Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee on the one hand and the Interior Committee on the other hand, each have a feeling of a possessiveness about this and they direct those agencies over whose fate they reside to collect this data themselves.

And, the other thing is that your success in government is determined by the size of your budget and the number of employees that you have. I don't think I need to pursue that.

In light of the opposition to additional drilling off Southern California and the East Coast areas, how do you plan to overcome the opposition and accomplish your program?

With a wave of my magic wand. Haven't you heard about that, Jim?

It is interesting to note. I have been watching television with great interest while I have been here. You see, I am having some problems in New Jersey.

We decided to go for 10 million acres. This is a result of a conversation we had with President Nixon. He said, "How much can you accelerate your offshore leasing?" And, I said, "Institutionally I don't believe I can accelerate it by more than a multiple of one. In other words, I can about double it."

There is an awful lot of administrative work involved in the nomination process and the baseline data collection of all the environmental stuff that NEVA, or so-called environmental impact statement, procedure is just a tremendous operation to do it, with all of the regulations that we are bound by, so we institutionalized ourselves to sell 10 million acres and that was about the only way we could get it done.

Not with the idea that we were going to try to fix on 10 million acres but we wanted a capability of about tripling the amount of marine environment that we were bringing under lease, and we accomplished that.

Now, that we have accomplished that, we have got a schedule. I think it is right interesting. It is interesting to see what our schedule is. It doesn't come out to quite 10 million acres. For this reason, after we got institutionalized, I thought it would be better to find out where the oil is and where the oil is not, so what we have done is we have gone into the frontier areas and have decided to try and lease on the basis of structure and this will result — here is the schedule of leasing that goes up through 1978 — and actually we probably, if everything goes well and we stay out of court, we will be somewhere in the neighborhood of 7 or 8 million acres next year and then will come back up, depending on how well the discoveries go in the areas that we have leased this year.

So it is not quite 10 million acres, but it does give us the opportunity to get into the frontier areas. This resistance to leasing, again, and this doesn't so much affect you all because most of you are not in that except those of you here that represent the majors — is again an emotional and public relations problem. We had a blowout in Santa Barbara, and we have had several in the Gulf over history, but basically the pollution of oil in water is not from production of oil and gas.

The pollution in the water — 40 per cent of all the oil in the ocean around the continental United States comes from automobile crumblers, down storm sewers. The other 60 per cent comes from shipping. The amount of oil pollution in the water that comes from accidents on the drilling amounts to an immeasurable amount, less than 1 per cent. So, what we have to do is overcome the feeling that our whole way of life is going down the drain when there is an offshore rig 30 miles off the coast of New Jersey or off the coast of California.

The improvement of technology is a great tribute to the industry. And again, the industry is going to have to help us do this job. We can't go it alone, and I will say this for the major oil companies.

Boy, they are doing a good job. They not only are getting in there with their tv ads but are meeting with people all up and down the coast and in the frontier areas. They are talking the heat and are being buffeted around just like us politicians, and I think they are doing a good job, and hopefully — if we don't drill the outer continental shelf, you all know what you can do here in the Permian Basin.

Maybe you can up your net production some, but you are not going — I forget what your figures are that you have to have to break even from your depletion, but with modern tertiary recovery — if that ever comes into being — your net can go up and you can produce a good deal more oil and gas than you are producing today. But still, the big casino to replace foreign oil is going to have to come from the marine environment. I think everyone agrees on that.

I'd just like to make an additional comment. I think what you all are doing here — going up there and going in there. My plea to you is, don't go where it's easy. The great tendency for all of us is to go where it's easy.

And if you've never had the opportunity — I know you won't get the chance to address a joint session of the legislature of the State of Massachusetts. But that probably did me more good than anything in the world, because that's where it's tough. And when you go to Congress, get with the people not necessarily who are with you. But see if you can convert the people who are against you. And that's the only way we can go.

Last night, you mentioned in your speech the possibility that gasoline would be going to $1 a gallon. Do you have any timetable on that? I don't know that it'll go for $1 a gallon. Of course in Europe it's what? $1.70 now — $1.50 in West Germany, $1.80-$1.85 in Italy.

As a figure of speech, it would seem to me that we would see gasoline stay under 70 cents, certainly for the balance of this decade, unless that would depend on a little bit on what the value of the dollar is.

One of the reasons you've got much better use of gasoline, much more careful use of gasoline in West Germany is the fact that 75 cents of the price of gasoline is tax. And I would think — now, what's gasoline selling for here — about 50 cents? In that area? About 56 at home — I would think we'd be under 75 cents, certainly. With the whole program in place, considerably under that.

And maybe if we can crack the Arab price a little bit, even with all the taxes on there, it would be still under that.

Mr. Secretary, if we were to encounter another Mideast embargo in the near future, what effect — politically and economically — would this have on our country?

Boy, there'll be a dance around the maypole. I'll tell you. If it's a Middle East embargo, that's one thing. If it's a total OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) embargo, it's another thing.

We're fortunate today that we get 1.3 million barrels a day from Canada. As I said last night, the Canadians have had to change their attitude. This is not an anti-United States move. Some places it's been interpreted as that. But primarily, there was a little bit of a slap in the face in their natural gas pricing policy, particularly in the Pacific Northwest.

But, basically, the Canadians are going to have to phase out the shipment of oil to the United States in order to take care of their own. They're building a trans-Canada pipeline now, which would put oil into the Montreal area and will discontinue from the importing of oil that they're doing through the pipeline from Portland, Me., into Montreal. And this will absorb a good deal of the production that is now coming to the United States.

So, if that production is minimized — that importing is minimized — and we get a total OPEC embargo against us — which would include Venezuela, which is another million barrels a day, we would be in deep trouble.

We would lose a third of our oil. And that is why, that's why the urgency.

I don't want to use scare tactics. But we are the bastions of peace in the world. And the reason we are is twofold. One is that we created a military force which was able to neutralize the forces of aggression during World War II and, subsequently, neutralize and defang the Cold War in the 20 years that followed World War II.

We reinforced that with one of the biggest investment programs that any nation has ever carried out in the world. It was labeled the Marshall Plan, it was labeled aid to Japan and aid to Southeast Asia.

What it amounted to was a multi-billion-dollar investment to bring up the war-torn and the developing nations and make them good customers of the United States. That's what the whole thing was all about, and it worked.

Now, we are vulnerable, and seriously vulnerable, to an energy shutoff. And we must work out of that as quickly and as orderly as we possibly can. And there's no question about it.

An embargo, though I think we have allocations, programs in place and we can survive — no question about that — but an embargo which would eliminate a third of our oil would be a very, very disastrous situation for this United States to be in.

And I question from a military point of view — and I want to be careful here for the record — I question whether we wouldn't be really hard put to defend ourselves . . . if we had to.

Do you favor the lowering of environmental protection standards of any sort for the use of low-sulphur coal?

No, I don't want to lower the standards — I'd like to buy a little time.

I think the goals for ambient air — the ambient air standards that have been set up — are adequate and are good and we ought to make sure we protect them. But I do believe that we've got to use some intermediate programs, particularly for our peaking power, the tall stack and the intermediate.

Until a new technology is developed and works and is efficient and we can digest it cost-wise, I think that's what the proposed amendments to the Clean Air Act do. They do not lower the standards, but they give us a little bit of time. The same thing on the automobile emissions. We have set a five-year program up that increases the standard over what it is today but slows down any further progress. Because, what we were doing, we were adding to the cost of automobiles so fast, we got them priced out of the market.

Mr. Secretary, you mentioned the desirability of eliminating the two-tier system on oil. What are the chances of it happening?

Well, I think they're good. It depends on whether you're going to go the volumetric embargo, that's one thing. If

FARM, DAIRY AND RANCH NEWS
By CHARLES GREEN
Midland County Agent

Midland area farmers are carrying out land preparation activities under the best soil moisture conditions in years. Land is listing in excellent manner. With the good reserve of subsoil moisture, farmers are starting the season with perhaps the best prospects for production since the 1940s. Of course spring weather conditions during planting will be critical as they always are in getting crops started.

With agricultural producers experiencing an ever tightening cost-price squeeze, the need for cost accounting has never been greater. The commercial agricultural producer today needs a complete and accurate accounting system and physical production records if he is going to succeed, contends Cecil Parker, economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. It is necessary to know the cost of producing a unit of each enterprise to compare profitability and make management decisions. Cost accounting is the basis for allocating resources to improve resource efficiency. Management decisions based on cost accounting are much more likely to be profitable than decisions based on impulse or hunch.

The economist notes that the extension service provides two types of accounting systems — the Farm Record System and the Texas Electronic Farm Accounting System (Tel-Fac). The Farm Record System contains 10 sections which include farm business expense, farm and non-farm income, payroll record, accounts payable and receivable, continuous depreciation schedule, farm inventory, financial and profit and loss statement, hours and per cent of equipment use, enterprise summary and analysis, and field treatment and performance record. Appropriate sections may be combined to fit each particular farm or ranch situation. The Tel-Fac System has cost accounting as its primary objective. County extension agents can assist producers with either of the two systems.

It won't be long until home gardeners will begin putting in spring gardens. To have a successful home garden, a number of important factors enter into the picture.

First of all, select a site with good soil and located away from trees and in areas that receive sunshine for most of the day.

Selecting of the proper vegetable variety is a key item to a successful garden. Many home gardeners start off by planting varieties not adapted to this area. The county extension office has a list of recommended varieties for Midland County.

Proper soil preparation is another important key for a good garden. A loose, sandy soil can be improved by adding two to three inches of organic matter (compost, manure, etc.) Till this into the garden area prior to planting. In the absence of a soil test, apply a complete fertilizer such as 10-10-10 or similar analyses at the rate of 2-3 pounds per hundred square feet of garden area. Work the fertilizer into the soil and then form the beds for planting.

Use transplants (young seedling plants) whenever possible to get the crop off to a head start.

Once the crops are up, water sufficiently and regularly so that the water penetrates the soil to a depth of at least six inches. Light, sandy soils may require more frequent watering. A drip irrigation system is relatively simple and inexpensive to install in a home garden and is easily the most efficient system of watering.

Weeds are a problem in most gardens and a long handled hoe is still the best means of controlling them. However, adding a mulch of straw, leaves, grass, bark, gin trash, sawdust, peat moss or other organic material around the growing plants will help reduce weeds and will also conserve moisture. Keep a close check on crops once they begin to approach maturity. Harvest vegetables only at full maturity, because that is when they have their best flavor and nutritional content.

(Continued From Page 14A) route or the economic route to get there. If you're going to let the market place do this, I think we've got a fair chance.

And I think the Congress is going to find when they start talking rationing and allocation — I think they're going to find such a reaction to that throughout the country, that they're going to be hesitant to implement it.

Their trick would be under present circumstances — or their course of action, I guess I should say — their course of action under present circumstances would be to put all those authorities in place, but then say to the President, "You implement it."

We are aware of that early on. Therefore, I think they're going to come around. They're going to come around to more or less the President's approach, and hopefully we're going to be able to adjust things like the windfall and the depletion and all that so the oil industry is viable.

In that program, oil gets deregulated. It won't be pleasant to live around Washington unless it is.

This morning, it was reported President Ford was having second thoughts on his energy program. At the same time, Sen. Kennedy said they would have no problem vetoing that program.

Are we coming down to a stalemate? And today, in some of your talks, you've mentioned political jockeying. How much would each side give, and what are we coming down to?

We can't afford to give very much, because you can't mix oil and water. You can't mix the two programs. One is... the Kennedy approach would be a volumetric approach, the rationing approach — control everything.

Our approach is just the opposite. It's to set in place the devices which will make the marketplace make the decisions.

And, whether it's going to be a stalemate or not — you don't have stalemates — you have one side or the other prevails, providing the issue is brought to a vote.

I hope this country is wise enough not to try and set in place some sort of rationing system of one kind or another for the next 10 years. I think it would dampen the enthusiasm of the American people to the point where they would be depressed — mentally and spiritually and economically and every other way.

I think, hopefully, we're going to see the light. Some of the senators are prone to take rather hard positions early on in order to establish a point from which they can depart.

Mr. Secretary, you've mentioned rationing a couple of times now. During the last week of January, noted anthropologist Margaret Meade called for the federal administration to poll the American people as to their desires, their wishes about rationing or taxation.

Her request was timely. At that time, our stations (KNFM, KNAM) were polling the residents of the Permian Basin as their feelings on rationing or taxation or alternative solutions to the energy situation. This morning, I would like to present to you a copy of that survey to take with you and your staff back to Washington for your study.

I'd like to have it. Thank you. Let me ask you a question. You've got a national rationing plan which cut down on the use of gasoline by 10 per cent. Would the people in the heavy oil-producing areas — in the State of Texas, for example the Permian Basin and in the areas along the Gulf Coast and in Louisiana — would they comply with that, with all the gasoline and oil that's available to them in their backyard?

That would depend upon the enforcement. That would depend upon the enforcement of the program, sir.

It would take a heavy enforcement by federal authorities to get them to do it, you think?

I'm going to quote you widely.

I think it would take a heavy enforcement across the nation to make the program work, not only here but elsewhere across the nation.

'Attaboy. Keep talking.

The majority of the people who responded about rationing, many of them remembered World War II rationing and the black markets and all of that.

I think it's obvious — I really do — and I just can't understand it. I go to New England, and of course it's a mixed bag up there. You know, it's not 100 to 1 by any means. It's about 52 to 48.

I couldn't agree with you more. I just think for us to give up — that's what rationing is. That's saying that we, with half of the Free World's coal and all of the undiscovered oil and the geology of this country as it exists, with the tremendous amount of gas reserves that are completely undeveloped in the tighter structures of Ohio, for example, or right in the middle of Lake Erie, for example, and this whole Permian Basin down in the south, on the West Coast and everywhere, we're just — we're rolling over and playing dead if we accept a program like that!

I just can't understand how any red-blooded Americans — whether they live in Maine or whether they live in Oregon or whether they live in Texas — can accept the give up type program that that really is. It just to me, it's just mysterious how we can accept that.

We've got the oil, we've got the gas, we've got the coal, we've got new technology, we've got the only nuclear technology that's worth a damn in the world.

And here we are saying we've got to ration fuel, we've got to roll over and play dead. The hell with it.

Mr. Secretary, we've experienced locally some bankruptcies in the last few weeks, primarily because the firms were unable to get long-term financing. Do you feel like the administration is maybe a little irresponsible in their spending? Do you think the advice the President is getting on spending ourselves out of a problem is the right advice?

The spending is not controlled by the President. I think we ought to get that understood — he only has control of about 15 per cent of the budget. We have put in place the basic and fundamental entitlements programs over the last 25 years.

When you get eligible for one of these programs, you get eligible, and there's no appropriations process that controls that. The result is that that part of the federal budget has expanded to the point where the President only has very, very little control over what he can spend. The President has said he's going to oppose or veto any additional spending program, but he has no way — you saw the problem that Nixon got into when he was trying to impound funds and slow down on this thing.

The Congress actually acted to take some of that authority away from him. And people were just — out here and all over the country — were just raising hell about that. Now, the reason for the deficit is that the revenue has gone down. The revenue side has become much lower than anticipated because of the slowdown in the economy.

