NUMBER 42

CITY TO IMPROVE STREETS AND WATER SYSTEM

The long awaited good news, which the Citizens of Baird have been expecting and hoping for has finally been released, and we most gladly pass it on to our readers, so that they may join in the rejoicing and congratulating throng.

Our City Council, although seriously hampered by lack of funds with which to liquidate the outstanding debts of the City of Baird, which said debts amount to over $120,000.00 at this time; and funds being so low, the Council has been unable to carry out any system of improvements or needed repairs, but through their untiring efforts, a ray of hope is seen gleaming in the near future and the citizenship of our little city may justly feel proud of the projects that will soon be put into effect in Baird.

The Council has filed two WPA projects with the District office in Abilene; one calling for the graveling of 105 city blocks, and will cause an outlay by the Federal Government of $10,621.00 and an additional outlay by the City of Baird in the sum of $5194.00; another project filed has to do with the repairing of the water system, and will cause an outlay of Federal Funds of approximately $1500.00 while the city will be forced to spend $480.00; these two projects will furnish work for 39 men for a period of 7 or 8 months, depending upon the weather conditions.

These two projects will mean a great deal to Baird and its citizens; and while both projects have been approved by the Abilene District Office, still the projects must run the gauntlet at San Antonio and then to Washington for final approval.

In addition to the above efforts on the part of the council, they, at their last regular meeting issued a purchase order for a Motor Maintainer, costing approximately $3000.00, said maintained to be used on our streets to try and overcome the deplorable condition in which said streets are in now; with this new maintainer it will be possible to work every street in town in a very short time, as compared to the time required with the old type machines. This maintainer that the City has purchased is the very latest thing in road machinery and our people of the town should feel proud of it.

Keeping in mind the two WPA projects and the Maintainer mentioned above, you will readily see that the City of Baird is pledged for an amount exceeding Eight and One Half Thousand Dollars—this sum to be spent for the improvement of streets and water system, so that the Citizens of Baird will receive more service and comforts of life.

Many are delinquent in the payment in the payment of city taxes and water rents which if paid now would be of great help to the city in raising funds with which to carry on this program of improvement. The entire Citizenship of Baird should rally to the support of the City Council, and lend their every effort toward making the undertakings of the Council a success.

There are many Citizens of Baird, who have the idle money, and can spare it at this time, who can go to the City and Pay their 1935 Taxes (which will be due in a very few days)—these early payments of 1935 taxes will give the Council money with which to meet current obligations and also perhaps enable them to discount some bills and save interest on others; and all savings, whether discounts or cancelled-interest are a big help in the final liquidation of our debts.

Citizens of Baird, smile and rejoice with the good news of these proposed improvements; and dig down in your old jeans and take your idle dollars and pay on your account to the City, and thereby help the City Council Carry Out These Much Needed Improvements. Mayor H. Schwartz and members of the council have been working on this program for some time and we congratulate them on the successful outcome of their faithful work.

J. W. Seay Found Dead In Bed Monday Morning

J. W. Seay, 74, was found dead in his bed at the home of Mrs. C. M. Mills Monday morning, death coming quietly as he slept.

Mr. Seay had an attack of intestinal flu some weeks ago, but had seemingly fully recovered from his illness. He retired about 11 o'clock Sunday night and when he did not come to breakfast about 7 o'clock, his usual custom, Mrs. Mills went to see what had detained him and found him dead. He had not been dead long as the body was still warm.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church at Belle Plain at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon conducted by Rev. P. E. Yarbrough, pastor of the Methodist church, and interment made in the family plot in Belle Plain cemetery. Active pall bearers were: Howard Farmer, Jack Ashlock, Roy Cutbirth, Forrest Gregory, Clyde White and Borah Brame. Honorary pall bearers named were: Jerry Laman, H. Schwartz, Otis Bowyer, Dr. G. A. Hamlett, Dr. W. S. Hamlett, Alex McWhorter, John Asbury, Claude Flores, Jack Jones, Joe Alphin, George Crutchfield, Joe Mitchell, Mr. Ballard, C. M. Mills, J. F. Dyer, B. L. Boydston, Jesse Hart, Buck White, Tom White, Grant Bowler, Mose Franklin, John McGowen, Wylie James, Judge B. L. Russell, of Baird; Mac Merchant, Abilene; W. S. Melton, Clyde; Sam Cutbirth, Brownwood; Pomp Cutbirth, Big Lake and Dick Price, Van Horn.

Jim Seay was the youngest son of Rev. J. B. Seay, a pioneer Methodist preacher who settled in Brown county in 1868, the family coming from Cherokee county where Jim Seay was born Jan. 2, 1861. Mr. Seay's mother died at the home near Brownwood in 1877 and was buried on the Jim Burleson ranch near there. The Seay family moved to Belle Plain, then the county site of Callahan county in 1879 and lived there until the county site was moved to Baird in 1883, when they moved here where Mr. Seay has since made his home, except for a few years spent in Big Lake. He was a brother of J. B., Ed. Joe and Dick Seay, who with his father have passed on, Mr. Seay being the last of his family.

Mrs. J. B. Seay, sister-in-law of Brady Bryant Seay, Houston; Dick Seay of Amarillo, nephews; Sam Cutbirth, of Brownwood and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Baker, of Abilene, were here to attend the funeral.

W. O. Wylie had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Leases Selling At $70 Around Barclay Well North of Clyde

It is reported that leases around the Dick Barclay No. 1 Mrs. John Woods are selling around $10 per acre and a great deal of interest has been stirred up over the discovery of oil two miles north of Clyde.

The Barclay well has been cleaned out to total depth of 1,562 feet and operators are running two-inch tubing in preparation for making a test. Already flowing by heads into the storage through large pipe, it has been estimated as high as a 100-barrel well. Location is in the northeast corner of section 68, BBB&C survey.

Two Nearby Tests Start
R. F. St. John, of Abilene, No. 1 H Kniffin, northeast of the Barclay wildcat, is drilling below 800 feet. Location for this test is 306 feet from the north line of the west half of the northwest quarter of section 73, BBB & C survey.

Rig is being put on the ground for another test to be drilled about half a mile northwest of Clyde for the E. P. Campbell No. 1, I, N, Jackson Both new starts are seeking production from the new producing horizon opened by the discovery well.

Vestal, Frances Mayers, Miss Edith Bowls, Miss Susie Walker.

23 STUDENTS OF COUNTY TO BE AIDED BY NYA

The National Youth Administration of Texas has allotted funds to provide part-time jobs for 23 high school students in Callahan county at a rate of $6 per month for the school year, B. C. Chrisman, county school superintendent, disclosed yesterday, in announcing that application forms for the jobs are now available.

The NYA program, at the rate of $6 per student, will make available monthly in the county $138 for aid of needy scholastics.

Lyndon B. Johnson, NYA state director, Monday issued a warning to county superintendents of schools to set machinery moving for allocation of the aid funds, in order to prevent possibility of the allotments being lost and transferred to other counties.

"It is unfortunate that there are more applications than jobs available under the federal allotment of funds for Texas," Johnson said. "But we are eager to see that the allotment is used 100 per cent. Inasmuch as it is incumbent upon the school officials to initiate the movement and to see that the plan is put through, the need for immediate action is urgent. It is doubtful that a county which fails to act this week and distribute its quota of funds to high school principals will have opportunity to do so next week."

Mr. Chrisman says that the appointments will be made on a scholastic population basis and will be given to students whose families are now on relief rolls and have been since April of this year. Students in families under the rehabilitation program are not eligible.

Under the NYA program 23 high school students in Callahan county will receive aid and is distributed as follows: Baird: 4 students, Cross Plains 4, Clyde 3, Putnam 2, County 10.

Mrs. John Trent Died At Home In California

Mrs. John Trent, 94, for many years a resident of Callahan county, died at her home in San Diego, California Friday, Sept. 20th at 7:30 p. m. The body accompanied by two daughters and a son, Mrs. Fred B. Lane of San Diego, Mrs. B. O. Jones of Big Spring and Harral Trent, of Clint, Texas arrived in Baird on the Sunshine Special Wednesday morning and was carried to the home of deceased's daughter Mrs. L. L. Blackburn, where funeral services were held at 4 o'clock, the services being conducted by Rev. Willis P. Gerhart, Episcopal minister, of Abilene, Mesdames Lee Ivey and Sidney Foy sang "Crossing the Bar" and Mesdames C. B. Snyder, Jr., Lee Ivey Sidney Foy and Haynie Gilliland sang "Lead Kindly Light". Pallbearers were Ace Hickman, J. F. Boren, S. E. Settle, V. E. Hill, Hugh Ross, Jr. and Haynie Gilliland. Interment was made in the family plot in Ross cemetery under direction of W. O. Wylie, undertakers.

Mrs. Trent, whose maiden name was Mary Gloster Anderson, was born in La Grange, Tennessee, Nov. 24, 1841. She was married to John Trent of La Grange, Tennessee in 1869. Mr. and Mrs. Trent and family moved to Texas in 1876, reaching their home at Eagle Cove on Jan. 6th of that year, where the family continued to reside until moving to Baird in 1895 where they lived until Mr. Trent's death in 1910 when Mrs. Trent moved to San Diego, California where she has since made her home.

