Joe Paradis Named Head Football Coach

Joe Paradis, assistant football coach here for the last two years, has been named head football coach for Tahoka High School for next season, succeeding Ted Wiley, who has resigned.

Paradis, a graduate of East Texas State University who has coached in schools at Dallas and Houston, was hired in a special meeting of the Tahoka School Board last week. He and his wife, Diane, have a daughter, Veronica, who is a sophomore at THS.

Before coming to Tahoka in 1987, Paradis was varsity defensive coach at Pearland High School near Houston, starting in 1984. He has a bachelor of science degree in history, with a minor in English.

County To Get 911 System, With Surcharge, By 1992

BY: BRAD WALKER

Texas Tech Journalism Student Lynn County residents can expect what is now a one-half of one percent surcharge on their monthly GTE-Southwest Phone Bill to jump to a mandatory 50-cent charge by 1992 in order to fund a county-wide 911 Emergency Phone System.

Barry Pittman, Tahoka city manager and elected chairman of the Lynn County 911 Advisory Committee, said the current surcharge goes to a state pool to help pay for systems in counties unable to cover the cost.

"Grants are available for the smaller districts in case the surcharge per customer doesn't get it all covered. Not everybody can afford it," Pittman said.

Pittman said the 50-cent charge would go to a regional plan and a percentage of the money would come back to the county to fund 911 equipment and recurring costs.

Lynn County, a member of the South Plains Association of Governments, would receive 6.25 percent of the region's surcharges, Pittman said.

Pittman expects the installation of the county's Automatic Number Identification (ANI) system, the 911 service, to cost $112,000, including equipment.

The Lynn County Committee, which meets every third Monday of each month, must have its plan ready to submit to the Advisory Commission of State Emergency Communications by September of this year, but can submit it sooner. Pittman said the 911 system should be available in the county in 1992.

"We've got plenty of time to get everybody educated and located," Pittman said.

Locating all the county residents in one of Pittman's main concerns, he said. One proposal to the committee is for phone subscribers to volunteer their phone number and address to a 911 office in Tahoka.

"We will need a way of collecting the data and it will be quite time-consuming," Pittman said.

Pittman said the committee is working on using a rolodex or computer file at the 911 answering office that would have the Emergency Medical Systems (EMS) preference of the persons at that number. There is EMS service in O'Donnell, Slaton and Tahoka.

ANI identifies the telephone number of the caller, as opposed to the Automatic Location Identification (ALI) system used by Lubbock County, which identifies where the caller is. Most rural areas use ANI, Pittman said, because it costs less than ALI.

Woodwork... By Dalton

BARRELING Down The Orange-Barrel Highway: Everybody knows about the Pennsylvania Turnpike, Turner Turnpike, LBJ Freeway, Airport Expressways, and such, which are names given locally to major highways, usually interstates. I now have a suggestion for a new name for I-20, particularly the section from Roscoe to Fort Worth, which is the only section I really know much about.

It should be renamed the Orange-Barrel Highway. From Sweetwater to the far side of Fort Worth it is almost solid orange barrels, with just about every other mile under construction. This means that you drive at least half the time in one-lane traffic, and on I-20 that's no fun at all.

Much of I-20 is 65-mph zone; it may be 55 or less in the construction stretches. But whatever it is, if you drive 65, a bunch of ginks in black hats and new pickups, and sometimes in monstrous 18-wheelers, will crowd right up on your back bumper, mad as heck because you're not driving 80 like they want to. And I don't like to drive that fast, especially in those little narrow construction lanes.

But to get back to the orange barrels, there must be literally thousands (maybe millions) of them out there (and in Lubbock, just about anywhere you try to go). Of course, everyone would like to have the highways in good repair, but on I-20 I really couldn't see that they were doing that much. What they did was realize that there are not enough Pentagon-sized storage buildings in each of those highway districts to even begin to take care of all those barrels, so they just stick them out in the middle of the road to harass the motorists until they can find some place they really need them.

In Fort Worth, I discovered the other day that not just the interstates, but also Loop 820 is under construction. To turn off I-20/30 to go north on the loop at the east side of Cowtown, you now have to go about a mile or two south and then cross over and head back north.