Let me assure you that the irresponsibility rests with the entire system and the entire government and not the administration. And unless we can get the Congress to have a different attitude — I was in Congress for 10 years, and I can't remember one year when we didn't appropriate more money than we took in. And that was a foregone conclusion before we even got started in the fiscal year.

Congress has organized a new thing called a budget committee. Whether they're going to take a responsible position, I don't know, but all you've got to do is talk to George Mahon and he'll tell you what kind of pressures he's under to actually sit there and appropriate funds which they know are considerably in excess of the revenues.

This, to me, is something we got to get a handle on. If we keep going in the way we're going, why this country is going to be in really disastrous shape in about 15 years.

Miller's Next-Door Neighbor Seizes San Diego Lead

Rod Funseth's 69 Snaps Deadlock; Johnny 10 Strokes Behind

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Veteran Rod Funseth, whose major claim to fame is that he's Johnny Miller's next-door neighbor, struggled to a three-under-par 69 and took sole control of the third-round lead in the $170,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament Saturday.

The 41-year-old Funseth, winner of two titles in 15 long years on the pro tour, broke out of a three-way tie for the top with a 10-under-par total of 206 for 54 holes.

Miller, winner of three of his last four starts and the outstanding player on the tour in the last 14 months, managed a 70 despite a heavy cold, but appeared to be out of title contention with a 216 total, 10 off the pace.

Ray Floyd, threatening for his first title since the 1969 PGA National Championship, moved into second with a strong 68 on the 7,047-yard South Course at Torrey Pines Park and was one stroke back at 207.

Defending champion Bobby Nichols also shot a 68 in the mild, sunny breezy weather on the oceanside layout and was only two off the lead at 208.

Bill Casper, who shared the 36-hole lead with Funseth, could do no better than 72 and headed a group of four at 209. Also at that figure were Leonard Thompson and Bob Wynne, each with 68s, and Australian veteran Baruce Devlin, who shot a 69.

Funseth, who lives next door to Miller in Napa, Calif., started out as if he was going to run away with the tournament, then backed off quickly. His nine's were 31-36.

"I played the last seven holes like a 12-handicapper," Funseth said. "I got a little quick with my driver and started hitting it to the right."

Lee Wards Off Permian Rush

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

The Midland Lee Rebels held off a final day charge by Odessa Permian at Hogan Park Saturday to take a two-stroke victory over the Panthers in the 54-hole Midland Invitational High School Golf Tournament.

To add to the Lee honors, Montie Watson fired a three-day 219 score to take medalist honors over the 18-team field. Permian's Len Feemster was a narrow second with a 220.

Lee posted a team score of 910 to win the meet, but had a 297 in the final round while Permian made a charge for the title with a blazing 294, falling two strokes short of the torrid Rebel pace.

"Our kids did a real fine job," said an elated Lee Coach Dale Biggs after the tournament. "But there was a time there that I thought we wouldn't be able to hold onto the lead."

Coach Robert Young's Midland High Bulldogs posted a 947 but had to settle for fourth place as Lubbock Monterey took third with a 945.

Watson carried a two-stroke lead over Feemster into the final hole of the tournament, but had a double bogey in the final stretch. That left Lee fans wondering if Lee could hang on to the medalist and team leads since Feemster and Lee linker Chris Brown were in the only foursome to follow.

Feemster could manage only a bogey, however, and

R-T Ratings Almost Set Up Lee-Kashmere Match

The Midland Reporter-Telegram's weekly basketball ratings apparently are stirring interest around the state.

For one thing, this desk received a call last week attempting to lineup a game between Houston Kashmere, who only lost in 26 games has been to Houston Wheatley, Wheatley, incidentally, suffered two of its four losses at the hands of Kashmere.

Highland Park Coach Bo Snowden also called to find out who is tough in this area. His Scotties, who topped the R-T poll two years ago and then lost to Midland in the regionals at Abilene, apparently are coming on strong and Bo is wondering what lies down the road.

Highland Park jumped into the top 20 for the first time last week at No. 19.

Incidentally, Bob Arnold, one of Snowden's stars a couple of years ago, is doing a good job for SMU off the bench as a sophomore this year.

Another call was received from El Paso, plugging Bowie for some attention. The Bears have wrapped up their district title and have a string of 17 straight going.

The whole rating system becomes academic once the state playoffs begin and No. 1 team emerges on the playing court and not in the imaginations of some writers.

However, the purpose is to stimulate interest and to provide a sampling of where the power lies around the state.

DAVID THOMPSON SCORES 22 FOR WOLFPACK— NC State Squeaks By Wake Forest

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — David Thompson scored 22 points Saturday including two on free throws in the last five seconds for the final cushion that carried fifth-ranked North Carolina State to an 89-87 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Wake Forest.

The regionally televised game was tied 81-81 with 4:06 remaining and the Wolfpack was carried to the buzzer before pulling out its seventh victory against two losses in the conference and an 18-3 over-all record.

At the 4:06 mark, the Wolfpack went into its "tease" offense, holding the ball for more than a minute. Thompson hit a jumper to make it 83-81 and, at 2:07, hit the first of a one-and-one to give N.C. State a three-point margin and enough cushion to hold out until the buzzer. Wake Forest, which snapped

Tide Whips Mississippi

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — After a slow start by Alabama, Leon Douglas sparked the Crimson Tide to an 88-79 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over Mississippi Saturday.

Douglas had 27 points in the game, 14 in the second half.

Through the first 13 minutes, the Rebels stayed close to the Tide, but Alabama outscored Mississippi 17-6 through the rest of the first period, mostly from the outside.

Alabama led at the half 49-38. The Rebels' scoring was led by Shepherd with 23 points. Also in double figures were Dave Actwood with 17 points, Harvey Murray with 14 and Melbers with 12.

The Tide was led by Douglas, while T. R. Dunn added 14, Charles Cleveland and Rickey Brown contributed 12 each and Charles Russell had 11.

The victory boosted the Tide's conference record to 12-1 and 19-2 over-all. Mississippi is now 3-10 and 7-14.

Tall City Grid Clinic Attracts 200 Gossip Ranges From House Cleaning To Baylor Coup

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

More than 200 area grid bosses converged on the Rodeway Inn here Friday and Saturday for a two-day series of lectures and panel discussions at the third annual Tall City Football Clinic, but those not in the coaching game would have probably learned more sitting on the outside of the lecture room.

Since football coaches are a fraternal breed to start with, the main topic of concern seemed to center around what one coach termed as a "house cleaning" at Fort Stockton.

The Fort Stockton school board has dismissed the entire high school coaching staff and mention of it seemed to come in muffled tones. After all, those in the profession are subject to the same treatment after a slip or two.

One coach was heard to say, "Well I won't have to worry about that for at least a year because my contract has already been renewed for another year."

But he quickly got a reply when another answered, "Yeah, well that's one reason that I've never have bought a cemetery plot. I'm still looking for that restful spot and it's hard to find in this business."

There were at least two coaches on hand for the meet that had more pleasant thoughts, however. Baylor University's John O'Hara was one of them.

Baylor has managed one of its top recruiting seasons ever and O'Hara was elated. "We're not doing cartwheels yet, but I'll do a couple if that's what it takes. We're very pleased with the way things have gone and the way we have been received across the state. It sure didn't hurt us any to win the Southwest Conference, and I think people now want to be a part of our program. Football players and fans have been coming out of the woodworks."

O'Hara said.

Abilene Christian's Wally Bullington was another pleased college coach. "We're just about finished with our recruiting program. We may sign three or four more, but we have had a real fine year so far," Bullington stated.

The Abilene coach added one more to his list Saturday as he inked Brad Stephenson of Midland Lee to a letter. "I think Brad is about the only player in this area that we have signed, but we got some good ones again from Mississippi. You don't want to stop recruiting in an area that has helped you so much."

Bullington, of course, was referring to Wilbert Montgomery and others that have played football for ACC from Mississippi.

McCamery's Joe Neill, who guided the Badgers to their first district title in 14 years was one of the guest speakers. Someone quipped, "You win one district crown and you're at the top of the banquet circuit."

Neill returned, "Well, even a ground hog gets an acorn every once in a while."

Regardless of the rumor,

Jimmy Connors Seeks 3rd Straight

SALISBURY, Md. (AP)—op-seeded Jimmy Connors, seeking a third consecutive title, beat long-time rival Sandy Mayer 7-5, 6-3, 6-2 in Saturday's semi-final of the U.S. National Indoor Open Tennis Championships.

Connors will face Vitas Gerulaitis, who defeated veteran Ilie Nastase 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1 in today's $9,000 final.

Connors was spectacular with his service returns while continuing his march through the 77th national open without the loss of a set.

Gossip Ranges From House Cleaning To Baylor Coup

football coaches sometimes have talent in other areas: Seminole's Hiram Sharp sat down at the drums in the Rodeway Inn and did a respectable job.

"I started playing these things in beer halls at the age of 14, but I stopped when I got out of the Navy. Some people say I should never have quit," Sharp ended.

And that's the way it went for two full days.

Terps Drub Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The Terps in first place in the ACC with an 8-2 record. The Tar Heels now are 15-6 over-all and 6-3 in the ACC.

Mitch Kupchak scored 27 points to lead the Tar Heel effort, while Phil Ford added 16 and Brad Hoffman had 12.

Maryland's 22-point win was also reflected in its shooting percentage. The Terps hit on 59 per cent of their shots while the Tar Heels hit on only 47 per cent. In rebounds, Maryland overwhelmed the Tar Heels 40-18-3 season record and kept

SUN DEVILS SECOND— Texas Nabs Pan Am Golf

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — The University of Texas captured team honors Saturday on the last day of the third annual Pan Am International Intercollegiate Invitational golf tournament, but Arizona State's Charles Gibson won individual honors.

Gibson, tied with Texas' Mark Bedallion going into the final 18 holes, shot a par 72 Saturday to win by one stroke. Gibson was at 209 for 54 holes, followed by Bedallion at 210.

Aggies Whip Owl Runners

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Southwest Conference champions Brad Blair, Scottie Jones, Doug Brodhead, and Bill Newton all won their specialties Saturday as the Texas Aggies whipped Rice, 75-57, in a dual track meet.

Blair won the pole vault at 15 feet, Jones took the high hurdles in 14.3, Brodhead won the 440 dash in 48.3 and Newton took the javelin with a throw of 216 feet, 7 inches. The Aggies won 10 of the 16 events.

ACC BOUND — Lee lineman Brad Stephenson inks along the dotted line of a football letter to Abilene Christian College. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Stephenson look on as Brad makes the decision to join Coach Wally Bullington's Wildcats.

Area Playoff Dates, Sites Announced

Several area cage teams have set up sites and dates for upcoming playoff battles.

McCahey's Class AA girls will travel to Fabens Tuesday night to face Fabens in a 7:30 p.m. bi-district encounter while Greenwood's Class B girls will host Paint Rock at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in another bi-district struggle.

In another AA encounter, Crane's Golden Cranes will meet Socorro Feb. 25 in Clint to kick off the boys AA playoffs. That game is set for an 8 p.m. (MST) tipoff.

Klondike and Union, both of District 8-B, are still trying to decide who will represent the district in the boys playoffs. Each own half the title and will have a district play-off at the Grady gym at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Q's, Nets Pooped After Record Tilt

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The box score of the San Diego Conquistadors-New York Nets game looked more like weekly statistics than the results of one game.

After 3 hours 10 minutes, through four quarters and four overtime periods, 72 personal fouls and 128 rebounds, the Q's finally won the marathon American Basketball Association game 176-166 Friday night. It was the highest scoring total ever in the ABA or in professional history.

The fans really got their money's worth as Nets star Julius Erving hit a career-high 63 points. Dr. J. sank 25 of 46 field goal attempts and grabbed 23 of his team's 57 rebounds.

"I've never been in a game like this one," Erving lamented after the loss, "and I hope I'm never in one like this again... unless we win. It's just so disheartening to lose when you put so much into it."

The game involved 68 minutes of actual playing time, and by the fourth overtime, the exhausted players were tossing up shots that missed the backboard and the rim.

In fact, the 6-foot-7 Erving scored only one basket in the last 12 minutes of the game. "If Dr. J. didn't get tired," said Nets Coach Kevin Loughery, "he wouldn't be human."

The game dropped the Nets, 40-15, out of a first-place tie with idle Kentucky in the ABA's Eastern Division. San Diego now is 22-37.

Finley Defends Thrift

A's Owner Doesn't Plan To Imitate Chisox' Stupidity

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Oakland A's won a third straight world championship last year with a payroll that was only the fourth highest in major league baseball.

Owner Charles O. Finley sees no paradox.

"Just because a team like the Chicago White Sox is stupid enough to pay a Richie Allen $250,000 doesn't mean I have to be stupid," the owner said this week during a break between salary arbitration hearings for several A's stars seeking considerable increases.

His A's payroll last season was about $1.5 million, he said. "I don't know if it will be the highest in the majors this year, but it sure will be high."

Not as high, he hopes, as his players would have it.

"There's an old saying that pigs get fat and hogs go to market. Well, some of the players these days aren't even pigs or hogs—they're gluttons," he said.

"We have to keep salaries within reason. If we just rolled over and gave them what they wanted, we'd price ourselves out of business."

Reggie Jackson, one of the A's scheduled for arbitration, won a $135,000 contract last year and said during the offseason that if he was traded, he'd demand more than $200,000 from his new club.

"As soon as Reggie said that, all the clubs we'd been talking to immediately lost interest," said Finley. "But it's Mr. Jackson's prerogative to have a very high opinion of himself."

In Finley's opinion, the average baseball fan, especially in these days of high unemployment and inflation, is getting turned off by the size of big-name athletes' salaries.

"Who's paying the freight? The fans are. That's why I'm in arbitration," he said. "I'm not only fighting for my own survival but for the fans, too."

After Ken Holtzman went into arbitration seeking a $19,000 raise to $112,000 a year, Finley was asked if Holtzman's attorneys had cited the 12.2 per cent increase in national cost of living statistics for 1974.

"No, they didn't. When a man gets $93,000 for six months of work, the cost of living isn't a factor," Finley said.

Finley offered Holtzman, Jackson, Sal Bando and several other A's no raises for the coming season, saying their 1974 performances were not as good as the previous season.

"We're fighting to break even," Finley said. "When you

Bayi, Larrieu Highlight Olympic Invitational Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Filbert Bayi, Tanzania's world 1,500-meter record holder, and Francis Larrieu, queen of the United States middle-distance runners, highlight an impressive field due here Friday night for the Olympic Invitational track meet at Madison Square Garden.

Bayi, who made a successful indoor debut by winning the mile at the Millrose Games two weeks ago, is heavily favored to capture his specialty. The Tanzanian set the world record of 3:31.2 in 14-year-old Tanzanian Mwinga Mwanjala, Canadians Thelma Wright and Debbie Mitchell and Jamaican champion Byron Dyer of the Florida Track Club. Irishmen: John Hartnett and Eamonn Coghlan and Manhattan's Tony Colon among others.

Dyer, in addition to challenging Bayi in the 1,500 meters, will anchor an unusual 1,600-meter relay team that includes his brothers, Dennis, Trevor and Leo Jr. It will be the first time that four brothers have formed a relay quartet in a major meet.

