SOCIALISM BY INDIRECTION

The Socialist party has given up, so far as being an active political entity is concerned. It will not put a ticket in the field in 1956. It following has steadily shrunk — where it gained a vote of almost 1,000,000 in 1920, the 1952 total was an insignificant 20,000.

The American people won't vote socialist. Yet all kinds of socialist ideas and doctrines have been put over on the American people by men using camouflaged labels. In short we have been fed socialism, centralized government, bureaucracy and debt — by indirection and by plain deceit.

The people are losing their gullibility. That's one of the best signs of the time.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kost and Shirley left this morning for Dallas where Shirley will enrolled as a freshman student at Southern Methodist University.

Mother Goose In Texas

By Ray Wood

I'm wild and woolly and full of fleas;
Ain't never been carried below the knees;
I'm a wild he-wolf from Bitter Creek

And it's my night to howl.
It may seem strange to classify this rhyme as Mother Goose lore, but it was when I was a child, long before we ever knew a copy of the printed Mother Goose books.

It may have been invented as a "bad-man holler", but that did not lessen its charm to kids long before my time — over half a century ago.

It may not have been invented in Texas, for it is well known in the older states, but the following rhyme seems typically Texan.

What kind of pants does a cowboy wear?
Rawhide pants, 'cause they don't tear.

And here are two lines from a correspondent in West Columbia. Perhaps some reader can tell more about Mister Mattingly and why he "tusseled with the steer".

Oh, Mister Mattingly, please lend an ear
Before you tussle with that steer.
Next Week: "Old Dan Tucker".

Variants of these and similar rhymes will be recorded in the permanent collection of Mother Goose in Texas, if sent to Ray Wood, Raywood, Texas.

OZONA GIRL VACATIONS IN CARACAS, VENEZUELA

Hotel Tamanaco at Caracas, Venezuela, down in South America, sends a publicity hand-out, complete with picture, on the recent vacation visit of Miss Francine Hatley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Hatley of Ozona, to the Caracas hotel. Miss Hatley is a teacher, employed by the Creole Petroleum Corp., in their refinery at Amuay, Venezuela. She spent her vacation in Caracas with a friend, Miss Garland Estes of Halifax, Virginia. "Both Misses Hatley and Estes were delighted with the superb Caracas Hotel," the "Noticia" said.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Childress, Jr., and Graham left the first of the week for Houston where Graham, a 1954 graduate of Ozona High School, has enrolled in Rice Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Strauss and son, Teddy, are guests this week of Mrs. Strauss' grandmother, Mrs. N. W. Graham.

WELCOME!

TEACHERS — STUDENTS and NEW RESIDENTS OF OZONA

The beginning of a new school year is like an annual homecoming — teachers who have been away for the summer are back. New teachers come in to replace those who have moved on. Students are eager to get back into school to have the companionship of all the kids — whether they will admit it or not — and the rest of us are always glad to have them all gathered back for the regular school-year activities.

We welcome the returning teachers, the new teachers, the new pupils and old, the new residents of Ozona in general and extend you a cordial invitation to "make yourselves at home" in our store. We sincerely hope you will visit us and give us an opportunity to get acquainted and to help you in any way we can.

From State Capitol

By Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN, Texas — Texas' conservatives, with a champion in Governor Allan Shivers, are now looking confidently toward the September 14 state Democratic convention at Mineral Wells.

Control of the convention is already assured the Governor by July precinct and county conventions which were largely captured by the state's conservative element.

In the Mineral Wells move to set up a solid conservative state organization for the next two years, Shivers is expected to:

1. Name a successor to Wright Morrow, conservative Democratic National Committeeman who has been denied a seat by the national committee. Morrow had agreed to step aside, but the state organization refused his resignation.

2. Lend impetus to the move by conservative elements to replace liberal Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell with someone acceptable to Dixie and Southwestern conservatives. Mitchell has agreed to resign after the November 2 election.

With primary emphasis on healing the split in the national Democratic Party, one question has come to the fore.

That is whether Texas conservatives will fight the renomination of Adlai Stevenson, who appears to be the only top Democratic contender for the presidency, in 1956.