Mrs. Trent is survived by four daughters and two sons: Mrs. Fred Lane, San Diego; Mrs. J. W. Duffus, El Paso; Mrs. B. O. Jones, Big Spring; Mrs. L. L. Blackburn, Baird; John L. Trent, Fort Stockton, and Harral Trent, Clint One son, Wylie J. Trent died at Del Rio in 1927.

Mrs. Trent is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Cora Capps, of Baird; and Mrs. W. L. Hassoldt, Wellesley Hill, Mass., eleven grand children and seventeen great grand-children. All of the children attended the funeral except Mrs. Duffus, who was unable to come; also Mrs. Hassoldt, who was visiting relatives at San Angelo and Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Johnson and little daughter, Martha Ann, B. O. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hensley, Big Spring; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Rochel, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Harral, Fort Stockton Miss Louie Anderson and Hugh Anderson, Strawn.

Friends from out of town here to attend the funeral were: Pete Johnson, Big Spring; Mr and Mrs F. C. Digby-Roberts; Mrs. G. O. Cresswell Mrs. E. T. Hodson, Abilene; and Mrs. C. B. Snyder, of Moran.

At the time Mr. and Mrs. Trent established their home in Callahan county there were very few residents here. A monument was erected on the site of the Trent home a few years ago in memory of Bishop A. C. Garrett pioneer Episcopal minister, who used to drive from Dallas out here and hold services in the Trent home.

Mrs. Trent was nearing her 94th year. She was in very good health up to a few weeks ago, when she became ill. Mrs. Jones had been with her mother for several weeks and Harral Trent went out to San Diego to accompany his sisters back to the old home.

Dr. Allen Shackelford Died Suddenly At Ranger

Dr. Allen Shackelford, 49, died at his home in Ranger Saturday morning at 3:30 o'clock, death resulting from a heart attack suffered some two hours before. Dr. Shackelford was in Baird Friday night enroute to the Texas Tech and Hardin Simmons football game and seemed to be in his usual health. He returned to Putnam where he visited with his brother Pearce Shackelford and family for a short time before returning home.

Allen Shackelford was the second son of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Shackelford, pioneer residents of Putnam where the deceased was born Oct. 6, 1886. He attended school at Putnam and Fort Worth, later taking his medical degree at Tulane in New Orleans in 1912. He did post graduate work at Washington university and Cooke County hospital, Chicago. He practiced at Baird for sometime before locating at Ranger in 1919, beginning his practice there as physician for the Texas and Pacific Coal Oil & Gas Co., and the Sun Oil Co. In 1923 he joined the Ranger Medical Clinic, with which he was associated at the time of his death. Besides his medical practice he was engaged in oil activities. He was a member of the City-County hospital board and also a member of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, board of directors. He was a member of the Methodist church and a mason.

Dr. Shackelford served as a captain in the medical corps in the world war going overseas.

He was married to Miss Gladys Chanselor, in Dallas, Sept. 25, 1920 who with one son, James, 12 years of age survive him. He is also survived by two brothers and two sisters, Joe Shackelford, Cisco; Pearce Shackelford, Putnam; Mrs. Mary Thomason and Mrs. Wilda Thomas, both of Calif.

Funeral services were held at the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Rev. Geo. W. Thomas, conducting the service, assisted by Rev. H. H. Stephens, pastor of the Central Baptist church and Rev. H. B. Johnson, pastor of the First Christian church. Burial was made at Ranger.

Rev. Lowell uses a loud speaker in his street services and cordially invites all to come out and hear him.

BAIRD BEARS WIN FIRST GAME OF SEASON

The Baird High School Bears inaugurated the football season last Friday by winning over the strong Gorman High team 13-6. The game was hard fought from start to finish. Gorman scored first as a result of a series of line drives in the first quarter. The Bears retaliated in the second period with a touchdown. Bernie Bryant made the score. Co-Captain Bill Austin's try for the extra point failed. A few minutes later Austin intercepted a pass and ran 65 yards for the last and deciding score. His try from placement for the extra point was good. Both lines played great football and the backs also played a good game. Bill Austin of Baird was probably the best back of the game. The game was a non-conference affair.

This Friday October 4th the Bears go Cross Plains for their first conference game and fresh Buffalo meat with plenty of excitement between bites.

Let's all go and help them win by a big score!

Crisis Nears in Italo-Ethiopian Embroglio—Mussolini Defiant, Great Britain Ready—Committee of Lawyers Hits Labor Relations Act.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

MATTERS in Geneva were rapidly approaching a crisis—a crisis for Italy and Ethiopia, for European peace and for the League of Nations itself.

Still more important, in the light of developments, was the cabinet's announcement of strengthening its military forces in Libya, where General Balbo has been establishing a strong line of air posts.

Premier Laval's speech before the League of Nations was exceedingly clever but did not clear the situation sufficiently.

One after another the nations represented in the league announced their support of the British stand against Italy.

If in the next three months either side accepts the council's decision, the other party is automatically outlawed.

It is believed in Geneva that the penalty easiest to apply would be a general boycott of all trade with Italy.

"Take a look at this," virtually said Great Britain to Italy as she massed a great fleet of powerful warships in the Mediterranean.

"UNCONSTITUTIONAL" is the verdict of the American Liberty League's committee of 58 lawyers on the Wagner-Connelly labor relations act.

"It is our belief," said the opinion, written in the form of a brief, "that the statute unnecessarily and arbitrarily infringes upon the individual liberties of the employer and the employee and is therefore invalid."

This is the first of a proposed series of opinions on recent federal legislation by the committee of lawyers. It was formulated by a subcommittee consisting of Earl F. Reed of Pittsburgh, chairman; Harold Beacon, Chicago; Harold J. Gallagher, New York; D. J. Kenefick, Buffalo; Harrison B. McGraw, Cleveland; Gurney E. Newlin, Los Angeles; Hal H. Smith, Detroit; and E. Randolph Williams, Richmond, Va.

Copies of the opinion were sent to all members of the full committee and dissenting opinions were invited, but none were offered.

Raoul E. Desvergne of New York, chairman of the general committee, denied that it was "packed with Republicans," but he did not explain why no labor lawyers and no attorneys with New Deal leanings were appointed to serve.

Among the members of the committee are James M. Beck, nationally known constitutional authority and former solicitor general of the United States; Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state under President Wilson; John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1934; Joseph B. Ely, former Democratic governor of Massachusetts; Ralph M. Shaw of Chicago, former head of the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment; James A. Reed, former United States senator from Missouri, a Democrat, and George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's commission on law enforcement.

Frank E. Morrison, American Federation of Labor secretary, said:

"This committee simply represents the views held by special privilege and big business, which have always opposed every piece of legislation introduced in congress and the states to bring a little more happiness into workers' homes."

A. E. MERCKER, who used to be secretary of the Interstate Early Potato committee, has been made head of the potato section of the Agricultural adjustment administration, and his troubles are just beginning.

Control of the potato crop is considered a natural sequence in the policy that is being followed by the AAA, and, like other parts of Secretary Wallace's agricultural plan, it is supported earnestly and as seriously condemned.

Among those who oppose potato control is Porter R. Chandler of Geneseo, N. Y., a gentleman farmer. He has advertised extensively his intention to grow and sell potatoes in defiance of the federal potato control act and invites prosecution.

Now, co-operating with Mr. Chandler, comes Norman C. Norman, a New York jeweler who some time ago defied the jeweler's code. He sent to the gentleman farmer an order for six or more bushels of "strictly illegal potatoes," and the order was filled at once. Norman suggested that the potatoes be routed through New Jersey to make the offense interstate, and offered to make more than one purchase, "as it is my understanding that the second purchase will entitle me to go to the penitentiary."

WHILE all the nation was celebrating Constitution day, the citizens of Pennsylvania went to the polls and voted overwhelmingly against the calling of a Constitutional convention for the purpose of "modernizing" the state's basic law which was adopted 61 years ago.

Since the proposed changes were to have a decided New Deal trend, the Republicans looked on the result of the referendum as a victory of national significance.

New Mexico voters turned down a proposal to boost their property exemption to $2,500, along with four other suggested amendments to the state constitution.

WHEN the new Philippines commonwealth is formally born on November 15 in Manila, with Vice President John M. Garner officiating as its godfather, Manuel Quezon, for 20 years the leader of the fight for independence, will be inaugurated as its first president.

In the recent election he and his entire ticket were victorious. The defeated rivals for the presidency were Emilio Aguinaldo, who led the rebellion against American rule years ago, and Bishop Gregorio Aglipay. They were virtually snowed under.

Sergio Osmena was elected vice president, and victory of Manuel Roxas, Quintin Paredes and Camilo Osias assured the new president ample leadership in the unicameral national assembly, where he also will have a clear voting majority.

Quezon's term of office is six years and his annual salary will be $15,000. The commonwealth will be a ten-year prelude to complete independence from the United States. Quezon, who is largely of Spanish blood, is fifty-seven years old. He has numerous friends and acquaintances in the United States and for a long time has been a frequent visitor to Washington in his endeavor to gain independence for the island archipelago.

