NUMBER THIRTY-TWO

Democratic Primary Election to be Held Tomorrow

The primary election Saturday will be held in City Hall with B. L. Russell, democratic precinct chairman, presiding. He will be assisted by a corps of clerks. The polls will open at 8 a. m., war time, and close at 7 p. m.

Old people or those not physically able to climb the steps may vote as a clerk will go to their car at the sidewalk to take their ballot.

The vote in the Baird precinct is estimated at around 900. There are 705 poll taxes paid, 36 exemptions, those who will be 21 before the general election, and it is estimated that there are 150 or more over 60 years of age who will vote.

We understand a bulletin board will be erected on the north side of the Vaughn building where the vote will be shown and all are invited to come in and get the returns.

The absentee voting has been heavier than in former elections, due to so many men being away in the service of their country.

Except for the County Commissioners' races in three precincts, there is little interest in Callahan County politics this year.

Most of the interest is being manifested by the congressional race involving W. Lee O'Daniel, Dan Moody and Jimmy Allred, one, a veteran observer said.

There are 32 candidates for commissioner in precincts Nos. 2, 3 and 4, including the incumbents in the latter two instances. H. A. Warren is unopposed for reelection in precinct No. 1 (Baird), and Mrs. H. B. Straley, who is filling out the unexpired term of her husband, is not in the race. She lives at Oplin and her husband resigned several months ago to enlist in the navy.

A number of the unopposed candidates have been in office for many years. There is the case of the county treasurer, Mrs. Will McCoy, for instance. A widow and member of a pioneer Callahan county ranch family, she has held office 16 years.

District Attorney J. R. Black of the 42nd judicial court, has no opponent as usual. In his 16 years in office, Black, a Callahan countian, has never been opposed.

County Attorney F. E. Mitchell, again unopposed, has held office 10 years. A former school teacher in his mid-50's, he too has never had an opponent. Before being elected to the office he now holds, Mitchell taught school in many communities over the county.

The county school superintendent's race is a bit unusual with Mrs. Sidney Foy, secretary to the present superintendent, B. C. Chrisman, entering the race. After announcing for the office, she continued working until campaigning time. Chrisman has taken a couple of hitches in the office. He served for some time and then resigned to run for county judge. Being unsuccessful, he taught school four years and then was elected to the office again. He is rounding out his second four-year term. Mrs. Foy taught school a number of years before going to work in the office.

Sheriff C. R. Nurdyke, finishing his second term, is opposed by Lee Ivey, Baird stockman and trader and city nightwatchman during days of beer here. Nurdyke was deputy under Sheriff Robert Edwards eight years and was elected when Edwards "stepped down" four years ago.

In the state representative's race of the 107th district, Omar Burkett, incumbent, is opposed by Cleve Callaway of Cross Plains, hotelman and former oil operator.

Others unopposed include B. B. Freeland, county judge who is completing his first term; Raymond Young, district clerk, finishing his second term; Leslie Bryant, county clerk, first term; and Mrs. T. W. Briscoe, county tax assessor-collector and formerly of Clyde, who also is completing her first term.

Candidates for commissioner precinct No. 2 (that's the Oplin area) are W. R. Johnson, merchant; Philip Preston, farmer and former car salesman; Lucie Warren and B. M. Baum,

R. R. Commissioner Beauford Jester For

Pledging efficient operations of the Texas Railroad Commission in gearing Texas oil and transportation systems to the war effort, Beauford H. Jester of Corsicana is entering the final phase of his first primary campaign for the unexpired term on the commission.

"We are rolling along at a fine pace," Jester says in surveying the work which has been done in his less-than-a-month of political life.

It is the first campaign for public office for the Corsicana lawyer who was an infantry captain in the first world war and who has announced he seeks the railroad commission post to render a war service to his State and nation.

"In these days when petroleum means so much to our fighting machine and when transportation is the real key to keeping our men at the front supplied with their necessary materials, the railroad commission's job is one of the greatest war services available," Jester declares.

Denied readmission to the armed forces with which he served overseas in 1917-18, due to physical disqualification, Jester has pledged that Texas oil and transportation shall not prove bottlenecks for men in the armed forces.