Anyway, the construction problem is the same in every major city, on every major highway, and still the people trying their best to fix the roads can't keep up. I can remember a time when you could take a trip and often you would never run into any construction. Now I don't know of anywhere you can drive more than 200 miles without running into the dreaded orange barrels or the dangerous concrete guards which can't be seen at night.

Every year The Wizard of Oz shows up on TV. But there is a rumor that next year, Dorothy will not be able to get to the wizard and all the wonders of Oz, because the Yellow Brick Road is under construction, and the impatient drivers of 18-wheelers are pushing all the little people off into the Brown Mud Ditch.

Chamberettes Planning July 4th Celebration

Tahoka Chamberettes are planning several activities to be held in Tahoka on Tuesday, July 4th this year, and would like to have input from all area citizens. A suggestion box will be printed in this newspaper, and anyone with suggestions on games, entertainment, etc. is encouraged to send them to the Chamberettes, c/o Juanell Jones, P.O. Box 516, Tahoka, Tx. 79373.

"We have wanted to do something like this for the past several years in Tahoka, and thought that with the Fourth being on a Tuesday, most folks will stay home this year instead of traveling, and we'd like to offer something to draw our citizens together. We're proud of Tahoka, and on this day of celebration we want our citizens to get together for some old-fashioned fun - something that many of us don't take time out to do," said Mrs. Jones. "We want this to be something everyone will enjoy, so please, tell us what you would like and we'll see if we can plan a terrific July 4th celebration," she added.

Wilson High School held its annual cheerleading try-outs on Thursday, March 30. The girls were judged by three of the South Plains College Cheerleaders. The new 1989-90 cheerleaders are Shelly Mendez, Rebecca Arellano, Angela Young, Kim Brieger, Malinda Isham and Kristi Patterson.

The First Baptist God and Family Scout group met on Monday, April 3, at the church. They discussed unit 3 and began work on unit 4. The next and final session is scheduled for Monday, May 1. Those attending were Patricia Holder, Kenny Follis, Kim Martin, Jodi Wied, Jamie Raley, Greg Savell, Jeremy Raley, Dusty Patterson, and Heather Nelson. Scout Sunday is planned for May 7 when these young scouts will receive their God and Family badges.

First Baptist hosted a Senior supper on Monday, April 3. Up, Up and Away was the theme for the night carried out in the lovely decorations. The meal was served to the Seniors, their sponsors, Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Parramour, and to Mr. and Mrs. Randy Moxzygamba and Mr. David Williams.

The Webelos met on Thursday, April 6. Refreshments were served by Gregory and Adam Castillo, and Jace Moore. The Boy Scouts led the opening flag ceremony. The Webelos received their prizes for the popcorn sales. Cody Donald received a cap for being high salesman for the group. The boys melted plastic pieces together to form various balls. Then they went outside and played a game of football.

The Webelos also attended their first Camporee at Gaines County Park in Seminole over the weekend. Friday night the Scouts set up their tents and made camp. Saturday the wind interfered somewhat with the planned activities, but after lunch they were able to hold the competitions. The Wilson Webelos won first place in the water boil in which they had to build a fire and get their pot of water to boil before the other groups. They won second place in the stretcher race. Here they had to tie a sheet of two poles and carry the "patient" a certain distance. They placed in the compass course, knot tying, and flint and steel fire building contest. Three awards were voted on by each individual troop. Jeremy Raley was voted Most Improved Scout, Abraham Garcia was voted Most Scout Spirit, and Adam Castillo was voted Honor Scout. Adam was the only Boy Scout attending and helped the Webelos learn to do the events. Other Webelos attending were Greg Savell, Dusty Patterson, Bill Criswell, Gregory Castillo, and Cody Donald. Leaders braving the campout were David Savell and David Williams. The leaders cooked the meals for the troop. A big thanks to these two men for taking the weekend to get these boys to the camporee.

Also camping this weekend were three Girl Scout leaders who attended the Outdoor Training session at Camp Rio Blanco. This is a two-night camp training session which teaches the leaders the eight basic outdoor skills which need to be taught to the Girl Scouts as they learn to camp. This is something that every one needs to try just once! We learned to build a campfire, cook a well-balanced meal on the fire, and how to clean up afterwards with the "4 Bucket" dishwashing method. We also learned the correct way to set up a tent, how to sleep in that tent in 30 degree weather without freezing to death, and how to take it down properly. We also learned knot, tying, trail laying, first aid, and hiking. We also learned to appreciate hot water, central heat, dishwashers, and the Dairy Queen. Attending the training were Carol Holder, Nan Wied and Pam Williams.

