Steadfast Determination Defeats Eagles

By Ray Glasscock

Gone are the days where the Junction Eagles is an automatic victory. This game featured two fine teams each determined to win. Each team played a game to be proud of, and the fans got their money's worth.

For the second week in a row, the Broncos did not win the toss and the other team deferred to the second half. In each game, the Broncos have scored on their first drive of the night in a very short amount of time. How the Broncos did it was totally different. In the first game, Ethan Morriss ran the ball five times and scored the first touchdown. Against Junction, Morriss came out throwing. He completed passes to Will Anderson, Cadesman Pope, and Kris Agüero. Just as it appeared that Morriss' pass would be intercepted, Agüero leaped and gathered in the ball for the first touchdown. The pass play covered 38 yards. Dustin Neff came in and split the uprights for the PAT, and the Broncos had the lead at 7 to 0 with only 90 seconds of the game completed.

The Junction Eagles' first drive went 3 and out. The second Bronco drive lasted only 83 seconds as Tyler Creek caught his touchdown pass near the Eagle 20 yard line and ran past the smaller defenders for a 36-yard touchdown. Neff added the PAT, and the Broncos were up 14 to 0 with 8:14 left in the first quarter.

Coach Sine fooled everybody when he called for an onside kick that the Broncos recovered. Despite completing passes to Caleb Gonzales and Creek, the Eagles forced Neff to try a 30-yard field goal. Neff had plenty of leg, but the kick was just slightly right.

The Eagles got their ground game started on the next drive. It took nine plays before the Broncos forced them to punt. They got the ball back when Zach Badeaux mishandled the punt. Even with a second chance and good field position, the Bronco defense stopped Junction again.

The next Bronco drive covered 74 yards as the Broncos mixed the run and the pass. Morriss completed passes to Anderson, Agüero, Gonzales, Pope, and Badeaux. Badeaux's reception covered 24 yards and resulted in a touchdown. Neff's PAT kick was good and the Broncos seemed to be on their way to an easy win as they led 21 to 0 in the first quarter.

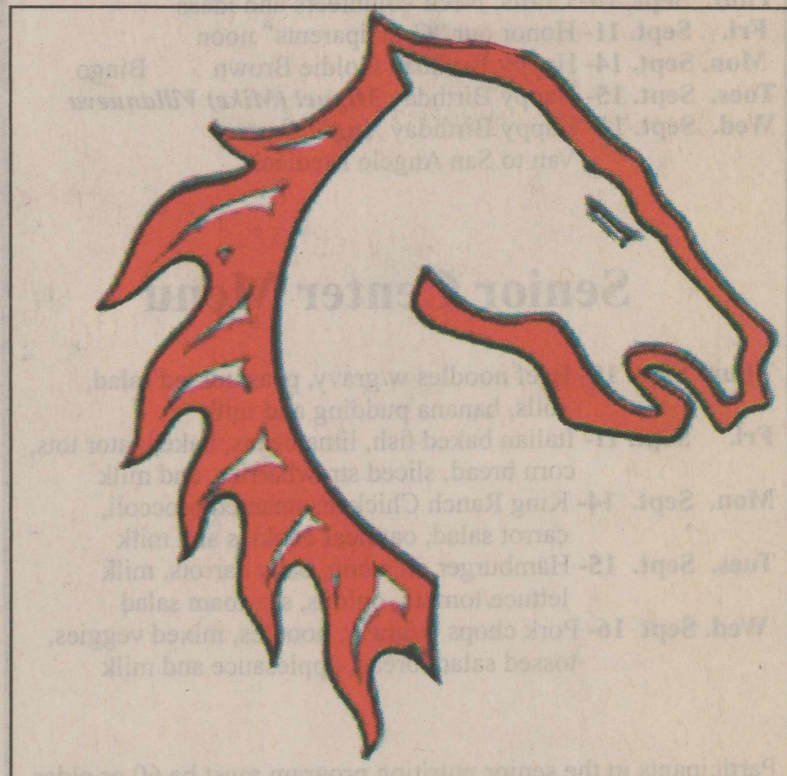

Junction finally responded with a 10-play 73-yard drive that featured Ty Stapp, the younger brother of All-State Dustin Stapp. David Fuentes got the touchdown on a four-yard run. However, the Eagles missed the extra point.

