Gulf Finals Terry Strike

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 46 Mallett Land & Cattle Co., Terry County unidentified discovery, four miles southwest of the Abo pay opener in the Hockley part of the Slaughter field, has been completed for a daily pumping potential of 195 barrels of 28-gravity oil and four barrels of water.

Production is through perforations at 7,744-7,914 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons. Gas-oil ratio measured 190-1.

Drilled to 8,200 feet, it is plugged back to 7,950 feet, in 5½-inch pipe set at 8,199 feet.

Well site is 660 feet from north and 1,960 feet from west lines of section 1, block D-14, C&M survey, 20 miles northwest of Brownfield.

The Abo strike, Gulf's No. 23 M. G. Gordon, was completed in February, 1972, for 54 barrels of 27.5-gravity oil and 85 barrels of water daily, through perforations at 7,8247,862 feet.

Terrell, Fisher Wildcats Staked

Amoco Production Co. plans No. 1-B Pakenham Ranch Co. Ltd., a 9,500-foot prospect, in Terrell County, 3¼ miles east of the depleted University Block 34 (Atoka) gas field and the same distance northwest of the Brown-Bassett, North (Fusselman and Atoka) field.

It spots 2,432 feet from south and 3,849 feet from west lines of Mrs. Ann McClung survey 2, abstract 894, within block 219.

Fisher Try

Gulf States Energy Corp., Dallas, filed application for permit to drill No. 2-B H. C. Lakey, a 4,000-foot Swastika wildcat, and ½-mile southwest outpost to Flippen production in the Royston field of Fisher County.

Location is 330 feet from south and west lines of section 195, block 1, BBB&C survey, four miles west of Hamlin.

The same firm has plugged and abandoned at 3,140 feet, its No. 1-B H. C. Lakey, northeast twin to the new location.

It is 990 feet from south and west lines of section 195, block 1, BBB&C survey.

Fusselman Oil Gauged In Ward

American Quasar Petroleum Co. has announced a current flowing gauge for its No. 1-28 ARCO-State, third Fusselman well and two-mile northwest extension to that pay in the Worsham, North field of Ward County.

The firm announced it flowed at the stabilized, daily rate of 1.3 million cubic feet per day on a 12-64-inch choke, for an unreported time.

The flow gauge was through the same set of perforations (17,401-17,485 feet), from which the calculated, absolute open flow of 11 million cubic feet daily had earlier been announced.

Saigon Attack Put Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — The senior Republican on the House International Relations Committee said today there is a "tacit understanding" the North Vietnamese will not attack Saigon until at least Monday to permit evacuation of nonessential Americans.

Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich., told reporters he had learned of the "tacit understanding" from Ford administration officials.

Negotiations Cited

Broomfield said the arrangement was made through negotiations involving unspecified third countries.

He said it was not certain what would happen after Monday, but declared that the United States "should seize the opportunity to get nonessential Americans and their dependents out of Saigon."

President Ford has said publicly there is no direct contact between the United States and the North Vietnamese. At the same time, he said the United States was working through undisclosed other countries for a cease-fire and a political settlement.

Senator Dissatisfied

Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, said he was not satisfied with new figures showing that the number of Americans in Saigon had declined by 324 in the past 24 hours, while 5,587 South Vietnamese were being evacuated.

Clark said the State Department reported 1,357 Americans remaining in Vietnam, but that no new figures were supplied on dependents, who numbered 562 in a report 24 hours earlier.

Asserting that administration sources acknowledge 500 Americans are enough to provide essential services for the United States in Saigon, Clark said: "I do not understand why the number of Americans cannot be brought down."

Delay Sought

The senator expressed hope that the Senate would not act today under emergency procedures to pass a compromise $327 million evacuation-humanitarian aid bill giving the President authority to use U.S. troops to evacuate Americans and some endangered South Vietnamese.

Clark said he preferred to retain leverage to get the number of Americans remaining in South Vietnam down to a total that will make hostilities much less likely.

Rioting Hits Airlift In Vietnam

By PETER CORDINGLEY
Agence France Presse

SAIGON — The U.S. airlift of Vietnamese to the United States began to break down Friday when panic-stricken refugees ran amuck at Saigon airbase.

Between 2,000 and 3,000, most of them military and their families, fought fiercely among themselves for access on a giant Galaxy aircraft as it rolled to a standstill at the base.

Military police fired in the air in an attempt to reestablish control, but they were swamped in the human deluge.

The plane doors were slammed shut when the crew realized they were going to be over-run.

The riot was apparently caused by the fact that many of the refugees had not gone through the formalities and had no boarding passes. Their hope seemed, was to apply the rule of "first come, first served."

An AFP reporter at the scene said the panic resembled a mini-Da Nang, with two to three thousand people pouring across the tarmac in an uncontrollable dash for the boarding ramp.

Children and old people fell or were pushed down by the more able-bodied and bags and other possessions were jettisoned in the panic.

The incident lent weight to reports here that the evacuation is getting out of control.

Thursday night, according to reliable sources, six South Vietnamese Air Force pilots, who have been flying sorties against insurgent positions around Saigon, left on one American flight.

The U.S. has offered refuge abroad to 113,000 South Vietnamese whose lives the Americans think could be endangered if Saigon falls to the insurgents, but serving military are not included among those yet.

In other words, most of the men involved in Friday's rioting at the airbase should not have been there.

The ruses to obtain places on U.S. planes are many and varied, with sheer brazenness often proving the most effective.

According to informed sources, a number of Americans here are lining their pockets by making false declarations in favor of South Vietnamese.

The sources said that one American, whose name has been established, is asking more than $7,000 per person to declare that South Vietnamese refugees are his relatives.

Working through his South Vietnamese wife, the American, who lives in the select Phan-Dinh-Phung residential area of Saigon, practically has set up an office to handle his declarations, the sources said.

In an attempt to halt this sort of thing, the Americans have now introduced a "double cable" system.

Negotiated Settlement Now Sought

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese Cabinet minister has made direct contact with North Vietnamese officials for a negotiated peace settlement, and is trying to follow up the initiative with a trip to Hanoi, a high-ranking government official said tonight.

The high-ranking official in Saigon said President Tran Van Huong initiated the move toward North Vietnam and was trying to send an envoy to Hanoi to get the Communist side's views following the talks already held with North Vietnamese on a lower level. He said the United States also was trying to promote the talks and had approved the envoy's flight on a U.S. Air Force plane to Hanoi.

Flight Not Permitted

He said the Cabinet minister tried to fly to Hanoi today but was not given immediate permission, apparently because authorities there had not received the required 24-hour notice.

Opposition political leaders said earlier that Huong might turn over the presidency to neutralist Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh as early as Saturday to allow Minh to form a government acceptable to the Communist side for a negotiated end to the war. Their reports came as North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces made probing attacks 25 miles west of Saigon.

In Aranyaprathet, Thailand, Associated Press correspondent Chhay Born Lay said Thai border police and Cambodian refugees told him that Khmer Rouge authorities have ordered mass evacuations from Cambodian towns near the Thai border and shot dozens of Cambodians trying to flee into Thailand.

No Confirmation

There was no confirmation from any other source. The refugees gave no indication why the Communist-backed new leaders of Cambodia wanted the towns empty, but reports from the capital city of Phnom Penh told of the same maneuver there last week. Analysts believe that the Khmer Rouge have organizational problems and fear resistance from the population.

Tornadoes Leave Five Persons Dead

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms packing wind, rain and hail roamed the nation's midsection again today after hatching tornadoes that left five dead and dozens injured in Missouri and Tennessee.

Tornado watches remained in effect early today for sections of Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri and Southern Illinois. Tennessee twisters were sighted or had dipped down since Thursday evening, four in northeastern Arkansas.

Hardest hit by the violent spring storms was the southwest Missouri community of Neosho. Two tornadoes churned through the town Thursday night, killing four persons and injuring dozens more.

The twisters also destroyed several houses, about 30 mobile homes, and either partially or totally destroyed two apartment complexes with more than 100 units.

Authorities said it would be late this afternoon before an accurate assessment could be made of the destruction. The devastation was confined to the south side of Neosho and a small community a few miles west.

Tornadoes also hit several West Tennessee communities early today. A child was killed when a mobile home was overturned in Tipton County, and several persons were injured in Crockett County.

A twister also struck a rural northeastern Oklahoma community, not far from Neosho. Thursday night, several mobile homes and houses were damaged at Mound Valley, but there were no confirmed injuries. Some cattle were reported killed and injured.

Farther east, severe thunderstorms rocked St. Louis with winds up to 75 miles per hour. Monette, Mo., was drenched by nearly 3 inches of rain.

Turbulent Weather Hits North Texas

Bristling thunderstorms swept across Texas' midsection during the night and kept the northeast corner of the state under a tornado watch for hours.

The turbulent weather broke loose in the evening between Abilene and Mineral Wells and rumbled eastward, turning loose rain at rates up to five inches per hour in some areas.

It grew so threatening by 10 p.m. that the National Weather Service posted a tornado watch for a 120-mile corridor centered on a line from 45 miles west of Paris to 60 miles northeast of Little Rock, Ark.

The alert, in force until 4 a.m., covered 10 counties in Texas—Bowie, Delta, Fannin, Franklin, Hopkins, Hunt, Lamar, Rains, Red River and Titus.

There was no report, however, of damage in Texas and the only severe weather after (See TURBULENCE Page 2A)

Three Die In Embassy Takeover

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Terrorists who held a dozen West German Ambassador Dietrich Stoeker, who was slightly burned.

The other five terrorists known to have been in the building were captured, police said. They included a woman.

Earlier reports said there were seven in the gang, but the police revised the figure.

The explosions which the gang set off on the top floor of the embassy just before midnight Thursday burned out the four-story building.

The West German government's refusal to meet the terrorists' demands was a complete about-face in policy after nearly three years of surrender to Arab guerrillas and more recently to West German anarchists. Chancellor Helmut Schmidt was to explain the change to the Bonn parliament today.

The gang invaded the embassy shortly before noon Thursday and shot and killed Baron Andreas von Mirbach, the military attache. Identifying themselves as the Holger Meins Commando, they threatened to kill the ambassador and the others in the embassy at the

Wallace Will Run

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace confirmed today that he plans to run for president in 1976.

He declined to say when the formal announcement will be made, although other sources said it probably will be early in June.

"As of now I intend to run," Wallace told The Associated Press.

His national campaign director, Charles Snider, said the governor has told friends he will seek the Democratic nomination.

Wallace was a candidate in 1972 before he was wounded in an assassination attempt at Laurel, Md., and left paralyzed in both legs.

At a news conference Thursday, the 55-year-old governor refused to confirm that he would definitely run again.

When he was asked today if he hadn't already made his decision, he replied, "You can say that. As of now I intend to run."

