"Is It All Right to Make a Mistake?"

By Vanda Anderson Creech Editor

Bill Pope came by the Review office last week and we had an interesting discussion on various ideas. He inspired me to reflect on a subject we don't address very much ----FAILURE.

He made the statement, "Today's generation doesn't realize that it's all right to fail, as long as you learn something from the experience."

I think he has a point. That old saying, "What doesn't kill you, only makes you stronger," goes along with the same theory.

Last week I heard a couple of sermons about how everyone has problems and that everything we experience along life's path helps us grow. Being a Christian doesn't make your life free of challenges, but it helps you deal with them by asking the Lord for assistance. Trying to go it alone and being the "tough guy" doesn't work well. I fall into this category quite frequently. My husband calls me "little tuffy Anderson". I don't know where he gets that because sometimes I can be a real whimp.

I have never felt comfortable about asking the Lord for financial assistance, but at one low point I made such a request. I wasn't surprised that He came to my rescue, but the amount was almost to the penny. I received a letter offering me the opportunity to sell a tiny oil royalty that I inherited from my grandmother through my dad. I couldn't bring myself to sell the royalty because my grandmother had fought so valiantly to keep it. However, I did learn that He will help in these kinds of trials too.

My husband always says a true failure is someone who gives up on living. You do have more respect for someone who keeps on trying, even when they make mistakes.

Maybe we have made the youth feel like they have to be perfect or successful on their first try. How many people do you know who accomplish that? Another conversation with a newcomer to our city, Linda Ingram, made me realize that all the warnings in the world won't keep another person from making a mistake. Everyone has to make their own, usually the hard way.

Isn't that what you did? The Lord doesn't give up on us after just one mistake. He keeps giving us a chance to make things right and follow Him. Don't you think we should do the same for our fellow man?

Jesus said ones heart is going to be where his/her treasure is, Matthew 6:21 - and of course the reverse is also true: one's treasure is going to be where ones heart is. Well while Valentine's Day is on for hearts and cards and boxes of candy and roses, where the heart is comes across as being more important than even the expression "Be My Valentine." One wife said it this way: "My husband gives me the most outlandish gifts - but I love him and them just the same - for he gave me his heart a long time ago!" In marriages, there needs to be more "heart swapping" for life. It's great to rekindle that love and that commitment on days like Valentines - and it really needs to be done more often than once a year! - but what's lacking too often is that deep down commitment of ones heart to another, and vice versa, that "through thick or thin, good or bad, here's my heart, my love, forever"!

A writer of the New Testament put it this way: "Love as Christ loved - as He loved the church, giving Himself up for it." And as important as the giving of gifts and/or valentines to express that love is, it is also very important for husbands and wives to verbally let that love be known - to let the other know they are the apple of their eye!

It is also important that we demonstrate in word and in deed that our spiritual heart really belongs to Christ-if indeed that is what we claim. He said, "If you love Me - if you really, really love Me - you will keep My commandments," John 14:15. Just where is our spiritual treasure anyhow? And our spiritual heart?

Come join us in strengthening our lives and our commitments.

We really do care about you!

Hint: Sending flowers for Valetines fellow ---- to Mom, to your sweetheart, wife, daughter of mother-in-law? A dozen roses, violets, a single rose with baby's breath, violets of purple and roses of red, white, pink or yellow are traditionally given for Valentines Day. Don't you want to be traditional? Then plan ahead, have the florist deliver out a really exotic type of flower, maybe imported!!!! An-n-nd, let the romancin begin....

"Won't You be My Valentine?"

Romance, it's in the air! Every year around the middle of February; if you look very closely, you can just almost see li'l Cupid himself with his trusty bow, just-azinging those arrows all over the place and at almost everyone. Some of his targets are hits and some are misses. But with a steady hand, a good eye, and practiced aim, Cupid shoots his arrows of romance throughout the land. Those "HIT" are the lucky ones. The ones which the arrows missed are the losers, RO-MANTICALLY.

If you fellows are wanting to impress that certain someone on Valetines Day, but your credit cards are all maxed out; don't despair. Romance doesn't have to have a price tag. Take on a romantic, moonlight stroll. Tell her you love her. Cook dinner for her. Steaks and a salad are simple to prepare. Want to be a little different? In Lieu of rolls, serve egg rolls instead with the steak and salad, get frozen egg rolls at the grocery, then just pop-em in the oven. Make the next course a selection of fresh fruits and cheeses. Serve with an appropriate wine.

Wind up the evening in front of the fireplace, soft romantic music on the stereo, tantalizing after dinner coffee, the two of you and

If you are the outdoor type, same recipe, just cook those steaks on the outdoor grill and have your after dinner coffee in the lawn chairs or around a campfire; beneath that honeysuckle vine. As far as music, listen to the songs of the birds and the beat of bees' wings as they buzz around that honeysuckle vine. Until then.

The Cross Plains Garden Club and then went over it with the met for their regular monthly members. meeting at the Multi-Purpose Center on February 8.

