IT'S HAPPENING HERE!

A Rip Van Winkle awakening today in the midst of the battle for "Right-to-Work" laws after a snooze of 20 years or more would have occasion to rub his eyes in wonderment. And nowhere across the land would the anomaly of a presumably "free" people fighting for the privilege of making a living without paying tribute to the unions appear more at variance with the Declaration of Independence than in Ohio.

In that state 16,000 patriotic volunteers eagerly undertook the tremendous task of securing the petition signatures required by law to place a right-to-work amendment of the Ohio constitution on the ballot this fall. This will require 356,000 names, or ten percent of the number voting for gubernatorial candidates in the last election. As a safeguard against signatures that might be disqualified for one reason or another, 100,000 additional may be needed.

So long as the labor bosses felt the campaign would fizzle, all was quiet. But when a pollster indicated the effort would succeed by a comfortable margin, the reign of terror began. Names of the circulators, filed as required with the Secretary of State were available to AFL-CIO officials who kept local labor union bosses informed from day to day. They swung into action.

Merchants soliciting signatures were told to knock it off, or union members would boycott their establishments. Insurance men active in the fight found their mail bringing policy cancellations instead of orders. Where there was no obvious economic lever to apply — as in the case of retired people — mysterious voices over the telephone inquired whether the circulator would care to be mugged or have his house bombed.

Union retaliation was immediately effective. The loyal army of 16,000 dwindled under fire and defeat seemed inevitable — until the school year ended and the kids came home from college. To youth, the challenge of pitched battle was irresistible. Hundreds volunteered, and once more victory is just over the horizon. With success in placing the right-to-work issue on the ballot, will come a new phase, however. Slowdowns and sitdowns face employers who help financially or actively in the drive for November votes. The union leaders have promised an all-out fight.

But there is good reason to hope that both the fight and the outcome in Ohio may provide a shining example for those states that have yet to do battle for this fundamental right.

NEEDED WEAPON

A million pamphlets presenting ten chapters of the recent high school text book, "Democracy versus Communism" will be distributed to Armed Forces personnel. John Marshall, president of the Institute of Fiscal and Political Education, which sponsored the book, directed its four years of preparation and solicited the $150,000 required for its production, says this "is a gratifying climax to many years of work."

Brig Gen. S. F. Giffin, USAF, in charge of armed forces information and education, and who arranged for our fighting men to receive the booklets declared: "It is essential that our soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines have a clear understanding of the goals of international Communism and how the Communists operate to attain them. Morale and readiness to fight if necessary are based on a solid foundation of knowledge of the issues at stake as well as upon purely military proficiency."

We think General Giffin should order some extra copies of this selected, easy-to-read pamphlet version for distribution farther up the line. And while we are on the subject of books, he might also get some copies of "The Pentagon Story" by Col. Victor J. Fox, which the author says, is fiction.

The News Reel

A re-run of "The Ozona Story" as gleaned from the files of The Ozona Stockman

From The Stockman, Aug. 1, 1929

With the distribution of six voting boxes in local business houses, the race for a duchess from Ozona to the West Texas Exposition in San Angelo Sept. 16 to 21 is warming up. Eight nominees have so far been presented. They are Misses Bernice Bailey, Ethel Childress, Pauline McLeod, Elizabeth Davidson, Johnnie Cross, Ada Word, Louise Coates and Mary Kincaid.

Fire caused by sparks from a burning trash fire destroyed a barn at the Fisher Powell home in west Ozona Wednesday morning.

With hundreds of ranchmen from Southwest Texas headed for Del Rio for the annual convention of the Sheep & Goat Raisers Assn.

of Texas, a great deal of talk concerns the naming of a president of the Association for the coming year. Most prominently mentioned for the post are Roger Gillis, now serving as vice president; T. A. Kincaid, now serving his fourth term as president, and Sol Mayer.

Woodrow Wilson, who with his mother and sisters, Mrs. Lee Wilson, Melba and Irma Lee Wilson, have been visiting in California, returned this week. Mrs. Wilson and the girls will visit in Stanton before returning home.

Miss Katherine Baggett has returned from Boulder, Colo., where she attended the first term of summer school at the University of Colorado.

Jake Young returned Wednesday from San Angelo where he recently underwent an operation.

Copies of a bill passed by the Legislature recently are being distributed by the Sheep & Goat Raisers Assn., to ranchmen and truckers. The bill provides stiff penalties for failure of drivers of trucks or other vehicles to have in their possession written permits covering the movement of livestock and domestic fowls.

