

Printer's Ink-lings . . .

By F. P. H.

We had the pleasure of visiting Mr. and Mrs. Gus Gatzki Friday in their new three-bedroom brick home in Wilson, and we doubt if there is anyone more proud of a nice home than are the Gatzkis. They have every reason to be proud of it. Like many other Lynn county people, the Gatzkis had little of the material things of life when they came to this county. Through hard work and the practice of thrift, they have finally been able to retire and enjoy the finer things of life. There are few finer folks than Mr. and Mrs. Gatzki.

Mr. Gatzki recalls he came here to work for Thomas Bros., Grassland ginners, and finally acquired a gin of his own. It's a bit of irony that the couple raised their family of five children in three-and four-room houses with no modern conveniences. Today, they have a large, modern home and the children are all gone. Today, the washboard, coal-oil lamp, water out at the windmill, outhouses, etc., are all gone, and the Gatzkis have electric washers and dryers, refrigerators, central heating and plenty of closets, carpeted floors, in fact every modern convenience. The Gatzkis expect to take life a little easier now, without the responsibility of running a gin, and will leave next week to visit his Uncle Mike and Aunt Carrie Osech in Portland, Oregon. They won't go in a buggy, either, but in a new car. Aunt Carrie is the last of either his mother's or father's family.

We don't know the age of Mrs. M. F. Jones, but she's old enough to be the mother of Dwain Jones, no spring chicken himself. Anyway, she told The Printer a few days ago she can still handle old Dwain (all 240 pounds of the "bull-ox") almost like a 12-year-old. Dwain won't admit this, but he says he does know his mother can still throw a 100-pound sack of chicken feed on her shoulder, another sack on her hip, and take off with them.

We met up with F. E. Crowder of Brownfield at Wellman a few days ago, and he told us he used to freight out of Tahoka from about 1913 to 1917, picked up his load from the Santa Fe's Joe Heare, and ate at Aunt Becky Robert's cafe. He wanted to know all about Oscar and Roscoe Roberts, Marcus Edwards, and a lot of other old-timers over here.

There was a story in the papers Monday about Tull G. Rea, a veteran of 32 years with American Airlines, who has been named Fort Worth manager of all the Airlines operations in that city. Tull and wife live in Irving, and have a son who is vice president and general manager of Texas Aircraft Milling, Inc., in Grand Prairie. Tull Rea is a nephew of Lum Haney, and grew up at Sweetwater.

The Printer has had a lot of satisfaction out of Tull's success, for he knew him well as a kid and he once worked for us as a printer's devil, was in our Boy Scout troop, and we helped him get a job hat led to his success.

Back in 1925, The Printer was editor of the Nolan County News at Sweetwater. Tull, then a very mischievous but industrious kid worked for us as a paper boy and also in the shop. In fact, Tull has just about made his own way since he was ten years of age. You couldn't load enough work on him but what he would come back for more. He could do his school work and work mornings before school and evenings after school until 11 or 12 o'clock at night, and still he had energy to get into mischief.

This writer was an assistant scout master of a Sweetwater troop. Tull was about halfway contemptuous of the Boy Scouts, until one night we took him out to a meeting and another Scout put on the boxing gloves with Tull and gave him a good licking. He joined our troop. He went on the annual Scout camp to the G. P. Jones ranch on Silver Creek near Maryneal. Mae went, too, to act as a sort of Scout mother. Feigning homesickness, Tull got permission to return home, but in a few hours showed up back at the Scout camp. Soon, Mae found out why he had returned. He had gone to Roscoe, bought several 24-bar cartons of candy at five cents a bar and was bootlegging them to other Scouts at ten cents a bar. Tull was severely reprimanded, but one still had to admire his ingenuity.

Tull expressed an interest in telegraphy. There was a Western Union trunk line station located in Sweetwater at the time, and we talked to the manager about Tull. Tull took a job with them. We returned to Tahoka a short time later. The next we heard of Tull Rea, he was at Love Field in Dallas, and his name was in the papers; and, if we remember right, he received a citation from both the governments of Germany and the U. S. He was given credit for saving the German zeppelin, lost in a storm over the Big Bend country, guiding it to safety by wireless, or radio, after every agency of the U. S. Government had given up all hope of saving the giant ship being tossed about unmercifully in the storm. From that day he rose rapidly in the airlines business. We're proud of old Tull. This story is told as another example of how young boys, even street waifs, can achieve success by work and drive and a desire to succeed. It doesn't hurt a young boy to work.