Miss Larrieu, a student at UCLA who runs for the Pacific Coast Club, will defend her title in the Ms. metric mile, also 1,500 meters. She will go against 14-year-old Tanzanian Mwinga Mwanjala, Canadians Thelma Wright and Debbie Mitchell and Kathy Gibbons of the Glendale, Calif., Gauchos.

Four National AAU champs who also were ranked—No. 1 in the world in their specialties last year will be on display.

Rick Wohlhuter, the AAU's Sullivan Award winner as the outstanding amateur athlete of 1974, will go in the 1,000 meters. Wohlhuter, of the Chicago Track Club, holds world marks at both 1,000 meters and 800 yards and hasn't lost at any distance in the past 15 months.

Record-setting high jumper Dwight Stones of the Pacific Coast Club will square off against Harvard's Mel Embree, who upset him in the Millrose Games, and Pat Matzdorf of the Chicago Track Club.

Hurdler Jim Bolding of the Pacific Coast Club will try his luck in the 500-meter run and Charles Foster of North Carolina Central goes against veterans Willie Davenport, Tom Hill and Larry Shipp in the 55-meter hurdles.

The 50-meter dash will feature Steve Williams of San Diego, Steve Riddick of the Philadelphia Pioneer Club and crowd favorite Dr. Delano Meriwether of Sports International.

There are 27 events scheduled featuring more than 650 athletes.

Bulldogs Regain Touch

Pack Hobbles Bronchos For 20th Victory

By TED BATTLES
Midland High shook off a series of heartbreaking defeats in the second half of District 5-4A basketball race by thumping off-thumped Odessa, 74-50, before a small turnout at MHS gym Friday. It was a little more involved, however, than it looked on the surface.

The Bulldogs were short-handed for the game and were playing against an opponent that easily could have been taken for granted. After all, it's not easy to work up a mad-against-a-team that is 3-25 for the season. Still there was no lack of enthusiasm on the Bulldogs part as they exhibited some of their flashiest passing of the year in making it 20 wins in 29 starts this year. The win, after two two-point and one one-point defeats in the last four games, didn't exactly revive the Bulldogs' second-half hopes, but it got them pointed in the right direction again. Four Bulldogs cracked double figures with Michael Cobb and Donnie Roberts scoring 16 each, guard Terry Nelson enjoying one of his biggest scoring nights of the year with 14 while Bobby Chinn chipped in with 12. Robert Lane scored 17 to lead Odessa as the Bronchos remained lodged in the 5-4A cellar with an 0-5 record. The Bulldogs went into action without Greg Smith, fu, John Webb, injury, and Tim Johnson, participating in the all-state choir competition at Dallas. Wearing lavender instead of purple in hopes of changing their luck, the Pack never really had time to miss their teammates. Midland jumped in front 22-7 after a period and had upped the margin to 35-13 before a four-basket spurge by Lane cut the Bulldogs' advantage to 15, 40-25, at halftime. It was the kind of game that gave Coach James Cagle a chance to play everybody, and he took advantage of the opportunity by inserting alternating units as early as the first period. Midland had a good night from the field, hitting 31 of 63 shots and the pressing defense forced the Bronchos into repeated turnovers. Odessa was 16 of 50 from the floor and just couldn't stay with the Bulldogs, 42-20 in rebounds, on the boards. With a 2-3 district record, Midland's playoff hopes depend on how Midland Lee fares at Abilene Tuesday. If the Rebels beat the Eagles, they will clinch a second-half title victory, and with it a spot in the bi-district playoffs. An Abilene victory, on the other hand, would put MHS back in the picture. The Bulldogs host Cooper Tuesday night. Midland made it a sweep Friday, winning the sophomore game, 31-29, and then annexing the JV III, 87-60, as Dunn, Barron, Hunt and Mark Rice all scored 14 points and Mepstead had 12. For Coach Don Humphrey's JV team, it was their 10th win in 12 district games and raised the season's record to 22-3. The Bullpups outscored Odessa by a blistering 56 to 25 in the middle two periods to make it 70-36 going into the last period.

Stanton finishes the season with a 12-17 season mark and ended the second half play in District 5-A with a 2-2 record, the same as the first half. O'Donnell finishes with an 11-14 and 0-4 standing. Gordon Eiland led the Buff attack with 24 points and Vernon Brown chipped in with 12 points. David Hancock had 23 markers for the Eagles. Stanton also won the junior varsity game by a 47-34 reading with Oscar Perez getting 10 points in the abbreviated game. O'Donnell had only six players and three fouled out before they called the contest with three minutes to go.

Trailing Wausau are Milwaukee, Silver Bay, Minn., and Seattle with 3-2 records. Devil's Lake, N.D., Oak Park, Ill., and Darien, Conn., all have 2-3 records and Winchester, Mass., has an 0-5 mark.

Lee Retains Share Of 2nd-Half Lead

By BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer

ODESSA — Ron Farish calmly hit a pair of free throws with five seconds left Friday night to knock Odessa Permian out of the second half of the torrid District 5-4A basketball race as the Midland Lee Rebels took a 36-32 victory over the Panthers in the Permian Fieldhouse.

It was an unusually ragged game with both teams very tense throughout most of the game, but it was a big win for Coach Paul Stueckler's Rebs, who face the Abilene Eagles Tuesday in the big showdown battle. Abilene took care of San Angelo, 61-47, to stay in first place with a 5-0 loop mark along with Lee. Same Old Bugaboo Permian lost the game where it has all year long — at the free throw line. The Panthers failed to connect on five free throw attempts along with a technical foul shot in dropping to a 3-2 loop reading. The loss give the Black Cats a 26-6 season mark while Lee is now 27-2 on the year. The game was a lot like the first meeting of the two rivals when the Rebels won, 48-45, in overtime. Permian led for three periods only to lose out in the final eight minutes. Permian and Lee fought to an 8-8 tie at the end of the first period as the Rebels misfired on 11 shots from the floor, but after falling behind 6-0, Farish hit a shot at the buzzer to tie the game. Permian Led 6-0 Permian went in front, 6-0 on baskets by James Hunter, Brad Van Cleave and Mike Walton. Farish hit Lee's first basket with 3:58 left in the opening period and Junior Miller followed with a short jumper to cut the lead to 6-4 with 2:18 left, but sophomore Tom McLemore scored for Permian on a tip-in for an 8-4 lead. Jeffrey Jackson, who had 12 points for the Rebels, hit a layup with 33 seconds left and Farish followed with the buzzer shot. Permian outscored Lee 12-9, in the second period to take a halftime lead of 20-17. Lee was unable to take advantage of 10 Panther turnovers in the first half as the Rebs only hit seven of 28 shots from the floor, but they did pull to within one point on two occasions during the second period only to have Permian go ahead by three to four points. Rebs Make Move The Panthers held on to a 26-25 edge going into the final period and that was when Stueckler's crew made their move. Jackson hit a pair of free throws to give Lee the lead for the first time in the game with 7:03 left to make it 27-26 in favor of the defending district champions. Garth Wright hit a key basket for the Rebs to make it 29-26 with 5:50 left, but David Stell hit for Permian, cutting the Rebs lead to 29-28 with 5:11 remaining. Permian Coach Ron Mayberry was whistled for a technical foul when he kicked a chair and Brett Blackwell hit the shot for a 30-28 lead for Lee with 4:24 left. Jackson misfired on a pair of free throws that would have given Lee some breathing room, but he scored on a tip-in with 2:18 left for a 32-29 lead. McLemore followed with a tip-in of his own to cut the lead to 32-30 with 2:02 left, but Blackwell hit a jumper for a 34-30 edge. Hunter came back with a short jump shot for the Panthers to make it 34-33 in (Continued On 7B)

Aggie Athletes Come In His, Her Bundles

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — At a recent Texas A&M basketball game, a male student was sitting with his date in the lettermen's section reserved for Aggie athletes in all sports.

A surprised friend passed by and said "I didn't know you were an athlete."

"I'm not, she is," the student said, pointing to his date, a member of the Aggie women's basketball team.

Even in Aggieland the former bastion of male chauvinism where three years ago there was no women's sports program and nine years ago there were no women-athletes changing.

"Our nickname is Aggies, but we call ourselves jocks just like the men do," said Cissy Auclair, a mainstay on the women's basketball team. "We started calling ourselves that when they let us sit in the lettermen's section."

Humble Start

From humble beginnings, this year there are about 150 women athletes at A&M competing in 10 sports. Their budget has gone from zero to its present $40,000 in three years and women's basketball coach Kay Don figures they've come a long way, baby.

"I've had people come up and say they want to do a story on discrimination and I just have to tell them that we don't feel discriminated against at A&M," Miss Don said. "At some of the other schools, they have been discriminated against, but not here."

Tradition Helps

Getting women athletes to attend A&M is actually helped by the fact that the school is a former all-male institution, Miss Don said.

"I think A&M is kind of a calling card right now for women, just because it's A&M and it's kind of new for women. It's been almost 10 years (since women were first admitted) but it's still a new thing. The young ladies are looking for a good education, so they look to A&M."

Miss Don, who donates her time to help run the women's program, said the program was on a club status level its first two years and this year is in a transition period over to the athletic department.

No Scholarships

Three years ago, five Aggie women's swimmers qualified for the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women national championships.

"We qualified five young ladies but we were able to get enough money to send only one," she said.

"Women still do not receive scholarships for athletics but they no longer have to buy their own uniforms as in the beginning."

"The girls bought all their uniforms and paid for their meals and lodgings," Miss Don said. "Most of the times when we traveled, we'd stay in homes and take our sleeping bags and sleep on the floor, so the girls wouldn't be out that money."

Dedication

"They were dedicated because they gave their money and their time," she said. "Now they can see progress. They feel they've set a good pace."

Just as at A&M, women's athletic programs are blossoming at other schools following the introduction of the Department of Health Education and Welfare's Title IX plan, which provides equal opportunities in athletics for men and women.

Miss Don doesn't think the final Title IX program will seriously affect the men's programs.

"They (athletic departments at schools across the country) scream that they don't have the money but I feel they'll find money to provide more programs for women's athletics," she said. "I wouldn't want the same budget as the men."

"By that I mean we don't need it. I think it's the way we were brought up, having to make do. I think Title IX says we will have an equal opportunity. That doesn't mean we have to have 20 coaches or a $1 million budget."

Quality Eight

Last year the Aggie women athletes qualified eight swimmers to the national AIAW championships and three, Barbara German, Carol Hemphill and Beth McArthur, earned All-American honors. The bowling team won the state tournament and Miss Auclair was invited to try out for the U.S. team that played against Russia.

Still, there is much progress to be made, Miss Don feels. "I think in the next couple of years we'll probably have some scholarships, but it depends on the money," she said.

Offering scholarship as the men do is one thing, but recruiting like the men is another. AIAW rules forbid any recruiting of prospective athletes and Miss Don agrees with the rules.

"If you start recruiting, then you'll start putting pressure on the students," she said. "They'll be going to a certain school then because it gives a better scholarship. It possibly would take away from the education factor."

Miss Don agreed, however that because of the nature of athletic competition, scholarships and pressure will become a part of women's athletics.

"When one school starts giving a lot of scholarships and beating everybody else, I guess everybody else will get in there and compete too," she said.

Miss Don thinks that problem is somewhere in the future. Of immediate importance, is finding a name. "Some people want to call us Maggies, but we prefer Aggies because that's what we are," she said.

Then there's the term jocks. "We need to come up with a name for women athletes," she said. "Jocks just doesn't seem to fit."

"They (athletic departments at schools across the country) scream that they don't have the money but I feel they'll find money to provide more programs for women's athletics," she said. "I wouldn't want the same budget as the men."

"By that I mean we don't need it. I think it's the way we were brought up, having to make do. I think Title IX says we will have an equal opportunity. That doesn't mean we have to have 20 coaches or a $1 million budget."

Ingram Weaves To 300 Victory

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — National sportsman champion Jack Ingram of Asheville, N.C., survived two minor crashes Saturday and drove to a comfortable victory in a 300-mile Sportsman's race at Daytona International Speedway.

Ingram's windshield was severely cracked in one skirmish and his car was nudged in an eight-car spectacular wreck on the 31-degree west banking of the 2.5-mile oval.

But he avoided more serious accidents that sent former winner Red Farmer of Hueytown, Ala., to a hospital and caused minor injuries to three other drivers in a wild race in which only 15 of 40 starters finished. Ingram whipped his Chevrolet across the finish line 2.5 seconds ahead of rookie Joe Millikan of Randleman, N.C., a member of Richard Petty's pit crew, who drove a Dodge.

Ingram collected $9,700 for his victory, averaging 138.107 miles per hour in a race that was slowed six times by caution flags. Eight drivers exchanged the lead 14 times in a thrilling race run before an estimated crowd of 70,000, who paid $15 for an infield perch.

Harry Gant of Taylorsville, N.C. was third in a Chevrolet, Ivan Baldwin of Highland, Calif. finished fourth in a Chevrolet and Paul Radford of Fer-rum, Va. was fifth in a Chevrolet. Bobby Allison, who has had nothing but trouble since winning the first of five races he entered this week here, led throughout much of the early going, but was the victim of a freak accident midway through the race.

SCULLY TRIES TENNIS—

Dodgers' Voice Branches Out

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Not long ago, after years of issuing polite refusals, Vin Scully elected to sign on as a network sportscaster. The fortunate network was CBS. Scully is, of course, a nonpareil baseball broadcaster and he will be going into his 26th year as the voice of the Dodgers. Why, it is reasonable to ask, did he decide to add network assignments to his already bulging schedule?

"John McNulty said it best," said Vin, referring to the late author-horseplayer for whom both Scully and I share a vast admiration. "For years, a Hollywood studio tried to lure McNulty from New York to write screenplays. John resolutely refused."

"Then one day he suddenly changed his mind and accepted the offer. His old buddies at Tim Costello's saloon were dumbfounded. Leave New York for Hollywood? Why, they demanded, did he do it? 'Well,' said McNulty, 'the money's good and there's no heavy lifting.'"

In years past, along with the other offers, ABC went after Scully when the network was putting together its "Monday Night Football" broadcasting team. Howard Cosell had been hired first and they were looking for a play-by-play announcer. But Scully rejected that lucrative bid.

"It would have been interesting, at that, with Howard Cosell and Vin Scully in the same booth. The thought amuses Vin. "That Cosell," he says. "He's a roomful all by himself."

But five years have since passed and now, says Scully, both the money and the timing served to double-team his resistance. "CBS came at me with a very attractive package — a sporadic kind of schedule. A tennis match or two, some golf. Nothing at all while I'm involved with Dodger baseball. Then some football. I've got six kids now — a balanced line of three boys and three girls. I'll give it my best shot. If it's too much, I'll reconsider but I think it'll work out."

Scully's first assignment wearing the CBS silks was the telecast of the $100,000 tennis match pitting Jimmy Connors against Rod Laver. Scully was flanked therein by Tony Trabert, a veteran player, and Harry Hopman, an elder statesman of Australian tennis.

When I tracked Scully down, he was in his suite at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, site of the match, and he was packing his bags and keeping an eye on the tv replay later in the afternoon.