Mrs. B. B. Ingham and daughter, Miss Lucille Ingham, motored to Fort Worth last Thursday in response to a telephone message advising of the illness of Mrs. Ingham's mother, Mrs. Elam Dudley. They were accompanied on the return trip by Miss Linora Dudley, Mrs. Ingham's sister, who will visit here for a few days.

The electric sign sponsored by the Ozona Lions Club has been erected and as soon as cables can be run it will be lighted up each night. A number of pledges toward purchase of the sign have not been paid, the sign committee from the club announced, and those who have not paid are urged to do so at once.

Wool Marketing —

et situation in Boston and at any given time has the latest market information. He is in a better bargaining position, too, because he makes the offer of price, and usually if we sell, it is at his price. Still the buyer, too, is engaged in this guessing game. But he is usually better qualified to guess more accurately the clean content of a lot of wool than either the ranchman or the warehouseman. We have to accept this as a fact. If the buyer were outguessed many times he would no longer be a buyer. The biggest profit a dealer or speculator makes is when he outguesses us most.

How does a farmer who raises grain or cotton market his products? Basically he uses the same system as the ranchman. He sends his product to a public bonded warehouse. They may call it a gin or a grain elevator but nevertheless it is still a warehouse. The farmer's product is stored and insured for his account until sold, and the proceeds, less marketing costs, remitted to him.

But that's about all the similarity there is between a farmer's and a wool producer's marketing procedures. The farmer's product, let's use wheat as an example, is brought from the farm to the elevator. From that point on, the farmer's methods become modern as compared to the wool producer's "gay nineties" marketing.

The farmer's wheat is graded, exactly and expertly, not by guess but according to specified procedures and against very definite standards. He receives a warehouse receipt or certificate defining accurately what he delivered. It is true that his wheat is stored with a million or two other bushels of wheat and it may be impossible for him ever again to separate his particular wheat from that of his neighbors. He doesn't care. He knows he will be paid according to his warehouse certificate. Actually he doesn't care if he never sees his own grain again. He has work to do on the farm or a much needed vacation to take. His marketing procedure is estimated and has had the guess work taken out of it. He knows he will receive all the money due him and that it will represent the true market value of his product on the day it is sold.

What about the wool and mohair grower? He shears his animals in about the same way his granddaddy did. A great many producers certainly take better care of their clips at the ranch than others do, but there is plenty of room for improvement at this point. Maybe the bags are rolled out on the ground and practically all wool is hauled to the warehouse over dusty roads in unprotected trucks.

All classes and grades of wool are in the same bag. This again is the basis for more guess work on the part of your selling agent and the buyer. You as an individual may have a superior clip, put up in the best possible manner. You also may have your wool cored and micron counts made. These are advanced steps to take in order to know just what you are selling.

What happens now? The buyer sees your superior clip. It may not be a large one — most of them these days are small — but he really wants it. He selects another owner's clip to fill his order. This second clip may be inferior to yours — probably is — but you and the other grower get exactly the same price per grease pound.

We as wool and mohair growers are not getting all the money due us. The warehouse man who accepts your wool on consignment knows this but still he has to take care of all of his customers, the mediocre clip as well as the superior one. He has problems too.

What is the solution? We do not know for sure. We do have a few ideas. Most producers and most of the warehousemen who accept wool on consignment and even the Texas speculator buyer knows that our wools are now selling far under the world market, and this is not a healthy nor a normal situation.

The Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers Association, the Texas sheep and goat man's only service organization, is determined to find an answer to this vital question and to improve somehow the marketing system. The question is not new in the Association. About thirty years ago ranchmen members of the Association were greatly concerned about the same problem. But as soon as prices improved somewhat then, the effort ceased. We do not intend to give up so easily this time. Several capable and dedicated men have been appointed to serve on a wool and mohair marketing committee, representing both the growers and the warehousemen.

Appointed to this committee are Fred Earwood, Sonora, chairman, ranchman and warehouse manager; Jimmy Powell, Menard, vice chairman; Ray Wyatt, Bandera, warehouseman; C. W. (Dink) Wardlaw, Del Rio, ranchman and warehouse manager; O. D. Dooley, Bracketville, ranchman; Frank Roddie, Brady, ranchman and warehouse and scouring plant manager; Miles Pierce, Alpine, ranchman; Dale Priour, Ingram, warehouseman, and E. S. Mayer, Sonora, ranchman.