Stevenson lost the Texas vote in 1952, largely because of his views on states rights and the Texas tidelands.

Republican Claims

Texas Republicans, claiming credit for the re-election of Shivers, asked for a show of appreciation.

Jack Porter of Houston, Texas GOP chief, asked Democrats to vote for LeRoy (Pete) Lamaster of Perryton as Congressman for the 18th district in the November general election.

"There is no doubt whatever but that the Republicans of Texas pulled Governor Shivers through," said Porter. "We are calling on Democrats . . . to return the favor."

New Judges

Shivers will appoint, sometime after September 14, an associate justice of the Texas Supreme Court and 10 new district judges.

Appointed to fill the position of the late Associate Justice Graham B. Smedley during the remainder of 1954 will probably be the same person nominated by the state executive committee September 13 for the job.

The name will then go on the November 2 ballot, as the Democratic nominee for the post, which is a 1955-59 term.

Highway Award

Highest safety award presented by the National Safety Council has gone to the Texas Highway Department.

The Award of Honor is given for accident prevention achievement. Of 905 eligible organizations, only 12 received the pat-on-the-back.

Business Record

Texas business may break all previous records this year.

Dr. John R. Stockton, director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research, says his prediction will be true if the remainder of 1954 looks like the first seven months.

Stockton reported that Texas' business for the first seven months was the highest of any year's similar period.

RANCH RECORDS

Are More Important

Today Than Ever

Government regulations and heavy tax programs are destined to be a part of the American way of doing business for a long time. For that reason, it is more important today that every business keep accurate records of its operations.

The ranch business is no exception. With the stiff federal taxes, you will want to take advantage of every saving item in your expense account and at the same time have clear and convincing records available for inspection by tax agents to prove up any item on your income tax return.

Start now to keep a complete record covering all operations in your business with the Stockman's RANCH RECORD BOOK. Your cancelled checks or your present records can be transcribed to this handy record book, together with your income and inventory records and you can have your entire record in a simplified form contained in one volume.

Here and There

By J. Troy Hickman

Time was when the arrival of a new school teacher in a small town was an event known by all. This fact was probably not displeasing to the teacher. But when she became a part of the little town's life she discovered that she was under the town's eye in a rather unique way. The town seemed to claim the right to supervise the details of her life in a rather intimate and not always pleasing way. Fortunately, this habit is on its way out. Although school teachers, like all public servants, should be expected to live up to certain minimum standards both in their schoolrooms and in their private lives, there is no reason why they should be expected to do more than that.

A few days ago a public school superintendent not far from here resigned his position to go into the business world. Why should a man who is trained and experienced in a learned profession make such a decision after he is well launched on his career? One reason is said to be that there are certain pressures on a public school administrator which some are unwilling to accept. In the past two decades the job of running a school has become increasingly complicated. In our own town, for instance, the public school is probably the biggest business we have. Its employees are numbered by the scores, its budget runs into the hundreds of thousands of dollars annually, and the heads of it are uniquely vulnerable to public opinion. There are many shades of opinion to be considered, and sometimes the wise middle ground is hard to find.

One of the greatest friends public education ever had in Texas, Mirabeau B. Lamar, made a classic definition of the free public school, "A cultivated mind is the guardian genius of democracy." By that I think he meant that we cannot make a democracy work without minds that are disciplined to think clearly and so stocked with the common wisdom of the race that they cannot be duped.

It used to be thought that the important elements of learning for good citizenship were how to read and understand the written thoughts of others (English Literature), how to formulate and express adequately one's own thoughts (Composition, Grammar, etc.), how to reason from premise to conclusion without jumping the track (Logic, Moral Philosophy, etc.), how to handle exact quantities (Math, etc.), how to manipulate and calculate such ponderables as mass, energy, and chemical reactions (Physics, Chemistry, etc.), how to understand the earth's surface and its resources (Geography, etc.), to know how the governments of the world work, especially our own government (Civics, etc.), and how to interpret the important things that have happened in the human story (History, etc.). These were deemed to be the fundamental and classical subjects destined to become the equipment of any child who mastered them. It was believed that persons so equipped would be better able to function as effective citizens of a democracy. It was believed that this broad base held by all in common would be by each adapted to the calling or career he elected to follow. The public school system was set up as a branch of the state government and financed by public taxation.