Jester, whose father was elected Lieutenant Governor of Texas in 1894, is a member of a pioneer Navarro County family. He served as chairman of the board of regents of the University of Texas from 1933 to 1935, and is generally credited with having been the man most responsible for the University's great building program of the 30's.

A member of the Methodist church in which he has taught a men's Bible class since 1924, he has held several offices of trust with the Bar Associations of his county and state, and with several other leading civic groups. From 1935 to 1942 he was a member of the State Advisory Board of NYA.

In addition to his war program for the commission, Jester has said that he favors the return of oil production control to the railroad commission after the war. For the duration, the State's oil and transportation must be tied with the production and transportation of the other 47 members of the Union, he says, but afterward, State's rights must be revived.

Economic collapse in the post-war world may be avoided by today's planning for reabsorption of men in the armed forces into their civilian duties, Jester says, and he has advocated that the commission immediately begin cooperative planning with the oil and transportation industries to this end.

Allred Presses Victory Paced Senate Campaign

Pushing his aggressive win-the-war, win-the-peace U. S. Senate campaign at what observers freely predicted was a victory-paced march, James V. Allred drove home to Texans this week his plea for a "fighting Texas Senator" in Congress.

Coupling his demand for all-out "1,000 percent" support of President Roosevelt's war program with that of "a Senator from Texas who has a vision for peace as well," Allred said that now that we are engaged in a war for the preservation of our ideals, "we must not forget the land we defend, the land which now as in the future must supply our food."

Allred declared for full 100 percent parity for agriculture, and paid tribute to farming as "the mudsill of our democracy, providing the food and fiber for winning this war."

"For a long time farmers have been the victims of protective tariffs," he said. "They are entitled to equality with all other groups. It is especially important in war time that the farmer's income should be sufficient to meet the cost of producing and processing farm commodities. Better wages and better living conditions in the cities cause desertion in the ranks of farm labor. To encourage continued production of food and farm commodities to war materials, the farmer will have to figure his labor at a price that will enable farm tenants and laborers to maintain a decent standard of living. If the farm or ranch income is so low that the landowner cannot pay a fair price for farm labor, the standard of living of farm groups will fall to lower levels."

"Maintenance and increase of the purchasing power of farmers, ranchers and farm laborers will improve business conditions in every city. A sound economic status with prosperous agriculture is essential to the prosperity of us all."

"To improve the standards of farm living, we must look forward to a broad program of rural electrification and make similar benefits available to every farm family in the state."

The immediate task, he continued, is to win the war, but when that job is done the country "must be prepared to absorb the greatest shock in all history."

"The problem will be to convert our war industry into manufacturing plants that will implement constructive enterprise," Allred declared. "The vast supply of war materials must be revamped and made to serve humanity in the most efficient manner man can devise."

Mrs. Hill made the trip with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cutbirth who visited Mrs. Cutbirth's sister, Mrs. Sue Moseley and husband at their ranch near Sierra Blanco.

Draftees With Dependents Get New Deferment

Local draft boards were directed by Selective Service headquarters tonight to postpone induction of married men with dependents until all other sources of manpower for the armed forces have been exhausted.

A statement of policy, issued by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, established the order in which seven classifications were to be utilized for draft calls, and also contained a list of 34 essential activities compiled by the war manpower commission.

The order in which local boards were instructed to consider registrants for induction was: (1) single men with no dependents; (2) single men with dependents, but not contributing to the war effort; (3) single men with dependents, and who contribute to the war effort; (4) married men, not engaged in the war effort, living with wife and children, or children only; and (7) married men, engaged in the war effort, and living with wife and children, or children only.

In all cases said the statement, the dependency must date from before December 8, 1941.

The list of essential activities: Production of aircraft and parts; ships, boats and parts; ordnance and accessories; ammunition; agriculture; food processing; forestry, logging and lumbering; construction; coal mining; metal mining; non-metallic mining and processing and quarrying; smelting, refining and rolling metals; production of metal shapes and forgings; finishing of metal products; production of industrial and agricultural equipment; machinery; chemical and allied products; rubber products; leather products; textiles; apparel; stone, clay and glass products; petroleum, natural-gas and petroleum and coal products; transportation equipment; transportation services; materials for packing and shipping products; communications equipment; communications services; heating, power and illuminating services; repair and handtrade services (blacksmithing, armature rewinding, electrical and bicycle repair, automobile repair, harness and leather repair, clock repair, tool repair and sharpening); health and welfare services; educational services; governmental services.