The Eagles got the ball back after Dylan Castillo attempted a fourth down pass from punt formation that fell incomplete. The Eagles capitalized on the unsuccessful gamble. Stapp and Fuentes had success finding some holes to run through. Fuentes scored again on his favorite play to tighten the score at 21 to 12 with 2:50 left in the first half.

The Broncos responded with another lightning fast drive. Morriss rolled to his left and sped down the sideline. Near the Eagle 20 yard line, he cut back across the field and was stopped one yard short of a touchdown. Morriss' run covered 64 yards. Neff got the touchdown on a one yard run. The Eagles put on a fierce rush and blocked Neff's PAT.

The Eagles had one more chance to score in the first half, but Gonzales intercept-

The New Face of the Bronco: Created by One of Our Own

By Shaylane Mayfield

Have you seen it? The Mighty Sonora Bronco has a new look. Gone is the full-bodied image of a bucking stallion. In its place is a fierce profile of a modern day force to be reckoned with. Sonora, you should be proud. The new logo is not from a fancy graphics design company, but is the masterpiece of our own young people.

Head football coach, David Sine sought the creative input of Alberto Tovar and Isaac Quiroz to create a new Bronco image. Alberto drew the first rough drafts, while Isaac ultimately produced the impressive final product. The new logo has an official copy write and is now found on all coaching staffs' clothes, football helmets, and Sonora I.S.D memos.

I was so impressed a product of SHS designed the new Bronco that I sat down with 19-year-old Isaac Quiroz to ask him a few questions about his art and creative process. Isaac almost exclusively draws with pencil and ink. He explained that he often draws a few lines on paper, studies the lines to see what it can become, and then completes the drawing.

Isaac told me it took him about one hour to complete the new Bronco logo. Coach Sine is not the only person who has sought Isaac's ability to draw. As more people recognize Isaac's gift, he finds himself being asked to design anything from car decals, tattoos, and possibly new logos for various city projects. When asked if he would like to pursue a career with his art, Isaac says that he would like to obtain a tattooing permit.

Isaac is proud to have been part of the Mighty Sonora Bronco football team. He says he loved football and thinks it is special to be remembered for his actions on the field and the memories he made. I say, Isaac, people will remember you and continue to recognize you for your artistic contributions for years to come.

I cannot imagine the Sonora Broncos represented by any other mascot. The Broncos reflect our heritage perfectly and are well represented by a population that is mighty as one, but forms an impressive stampede when joined together.

Fences Keep Out Feral Hog Moochers at Deer Feeders

OVERTON — Farmers and ranchers may be inadvertently aiding and abetting one of their worst enemies, the feral hog, by providing supplemental feed for white-tailed deer and other wildlife, said a Texas AgriLife Extension Service wildlife expert.

But a new study conducted at the Welder Wildlife Foundation near Sinton showed that it is possible to design fencing that allows deer access to feeders while excluding feral hogs, said Dr. Billy Higginbotham, AgriLife Extension fisheries and wildlife specialist.

In Texas alone, feral hogs cause $52 million of damage to crops and pastures annually, he said.

"And that does not include damage to wildlife food plots, wildlife feeds and feeders, or to recreational areas like parks, golf courses and landscapes," Higginbotham said.

In an attempt to curtail the damage, landowners hunt and trap feral hogs, he said. But at the same time, Texas hunters and landowners put out approximately 300 million pounds of shelled corn annually, primarily for white-tailed deer, spending an estimated $50 million. Feral hogs crash the party by raiding the feeding sites and eating the corn, often preventing deer and other wildlife from visiting at all.

Fencing seemed the answer to the problem, he said, but how high was high enough to stop hogs and low enough to admit deer?