In more recent times, however, the science of education has undergone a radical transformation. The curriculum has been vastly expanded. An impressive list of extra-curricular activities have been added to the school program.

In addition to its original function of training for citizenship in a democracy the school has been required little by little to assume responsibility for health and physical development, to be a clearinghouse for community functions, to be an agency through which organized causes raise money, to entertain the community, and to provide cultural opportunities for school children. Needless to say, this new concept has vastly raised the expense of running the school. And it has also added tremendously to the weight and complexity of the teacher's task.

Many people who go into the teaching profession as a life work expect to remain classroom teachers all their lives. Some are motivated partly at least by a genuine desire to serve life's high interests. A very great many are quiet folk who have no special yen to engage in the fierce competition of the business world or strive for high professional honors. They are people who want a job that can be done with dignity and with time to live and think.

A good teacher must have time to think. The distraction of a crowded program of events does not comport with the academic spirit. He must have time to reflect upon the meaning of the truth he is interpreting to his students. The learning process cannot be hurried without loss of quality.

The atmosphere of the modern classroom with its endless distractions sometimes is not the atmosphere of learning. Not long ago a small public school situated near a teacher's college employed as its superintendent a retired member of the college faculty. This man was ripe, but he was still in the later prime of his life. He accepted the job with the idea of teaching as he thought teaching should be. After two weeks he resigned and went into the business world. I asked him why he quit so soon.

"Because," he said, "the atmosphere of the school was not conducive to learning, and I felt there was no chance making it so."

Most teachers who come into the profession come in to teach. They find sometimes that instead of teaching they are carrying a heavy load of duties related to community activities, athletics, cultural pursuits, and other things which, practiced to excess make teaching hard to accomplish. That fact, I believe, contributes significantly to the shortage in the teacher profession today. And that is a thing you and I can do something about.

The local public school is one part of our government that we can control if we will. But there is a division of opinion among school patrons on the subject. One group contend for the extension of the program, and they usually are more aggressive than those who would prefer a classical schedule. The first group usually dominate the P. T. A. and hold the ear of the trustees. Believing that the voice of this group is the community voice, many boards of trustees proceed accordingly. When this happens, there is little that the superintendent, the principals, and the classroom teachers can do except go along with it.

The expansion of the school program to take in nearly everything is a strong national trend. The end is not in sight. But some day in the future it is possible that the taxpayer may reach the limit of his patience, parents may reach the limit of their endurance, and even the overstimulated children may reach the limit of their apparently limitless energy. If that happens, we may see a new trend begin to move back toward fundamentals.

When that day comes, I believe that many of the fine minds and devout spirits in this country will again see in the teaching profession a field of service with the dignity, the prestige, and the rewards that a high calling so amply deserves.

JENNIE KING CIRCLE

Members of the Jennie King Circle of the Methodist W. S. C. S. met Wednesday morning in the home of the Circle Chairman, Mrs. M. B. Flippen. The study on India, Pakistan and Ceylon was led by the study chairman, Mrs. Charles Williams, Sr.

Parts on the program were presented by Mrs. J. A. Fussell, Mrs. B. C. Flowers, Mrs. C. V. Tubbs and Mrs. L. D. Kirby. Others present were Mrs. Floyd Henderson, Mrs. Ele Hagelstein, Mrs. O. D. West and Mrs. Byron Gray.

The next meeting of the Circle will be September 22 in the home of Mrs. Ele Hagelstein.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Bledsoe have moved to San Angelo to make their home. They are residing at 76 Gillis Street in that city and have ordered The Stockman to follow them. Mrs. Bledsoe asks that their thanks be expressed to all in Ozona for their thoughtfulness and help "on our loss during the flood especially the Church of Christ and Mr. and Mrs. Frank James. God bless all is our prayer".

Proposed AMENDMENTS To Constitution

An Impartial Analysis by the Texas Industrial Conference of 11 proposals to be voted on Nov. 2.