Trustee Runoff Election Saturday

School patrons will decide Saturday who will fill Position 3 on the Midland schools' board of trustees to conclude what has been termed an "expensive" election.

Voters will cast their ballots between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. at Midland or Lee high school for either Johnny R. Warren or Gerald S. "Jerry" Pitts in Saturday's runoff election.

The pair, vying for the trustee seat of retiring board member Ted M. Kerr, received the most votes of the four candidates in the regular April 5 balloting. Warren took 1,512 votes, with Pitts garnering 1,421.

A simple majority is required for election to the Midland Independent School District board of trustees.

Absentee voting in the runoff totaled 889, following a record-breaking absentee tally of 1,217 in the regular election with six candidates in the running for two seats.

Don Furgeson, business manager of the school district, said this year's contest could be described as expensive.

According to the required financial statements filed April 18, Warren reported $6,304 in contributions and loans and expenditures totaling $5,928.90.

Pitts' report listed $3,176 in contributions and loans, compared to expenditures of $2,972.25. Totals for both men include expenditures for the (See ELECTION Page 2A)

Oil Imports Below Embargo Level

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil imports dropped last month to an even lower level than during the Arab oil embargo, giving the United States a record surplus in its balance of foreign trade, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the surplus amounted to $1.4 billion in March, the second monthly surplus in a row.

February's surplus was $91 million. The figures left the nation with a $2 billion surplus so far this year.

Commerce said the major factor in the improvement was a $571 million drop in the value of oil imported into the country. The oil imports amounted to 118.7 million barrels. That compared to 161.3 million barrels a year ago when the Arab oil embargo had its most severe impact.

Commerce said the value of the nation's exports slipped in March by eight-tenths of 1 percent. But imports dropped even more sharply, by 6.8 percent.

Exports of motor vehicles

were up by $65 million. Chemical, tobacco, fertilizer and computer exports also increased.

But exports of civilian and military aircraft dropped by $123.8 million. Exports of wheat, corn, animal feeds, cotton and metal working machinery also dropped.

The export slippage was more than offset by lower imports of petroleum, non-ferrous metals, sugar, newsprint and other items. Imports of motor vehicles, iron ore and non-electrical machinery climbed.

The government began keeping track of its trade accounts on a different basis this year, using the actual prices which company subsidiaries charge their parent firms rather than the actual value of goods.

Thus, the current figures are not comparable with past years. But Commerce said that, computed on the old basis, the trade surplus would have been $1.3 billion, surpassing February's $879 million record.

Portuguese Go To Polls Today

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portuguese voters turned out in record numbers today for their first election under their new military rulers after an all-night celebration of the first anniversary of the overthrow of the rightist dictatorship that ruled them for half a century.

Voters began lining up at the polling places more than three hours before the booths opened at 8 a.m. Election officials reported the voting was peaceful and orderly.

By noon, many districts reported more than 25 per cent of those eligible had cast ballots. Officials said the pace of the voting indicated the largest turnout in the nation's history.

The armed forces were placed on the alert to ensure that extremist parties banned from the election did not disturb the "tranquil climate" promised by President Francisco da Costa Gomes.

Some 6 million persons were eligible to vote for members of an assembly that will draw up a new constitution. Voting is compulsory, and a big turnout was expected even though the ruling military junta has already laid down the outlines of the constitution.

Final results of the elections are not expected until Saturday or Sunday.

Although the constitutional assembly will be virtually powerless, the moderate parties hoped that they would roll up a big vote and that this would embolden moderate officers of the armed forces to curb the leftists who now dominate the government.

Of the 12 parties fielding candidates, opinion polls indicated that two moderate groups — Mario Soares' Socialists and the centrist Popular Democratic party (PPD) — would get more than 50 per cent of the vote.

The Communist party, which in the past year has taken a firm grip on the unions, news media and government bureaucracy, was expected to finish third or fourth with 15-20 per cent of the vote.

Midland Teachers To Attend Austin Rally Saturday

An estimated 90 to 100 Tall City teachers Saturday will join a political rally of 50,000 educators from across the state in Austin to urge passage of the Texas State Teachers Association's school finance bill.

According to Romeo Canales, president of the Midland County Teachers Association which is affiliated with TSTA, 90 teachers had confirmed plans to journey to the state's capital city.

Canales said members of the Classroom Teachers Association of Midland, not TSTA affiliates, also are participating in the rally.

Social Security Recipients Due 8 Per Cent Hike In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration said today about 35 million Social Security and Supplemental Security income recipients will be due an 8 per cent benefit increase in July, costing $5.7 billion in 1976.

Casper W. Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, coupled the announcement with a renewed plea to Congress to limit the increase.

to the 5 per cent requested by President Ford.

"Under the current law, I would be obliged to promulgate an 8 per cent benefit increase by May 15 rather than the 5 per cent increase," Weinberger said in a statement. "I strongly urge the Congress to enact the President's proposal for a five per cent increase before then."

The scheduled 8 per cent increase is the first automatic cost-of-living hike in the Social Security program, on the basis of comparing the average rise in the Consumer Price Index between the second quarter of 1974 and the first quarter of 1975.

It is somewhat lower than the 8.7 per cent earlier projected, because prices rose at a slower rate the first three months of this year. An 8.7 per cent benefit increase would have cost $6.2 billion.

The 8 per cent increase would boost average Social Security monthly benefits beginning in July to $200 from $184 for retired males, to $193 from $178 for widows and to $341 from $314 for a retired couple.

Basic Supplemental Security income benefits would be increased to $157.70 from $146 for individuals and to $236.60 from $219.

There are about 31 million retirees, survivors and disabled persons receiving Social Security and about 4 million aged, blind, and disabled persons receiving Supplemental Security income, the former adult welfare program.

Weinberger said the President's proposed five per cent ceiling would limit the benefit increase costs to $3.5 billion.

Weinberger said the 5 per cent ceiling would mean a benefit increase of 77 per cent since 1969, compared with a 40 per cent increase in the cost of living during the same period.

Quintuplets Reported Doing Fine

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — All of the Levy quintuplets are being bottle-fed in their incubators and are doing fine, officials say.

But their mother hasn't seen them yet and a spokesman for Cincinnati General Hospital said it has not been determined when she will get her first view of the quint.

Obstetrician Allen R. Shade said Pamela Levy, 28, is doing satisfactorily, but is slower than normal in her recovery from the caesarean section surgery used to deliver the babies.

Dr. Shade said her condition improved Thursday night and she no longer has a post-operative problem caused by the operation.

Dr. Irwin Light, staff premature baby specialist, said all of the babies weigh less than five pounds eight ounces. Light said only one of the youngsters, a boy, required a blood transfusion after birth, but he was the first to start bottle feeding on a formula Thursday. The others joined him later in the day.

Woman Receives Probated Term In Check Forgery

Mary Elizabeth Sprouse, 40-year-old former administrator and for an Odessa nursing home, Thursday was given a five-year probation sentence by federal Judge D. W. Suttle upon pleading guilty to forging a Medicare check for $449.12.

Mrs. Sprouse said she was having marital problems when she forged and cashed the check through the procedure many in March 1974 and sent the money to her son, a college student in East Texas. She said his college job had "played out."

The judge reprimanded the woman for trying to solve one problem by creating another.

"People have enough misery without inventing it," he said.

She said she paid back the money taken.

On receipt of the telegram, the Embassy contacts the person in question here, and summons him or her for processing.

This system seems to be working in as much as the Embassy can now filter applicants more smoothly, but it appears clear that for every person who doggedly goes through the procedure, many others simply ignore it.

As was witnessed by this correspondent at the airbase Friday many of the people leaving the U.S. do not even know more than three or four words of English.

It was an almost surrealistic experience to have to talk through an interpreter to whole families who in a few days time will be plunged into the super-Western civilization and who do not even know the basic words of its language.

Antiforeclosure Bill Going To Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate-House conference will resolve differing versions of a bill aimed at insuring that hundreds of thousands of jobless workers don't lose their homes along with their salaries.

The Senate voted Thursday to provision to help families buy homes by subsidizing mortgage rates at 6 per cent.

Backers of the antiforeclosure provision said it would help as many as 300,000 families who now face losing their homes because of their inability to meet mortgage payments.

Supporters also said the mortgage subsidy provisions would fight the recession by creating some 400,000 new housing starts and up to 800,000 new jobs.

However, Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., ranking Republican on the Senate Banking Committee, warned that if Congress adopts a measure like the bill passed by the Senate, President Ford surely will veto it.

Tower said he doubted whether Congress would override such a veto, but Banking Committee Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., said he was certain it would.

Some senators, pointing to the depressed housing industry and its 13 per cent national jobless rate, asked Tower to urge Ford to sign the measure into law. But Tower denounced it as government interference in the buyers' private sector.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., said high interest rates have been in large measure responsible for the depression in the housing industry which in turn caused the recession to deepen.

Williams said the interest-rate subsidy section of the bill would home buyers could choose to provide 6 per cent mortgage rate. But Tower denounced it as loans to middle-income home with the down payment.

midnight consisted of a line of thunderstorms between Longview and Gilmer in East Texas.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 45 degrees at Dalhart in the Panhandle up to 75 at Corpus Christi, Houston, Lufkin and McAllen in the south.

Thursday's top marks went as high as a summery 97 at Alice in South Texas, The Associated Press reported.

The mercury climbed to 91 degrees Thursday and according to the National Weather Service dropped to 55 Thursday and is expected to be in the lower 60s tonight.

High Saturday should be in the upper 80s under increasingly cloudy skies.

Dallas Detective Retiring

DALLAS (AP) — A city detective who was viewed by millions on television in 1963 is retiring after 25 years on the police force.

He's Jim Leavelle, 54, the white-suited officer on camera when night club owner Jack Ruby rushed forward with a pistol and killed Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin of today should be near 90 again.

The shooting occurred in the city hall's basement as Oswald, handcuffed to Leavelle, was being transferred to the Dallas County Jail two days after Kennedy was slain.

Since that November Sunday, Leavelle has fielded thousands of questions about that moment in history. Dozens of souvenir hunters have clamored in vain for his white suit, LBJ style hat, boots, handcuffs and even locks of his hair.

Leavelle hasn't worn the suit again. It hangs neatly pressed in a closet at his home. None of the other items has been sold.

Despite all the public attention, Leavelle says the episode brought no drastic change in his life.

"I never think about it, really," he said, "unless someone else brings it up."

Odessan Pleads Guilty To Theft From Bank

A 21-year-old former audit check protector machine, and another bank under the alias of B. E. Brown. He said he was withdrawn $500 of the amount deposited, and with the remainder he had planned to use in buying a house for his bride-to-be.

In mid-February, Brownfield said he, on his own free will, admitted the theft to the bank and returned the money taken. The defendant said he had in another account $15,000 of his own.