With his voice of pure velvet and his unflappable professionalism, Scully had delivered a typically first-class job of broadcasting, lucid and colorful. Who would have guessed that it was his maiden run at calling a tennis match?

The key was, of course, preparation. "You'd need the gall of Attila the Hun to go in there unprepared," Vin says. "Anyone who doesn't prepare for a broadcast is plain foolish. I was working with two experts. My job was to stay out of the way but you have to be prepared even to do that."

Brandt Turns Down Falcons' Offer

DALLAS (AP) — Gil Brandt, vice president of the Dallas Cowboys, has decided to remain with the National Football League team despite offers from the Atlanta Falcons, the Dallas Morning News reported Saturday.

The news said the word came from Cowboys general manager Tex Schramm, who said, "We're obviously elated he decided to stay. He's an extremely important part of our organization."

Brandt was out of town and not available for comment.

Schramm would not comment on whether Brandt would take over the duties of the club's other vice president, Al Ward, who resigned to become general manager of the New York Jets. Schramm said, "For the time being I'm going to assess the various functions Al performed and dispense them to people in our organization."

Right now I'm more concerned with utilizing the great amount of talent we have in our organization than in naming a successor to Al."

There has been speculation that Schramm would name either publicity director Curt Mosher or business manager Joe Bailey to replace Ward, who handled mostly administrative duties for the club.

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League announced Friday the signing of their No. 8 college draft choice, offensive tackle Brent Adams of the University of Chattanooga.

TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS IN MARCH— City 9's Host Tourney

Midland Lee Coach Ernie Johnson and Midland High Coach Arlen Dickson released the schedule for Midland's unique Tournament of Champions baseball play on March 7 and 8 at beautiful Cubs Stadium in Hogan Park.

"This tournament is unusual in that only five teams were invited," Johnson explained. "Consequently, instead of playing a regular single or double elimination bracket as is normally done, all teams entered will play one game with each of the other teams."

Johnson added, "The winner will be the team with the best win-loss record."

"We feel that our tournament will insure that each team will feel they have had an equal chance to win because one bad break or lucky hit will not eliminate them as can so often happen in a tournament," Dickson chimed in.

Dickson noted that the tournament, with four games for each team in two days, would place a premium on pitching depth.

Tournaments are old hat for Johnson, whose Rebel teams have won three district titles and finished second in state one year and third another. Four of Ernie's teams finished second in district.

"Prospects are good for an excellent infield, strong catching and adequate to good pitching this year," appraises Johnson. "The only question is the outfield, which was hit hard by graduation and by the loss of returning letterman Robert Dodson and a late start by Scott Meaders, another letterman, as a result of knee injuries."

Dickson, heading into his second year as Bulldogs' head coach, was assistant coach on the Midland High team that won the state title in 1973.

"With three starters and seven lettermen returning with 11 seniors on the roster, this club should be a strong contender in district play," Dickson remarked.

Dickson says, "Bright spots at present are the pitching staff which has considerable depth and experience, strong catching and a strong outfield. If the hitters improve, as they should after compiling a team average of .281 last year, the team should be improved over last year."

The tournament schedule will find Midland Lee facing Moore, Okla., at 12:30 p.m. March 7 and Midland will face Arlington Sam Houston at 3 p.m. and then tangle at 8 p.m.

There will be five opening day games with Putnam City, Okla. facing Sam Houston at 10 a.m. and Moore tangling with Putnam City West at 5:30 p.m.

On Saturday there will be five more games.

TO BOLSTER HILL STAFF— A's Grab Marichal

By The Associated Press
Can Juan Marichal make them forget Catfish Hunter in Oakland and help keep the A's numero uno?

The 36-year-old right-hander, who spent 13 full seasons with the San Francisco Giants, has moved across the bay, where the world champion Oakland A's hold forth.

Owner Charles O. Finley said Friday that Marichal, 243 victories trails only Bob Gibson's 247 among active pitchers, has agreed to terms and will formally sign a contract when he returns from a visit to his native Dominican Republic.

Marichal was released by the Boston Red Sox following the 1974 campaign. He compiled a 5-1 record but his earned-run average was 4.89 and a back ailment limited him to 11 appearances. He failed to complete any of his nine starts and pitched only 57 innings. The Red Sox purchased him from the Giants in December 1973.

In an effort to replace Hunter, the 25-game winner who was declared a free agent when Finley failed to live up to the terms of the pitcher's contract and who subsequently signed with the New York Yankees, Oakland also signed right-hander

Low Krause, a former A's pitcher recently released by the Atlanta Braves. Krause had a 4-3 record and 4.16 ERA in 29 games for the Braves last season.

Meanwhile, Finley, who won an arbitration case with starting pitcher Ken Holtzman earlier in the week, went into another salary showdown Friday with reliever Rollie Fingers.

The tall pitcher with the famous handlebar mustache appeared in all four games of the A's won in the 1974 World Series and was named the outstanding player in the Series. He reportedly is seeking $39,000 while Finley has offered $75,000.

Fingers won a $65,000 salary through arbitration last winter and went on to record a 9-5 record plus 18 saves. Finley contends that salary should be based on regular-season performance.

Elsewhere, the Baltimore Orioles came to terms with eight players, including pitcher Mike Cuellar and outfielder Al Bumbry. Cuellar had previously filed for arbitration.

Dark Retains Hope

Can A's Repeat Without Catfish Hunter?

By LARRY HARNLY
Copley News Service

The following might be entitled, "In the dark with Alvin."

Oakland manager Alvin Dark says he does not have the answers to a lot of questions concerning three topics frequently in the news — Catfish Hunter, Oakland owner Charles Finley and his A's.

Dark, however, is sure of one thing. "With Catfish on our club, our chances (to at least win the Western Division title again) would have been great."

"But without him — and I don't even like to think about it — it's going to be tough," Dark said in an interview.

With Hunter, the A's have won the World Series three years in succession, and they did it in 1974 under the direction of Dark. No team has had such a streak since the New York Yankees won five in a row from 1949 to 1953. Chances of Oakland making it four in a row might be remote without Hunter, who was made a free agent by an arbitrator and signed with the Yankees for a reported $3.7 million.

Numerous questions exist, and they're questions Dark has heard — and will hear — many times. For instance: Does Dark find it hard to believe Finley reneged on his contract with Hunter?

"You see, No. 1, it never has been revealed what has happened in the whole thing. "I do not know all the particulars," Dark responded.

Is Dark optimistic about Hunter being with the A's in 1975 in view of Finley's promised legal battle?

"The only thing I can go on is the ruling of the different courts, and Mr. Finley has said he will fight it all the way (meaning the Supreme Court). I really don't know what our chances are of him being back," Dark said.

Did the A's enter the bidding for Hunter after he was declared a free agent? "I really do not know all that went on then," Dark said. "I saw Catfish in Hartford (N.C., his home town) for one purpose. I was speaking in North Carolina, and I thought I would go by and thank him for the year he had for us."

Arbitrators Inefficient

"It's almost like a guy running a stop light and getting hung for it," he said. "I think arbitrators who are ruling on baseball contracts are so inefficient. Some of them don't even know what an ERA (earned run average) is. I don't know all the facts; but I do know that during the season Catfish was offered the other money Mr. Finley owed him."

Rangerettes In Bi-District

GREENWOOD — The Greenwood Rangerettes, 31-3 on the year, will host Paint Rock Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in a key girls Class B bi-district basketball game.

Paint Rock, winner of District 12-B, defeated Eola Thursday to advance to the playoffs. Greenwood was undefeated in District 11-B play and is in the playoffs for the second year in a row.

The Greenwood boys, also winner of District 11-B, will travel to Balmorhea Saturday for a 2 p.m. practice game with the Bears, winners of District 6-A. Greenwood will also play a practice game with Wall either Monday or Tuesday.

FRIDAY'S TRACK ROUNDUP— Larrieu Sets World Mark

By The Associated Press
Francie Larrieu, who along with Mary Decker dominated American women's distance running last year, has added her first world record to an already long list of accomplishments.

Miss Larrieu ran away from five other competitors and finished more than a lap ahead of some in winning the 1,500 meters in the world's best indoor time of 4 minutes, 10.4 seconds at the Maple Leaf Games in Toronto Friday night.

The 22-year-old Miss Larrieu, a senior at UCLA, credited the cheers of more than 16,000 spectators for her time despite a lack of competition. She finished half a lap ahead of Canada's Glenda Reiser.

"I was really worried after we did the first quarter in 54 seconds," said Miss Larrieu. "That's too fast, but it worked out well."

The old mark of 4:11 was set last year by Tonka Petrov of Bulgaria in a meet at Goteborg, Sweden.

Miss Larrieu's was the second world mark of the games. East Germany's Amelie Ehardt, world record holder in the 100-meter hurdles, broke the women's indoor 50-yard hurdles record twice in an hour, first in the preliminaries with a time of 6.3 then again in the final in 6.2.

The previous record of 6.4 was set by Patty Johnson at the Maple Leaf Games in 1972 and since equalled several times, including twice Friday by Americans Patty W. Wavelaere and by Deby LaPlante.

Also winning their events were Steve Williams, co-holder of the world 100-meter mark, with a 5.1 in the 50-yard dash; Jim Bolding, 400-meter hurdles world record holder, with a 1:11.6 in the 600-yard hurdles, and Al Feuerbach, who holds the world record in the shot put, with a toss of 67 feet, 11 1/4 inches.

Two other major meets began Friday, the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics meet at Greensboro, N.C., and the U.S. Track and Field Federation meet at Oklahoma City, Okla.

In the NAIA meet, Charles Foster tied the meet record in the 60-yard hurdles with a time of 6.9 seconds. Rod Milburn, current world record holder in the 120-yard hurdles, set the mark in 1972.

Also, Earl Thomas of Jackson State won the 60-yard dash in 6.0, and Donald Dykes won the long jump with a distance of 24.7.

The USIFF meet was confined to junior college and college division competition Friday, with university division and open preliminaries today.

The mile run will highlight a couple of meets today. Entered in the mile at the San Digo Indoor Games will be a stellar field including Filbert Bayi, world record holder in the 1,500 meters; Rick Wohlhuter, world record holder in the 800 yards and 1,000 meters, and 1974's fastest two miler, Rod Dixon. Marty Liquori, who had an indoor time of 3:55.8 last week at Philadelphia, heads the mile field at the Knights of Columbus meet at Cleveland.

The Northwest Relays scheduled for today at Pocatello, Idaho were cancelled.

Brother Relay Act Okayed By ECAC

NEW YORK (AP) — The Eastern College Athletic Conference has given permission to junior Leo Dyce Jr. of Georgetown University to run with his three brothers as a relay team in the Olympic Invitation Track Meet at Madison Square Garden Feb. 21.

The announcement was made Saturday by Scotty Whitelaw, ECAC Commissioner, who sent telegrams to Georgetown Athletic Director Frank Rienzo and Track Coach Joe Lang informing them of young Dyce's eligibility.

Both Rienzo and Lang previously had given permission for Dyce to run with his older brothers—Byron, Trevor and Dennis—in the 1,600-meter relay against the University of Connecticut, C. W. Post and New York Tech.

Normally, a student cannot compete in outside competition during his collegiate career, and therefore permission was required from the school's officials and the ECAC. After polling the ECAC's Eligibility Committee, Whitelaw said the group voted in favor of Dyce because of the "uniqueness of the situation."

UCLA Wins, USC Loses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA Bruins (7-1) maintained their calm in the face of Oregon's thrashing kamikaze-style defense to rout the No. 13 Ducks 95-66. Across town Southern California's 10th-rated Trojans succumbed to steady Oregon State 80-76 in a game that wasn't as close as the final score indicated.

"This win breaks the Sports Illustrated jinx—that nobody around here believed anyway," said Bruin guard Andre McCarter. He was referring to the fact that the national magazine seems to have a knack for putting on its front cover pictures of performers who very soon after perform poorly.

Meyers Deadly

David Meyers, UCLA's 6-foot-8 forward, was on Sports Illustrated's cover this week, but the senior scored 19 points, hitting 8 of 12 shots from the floor.

He scored early, while the Bruins were taking leads of 9-0, 16-1 and 25-4, turning a contest into rout.

Meanwhile, the 17th-ranked Beavers of Oregon State were manhandling Southern Cal as Lonnie Shelton scored 25 points. The Trojans were favored but Coach Ralph Miller's crew shackled everyone but Gus Williams and grabbed a 15-point lead with 6½ minutes left.

Williams, who wound up with 24, and freshman Earl Evans brought USC back, but there wasn't enough fire in the Trojan furnace.

Sun Devils Score

Losing Coach Bob Boyd, however, simply said, "they beat us every way possible, but they especially beat us up front—they hammered us."

Three other ranked teams were in action Friday night. No. 8 Arizona State topped Utah 96-90. No. 14 Penn took an 80-70 Ivy League decision over Dartmouth and No. 19 Arizona whipped Brigham Young 97-81.

Lionel Hollins netted 24 points for Arizona State which shot 61 per cent from the floor in the second half. Utah star Tickey Burden managed two points in the first half before finishing with 17.

LEE GOLFERS SECOND AT SAN ANTONIO

MHS Girls Repeat Win

SAN ANTONIO — Midland High and Midland Lee finished one, two in the San Antonio Independent School Girls Golf Tournament here Friday with the Bulldogs repeating as champions with a 359 team total.

Lee, led by tournament medalist Liz Norton, who shot a 79, took second place in the 15-team field.

It was sweet revenge for Coach Mary Baird's Midland golfers, who lost to San Antonio Roosevelt in the state finals last spring by two strokes. Roosevelt took third here Friday with a distant 394.

Mary Owen led Midland with an 86 while Pam Scharbauer shot 88, Cathy Johnson 89, Lisa Howe 96, and Judy Blalock 98.

Following Miss Norton in the Lee scoring were Diane Robinson 97, Vicki Wieland 99, Kelly Cooper 100 and Elaine Roberts 112 for a team total of 375.

Next action for the Tall City schools will be the Amarillo Tournament April 4-5.

Hull Matches Rocket's 50-50 Record

By The Associated Press

Bobby Hull, the man who gave the World Hockey Association major league status by jumping from the National Hockey League, has tied one of hockey's most distinguished records—50 goals in 50 games.

The 37-year-old Hull, one of the NHL's all-time greats, accomplished the feat Friday night by scoring once in each period to lead the Winnipeg Jets to a 5-3 triumph over the Houston Aeros. Playing for Houston, ironically, was hockey's all-time leading scorer, Gordie Howe.

"This has to rank as one of my greatest satisfactions," Hull said after he tied the famed 50-goal record set by the legendary Maurice "Rocket" Richard of the Montreal Canadiens in 1944-45 when the NHL played a 50-game schedule.

In other WHA action, the New England Whalers ripped the Indianapolis Racers 4-3 in overtime, the Quebec Nordiques trounced the Minnesota Fighting Saints 7-3, the Cleveland Crusaders edged the San Diego Mariners 3-2 and the Edmonton Oilers whipped the Toronto Toros 8-4.

The capacity Winnipeg crowd took a pass from Ulf Nilsson and rifled in his 50th goal with 1:33 left in the game, a waist-high shot that deflected off Houston goalie Ron Grahame into the net. The game was halted for five minutes while the ice was cleared of debris.