A booklet prepared by the Texas Industrial Conference analyzing the eleven proposals to amend the Constitution of Texas which voters will be called upon to decide in the general election November 2, has just been issued. The booklet lists and discusses the proposals in the order in which they will appear on the ballot.

"It is not the purpose of these analyses to indicate how anyone should vote on any of the proposals, but to present facts which will be helpful in determining whether these amendments are desirable", the booklet explains.

In order that Stockman readers may have the benefit of these discussions and be able to vote more intelligently on the record number of proposed Constitutional changes in the November election, the analyses by the Industrial Conference will be published in series form in this newspaper, the first in the series following:

Authorizing the Texas Legislature to increase spending for old age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children by $7,000,000 a year and requiring that names of recipients of public assistance be made available to the public.

S. J. R. No. 7

If adopted, Senate Joint Resolution No. 7 would amend Section 51a of Article III of the State Constitution, which is the section governing public assistance. Only two changes would be made but they are fundamental:

1. The total amount which the Legislature could appropriate for the State's three public assistance programs would be increased from $35,000,000 a year to $42,000,000.

2. The Legislature would be required to enact laws under which the name of recipients of public assistance would be available to the public.

The proposed increase of $7,000,000 a year in State funds for the three programs of aid to the needy would not be automatic. It would be effective when the Legislature appropriated additional money. The latest estimate of revenues made by the Comptroller of Public Accounts indicates that such an appropriation would also require the levying of additional taxes.

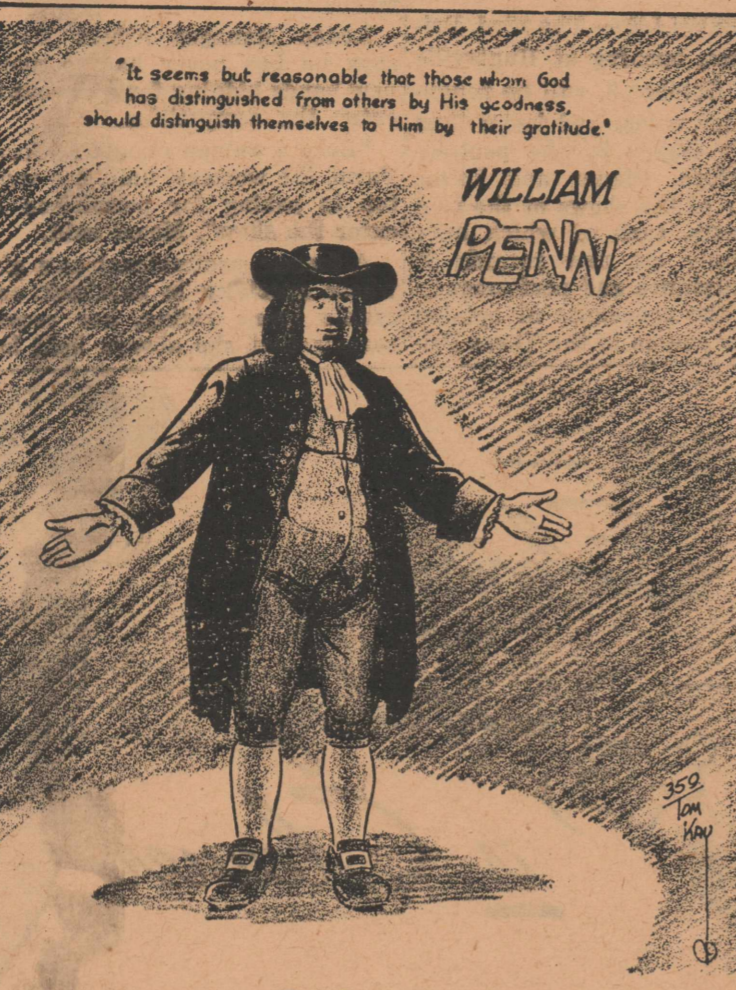

The question uppermost in the minds of many people is how much additional money people now on the rolls would get out of the proposed increase of $7,000,000 a year. The last annual report of the State Department of Public Welfare indicates that little, if any, addition would be made to the monthly payments received by those now on the rolls. In the fiscal year 1953 the full amount of grants, determined by the Department on the basis of individual need, were paid except in one month; and the reduction in that month amounted to 25 cents per person for recipients of old age assistance and aid to the blind. All grants to dependent children were paid in full. The basis for an increase to any individual would be a restudy by the Department of his personal need and a revision of his grant.