The judge seemed puzzled that the youth would steal to get the $10,000.

"It was a rash thing to do," Brownfield said.

"Well, sir," he told Suttle. "I'm deeply sorry. I just wanted to get this thing out and get on with my life."

Dallas financier W.W. "Doc" Taylor, who was a codefendant in the trial, was sentenced to 18 months in prison on each of three counts, also to run concurrently.

U.S. District Judge Fred Daugherty allowed both men to remain free on $10,000 recognizance bonds pending appeal. Taylor and Hall both said they would appeal.

Federal Grand Jury Here Returns Three Indictments

Three indictments including in the window's service drawer against Griffin is a one-year allegation of fraud and attempted bank robbery were returned Thursday by a 21-member federal grand jury.

Indicted were: —Proby Lee Griffin, 42-year-old Odessa pharmacist, who is alleged to have made false claims for reimbursement on medical payments. The sealed indictment said that Griffin, 836 Clements, Odessa, falsely claimed that he had dispensed medications under the Medical Assistance Programs of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

—Noah Bradley Lester, 22, of Pecos for the attempted hold-up of the First National Bank of Kermit April 9. He was arrested shortly after he drove up to a drive-in window, demanded that money be stuffed in a brown paper bag, but drove off when the fall bag became stuck.

Three Persons Killed In Assault On Embassy

German jails, given $520,000 and flown to another country. The terrorists also warned they had placed nearly 35 pounds of TNT about the building and would set it off if the police attacked them.

The West German government set up a crisis staff in Bonn, and Schmidt was in frequent telephone communication with Swedish Premier Olof Palme. Swedish Justice Minister Lemnat Geijer entered the embassy to act as go-between.

Geijer said the gang rejected an offer of safe conduct out of the country in exchange for the hostages.

Some 500 heavily armed police ringed the building and occupied the ground floor while the terrorists and their hostages were on the upper floors. A 10:30 p.m. deadline set by the terrorists passed, and about half an hour later they released three women who were among the hostages. Then just before midnight the gang set off the TNT on the top floor and tried to slip out in the confusion, but the police spotted them and rounded them up without firing a shot.

The body of the dead hostage was found in the ruins of the building today. Police withheld announcement of identification until next of kin were notified.

Meins, for whom the terrorists named their squad, was a leading member of the Baader-Meinhof gang who died after a hunger strike in a West German jail last year. The gang was led by Ulrike Meinhof, a 40-year-old journalist, and Andreas Baader, a 30-year-old student radical.

Texas Senate Votes Oil Spill Cleanup Fund

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators voted 23-2 today to set up a $5 million fund to clean up oil spills in Texas' coastal waters.

The sponsor, Sen. A. R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, said any expenditures from the fund would be reimbursed by the federal government or the person responsible for the spill.

A fine of up to $1,000 a day is provided for anyone failing to report a spill.

The Senate also passed and sent to the House a bill establishing procedures for applying for an offshore terminal license to handle oil-carrying super-tankers. The vote was 25-0.

House members were expected to vote on a bill that would empower county commissioners, with local voter approval, to enact ordinances in unincorporated areas.

The measure was tentatively approved Thursday, 77-57, after amendments were added to guarantee that county ordinances would not apply within city limits. Another amendment required consent of the affected voters before a zoning ordinance could take effect.

City voters would take part, however, in a countywide election on whether to give the commissioners either general or restricted authority to pass ordinances.

"It's time the legislature brought the counties into the 20th Century," said a co-sponsor, Rep. Ray Hutchison, R-Dallas, who spoke of suburban "blight" outside of city-controlled areas.

Ordinances could not be passed regulating the use of agricultural or ranch land.

Rep. DeWitt Hale, D-Corpus Christi, spoke against the bill Thursday, saying it gave county governments "carte blanche" and was premature because a similar county ordinance provision is in the new constitution on which the voters will decide in November.

Rep. Lyndon Olson, D-Waco, said no county commissioners court would have lawmaking power unless the local voters granted it to them.

"You are not placing much faith in the folks that elect these commissioners... If it is put to a vote of the folks, they can take care of their own problems," Olson said.

"I wish I could believe that They are not aware what they are voting for on many of these things," Hale said.

In other action Thursday, Senators passed and sent to the governor a bill prohibiting purchases of imported beef by state or local institutions—a step designed to help domestic ranchers.

They amended, then approved, 26-3, a bill cutting off state funds to pay county school superintendents in 39 counties. House members, who wanted the bill applied to 104 counties at a two-year saving of $6.8 million, refused to accept the change and called for a conference committee to negotiate a compromise.

Senators passed to the House, 23-6, a bill authorizing the Texas Secretary of State to send in inspectors to monitor elections and prohibiting limitation of voters and poll watchers.

Odessan Released On Assault Charge

ODESSA — O'Neal Rogers, 21, was released from city jail here Thursday on $3,000 bond after being arrested and charged with aggravated assault on a police officer Wednesday.

Police said Rogers fought with an officer while the policeman was attempting to investigate a disturbance call.

Justice of the Peace Jimmy Harris accepted the charge and set Rogers' bond.

List Of Unions Making Concessions To Help Troubled Firms Is Growing

By DAN FISHER
The Los Angeles Times

Facing a June 1 expiration of their current wage contracts, unionized construction laborers in Chicago offered to extend the pact for an additional year with no increases, except a 25 cent per hour hike in employer pension contributions.

In Southern California, members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America choose to work 30-hour instead of 40-hour weeks at a cut in weekly pay to minimize layoffs.

In Youngstown, Ohio, the International Union of Operating Engineers agreed to a $1 per hour wage cut and numerous other concessions, hoping to stimulate the homebuilding industry in Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania.

Pilots and flight engineers for Miami-based Pan American World Airways have accepted a one-year, 10 per cent pay cut in an effort to help the financially troubled airline.

The examples are still isolated, but the list of unions making concessions to help out troubled companies and industries is growing.

It's true that such sacrifices by organized labor increase in times of economic malaise, but the trend appears larger than started a work week has guaranteed 40 hours of pay, whether he worked a full week or not. That requirement was lifted. Also, a rule that employees could operate only one type of machine during any workday was suspended.

Pan Am's pilots approached the airline last November to discuss "methods by which employees could help" the company out of its cash bind, recalls Capt. Julian Braswell, head of Council 10 of the Air Line Pilots Assn. in Miami.

The concessions resulted in a wage range of $7.31 to $9.37 an hour.

At first, he said, the union wanted to set as a condition of a pilot pay cut a similar reduction by the company's president. In the end, Braswell said, no such condition was set. "I think maybe we felt we would put it up to him as a matter of honor." The company refuses to comment on whether its chief executive took a cut.

Neither did the pilots put "any other types of conditions on their pay cut offer — providing, say, for an increased rate of raises once times get good," Braswell said. "But we would expect to achieve a better understanding with company management, and if the company profited, we would get some of that profit back in our paycheck."

Top corporate executives also took cuts in 1974-75 to ease the economic demands on their companies.

That could mean only that this recession is worse than most previous ones. But some of these same labor relations experts think there's more to it than that.

None claim that today's concessions presage a future in which labor-management relations will be sweetness and light.

But a few say they foresee a greater tendency for the two sides to look at what they have in common rather than arguing over their differences.

"I think everybody is beginning to see that if the goose does not lay the golden egg, nobody eats," said Samule H. Shapiro, attorney for the Chicago Laborers District Council, which represents 20,000 construction workers. "From what I see going on through various parts of the country, a good many labor organizations are giving second thoughts to the idea of asking for pie in the sky."

The members covered under the Chicago Council make $7.20 hourly under their current,

Saxe Robbery Trial Set June 9

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The bank robbery trial of Susan Saxe, once on the FBI's "10 Most Wanted" list, will begin June 9, a federal judge says.

U.S. District Court Judge Alfred Luongo had set May 12 as the trial date, but announced Thursday it would be delayed to allow for handling of pretrial matters.

The defendant, once an honors student at Brandeis University, was arrested last month after nearly four years on the fugitive list. She was wanted in connection with the robbery of a suburban Philadelphia bank. She also faces charges in Boston in a second bank robbery in which a guard was shot to death.

Ford Approves Unofficial Portrait

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford apparently has approved an unofficial portrait of himself.

Ford, accompanied by his wife, Betty, inspected the portrait Thursday. The informal presidential portrait was given to the Capitol Hill Club by the artist, Donald E. Johnson of Philadelphia.

"As a fiscal conservative, I always enjoy seeing a politician with his hand in his own pocket," Ford said of the portrait, in which he has his left hand in a trouser pocket.

"We think it represents statesmanship on the part of the union," said William McCabe of MARBA.

"It was our hope that once we did something like that, maybe others would think along the same line and help industry recover," Shapiro said. But, he admits, some of the allied skilled trade unions were "skeptical" whether such a concession "would have any effect in stimulating construction."

McCabe concedes that there hasn't been any noticeable increase in building by member associations as yet, but Shapiro insists "we still don't think we've made an error. There are a good many unions pausing now and giving consideration to the same kind of thing."

The operating engineers in Ohio didn't initiate the discussions, but they did agree to a pay cut when it was suggested by the Home Builders Assn. of Mahoning Valley. Even more importantly, said Robert Lidle, executive director of the association, the union made work-rule concessions which could have a major impact on costs.

Dentist Wants Sale Of Sugar-Rich Foods And Beverages Regulated

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Sales of sugar-rich foods and beverages which compete with school lunch programs should be regulated, the president of the American Dental Society said in a speech prepared for delivery today before the Texas Dental Association.

"The lunch programs in our nation's schools play a valuable role in helping a child maintain a diet high in nutritional value," said Dr. L.M. Kennedy, a Dallas dentist. "It

"When a child's mouth is ravaged by decay at the age of 12 or 14, he has already lost the best functional use of his natural teeth for the rest of his life," Kennedy said.

He commended the Dallas School Board, and specifically school trustee Nancy Judy, for restricting the sale availability of non-nutritious foods in the district. Two ADA citations were to be presented to the board and Mrs. Judy for their contributions to public health.

Stitchery Program Subject Of Woman's Club

Mrs. Yale Key gave the program when the Fine Arts Club was hostess recently for the April luncheon meeting of the Midland Woman's Club.

Mrs. Key traced the story of decorative needlework from the early history of man and stated that the ancient pieces that remain today show that most of the basic stitches have remained the same through the ages, all over the world.

Theme of the meeting was "Stitchery, Show and Tell." The tables were decorated with brightly colored yarn, books on the various kinds of needlework and colorful embroidery kits. On the speaker's table were displayed needlepoint handbags, a brooch and locket in needlepoint and embroidery, a crocheted bedspread and tablecloth and handmade quilts in intricate designs.