LONG MAY WE REMEMBER THE PRESENT RUBBER CAMPAIGN FOR NAT'L DEFENSE

Dixon and Aldrich and Pastula. Do you remember? The three Navy fliers whose plane went down in mid-Pacific, who existed thirty-four days and journeyed a thousand miles and lived through a typhoon, on a rubber life-raft eight feet long and four feet wide—Now do you remember?

The men who, barely alive, came to shore standing up because they didn't want any Japs to find them crawling... Yes, you remember. Remember them, every time you use your car, that the rubber built into it and the rubber on its wheels would have made four of those life rafts... like that which saved Dixon and Aldrich and Pastula.

The worn-out tire in the corner of the garage, the leaky hot-water bottle, the old galoshes.

They aren't of any use, but they're more precious than gold.

The Army needs every scrap of rubber the nation can dig out of its cellars and attics and garages.

It takes three-quarters of a pound of reclaimed rubber to make a gas mask, thirty pounds to make a tire for a big bomber. And 45,000 pounds go into the building of a battleship.

Those old rubbers in the hall closet might help make a machine-gun mount. Dig 'em out.

The war has struck the nursery. Rubber for baby pants has been prohibited.

American mothers can ponder the fact that the rubber used on one month's manufacture of baby pants can make 2,800 rubber life-rafts for ocean-prowling U. S. war planes.

Combs have been made of gold and silver and jade, of ivory and tortoiseshell, of copper and celluloid and even of iron.

But they're not going to be made of rubber. Not now.

A single month's rubber supply of the comb factories is enough to put tires on 1,700 eight-wheeled two-and-a-half ton Army trucks.

That rubber will still get in somebody's hair.

Eighteen cars don't look like many in a parking lot.

But they've got a ton of rubber on their wheels and built into them.

That's just how much is needed for every four-engine bomber.

The kind the Japs saw over Tokyo and Yokohama and Kobe.

Junior isn't going to get any new rubber bands for his slingshots, and Sis is going to have to tie up those letters from Charlie with a piece of string.

We used to turn six million pounds of crude rubber into thirty

Leaky garden hoses will be in fashion this year. And next year. And until the war is won.

That precious rubber is going to put tires on the carriages for 8,500 "seventy-fives, 6,800 37mm. anti-aircraft guns and still leave enough over to make 600 pontoons for Army bridges.

The Army is going to travel a long way on the garden hose you're not going to get.

One pair of overshoes, plus one hot-water bottle, plus a tennis ball, plus a child's playball, equal a pair of rubber knee boots for the Army.

A bathing cap or shower cap uses as much rubber as ten panoramic telescopes.

Another demonstrator planning a frame garden for a part of her home food supply work, is Mrs. Carl Cook, Home Food Supply Demonstrator for the Midway H.D. Club. Fresh vegetables can be supplied through use of a frame garden most months of the year, and since they are higher in food values, demonstrators are glad to make use of them in their demonstrations.

A lot of homemakers lately have been asking, "How can I get rid of ants, especially in the kitchen?"

Here's an answer from Cameron Siddall, entomologist for the A. and M. College Extension Service. He says methods for controlling ants are based on the way ants live—that is, in nests or colonies. The queens live in the nests and are fed by the worker ants. Those are the ants you see running about looking for food.

The secret of getting rid of ants is to locate the nest and destroy the queen and the young ants. When you do that, the worker ants won't live very long. Follow the trail of the ants to where they disappear. Try to fill the nest with a little carbon disulphide. — or if you can't get carbon disulphide use kerosene or gasoline. Remember though: These are inflammable materials. Don't smoke or have any fire nearby while you use them.

If you can't find the ant colony, try poisoned syrup as bait. Or sprinkle sodium fluoride — powder along the edges of the kitchen floor. And of course, sweep up all crumbs promptly and keep your food supplies in tight containers. That's good ant prevention.

The best advice, after all, is: Destroy the ants home, before they invade yours.