Hull's first goal, a back-hand shot from in front of the net, came with 1:42 gone in the game and gave the Jets a 1-0 lead. His second goal at 16:47 of the second period put Winnipeg on top 4-3 and capped a three-goal burst in less than four minutes that wiped out a 3-1 Houston lead.

Archers To Meet

Midland archers will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Texas Electric Com. Reddy Room to discuss bylaws and the setting up of a local range. David Pearce (694-2803) is in charge of meeting arrangements.

Gillman Resigns As Houston Oiler GM

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers owner K.S. "Bud" Adams and Sid Gillman always went together like an ax and grinding wheel—they usually created sparks—but it was different Friday when Adams announced Gillman's resignation as general manager.

While Gillman was in California attending a golf tournament, Adams announced here Friday night that Gillman, after deciding he had done the job Adams hired him to do, was resigning as general manager. Gillman stepped down as head coach of the Oilers three weeks ago.

Missing this time was the colorful rhetoric that often sparked between these two volatile personalities.

California Call

"Sid called me from California and we talked at length about the future of the Oilers," Adams explained. "He said that he felt the team had turned things around, the club was in good hands under (new head coach O.A.) Phillips and that he had done the job he came to do."

Adams said Phillips would become general manager. Gillman engineered the Oilers to a 7-7 season in 1974 after a pair of 1-13 seasons. It was Houston's best season since 1968 but it didn't keep Adams and Gillman from feuding.

Oilers Fused

Adams said during the season that the Oilers had been fined $15,000 in 1973 for having too many players on the active roster. Adams also charged that Gillman spent money unnecessarily and that the Oilers were overspending their budget.

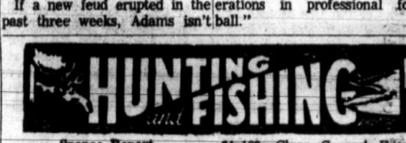

There was speculation as the end of the season that Gillman would not return because of the internal struggle. Then three weeks ago, Gillman named Phillips as head coach and announced he would remain as general manager.

New Feud?

If a new feud erupted in the past three weeks, Adams isn't ball."

"I sought out Sid Gillman to turn the Oilers around, whether it took one, two or even five years," Adams said in a statement. "And he did it in two years through many hours of hard, dedicated work and by utilizing his vast knowledge of the game to the fullest."

Phillips said "I certainly appreciate the confidence placed in me by both Sid Gillman and Bud Adams. This organization has many outstanding and competent people on both its administrative and coaching staffs. Through continued hard work, we will make the Houston Oilers one of the finest operations in professional football."

Spence Report

Cold and damp weather slowed down fisherman at Lake E. V. Spence last weekend, but there were still some hardy souls who braved the elements and were rewarded for their efforts.

Ed Carver, Andrews, caught a 6½ pound striped bass, while Owen Jackson, Odessa, strung together 19 bass up to 2½ pounds and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dewoody, Odessa, took two strippers to 4½ pounds, four channel cat to 4½ and four black bass to two pounds.

PBRFC Meets Tuesday

The Permian Basin Rifle and Pistol Club will hold its 1975 elections at the business meeting 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Club House on Holiday Hill Road.

The club conducted its first registered trap shoot of the season in January with Tom Cathy scoring 96x100 to win Class A in the 16-yard event; Frank Powell, 99x100, Class B; Barnes Cauble, 96x100, Class C, and Harold Baldwin, 90x100, Class D.

Stock Town Lake

Anyone headed for Austin soon might pack along their fishing rods. Town Lake was stocked with 301 smallmouth bass recently, ranging from four to six inches. Texas Park and Wildlife officials claim that it takes 3½ years for the bass to grow large enough to reproduce in the northern states, but in warmer Texas that process is expected to be speeded up.

Fourth Wife Sues Mickey Rooney

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mickey Rooney is being sued for $14,350 in back alimony by his fourth wife, Elaine Mahlen Rooney.

She alleges in the Superior Court that Rooney had stopped paying her $500 monthly alimony in 1969.

Frederick Swann, one of the world's foremost concert and church organists, will play a recital here Thursday night.

His Midland appearance in the sanctuary of First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas St., is sponsored by the West Texas chapter, American Guild of Organists, and will be the chapter's annual concert for the public. Admission will be free.

Swann has programmed several well-known and well-loved works for organ, including the Chorale in B minor by Cesar Franck and the Fantasia and Fugue in G minor of J. S. Bach. In addition, the guest artist will play four chorale preludes of Ernst Pepping, the Introduction, Passacaglia and the Fugue of Healey Willan and the "Festival Mass" of Leos Janacek. A dramatic program piece, "The Despair and Agony of Dachaui," by contemporary American composer and organist Paul Siffer, also is to be presented.

Swann is director of music and organist at the famous Riverside Church in New York City and also serves as chairman of the organ department at the Manhattan School of Music.

A native of West Virginia, Swann began organ study at the age of 7, giving his first recital at age 8 and becoming organist of a city church at the age of 10. In his teens he entered Northwestern University on a scholarship, graduating with distinction. During that time he also was organist for the Chicago Bach Choir and for two large churches. He continued his studies at the School of Sacred Music of Union Theological Seminary in New York City where he received his master's degree, and later had special study here and abroad with several of the world's leading organists.

For a time Swann served as acting organist and music director for New York's Brick Presbyterian Church and later as associate organist and choirmaster of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church in Manhattan. In 1958 he was appointed organist at the Riverside Church and, in 1966, assumed the additional duties of choirmaster.

Kinetic Art Lecture To Open Show

LUBBOCK — A lecture on kinetic art, its origins and development, will open a six-man show this afternoon in The Museum of Texas Tech University.

Here to discuss the use of motion in art, from Roman times to the present, will be Illinois sculptor Konstantin Milonadis, former professor and artist-in-residence at Notre Dame University. His lecture at 3 p.m. today in the museum will be open to the public at no charge.

Artists participating in the show are, in addition to Milonadis, James Killy of Benton Harbor, Mich., Ronald Brander of Greenwich, Conn., Robert G. Venn of the TTU department of architecture, and Bill Bagley and Francis Stephen of the Texas Tech art department.

Milonadis is represented by five of his wind-activated kinetic sculptures constructed of silver-soldered stainless steel, and a group of pen-and-ink drawings. Milonadis came to the U. S. from the Ukraine in 1951. He is a graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago and Tulane University. His works have been exhibited in a number of major galleries, including numerous one-man shows.

Killy, specializing in chain-operated sculptures constructed of wood-teaches basic design and sculpture techniques at Lake Michigan College. He has five sculptures in the exhibit, including two recently completed pieces, "Orbit" and "Circum."

Brander is showing an electrically-operated sculpture titled "Happy Days." Brander says that his use of motion in sculpture is "subtle, as it is in my films."

Venn has a group of manually-operated sculptures of wood and steel, including two coin-operated devices, "Bankmobile" and "Your Voice Is Music to My Ears," as well as a push-about sculpture, "Mechanocophonant," in the new show.

Bagley is represented by two of his wheeled sculptures, including the large (12-ft. by 14-ft.) "Wind Wagon" and an equally impressive "Wind Machine." Stephen exhibits a variety of intricate pieces, including his "Armageddon Bug," an electrically-operated metal sculpture, and "Traffic Patterns," constructed of steel rods and colored cubes.

The show will remain on view through mid-March. Museum hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday each week, and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

'Sunshine Boys' Coming To Lubbock

LUBBOCK — Actors Eddie Bracken and Arnie Freeman will be "The Sunshine Boys" when the Neil Simon play of that title comes to Lubbock for one performance only Wednesday night.

The performance, to be presented as an attraction of Civic Lubbock, Inc., will begin at 8 p.m. in Lubbock Municipal Auditorium. Tickets, priced from $2 to $6, are on sale daily at the auditorium box office.

Playwright Simon's bright and witty stage work is a fictionalized version of the exploits of the famed vaudeville team of Smith and Dale who, during their long professional life together, became a virtual institution of comedy, purveyors of the art of the double-entendre and the double-take.

Richard Meek, principal bassoonist for the orchestra, will be heard in Carl Maria von Weber's "Hungarian Fantasy." Margaret Redcay, principal flutist, will perform Charles Giffie's "Poeme," a work for flute and orchestra. Principal horn player Anthony Brittin will be heard on French horn in a performance of Emmanuel Chabrier's "Larghetto for Horn and Orchestra." Concertmistress Virginia Kellogg will be solo violinist in Maurice Ravel's "Tzigane."

In addition to the four featured works, the orchestra will offer the Duo and Galop from Georges Bizet's "Petite Suite," Antonin Dvorak's "Slavonic Dance" No. 1, the prelude to Richard Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," Hector Berlioz' "Rakoczy March" from "The Damnation of Faust," and a portion of Dmitri Kabalevsky's "The Comedians" suite for ballet.

Tickets for the concert will be on sale all day Monday at the auditorium box office and up to performance time Monday night.

U.S. Grand Jury Indicts Texas International, Braniff

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—lines. It charges Braniff and Braniff Airways Inc. and Texas Texas International conspired to monopolize airline business up to $100,000 fines each if convicted on charges they conspired with other airlines to stop Southwest Airlines from flying in Texas. They "exchanged and acted upon information regarding schedules, fares and other matters in order to disadvantage and injure Southwest," the indictment naming the two airlines. It said also that Braniff and Texas International tried to delay Southwest, an intrastate commuter airline, from becoming operational and to increase the cost of Southwest's entry into the Texas market. Grand jurors said also in the indictment that the two airlines "jointly undertook a boycott of Southwest by measures designed to prevent passengers from canceled Braniff and Texas International flights among the major Texas cities from traveling on Southwest flights." A Braniff spokesman in Dallas said the indictments are unfair and unwarranted. "The Federal Aviation Act and the decisions of the United States Supreme Court make it extremely clear that there have been no violations of antitrust laws," said the spokesman. "The Justice Department prosecution does not square with testimony recently presented to Congress by its anti-trust provision acknowledging that under existing law the Civil Aeronautics Board was the proper forum for regulating competition among air carriers." Franco Lorenzo, Texas International president, said, "We categorically deny that any continuing conspiracy has gone on since August of 1972 when we took control of this carrier." Lorenzo said also, "We are confident the allegations against Texas International are untrue and unfounded." Texas International spokesman Jim O'Donnell said "regardless of who was here or in control." U.S. Attorney's office spokesmen said both counts charge that the conspiracy began before May 1971 and continued until at least 1973. The office said each defendant on conviction could be fined up to $50,000 on each count.

Couples Serve As Foster Parents To 94 Children Needing Homes

Copley News Service

JOLIET, Ill. — It's surprising she hasn't lost count.

She's kissed, cuddled and disciplined 71 children over the last 25 years. Mrs. Edward Barrett and her husband are foster parents licensed by Children and Family Services to be temporary guardians for adolescents the courts have deemed abused, neglected or in need of a home.

It isn't the easiest task in the world. Mrs. Barrett admits it's an around-the-clock job with minimal pay and occasional headaches.

The Gerald Links know exactly what Mrs. Barrett means. They, too, are foster parents who have opened their home to 23 children over the last years.

The Links specifically request abused children, and sometimes drive to the police station to pick up babies battered black and blue by their parents.

Without families like the Barretts and the Links, those 94 children might have been placed in a public institution or detention home.

Children and Family Services is looking for more foster parents willing to take adolescents into their homes so that a stay in one of those institutions won't be necessary.

The children range from age 12 to 18, are both black and white, female and male, normal and problematic. The courts have given the state agency the right to place them in foster homes.

Also Mrs. Lala Butler, adult membership; Joe King, camp director; John Forsyth, finance; Mrs. Joe King, organization; Mrs. Vern Dwyer, program; Mrs. Jim Reid, public relations; Mrs. John Smith, training; Glynn Burch, Mrs. Wayne Westerman and George Thompson, member-at-large, and Mrs. Bob Gaston, president of the Leaders' Association.

First Measure
Before washing a knit garment or any other that might shrink, measure it, so you can stretch it to the right size to lay the garment on Epley, Mrs. Verne Griffith and cardboard or light plywood and draw its outline. Reshape the garment over this and it will dry to correct measurements.

Mr. And Mrs. Keith Janeway To Reside At San Marcos

Keith Swan Janeway and his bride, the former Deborah Kay Gildon, will reside at San Marcos, following their marriage at 2 p.m. Saturday in the chapel of the First Baptist Church.

The Rev. James Janeway of Temple, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated for the double ring ceremony. Mrs. James Janeway, aunt of the bridegroom, was the organist, and Jim Janeway, cousin of the bridegroom, was the soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Gildon, 1011 Stanolind St. She is a May candidate for a master of science degree in speech pathology from Southwest Texas State University. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, educational-honorary society, and Sigma Alpha Eta, special education association.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Janeway of Temple are parents of the bridegroom, who is a senior student at STSU majoring in industrial arts. He is a member of the Industrial Arts Club.

Traditional Gown
Mr. Gildon presented his daughter in marriage. She wore a traditional gown of silk organza and French imported Chantilly lace and crystal pleating. Ruffled crystal pleating filled the stand-up neckline outlined with pearls, created the cuffs of the full bishop sleeves and outlined the deep oval lace yoke. The A-line skirt fell into a bouffant fullness, sweeping to the back into a graceful chapel-length train. Satin ribbon traced the Empire waistline and formed a bow with long streamers. Wide crystal pleating enhanced the deep hemline flounce, and circled up into a double circular flounce around the train. Her French illusion veil was fingertip length and held by a matching caplet.

The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, red carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. Bob Kitchens of Canyon was matron of honor. Serving as junior bridesmaid was Dana Gildon, sister of the bride. Best man was Dayne Huckabey of Austin. Ushers were Hugh Marshall of Temple and Jim Janeway of Belton.

Red Crepe Gowns
The bride's attendants wore identical floor-length gowns of dark red crepe featuring lace insets in the fitted bodices. The fitted sleeves and high collars were trimmed with matching lace. They carried bouquets of red and white carnations and baby's breath.

A reception was held in the church parlor. Members of the house party included Mrs. J. C. Stanley Jr., aunt of the bride, Kim Gildon, cousin of the bride.

Attendants to the queen and their escorts were Nancy Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hill, and Bruce Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith; Michele Hickey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hickey, and Mike Gaddy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gaddy; Pam Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, and Bobby Chinn, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Chinn; Brenda Matejek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. The set was designed by Larry Gilbert, MHS art teacher, Tim Blonkvist, a senior art student, and the MHS art classes, who also painted the set.

Blonkvist, student council president, served as master of ceremonies. Christopher Dean, son of Dr. and Mrs. Thurston Dean, served as crownbearer. Peter Scherer and Bill Rhotenberry were heralds.

Bulldog Band

The Midland High School Bulldog Band, under the direction of Clyde Wilson, provided Dixieland music during the festivities. Other entertainment included Susie Newberry, who sang "That Old Black Magic;" Terrill Littlejohn, who sang "The Birth of the Blues," and Kathy Giebel who sang "Summer-

Well, That's ONE Way To Get Rid Of Leftovers

DEAR ABBY: Is it too late to leave a husband after 36 years of marriage? Through the years, I have put up with plenty of abuse, both verbal and physical, but I always forgave him.