Also displaying articles of various stitchery and macramé were Mrs. William N. Sands, Mrs. William L. Kerr, Mrs. R. M. Turpin, Mrs. J. W. Graybeal, Mrs. J. Homer Epley and Mrs. J. W. Burrell.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Good To The Last Grain Of Pepper!

Dear Folks:

Here I am with an "empty" can of black pepper on my desk wondering why the manufacturers of these cans put the openings in the middle of the can instead of at the corner.

Now we all know the last of the pepper always gathers in the corners of the cans!

For years, when the cans were cardboard with a metal top, I used the prying end of my can opener and pried the top off the can in order to get out the last speck of pepper, but since the cans are all metal now it is harder to do.

Today I shook the cobwebs loose in my head and discovered that if I took a beer can opener and punched a triangular hole in the top of the can at the corner, I could get all the pepper out of the can.

This would also work on spice cans that opened in the middle of the can instead of the corner.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Camping season will soon be here again and I would like to pass along my solution for taking eggs along on a camping trip.

First, carefully crack all the eggs one by one. It helps to crack each egg into a small bowl and then pour into a larger container to avoid putting cracked yolks with the whole ones.

Pour — carefully — all the eggs into a small leakproof container. I use a jar with a tight-fitting lid.

When using the eggs, they pour out one by one, each yolk with just the right amount of white around it.

To use all the eggs for scrambled eggs, just shake the container and add whatever else you like.

No Nonsense

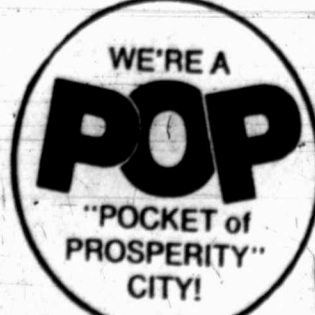

Dear Heloise:

A useful hint which has come to me to save time is to use a felt-tipped hi-lighter pen to mark through the title and time of the tv programs that I wish to watch each day.

Either the night before or early each morning, I look through the day's listings and highlight the ones I particularly want to watch.

As soon as the ink dries (I use the yellow pen), the print shows through clearly and this saves time in searching several times a day to see what program I would like to watch.

Overnight Visits Still Remembered

By HELEN M. PAGEL
 Copley News Service

Long trips were a luxury reserved for the fortunate a few years ago, but they couldn't compare with an overnight visit to Aunt Annie's house.

Aunt Annie lived on a big farm in a big brick house which had about 12 rooms and a fireplace, two halls and — what was a real rarity in those days — a bathroom. Also, there were two stairs, a front stairs and a back stairs which made an ideal arrangement for chasing through the entire house without having to stop anywhere. (We only had one stairs in our house, but it was lots steeper.)

Another of the delights of these visits was breakfast.

Aunt Annie always had a beefsteak and boiled potatoes and plain cake for breakfast and that was a banquet to look forward to. At home we had oatmeal.

And after this delicious and fascinating breakfast, we were off to see the farm. There were three of us, Dodo and I who were visiting and Eula, our cousin, who was being visited.

Eula had two older brothers, but they usually declined to enter into our escapades, although they sometimes came to the rescue when some adventure didn't turn out exactly as planned (many of them didn't).

That farm was a never ending source of delight. There were barns and silos and chicken coops and orchards, and gardens and a swing. There were cows and horses and ponies and pigs and chickens and cats and kittens. There were fences to climb and haymows to jump off and gates to swing on.

But perhaps the most fun came at bedtime. We all three slept on one big double bed, and come down bang! in a sitting position. This was real sport, but it was a little hard on the bedsprings, and we never got in more than a couple of jumps before Aunt Annie was upstairs to put a stop to the whole thing.

For although she was a most indulgent person, she did object — perhaps not unreasonably — to having her furniture wrecked.

We were indignant, of course, but we got even. The bedroom window opened onto the porch roof, and after Aunt Annie had gone downstairs, we opened it, crawled out onto the roof which was narrow and slanting at this point, crept around to the wider part and stood up. If she had ever seen that white-robed procession of three parading back and forth... But she never did, and nobody fell off the roof, but made it safely back to bed with the comfortable feeling of having gotten the best of one of those grown-ups after all.

Or maybe the bed would turn into a golden carriage and you drove 16 spirited white horses furiously over stick and stone. And the carriage rocked from side to side (well, really the three figures seated on the footboard rocked from side to side, but do we have to be literal?), but so skillful was the driver that it never upset.

And, of course, you walked the footboard in your bare feet (you were really pirates, of course, walking the plank) and then jumped onto the bed and bounced up and down.

In order to get a really good bounce you had to jump high and come down bang! in a sitting position. This was real sport, but it was a little hard on the bedsprings, and we never got in more than a couple of jumps before Aunt Annie was upstairs to put a stop to the whole thing.

For although she was a most indulgent person, she did object — perhaps not unreasonably — to having her furniture wrecked.

We were indignant, of course, but we got even. The bedroom window opened onto the porch roof, and after Aunt Annie had gone downstairs, we opened it, crawled out onto the roof which was narrow and slanting at this point, crept around to the wider part and stood up. If she had ever seen that white-robed procession of three parading back and forth... But she never did, and nobody fell off the roof, but made it safely back to bed with the comfortable feeling of having gotten the best of one of those grown-ups after all.

Wrecker Answers Plea For Diapers

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ana Moon's urgent, early morning plea was answered. Diapers for a sick baby were delivered to her — by a wrecker.

Mrs. Moon was caring for 9-month-old Frederick Lundy, son of a friend who was confined to bed.

"I was desperate," said Mrs. Moon. "The baby had been sick for three days. He had used up all of his disposable diapers."

Mrs. Moon said she called the police and the Salvation Army but they couldn't help her. She then called an auto and truck towing company where a relative worked but found he had already gone home.

"But whoever answered the phone said, 'What's your problem? Could I help? I asked if they could bring one box of diapers. They brought two and I know they used some of their own money because I only had about $3."

The man who delivered the diapers was Gary Strain, a 29-year-old driver for the towing company. He said his job on the night shift "is a lot of fun because some strange things sometimes happen."

FDA Granting Permission To Produce Plastic Throw-Away Pop, Beer Bottles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is granting the nation's corporate giants permission to produce billions of throw-away plastic pop and beer bottles that it concedes will foul the landscape, consume precious energy and possibly boost consumer prices.

In an unusual move, however, the agency is openly inviting a lawsuit to block the approval and clarify a gray area in the law.

The legal question is whether the 1969 National Environmental Policy Act amends by implication the 1906 Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

The industry has not responded yet to the FDA's draft environmental impact statement, in which the issues of environmental harm, energy use and cost were raised. Previously the industry stressed the safety of the plastic containers, the only issue raised by the food and drug law.

The 1969 law ordered agencies to consider environmental impact in making decisions. The 1906 law gave the FDA authority only in situations involving safety and health.

The FDA initially approved plastic bottles but in September 1973 decided the decision required an environmental impact statement, raising the possibility that approval might be revoked. This month it published a draft impact statement and said it would go ahead with approval.

Coca-Cola and Pepsi-Cola have test-marketed the plastic throw-aways, which are lighter and cheaper to transport, and reduce the need for large inventories of bottles, sorting, cleaning, inspection, and handling and storage of returnables.

The FDA said plastic bottles can be expected to speed the trend away from returnable bottles, which it said are superior to other containers. Refillable bottles cost one-fourth as much to produce as one-way bottles and conserve raw materials, but plastic bottles are not likely to be refillable in the foreseeable future, the FDA said.

Interstate Shipments Of High-Tar Cigarettes May Be Banned By Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission says he is willing to have the commission consider banning the interstate shipment of high-tar cigarettes.

However, Chairman Richard O. Simpson added, "I would prefer that the Congress act" on a pending amendment to the Federal Hazardous Substances Act which would remove the commission's jurisdiction over cigarettes.

Simpson made his comments in an interview Thursday after Judge Oliver Gasch of U.S. District Court ruled that the commission has the authority to consider banning the interstate shipment of high-tar cigarettes.

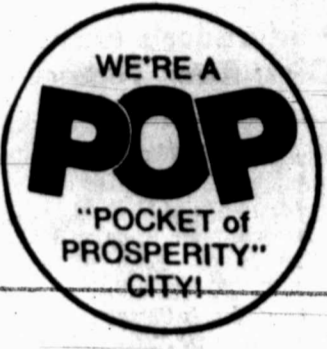

The commission was asked by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, the American Public Health Association and the District of Columbia Lung Association to ban interstate sales of cigarettes containing more than 21 milligrams of tar.

The plaintiffs said Federal Trade Commission tests in September 1973 showed 27 of 130 brands surpassed that level. Those 27 brands constitute 15 per cent of the domestic cigarettes which enter interstate commerce, the plaintiffs said.

The commission claimed it lacked authority to impose such a ban because it is not the government agency which puts warning labels on cigarette packs. That is done by the Surgeon General's office.

Judge Gasch ruled that the Federal Hazardous Substances Act administered by the commission contains language "sufficiently open-ended to extend to products whose hazard was unknown" when the act was passed in 1960.

Gasch said the fact that Congress did not mention cigarettes as being covered under the act might "indicate that it did not occur to Congress that one day high-tar cigarettes might be characterized as a toxic, hazardous substance, subject ... to banning."

Midland Democratic Club Created

By CALVIN BAKER

Speeches by State Sen. W. E. "Pete" Snelson and Bob Armstrong, commissioner of the general land office, highlighted a banquet Tuesday night launching the newly-formed Midland Democratic Club.

The club is the result of a merger of the Tall City Women's Democratic Club and the Midland County Democratic Club.

Officers elected by the 110 persons in attendance are Mrs. Calvin Baker, president; Ralph Williamson, vice president; Mrs. Vernon Chandler, secretary; and Mrs. Russell Neisig, treasurer.

Vann Culp, Midland County Democratic chairman, said, "We feel the one club will have added vitality in the community."

Pat Baskin served as master of ceremonies for the event, held in the Petroleum Club.

Snelson summarized the status of major state legislation pending before the House and Senate. He noted much work remains in the final 40 days of the 120-day session and put the legislation in three categories:

- Completion of the biennial appropriations bill, which is now approximately $12 billion.
- Completion of the public schools finance bill.
- Submission of a proposed new constitution.

He said final passage of the appropriations measure is complex because of Texas' "pay-as-you-go" process.

"We approve those programs for which people are willing to pay. Because of a surplus, all groups come to us and tell us what they need—and although all are good, there are limits to what we can do," he added.

Concerning the school finance bill, he said "some patchwork is involved."

"It is difficult to arrive at a consensus on the true value of property in various districts, and this is closely tied to how we distribute funds for education," he said.

Snelson said he was pleased that much of the work that went into the constitutional study last year had been salvaged by the legislature's decision to submit a new constitution to Texas voters in November.