John Fisher was in Putnam Saturday with a big rattlesnake story. He said he had killed one about four and one-half feet long and had 12 rattles he had cut from the snake. There are plenty of snakes this year since a number of people have reported killing rattlesnakes in the community this spring.

RESTRICTIONS ON PHONE CALLS MAY BE APPLIED SOON

The possibility that the government may have to impose priorities on telephone calls, particularly long distance ones, was hinted recently.

Chairman James L. Fly, of the communications commission told a press conference that long distance calls had increased more than fifty per cent in the last 18 months and that unless telephone use was cut down voluntarily there might be no escape from "undesirable alternatives."

While he said he hesitated to speculate, he mentioned as possible steps to ease the burden on telephone lines: Banning certain classes of businesses, shifting some types of business to certain hours, or a system of priorities.

The latter would be, in effect, rationing with lines reserved for most important purposes.

Only last week, the Board of War Communications asked telephone companies to do what they could to encourage a reduction in both local and long distance calls.

Important long distance calls relating to the war effort, it said, had suffered long delays in some instances because of jammed circuits.

Fly said that during May, 15 per cent of all toll calls were delayed by busy circuits.

YOU FLATFOOTED? WEB TOED? ARMY WILL GET YOU

There will be no more jokes about flat feet in this war.

The Army has eliminated them and dozens of other minor physical defects from the restrictions which barred many men from military service.

It even will take men with webbed fingers or toes if they can wear military shoes.

A communication to local draft boards from Major John D. Copeland, Jr. of State Selective Service headquarters at Austin recently, outlined twenty such defects which will not keep men in Class I-B from being drafted to fill calls for many types of limited service.

Exemptions Scrapped You are now apt to get into the Army even if:

Your chest circumference and weight are not within former limits.

You have 20-400 vision in each eye if correctible to 20-40 (about half perfect) in either eye.

One eye is completely blind (if not due to progressive organic disease) and the other has vision of not less than 20-200, correctible to 20-40.

Hearing in one or both ears is even half good.

Both external ears are gone, provided you have followed a useful vocation in civil life.

You have unilateral atresia of the external auditory canal.

You have insufficient teeth to qualify for I-A, but the condition is correctible by dentures.

Your spine is less than three inches off line.

Three fingers are gone from either hand, including the right index finger, provided the thumb remains.

You have moderate deformities of one or both arms.

You have knock-ankle, your great toe is gone, you have hammer toe or other foot defects provided you can wear an Army shoe.

You have moderate deformities of one or both legs, a deformity of the clavicle, ribs, or scapula of a degree not preventing you from successfully following a useful vocation in civil life or if you have moderate Frohlich's syndrome.

By the end of 1942 Army Air Forces plan to have 1,000,000 officers and men with an eventual strength of 2,000,000.

CALLAHAN BAPTISTS EMPLOY MISSIONARY FOR SUMMER MONTHS

The Callahan County Baptist Association, at a meeting of the Board at Baird last week employed a missionary for the summer months beginning Wednesday, July 15th. The Rev. John T. Allen of Fort Worth was employed. The work as outlined for the missionary is to hold revival meetings in rural communities where there is no regular preaching. His first meeting will be at Midway, beginning Friday night July 17th.

The Rev. Allen is a graduate of the University of Florida, and also of the Southwestern Baptist Seminary at Fort Worth. Baptist especially as well as all others are urged to cooperate with the missionary in the work over the county.

Was It Courtesy?

During World War I, German bombers over London were expressly forbidden by the Kaiser to drop bombs where any members of the British royal family resided.

During 1940, 18,715 persons visited Idaho's Craters of the Moon National Monument.

Credit for development of a system by which a machine gun could shoot through the propeller is given to French flyer, Leonard Garrors.

EASTLAND PUBLIC SCHOOLS FILE BANKRUPTCY PETITION

According to the Elbing Star Record a legal notice appeared in the Eastland Telegram Tuesday of last week in which the Eastland Independent School District filed a petition in the United District court in bankruptcy. The hearing is set for August 28th, at Abilene, Texas.

This is what generally happens to an individual, or political body when they get wreckless with their spending and continue to spend more than they are taking in. Excessive spending is like taking more water from a well than it will produce, the well goes dry.

War Research

In war the advantage is on the side with the best weapons. The work of scientists in America's research laboratories, developing new materials and new equipment, means a lot to our fighting men.

