State Youth Convention Will Hear Johnnie Moore

FORT WORTH, Texas-- Not ready to give up on their problem-racked world, more than 900 teen-age members of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) will invade the Texas Christian University campus here Wednesday to affirm, "There is a way!"

Coming from congregations throughout the state, they will participate through Saturday morning in the 26th annual Texas Christian Youth Convention. They will hear speeches on the "There Is a Way" theme from Paul A. Sims, deputy director of the Community Action Agency of Tarrant County; Johnnie Moore, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Moore of Muleshoe and pastor of First Christian Church at Slaton; and the five executive officers of Texas Christian Youth Fellowship.

The youths also will see dramatic presentations keyed to the theme, sing contemporary hymns, participate in afternoon "Encounter" discussions on a dozen topics, attend a performance of "George M" at Casa Manana and conduct business. Hanging over the stage in TCU's Ed Landreth Auditorium will be banners symbolizing "There is a Way" and related ideas. They were made by district CYF officers in a state Youth Churchmanship Seminar in mid-July.

First presentation on the convention theme will be a five-part dialogue in the opening general session Wednesday night by the state CYF "execs" -- Dick Stinson of Bonham, Miss Janet Hester of Houston, Miss Anne McGrede of Longview, Miss Cathy Odom of El Paso and Miss Susie White of Midland.

Mr. Sims, an ordained Christian Church minister, will speak Thursday morning and Mr. Moore, Texas Disciples' "Town and Country Minister of the Year" for 1970, Friday morning.

On the afternoons after their speeches, Mr. Sims and Mr. Moore will answer the questions and hear the talk-back of young people in Encounter groups. Topics of the other simultaneous Encounter sessions will range from "Folk Music" to "Inter-Personal Communication" and from "Drugs" to "Black Studies."

The Disciples youths will attend the Thursday night performance of "George M."

Friday night's session will be devoted mainly to business, including the election of state CYF officers for 1970-71.

TCU will provide two complimentary meals--a banquet Thursday for high school juniors and seniors and a luncheon Friday for all youths interested in church vocations. The convention will close Saturday morning with a pre-breakfast service of Communion and commissioning.

Mrs. Rheata White-- A Talented Artist

One of the area's most talented artists is Mrs. Rheata White who has lived in Muleshoe for 21 years. Her husband, Herman White, is engaged in farming. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Peeler of Muleshoe and a brother, Buddy Peeler, lives in Hereford.

Mrs. White has painted consistently for a number of years. She is a past president of the Muleshoe Art Association and is the new president for 1970-71.

Mrs. White's favorite pastimes are painting and her floral business. "Rheata is also an accomplished artist in the field of commercial floral design, and this has been most beneficial in helping her to learn the basics of color coordination, as well as giving her an opportunity to experiment with composition and arrangement of shapes and forms. Many of her creations for the floral industry are mirrored in her paintings." She decorates for many area weddings and all other phases of the floral industry and is a commercial designer. She says her floral work gives her equal enjoyment as it tends to give her a break from painting. She loves to fish and goes often with her husband. Her fondness for animals is proven by the menagerie she keeps.

Her first interest in painting grew from seeing a Mrs. Parsley paint a bouquet of roses at Denver City in 1947. She bought the painting and since that time has studied art and painted regularly. Her windmill paintings were inspired by her grandfather, as her favorite place as a child was "sitting by his windmill, under the old apple tree drinking cold water out of a gourd dipper and eating green apples."

A 1953 graduate of Muleshoe High School, Mrs. White was a four year letterman in basketball and captain of her team. She was also voted runnerup to Miss Friendship and Senior Class Favorite by her

Have you heard about niacin? Niacin is needed for healthy skin and the digestive system. Meats are an important source of niacin. Foods that have been "enriched," like rice and breakfast cereals, are also excellent sources of niacin. Eat them regularly.

Vitamin B was first thought to be a single vitamin. It is now known to be made up of a number of different vitamins. All together they are referred to as the vitamin B complex-- riboflavin, niacin, and thiamin. Enriched loaf bread and cereals are good sources of the B complex vitamin.

Work Begins On New Patio For Muleshoe Nursing Home

Work began this week to beautify and landscape a patio area at the Muleshoe Nursing Home. A committee formed over a year ago, through an action study of Methodist Church women consists of Mrs. J.E. McVicker, Chairman, Mrs. Owen Powell, Mrs. Frank Ellis, Mrs. T.M. Slemmons, and Mrs. Harold Allison. The project is being done through donations of both money and labor, and from gifts given in memory of a loved one, or in honor of a loved one still living. It will someday be developed into a lovely garden spot where the residents of the nursing home can enjoy the out-of-doors.

The committee is in need of more financial help as they would like to extend the existing concrete patio and cover it with a porch for shade and protection, and replace the high solid fence with a chain link so that those residents who might wander off could still enjoy the outdoors, but with security.