Little Dribblers will play here on Thursday, April 13. I'm sorry I don't have the scores from last week, but I will get them. They will play at Southland on Monday, April 17 and on Tuesday, April 18.

Remember Friday, April 21, is a weather day. Children will be dismissed from school that day.

All Daisies, Brownies, and Junior Girl Scouts are invited to attend a Hello, Dolly Picnic at Camp Rio Blanco this Saturday, April 15. We will be meeting at the parking lot to leave at 10:30 and will return between 5 and 6. Scouts are to take a sack lunch and two canned drinks. We will picnic at Silver Falls, a couple from the camp. The we will tour the camp for those who have never seen it and especially for those who are planning to attend this summer. Then we have some events scheduled with the dolls. We will have a look-a-like contest, a diaper changing contest, a dress up contest, and others. Parents are welcome and encouraged to go and be able to tour the camp. Girls planning to attend Camp Rio Blanco this summer need to get their reservations in soon as the camp fills up fairly early. Each Scout should have gotten a camp schedule in the mail. Especially notice the Dad-Daughter weekend in July. We have several already signed up for that. This is for girls going in to the third grade and above.

Letter To The Editor

Coming home from Lubbock one night, I looked over at Tahoka nestled on the edge of the highway. I wondered if others passing had thought what I had looking at other communities- "Why do people live THERE?" Could it be because:

In Tahoka you can get the wrong number, be recognized, and carry on a conversation; See the hustle and bustle of churches and their array of activities- often intermingled; seeing victims of accidents, fires, or deaths raised in pray and aided in support; seeing people who don't have daughters trying out for cheerleader come by or call, checking on the ones that do- saying "I've been there- it's rough- you'll make it"; helping with ski projects, 4-H projects- and , fish fry, homecoming, harvest festival, food festival and chamber banquet- because WE CARE. And, the business that trust, accommodate and appreciate our patronage.

There's not enough space to list Tahoka's assets, we realize. But, look at our youth- some of the brightest and most ambitious kid's come from Tahoka- from, bright ambitious parents who lift each other and support each others kid (I might add you've missed a blessing if your not cheering on our kids). Tahoka has a sweet spirit that has been obviously cultivated through lots of years. Fine people and fine kids don't grow overnight or alone- it takes wisdom and time-

Our appreciation,
Barry, Reha, Clay & Meredith

Top Conservationists In Lynn Are Honored

Myrna Verner was announced as Lynn County's Conservation Absentee/Farmer of the Year at the 9th annual Conservation Awards Banquet in Tahoka on March 30. Mrs. Sherri Gass of O'Donnell was honored as Conservation Teacher and Christeen Ledbetter was selected as Outstanding Conservation Homemaker, all for 1988.

Approximately 95 persons attended the banquet at the Lyntegar Electric Cooperative meeting room.

Agriculture students honored from each school in the county were Timothy Young of Tahoka, Aaron Furlow of O'Donnell, Brent Brieger of Wilson, Todd Ballard of New Home, and Outstanding 4-H member was Lanae Monk of Tahoka.

First place winners in the poster contest in grades 3 through 6 were in order, Martin Gill of New Home, Tatum Bessire of O'Donnell, James Montez and Jennifer Sepeda, both of Tahoka.

Mrs. Verner and her husband, Charles, live in Lubbock. In 1987 after becoming administrator of the D.W. Gagnat Estate, which includes 3,018 acres, she contacted the SCS office for advice and assistance with respect to complying with the 1985 Farm Bill.

After receiving recommendations from SCS on the conservation work needed on various farms as well as cost-share programs available to help pay for the work, she talked with her three renters, H.G. Franklin, Lester Adams and Jackie Stidham, each of whom agreed to carry out the necessary conservation practices on their farms.

In 1988 she constructed 33.5 miles of terraces on sections operated by Adams and Franklin, and in 1989 another 22,000 feet of terraces on land operated by Stidham. A third contract has been applied for to complete terrace work on another half section.