Last night was the last straw. At supper, my husband had taken second helpings of everything on the table. We were just about finished when I noticed a little more stew in the bowl, so I put it on his plate. He flew into a rage, saying he wasn't a garbage can. Then he picked up his plate and shoved it into my face, all over my glasses and in my hair. This happened last night and I am still so infuriated I can hardly control myself.

DEAR HAD IT: What I would do and what you should do are probably two different things. If you have put up with his abuse for 36 years, you either must have liked it, or felt that you had no choice. Now, you should ask yourself the question, "Would I be better off without him — or with him?" There's your answer.

DEAR ABBY: I'm the mother of a 15-year-old daughter and a 14-year-old son. They're good kids as far as behavior goes, but they are a pair of lazy slobbers when it comes to keeping their rooms picked up. I have pleaded with them, yelled at them, and threatened them with the worst kind of punishment, but nothing works. We live in a lovely new home, and each has a beautiful room, but you would never know it. Abby, I am not a fanatic, nor am I unreasonable. I just want them to hang up their clothes and keep their rooms presentable. I don't even ask them to make their own beds.

When guests come over and want to see the house, I have to keep these two rooms closed because I'm ashamed of the way they look most of the time. Can you help me?

DEAR GIVING: You are everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl whose best features are my legs. Believe me, I don't have much else, but I've been told I could make a fortune modeling hosiery. Naturally I show them off every chance I get. Here is one girl you will never catch in pants. I always wear him, but if you were in my place, what would you have done? Or better yet, what would YOU do now?

DEAR GOOD: The "styles" today are so flexible that anything goes. Go ahead and wear hot pants. And if they catch fire, you can put them out with your pantyhose. (Get it? Pantyhose!)

Easier Ironing

To make the ironing of slacks or pants of any kind easier, iron the pockets and heavy facing first. Then pull the top over the end of the board as you would a skirt. Legs are ironed double last of all. Match the side seams of each leg evenly and you will have nice straight front and back creases.

Mrs. Daniel Eugene Cupp

Miss Lancaster, Cupp Wed In Church Ceremony

Brenda Kay Lancaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lancaster, 506 1/2 S. G. St., and Daniel Eugene Cupp, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Carter of Lexington, N.C., were married at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the First Apostolic Church here.

Elder Lowell Cessna officiated for the ceremony performed amidst two candelabra flanked with arrangements of artificial flowers. The pastor presented the couple with a family Bible. Mrs. Lowell Cessna was the organist, Brenda Harkins, soloist, and Danny Cessna, saxophonist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length gown of silk mist and Chantilly lace. The fitted bodice featured a high neckline and a lace yoke and long, fitted lace sleeves. Her demi-bell silhouette of lace swept into a chapel-length train in the back. The bride carried a crescent bouquet of blue and white carnations.

Bridal attendants were attired identically in light blue knit dresses, fashioned with puffed sleeves, high neckline and lace trimmed sleeves and midriff. They carried nosegays of white pompons and blue carnations.

A reception was held in the parlor of the church. Mrs. Janice Lamb and Mrs. Wanda Allison were in the house party. Following a wedding trip to Lexington, the couple will reside at 506 1/2 S. G. St. The bride is employed with Levi-Strauss and Cupp with National Building Center.

Fashion Showing Set Thursday

A showing of fashions by Alfred Flandaca of Boston, Mass., will be presented for the Ladies' Association of Midland Country Club Thursday in the clubhouse.

There will be a social period at 11:30 a.m., followed with the luncheon and show at 12 noon.

Two of his designs, a gabardine admiral jacket and long pleated chiffon dress with ribbon collar and cuffs and a "mouseline de soie" dress with bias ruffles and high waistline, are pictured.

Flandaca comes from three generations of artists on both sides of his family; a grandfather who did inlaid wood design in Italy to a great-great aunt who maintained a high fashion salon in New York.

Flandaca attended the Museum School of Art under an art scholarship and studied design at Traphagen.

Plastics Can Add New Dimensions

By ADELE FAULKNER
Copley News Service

That old cliché, "all that glitters is not gold," could be turned around to say, "all that's plastic is not cheap."

Plastics are providing an exciting array of new shapes and forms for home furnishings. Many enthusiasts of the modern look are leaning toward the clean lines offered in the new Italian imported furniture.

The curved shapes of these furnishings are made to fit the contour of the body by molding plastic to form the frame. The plastic is then covered with comfortable padding and upholstery.

Popular Item

Another popular item is the plastic lounge chair made of urethane foam covered with a stretch fabric either in a print or rich solid.

Molded plastic chairs in bright colors can provide an interesting accent for a room while offering a good investment for families with small children who are rough on fine upholstery.

Plastic parsons tables are another popular item with today's moderns. In fact, they are so versatile they can fit almost any decor. The high gloss of the plastic looks like a lacquered finish and can provide great formality even in a traditional room.

Balance Room

Acrylics are light in scale and can balance out the heavier items in your room decor. Remember, every room must have "balance" achieved through a combination of textures, weight (scale) and color.

Brackets, tables and shelves made of acrylics tend to make a room appear larger. Acrylic tables placed on top of an Oriental rug provide a "see-through" effect, allowing you to enjoy the beauty of the rug below.

Another acrylic item I enjoy using is a sculpture stand. It can blend with many types of room decor and comes in varied heights from 22 inches to five feet. If you don't have sculpture you wish to display, you might consider placing a plant atop one of these acrylic stands in the corner of the room. Some of these stands are also lighted within.

If you have a collection of shells, stamps, dolls, rocks, butterflies (you name it), don't hide it in a closet or clutter the tops of your tables. Instead, display it in the back of the box or shelves hung on the wall.

Show Off Collection

This treatment not only tends to dramatize the collection, but protects it. The objects are further enhanced by placing a mirror in the back of the box to reflect them.

The new acrylic "instant" picture frames also offer an effective yet inexpensive way to display posters and other pop art. They are easy to change without any mounts, materials or special handling should you get tired of one poster and wish to replace it with another.

To take care of your plastic furnishings, there are plastic cleaners in your hardware store which help keep them shiny and bright.

So much is said about the plastic world in which we live, yet who knows, you may have fun immersing yourself in a world of plastics that can add to your enjoyment of life.

Looking Pretty Prevents Women From Comedy Field

By MARY CAMPBELL, AP Newsfeatures Writer
 NEW YORK — There are more comedians than comedienne and singer Millie Jackson, who'd like to be a comedienne, thinks it's because most women who have an urge to go on stage want to be beautiful and glamorous.
 "If you talk down somebody else, the audience will think you're ego tripping. And you can't very well down yourself if you're standing there looking like a million bucks."
 Women try to look their best. That's probably why they don't go into comedy. Look at the ones who do. Totie Fields is fat. Martha Raye has a big mouth. Phyllis Diller is funny looking. Joan Rivers is nice looking but she talks about her past when she was fat. Carol Burnett is about the nicest looking comedienne. She has a very good voice, too.
 Miss Jackson is pleased that when she started performing, some people called her "Carol," telling her she reminded them of Carol Burnett.
 "I had two front buck teeth then. I looked like a nice little rabbit. My comedy career wasn't doing too well, though, so I had a dentist file them off." Miss Jackson says with a laugh that maybe now, if she becomes a comedienne, she'll have to get him to give her caps to give her "rabbit teeth" again.
 Miss Jackson, now 30, is divorced, with daughters 8 and 10, and has just bought a house in New Jersey. She signed with Spring Records in 1972, having previously made only one single, in 1969, for MGM. It was "A Little Bit of Something." She laughs at its lack of sales. "That's just what it did — a little bit. But I keep thinking someday I'm going to turn on the radio and hear the song I did on the other side of it. "My Heart Took a Licking but It Kept on Ticking."

WEDDING DATE SET — Mr. and Mrs. Haskell Whiteside, 2305 N. Main St., announce the engagement of their daughter, Diana, to Samuel K. Williby, son of Mrs. Ona Bell Hill of Galveston. The wedding is planned for 7:30 p.m. April 26 in Greater St. Luke AME Church. The bride-elect is a graduate of Odessa College, where she received an associate degree in nursing. She is a registered nurse employed with the Travis County Sheriff's Department at Austin. Her fiancé is a graduate of Commonwealth College with a B.S. degree. He is a funeral director and mortician employed by Smith's Memorial Chapel, Denison.

Ohio Couple Wed For 70 Years
 PORT CLINTON, Ohio (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Thomas Pyle celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary recently. The 92-year-old man and 84-year-old woman were married a day that I haven't loved Mrs. Pyle said that she didn't think she and her husband had any particular formula for being happily married for 70 years. "I suppose the single most important thing is that we've always loved each other, trying to make it more meaningful every day. There's never been a day that I haven't loved Edgar," Mrs. Pyle said. The couple has five children, 13 grandchildren and 9 great-grandchildren.

Watch, Bracelet Go With Throw-Away Moccasins

MERCER ISLAND, Wash. (AP) — Wherever they are, Mrs. H. J. Bostrom's throw-away moccasins are worth several hundred dollars. They contain Mrs. Bostrom's $500 diamond studded wristwatch and a pearl bracelet.
 Several weeks ago, Mrs. Bostrom dropped the moccasins along with a box of unwanted clothing into a Salvation Army collection box, not realizing she had placed the wristwatch and the bracelet there for safekeeping.
 "I was getting ready for a gourmet dinner," she said. "The watch wasn't in my jewelry box. Then I remembered the moccasins."

Brooks, Cuevas Murder Trials Set Monday At Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Two major criminal trials are scheduled to begin Monday in the Harris County Courthouse. David O. Brooks, 19, one of two youths charged in the 1973 mass murders case in which the bodies of 27 youths were recovered, is to go on trial on one of four murder counts. Ignacio Cuevas, 42, the lone survivor among three inmates involved in the Aug. 3 Huntsville prison shootout that left four persons dead, faces one murder count. Brooks was ruled last November to be mentally competent to stand trial before State District Court Judge William Hatten. The Brooks case is the only one on Hatten's docket next week and Hatten docketed next week and Hatten Julia Standley, a prison librarian and one of two hostages killed in the shootout that ended an 11-day prison escape attempt. The trial was sent here on a change of venue from Huntsville. Love has other matters on his Monday docket. Defense attorneys Will Gray and Hector Azias also have eight motions awaiting rulings by Love. Most of the defense motions are rather routine but one asks that Love order that the body of Mrs. Elizabeth Beseda, a three-inmate involved in the prison teacher and the second hostage to be killed in the shootout, be exhumed for an autopsy. In the motion filed Jan. 20, Gray argued that a post-mortem examination might indicate Mrs. Beseda was killed by a Rayburn. Elmer Wayne Henley, 18, the second defendant in the mass murders case, also was indicted in Lawrence's death. Henley was convicted on this and five other counts of murder during a change of venue trial in San Antonio last summer and received six 99-year prison terms totaling 594 years. Gray was Henley's chief defense counsel in San Antonio but is not involved.

State Court Judge Enjoins Promoters Of 'Wonder Car'

DALLAS (AP) — A state district court judge has enjoined the 20th Century Motor Car Corp., which promoted a new wonder car, from engaging in alleged deceptive trade practices.

The ruling by Judge Dee Brown Walker came Friday after the expiration of a temporary restraining order issued 10 days ago when he ordered the company placed in receivership.

The firm had come to Texas promoting the Revette, a two-cylinder vehicle which it claimed would give 70 miles to the gallon. It was to start production this summer in an assembly plant in Dallas.

After heavy publicity and promotion, however, the specialized crime unit of the Dallas district attorney's office filed a complaint alleging the company was selling stock and distributorships in violation of state law.

Warrants were issued for 10 persons and only the company's president, Mrs. Elizabeth Carmichael, remains at large.

The company came to Texas from California where it was stopped from selling stock in the firm to the public.

Humorist P. G. Wodehouse, 93, Dies Quietly While Working On 97th Book

REMSENBERG, N.Y. (AP) — Humorist P. G. Wodehouse, smilingly at work on what would have been his 97th book, said "cheerio" to his wife of 62 years and then died at nearby Southampton Hospital after she went home.

He had entered the hospital Tuesday for treatment of an irritating skin rash. He was 93.

His sister-in-law, Nella Wodehouse, said that otherwise all had appeared well with the man who practically invented the butler when he created Jeeves.

For years they led a hectic Park Avenue life, but retired here some 20 years ago and, while enjoying the quiet, complained:

"No one ever comes to see us any more — except when we're news."

The quiet continued to the end for Wodehouse.

"I'd like to go in my sleep," Nella Wodehouse quoted her brother-in-law as saying. She added:

"And he did. There was no pain. He went quietly at eight o'clock."

Gene Brownrigg, director of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of Texas, will be in the Tall City Tuesday to speak at a luncheon sponsored by the Midland Bicentennial Commission.

Mrs. Brownrigg, speaking at noon in the Midland Country Club, will speak on activities planned by committees and organizations throughout the state and nation for the Bicentennial celebration.

According to Joe Dominey, chairman of the Midland committee, she will be available to answer questions and for consultation after the meeting.

Mrs. Brownrigg has been meeting with Bicentennial Commissions and groups in Texas and attended regional meetings in France, rescue craft refused to take their dogs across the channel to England so the Wodehouses stayed with their pets.

Kermil Man Wins Car Crash Suit, Awarded $25,263

CRANE — Raymond E. Chesnut of Kermil has been awarded $25,263 in a suit stemming from an April 11, 1974, two-vehicle crash in which Chesnut was injured and three of his fellow workers en route to drilling jobs were killed.

The 109th District Court jury also awarded $63-weekly death benefits to each of the surviving widows and their children.

Chesnut's co-workers killed in the crash were Manuel Ramos, Jesse Escarrega and William W. Branum, all of Odessa. They were employees of the John Drilling Co. when the accident occurred five miles south of Crane.

Also killed was the driver of the other vehicle in the crash, Robert D. Innon of Crane.

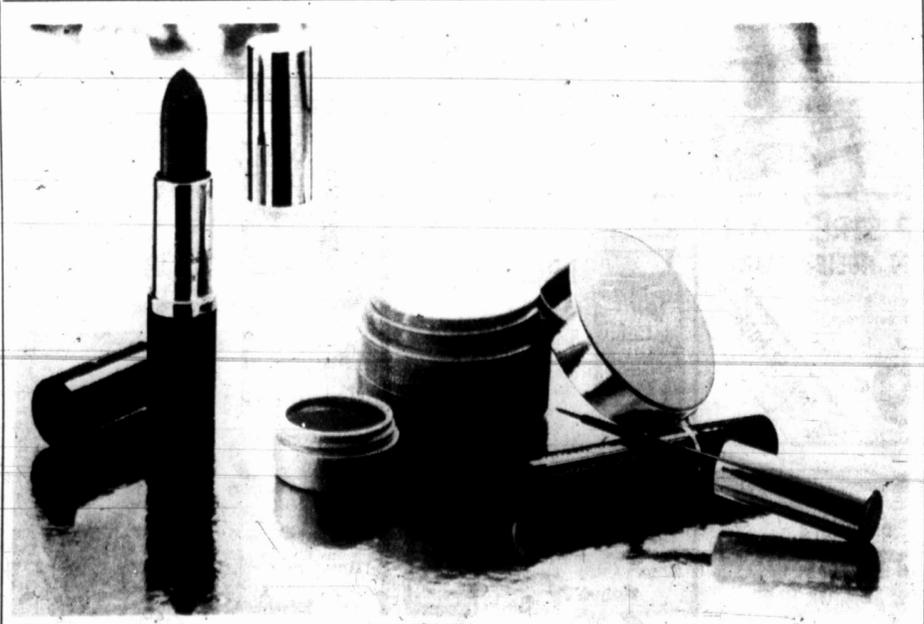

The suit was brought against Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., represented by Midland attorney John Gunter.