To answer this question Higginbotham devised a cooperative study with Dr. Tyler Campbell, wildlife biologist and station leader at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wildlife Services-National Wildlife Research Center near Kingsville.

Higginbotham and Campbell enclosed deer-feeder sites with fences of three heights: 20 inches, 28 inches and 34 inches.

All fences used six 16-foot long panels, staked with steel T-posts and arranged in a circular pattern around feeders. During July and August, remote sensing cameras, which are tripped by motion, were used to record deer and feral hog traffic. The cameras recorded traffic before the fencing was erected and then for two weeks after in late July and early August.

Before the fencing, the automatic cameras recorded 5.3, 3.1 and 4.7 hog visits per hour for sites no. 1 (34-inch fence), no. 2 (28-inch fence) and no. 3 (20-inch fence), respectively. Deer visits per hour were 0.8, 1.4 and 0.1 respectively for sites 1, 2 and 3.

Once the fencing was installed, all three heights limited feral-hog access, but the two highest fences excluded them completely. To a small degree, the 34-inch fencing and the 28-inch fencing limited some deer access as well, but the overall effect on deer traffic was minimal as they could easily jump the fences, Higginbotham said.

With the fencing, hog visits per hour were reduced to 0.0, 0.0 and 1.8 for sites 1, 2 and 3 respectively. Deer visits per hour were negligibly reduced to 0.66 from 0.8 for the 34-inch fencing, but actually doubled for the 24-inch fencing and more than quadrupled for the 20-inch fencing, he said.

And why the increase of deer visits for the two lower height fencing?

Higginbotham posits that deer started visiting the feeders once "the neighborhood improved" as the hogs were excluded.

"We don't know for sure but that's a good bet," he said.

Because of these results, Higginbotham and Campbell are recommending 28-inch fencing.

The 28-inch high panels worked as well as the 34-inch high panels at excluding hogs," Higginbotham said. "Therefore, 60-inch wide panels can be purchased and ripped lengthwise down the middle to create a least-cost enclosure."

The cost of the panels and T-posts was $115 for the 20-inch high fencing, $170 for the 28-inch, and $187 for the 34-inch, he said.

However, Higginbotham said, landowners should not use this data to reduce the standard height of trap cages, which is usually 60 inches.

"I have always believed that the height of a fence necessary to keep feral hogs out was lower than the height necessary to keep feral hogs in," he said. "We'll repeat the trials this winter to better assess whether the fence heights limit fawn access to the feeders."

Spotlight on Sonora – Just in Time for Homecoming

The Sonora Economic Development Corporation has published two new brochures designed to assist visitors and residents in exploring the natural assets and historical interests that our community has to offer.

The self-guided Nature Tour spotlights The Caverns of Sonora, Eaton Hill Wildlife Sanctuary, the Community Prayer Garden and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. The Experiment Station was established in 1915 and has made invaluable contributions to the ranching industry in a variety of areas. Ongoing scientific research continues to generate innovations in ranch management and conservation.

The new Eaton Hill Nature Center is located at the top of City Hill Road, which is directly across from the doors of the Sutton County Library. The historic Eaton House is being transformed into an interpretive center with exhibits reflecting natural and human history of the region, including the prehistoric mastodon tusk found in the draw near the Sonora Golf Course.