Senn Slemmons, landscape architect, drew up a set of landscape plans at his own expense and time, then Ralph Douglas made several blueprints as a courtesy. Eight inches of top soil is being dug out with the help of Matt Dudley, after which new dirt will be hauled in by Stan Barrett. Owen Powell is making the arrangements. With help like this, an "eye sore" is about to become a spot of beauty and will be so much pleasure and joy to those who live at the nursing home and to those who visit there.

If you would like to help with this worthwhile project, you may

 COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES

NATURAL GAS PRICING
 Here in the United States, we face a dangerous shortage of natural gas. The magnitude of the shortage is revealed in a recent report to the Federal Power Commission which indicates that possibly a dozen major interstate gas transmission companies may not be able to meet estimated demands for natural gas this winter when consumption is the heaviest.

I am very fearful that many consumers, particularly in the Northeast, will be denied the use of natural gas this winter. This shortage is especially unfortunate at this time in our nation's history because natural gas is a fuel which pollutes the air to a very minimal degree. As we recognize the growing requirement to keep pollutant emissions to an essential minimum, we are going to demand larger supplies of natural gas.

Between 1960 and 1968, our energy requirements increased some 41 per cent, while our population for example, increased only about 12 per cent. Natural gas now supplies some 35 per cent of our energy requirements, but as our population increases and as we turn away from other more pollutant fuels, our nation's demand for natural gas, which is already on the rise, can only go up more rapidly.

Estimates of expert geologists indicate that our natural gas reserves are large. But, as Texans we know that the natural gas we believe is stored beneath our feet can be of use to us only after we pipe it up to the surface. While some consumers may wonder how we can be experiencing a natural gas shortage while ample reserves remain beneath the surface, Texans know that tapping our reserves is not always a simple matter.

The reason we are experiencing a natural gas shortage, is because we are tapping our natural gas reserves at a rate too low to meet the consumer demand.

I believe that the main reason that our natural gas reserves are not being tapped at the necessary rate is lack of incentive for exploration and development of those reserves.

No intelligent businessman will risk the great amount of capital required for oil and gas exploratory drilling, and risk the likelihood of a dry hole, unless the potential rewards are great enough to offset those risks.

The Federal Power Commission is authorized to regulate the price a natural gas producer may charge for the fuel he has discovered and raised to the surface. The FPC pricing system was designed to provide the consumer with a low-priced fuel. It has certainly succeeded. The average retail price for natural gas has risen only about eight per cent since 1960 while the consumer price index for all commodities has risen some 31 per cent.

I believe the FPC has held the price too low for too long. This neglect has caused serious economic stress upon natural gas producers, and these producers have been forced to curtail exploration and development. The results is the natural gas shortage now upon us. In its eagerness to provide natural gas fuel at low cost, the FPC has effectively curtailed a continuing available supply of this precious fuel at low cost, the FPC has effectively curtailed a continuing available supply of this precious fuel. The losers are the distributors and consumers who are now facing serious shortage.

Now we need solutions. We need a change in policy which recognized the need to insure the continued existence of adequate supplies of natural gas to meet our growing consumer and industrial needs and to maintain our national security. Such a change in policy would be evidenced in a rise in the allowable price for natural gas.

I believe the price for natural gas can be settled upon through the use of free market mechanisms much like the supply and demand relationships which determine price in most consumer goods. Admittedly, however, we cannot recover all our lost ground in one fell swoop by abolishing FPC pricing regulation. Such drastic action could have unknown and possibly severe repercussions.

But I do believe the FPC should act responsibly to allow a rise in the price for natural gas in order to increase exploration and development incentive and thus be effective in meeting our natural gas shortage.

This is why I offered in the Senate this week a Sense-of-the-Senate Resolution which acknowledges the existing shortage of natural gas; attributes it to an artificially low price presently allowed; expresses the ultimate desirability of a free market mechanism, and urges the FPC in the meantime to allow prices commensurate with the risks necessary for exploration and development of our abundant but untapped natural gas reserves.

I was pleased to have a number of my colleagues join with me as co-sponsors to that Resolution. I am hopeful that the Federal Power Commission will carefully reconsider its past pricing policy and adopt a more realistic policy which recognizes low cost for a few short years is not worth the risk of long time serious shortage in our natural gas supplies.

Dated Food

The federal government is moving to compel food packagers to display a date on the outside of all food-stuffs when the contents will be stale.

Yet in many parts of the country foods which, more than any other, should be labeled as to freshness go into stores unmarked. Such obvious perishables as eggs and milk are sold in containers which carry no dates as to when the contents will be stale.

Bread full of chemicals to keep it soft long after it is old is sold all over the country. Canned goods which have been stored in warehouses of wholesalers for weeks or months are sold as fresh on store shelves, and the customer has no way of knowing how old the contents are. Obviously, the consumer needs better protection in the form of package-dating laws.