month. This maximum is not increased by this proposed amendment. Better than one out of every five recipients of Aid to the Blind and better than one out of five recipients of Aid to Dependent

More than 88% of State funds for public assistance go to recipients of Old Age Assistance, and approximately one out of every seven of this group already is receiving the maximum of $55 per

THE AMERICAN WAY

"It seems but reasonable that those whom God has distinguished from others by His goodness, should distinguish themselves to Him by their gratitude."

WILLIAM PENN

Reciprocity

Children are already receiving the maximum amount set by the Department of Public Welfare.

It appears to be highly questionable that the proposed increase in State funds would benefit many of those now on the rolls. The additional money would permit adding more people to the rolls.

Substantial increase in the amount paid to needy persons under these programs have been made in the last three years as a result of additional money made available by the Federal government, and any material increases in the future will come from this source rather than from State funds, regardless of whether this proposed amendment is adopted or not. A change in the Federal formula for matching state funds could increase both the amount received by the average recipient and the maximum amount which could be paid to an individual.

The intent and the definite trend under Federal Social Security Laws is for the transfer of more and more of our needy aged citizens to Old Age and Survivors Insurance benefits. This usually results in their receiving more money than they could from Old Age Assistance. Increased coverage by Old Age and Survivors Insurance will substantially reduce the number on our State rolls for Old Age Assistance, and in some measure it will also reduce need for Aid to the Blind and Aid to Dependent Children.

The matter of publicizing the names of recipients of public assistance is controversial. Twenty-eight states now permit or require the names of recipients to be made available to the public. Federal laws, to which the states must conform, forbid the use of such names for political or commercial purposes.

Those who favor publicizing the names of recipients contend that the public is entitled to know who is aided at the taxpayers' expense; that secrecy as to these names conceals errors of administration; that public knowledge of recipients' names would cause many not in genuine need to drop from the rolls voluntarily; and that recipients would be protected by law from exploitation.

Opponents of the policy of revealing the names of recipients say that unfortunate people in need and entitled to public aid should not be embarrassed by disclosure of their names, particularly in the case of dependent children; that such disclosure would in many cases work hardships on relatives of recipients; and that the procedure for making the names of recipients available to the public needlessly complicates administration of the law.

Between these views is another consideration entirely apart from the propriety or expediency of making public the names of recipients. This is the question of writing such a provision into the Constitution instead of dealing with it by statute. The purpose of putting it into the Constitution, of course, is to insure that it will be done. All of the twenty-eight states which now have such provisions have dealt with the matter by legislative enactment.

HOUSTON RESEARCH CENTER

... is dedicated to man's impelling curiosity in the search for knowledge and its useful application in the specialized fields of petroleum exploration and production.

Dedicated to

Man's Impelling Curiosity

Most of us interpret the value of research in terms of immediate benefits. Research means that we get a better automobile, an improved gasoline, or an outstanding motor oil.

At Baytown Refinery, the Humble Company maintains one of the finest laboratories in the petroleum industry for that kind of research.

But behind the study that goes into the improvement of the products it sells, Humble for years has fostered basic research related to the discovery and production of oil and natural gas.

The United States uses so much oil from day to day, and needs so much more to provide for the emergencies of national defense, that studies leading to the discovery of new supplies and the more efficient management of existing reservoirs are more important than ever before. Consequently, Humble's expenditures on this sort of research are the heaviest in the Company's history and its staff of research scientists is larger than it has ever been.

To house the expansion of these research sections, Humble recently completed its new Research Center at Houston and will formally dedicate it this week end.

Here the scientists of the various departments involved in the discovery and production of oil will utilize common facilities, and here they will have the stimulation of close association with other scientists whose efforts are dedicated to a common end.

urgently needed by flood victims in all of the stricken communities. The Red Cross provided families with funds to purchase over 1,300 beds and 2,780 mattresses, of which 2,400 mattresses were needed in Laredo alone. For Eagle Pass families, the Red Cross replaced 920 chairs, 225 tables, 52 stoves, and 25 iceboxes, among a multitude of assorted household items.