Bob Powell, president, welcomed the members and guests. Program topic was "Create a Garden-Plan Ahead".

He then demonstrated "Starting Seed-Spring Preparation" with the use of a seed tray. He had filled it with potting soil mix, sand and vermiculite. He had placed this on a piece of plastic and newspapers and several layers of paper towels. He then placed one seed per space and sand over the entire top. After watering papers and paper toweling and misting the top, he covered it with Saran Wrap and placed it on top of the refrigerator. In 5 to 7 days you can expect to see the plants come up.

You are ready to move the tray to a sunshiny window and when the first leaf drops, it is then ready to transplant to a bedding pot. You mist every day after it gets leaves using Miracle Grow in

This is how you are able to get a head start on having early plants. It was very interesting.

Julene Franke read the minutes of the January meeting and gave a financial report.

Eva Fleming, Chairman of the Flower Show, passed out the schedules titled, "The Greatest Little Flower Show On Earth"

Joe Howser called attention to the Food Pantry Box, asking members to clip and give coupons for groceries. He also had a letter from Hope Haven thanking them for the recent gift of cloth-

Eva had seeds for members that she had saved from her last year's garden of flowers.

Hosts for the meeting were Betty Beggs, Helen Tillotson, Bob and Barbara Powell. The table was covered with a red cloth overlaid with a white lace cloth, after all spaces were filled; sifted and was centered with a crystal vase containing red berries accented by two little furry bears on each side. It was completed with a red heart box filled with a candy. Refreshments consisted of chips and dip and relish tray, cookies, cherry tarts, punch and coffee.

> Julene conducted the door prize for Wanda Hammel and it was a clever yard stake. Bob Powell was the lucky winner.

Present were guests, Joe Howser and Emily Crockett, and members Eva Fleming, Wanda Martin, Julene Franke, Bob and Barbara Powell, James Nichols, Betty Beggs, Helen Tillotson and Joyce Odom.

The next meeting will be March 8, at the Multi-Purpose Center. Guests are always welcome.

letter regarding the Cross Plains FFA Program.

The animals in question were neither loaned or sold to the student on behalf of the Cross Plains FFA Advisors. It is sad that we chose to voice our opinion only when we get negative results.

The Cross Plains FFA Advisors have approximately 250 animals being fed under the program. It is impossible to be able to check each animal on a daily basis.

I also raise animals to show and if I own an animal and loan it to a student, I go and check on the animal periodically to ensure that they are being taken care of in connection with the Ag Program. I would suggest this to anyone who raises animals, after all, I have an investment in the animal and I like to protect my invest-deeply appreciate the love and kindness shown to us in the passing of our mother.

Mother lived in Callahan County most of her life and in Cross Plains for more than seventy years.

She loved Cross Plains and the people living here.

She had to leave when the time came that she could no longer live by herself.

Now she has come home to stay. We would like to express a special thanks to Tim's Floral & Gifts for a wonderful job on the flowers. Also to Bob Harrell for making a hard time so much better.

Bag weather...

Squinting my eyes tighter, I tried to figure out what that white thing was. It could be a lamb grazing between the trees. Or maybe it was a white dog poking about in new territory. It was too far away to identify.

Hmmm, I thought. Doesn't act like an animal exactly. It hasn't here it looks like something just tied to no string. in front of a tree trunk. Maybe it's the sun shining all dapply on

I stuck my head out the door to get a clearer look. A passing gust grabbed my hair and whipped it back and forth a couple times. Before I could pat it down, another brisk breeze came barreling through and fluffed it straight up.

"Ahh, it's the wind," I told myself. And then I knew what that white thing was. It is bag weather today, and that is a plastic bag hung up on a low branch of a tree. Flailing mightily, it worked to free itself from the twigs, but the tree had a stranglehold and would not let Right on the heels of snow melt came this West Texas wind. In a creative fury, the wind decorated the winter countryside not yet dressed up by spring. She huffed and puffed, reaching, grabbing bags, papers and tissues. She was careless in her path, whipping up the dust in a Dervish frenzy, throwing sand across the road.

Paper scraps were tossed up like a handful of glitter against the blue sky. Bags filled with air swooped, lost their air in a dive, and just in time were buoyed again by an updraft. They were caught in the claws and teeth of the wind, subjected to the strayed from that spot. From ragged gyrations of a kite, but > Whistling to herself all the while, the wind flung handfuls of pretty baubles everywhere. Rearranged according to whim, some were ripped from trees to adorn a stretch of briers. Using the feather-weight materials at hand, she draped the dreary land with scarves and sashes and lace.

> A ribboned piece of plastic was slapped onto a shrub for a swishy fringe. Trees and fencelines were fancied with the tatters of colorful bags that became beads and chains, jewels of blue and white and yellow.

When finished the wind stood back a bit, looked it over and smiled, pleased. It was a beauty wrought in wildness.

The wind loves a good bag day. She left sometime in the night, taking her fashion show on to another unsuspecting cold lifeless landscape.