Washington Said It Scaring Mussolini Ethiopian War Fever Not Even a Nest Egg

One hundred and thirty-nine years ago George Washington made his farewell address. It is mid-"Victorian" to drag in George Washington now, when so many are prepared to write a better Constitution than the one he signed.

Arthur Brisbane policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world.

Also, with apologies to pacifists and high-spirited young college gentlemen who say they would not fight under any circumstances, you are reminded that George Washington said in 1790:

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace."

If Mussolini can be scared by British gestures, he will be scared, with England sending her great battleships to the Gibraltar harbor. Other battleships and thousands of soldiers are sent to her island of Malta, and, imitating the real war, she is putting "submarine booms" in the Gibraltar harbor on the assumption that wicked Mussolini might send submarines to blow up her battleships; and that is exactly what he would do if it came to war.

Mussolini is not alone in his desire for war. On Sunday in the Ethiopian capital, Addis Ababa, according to the Associated Press, "2,000 shrieking Ethiopians," yelling "We want war," gathered before the imperial palace demanding weapons. The Associated Press says: "The scene was so violent that police confiscated motion picture films of it." That was wise, because films might have convinced the outside world that Ethiopians and Italians are much alike "under the skin."

Sewell L. Avery, head of Montgomery Ward & Co., will tell you that the work of the tax gatherers in America is done thoroughly. His company, on its regular business in six months, made $4,349,766. Taxes on this business amounted to $4,000,000, or 251,000 more than the company earned. You might almost call that "discouraging business." When you take the eggs from the nest of the hen that would like to set, you always leave one egg, or at least a door knob, "to go on with."

Dispatches from Tokyo tell of planning political murder wholesale.

The "god-send troops" that have committed occasional murders in highest places are tired of "occasional" murders, and decided to wipe out the Japanese cabinet in an air raid with bombs, destroy the financial district of Tokyo, assassinate hundreds of industrial and financial leaders and "re-establish imperial despotism."

The burning of buildings to put the throne and Tokyo in a state of chaos was part of the plan.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, who took his giant English-built automobile to the smooth surface of the Great Salt Desert, west of Salt Lake City, and drove the car faster than 300 miles an hour, returns to New York advising motorists to "drive carefully."

Sir Malcolm, who has surpassed every speed record on the surface of the earth, selects the right place for speeding. At home he belongs to English organizations established to promote safety.

Sir James Jeans, British astronomer and physicist, whose "The Mysterious Universe" and other books you should read, has changed his mind about the age of the universe, and, like Professor Einstein, when he changes his mind he tells you.

He thinks the universe is about 10,000,000,000,000 or ten trillions of years old. That is a long time to Sir James Jeans and us, but, for all Jeans or anybody else knows, it may mean less than one hour in the life of some "super-universe."

Hitler, talking to his army about "iron discipline," blames Christianity and the Hohenzollerns for the rise of Communism that "I crushed when I came to power." Whether he crushed it or not remains to be seen.

A sailor from an American ship is locked up in Germany for humming "The Internationale," Communist hymn, and making the hymn worse by saying something unpleasant about Hitler.

Palmetto, Ga., reports negro tenant farmers selling their salt pork and eating chicken instead, because prices for pork are higher than for chickens. The drought, lack of feed and the professor who invented the idea of killing mamma pigs before the little pigs were born are highly appreciated by Georgia's "hog raisers."

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—When President Roosevelt entered the White House March 4, 1933, every dollar of federal money that was expended was accounted for and the vouchers reviewed by the general accounting offices.

Check on Spending the vouchers reviewed by the general accounting offices. J. Raymond McCarl, comptroller general of the United States, occupied and still occupies an independent position in the accountings he directed and the reviews that were made under the budget and accounting law.

It was almost two years before President Roosevelt saw fit to make any of the emergency agencies, the alphabetical soup, amenable to the general accounting office. Consequently, millions upon millions of dollars were spent and only the spending agencies knew whether they were spent in accordance with law.

This spending of money in gigantic amounts always breeds suspicion. It causes people to inquire, whatever the form of government may be or whatever political party may be in control, whether there is waste or graft, whether the then office holders are feathering their own nests, and many another question of the like.

The importance of the Ickes-Hopkins row to the reader of this column, however, lies largely in the fact that the particular reader is a taxpayer. The congress appropriated $4,880,000,000 for use by the administration in public works and relief.

So the President's order placing all administrative agencies under the general accounting office to see that their spending is honestly done and the developments within the administration over a difference in policy must be taken together as a break for the taxpayer.

Agriculture adjustment administration officials are about ready to present to the farmers of this country a detailed plan for control of potato production. It will provide means for boosting the incomes of the potato farmers something more than 100 per cent, and will increase the cost of this item of food to consumers by a proportionate amount, of course.

If Mr. Roosevelt has been able to keep down straight-out crookedness, he is to be commended. It will remove from the forthcoming campaign some of the mud slinging that really has no place in national politics.

Every one knows that when an individual's pocketbook is touched, he rises in revolt. By the time the next election comes around individuals will have had their pocketbooks touched rather forcibly by national and state and local taxes of an increased amount.

Every one knows that when an individual's pocketbook is touched, he rises in revolt. By the time the next election comes around individuals will have had their pocketbooks touched rather forcibly by national and state and local taxes of an increased amount. Thus, it is easy to see how the criticism of Roosevelt's spending is growing and can continue to grow. The government has been pushed ten or twelve billion more in debt and the end is not in sight, despite the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has intimated on several occasions lately that he proposes to curtail federal expenditures except for emergency purposes.

From this point, one may look into the crystal of the 1936 campaign and it takes no stretch of the imagination to visualize what a pounding the New Deal opposition will give the Roosevelt administration on this question of spending.

When Mr. Roosevelt began spending, he declared it was justified because hundreds of thousands of citizens were starving. His next pronouncement on this subject by way of explaining continued expenditure was that if the government spent freely, it would serve as a priming of the economic pump; that the circulation of federal money would allow industry to sell and that industry would replace by manufacture the things sold. That, too, brought little or no result.

Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, and Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins have locked horns on the bulk of the projects on which federal money was to be used.

It is not strange that these two men should differ. Mr. Hopkins, being a trained, a professional, welfare worker, sees things only from the standpoint of the individual who needs food. Mr. Ickes has a conception of federal spending that embraces the use of money in ways designed to start the great industries in motion.

Break for Taxpayers the particular reader is a taxpayer. The congress appropriated $4,880,000,000 for use by the administration in public works and relief.

So the President's order placing all administrative agencies under the general accounting office to see that their spending is honestly done and the developments within the administration over a difference in policy must be taken together as a break for the taxpayer.

It will provide means for boosting the incomes of the potato farmers something more than 100 per cent, and will increase the cost of this item of food to consumers by a proportionate amount, of course.

JOHN (THE MINISTER AND HIS PEOPLE)

LESSON TEXT—Third Epistle of John.

GOLDEN TEXT—Beloved, imitate not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God; he that doeth evil hath not seen God.—III John 11.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Letter From John.

JUNIOR TOPIC—With Ink and Pen.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making Our Church Friendly.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Friendly and Hospitable Church.

I. Personal History.

1. He was the son of Zebedee and brother of the apostle James (Matt. 4:21). The implication is that his father was in easy circumstances, for he had boats and hired servants (Mark 1:19, 20).

2. He was a disciple of John the Baptist (John 1:35-40). This was a most valuable training, for John was a man sent from God (John 1:6). The fiery eloquence of the Baptist no doubt profoundly impressed him.

3. He was called to follow Jesus (Matt. 4:21, 22). He was first called into the relationship of a disciple. As a disciple he came to know Jesus personally.

4. Appointed as an apostle (Matt. 10:2). Having been tested as a disciple, he now is appointed as an apostle (Mark 3:13-19; Luke 6:13-16).

II. His Character.

1. He was reserved. That is, he was decidedly reticent about himself. He speaks of himself as "the disciple whom Jesus loved" and "that other disciple."

2. He possessed a rare gift of penetrative insight. The truths set forth in his writings did not come as a result of reasoned judgment, but of penetrative insight. He was indeed a seer.

3. He was thoroughly masculine. Christian art does him a thorough injustice in portraying him as effeminate. He was intense, vehement in his temperament. He was truly a "son of thunder," as Christ declared (Mark 3:17).

III. Some Instances of Behavior.

1. Intolerance of irregular service (Luke 9:49-50). There was a certain disciple who seems to have been intelligently witnessing and God had honored his testimony with power to cast out devils. John forbade him because he was not working with them.

2. His righteous indignation displayed (Luke 9:51-56). When Jesus had set his face toward Jerusalem some Samaritans refused to extend hospitality to him. This treatment of his Master so aroused the anger of John and James that they desired to call down fire from heaven to burn them up. This action grew out of John's great love for his Master.

3. John's care of Christ's mother (John 19:25-27). From the cross Jesus beheld his mother and committed her to the tender care of John. The intense love that he had for his Lord would move him to express the tenderest affection for his mother.