"I feel the new document is a good one that will help our needs in the future. It has eight separate provisions that the people will vote on in November."

In referring to the meeting as a "landmark evening," Snelson urged those on hand to become active in the political process at all levels.

"You are part of the political process and without you there would not be a political process," he said. "You show your love of country by participating in this process."

Armstrong in his remarks cited what he considered to be an upturn in the Texas political picture as well as in the Democratic party.

"I get the feeling that what some consider to be a current doomsday atmosphere in government will be smiled on favorably by historians, because we are looking at things we have to, and we are looking to a new tomorrow," he said.

"We (Democrats) have to have faith at all levels, and that includes picking a good Democratic presidential candidate in 1976. I think we will."

Mrs. Baker said she looks forward to a successful, active year which will see increased participation by local Democrats.

Committee chairmen of the club include Mrs. James Alsop, ways and means; Mrs. Ellison Tom, historian; Mrs. Charles Holmstrom, telephone; Mrs. Jack Hart, newsletter; Tom Johnson, membership; and Mrs. Charlie Welch, publicity.

Four Men Injured In Ship Accident

HOUSTON (AP) — Four crewmen were in a Port Arthur hospital today after suffering injuries in a ship accident in the Gulf of Mexico.

A Coast Guard helicopter from Ellington Air Force Base here picked up the crewmen who were injured Thursday during a lifeboat drill aboard a Greek oil tanker, Dea Maris.

The injured were identified as W. Williams, 24, A. Dagrassa, 35, J. Campbell, 38, and A. Leite, 43. A spokesman for the Coast Guard said Williams and Campbell were British and the other two were Portuguese.

The men were flown to Sabine and then transferred to Port Arthur by ambulance. Hospital officials said Williams appeared to be the most seriously injured of the four.

The Coast Guard spokesman said the four were injured when a lifeboat fell into the water.

GM Remains Silent On 'Motorgate' Issue

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors has refused to shed much light on a secret "Motorgate" episode in which many salaried workers at its large Chevrolet office in New York State were dismissed abruptly.

Altogether, about three dozen Chevrolet workers in the Northeast were fired "for violating company policies," including the acceptance of gifts from dealers.

The secret GM probe began 15 months ago after the murder of a Chevrolet Division area service manager. A Boston-area Chevrolet dealership service manager has been charged with the murder.

F. James MacDonald, a GM executive vice president, refused to tell reporters Thursday what policies the workers had violated.

Nor would he discuss the warranty fraud allegations in Boston which led to grand jury indictments alleging fraud by Chevrolet dealer R. Gordon Butler in Lowell, Mass., and service manager George Edergerly.

Butler and Edergerly allegedly were involved in cheating GM by charging for warranty work never performed. Edergerly is accused of killing Chevrolet's Francis Smith, who was shot to death the same day he checked warranty violations at the Butler dealership.

Both accused men contend they are innocent of the charges.

MacDonald said GM began investigating its New York office as a result of the killing. But he insisted that firings in Bethpage, N.Y., and later at Tarrytown, N.Y., Detroit, and in Boston — were not related to warranty fraud.

Though MacDonald would not discuss particulars, it was reported that New York employees were taking gifts from car dealers, possibly in return for favors. GM policy forbids employees from receiving more than nominal gifts from dealers, who may be seeking favoritism to get a better stock of best-selling cars.

Fired workers said they do not know why they got the ax, although some said they have been accepting gifts, such as free car service, from dealers.

About Our future:

JOHNNY R. WARREN
2513 Humble
Midland, Texas 79701
April 25, 1975

Dear Fellow Midlander:

This has been a long campaign and, as it draws to a close, I want to thank all of you who have worked with me and for me. Ours has been a campaign for the best possible education for every student in Midland, no matter where he or she lives, and I am proud to be a part of that effort.

I want very much to serve as your School Trustee and believe that I can make a real contribution to a better school system. We cannot be satisfied with less than the best, from elementary school through high school. In both our academic and technical-vocational programs, we must make up our minds that every child will have available to him or her the very finest teachers and the most effective methods and techniques for learning.

My experience in building a business has taught me to listen, to seek advice, and to make decisions — and I shall be asking for your help as I try to do a good job for you and for Midland. No school board member can serve you well unless he listens and learns from those most involved with education: the parents and citizens of our community.

If you believe with me that we must aim for the best and achieve it, and that every child in our city is entitled to an equal opportunity to learn and succeed, then I shall deeply appreciate your vote tomorrow.

Thank you very much for your help and support.
Please vote tomorrow.

Sincerely,
Johnny R. Warren

Unclaimed U.S. Grants Totaling Billions Await Local Governments

By JOEL D. WEISMAN
Special to The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — Several billion dollars in federal grants for programs ranging from drug control to flood prevention — have yet to be claimed by local governments.

The unclaimed billions were discovered in a Washington Post survey of 1974 and 1975 grants. An exact figure cannot yet be determined because of varying claim deadlines and the fact that many government agencies do not compute outstanding grants until the end of the fiscal year.

However, the survey shows: — More than $100 million in community development revenue sharing and highway funds have been flatly rejected by dozens of local governments. — More than $1 billion in environmental protection grants have yet to be claimed with the deadline approaching July 1. — More than $5 million in Health, Education and Welfare and Department of Agriculture grants were not claimed in 1974 in programs including drug control, hospital construction, scholarships, child and maternal care and state agricultural experimental stations. HEW says even more may go unclaimed this year.

Mere compliance with application requirements sometimes no more than filling out a single page proposal, assures the communities of the grants, which are so-called mandatory, as contrasted with the discretionary variety. In discretionary grants various applicants vie for portions of a total allotment. The portions are decided at the discretion of the federal government officials.

In virtually all the programs surveyed, the amount of unclaimed grants was relatively small in light of the multi-billion totals available, but taken overall their impact could be significant as local governments, short of cash, try to hold the line of taxes.

The survey indicated there are various reasons for failure to claim funds, including: lack of matching local funds, fear of federal controls, administrative carelessness, and fear of racial integration — since most grants require pledges of non-discrimination among other promises.

With trying to hold the line on taxes and stimulate local spending, "these are surely not the times the city should ignore available money," said John Gunter, executive director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, which represents the nation's largest cities. "But in some cases, it takes money to get money," he added, referring to local matching requirements.

Local matching requirements range from 10 per cent on Interstate Highway funds to 50 per cent for some agriculture grants.

However, there are vast sums available that require no matching grants whatever.

For instance, some $27 million remain available until July 1 for full federal funding of highways in and around national parks. Yet the following states have yet to make claims: Alaska, allotted $3.9 million; Oregon, $3.6; Montana, $3.0; Colorado, $2.9; Arizona $2.4.

The new Housing and Urban Development community development grants — designed to replace a half dozen categorical grants — also have no local matching requirements. Moreover, they can be spent for a wide variety of programs, ranging from flood control and open space development to fire and police protection.

But communities receiving the funds must file low and moderate income housing plans — a requirement that has caused the outright rejection of more than $25 million.

Some two dozen predominantly white medium-sized cities, generally located near large cities with substantial black populations, were among those that turned thumbs down on the HUD funds.

California Trying To Block Large-Scale Settlement Of Viet Refugees In State

The Los Angeles Times
LOS ANGELES — California officials Thursday moved to block any large-scale settlement of Vietnamese refugees in California, going so far as to ask the commanding officer of Travis Air Force Base "to take no action of any kind with regard to Vietnamese refugees in California."

The officer, Air Force Col. James T. Rock, was advised in a telegram from Secretary Mario G. Obledo of the California Health and Welfare Agency he should suspend such action "until you personally clear it with Secretary of State (Henry) Kissinger."

"For your information, I have sent a telegram to Secretary of State Kissinger regarding a personal meeting with him to clarify the role of the state and federal government" in the refugee situation, Obledo told the colonel.

In Sacramento, a special task force called Project VIC (for Vietnam Interagency Commission) studied the possibility of taking legal action against the federal government to halt the rumored mass immigration of Southeast Asians.

Obledo, who created the commission, said he was prepared to send a representative to Guam, where planes full of refugees were landing, almost hourly Thursday, "to insure that no refugees are brought into the state until some definitive relocation plans are announced by the federal government."

"We don't attempt to do anything physically to keep them out of the United States," Obledo said.

"Legally, of course, we would evaluate the situation and find out if state government does have legal recourse. The task force will have legal counsel, and I suspect that will be one of the areas that will be studied."

Obledo was asked by a reporter whether a "yellow peril hysteria" was not creeping into Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s "Administration's reaction to this situation."

Obledo indicated it was not, adding: "The concern of the (state) administration is the fact that persons will be brought into the state that will only create additional problems in the job market, in the benefit payment sector, in the areas of health and welfare..."

Some of the reasons given by Obledo for the state's opposition to the refugees recalled those put forth in the last century by leaders of "The Chinese Must Go" movement during the Gold Rush and succeeding decades when Chinese poured into the state by the thousands.

Such figures as Dennis Kearney, San Francisco labor leader and sandlot orator, charged then that the Orientals were ruining the labor market by working for "coolie" wages.

Obledo said the "indecision of the federal government, apparently, to take any definitive steps to meet the situation" has resulted in "a crisis forced upon another crisis here in the state of California."

In Washington, D.C., California's two Democratic senators, Alan Cranston and John V. Tunney, added fuel to the flames of the controversy by issuing a statement saying they, too, "are greatly concerned about foreign nationals being dumped into California's already depressed job market."

But they tempered their statement by saying that it was their understanding that only "a few thousand" Vietnamese refugees will be resettled in California from a maximum of 50,000 immigrants who may be brought into the United States.

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors also indicated its alarm over the situation by calling on President Ford "to state the policy of the nation (regarding the numbers and settlement of refugees) so the public will have clear information on this program."

"There is a great uncertainty over reports 600,000 to 1 million Vietnamese refugees will be landing on the shores of Los Angeles and San Francisco," supervisor Kenneth Hahn said in the resolution which the board passed 3 to 0.

Lowly Deuce Saves The Day

Do you feel ashamed when you put down a singleton deuce of trumps in the dummy? You can't help feeling that your partner might have picked a better suit, but don't despair; your deuce may yet save the day.

West saves the ace of spades and a club to win the last two tricks, and South is down one.

Trumps Must Wait
Instead of drawing trumps immediately, you must first knock out an ace. Which ace?

Not diamonds. If you lead diamonds before drawing trumps, somebody will get a diamond ruff.

Lead the queen of spades. With luck, you may sneak the trick by. If so, you will immediately switch to four rounds of trumps.

Even if West takes the queen of spades with his ace, he can do no damage. West cannot lead a third club, since dummy's deuce of trumps stands guard, protecting the trumps in the South hand. If West leads anything else, you regain the lead, draw four rounds of trumps and concede the ace of diamonds.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S-9 7 6 4 3 2 H-2 D-Q J 9 3 C-8 2. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four spades. Partner may not make this game, but he should have a reasonable play for it. You certainly have no defense against anything the opponents may bid.