1. It takes years to build up and equip a large, organized, and able staff for research. Fortunately, industry did this long ago.

2. Long before Pearl Harbor, laboratories like General Electric's were serving their country—solving technical problems of war.

3. History repeats! In the last war "wireless" was developed for military needs—to become, with peace, a giant broadcasting industry.

4. So it will be this time. Research will help to win the war, and its many wartime discoveries will help to build a better future.

General Electric believes that its first duty as a good citizen is to be a good soldier.

W. Lee O'Daniel And The War

A Story Every True Texan Will Understand

By J. FRANK DOBIE

"And so, my friends," W. Lee O'Daniel says, "We don't need to discuss the war effort in this Senate campaign." If you were one of a party of men perishing of thirst on a vast desert, would you refuse to discuss all plans for finding water? If you were in the midst of a great factory that had been set on fire all around you, what would you think of a leader who refused to consider ways of fighting the fire and getting out? "We don't need to discuss the war effort," according to Senator W. Lee O'Daniel, because the war is virtually over. He refused to face the cold facts while war was coming, just as he now refuses to face them while the war is being fought. As Governor of Texas during National Defense Week, he merely said: "We hear a lot of howling in Europe, but they aren't going to do us any harm over here." That was his prophesy. "There ain't gonna be no war."

Early in 1941 the Texas Legislature passed a resolution calling on the American government to convoy war goods to Great Britain. As everybody knows, the leader in the United States Senate against selective service, against all preparation for war, against selling arms to England, against standing up like free men in facing Hitler, was Senator Burton K. Wheeler. Well, when W. Lee O'Daniel entered the Senate officially for the first time, the first senator to wring his hand was this Roosevelt-hating isolationist—Burton K. Wheeler. This was in August, 1941.

The first vote cast by the junior senator from Texas was to disband the army and send the boys home. "There ain't gonna be no war."

Then the senator worked against the government's proposal to build a pipeline from Texas. He came back to Texas and boasted that he had killed the pipeline. Certain oil and gas interests who had financed his campaign the Texas pipeline. But he hasn't changed his tune.

The liberties of all mankind are at stake and whole nations have been enslaved. The most powerful, pitiless, brutal thugs ever let loose on the world are bombing its children, raping its women, and torturing its men. And this man O'Daniel has never shown a thimbleful of rage against the brutes or an ounce of sympathy for the victims. The Nazis have again and again boasted that they would conquer the world by lies, and this man O'Daniel has never once risen to plead the cause of truth. He smiles and chants "There ain't gonna be no war." What sort of blood runs in his veins?

He has quit boasting of how he spiked with shotguns of fuel, Senator O'Daniel on gasoline, factories are threatened tankers on sight, the East is rationed how to vote. Now substitutes sink off the mustard senator in shining. "There ain't gonna be no war." They joined in the war with their monopoly of butter, and did not want a pipeline.

We have not retaken one inch of territory seized by Japan. For months our men fought like tigers in the Philippines, but now the Japanese hold all that land. We called Corregidor "the Gibraltar of the Pacific," and they took it. They took our bases at Guam and Wake Island. They took Hong Kong, Singapore, Java and Burma from our allies. Yet, according to this prophet W. Lee O'Daniel the war is about over. The Germans are pushing the Russians back in Russia. The Germans, as this is written, are on the edge of the Suez Canal and the oil fields of the Middle East. They are murdering civilians by the hundreds of thousands in conquered countries. But "There ain't gonna be no war." Mr. O'Daniel, however, has had a connection with the army that he is too modest to mention. I am not referring to his career during the First World War, when he was young and vigorous and somehow kept out of the army. In those days he had painted the Stars and Stripes on his automobile to show how patriotic he was—and to advertise the flour he was peddling. His connection with the army is more recent than that.

While he was governor, there was much activity in the National Guard. A great deal of the paper work connected with the National Guard was done at Camp Mabry, on the outskirts of Austin. Governor O'Daniel has never been able to get along without hired musicians. He put several of these hired musicians on the payroll at Camp Mabry. Their services there consisted mostly of drawing their monthly pay. They furnished the patriotic governor the political music he regularly gave out on Sundays and on other occasions.