IV. His Third Epistle.

This is one of the three private Epistles of the New Testament and gives us a look into the early church life and also a picture of the aged apostle. This Epistle consists of the following parts:

1. The salutation (vv. 1-4). This letter was addressed to Gaius, with the fervent wish that his temporal prosperity and physical health would be measured by the measure of the increase of his spirituality. His supreme joy was to hear that his children were walking in the truth.

2. His praise for Gaius (vv. 5-8). This praise was for the hospitality which Gaius showed toward some traveling evangelists. In spite of the opposition of a certain prominent member of the church Gaius received these preachers into his home. To receive God's messengers into our homes and send them forth on their journey is a deed worthy of God. One of the best ways to help the truth is to show hospitality to its messengers.

3. His condemnation of Diotrephes (vv. 9, 10). The sin of this man was his over-weening self-confidence and arrogance. He loved to have the place of pre-eminence; therefore, for that reason he refused to receive these traveling evangelists and expelled from the church those who had received them into their homes. He even maliciously attacked John the beloved pastor. His spirit of pride moved him to acts of tyranny toward others.

4. His commendation of Demetrius (v. 12). Demetrius was perhaps the bearer of this letter. John gives the assurance that Demetrius was of good report among all men. His life of good deeds proved that he was in fellowship with God.

JELLY IS BETTER WHEN PREPARED IN SMALL LOTS

"Make jelly in small lots. Use a large, flat-bottomed saucepan. Carry the entire process through promptly."

An ideal jelly, they say, has a bright color, delicate flavor, and a translucent texture. It holds its shape when turned out on a plate, but quivers when the plate is moved.

Such jellies cannot be produced in wholesale amounts. When extracting the juice, it is easiest to prepare and handle about 8 quarts of currants or berries or 8 pounds of apples or grapes at a time.

In cooking the juice and sugar together it is important to reach as rapidly as possible the point where the sirup will jell. This is the reason a large, flat bottomed saucepan is best—evaporation takes place more rapidly from a broad surface.

It sometimes is better to use more than one drip bag. If there is a large amount of fruit on hand, a fresh lot can be prepared and cooking started as soon as the first lot has finished dripping.

SYNOPSIS

At a gathering of cronies in the village of Liberty, Maine, Jim Saladine listens to the history of the neighboring Hostile Valley—its past tragedies, its superb fishing streams, and, above all, the mysterious, enticing "Huldy," wife of Will Ferrin.

"It's me, Will," she said. "Come in. All's ready for you here. Welcome home."

"Jenny?" he cried. "Why, Jen, I take this neighborhood of you folks. Where's Granny?"

"Home," she told him. "You do all this?" he asked delightedly.

"I didn't want you coming to a cold empty house," she said. "Supper's all ready; or it can be in ten minutes. Chicken stew, and doughnuts, and blueberry pie; and there are biscuits ready to bake, and the oven's hot."

She moved toward him, finding her limbs at last answering her will. "Come in, Will. Take off your hat," she bade him. "Set down and I'll..."

The word died in her throat. For behind Will, in the open door, a woman had appeared. Jenny saw her, and she stared; and the woman smiled. Then Will, perceiving by Jenny's countenance what had happened, turned, and took this woman gently by the arm and drew her into the kitchen to stand there beside him.

"Jenny," he said proudly, "this here's my wife. This is Huldy." Dreadful aching agony of emptiness; strength draining sickeningly away.

"Huldy," said Will, "Jenny's come and made all ready for us. I told you that folks was friendly here."

Huldy smiled; something in her faint mirth at once insolent and provocative, at once arrogant and acquiescent.

"She looks mighty friendly to you, Will," she said, a barb in the words. "Why, she is," Will declared, blindly content. "Always was. She wa'n't but a young one when I see her the last time, the time Pa died. He turned to Jenny. 'Yo're real grown up now, Jenny,' he said."

The word somehow lent Jenny strength. Her spine stiffened and her pulse slowed and her tone was calm. "You come in and set, Mis' Ferrin," she said equably. "I guess yo're tired. You make yourself to home, and I'll get supper on."

But when this task was done, she would not stay to eat with them. Vill or would not sustain her so far. "It's late, Will," she explained. "If you'd come earlier, I might stay and wash dishes; but Granny will be wondering about me now."

And when supper was on the table, Jenny bade them both good night, in strong steady tones, and took herself away. Out through the barn, down the orchard slope, down the steep trail to the stream.

She went blundering through the dark woods, her eyes hot and dry with tears that would not flow.

CHAPTER III

When Jenny, struggling through the deep woods, her eyes burning for the anodyne of tears, emerged at last into the open meadow land and saw the dim bulk of the barn ahead, she ran stumblingly, in haste to come home to Marm Pierce and the old woman's understanding arms.

Jenny: "Bart see Will go through the village. He says as how there was a woman with him in the car."

Jenny said in husky tones. "Yes, Granny. It's his wife. Will's got married."

Her voice was terribly steady, as rigid as steel. Marm Pierce was shocked motionless; and even Bart could in this moment read Jenny's secret in her eyes.

"Why, Jen," he said warmly, "I guessed you liked Will pretty well yore own self, didn't you?" He chuckled, yet not in a fashion to cause her any pain. "I always had a notion you did," he confessed, "I knew with him around there wa'n't a chance for you, but when he went away, I kind of thought..."

And he urged: "Don't you grieve for Will, Jen! There's men enough, not as fine as him maybe, but..."

Marm Pierce said harshly: "Bart, you shut your mouth. Let the child alone!" Bart protested: "Ma'am, I'm sorry for her. I want to kind of comfort her. I'd marry Jen in a minute if she'd have me. Guess she knows it, too."

"Well, she won't," the old woman told him. "Don't you see she wants to cry now? You go along and get out of here."

And she bundled him unceremoniously through the door. Bart, outside, climbing into his buggy, wondered at the sudden flooding ardor which had made him speak so openly. He had no least mind to marry, had not contemplated doing so; yet there had been in Jenny's eyes just now something so broken with longing and deep hunger that he had been swept into a folly of words, into an unaccustomed forgetfulness, eager to assume her grief.

Will, he thought, was blind and dumb and blamable; he had a quixotic impulse to go thrash the other man for failing to see that Jenny loved him, for failing to understand.

But before he came home, he began to be curious about this wife of Will's. He would want to see her by and by. Jenny, alone with her grandmother, wept long weary tears, till she slept at last from very pain and deep fatigue; and old Marm Pierce sat by her long, that night, brooding over the hurt child, tender and fond. Already she hated Huldy Ferrin for hurting Jenny so.

But when Jenny woke in the morning it was composure. She was older; older even to her grandmother's accustomed eyes. But there was no longer any panic of bereavement in her, nor any vehemence of outcry at the blow that had struck so shrewdly home. Her world might be broken at her feet; but her head still was high. She went calmly about the common daily tasks, which can so often by their familiar monotony bring comfort to a distracted mind; and she and Marm Pierce spoke not at all of Will that day or the next. When they did, at last, it was Marm Pierce who asked the question, Jenny who answered her.

"He's married, Granny," she said, in a tone of finality. "That's all there is to it, or ever can be. I didn't grow up soon enough for him, that's all!"

And she reflected with a surprising wisdom: "Like enough there's been other girls that loved a man, and had to see him marry somewhere else before they come to be women. And all they could do was grieve the rest of their lives."

"You'll have a man of men to pick and choose from, Jenny," Marm Pierce told her stoutly. "Any man with sense..."

Jenny smiled faintly. "Like Bart?" she suggested, amused. "Well, there'll be others," the older woman insisted. "Wait and see."

So they spoke no more of Will for a while thereafter; but a week after Will's homecoming, on a Sunday afternoon, the old car in which he had returned from Augusta came bounding in from the main road and stopped in the yard by the doorstep; and Huldy and then Will descended.

Marm Pierce and Jenny were in the kitchen, and the old woman would have protected Jenny from this encounter, but the girl went bravely to the door and opened it and stepped out upon the porch to greet them.

"Afternoon, Mis' Ferrin," she said. "Hello, Will. It's neighborly of you to come over. Granny and me, we'd have come to see you, before now, but Granny can't walk so far."

ance with the sun. Jenny could wonder at the other's beauty, and at the same time fear it and shrink from it with an instinctive alarm. Without knowing why, she wished to draw away from Huldy; and as though in proof to herself that she had no such desire, she spoke to the woman.

"Take off your coat," she said. "You and Will, you'll have to stay and visit; stay to supper."

Huldy smiled with faint amusement, yet obeyed; and Will sat down and he talked in the old friendly fashion for a while; of his long absence, and his work in Augusta.

"I done well there," he said. "Saved good money. But I'm glad to be back, just the same."

He looked at Huldy proudly. "Huldy here, she had so many beaux after her all the time, when I finally talked her into marrying me, I fetched her away from them quick's I could. Dunno how I ever got her, but I aim to keep her now."

Marm Pierce made a noncommittal sound; and Jenny said politely: "I hope you'll like here, Mis' Ferrin!" Huldy looked at her husband. "I'd like being anywhere with Will," she said in slow deep tones. "I like big men!"

The two other women were uncomfortable; but Will was not. He beamed, and talked on, contentedly; but Huldy in the end would not stay to supper. "I've got beans on the stove," she reminded Will. "We'd best get along."