Mrs. Ledbetter and her husband, Herman, own and operate 1750 acres in Lynn and Borden Counties, with 80 acres converted from row crop farming to a pecan orchard. She raises a large garden each year, cans and freezes and they raise their own beef and chickens. Her hobbies include needlecraft, oil and water painting and collecting pitchers. She is a member of the Eastern Star of Lamesa and the Texas Pecan Growers Assn.

Mrs. Gass and her husband live in O'Donnell, owning 593 acres and operating an additional 233 acres. She is a graduate of O'Donnell High School and Texas Tech, where she earned a degree in education in 1980. She has been teaching at O'Donnell for nine years, currently teaching second grade. On various occasions she has called on SCS and SWCD personnel to present slide talks to her pupils, who participate in the poster contests.

She is a member of the Methodist Church. She believes that children should be aware of the importance of properly maintained conservation practices. She competed in the Area I Conservation Teacher competition and won first, and will represent Lynn County at the Area I banquet in Plainview May 2.

First Baptist Church In Lubbock To Present Play

First Baptist Church of Lubbock will present its annual spring musical/drama, "The Passion", in its Sanctuary at 2201 Broadway on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evening.

April 21, 22 and 23 at 7:30.

John Lee, Minister of Music at First Baptist, has written and arranged this work which he has entitled, "The Wonderful Love of God": Easter's Greatest Message. He will direct the 100 voice Sanctuary Choir and a large drama cast at the church and has scheduled it the week of the Feast of the Passover, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings at 7:30 (April 21-23). This presentation was rescheduled so that those who were out of town during the spring break and Easter weekend might hear this beautiful and stirring story of "The Passion" which is the greatest story every told and is never out of date.

Dr. Hayes Wicker, Pastor of First Baptist Church, joins with the Congregation in inviting you to hear one of these presentations. First Baptist, the Fellowship of Love, is located at Broadway and Avenue V in Lubbock. Visitors will find an abundance of marked parking in lots surrounding the church. Childcare will be provided.

April 14 at 2 p.m. All area senior volunteers are invited to attend.

The festivities, which will include free games, food, and entertainment, will be held at Lubbock Village. The Fun Fair is provided by the various agencies who use senior volunteers in their programs.

The Fun Fair and Balloon Launch is free to all area senior volunteers. Reservations are requested and can be made by calling 792-0111.

In case of bad weather conditions, the fair and balloon launch will be postponed until Friday, April 21.

Lubbock Village, a 138-unit community for active senior adults, is located at 4601 71st St. in Lubbock. For more information, call 792-0111.

Prison: 'Where Life Is Balanced On Stilts'

(Editor's Note: The following is one of several articles submitted to the Lynn County News by a prisoner being held on federal charges in the Lynn County jail. The prisoner, an articulate young black man, gave permission to use his name, but the name is being withheld from this and any subsequent articles which he wrote to warn other young persons about the inevitable result of choosing a life of crime.)

From a federal prisoner to the kids of today:

If America's struggle against drugs is indeed a war, then the nation's inner cities are definitely the trenches. Ghettos have always been the main market place for narcotics, but never before has the drug trade been so pervasive or its repercussions so brutal.

The primary reason is crack, the cheap and highly powerful cocaine derivative. The booming crack business has led to unprecedented violence by dealers fighting for their share of the market. Widespread addiction to the drug has helped further shred what was left of the tattered social fabric of the ghetto. The mean streets of the inner city form the bloody battlegrounds where the war on drugs is being lost.

"Drugs have taken over; it has ruined our schools...You've got teachers doing it...Every place is a dope exchange." These comments point up perhaps the ugliest aspect of the drug scene—the involvement of kids. When the posers are in need of fresh recruits they flaunt fancy cars and flash wads of money to entice impoverished youths. Most horror stories appeal to a collective memory of childhood, the sense of being small and vulnerable in a world filled with large, mysterious beings.

To the readers of this article: Just say no; it's so easy. Drugs are no laughing matter.

A couple of years ago while being transferred to another federal prison, we stopped off at a small county jail for the night. The jail was located in the downtown (square) area, with traffic on all sides of the building.