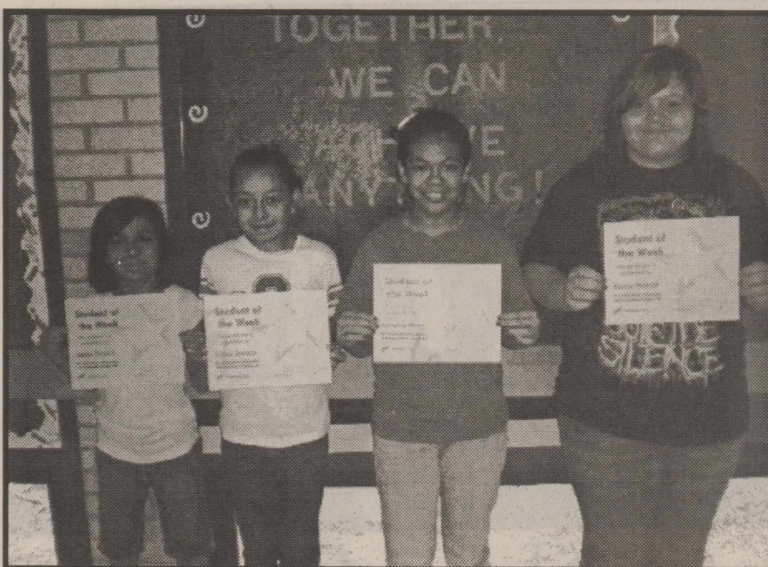

Sonora's Community Prayer Garden offers an extraordinarily beautiful setting- perfect for reflection, celebration and photography.

The Caverns of Sonora, a National Landmark and the backbone of Sonora's tourism industry is world renowned for its exquisite and rare formations, drawing visitors from all over the planet.

Sonora's new self-guided Heritage Tour leads visitors along the path that outlaw Will Carver took in his final hours on April 2, 1901. The tour spotlights 18 historical points of interest including the beautifully restored Sutton County Courthouse and Mercantile Building, all within a comfortable walking distance. A short drive to the cemetery offers a glimpse at Carver's grave; marked only with the date of his demise. Also included on the tour are three local museums: The Miers Home, Veterans of All Wars/Pioneer Ranch Women and the Old Ice House Ranch museums. This brochure is an excellent tool for bringing local history to life and both residents and visitors will enjoy taking in the sights and stories of early Sonora.

Brochures are available in numerous locations including the Downtown Main Street office, Chamber of Commerce, Sonora EDC office, Devil's River News and Eaton Hill Nature Center.

Questions About Hunting Season: Deer and Drought

By Pascual Hernandez,
Sutton County Agricultural Extension Agent

With September, comes the start of hunting season (dove season). That got me to wondering what the season will hold for deer hunting. Though we've enjoyed a good spring, many parts of Texas have been under drought going back to last year.

The drought central and south Texas have been experiencing is of great concern to land managers there. While livestock can be removed, that is not the case with wildlife. We know that the key to viable wildlife populations is maintaining good habitat. That is a difficult task, however, because the current drought has led to a lack of forage production, which will negatively affect deer.

The most negative impact the drought has had on deer relates to the lack of forb production. Generally, forb availability and quality is high during spring and early summer and declines during the latter part of summer. This year, many areas saw very little forb production during the spring or summer. This is a critical time period for females producing and raising fawns, when their protein requirements are relatively high. Lack of suitable-quality forage probably will not have a large impact on adult survival, but if does cannot acquire adequate nutrients, fawn survival and recruitment is adversely impacted. In addition, a drought-induced reduction in herbaceous growth will result in reduced herbaceous cover, which, in turn, may lower fawn survival due to increased predation of fawns.

The lack of fawn survival and recruitment can have significant management implications. Most land managers seriously making efforts to manage white-tailed deer on their property are aware of the need to harvest female deer for population control. A common reaction in response to reduced fawn survival is to decrease doe harvest. However, if past attempts at harvesting adequate numbers of does have fallen short of the desired goal, this might be the year to stay the course.

Hot, dry summers are the norm for Texas, and deer have evolved and adapted to cope with them. This drought will probably not have a long-term effect on south Texas deer populations, but it certainly has the potential to have some short-term effects. The other concern, however, is the hampered economy. How much of an impact will it have on hunters' participation in this hunting season?

Cattle prices Could Move Higher as a Result of Less Supply

COLLEGE STATION – With more people eating at home as a result of the recession, an improved economy could encourage consumers to spend more money eating out in the coming months, which could be good news for cattle producers later this year and into 2010, said a Texas AgriLife Extension Service livestock economist.

"Do you think a new trend has been started with fewer people eating out and more eating at home?," asked Dr. David Anderson, AgriLife Extension Service livestock marketing economist at the recent 55th Texas A&M Beef Cattle Short Course. "Some of my colleagues think so. If the economy rebounds, I think not. That's going to lead to higher cattle prices when taking into consideration fewer overall cow inventory numbers."