And as they said good-by, she explained to Jenny: "You can't blame me for going on home. I'm still a bride, and I'd like to have Will all to myself. I guess you know how that is."

And led Will, like a captive, away. When they were gone, Jenny was silent, hurt without knowing how she had been hurt, wounded without being able to put her finger on the wound; but Marm Pierce was not in the least mystified.

"She's a hussy!" she exclaimed. "Will's cut him off a bigger piece than he can chew. She'll make him dance a pretty tune."

Jenny turned to the stove to set the kettle on, unable to speak; and Marm Pierce added indignantly: "I've seen women before with their sleepy eyes, like they wa'n't more'n half awake. But Will, the dumb fool, is blind as a bat. She'll put a ring in his nose! She'll bring him up with his toes a-digging!"

Jenny whirled toward the older woman. "If she's not good to him, I'll kill her!" she cried.

So Marm Pierce perceived the girl's distress, and sought to ease her. "There, Jen," she said quickly. "Don't you mind! There's nought to do for Will now. You go read the Book of Proverbs! You'll find a heap of wisdom there. Wormwood will be his dish, soon or late. Maybe if he'd read his Bible, he'd have knowed better than to marry her; but I dunno. Many a man's let a woman take him with her eyelids, like the Bible says. 'Pore Will!'"

"I'll..." Jenny whispered. "No and you won't," the old woman interrupted stoutly. She shook her head. "Nought you can do but would make it worse for Will, and for you, too, Jen. Stay away from him, from the both of them. Let fire burn, Jen. It will come to ashes by and by."

And Jenny was hushed and silenced; and the wise old woman went to get the supper on.

Summer was upon them now, and during the months that followed, Jenny saw Will not at all. There was a stir of new activity in the Valley, which served in some degree as a distraction. In July, a man named Seth Humphreys, from Augusta, set up a steam mill not far below Marm Pierce's farm. They could hear, against the wind were wrong, the reiteration whine of the saw; and now and then some one of the men who worked there, with a minor cut or wound, came to ask Marm Pierce to heal his hurt for him. She had a saive with virtues which were famous, and she could minister to the lesser physical ailments which sometimes attacked them.

When one of these men appeared, Jenny stayed usually in the background; but they were a harmless lot, rough and strong and spending their days in hard physical toil, yet toward a woman gentle and shy. Sometimes she saw one or two of them slipping through the open land between the house and the woods toward the brook. A path from the mill cut through the woods direct to Carey's bridge.

"Going up to sample Bart Carey's rum," Marm Pierce guessed with a grim disapproval. "Jen, you keep away from them. Stay out of the woods down that way. None of 'em to hurt you, less'n they was drunk; but I never did believe in putting ideas into a man's head. You stay away."

She had in fact some reasons for concern which she did not explain to Jenny. People were apt to confide in this wise old woman, and she heard things Jenny did not hear. Amy Carey, Bart's sister, came one afternoon when Jenny had gone toward the brook, so that the old woman was alone; and Amy was troubled.

"The mill crew, they're around the house all the time," she explained. "And Bart, he's had a couple men staying there from Augusta, that let on they come to fish; but they don't bring home any trout. They go off down the brook every day, and come back at night, and no fish to fry. And they never come before."

Her eyes were uneasy. "It's that woman," she said. "I've heard 'em talk about her. They knowed her in Augusta; and Seth Humphreys, he did too. One of 'em said the other night that's the only reason Seth come and put a mill in here; so's to be handy to her. He was hot after her, to hear their tell, before Will come along and married her."

Marm Pierce said assentingly: "I'd see the kind she was, first time I laid eyes on her."

"Bart says she ain't more'n half decent to Will," Amy reported. "He says she's always taking a dig at him, and him too blind to see. Bart says he'd like to take a hoop-pole to her, the way she treats Will. Him and Will was always friendly."

The older woman nodded. "Will, he'll go along blind about so long and then he'll wake up," she predicted. "When he does, the fur's bound to fly. The Ferrins was always slow to get mad, but it ain't safe to face 'em when they get their dander up. Man or woman, it ain't wise to make too big a fool of Will."

And she added impatiently: "Not that anybody'd make a bigger fool of him than he made of hisself when he married her."

"Bart says he acts like she was made of gold and cream," Amy confessed. "She's got Will walking tiptoe around the house." She was a moment silent, shivered faintly. "The men act funny, after they've seen her," she said. "It scares me, some..."

Marm Pierce nodded grimly. "I know," she agreed. "Talking loud, and bragging and blowing, and then a whispering. But yo're all right, Amy, with Bart there."

Any turned homeward presently; but Jenny did not return for a further while. When she did appear, she gave no sign of what had happened; but she had learned, that afternoon, to understand Huldy through and through.

Cold-Water Cure Most men the world over are returning to the cold-water cure as the quickest and most permanent means of relief for a number of ailments. The first man to use cold water scientifically was Vincent Preissnitz, who was born a humble peasant in the Silesian mountains. He watched wild animals cure themselves with cold water and applied the treatment to human beings with wonderful success. Intensely persecuted by the orthodox medical profession, he persisted in curing by cold water where they had failed—broken bones, aches, and skin complaints—and ultimately his fame came to the ears of the emperor, who made him a doctor. Preissnitz founded the first hydro; placing his belief in nature rather than in drugs.—Tit-Bite Magazine.

Quivering Aspen Leaves One of the oldest legends in the Christian world concerns the constant quivering of aspen leaves, even in apparently still air. A large number of persons believe the aspen tree supplied the wood for the cross and has never ceased to tremble for the part that it played in the crucifixion.—T. B. Lawrie, Winnipeg, Canada, in Collier's Weekly.

The Famous Ole Bull Ole Bornemann Bull was born in Bergen, Norway, February 5, 1870. In childhood he developed a fondness for music, especially the violin, and upon a visit to Paris heard and was encouraged by Paganini. He first appeared on the concert stage with Ernst and Chopin and before long his fame spread over Europe.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS

By ROSS B. JENKINS

POPCORN, JUNE CORN, BROOM CORN

Recently there has been a decided change of opinion relative to the subject of corn. Some corn is used to sweep with, some to feed with, and then some is to—well, you know how it is used.

Mr. C. H. Young of Clyde county brought the county agent a fine broom that was made of the broom corn grown on his farm. The editor of the Putnam News was in the office last week and made a note of it in the press that he calculated it was a good broom and no one contradicted the statement. Mr. Young stated that he calculated that with the growth that he obtained this year on not more than three-fourths of a stand that he netted $16 per acre. He has the seed in addition to the straw that is worth 20 cents per pound but was not included in his per acre estimate. He stated that the thin soils were the best for he crop since it produced a finer straw which is in greater demand than heavier straw.

Mr. R. L. Smedley of the Rowden community reports that he has been growing South American Yellow Giant Popcorn for the past three years. He thinks it takes that long to get the Northern variety to be acclimated to our soils. He stated that his crop is making better than 600 pounds of threshed corn per acre, and is selling at about 10 cents per pound. That would net him about $60.00 per acre which is good for our soils. Other men have brought samples of their corn which all goes to show that popcorn is a dependable crop for this section and is another source of cash income.

Friends of the county agent have been bringing in roasting ears from their June corn and report sales at 15 to 20 cents per dozen, that also provides a cash income that is always welcomed in late summer.

CATTLE VERSUS COTTON

Men who are seriously seeking another solution to the age old problem of securing more cash income, might do well to study some of the observations of J. N. Williams of Putnam, who raises grain, sheep, cattle, and work stock.

Mr. Williams stated that 27 calves on feed in his lot would net him more than the like number of bales of cotton would on the present day of sale. He pointed out that many men in this county have as much or more land in their farms and small ranches as he owns but who are trying to grow cotton as a cash income and do not have nearly 27 bales to sell this year. He concluded that if they would put more thought to growing something that has a demand for feed and let cotton have a rest their farm program would result in more cash at less labor.

Besides the nice profit in the cattle Mr. Williams ran about a dozen pigs behind the cattle and fed them no other ration. They reached market weight and he sold them at 12 cents per pound.

Mr. Williams made another statement that will be of interest to the peanut growers and that was that peanut meal is more relished by his feeder calves and that he has been getting a faster gain from it than from cottonseed meal. He stated also that he is able to purchase the meal at about $2.00 per ton cheaper than cottonseed meal. Bobby fed his 4-H calf some peanut meal last year and is doing so this year and finding it gets a better gain, also. Mr. Williams finds that barley, peanut meal, lime flour, and salt make a profitable growing and fattening ration supplemented by sorghum foliage and plenty of pasture grass. He also feeds crushed oats and crushed barley but on this feeding project, just now, he is not using oats.

In comparing cattle with cotton it was pointed out that in order to have made 27 bales of cotton that it would have been necessary to have put in, at least, 108 acres with an average of 125 pounds yield to have made that amount. The feeders are using 100 acres of pasture land and in addition there are some nurse cows for the 4-H Club calves, 5 mules, 2 ponies, two milk cows, and fifty head of sheep. Mr. Williams calculated that the cash outlay necessary to put the land in shape and to pay for cultivation for 100 acres of cotton would more than or, at least, buy the extra feed that he has used to grow his cattle. He observed that he hasn't had to poison leaf worms nor has he had to spend long hours cleaning the crop as is required with cotton. The return of fertilizer to the soils should be considered, too, in such comparisons, he concluded.