Representing the plaintiffs were Richard Abalos and Bob Hoblit, both of Odessa, and Robert Scoggins of Kermil.

Acts Of Congress May Discourage Production Hikes

By CLYDE LA MOTTE

Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON — It is no doubt unintentional, but it appears that the United States and Canada are in a contest to determine which one can discourage — not encourage — increased oil production within their boundaries.

The Canadians may be slightly ahead at this point because their government's policy regarding oil taxes and price ceilings have succeeded in driving many drilling rigs out of Canada and into the United States.

However, the new Congress seems bent on passing legislation which could very well cause the drilling companies to move their rigs northward once again.

For example, the current prospects are that Congress is going to repeal the percentage depletion provision.

It also seems quite likely that Congress will not permit the Ford Administration to remove the existing price ceiling on "old" crude oil production. Furthermore, the odds continue to be against congressional action to deregulate the wellhead price of natural gas.

As if that isn't enough to discourage an acceleration of the hunt for oil and gas within the U.S., Congress is moving toward a "windfall profits" tax that would have the net effect of reducing the amount of money producers would have for exploration and drilling ventures.

Unless there is a change in mood on Capitol Hill, the emphasis is going to be on holding down oil industry prices and profits in the name of protecting the American consumer.

The second likely step in such an approach would be to restrict energy consumption. This would lead to allocation of supplies or to outright rationing.

The argument used by advocates of this course of action is that there would be no increase in domestic supply in the immediate future even if prices of oil and gas were permitted to rise. The only increase would be in the fuel bills the consumer pays.

At this point it seems that a majority of the members of Congress feel that current prices should be enough of an incentive. If not, then the government itself perhaps should step into the picture with a government oil corporation that would do the drilling in offshore areas and on onshore public lands.

Bills have already been introduced into the picture with a government oil corporation that would do the drilling in offshore areas and on onshore public lands. Tom Craddick

Craddick Speaks Here Friday

The Natural Gas Men of the Permian Basin will hold its monthly meeting at noon Friday in the Midland Country Club.

State Rep. Tom Craddick will be the speaker. His topic will be "Energy Report from President Ford and Texas Energy Resource Committee."

Craddick has been a state representative since 1968, and currently is serving as chairman of the Committee on Natural Resources.

Skelly Completes Aransas Discovery

TULSA — Skelly Oil Co. has completed a lower Frigo gas-condensate discovery in Aransas County, Tex. The company's No. 1 Olivia Schmitz tested at a calculated absolute open flow permitted to rise. The only increase would be in the fuel bills the consumer pays.

During production tests, it flowed gas at the rate of 4.181 million cubic feet per day, plus 385 barrels of 53.3-gravity condensate through a 26-64-inch choke and perforations at 12,251-12,296 feet.

Skelly has a 100 per cent interest in the well and owns approximately 1,500 net acres in the area. Development drilling will commence in the near future.

West Slates Workover In Runnels

W. W. West of Midland will re-enter and clean out to 3,810 feet, the original total depth, at No. 1 A. N. Hoffman, Runnels County wildcat failure, eight miles northeast of Ballinger.

Originally drilled by Wayne Petroleum Co., it was plugged and abandoned Oct. 4, 1960, after it recovered slightly oil-cut mud on a drillstem test at 2,207-2,212 feet. Subsequent drillstem tests recovered mud and salty mud.

Scurry Oil Pool Gets Producer

Dalton H. Cobb and John W. Runwe, Midland, completed No.

3 Thomas as a sixth producer in the Tri-Rue (roof) field of Scurry County, four miles northeast of Ira.

It pumped 141 barrels of 39-gravity oil on 24-hour potential test, with gas-oil ratio measuring 629-1. Production was through perforations at 6,906-6,911 feet, which had been acidized with 500 gallons.

Location is 1,300 feet from north and 2,300 feet from east lines of section 151, block 97, H&TC survey.

Application to drill was filed as a wildcat.

Pecos Oil Pool Gets Third Well

R. J. Reischmann, Midland, No. 5 Campbell, re-entered former Ellenburger discovery, has been recompleted as a third Queen producer and 3/4-mile southeast extension to that pay in the Pecos Valley-Young field of Pecos County.

It pumped nine barrels of oil, gravity unreported, and 1 1/4 barrels of water, on 24-hour potential test, through perforations (Continued On Page 3D)

Oil Firm Executive Says Arab Billions Could Help Supply Needed U.S. Capital

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Howard W. Blauvelt, board chairman of Continental Oil Co., says resistance to Arab investments in the United States is understandable but misguided.

"There already are thousands of businesses in the United States owned or controlled by foreigners, with an estimated book value of more than $40 billion," Blauvelt says.

"On the other hand, the book value of American investment overseas is now more than $100 billion."

Blauvelt said the availability in the years ahead of petrodollars from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries can have a positive and beneficial side effect for the western industrialized nations.

"At this stage of their development the OPEC countries are 'savers,' while consuming countries have more worthwhile projects to undertake than they have available funds," he said.

"For example, some economists have projected a shortfall of $650 billion investment capital in the United States alone over the next 10 years, a gap which OPEC investments in this country can in small part help close."

Blauvelt noted that Sen. Harrison Williams Jr., D-N.J., has introduced a bill under which the President could declare that a foreign investment of more than five per cent in any business was not in the national interest.

"Unwise in Defense — Certainly there are defense and defense related industries where substantial control by foreigners would not be wise," he said.

"But if other countries were to impose and enforce a five per cent limitation on American investment, there are many U.S. companies that would be forced to curtail sharply their present foreign operations."

Blauvelt said it is important to keep foreign investment in proper perspective.

"Recent estimates indicate that by 1990, the OPEC countries will have only sufficient funds to buy five per cent of the stocks and bonds of the industrialized consuming nations," he said.

"This is a large amount but not unmanageable if properly dispersed and supervised."

Blauvelt said a year of experience with higher oil prices has suggested a few things that are contrary to most pessimistic projections.

"There have been economic dislocations, and both inflation and recession have been aggravated," he said.

"But the monetary system has not collapsed, and the world has not been bankrupted."

Blauvelt said it is becoming apparent the market system does have the capacity to adjust and respond, however imperfectly, if it is given the opportunity.

"Imports Already Declining — The situation is not as bad as it was generally thought to be six months ago, or as some representatives of 56 SPE chapters, throughout the United States have been invited to the ball, and many are expected to attend.

A special guest will be Dave Riehl of Dallas, executive director of the national organization.

UT Professor Says America Pays $3 Million Hourly For Imported Oil

AUSTIN — "Right now the United States is paying $3 million every hour for imported oil," says Dr. Samuel P. Ellison, "and we as a nation can't afford that for very long."

Ellison is the Alexander Deussen Professor in Energy Resources in the University of Texas geological sciences department here.

He is one of 11 UT faculty members delivering lectures in a course titled "Energy and Society," which is being co-sponsored in the spring semester by the department of geography and the Center for Energy Studies.

Lecturers in the course discuss the energy crisis from the viewpoints of sociology, politics, history, geography, law, technology and science.

"We will run out of oil," said Ellison. "There simply is no doubt about it. All the oil produced to date in the world wouldn't fill Lake Mead in Nevada, so you can see that what we are dealing with is definitely a finite resource."

There are three types of resources, according to Ellison. Some are renewable and replenishable, some are non-renewable and some are finite. "We will run out of oil," said Ellison. "There simply is no doubt about it. All the oil produced to date in the world wouldn't fill Lake Mead in Nevada, so you can see that what we are dealing with is definitely a finite resource."

FPC Will Probe Natural Gas Firm

HOUSTON — Coastal States Gas Corp. said Friday the Federal Power Commission has ordered a field investigation of the company's subsidiary, South Texas Natural Gas Gathering Co., and its affiliates to determine whether their activities fall within the scope of the FPC's jurisdiction and ascertaining their compliance with the Natural Gas Act.

South Texas is subject to FPC regulation and is currently selling approximately 140 million cubic feet of gas daily to two interstate pipelines.

Affiliates of South Texas include Coastal States Gas Corp. and all its subsidiaries engaged in the gas business, including both interstate and intrastate activities. These include Coastal States Gas Producing Co., and its Texas intrastate gas subsidiary, Lo-Vaca Gathering Co.

Dislocations, Not Collapse — Blauvelt said a year of experience with higher oil prices has suggested a few things that are contrary to most pessimistic projections.

"There have been economic dislocations, and both inflation and recession have been aggravated," he said.

Annual Honors Day Program Scheduled

The Permian Basin Section of Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME, will participate with other area SPE sections in the annual honors day program to be presented March 1 at Texas Tech.

The program is presented annually to present qualified junior college and high school students with career opportunities in the petroleum industry.

During the morning session, engineers associated with the petroleum industry will discuss the role of the petroleum engineer and current technological procedures.

The afternoon session will consist of a discussion of scholarship availability, university enrollment and opportunities for summer employment. The program will be presented by faculty of the Tech petroleum engineering department.

What has triggered the urgency for more refineries, aside from their role in Project Independence? Industry officials like Wright claim the demand is growing and will continue to do so because of:

— The mounting shortage of natural gas.

— Delays in the start-up of new nuclear power plant construction.

— Environmental restrictions on the use of coal.

These factors, they say, have contributed to making oil the "swing" fuel — the one called on to balance the nation's energy requirements — and hence have placed an unprecedented strain on domestic refining capacity.

Even before Ford's State of the Union message, industry had blueprinted an additional $12 billion worth of new or expanded refinery capacity — provided it got some answers about future crude oil supplies and prices.

Not until the summer of 1972 were there indications that a rapid growth in demand had caught up with and passed total U. S. refining capacity.

While the industry responded in 1973 with an increase in rated capacity of 800,000 barrels a day (more than 6 per cent), by countless small expansions, industry experts concede more capacity will be needed in the years ahead. Not all experts agree that Ford's proposed 30 new refineries is the answer, but it's a starting point.

Drilling Activities Show Drop In Basin

Two hundred fifty-nine rigs were reported in the two-state area of the Permian Basin Empire in the Friday survey conducted by Reed Drilling Equipment.

Can U.S. Build Oil Refineries It Needs?

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

President Ford's State of the Union call for the construction of at least 30 new U. S. oil refineries by 1985 has posed a multibillion-dollar set of questions for the domestic petroleum industry:

— Where would the new refineries acquire the additional crude oil supplies? Can they count on a continuing oil flow from the Arab and other oil-producing nations for the next decade or more?

— Will the government provide enough incentives to persuade industry to drill "many thousands of new oil wells" in the next 10 years, as urged by Ford?

— What prices will refineries have to pay for imported and domestic crude oil supplies down the road a few years?

— Should industry build refineries to process "sweet or "sour" foreign crudes? (Refineries built for sweet crudes have only a limited capacity to process sour oil. Sweet crude has a low sulfur content and sour varieties have a high sulfur content, making them highly corrosive.)

And there are other unanswered questions, industry officials point out, such as the availability of investment capital, of steel and other materials to build new refineries.

Petroleum firms are exploring these questions and reaching "no" answers. Some refinery expansion projects and plans for an entirely new plant have been scrapped.

Experts fear several other projects, especially speculative ones, never will get off the ground in the face of overwhelming problems, unless the administration somehow can find ways to help industry more

More than 100 U. S. firms refine petroleum at nearly 250 plants in 38 states, turning out products such as:

The gasoline that helps four of five workers to commute to and from their jobs by auto; fuels and lubricants for every other major form of transportation and for thousands of factories; the heating oils that warm nearly half of America's homes and other buildings; asphalt for roofs and highways and bases for scores of other items ranging from synthetic rubber to synthetic fibers, from cosmetics to plastics.

The outcry for more refineries doesn't mean industry has been standing still. In 1946 the nation's refining capacity was scarcely five million barrels a day. Now it is more than 14.2 million barrels.

Southland To Sell Gas To Intratex

FORT WORTH — Southland Royalty Co. has announced its agreement to sell to Intratex Gas Co. for resale within Texas — all natural gas to be produced from Southland's interests in the Waddell Ranch properties in Crease County, commencing at the expiration of the 50-year term W. N. Waddell, et al., oil and gas leases July 14.

A gas purchase contract between Southland and Intratex, dated Feb. 7, 1975, will be effective for 20 years, but is subject to renegotiation at Southland's at the end of the 10th year.

The base price to be paid by Intratex to Southland is $1.90 per million BTU, plus fixed increases of 2.5 cents per million BTU on Jan. 1, 1976, and each six months thereafter. Southland has the right to cause the price to be redetermined as of July 14, 1975, as of Jan. 1, 1976, and at the end of each six months thereafter.

Southland has reserved sufficient gas for various types of operations by it in the vicinity of the Waddell Ranch, and, subject to maintaining certain specifications of the gas to be produced, also reserved the right to extract and keep liquefiable hydrocarbons.

The value of the contract to Southland is dependent upon various contingencies. Upon expiration of the Waddell leases, Southland is free to sell all of its gas to any pipeline. El Paso Natural Gas Co., purchaser of some of the Waddell gas, has petitioned the Federal Power Commission, questioning whether Southland and the other mineral owners in the lease are entitled to sell gas to another pipeline after the lease expires.

Southland is trying to make suitable provisions for processing the gas to be sold to Intratex, negotiations for which have not yet been concluded.

Southland estimates approximately 13 billion cubic feet of gas will be produced from its interests in the Waddell Ranch properties during the twelve months beginning July 14.

The existing royalty provisions of the Waddell leases restrict Southland's revenues from both gas-well gas and casinghead gas, which combined contributed approximately $80,000 in 1974.

Getty Announces Lavaca Discovery

HOUSTON — A hydrocarbon discovery in Lavaca County has been announced by Getty Oil Co. The H. Renger No. 1 exploratory well, located three miles northwest of Hallettsville, is being completed in the lower Wilcox formation.

On a production test through perforations between 9,118 and 9,124 feet, the well flowed at the rate of 1.8 million cubic feet per day of gas, and 64 barrels per day of 59-degree gravity condensate through a 7-3/4 choke.

The exploratory test was drilled to a total depth of 9,820 feet. Getty Oil has a 100 per cent working interest in the discovery and holds 4,033 net acres under lease in the area.

PBGC To Offer Review Course For Engineers

Oil Firm—

Blauvelt said consuming nations already are reducing the volume of oil they import from OPEC and balancing the accounts for the reduced but still large oil purchases may not prove to be as grave a problem as initially thought.

He said the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York recently estimated the trade imbalance between oil importers and oil exporters, which reached $62 billion in 1974, may begin to decline significantly after 1976. The bank study indicates, he said, that OPEC imports of goods and services may actually surpass the value of their oil exports in 1979.