We've got the sales tax blues. What to tax and what not to tax? There's no tax on advertising, for this is a service. But, there is a tax on job printing and office supplies. There is a tax on all subscriptions to people living in Texas, but no tax to papers sent to other states, which becomes interstate commerce. But, everybody else has problems, too. Why not just a straight one-cent tax across the board and be through with it?

Now for something more pleasant.

Lady at cigarette counter: "I don't remember the name, but on TV it's better than brand X."

Overheard: "By the time you get around to turning off one of those objectionable TV shows that the children are watching, you're so interested you can't."

A bank president, extremely sensitive about his baldness, wore his hat much of the time inside and out. One day while the porter, an employee of long standing, was sweeping out his office, the president asked jokingly, "Sam, why is it after all these years you don't have an account with us?" "Because, Boss, you always look like you're about to go somewhere." —Santa Fe Magazine.

Mrs. Levi Nordyke says she had a lot of fun last week entertaining her two grandchildren, Connie, age 8, and Kevin, age 5, children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kennedy of Lubbock.

Everyday Religion

By J. B. Thompson

One of the greatest mysteries of the Bible, it seems to me is the relatively meager amount of Jesus' words contained therein. We have seen Bibles with Jesus' words printed in red and if all of those red verses were printed in a separate book what a small pamphlet it would make.

The Gospels, evidently, contain only fragments of his words. Many beautiful and meaningful words and parables of our Lord must have been lost forever, unrecorded, unremembered. One who wrote so wonderfully what he remembered of Jesus' sayings said that if all that he said were written the world could not contain the books required. For each lovely beatitude and each pointed parable there must have been scores which never came down to us.

Jesus never wrote anything down. He flung his words out into the Galilean air, and most of them echoed away into eternal silence in the Galilean hills. Only that is preserved for us which took root in the hearts and remained in the memories of his disciples, to be garnered together long afterward.

Yet how complete, how adequate to all our human need, is that fraction of Jesus' words so casually preserved. Everything is there that the human soul needs to know about the nature of God and every-lasting life.

To this writer this is the strongest evidence of the inspiration of the scriptures that we have.

More than 80 per cent of all American families eat outdoors at some time during the year.

Jerry Cain Discusses State's Problems In Talk At Local Rotary Club

Jerry Cain, pre-law student at the University of Texas and assistant sergeant-at-arms in the Texas House of Representatives, presented an enlightening talk on observations resulting from his experience in Austin at Tahoka Rotary Club Thursday noon of last week.

He traced the principles that have made America great, called attention to the concern over the trend of government. He expressed great optimism for the future, if the people at the "grassroots" realize their personal duties as citizens and continue to believe and work for democratic principles.

As a nation, as a state, as a community, briefly summing up his remarks, we have achieved great things. But, he said, we can not rest on our laurels.

As an example of one area in which we are falling down, he pointed out the U. S. Senatorial election last April in which only one-third of the eligible voters in Lynn county went to the polls.

"We have a grave threat in Communism, not only in Berlin, Laos, Cuba and almost any other spot around the world, but right here in Texas," he declared.

Working in the Legislature two terms, he also worked with the Texas Crime Investigation Committee and with special agents of the Department of Public Safety. These agencies have learned Communists in Texas have been concerned with many sit-in and stand-in demonstrations.

Among the 19,000 students at the University of Texas, some pretty odd characters naturally come to one's attention; and he felt they were sincere in their reasons for staging so-called sit-ins. However, when some of these same people were testifying against proposed anti-sit-in laws before the State Affairs Committee, they refused to answer when asked if they were Communists but did say that in certain circumstances they favored the violent overthrow of the government.

He pointed out some of the problems facing Texas at this time. He pointed out how our educational system is opening the door of opportunity to thousands and is so important to our financial and business structure, but still we have the problem of teacher pay raise. Some advocate a system of paying teachers on a merit basis. Some advocate cutting out unnecessary courses, competitive athletics, but whatever the plan some re-evaluations need to be made.

Another problem is the field of labor. Organized labor has grown so powerfully, we must have laws to protect the rights of individuals, and Texas is lucky in having laws that guarantee the right to work without having to ask a man if he belongs to a union. The last two sessions, there have been proposals for a minimum wage law which would set the price for labor, even down to cotton chopping and boll pulling.

Public welfare is another problem, where great progress has been made in care of the blind, insane, and orphans, but "there can be

Producers Co-op In Annual Meet

About 240 people attended the annual membership meeting of the Grassland Producers Gin Thursday night of last week, enjoyed a fine dinner served by a catering service, heard the auditor's report, and elected two directors.