Cattle prices will continue to their seasonal lows this summer, an expected pattern as producers sell off calf crops. But there's higher volume at auction markets in certain parts of the state due to drought. From Austin extending throughout South Central Texas, ranchers are coping with one of the worst droughts ever, Anderson said.

The southern region of the country is in the most extreme drought area, according to the U.S. Drought Monitor, and accounts for 6 percent of the nation's total beef supply (more than 2 million beef cows are in the area) as ranchers further reduce herds, Anderson said. AgriLife Extension economists have estimated $3.6 billion in losses, and that number could eclipse the $4.1 billion mark set in 2006. The only alternatives for ranchers who don't have grass is either to move animals to rented pasture where forage is sufficient or sell herds that have taken years to assemble.

With ongoing drought, Texas beef cow numbers continue to decrease. Nationally, that's having an effect on the overall U.S. beef cow inventory, Anderson said. "We're producing fewer cows and consequently less beef," Anderson said.

Dairy producers are also taking a hit. The average producer cost for milk is $16 per hundredweight and income is $11 per hundredweight. When you factor in the woes of both the dairy and beef industry, it doesn't paint a bright picture on the supply side. "I'm projecting fewer beef cows for next year and on into 2011," he said.

The downturn in the economy has also led to more consumption of lower-priced beef, Anderson said. The recession is the main cause as consumers continue to be cautious on how they spend their money and are looking for value at grocery outlets.

He expects cattle prices to move upward in 2010 if the current cow slaughter continues. That, coupled with an improved economy, could "trend calf prices even higher," Anderson said. For more information about the beef short course, visit <http://beef.tamu.edu>.

ed a halfback pass. The score at the end of the half was 27 to 12.

The Eagles took the second half kickoff and marched 68 yards on 11 plays for their third touchdown. Stapp got the touchdown on a five-yard run and their PAT kick was good. The score was now 27 to 19.

The next three drives ended with punts or lost fumbles. On one of the drives, Castillo made a bone-jarring hit right in front of me.

Near the nine minute mark in the fourth quarter, Sonora scored their last and game winning touchdown. After a super run by Neff was called back for an unsportsmanlike penalty, the Broncos were facing third and long. Badeaux made a diving catch for a first down. Two plays later, he caught another pass, sped past two tacklers, and dove into the end zone as he was able to barely keep from falling.

Neff kicked the PAT to log Sonora's final points for a 34 to 19 lead with 9:08 left in the game.

No one told the Eagles that they were beaten. They responded with a touchdown pass. Much to the Broncos' relief, they missed another PAT.

They tried and recovered an onside kick and scored their last touchdown with 21 seconds to go.

The game ended when Badeaux recovered the Eagles' last onside kick.

For the second week in a row, Ethan Morriss had an incredible performance. This week, he ran six times for 69 yards, completed 11 of 19 passes for 311 yards and four touchdowns.

Next week is homecoming as the Broncos return to Sonora to play the Boerne Greyhounds.

JV Football: Eagles Slip By Broncos

By Nancy Glasscock

It was looking very promising that this game was going to finish with a mark in the win column for Sonora's junior varsity football team last Thursday night. It wasn't to be, as the Junction JV Eagles defeated Sonora 7-6.

Edward Garza, Clayton Parks, and Jorge Villaneuva moved the ball down the field in the first quarter of play. Garza lunged across the goal line for the home team's only score. The kick failed. The JV team had two more scoring opportunities that also failed.

The score stood at 6-0 in the JV Broncos' favor until the fourth quarter. On 4th and goal, the JV Eagles surprised the Sonora defenders with a throwback screen to tie the score. Their PAT kick was good to seal the victory.

The JV Broncos are 0-2 this year. The team has an OPEN date on the 10th. Their next opponent is the junior varsity team from Wall on the 17th at Bronco Stadium after the Sonora Freshman play.