Oddly enough, in Ozona, the single most-needed item was dressers and chests, where 207 were provided. Ozona families also needed 51 washing machines, 44 sofas, 66 dinette sets, and 49 lamps, to name a few items. Floors and floor coverings took severe damage in Laredo, where the Red Cross replaced 1,000 linoleums. Among other badly needed household items which the Red Cross provided for families in that community were 250 sets of dishes, 200 sets of linens, 200 ironing boards, and even 20 sewing machines.

Nothing was overlooked in providing for people's needs, as, for example, in Ozona, where the Red Cross replaced 19 eyeglasses, and even one hearing aid and one set of dentures.

In all of these instances, families made their own selection of merchandise in local stores and Red Cross paid the bill. For household furnishings alone, the Red Cross picked up a $230,867 tab.

But Red Cross assistance didn't stop there. It extended to such items as building 41 homes and repairing 589 other homes at a cost of $314,142, to helping 1,528 families with food, clothing, and maintenance at a cost of $34,628, to providing medical and nursing care for 90 sick and injured at a cost of $10,080, and to furnishing occupational supplies and equipment to 73 families at a cost of $15,362.

The disastrous floods, which struck first at Langtry on June 27 and stranded a passenger-filled train, next caught Ozona by surprise at 3 a. m. on June 28. Literally washing people from their beds, and houses from their foundation in that city, the raging waters then raced past Del Rio into Eagle Pass, and lastly into Laredo, there to vent their full fury on June 30.

Not only American cities, but the Mexican towns of Ciudad Acauna, Piedras Negras, and Nuevo Laredo suffered fearful damage, as countless thousands of Mexicans fled the waters to the hills without food, water, or other provisions. The Red Cross local chapters, on the scene the same day the first flash floods struck, immediately set up shelters in the Texas cities and began relief and rehabilitation work for their people and, as good neighbors, extended aid across the river to their hard hit Mexican friends.

With the help of the U. S. Army and Air Force, the Red Cross was able to carry out immediate emergency measures. Throughout the disaster operation, the state of Texas cooperated and assisted Red Cross in its program.

While the bulk of Texas families have already received Red Cross assistance, some 160 families who were north to help harvest crops during the flood, will get Red Cross consideration for aid upon their return in September and October.

Rougher, Tougher Than Ever Prison Rodeo Is Forecast

HUNTSVILLE — The 23rd. Prison Rodeo, opening at Huntsville Sunday, October 3, will be rougher, tougher, wilder and faster than any ever staged by the penitentiary before. Bigger and better than any of the shows of the past three years, each of which have successively set new records in both attendance and performance. Such is the consensus of opinion wherever you go in the Texas Prison System. Ask employee or inmate and they'll tell you the 1954 show will out-do all others of the past in both action and performance.

Rodeo Manager Albert Moore says he has never had so many new hands bidding for a try-out to enter the competition.

"Even a woman inmate at Goree Farm, the womens' unit, has written in asking for permission to enter the show", Moore said.

A former professional cow girl whose specialty is bareback and saddle bronc riding, her record reveals that she always held her own in competition with the best men riders in outside rodeo circuits. Her request is being seriously considered by the rodeo management.

SON TO WOOLBRIGHTS

Rev. and Mrs. Blake Woolbright are the parents of a son born Monday night in the Crockett County Hospital. The baby, named Keith Austin, weighed 7 pounds 9 ounces. The Woolbrights have one other son, Brent Allen, 4½ years old. Rev. Woolbright is pastor of the First Baptist Church here.

"yes ma'am —
Electric Cooking
is Cleaner"

Because Electric Heat itself is Clean!
Clean as an electric light, the penetrating heat of sealed surface units leaves your pots and pans shining bright. Because there's no flame . . . no soot . . . or smoke. Kitchen walls stay fresh and clean much longer . . . curtains need laundering less frequently. More and more women are cooking electrically; not only because it's CLEAN, but because it's SAFE . . . FAST . . . AUTOMATIC . . . ECONOMICAL.