In the first campaign for governor that O'Daniel made in Texas he sang "Pappy pass the biscuits," and dodged all issues. In the second campaign for governor, he talked about "professional politicians" and dodged all issues. In the third—his sensational senatorial campaign last year—he sang "There ain't gonna be no war," and dodged all issues.

On the night of June 22, 1942, in a speech at Austin, Texas, to a small and unresponsive crowd, Senator W. Lee O'Daniel said: "Professional politicians got us into this war." That is the way he meets the issues now. That is the way he remembers Pearl Harbor. That is his answer to declarations of war by Germany and Italy against the United States. He says that it is up to Roosevelt to win the war. That is the O'Daniel plan for national cooperation.

No citizen can get away from the war. It is a total war. A year or two years from now the people will realize much more intimately how total and terrible the war is. American soldiers and sailors by the tens of thousands will lie dead at the bottom of the seas and oceans of the world and on the continents and islands stretching from the equator to the poles.

The Texas tradition is a fighting tradition, and already in this war the Texans have drawn upon themselves the eyes of the world. On San Jacinto Day last April, the Texas boys on besieged Corregidor sang "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You." One day last month a thousand Texas boys were sworn in together at Houston to avenge the Japanese sinking of the S. S. Houston. Before the United States was bombed into the war, so many Texans had volunteered for the Canadian Air Force that this magnificent body of men was jokingly called the Royal Texas Canadian Air Force. Among the 79 men that Doolittle led to bomb Tokio, there were 19 Texans—a fourth of the force.

The Flying Tigers in Burma and China are distinguished by Texans. While one of their daring leaders called "Kirk of San Saba" flies obsolete planes, Mr. O'Daniel campaigns with five luxurious touring cars, two sound trucks and one station wagon.

No man claiming to represent a people ever stood more isolated from them than W. Lee O'Daniel stands today among the Texans. While he glides over the smooth highways of Texas on the thirty-two wheels of rubber that his campaign caravan "conserves," the United States Congress appropriates over $10,000,000 for carrying on the war. This is the greatest appropriation for war any nation in the history of the world ever made. It is greater than all World War I cost America. And while the nation forges, strives, arms, goes down in ships, goes over the waters to fight and die, the mighty scene brings from Mr. O'Daniel only a galvanized chant: "There ain't gonna be no rationing. There ain't gonna be no run-off." The nations of all the world are clanking in iron. All the rights and freedoms that men have gained through the slow centuries are in the balances. Doomsday itself is at hand. W. Lee O'Daniel asks to be elected to lead us in these most difficult of all times—times that demand the strongest and sincerest characters for leadership. As he asks for votes, he smiles his manufactured smile and yaps out his hired music to the tune of "There Ain't Gonna Be No War."

W. N. Bill Corry

"The Man to Vote For"

CORRY "The Man to Vote For"

Texas needs a good Commissioner of Agriculture to serve during the present crisis and the years ahead. Bill Corry is the kind of man you want to vote for,—a man of experience and action, capable and loyal,—a good man for the job. Corry, native Texan, 41, during an industrious life has had 25 years of practical farming experience, served with Federal Farm Board's Cotton Division and as a Legislator. When the present Commissioner, who now seeks a seventh term, deserted the party in 1940, Corry was called on by Texas Democrats to run in a 10-day write-in campaign and received 453,573 votes for this office even though his name was not printed on the ballot. Corry, as Commissioner, will provide the leadership and aid agriculture in all-out production, in solving many basic farm problems, and in the expansion of our agricultural industries.

Drivers License Must Be Renewed

All Texas Operator's License that have not been renewed since October, 1941, must be renewed by November 1, 1942. All those who fail to renew their license will have to stand an examination by a Driver's License Examiner before they can obtain a new license.

These license may be renewed at the Sheriff's office in Baird, or by Mike Cobb in Cross Plains.

Due to the fact that there is a shortage at the present time of Driver's License Examiners, there will not be an examiner here in Baird until some graduates can take over and that will be for about a month.

Those of you who wish to get new driver's license, commercial operator's, or chauffeur's license, or have commercial operator's or chauffeur's license renewed can go to the Driver's license examiner in Coleman or in Abilene until we get an examiner here. You will be notified when we can take care of this.