Men who grow cattle are able to put their children into school at the beginning, also which is not the rule with producers who grow cotton.

(NOTE:) The County Agent is glad to have such progress reports and such serve to give food for thought. Of course, all men cannot go into the cattle business. Obviously if they were to there would soon be too many cattle for market demand but a combination program could very likely be put into successful operation on many Callahan County farms.

BALANCED PRODUCTION

"Creating a scarcity is the farthest thing from our thoughts; for not matter what price he gets, if the farmer cannot sell enough, he will not make a living. But on the otherhand, we must equally avoid great surpluses beyond what the market can absorb at any given time; for the surpluses bring prices down so low that you practically get sweatshop conditions on the farm. That is something none of us wants. The just and fair balance is what we must have in the long run."

FEED AND CULL THE DAIRY COWS

Many farmers will have cows that will freshen in September. Great care should be taken to prevent them from having caked udders. If cows are on good pasture they will not need any feed before calving and for at least a week after. If the pasture is not good, give them a feed consisting of ground oats and bran or groundmilo and bran. Remember that bran has no substitute in cow feed. It is the cooling laxative feed that cannot be substituted. It prevents many after ills by making for easy birth and for holding down fever and often prevents milk fever. Its cost is negligible in consideration of the advantage gained. Do not feed any cottonseed meal until the cows have been fresh about a week or ten days.

Dairymen who fail to realize that a cow producing 300 pounds butterfat per year is worth twice as much as one producing 200 pounds have not become fully aware of the true value of better producers.

Cow testing records show that (feed at present prices) it will cost about $40.00 to feed the average cow a year. This includes pasture and all roughage as well as grain mixtures. The average cow will produce 175 pounds butter fat per year and will lose the feeders about $5.00 per year at 20 cents per pound for butterfat. At 30 cents she will make $12.50 above feed—nothing allowed for labor or other expenses. A 300 pound cow will net about $10.00 per year above feed with butterfat at 20 cents. At 30 cents she will make a profit of $40.00.

If cows do not test up to 300 they should be sold. After the herd is brought up to this mark and the feed is good the next improvement will be made by better bulls. Cattle-men as well as dairymen have known for a long time that a heard neved gets better than its bulls.

Appeal of Death Sentenced Man to Be Heard Oct. 23

Appeal of Clifford Doggett vs. State of Texas will be heard by the Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin Oct. 23, according to information announced by Criminal District Attorney Grady Owen.

Doggett's death sentence has been on appeal since his conviction October in 88th district court at Eastland for the murder of L. F. Threet, slain in Threet's pasture, west of Cisco, Aug. 15, 1934.

Tried earlier in Callahan county, alleged scene of robbery of Threet, Doggett was given a 99-year sentence. Mary Lou Howell, sentenced to 20 years from Callahan county on charge of robbery in connection with the Threet case, filed an appeal in the criminal appeals court at Austin June 11.

Elmer Van Cleave, charged with robbery and murder in the same case is yet to be tried in the Eastland or Callahan county courts.

Cleve delivered testimony for the state at the trial of Doggett in Callahan county.

QUILT AND BEDDING COTTON

Last week this column carried an announcement that the Bankhead Act would exempt a maximum of 110 pounds of lint cotton which might be used by the producer on his farm. The cotton Section advises this week that producers who desire to take advantage of this must be duly warned that it is for their own use in their own household and under no instances can any part of it or any article manufactured from it be sold or exchanged for anything of value.

This cotton will only be ginned and released by the ginner upon receiving a proper form on which the producer has made an application to the county agent in the county in which he resides for certification of this exemption. It is thought these forms will be printed and probably ready for the delivery to the county agents by October 1. Further publicity relative to those exemptions will be carried when the forms have been received.

Frock That Puts Accent on Youth

Always a good beginning, this youthful tailored collar on the simple yoke makes a demure foil for the dainty softness of the bodice. The prettiness of the chic frock is furthered with a graceful flare sleeve—or it may puff, if you prefer. The results are so satisfying you'll find it real fun to run up this little dress in a dainty printed silk or cotton. A soft handkerchief linen would be stunning, too, and so easy to tub. Buttons and belt can pick up a color in the print and make a striking accent.

Pattern 9343 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 42. Size 16 requires 2 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric. Complete diagrammed sew chart included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

City Lady—But do you really think any of them make as good milk as a cow?

Let Our Motto Be GOOD HEALTH BY DR. LLOYD ARNOLD

ASTHMA, HAY FEVER, HIVES AND SICK HEADACHE

Spontaneous hypersensitiveness in man are big words that, without proper explanation, mean very little, but, as a matter of fact, spontaneous hypersensitiveness includes asthma, hay fever, eczema, and such common diseases which, while they rarely carry us to the grave, certainly make us exceedingly uncomfortable. Asthma attacks the muscular tubes of the air passages and causes these muscles to contract, thereby diminishing the volume of air that is breathed in. Hay fever attacks the membrane of the nose. Eczema may break out in the skin almost anywhere.

It has been found that, when both parents have suffered from hay fever or asthma, 58 per cent of the children have these ailments. When only one parent suffers from hay fever and asthma, usually just half of the children have the same ailment. But hay fever and asthma also develop in some children where there is no family history of this disease. When both parents are asthmatics or hay fever sufferers, children develop the same disease earlier in life than when only one parent is involved or when there is no history of these particular ailments in the mother or father.

Hay fever parents usually beget hay fever children, and asthmatic parents beget asthmatic children.

Hay fever is usually associated with August, the month in which ragweed pollens are most numerous in the air. But the hypersensitive condition of the nose can be brought about by other substances than plant pollens, animal hair, dandruff, or such substances can cause it, as can face powders, perfumes and certain foods, such as strawberries, almonds, etc. Or it can be brought about by bacterial infections. In this instance it is not the bacteria that cause the disease, as in the case of a boil, but it is the component parts of the bacteria that are absorbed by the blood stream and come in contact with the nose in this way.

The cause of asthma can be the same as that of hay fever. Inhaling certain substances, ingesting certain substances as food or remote foci of bacterial growths, can cause an increased sensitiveness of the musculature of the tubes leading air to the lungs. This increased sensitiveness causes spasms of these muscles. It is during the period of spasm or cramps that the asthmatic is most uncomfortable. Another manifestation of hypersensitiveness to foods is the urticaria or hives that break out on the skin after the eating of certain foods.

In studies which have been carried on at the Illinois Research hospital in connection with the University of Illinois, it seems that an individual belonging to the asthma, hay fever, eczema or hives group is put together in a different way from the rest of us. These hypersensitive people are so constituted and constructed that they react in an abnormal manner to what would be normal to most of us.

The individuals who suffer from migraine headache, the sick headache that comes on with regular periodicity, really belong to the same general group as the hypersensitive persons do. This does not mean that the migraine is brought on like an attack of asthma or hay fever. But studies of the headache groups that we have made in our research laboratory leave us impressed with the fact that preceding an attack of sick headache, certain definite internal changes take place. These include changes in constituents of the blood, and there seems to be a difference in the internal metabolism of these migraine sufferers. The changes seem to be periodic, occurring some times at weekly intervals, and again at fortnightly, monthly or even longer intervals. Consequently these sick headaches, although not brought on by inhaling plant or animal substances or by eating certain foods, seem to depend on a changing or unstable internal regulating system that makes the migraine patient closely akin to asthmatic and hay fever sufferers.

Our conclusion then is that persons suffering from asthma, hay fever, eczema, hives and migraine, have a very unstable involuntary nervous system.

The involuntary controlling machinery of their body functions is so regulated that it can be upset or thrown out of tune as a result of contact with irritating substances that to the rest of us produce no deviation from the normal. We know even less about the migraine group of sufferers than the hay fever group. The cause of the attacks of sick headache seems to be developed within the individual, because we can demonstrate certain internal body changes preceding the onset of migraine. It will be necessary to do a great deal more laboratory work before these spontaneous hypersensitive people and the migraine sufferers can be clearly understood. We must know more about the cause and how the body changes during the attacks of these diseases before we can attempt to prevent them.

Platforms Not Easily Obeyed

But Roosevelt Has Kept All Possible Promises; Aid for College Students

By EARL GODWIN

PLATFORMS of political parties always get the candidate in trouble—after election. Everyone knows that platforms are merely show window stuff. They indicate what the party has to sell; but sometimes the doo-dads on display don't wear quite as well as the advertisements claim.

Right now we are in the midst of clamor that Roosevelt has not kept his platform promises. Now, there is an easy way to determine that—list the platform paragraphs of the Democratic national convention, and check the performances so far. You will find that the platform hasn't been violated so much after all, but let us go back a little in recent history and take a look at other platforms and other Presidents.