Suddenly the door to my room shot open and a frustrated young man walked in. Hair still wet from a recent shower, he stopped a few feet from my bed and, addressing no one in particular, he asked loudly, "Can anyone tell me where I am?" I laughed, not because he was amusing, but because I've been in that situation so many times myself.

It turned out that he not only didn't know where he was, but also didn't know where he was going. He had the track marks up and down his arms of an I.V. user (probably crack cocaine or some other harmful drug), and was experiencing withdrawal symptoms.

Someone told him that he was in jail, and judging from the marks on his arm, he would be in jail for a long time. Then three of us gave opinions on how he should get his life together. My opinion consisted of a drawn-out lecture on how life will be in prison (if he lived that long), if he didn't dry out. Another inmate sitting on his bed near mine directed him to the Bible. But the third inmate who slept above me, and who apparently had traveled the same route before, told him about the fine home he used to have, about his two lovely children who cry at night for a daddy they hardly know, and a family who has given up on him. By the time this man finished his story, I could only roll over onto my side and cry silently.

The young man turned from the doorway, tired from battling his drug problem in a make-believe world he thought he knew, and began to cry as he walked away.

Later that night, I laid awake thinking about how often we need help in this life. Sometimes we need the advice of a good friend, the listening ear of a family member, or the strength from a Sunday church service.

People helping people. Ordinary folk taking time to help ordinary folk. That's what caring is all about.

Sometimes people get so strung out on drugs and alcohol that they don't see the harm that these drugs bring to them. I bear witness to these words, as I sit writing to you from behind bars at this very moment.

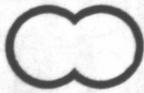

Just remember that life becomes so complicated when you're hooked on drugs that, life the confused young man, we feel like throwing up our hands and asking, "Can anyone tell me where I am and where I am going?" At such times, all you have to do is Just Say No to drugs.

When Harvard College was founded in 1636, it was surrounded by a tall stockade to keep out prowling wolves.

Yes sir, it's in the air. That time of year so dreaded by so many allergy sufferers is once again here. But, take heart friends, it's not nearly so bad as it once was. Not too many years ago, there was nothing to do but suffer miserably through the season. Now a physician who has carefully analyzed a specific allergy problem can usually prescribe a helpful medication to control the uncomfortable symptoms.

Enjoy springtime more this year. Consult your physician and then closely try to follow the advice he gives you.

Your HEALTH TIP

URINARY INCONTINENCE

By exercising the muscles that support the bladder and surround its neck, many incontinent persons can regain control over the passage of urine. The exercise involves tightening, then relaxing certain muscles repeatedly for 15 minutes, 3 times each day. By starting and stopping the flow of urine, victims of incontinence can learn to identify those muscles that need strengthening.

Minnie Lou Ash
Assistant Elementary Principal

Minnie Lou Ash is the assistant principal at Tahoka Elementary Schools. She lives in the Grassland community and has been with Tahoka ISD for 27 years. She says all 27 years have been good ones, but the worst moment was "the day the red tempera paint would not come out of its jar - until I looked down the spout and it exploded in my face!" She believes "all students are precious and must be taught positively so as to develop their self-worth along with their scholastic training. We must produce responsible, self-thinking, knowledgeable citizens who can live full and meaningful lives in a peaceful and safe environment."

Mrs. Ash was married to the late Johnny Ray Ash, a farmer, and they have four children: Carolyn, 30, Carlton, 28, Charles, 19, and Carla, 20. One of her hobbies is "dreaming of how nice it would be to live close to my grandchildren." She has three grandchildren, Jeanine, 3, Jessica, 8 months, and Jeremy, 2.

She attends the Church of Christ where she is a Bible school teacher, and is a member of Texas State Teachers Assn., and Texas Elementary Principals and Supervisors Assn. She was raised in Lynn County, attending schools in Grassland, Draw and Tahoka. She graduated with a B.S. in 1955. Before teaching at Tahoka, she was a payroll master and office assistant for a construction firm.

At last. Something farmers can control.

You can't control prices, the weather or your banker. But you can do something about your health insurance costs.

Communicating for Agriculture understands how hard it is for farmers to buy health coverage. That's why we came up with our own health insurance plan for our members.

Our plan helps our members control their health insurance costs through a cash deductible concept* - no matter how many claims they file. It's available only to CA members.

Take control of your health care costs.