H. W. (Sam) Edwards was re-elected to the board, and W. H. Norman was named a new member, succeeding Carl Jones. At a meeting of directors, Ward Eakin was re-elected president; Vic Lauderdale, vice president; and Sam Edwards, secretary. Other members of the board are Cecil Clem, Alton Greer, and Cliff Ingle.

Miss Berta Hill of Seguin left Tuesday for home after a visit in Lubbock with her sister, Mrs. Myrtle Rochelle, and daughters, and in Tahoka with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Jake Jacobs. She is with the State Department of Welfare in Seguin.

too much of a good thing." A flagrant abuse is the care of illegitimate children. Our welfare rolls are being padded with payments to women with three or four of these children. With several such children, a woman may draw a pretty good income.

Under our unemployment compensation program, even some students have found they can work in the summer, get fired in September and make up enough excuses for being unemployed to draw compensation checks to attend school nine months.

Still another problem is traffic speeds. Sixty miles per hour is excessive speed in East and Central Texas, but in the wide-open spaces of West Texas many consider this too slow.

Licensing a cotton trailer and equipping it with brakes for a few weeks use seems impractical to the West Texas farmer, but the city people can not understand why this should not be done.

State taxes present a big problem. Everyone wants more state services of one kind or another, it seems, but each individual wants to place the tax for his wants on somebody else. Every tax plan is unpopular with someone. Finally, the Legislature came up with the sales tax, which has inequities but draws contributions from all.

He expressed optimism that the people will help solve our many problems, and declared, "If and when America shall fail, it will be the failure of the people and not the failure of the democratic way of life. . . . Our difficulties are but Nature's challenge to the quality of our mettle. 'Let's look to the future with hope—just as we look to our past with pride.'" Mitchell Williams arranged the program and introduced the speaker.

Supt. Otis Spears introduced the student guests for the month, Billy Davis and Fred Hegi, senior boys in high school.

QUESTIONS, PLEASE

QUESTION: When Does Faith Save?

ANSWER: As to when men are justified by faith before or after they obey God is a question that has been discussed and disputed for many years. There are many various opinions that have been offered as an answer to this question. Many suggest that faith or mental ascent without any act of obedience or any action at all justifies a man in the eyes of God. A man can just simply accept Jesus as his Savior in his mind and thus be justified from that time forward. This is a prevalent doctrine in the religious world today. But opinions and desires of men are not the answer to this soul searching problem. We must let God answer this question to his satisfaction.

When was Abel justified by faith? "By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain." (Heb. 11:4.) He was justified by faith after he offered the sacrifice.

When was Noah justified by faith? "By faith Noah being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house." (Heb. 11:7.) He was justified by faith when he did what God told him to do.

When was Abraham justified by faith? "By faith Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out not knowing whither he went." (Heb. 11:8) He was not justified before he went out.

When did the walls of Jericho fall by faith? "By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they were compassed about seven days." (Heb. 11:30).

Faith must be obeyed! "According to the commandment of the everlasting God, made known to all nations for the obedience of faith." (Rom. 16:26.)

There is no Biblical example of a person being justified by faith unless it was an obedient faith and the justification did not come in any case until after the obedience.

Lynn County Soil Conservation District News

E. R. BLARNEY ELLIS BARNES
WARD EAKIN W. L. (Cap) BOWE
MELVIN WUENSCHIE

A Great Plains Conservation District is being developed for the Rice farm two and one-half miles southwest of Wilson. A closed-end terrace system designed to hold rainfall on the soil and be available for plant use is being planned. Moreover, the terraces will reduce water erosion by holding run off water. Cultural practices include high residue producing crops for the purpose of returning organic material to the soil, management of crop residues in such a way as to leave them on the soil surface to reduce blowing, and contour farming.

The time is here for making plans to plant winter cover crops. Small grains such as rye or oats not only provide economical winter grazing but also provide protection for the soil against blowing and crusting by rain drops. But the benefits do not end here. Fallow land becomes crusted after being exposed to a rain and water, instead of soaking in, runs off and is lost. Cover crops not only eliminate the destructiveness of rain drop splash but also provides a means for the water to enter the soil where it will be available to next year's cotton crop. In addi-

Two Young Men Are At Fort Ord

Fort Ord, Calif., Sept. 7.—U. S. Army Privates Jerry L. Slover of Tahoka and Dewey M. Corley of Wilson are presently undergoing basic infantry training at this Monterey Peninsula training center.

The eight week program consists of such vital military subjects as rifle marksmanship, infantry tactics, first aid, military justice and the conservation and maximum utilization of military supplies. Upon completion of his basic training, the soldiers will go on to either advanced infantry training or to one of the many Army specialist schools.