Dear Abby Why Is Mom Still On Pill?

DEAR ABBY: I know I have that has signs up all over the not to try to slip a tip to some problem, but I need to know place saying, "NO TIPPING, one where tipping isn't allowed how far my rights go in doing PLEASE." It just puts temptation in something about it.

My problem is that nice little has way and weakens his character. My father had a vasectomy old lady (and some young ones) character. I am only 15 and can't handle who stuffs a quarter down my curious as to why my mother shirt pocket and says, "Take is still taking birth control pills it—nobody's looking."

I think it's my duty to tell if he's caught taking one. I've seen some guys accept Everyone has a problem, much and hate to see him used tips, but I don't, and I never What's yours? For a personal will because in the first place, reply, write to ABBY in care it's cheating and in the second of this newspaper Enclose stamp, self-addressed envelope, please ask customers velope, please.

Body May Yield Clues In Deaths

DEAR IN: If your mother is taking birth control pills, it doesn't necessarily mean that she is having an affair. Before jumping to conclusions, why don't you ask her if she's on The Pill, and why?

DEAR ABBY: What is the correct name for a divorced man? A woman who has been married and divorced is called a divorcee.

A guy in our office calls himself a "bachelor" but actually, he is a divorced man. A girl feels lied to and cheated when she dates him and finds out later that he has misrepresented himself.

DEAR DECEIVED: The dictionary defines a bachelor as "an unmarried man." Therefore any man who is unmarried regardless of how he attained his single status is properly called a bachelor.

DEAR ABBY: I work weekends as a sacker and carry-out boy in a big grocery store.

Electric Power Rotarian Topic

A lecture-slide presentation concerning the efforts of Texas Electric Service Co. to meet the long-range electric power needs of its service area was given by Rotarian Dave Dorchester at the meeting of the Midland Downtown Rotary Club Thursday noon in the American Legion Hall.

Dorchester, who was introduced by Ted Pearce, program chairman, told what TESCO has been doing in this regard in recent years and what it plans to do in the future.

The four major problems facing power companies today are (1) Shortage of boiler fuels; (2) inflation; (3) severe shortage of construction money, and (4) high interest rates.

He said steps are being taken to convert from oil and gas to lignite and nuclear material as boiler fuels in the generating of energy. He mentioned the new lignite plants built and being built in East Texas and the nuclear plant under construction near Glen Rose. The tremendous costs involved in plant construction was discussed.

Dorchester made it clear that TESCO, as a result of long-range planning and action, is in excellent condition to take care of its customer needs for the foreseeable future.

"And TESCO intends to keep right on planning and working to meet the challenging goals it has established for itself in the future," he said.

The speaker also discussed briefly the pros and cons of the proposed creation of a utilities commission in Texas.

He defended some of the charges made against utility companies by advocates of a regulatory commission and said that just because Texas is the only state without such a commission does not mean that Texas' system is all-wrong. Citing the experiences of some other states with commissions, Dorchester said he is of the opinion utility companies operating in Texas can do a better job for their customers under the present system.

Northwest Timber Industry Shows Some Improvement

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) —who talks regularly with operators throughout the industry, said in an interview, "The slow ever, is showing a slow sign of improvement after a 1 1/2-year slide.

But the timber operators who supply 65 per cent of the nation's lumber and plywood are not optimistic about the future because of modest price hikes this week, the first in 18 months.

Many have been severely hurt by the poor market, a lack of profit and forced mill closures. They view the price increases as a fluke and they remain bitter over a situation they believe was caused by the government.

Crow's Publications of Portland, which publishes timber industry newsletters and price lists, said half-inch plywood sheathing has risen 11.9 per cent to $134 per 1,000 square feet from last week's record low of $118. And the cost of ran-

But I don't detect any feeling of permanence. I think most of them are expecting another dip. This may be the beginning of the turnaround we've been looking for. But we're not off the pad yet. This industry is still in a full-blown depression, the worst I've ever seen.

Late in 1973, the Federal Reserve Board crippled available mortgage money, in an anti-inflation effort, by increasing interest on money that the Fed lent from last week's record low of $118. The increases were passed on to the borrowers.

Postal Workers Set To Collect Sixth Pay Raise In Two Years

By MIKE CAUSEY
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — While most federal workers wonder if Congress will permit their October pay raise to exceed President Ford's 5 per cent limit, more than 600,000 postal employees are set to collect their sixth pay raise in two years.

Unlike the government's 1.2 million member white collar civilians, who must depend upon surveys and the White House for annual wage boosts, the unionized postal employees have latched on to a formula of guaranteed annual pay raises plus twice yearly cost-of-living adjustments.

The jump in the Consumer Price Index for the month of March means that the average postal employe will get a 15-cent an hour, roughly $312 per year, raise effective May 10. This is the fourth and final cost-of-living raise guaranteed by the union-management contract for the Postal Service which expires in July.

The two-year agreement, which unions hope to sweeten in current negotiations, guaranteed employees a two-step $1,400 flat wage increase. In addition, it provided for raises to match the cost of living in November 1973 of $146 per year; a $395 living cost boost last May; another $427 increase in November, 1974; and now the promised $312 raise next month.

Union officials say they will push to have the total $1,310 or 63 cents per hour cost of living raises considered as part of base pay, so that the value of employees' future pensions — figured on the highest three year average salary — will be bigger.

Rep. Edward J. Derwinski, R-Ill., meantime, has introduced the Ford administration bill that would limit all non-postal federal and military pay raises this year to 5 per cent, no matter what the cost of living or the increase in private industry rates. Derwinski is ranking minority member of the House Post Office-Civil Service Committee whose Democrats have quietly promised unions they will bury the bill.

Even if committee Democrats manage to bottle up the bill limiting federal-military pay this year to 5 per cent, Ford is certain to issue a "alternate" plan in late August that would have the same effect, if Congress goes along.

By that time the President will have the results of a nationwide government survey of private industry pay. The survey is part of the so-called comparability system designed to keep government salaries on a par with counterpart jobs in the private sector.

No matter what that survey shows — and it is expected it will indicate government workers are due a raise of around 9 per cent — Mr. Ford will ask Congress instead to hold salaries to 5 per cent, to save money and provide an example of government austerity to the rest of the nation. Even the 5 per cent raise Ford will recommend will raise the annual federal-military payroll tab to $62 billion.

Congressmen who now are telling unions not to worry about any limit on federal — military pay might be hard pressed to deliver more than that fall if the current economic slump continues and unemployment remains high.

Trial Of Lawsuit Against Bell Slated To Start July 14

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Trial of a $29.2 million lawsuit against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. will open July 14 with no chance for further delays, District Court Judge Peter Michael Curry says.

He gave that ruling Thursday after splitting into two cases a suit filed jointly by ousted Bell executive James H. Ashley and the family of former Bell Texas operations head T. O. Gravitt.

Curry said the Gravit action would be tried first, followed immediately by Ashley's suit. "I want to make it quite clear, gentlemen, that there will not be another continuance granted in this cause," Curry said.

Southwestern Bell lawyer Hubert Green said he asked for the delay to allow completion of depositions being taken in the Ashley-Gravitt suit, because of an unrelated but time-consuming antitrust action against Bell in federal court and to allow pre-trial publicity to die.

The case has drawn heavy news coverage because of claims that Bell engaged in illegal political activities, practiced deceitful rate-setting and used irregular financial methods.

Plaintiffs lawyer Pat Maloney said that Bell sought a delay until October because "the way to get any justice if you are big and rich is to never go to trial."

Bell lawyers said splitting the trial into two actions would make the complex issues easier for a jury to understand. They said also that reducing the complexity of the suit in such a manner would lessen the chance of reversible error on appeal. Maloney said that the elements of the law, the witnesses and the evidence in the Ashley and Gravit cases are almost identical and that the case should be tried as one suit. The Ashley-Gravit suit has spanned more than a dozen state and federal investigations of Southwestern Bell and American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (AT&T), the parent company.

Brown To Acquire Majority Interest In Drilling Tool

Tom Brown, Inc., of Midland has announced it intends to exercise its option to acquire a 51 percent interest from Bassinger Tool Enterprises, Ltd. in the patent applications, contract and other assets purchased or acquired in connection with the development of a mud actuated percussion drilling tool.

Brown and Bassinger have been jointly testing this tool since August 1974 and recent results are encouraging enough to warrant this decision. Thomas C. Brown, president of Tom Brown, Inc., said. A United States patent application was filed in June 1974 and the two companies are in the process of filing patents in 40 countries at this time. Testing is under way on the latest designed tool and assuming these tests are satisfactory, discussions will probably be held with several manufacturers of downhole drilling equipment to determine the best method of manufacturing and distributing the product.

OR IS IT KLUXISH?— Lady Rider Is Klanish

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP)—Mary Bacon, one of the foremost female jockeys in the country, is a member of the Ku Klux Klan, the Long Island newspaper Newday reported in its Thursday editions.

"I am a member of the Ku Klux Klan," Mrs. Bacon told the newspaper by telephone from Omaha, Neb., where she begins racing next week at Ak-Sar-Ben.

She said she's been a member for "quite a while," then added, "I just don't want it publicized because it hurts me as a jockey. All it does is cut me out of mounts."

Mrs. Bacon's Klan activity became known April 4 when she appeared as a featured speaker at a Ku Klux Klan rally in Walker, La.

"When they asked me to speak, they said no one would be there," she said. "I figured who the hell is going to be in Walker?"

Two television stations covered the rally. When WAFB-TV, a CBS affiliate in Baton Rouge, tried to film Mrs. Bacon in the audience as well as during her speech, "she kept hiding her speech," said reporter Nita Laverdet.

"There were five speakers," the jockey said, "and I'm the only one anyone mentions. None of the Grand Dragons or Imperial Wizards were mentioned."

"I'm not out to change the world. I belong because I believe in it. This country is not ready for the Klan. They don't understand what it really is."

Mrs. Bacon, the divorced mother of a 6-year-old girl, began riding professionally in 1969. She was abducted at knife-point in 1969 in Pennsylvania by a Pocono Downs groom who is now serving a 12-year prison sentence.

She has ridden in races while seven months pregnant and has appeared nude-in-Playboy. Recently she was fined $250 by the Louisiana State Racing Commission for making unsubstantiated charges that horses at the New Orleans Fair Grounds were being given illegal medication.