If you are a producer of wool or mohair or if you are interested in the marketing of these fibers, talk to the members of this committee. Give them your views, but above everything realize that they are working only for you, the producer. Keep an open mind and please do not condemn them or their efforts until you know for certain what the results of their study will be.

Progress demands change and to believe otherwise may indicate that you are in a rut and blind to the opportunities that lie ahead in your industry.

Gonzales Foundation Faces Financial Crisis From Polio Care Shift

Gonzales — In the next 60 to 90 days, Texas' famous physical rehabilitation center, the Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation, must either make the grade financially or close its doors to handicapped Texas citizens. Approximately 4,500 patients have received comprehensive treatment since the center opened in 1941.

Faced with a deficit of $100,000 as the result of a dramatic shift from polio care to the treatment of numerous other handicapping injuries and diseases, the Foundation's statewide board of directors was called into emergency session Sunday. While polio care has been extensively financed by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, few funds are available for patients suffering brain damage, spinal cord injury, strokes, and such diseases as cerebral palsy, muscular dystrophy, and multiple sclerosis.

The new program of the National Foundation will not provide patient care help for patients other than polio in the immediate future, spokesmen from the Foundation told the Warm Springs board.

No child whose condition could be helped by the non-profit center has ever been turned away for lack of funds and the welfare program has also been extended to adults.

"It is our fervent hope that the Foundations' many friends, when apprised of this need for additional funds, will come to the aid of this truly outstanding work," R. I. Payne of Dallas, president, said.

Stringent economies in the center's operation, special efforts to raise funds for immediate needs, an emergency public information and fund-raising campaign, and the establishment of a long-range fund-raising program were ordered by the Board.

The name of the 110-bed center, Texas' only complete medical facility for the rehabilitation of the severely handicapped, was officially changed to the Texas Rehabilitation Center of the Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation.

Houston Capitalist Buys S.T. Lumber Co.

Robert E. Hornberger of Houston and Dallas announced today that he has purchased the South Texas Lumber Company of Houston and its entire properties in 16 cities from the James M. West estate and Wesley W. West.

Mr. Hornberger has been named President of the company. Other officers are Glenn Seydel, Executive Vice-President; Ray R. Smith, Vice-President and General Manager; Ralph U. Heninger, Vice-President; Don Seydel, Secretary-Treasurer; Rodman S. Peddie, Assistant Secretary and Credit Manager; and Albert M. Wolford, General Sales Manager. Mr. Hornberger said that present personnel will be retained.

South Texas Lumber Company is headquartered in Houston. It is one of the oldest and largest lumber retailing operations in its area. Line yards are operated in San Angelo, Abilene, Harlingen, Texas City, Bronte, Coleman, Donna, Hempstead, Katy, LaFeria, Ozona, Pasadena, San Benito, Teague, and Yoakum. One of the major real estate holdings is the Mill Work facilities at the intersection of Greenbrier and the new Southwest Freeway in Houston.

South Texas Lumber Company had been owned by the West family since 1914, when the late James M. West acquired it from the late Jesse Jones, Houston capitalist, and merged it with other properties.

Although the purchase figure was not revealed, Mr. Hornberger said that the South Texas Lumber Company transaction was one of the largest property transfers in the retail lumber business in Texas in recent years.

Ken Cody has purchased the brick home of Mrs. Myrtle Mitchell and the block of land on which it is located and plans to make it his home. The present combination residence and funeral home, next to the South Texas Lumber Co., will be moved to the north half of the lot and used as a funeral home. A frame house now on the lot was being moved this week.

A Word of Thanks

It has been my pleasure to serve as your Commissioner from Precinct 2 of Crockett County for the past six years.

I am deeply grateful for the support and understanding I have received during those years, and especially am I grateful to the loyal friends who supported me in the Democratic primary of last Saturday. Whichever of the two remaining candidates is elected, I hope you will support him and give him the same fine consideration I have enjoyed as your Commissioner.

Honey, What a bargain I drove today!

The gasoline I buy gives me "more for my money." For only pennies I spend a busy day in my car taking good care of my husband, children and home.

Higher taxes now add 8.8¢ cents to the price of every gallon of gasoline. The price of gasoline itself has gone up only 17% in the last decade. Yet today's regular gasoline is the same as premium was 5 years ago. Today's premium is as powerful as aviation gasoline of the last war.