World events and nation events intrude themselves into our daily affairs and wipe out all consideration of mere party platforms. You can step back a long time, but let us start with McKinley who ran on a gold platform, but whose administration became a war machine with the Spanish war, followed by the Philippine Insurrection. He and his cabinet had to lay aside political platforms.

Theodore Roosevelt ran on a political platform of "the people against the trusts," but he couldn't get all the way with it because of the Asiatic threat which caused him to turn his chief attention to the building of the Panama canal as a major American defense. Taft's platform and regime were somewhat colorless.

Wilson's first plank was to drive the lobbyists from the Capital, but Mexican issues and the assault against the United States from below the Rio Grande demanded more attention than the government could give and still carry out a political platform; and by the time Wilson got around to the platform again the World war was on us.

Harding's platform can be expressed in his own words "back to normalcy," but unfortunately there are few to defend that administration, while the Coolidge administration merely accentuated the qualities of thrift.

Hoover tried desperately to carry out the prohibition enforcement features of his platform. He also tried to expand international trade, but he was swept off his feet by his own crowd who did not understand him; would not support him, and laughed at his prohibition principles. Then, too, Hoover saw the start of the collapse. What good is a 1928 platform in 1930 in the face of poverty, destitution, bankruptcy, panic and destruction of industry? Hoover had no platform authority for the creation of the farm loan board, which wasted half a billion dollars, and no one can claim that he followed the platform in regard to prohibition enforcement. The very men who made that platform would not help him.

Against platform policy and without authority from his party, Hoover started the business of lending money to states and to industry. There are those who believe this is unconstitutional; and yet today it is apparently the only life saver big business has had, because that policy continues in the Reconstruction Finance corporation headed by Jesse Jones, whose loans to industry make J. P. Morgan look like a small town money lender.

There are a few instances to show that government depends on events and not on political declarations. Events knock platforms sky high; and if any American President should shut himself up in his study and carry out the platform regardless of what was going on outside the United States would be bogged down in the mud before mid-term.

DEMOCRATIC PLEDGES

Here are some of the Democratic pledges:

Extension of federal credit to the states to relieve the hungry and jobless. That has been kept. A federal program of public works; that has been kept. Advocacy of old age and unemployment insurance; just enacted. The Democratic farm program was in the platform and that had been kept; while the very men who declare Roosevelt has failed to keep his pledges are yammering that the farm program is unconstitutional. The farm plank included better financing of farm mortgages; extension of farm co-operative movements; and effective control of crop surpluses, now going on with the AAA. It is interesting to note that the Republican platform also pointed to acreage control, which leaves the G. O. P. without a leg to stand on when it comes to criticism of the present farm policy.

The Democratic platform promised an adequate army and navy, and Roosevelt has done more for both branches than any President since Wilson. The platform promised to clean up the investment business; the administration has done so with the securities and exchange commission. It promised development of water resources for power purposes; and it is carrying that out to the great distress and irritation of the power trust.

The utility holding company regulatory act which kicked up such a fuss was a platform pledge. And many others, including, of course, repeal.

There are several months left before the four Roosevelt years are at an end. Give the man time. He's doing considerable work, and I've no doubt he will carry out a lot more of those pledges on which he campaigned. But if he doesn't keep all his promises, remember; he took hold of the country just as it fell flat! He has spent all of his working hours lifting it up.

HELPING STUDENTS

"What will the National Youth administration do to help me through college?"

This question is being asked by thousands of boys and girls who have sought vainly to pierce through the haze of rumor and misinformation surrounding the program of President Roosevelt's latest agency.

A letter from a twenty-year-old college boy in Hopkinsville, Ky., is an instance very much in point: "I have made inquiries both of the local school authorities and of my college," he wrote, "but I have been unable to learn anything about the National Youth association. It is my hope to return to school this fall to continue my pre-law studies, but at present the future looks dark, indeed. I can expect little or no help from my parents as my father's business has been very poor in recent years.

"The National Youth association is my only hope and I can find no information concerning it. For the sake of thousands of young people in much the same condition as I now find myself in, won't you please present this program?"

Here is the situation: The National Youth Administration will continue, without major change, the college student program conducted since February, 1934, by the Federal Emergency Relief administration. Funds merely will be disbursed through the new agency. Approximately 125,000 college and university students in non-profit institutions will be assisted during the year 1935-36.

Up to 12 per cent of the individual college, as of October 15, 1934, are eligible if other requirements are met. These requirements are simple. The student aided must be one unable to attend or continue in college without federal help. He must carry at least three-fourths of a normal curriculum. In addition, his character and ability to do college work will be taken into consideration.

Whether a student's family is on relief, or where he obtains money enough to live, and supplement the federal aid in payment of tuition are questions which do not enter into the picture.

In each college some person or group has been named or will be named by the college president to receive and rule on all applications for federal aid. Considerable latitude is allowed in deciding who will be given help, since personal factors differ widely and must be considered. For students qualifying, "socially desirable work" both on and off the campus, will be provided by a committee or official working under the direction of the president of the institution. No student will be permitted to work more than eight hours a day or more than thirty hours in any week. For their labors they will receive a maximum of $20 a month, but each college will be allotted funds on a basis of $15 a month for 12 per cent of its full time students.

In addition to funds for undergraduate work, funds may be allotted to students doing graduate work, under rules and regulations not yet announced.

One widespread misapprehension regarding the National Youth association is that it makes loans to students. Such is not the case. Its college student aid is considered part of the relief program, and the money it disburses is not repaid.

POWER FOR RURAL DISTRICTS

Morris Cooke, chief of the new Rural Electrification administration, is an old time power man. He has been connected with state power surveys of Pennsylvania for many years, and he has a vision as to the ultimate uses of electricity on farms which makes him an ideal man to push this plan throughout the country. The President has allotted one hundred million dollars to Cooke; with instructions to get power to the rural districts. It cannot be done all at once; it will take a few years, but the blueprints of the plan are being drawn.

Cooke believes that the whole scheme of rural living will be changed, just as power has changed life in the cities. There will not only be light in great abundance but, if the plan works, there will be plenty of cheap power for machinery. Take the mere matter of pumps. Electric pumps will relieve women from the burden of carrying pails of water for household uses. In addition, proper electric equipment will facilitate running water.

There is really serious talk here about electric cooking on the farms. That seems a long way off from the fuel stoves, yet power experts here declare that it will not be a long time before electric ranges will take the place of wood, coal, kerosene and gas oil stoves.

Similarly, the cream separator, feed grinder and the general utility motor will make farming easier. There seems to be no reason why the cities should have all the benefits from electric power; no reason why city streets should be electrically lighted while the country sheds and barns are still dark or dependent upon lanterns.

PRAIRIE SERPENT

Pollack, S. D., refuses to be outdone by Loch Ness, Scotland, and Vancouver, B. C., with their sea serpents. It has a "prairie serpent," Joe Heckelsmiller, doing his spring plowing, first saw it leisurely crawling through the grass with its head about two feet above the ground. Its track, said to be as large as that of a balloon tire, led to a lake. Ed Kramlich, G. L. Koch and Ben Miller of Mound City reported seeing the serpent swimming in Lake Campbell. They said it had a large flat head a foot in diameter and the body 16 to 22 feet in length.

WHEN THEY SHOW THESE SIGNS

Nervousness, Constipation, and Poor Appetite, check their diets for this all-important, 3-purpose vitamin

Many are nervous, poor in appetite, system out of order, because their daily diets lack enough of the precious Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Few things keep them back like lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit, it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about 1/2c per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-weeks test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nut-like, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavors, surpassingly good. All grocers supply it.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB Hello, Everybody!

"Nearly the Last Round-Up"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

A VAST there, mates! I mean "Hold 'em, cowboy!" Gosh, I don't know what kind of lingo a sea-cowboy uses, but I know the kind I would have used if I'd been aboard the cattleboat, S. S. Winefredian, in mid-Atlantic, that wild March night with Peter Mullan and 700 head of plunging, terrified cattle.

Pete came so close to going on the Last Round-Up or to Davy Jones' locker that it wasn't funny. Incidentally the S. S. Winefredian has since slipped quietly down the stays to Davy Jones' locker, so maybe she was just playing a rehearsal for Pete.

Cattleboats, Pete says, are not exactly floating palaces. In fact, they're generally made-over tubs.

The Winefredian was no exception to the rule. Her under-decks were just a mass of cattle stalls with a narrow passage—just wide enough to allow a man to pass—running the length of the ship.

Pete, two other greenhorn cattlemen and an underforeman were nursemaids to the steers on the ship, and this isn't such a bad way to earn a trip to Europe—unless you hit a bad storm. And then it's awful.

Old Ship Groans Under Waves.

The storm hit the cattleboat when she was out in the middle of the Atlantic ocean, and the old ship groaned, plunged and rolled on her beam ends at an alarming angle.

The crowded cattle—seasick and mad with terror—shrieked and kicked at every pitch of the ship, and Pete says it was plain bedlam between decks.

But, storm or no storm, the helpless beasts had to be taken care of and Pete and his shipmates were right down among them doing the best they could.

Monster waves plunged in through the open upper-deck hatch and the men and cattle swished around knee-deep in sea water.