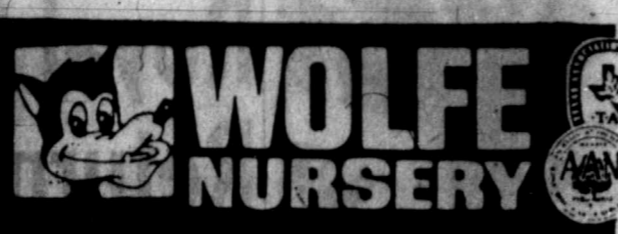

"I knew I'd get nailed" for speaking at the rally, Newsday quoted Mrs. Bacon. "I'm getting as bad (in terms of publicity) as Cher. The next time I get my picture on the cover of Newsweek it'll be in a hood, not a helmet."

"But I'm not scared of anything. If they think they're going to stop me from riding because they think I'm a cross-burner, they're wrong."

Greenwood Girls Eye Austin Trip
AUSTIN—The Greenwood girls track team will have three individuals and a relay team here May 1-3 in the Class B Girls Track Meet.
Cindy Kimbrow will be in the 220 and triple jump while Cindy Brewer, who finished sixth in the state meet last year, will be back in the discus.
The 440 relay team will feature Miss Kimbrow, Kim White, Carla White and Denise Brooks.
Miss Kimbrow and Garden City's Yevone Coffman both posted a 25.5 for a photo finish in the regional 220 and will again lock horns in the state meet, with both owning the state's top Class B time.

Siberia Today Is Like American West 100 Years Ago

By ROBERT C. TOTH
The Los Angeles Times
YAKUTSK, U.S.S.R. — Siberia today is the American West of a Century ago — prodigal, unfenced expanses where there is a sense to spare and to waste. Men boast of hardships endured but worry that nature will have the last word.

"We're more than Siberians (Siberians) up here," said one Russian with pride. "We call ourselves Severianin (northern men)."

"At 30 below like they have down south, we go barefoot," bragged another who had been drinking Siberian boilemakers called "white beer" (spirit, which is almost pure alcohol, in champagne). "Now 80 below, that's real weather."

The handy measure of temperature is to spit. Native Yakuts, a Mongol people related to American Indians, say it freezes before hitting the ground at minus 65 degrees Fahrenheit, and that they then can hear the whisper of the stars.

The gentle sound is the moisture of their breath, freezing and crackling in the air. It and car exhausts sometimes create ice fogs over the city while, in the countryside, it is crystal clear and bright, occasionally with an ice rainbow high in the sky.

Schools close at minus 45 but only up to the fourth grade. Kids play outside even then. One of their games is making ice bubbles with their spittle and throwing them at doors to annoy neighbors when they pop.

Alongside the pride of endurance, old superstitions persist from the time when Yakuts taught the first Russians — Cossacks, exiles and escaped serfs — to survive.

"We never say 'I am full,' we say 'I have eaten,'" explained a Russian born here. "When we hunt we always leave a little meat from the kill on the spot. And when we drink we throw the last drops on the floor."

For the old Gods, I suppose," he smiled.

Men came to Yakutia at least 35,000 years ago. They lived in tepees called chumi that have exaggerated peaks to shed snow.

Now all were friendly to the first Russians, apparently, for a Kremlin (fort) was built by the first settlers in 1631 to defend themselves.

Now about half the 160,000 population of the region is Russian. Many still work on the land, usually tending reindeer herds, but increasing numbers are being educated.

About 70 per cent of the local university's 6,000 students are Yakuts. Some Russians feel the natives are favored for entry, but others admit they send their children to live with western relatives toward the end of school so they can enter the better universities of Moscow and Leningrad.

At times the Yakuts can seem resentful, even sullen, when Russians ask for something to be arranged. "Not sullen," said a local Russian woman, "but they are slow, no doubt about that."

Several posters here show Lenin with distinctly slanted eyes, much as Christian saints in Latin America have local features and coloring. "Those were painted by a Yakut, I'm sure," said the woman.

Permafrost is the name given the permanently frozen lattice of rock, soil and ice which begins 1 to 3 feet down, extends to almost a mile in places, and has been unchanged for several million years. It makes construction very difficult.

Buildings must be set on piles which can be driven down only after the ground is melted by steam jets. An air space 4 feet high is left between the ground and the first floor to protect the ground from the building heat, rather than the building from the ground's cold.

Without such insulation the permafrost would melt. Old log cabins are sunk to their window sills in self-made bogs, and entire sections of railroad laid in the last century reportedly have disappeared into the tundra because of ignorance about the phenomenon.

"Permafrost can also be a friend if we handle it properly," said a scientist at the Permafrost Institute here, the first in the world. "The rule is to disturb it as little as possible."

A research tunnel 40 feet down in very fine sand has survived over 13 years without a single supporting beam — scratch its sides and huge wedges of pure ice appear or sometimes pebbles girdled by silvery threads of ice.

Man has already brought pollution to Siberia by disturbing the permafrost and in other ways.

Where bulldozers chew up the snow and soil cover, warming sun melts the ice, sometimes creating huge areas of slumped land so circular that they could have been a meteor impact.

As Siberia's wealth is exploited, such instances will be multiplied. Oil must be heated to be recovered here and great areas may sag as a result, institute scientists warn.

Coal deposits are strip mined, and some gold is mined from open quarries. Besides inviting slumpings, the mines leave ugly open wounds surrounded by slag heaps. Where gold is dredged, barren hills of unsightly pebbles mar the pristine river banks, much as in the American West.

Timber is felled, it seems, as if there was no end to it. At virtually every stop on a Siberian tour officials cap their recitation of local resources by claiming "inexhaustible" and "undepletable" forests.

Americans spoke this way once, and so did European Russians for that matter, only to learn that the timber industry's insatiable appetite is greater than most inexhaustible reserves.

Down at Lake Baikal, the biggest fresh water reservoir in the world (one-fifth the earth's total), a huge pulp and paper mill has been built on its shore.

FEATURED DANCERS — Among featured dancers in Permian Civic Ballet's annual "Spring Gala" Saturday night in Lee High auditorium will be these four members of the ballet organization's senior company. From left are Cheryl Jones, Sandra Huxman and Kelly Shaw, all of Midland, and Teresa Turner of Odessa. They will be seen as Cygnets or "little swans" in the second act of the famous "Swan Lake," one of several works to be presented on the dance program, scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m. Tickets will be on sale in the auditorium lobby before performance time.

American Judaism Endangered Species?

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
NEW YORK (AP) — Convinced that the survival of American Judaism is gravely threatened by current tendencies, Gerald Strober has rejoined that faith after being a Christian for 20 years, personally and professionally. He says Judaism now particularly needs defenders.

"This is a time when everyone of Jewish background should stand up and be counted," says Strober, formerly a Presbyterian and a long-time interreligious affairs consultant to national organizations to foster Jewish-Christian cooperation.

"The very continuity of the Jewish community is threatened," he said in an interview. "Jews are in for a hard time in America."

Strober, 39, was for two years a consultant to the National Conferences of Christians and Jews and for six years consultant to the interreligious affairs section of the American Jewish Committee.

He said the Middle East conflict along with the related energy squeeze on oil, the rise of Arab influence and the pangs of recession in this country have brought a gradually rising current of anti-Semitism.

Strober sets forth his case in a book recently issued by Doubleday, "American Jews: Community in Crisis." He contends that Judaism is under assault both from internal weaknesses and external pressures.

He cites various aspects of this erosion, including "quota" systems restricting Jews from jobs and institutions, defection of youths, increased intermarriage, declining Jewish education, and dissipation of Jewish energies on social-justice causes to help others that often backfire against Jews.

As an example, he cites long-time Jewish efforts in behalf of civil rights for blacks, with an ensuing upsurge of anti-Jewishness among pro-Arab blacks.

Although Jews historically have worked for reforms considered good for society in general, he said that in the present situation, they should quit exhausting their energies in such causes, and devote all their efforts to bolstering their own strength and continuity.

"We've got to put all our religious studies at New York City University," he said.

Strober, of Brooklyn, brought up as Jewish, converted to Christianity at 19, and was educated at conservative Protestant schools, the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago and Gordon College, at Wenham, Mass. He also has a master's degree in turn to Judaism.

He was pastor of a Surry, N.H., congregation and later directed the history department at Barrington College in Rhode Island before starting his career as a Christian specialist on relations with Judaism, a role that ended with his recent return to Judaism.

Stalcup Officially Installed

A special service Sunday afternoon in Christ Presbyterian Church officially installed Dr. Bob L. Stalcup as minister of the church.

The ceremony drew participants from the Presbytery of Tres Rios of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S. and from United Presbyterian churches in the area.

Participating as the installing commission were the Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of San Angelo's St. Mark's Presbyterian Church and the moderator of the Presbytery of Tres Rios; the Rev. Fred Campbell, pastor of St. Paul Presbyterian Church, San Angelo; the Rev. Robert Hanson, pastor of First Presbyterian at Monahan; Mrs. Gilbert Denny, an elder of Christ Church here; Wes Pittman, elder of St. Mark's Church of San Angelo, and Emmert Feaster, elder of FPC of Monahan.

At the installation ceremony, special music was provided by the choir of Christ Presbyterian Church under direction of Mrs. James Huddleston. Mrs. Robert Scott was organist.

Following the service, a reception was held honoring Dr. Stalcup and his family, along with the installing commission and other special guests.

Dr. Stalcup assumed the pastorate of Christ Church last month, coming to Midland from Pampa, where he had held an interim pastorate.

Dr. Palos, 52, was ordained recently in Singapore as the Ven. Dr. Seck Kuang Te by the abbot of Thor Kark See Temple.

Born in Hungary, where he studied philosophy and medicine, Dr. Palos became a Roman Catholic priest. He fled to West Germany in the late 1940s.

Dr. Palos later left the priesthood, got married and has a daughter, now 24.

In Germany he studied Tibetan literature, philosophy, theology and Chinese languages and medicine. Until recently he managed a Munich clinic because he said, "the healing tradition is connected with Buddhism."

"Buddhism is very practical, realistic and peaceful," said the new monk.

Machine Tool Trade Increases

NEW YORK (AP) — International trade in machine tools in 1974 rose 29 per cent over 1973, a study of American Machinist magazine shows.

In terms of U.S. dollars, exports involving the 31 nations included in the study totaled $5.2 billion, a gain of $1.2 billion.

Worldwide production, says the McGraw-Hill publication, totaled nearly $13 billion, with inflation accounting for most of the $2 billion increase over 1973.

U.S. exports climbed 37 per cent last year, to $480 million from $350.5 million. Although the United States maintained its position as second among world exporters, it faces a stiffer challenge this year from other countries trying to increase their exports, notes the magazine.

The revival will have services at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the FBC Chapel, with a concluding service to be held there at 10:55 a.m. Sunday. Earwood will be speaking orally as well as in sign language so that those with hearing also may attend.

The new musical was scored by Beryl Red, a noted composer and producer, with its dramatic text written by Ragan Courtney, well known author and dramatist.