Private Slover is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus J. Slover, route 2, Tahoka. He graduated from Tahoka High School in 1956.

Private Corley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie B. Corley of Wilson High School in 1957.

ADDS FOR ANNUAL

The students of Tahoka High School wish to thank the business men of Tahoka for their cooperation in the past which has made it possible for the local schools to have an annual that the average student can afford to buy.

The cost of publishing the annuals runs to approximately $8.00 per volume. Through local advertising in the annual the cost to the student is reduced by half. The students are constantly reminded of the debt of gratitude they owe Tahoka advertisers.

In the near future members of the annual staff will again be calling on business men to solicit ads for the 1962 year book, according to the annual staff representing Tahoka High School and Mrs. N. E. Wood, sponsor.

Greatest reduction in traffic deaths in 1960 took place on highways and roads outside of Texas cities, under direct supervision of the Texas Highway Patrol. The reduction was 13 percent over 1959.

tion cover crops protect the soil from drying caused by sun and wind. If desired, the small grain can be undercut with sweeps a month or 6 weeks before planting time. The residue will remain on the soil surface and still provide cover for the remainder of the blowing season.

Dale Thuren Installs New Bulk Feed Handling Equipment

We have just completed the installation of bulk feed handling equipment for the grinding of milo or any other grains and mixing them according to Purina's Chick-R-Mix formula, and delivery of the balanced ration to the farm or feed-lot.

● A discharge tank outside the building which holds mixed feeds that are augered directly from mixer to tank. Another auger takes these mixed feeds from the tank and discharges them into bulk truck for delivery to the feed buyer.

Some features of the system are:

- Pamco bag or bulk truck bed that has hydraulically operated augers to allow loading and unloading of bulk feeds and whole grains.
- Seven Butler storage tanks, three of which are inside the building, into which ground grain can be blown and stored.
- A weigh-buggy in which all grain and supplements are taken from storage tanks, accurately weighed, and deposited in mixer.
- Three tanks outside the building which hold bulk supplements brought from Purina Mills in the bulk by Thuren's truck and put in top of tank. Discharge augers from supplement tanks are inside the building and are operated by electric motors.

This system is designed to deliver up to three different rations at one time to the farmer's feed lot holding bins and load and bring back his whole grain to be deposited in Thuren's grain bins for credit.

We feel this system will allow us to service customers more conveniently, thus allowing them to reduce their labor and overhead costs in their feeding operations. We also hope this will induce feeders to increase the size of their cattle, hog and poultry projects, thus bringing more income to this area.

We Cordially Invite You—

To Come In Today, or Anytime, and Inspect This New Bulk Feed Handling Equipment and Our Big Store.

Petitions In Circulation On Brucellosis Livestock Program For Lynn County

Petitions are being circulated among livestock producers of Lynn county on a Brucellosis Program following action taken recently by the Lynn County Livestock committee composed of Ward Eakin, Clarence Church, Welch Flippin, D. J. Bessire, and Dave McMillan, according to announcement by County Agent Bill Griffin.

A "Type II" program may qualify an area as a modified certified brucellosis free area for a period of three years if the results of blood tests of all dairy cattle, all purebred cattle, and at least 20 percent of the range and semi-range cows over three years of age in each herd, show that the number of reactors does not exceed one percent of the entire area cattle population over six months of age (excluding steers and spayed heifers), and that not more than five percent of the herds are infected.

Should infection be disclosed in any of the herds tested, such herds must be quarantined until the entire herd has passed at least one negative herd test conducted not more than 120 days from the date reactors were removed for slaughter.

If the tests outlined under the provisions of the law reveal an inspection rate of more than one percent, but not over two percent, and retest of the infected herd conducted within 120 days discloses not more than one percent animal infection in not over 5 percent of the herds, the area may be certified.

Bulls and female cattle held under quarantine for feeding purposes separate and apart from dairy or breeding cattle may be exempted from tests provided such cattle are sold for immediate slaughter under permit of the Livestock Sanitary Commission of Texas at the end of the feeding period, which shall not exceed 120 days (unless a longer period is designated in the quarantine provisions).

All cattle designated as brucellosis reactors must be branded and consigned for immediate slaughter to establishments maintaining city, state or federal post-mortem inspections. Permits must be secured for such movement. The Livestock Sanitary Commission may permit retention of brucellosis reactor cattle under quarantine on the owner's premises separate and apart from other cattle where valuable blood lines are involved

The Salt Lake City mansion of the Mormon leader, Brigham Young, has been restored and is being opened to the public. Freshly laundered cotton sheets will help you sleep better. Change bed clothes completely once or twice a week.