Now if you've never been on a cattleboat you are probably wondering why they didn't close the hatch and keep the water out, but the trouble with that is that it also keeps the air out, and if you've ever been on one of those loaded beef ferries you know what that means.

The stench and heat from the tightly packed steers would kill a man with a gas-mask on!

Giant Wave Threatens Death to All.

So the hatch was left open and the water poured in and the good ship wailed in the high seas like a ham-strung calf at a rodeo.

It was four o'clock in the morning, Pete says, when the crisis came. The men were laddling out fresh water to the frantic cattle when a monster wave slapped the weary side of the ship and Pete thought it was all over.

Pete was standing in the narrow passage-way with his mates when that wave struck. The ship keeled over to a 45-degree angle and flung the cattle in heaps to the port side of their stalls.

She paused there as though trying to decide whether or not to turn bottom side up, and then righted herself and dipped almost as far on the starboard side! Wham! Those tons of living steaks shot-the-shoots across their stalls and hit the detaining bars with a deafening crash.

Some of the stalls held, but some of them didn't, and when Pete got to his feet and looked around him he forgot all about the storm, for coming right at him along the narrow passage-way WAS CERTAIN DEATH!

Now a stampede on dry land is about as dangerous a thing as you can find.

A Stampede at Sea Is Really Something.

and I for one don't want any part of it, but a stampede at sea—in a storm—is really something to write home about.

Pete says it was a sight he will never forget. The maddened steers—insane with terror—came splashing along the passage-way at amazing speed—tongues hanging out of their open mouths and eyes starting out of their heads.

Men and Cattle Caught in Death-Trap.

One of the leaders fell, but the rest never paused as they trampled him to death in the foam beneath their pounding hoofs.

Pete let out a yell and tried to get out of the way, but the foreman was in front of him, and the foreman was a fat man and his slow-moving bulk completely filled the passage-way.

Pete says he felt like a rat in a trap—those few seconds that he stood there unable to move one way or the other.

The foreman was an old-timer and when he hurdled over a barrier into a stall he saved not only his own life but Pete's, because as he jumped he felt the hot breath of the leading steer on his cheek.

Well, sir, jumping into one of those narrow stalls with a frantic steer for a cabin mate was like jumping from the frying pan into the fire.

Every time the boat rocked the steer would go careening dangerously around—smashing against one side and then the other—with Pete doing his best to keep his feet.

One false step on that slippery floor and this story would never have been told.

Luckily for Pete and his shipmates not as many of the cattle had escaped as it seemed.

Sea Was Singing "Last Round-Up."

The bellowing procession down the passage-way was only about ten strong, and when it passed the men all jumped back out of the stalls and waded after their charges.

That chase rambled all over the ship, and if you want some excitement, Pete says, try rounding up cattle on a ship at sea.

Every time the cowboys would corner one of the critters, why that floating pasture would turn on end and men and cattle would slide kicking into the scuppers. Those big waves, Pete says, sure seemed to be singing "The Last Round-Up" for him.

But the storm finally eased up and the cattle were rounded up and led back to their repaired stalls with no serious casualties to the men.

There were a lot of broken legs, however, among the steers. The animals were destroyed to end their suffering, and as the good ship steadied on her path they were buried at sea.

And so, boys and girls, ends the saga.

Odors of Many Blossoms Are Far From Agreeable

Throughout the ages, scents have exercised a fascination over mankind. In far-off days, says Tit-Bits Magazine, incense and frankincense were used in the temples of most religious orders. On a granite tablet at the base of the Sphinx there is still to be seen a representation of King Thothmes IV burning incense as an offering. It was the custom to prescribe certain perfumes in cases of illness. The smell of white violets was said to be good for the digestion, while a perfume made from vine leaves was supposed to keep the mind clear.

Scent-making methods today do not differ greatly from those employed long before history was written. Everyday flowers still form the basis of all really good scents, although synthetic preparations are sometimes used in cheap varieties. There are 4,300 varieties of flowers grown in Europe, of which only 400 possess any agreeable smell. More than 3,500 types of blooms are disagreeable in odor.

HITCH-HIKING FLY SPREADS DISEASE

The common house fly is a hitch hiker. However, the fly doesn't bother to jerk a thumb and ask a ride; it flies into moving autos or even trains or airplanes without permission and often travels hundreds of miles before leaving its chosen vehicle.

This habit of flies traveling great distances on other power than their own has made local fly eradication campaigns less effective than the campaigners hoped. Cases have been found where a fly carried disease germs on its legs and body for miles and infected people in the community where it settled. No previous cases of the disease were in existence in the new community and health authorities could find no other source of infection than flies.

Repeated warnings of physicians and health officials have apparently failed to instill a proper fear of the house fly in the average mind. However, a more thorough knowledge of the habits of a fly would increase the respect for this tiny insect, according to authorities on the subject. Decent cleanliness in any home requires protection against the menace of flies. Whether a fly is home-born or a hitch-hiking visitor, he is a danger. Fortunately, an effective fly-killing program can be conducted in any home by the use of a reliable fly spray containing an ample quantity of Pyrethrins, a product derived from Pyrethrum flowers, which is death to flies, when sprayed in a fine mist.

Memories

LION WOULD LEARN

"Time after time," said the big game hunter, "the lion sprang at me, and time after time as he leaped I threw myself forward and he went harmlessly over my head. Eventually the animal gave up the attempt to fell me and trotted off into the jungle. The following day I came to a cliff overlooking the sea, and there on the beach I saw the same lion. I stood transfixed at its antics."

"What was he doing?" "What was he doing?" said the hunter, dramatically. "Perhaps you won't believe me, but that lion was practicing short jumps."—Tit-Bits.

"I've discovered Calumet's big, new 10¢ can!"

"No more 'by-guess-and-by-golly' baking in this house now!"

says Mrs. Owen H. Fleming, 1235 Judson Ave., Evanston, Ill.

Mrs. Fleming was one of the first women to get the big, new 10c can of Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder.

"No need for any woman to take chances with her baking now," she says. "That new 10c can of Calumet certainly means that the very best can be bought at a bargain." Ask your grocer to show you the new, bigger 10c Calumet can!

A SIMPLE TWIST . . . and the Easy-Off Top lifts off. No spilling, no broken finger-nails!

WHY DOES CALUMET give such astonishing "baking luck?" Why is Calumet different from other baking powders? Because Calumet combines two distinct leavening actions. A quick one for the mixing bowl. A slower one for the oven . . . And Calumet's famous double-action is so perfectly balanced and controlled that it produces perfect leavening—every time.

All Calumet prices are lower! Calumet is now selling at the lowest prices in its history. The Full-Pound Can now sells regularly for only 25¢. And if you want a smaller size—get the new, big 10¢ can—a lot of good baking for a dime—with Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder.

Years of Service Equip Godwin To Cover Washington

EARL GODWIN

Noted Washington Correspondent Who Writes for This Paper
Few Washington correspondents have the advantage of the many years of intimacy with Capitol Hill, of close acquaintance with government officials, of actual reporting of Washington affairs, that enable Earl Godwin to "cover" the National Capital for this newspaper with the intelligence and efficiency he commands.
Godwin, now fifty-one, began his newspaper career at sixteen, as a reporter for the Passaic (N. J.) Herald, where in his own words, he "covered everything from soup to nuts especially the nuts." Seriously he has reported some phases of Washington from Theodore Roosevelt's time to that of Franklin D. He covered congress during the World War, except for a brief period of service in the army.

He was associate editor of the Washington Times when Arthur Brisbane was editor, accompanied General Pershing on his expedition to locate Villa in Mexico, and covered the White House under every President since "T. R." He has reported so many nominating conventions that he can't remember when he didn't; he thinks he began in 1908. He has enjoyed close personal acquaintance with all the Presidents of his time, and has traveled with all except Taft. He was on the Alaskan trip with Harding and was close at hand when the President died. For a time he was unofficial liaison between the prince of Wales and the press when the prince was traveling here.

Earl Godwin was a charter member and president of the National Press club, and is a member of the committee which passes on the standing of newspaper men for membership in the house and senate press galleries. Keep in touch with Washington with him every week in this newspaper.

BALD? Give Your Scalp a Chance
Japanese Oil is the name of the remarkably successful preparation that thousands are using to get rid of loose dandruff, stop scalp itch and grow strong, healthy hair on thin and partially bald spots where hair roots are not dead. This famous antiseptic counter-irritant stimulates circulation in the scalp, brings an abundant supply of blood to nourish and feed starved hair roots—one of the chief causes of baldness. Get a bottle today at any druggist. The cost is trifling, 50c (Economy size, $1). You have little to lose and much to gain. FREE, valuable book "The Truth About the Hair." If you write to National Remedy Co., 56 W. 45th St., N. Y.

It's always fair weather where we make Chesterfields

"Weather machines" in the Chesterfield factories keep the heat and moisture at a steady even level . . .

This control of temperature and humidity helps to retain the full flavor and aroma of the tobaccos you smoke in Chesterfields.

And it has a great deal to do with providing the proper working conditions for the employes who handle the tobaccos and operate the Chesterfield machines.

Mild ripe tobaccos and modern up-to-date factories with proper control of temperature and humidity help to make Chesterfield . . .