"Beginnings" fuses drama with music to show the beginning of the earth (creation) and the fall of man; the beginning of restoration (redemption) with the coming of Christ and, finally, the completed work (salvation). The musical utilizes organ, piano and a variety of percussion instruments.

The first of the two special performances here is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Sunday, with a repeat presentation at 8:15 p.m. Monday, said Joe Whitten, minister of music at the Big Spring church. There will no admission charge for either performance, he said.

A Big Difference

A word of appreciation is due the City of Midland crew which cut the weeds, mowed the lawn and picked up the trash around the old post office building a few days ago.

It really made a big difference in the central business district.

It is amazing how quickly formerly well-kept property can go to pot—as evidenced at the former post office location.

The property now has been given to the city for eventual use as a park, and it was fitting that the city should assume the maintenance now.

It really is something, the way the weeds have grown this spring, along with the beautiful wild flowers of all kinds and colors, as a result of the abundant moisture of last fall.

And while on the subject of city beautification, it is well to toss in a few remarks concerning blowing trash in Downtown Midland.

Yes, we know the wind this spring has been unusually strong and more-or-less constant, but this is all the more reason for more careful handling of waste paper, wrapping materials from construction jobs, boxes and trash of all kinds.

Several things can be done to improve the situation. In the first place, waste material from stores and office buildings might be handled more carefully, particularly on windy days, to keep the trash from getting away in the breeze before it is placed in containers and picked up by sanitation crews.

Then, the sanitation crews also could be more careful in picking up the trash. The lids on the dumpsters should be kept closed, and when they are damaged in the pick-up process, they should be repaired or replaced promptly.

Perhaps more frequent pickups or additional dumpsters are needed in certain areas. (The city has ordered some new ones.) Every effort should be made by business interests and by the municipal government to remedy the problem.

We have a beautiful city... let's keep it spic and span!

Don't Forget: VOTE!

The second election of the week is scheduled Saturday... the run off contest to fill the Place 3 vacancy on the Board of Education of the Midland Independent School District.

It is hoped that a great many more voters will take the time to go to the polls than did the 2,500-plus who voted in last Tuesday's constitutional amendment election.

OKEAN II—

Soviet Union Shows Global Naval Muscle

WASHINGTON — The Soviet navy is demonstrating in its new global naval exercise, Okean II, the outstanding combat readiness of its maritime forces and a special emphasis on the Indian Ocean and the free world's oil lifeline from the Persian Gulf.

Five years ago, the Russians jolted the complacency of Western naval analysts by deploying roughly 200 ships around the world in Okean (ocean) I, then the largest exercise of its kind in history. Okean II is larger and still growing.

Within a week's time, Soviet deployments "out of area," that is, beyond normal home port operating zones, went from 130 to 200 ships, a "surge capability" regarded as quite remarkable by U.S. experts.

The current three-week exercise is taking place in the Mediterranean and Atlantic, Pacific and Indian oceans. It involves surface combatant ships, submarines and long-range naval reconnaissance-missile shooting aircraft.

In addition, there are indications of a greater involvement of Soviet merchantmen than in Okean I and that Okean II is being conducted in conjunction with large-scale exercises of land and air forces within the USSR. In the 1970 exercise, the Soviets placed major emphasis on the North Atlantic and Mediterranean. This time, it is on the Indian Ocean.

There is speculation at the Pentagon that Okean II will produce the first major Soviet naval air activity staged from the recently completed Russian base in Somalia, on the horn of Africa.

Use of maritime patrol aircraft like TU-95 Bears out of Somalia for missions over the Persian Gulf-Indian Ocean would duplicate the pattern the Soviets established some years ago with long-range reconnaissance planes operating, from time to time, from bases in Cuba and Guinea, on the west coast of West Africa.

The Soviets have continued to invest heavily in naval support facilities in Somalia.

Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger recently disclosed that they have set up a supply and maintenance center in that East African nation for sophisticated antiship missiles.

Such a base, of course, gives them a capability to carry on sustained naval combat operations in the Indian Ocean, if they should see a need to do so.

The Okean II focus confirms a

'They Wanted Me Out So You Could Negotiate With Him'

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — There have been bitter recriminations in Saigon and Washington that the United States is to blame for South Vietnam's military setbacks.

At the Pentagon, a general complained to us that "we had the war won" until President Nixon started bringing home the American troops.

Defense Secretary James Schlesinger suggested that South Vietnam would be fighting better "if we had been less niggardly with our aid."

And South Vietnam's Ambassador Tran Kim Phuong went on U.S. television to proclaim that it is safer to be an ally of the Communists than of the Americans.

Before the rhetoric gets out of hand, let's examine the available facts. The latest estimates, compiled by the Central Intelligence Agency, the State Department and the Pentagon, show that the United States spent 15 times more during the last nine years to support Saigon than the Soviet Union and Communist China spent to help Hanoi.

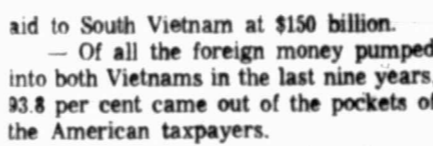

In total military support alone, the United States outspent the Communists by 34 times.

But the most dramatic measure was in blood, not cash. Not a single Soviet or Chinese soldier, so far as we could learn, fought in the field for the North Vietnamese. But 56,226 Americans died and 153,654 Americans were wounded fighting for the South Vietnamese.

The statistics, compiled by the Indochina Research Center, offer these additional comparisons:

— Since 1966, the Soviets and Chinese have shipped $5.3 billion in economic aid to Hanoi. This is slightly more than the $4.9 billion that the United States gave Saigon. But Communist military assistance to North Vietnam amounted to a paltry $3.95 billion compared to the staggering $135.4 billion worth of military support that the United States gave to South Vietnam.

— The grand totals, therefore, set Communist aid at $9.3 billion, and United States assistance at $140.3 billion. The U.S. figures, incidentally, are the most conservative estimates possible. President Ford himself has put United States aid to South Vietnam at $150 billion. — Of all the foreign money pumped into both Vietnams in the last nine years, 93.8 per cent came out of the pockets of the American taxpayers.

— Since the Paris peace accords were signed in January 1973, the United States has spent $6.6 billion to keep the war going. Russia and China have contributed only $2.7 billion to the Communist side during the same period.

— Since 1945, the United States has donated $128.5 billion in outright gifts to 131 nations and territories. Of this total, a generous $22.5 billion, or 17.5 per cent, went to South Vietnam. This was far more than any other single nation received.

In sum, the American people have supported South Vietnam far more generously than the Communists have supported North Vietnam.

Footnote: Although we have quoted the CIA estimates accurately, a CIA memo adds this caveat: Communist aid "is not equivalent to — and hence not comparable with — U.S. appropriations for military and economic aid to South Vietnam." One reason, said the CIA, was because its information "is very spotty."

CENSORED TRANSCRIPTS: In the explictive-deleting tradition of the former Nixon crowd, Mary Brooks, the queen bee of the U.S. Mint, has censored her testimony before the House Appropriations Committee.

"I wish you could do something about Civil Service," she snapped, "so we can get rid of the drones on our payroll. We are hamstringed. This government is awful."

Drawing on her background as an Idaho rancher, she bluntly told the congressman that she "wouldn't put up from sheepherders" with what she has to ac-

INSIDE REPORT—

Top Advisers Say: Reagan 13, Ford 0

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — President Ford's top political advisers were issued a private warning last week calculated to shatter the pollyanna climate at the White House: under today's conditions, Ronald Reagan would sweep delegates from the 13 Southern and Border states against Gerald R. Ford in a race for the Republican nomination.

Evans Novak

That assessment came from the Republican chairmen of those 13 states, meeting secretly at the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel here April 14. Three Ford aides, who came to the hotel from the White House, were informed the President's prospects in the South were irretrievable unless plans for 1976 were started now — and not one day later.

The upshot: the state chairmen perceived a sympathetic ear from political counselor Robert Hartmann and his deputy, Jack Calkins. But their consensus was that the third and most important Ford adviser attending the meeting, White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld, went away unmoved and unimpressed.

When the state chairmen compared notes before the presidential aides arrived, they were amazed by the unanimous report of Reagan strength — even in the Border states of Oklahoma and Kentucky. Florida state chairman Bill Taylor reported a big Reagan lead in his state's early presidential primary that could knock President Ford out of the race.

These results were presented to the Ford aides by Clarke Reed of Mississippi, leader of the Southern chairmen, who stressed this was no anti-Ford conspiracy but a sincere effort to help the President. Richard M. Nixon started running for reelection the day he entered the White House, Reed said, but Mr. Ford has done nothing. Since better than half the Southern delegates in 1976 will be picked in primaries rather than conventions, he warned, the President cannot pull together backroom support at the eleventh hour but must build state organizations which require time to perfect.

The only unpleasant moment came when Reed, analyzing the President's Southern problems, criticized him for not duplicating what Nixon did about the Voting Rights Act (now limited to the Deep South): propose that it either be repealed or extended to all 50 states.

Mr. Ford "didn't have the guts" to make that proposal, said Reed. Rumsfeld flared up at that as casting aspersions on the President's courage. Reed then corrected himself to say he really meant the President's staff, not the President, lacked guts. Hartmann somewhat cryptically responded he could agree with Reed about that.

A footnote: Reagan's political advisers are not interested in Gov. Meldrim Thompson of New Hampshire as a stand-in against Mr. Ford in the state's first-in-the-nation primary, immediately preceding Florida's. Thompson has revealed his interest in a favorite-son candidacy. But if Thompson has a good chance to beat the President in New Hampshire, Reagan has an even better one and ought to get the credit himself, his advisers believe.

Percy and Israel

Despite harsh attacks on him by the American-Jewish community, a forthcoming report by Sen. Charles H. Percy on his recent Mideast tour courageously calls on Israel to establish speedy contact with the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO), in Israel's own interest and long-run security.

The Percy report, to be submitted to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee soon, also warns Israel — in carefully temperate language — that it must exhibit more flexibility in negotiating with the Arabs or risk losing some U.S. support. American aid is essential to Israel's military strength and economy.

When Percy returned from a Mideast trip earlier this year, his demand that both Israel and the Arab states show more flexibility, coupled with his warning that Israel risks the loss of U.S. political backing, resulted in what one Percy aide called a "firestorm" of criticism from American Jews. Percy's official report on his trip, while striking a critical balance between Israel and the Arabs, holds to that line.

The most controversial portion of the Senator's findings is his appeal for Israel to deal openly with the Palestinians. His thesis: until the West Bank is returned to the Palestinians, there is no chance for an overall political settlement and no hope for real Israeli security.

Percy's demands on the Arabs include an end to the anti-Israel boycott, the start of trade, assurances of non-belligerency and the free passage of both Israeli cargoes and Israeli-flag ships through the Suez Canal.