Reasonably Conservative Blauvelt said the OPEC countries, thus far, have shown themselves to be reasonably conservative and responsible money manager and that they will have additional incentive for a positive attitude as their investments in consuming nations increase.

"If you own shares in a company, you want to see it succeed," he said.

"The OPEC money managers should have the same attitude and as their investments increase, so too will the leverage that the consuming nations can exert for cooperative policies."

Oil Tax Proposals Due Second Look, Zarb Says

HOUSTON — The Ford administration's decision to modify its views in favor of the independent oil producer has given encouragement to Texas independent oilmen.

Albany oilman, A. V. Jones Jr. said he had disappointed Ford's original energy recommendations because they "impacted more heavily upon the independent producer than on the major companies." He added that he is pleased White House spokesmen have said more study is in order.

Independent operators drilled 88 per cent of the wildcat wells in 1974, Jones said, "yet most of the President's tax package comes out of the independents."

He said 75 per cent of Ford's proposed wildcat profits would be levied from the independents who find most of the new oil and who produce marginal strip-per wells.

Jones said the major companies would not be hurt so badly as independents by Ford's program because most of their production is oil oil.

"I am gratified," Jones said, "to see these guys backing off and saying, 'maybe this doesn't look exactly right, maybe we need to take some testimony.'"

Federal Energy Administration (FEA) Director Frank Zarb told independent oil producers Monday at the Energy-Economic Conference in Houston that "if the current program is incorrect, and there seems to be some evidence that it is, then we ought to examine it in a new light and if a plowback provision in the wildcat profits tax is required, then do it."

Zarb emphasized that the administration wants to keep the depletion allowance as it is.

Professor—

(Continued From Page 1D) unusable, such as water and soil; others are exhaustible, but reusable, such as metals. The most critical to us now are the exhaustible and not reusable resources, such as coal, oil and gas.

The so-called fossil fuels accumulated in the earth over millions of years. In the period of just over 100 years that man has intensively exploited fossil fuels he is rapidly approaching their depletion.

"The world depends on fossil fuels for 94 per cent of its energy," he said, "and in the United States our dependency is even more complete."

There are many implications to the finiteness of the earth's resources, and one of the most perplexing is the fact that in exploiting the earth for the things he wants and needs, man degrades his environment and despoils vast amounts of land, Ellison said.

Man will need the earth's wealth and the energy it provides for as long as he exists, but many complex problems must be met and solved. Some solutions offered by Ellison are:

— We must control population to a proper level in relation to the available resources.

— There must be a concerted effort to find new resources of all types.

— Man must cease wasting his resources in wars which, ironically, often are caused by a scarcity of resources.

— Barriers against free international trade must be removed so that countries lacking critical resources can equitably trade what they have in abundance for what they lack.

— Everyone must become aware of the finiteness of the earth's resources.

— We must seek alternative resources and be ready to accommodate changes in our lives as our resources are depleted.

Washington Oil—

(Continued From Page 1D) introduced along this line. Meanwhile, President Ford and top officials of his administration are trying hard to sell the idea that unless there is economic incentive to develop this nation's resources, the nation will either become increasingly dependent on overseas supplies or will live with shortages for an indefinite period of time by means of allocation or rationing.

Aside from the price aspect, there continue to be hurdles in the path of increased domestic development.

This was demonstrated last week when officials of several eastern seaboard states protested vigorously the announcement by the Department of Interior that it was asking the industry to suggest possible areas along the Atlantic offshore area for possible leasing. As a result, Interior withdrew the proposal.

Similarly, there continues to be protests from environmentalists and others over any relaxation of environmental standards to permit greater development or use of domestic energy supplies.

The picture was further clouded last week by a report from the National Academy of Sciences which cast doubt about

Western Crude Oil Promotes Utsler

He joined the firm in 1971 and since January 1973 has been corporate secretary. Western Crude Oil maintains an office in Midland, Tex.

the nation's potential energy resources. Predictions that this nation will soon deplete its energy resources are not new. This has occurred from time to time for many years. Nevertheless, such a forecast at this time gives further weight to those who maintain that the only resource is to cut back consumption.

Somewhere during the week ahead there is likely to be some compromise between the Administration and Congress regarding what should be done next.

In the current political setting, the likelihood is that the administration will have to find considerable ground and, in the end, the result will be that if any incentives will be offered to domestic energy producers.

If it turns out that way, the drilling rigs may start heading back to Canada.

Forest Oil Sells Canada Reserves

DENVER, Colo. — Forest Oil Corp. has reported it has closed a sale to Sun Oil Co., Ltd., of all of its oil producing properties in Canada.

Forest previously had sold substantially all of its oil producing properties in the United States to Sun Oil Co. (Delaware). The proceeds from both sales, according to a Forest report, is $114 million.

Forest retained essentially all of its natural gas production, its offshore oil production and all of its nonproducing leases and interests, and reserved substantially all deep oil and gas rights underlying the reserves which were sold.

Coquina To Pay Stock Dividend

The board of directors of Coquina Oil Corp., Midland-based oil and gas exploration and producing firm, has declared a stock dividend of 10 per cent on its common stock.

The dividend is payable April 10 to stockholders of record March 7.

Holzinger To Talk At Dinner Meeting

The Petroleum Accountants Society of Midland will meet at 6 p.m. Wednesday in Ranchland Hill Country Club for a social hour, dinner and program.

Speaker will be R. J. Holzinger, Shell Oil Co. purchasing manager for standard materials and services. He will speak on the reasons for world-wide material shortages.

Hot Air Fills City's Skies As Midland's Balloon Bash Starts

Pajama-clad Midlanders gazed from their front lawns Saturday morning as the Tall City's overcast skies became polka-dotted with multi-colored hot-air balloons.

Thirty-nine propane-powered vessels drifted across the city in the first day of the colorful second annual Midland Balloon Bash.

Weather permitting, the spectacle will be repeated again today as some of the world's renowned balloonists compete in a "hare and hound" race.

The balloons lifted off early Saturday morning after the cloudy skies threatened for a while to cancel the aerial display.

High winds which pushed into the city about midday forced cancellation of the afternoon competition, and a continuation of the cold front along with some precipitation overnight was threatening activities for today.

According to Mike Choucalas of Balloon Promotions, Inc., the races will take place today if high winds and precipitation don't interfere.

Although many Midland residents likely set their alarms early in order to view Saturday morning's parade of balloons, it is likely many others were awakened to the event by barking and howling neighborhood dogs, unable to chase away the high-rise intruders, which at times, hung almost motionless in the sky.

Many of the brightly-colored air-filled crafts hovered close to the ground while others appeared to be pinpoints in the sky as they continually rose higher into the atmosphere.

Often they followed fickle paths across the sky as they seemed unable to follow any set direction in their aerial travels.

Choucalas said only four balloons failed to lift off Saturday: two because they were damp and potentially unsafe, one because it had a structural problem, and the fourth because the pilot stayed near the launching site to offer sky rides to the children.

At the close of today's activities, awards for the overall two-day competitions will be awarded, he said.

Among the well-known competitors are Clotilde Castanier of the French National Balloon championship team and Don Cameron, designer of the Cameron Balloons predominantly flown in Europe.

Also taking part in the flying and coordination of the balloon events are champion American balloon pilots Sid Cutter and Don Barz of Albuquerque, N.M.

Sanctioned by the Balloon Federation of America, the event is being held this year for the second time. Choucalas promoted the first one last year after seeing his first regatta while visiting near Albuquerque, N.M.

AESTHETIC AERONAUTS — Fashion's at home, even in the air, where these balloonists sport a collection of applied designs on their hot-air craft.

FIRE-BREATHING BALLOON? — The pilot of a propane-powered balloon fires the burners after lift-off in the Saturday morning race.

Arabs Are To Remove Several Firms From Their Blacklist

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Chemical Bank of New York and First National City Bank of Chicago are expected to be among several companies removed from the Arab blacklist next week, Mohamed Mahgoub, commissioner-general of the boycott office, said Saturday.

The action is to be taken Feb. 23 in Cairo at a meeting of boycott officers from 20 Arab states, who are to review applications by 54 companies wishing to be removed from the blacklist. Mahgoub said most of them have fulfilled the boycott office's demand to "freeze" their business in Israel.

"New companies will be added to the blacklist," he added.

He said in an interview the conference will take up the status of Sony, the Japanese electronics firm, and will "review the activities of certain American information companies, such as CBS and NBC, and banks."

Sony was given a six-month warning last year to set up an electronics plant in some Arab country similar to one it operates in Israel or be boycotted throughout the Arab world. Industry sources here said Sony has so far not built the plant. "The boycott is not based on racism or religion," said Mahgoub. "We only boycott whoever supports Israel militarily or economically, regardless of religion or nationality."

He stressed that the boycott had "never affected any bank because of the religion of its owners."

Three European banking houses with Jewish officers—Rothschild, Lazard Freres and Warburg—said in recent weeks that they were kept out of deals to raise $50 million in loans for Air France and a French utility firm because of the opposition of Arab banks.

Justice of the Peace James Harris ordered an autopsy in the death.

Police said Nelson was shot about 5:45 p.m. during an argument at his home at 506 Lindy St. A 47-year-old woman was being held.

Services were pending at Eastering Funeral Home.

Only Ninth Graders To Have Options On Schools To Attend

Only students currently in the ninth grade who are affected by recent boundary changes will have the option this fall to attend either Midland or Lee High School, according to minutes of the Tuesday board of trustees meeting.

It was incorrectly reported last week that all students from the seventh to eleventh grades, with the exception of eighth graders, would have the option to attend either school.

Youth Being Held In Burglary Here

A Midland youth was being held Saturday in a burglary about midnight Friday at Crockett Elementary School, 401 E. Parker St.

10 Midlanders Due At TSTA Meeting

Ten Midlanders will be among the 51 area delegates to attend the District XVIII, Texas State Teachers Association, caucus Tuesday evening in Odessa.

The caucus, scheduled to be held at Nimitz Junior High School, will be an orientation for the TSTA state convention March 20 and 21 in Houston, according to Romeo Canales, president of Midland County Teachers Association and a state delegate.

Other state delegates attending the caucus will be Supt. Dr. James H. Mailey, Gene Isaacs, Ray Painter, George Leonberger, Bob Watkins, Pearl Johnson, James Simmons and Martin Mogford.

Wilburn Buttery, District XVIII president-elect, will represent the district at the Tuesday session.

Studies Combined In Arts Program

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N.Y. (AP) — Through a special liberal arts program, students at Briarcliff College, a women's college here, are able to combine studies in the biological sciences with their courses in geography, in preparation for careers in ecology and the environmental sciences.

According to Dr. John Switek, associate professor of biology at Briarcliff, students in the program are already applying to graduate schools for further studies in ecology and will soon be interviewed by both government agencies and industry for internships and jobs in the field.

Smoke Damage Caused By Fire

A fire at 208-B Mitchell St. at 5:55 p.m. Friday caused heavy smoke damage throughout the apartment.

Midland fire department officials said the fire, which was out when firemen arrived, was caused by overheated food on a stove.

Midland High's Team Takes Sweepstakes In Tech Meet

Midland High School's speech team took sweepstakes with 196 points Saturday in the Texas Tech University Spring Forensic Tournament, with the Lee High team garnering third with 129 points.

Among the MHS students placing in the meet were Clay Guthrie, first in poetry interpretation; Wanda Holland, second in poetry interpretation; Martha Stump, third in informative speaking; and Julia Kinsey, first in persuasive speaking.

MHS finalists included Carla DeBose and David Smith in prose and Julie Jackson in dramatic interpretation. Celeste Smith qualified in original oratory for the Texas Forensic Association's state meet.

Students on the LHS squad who qualified for state were Elliot Gould in oratory and Gena Robinson and Jeff Sappya in persuasive speaking.

Gould took first place at the meet in oratory, with Miss Robinson and Sappya named finalists in persuasive speaking.

Among the finalists in cross-examination were the team of Kevin Clark and Kent Sutton, who took second, and Marilee Buttery and Jan Snell, fourth.

Semi-finalists were Dany Evatt, informative speaking; Robin Lawrence, oratory; Carla Ostren, poetry; Gayna Whitlow, prose; and Kathy Cox and Eddie Wornell, both in dramatic interpretation.

Washington (AP) — Members of the U.S. Senate engaged in a widespread pattern of using committee employes as personal aides despite a Senate rule to the contrary.

The magazine cited examples of alleged abuses by Sens. Hugh Scott, Edward M. Kennedy, Henry M. Jackson, Vance Hartke, Thomas Eagleton, James O. Eastland, Jacob K. Javits and others.

The magazine's executive editor, Walter Pincus, quoted a Senate rule that states "professional staff members shall not engage in any work other than committee business and no other duties may be assigned to them."

Pincus said he found these examples of Senate staff practices: —Roy M. Ogburn, a former $20,000-a-year employe of an obscure Senate subcommittee, spent most of his time in a home-state office of Sen. Scott, R-Pa., the GOP Senate leader.

The same $20,000-a-year subcommittee job is now being filled by a part-time law student, Edward K. Hamberger, who works in Scott's own Capitol Hill office and who is brother to Scott's administrative assistant.

Seven employes of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee headed by Sen. Kennedy, D-Mass., worked not at the subcommittee but in Kennedy's own office. For a time the subcommittee paid $32,500 a year to Kennedy's top political aide, Paul G. Kirk Jr.

Odessa — Fire consumed about 5,000 bales of hay and devastated the barn containing it late Saturday on the ranch of James R. "Buzz" Hurt.

Odessa firemen were called to the scene three miles east of Hwy. 385 on East Loop 388, about 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Doctor Found Guilty In Abortion Case

BOSTON (AP) — In a case with far-reaching implications in the debate over abortion, Dr. Kenneth C. Edelin was convicted Saturday of manslaughter in a legal abortion.

Edelin, 36, a Boston City Hospital obstetrician, was charged in the death of a 20-to-24-week old fetus he aborted at the hospital Oct. 3, 1973, at the request of a 17-year-old woman.

Appeal Planned "I did nothing which was illegal, immoral or bad medical practice," Edelin said after the verdict. "Everything I did was in accordance with law and with good medical practice."

Defense lawyer William P. Horns said he would appeal the case to the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court and, if necessary, to the U.S. Supreme Court.

A jury of nine men and three women returned the guilty verdict in Suffolk County Superior Court after deliberating seven hours. A juror later said seven votes were taken, with only one holdout through the last five votes, until a unanimous verdict was reached.

The debate over the conviction began almost immediately. In six weeks of technical and sometimes contradictory testimony, the trial drew national attention as it explored delicate legal and medical questions about when a human life begins and what responsibility a doctor owes to the unborn.

Fewer Abortions Seen Edelin said he was sure his conviction would discourage other doctors from performing abortions. He added that he did not know if he would return to medical practice.

Horns said he would appeal the case on the grounds that the verdict went against the weight of evidence; Edelin's conduct conformed with accepted medical practice; the doctor's conduct was protected by the 14th amendment of the U.S. Constitution and the Supreme Court ruling, and that Edelin was not given fair warning under the law that his conduct would be subject to a manslaughter indictment.
