MOUNTAIN, PLAIN AND BATTLEFIELD

BY W. B. PAGE

Bull Run Mountains,
Thoroughfare Gap.

The point from which these observations are made is rich in historic interest. For miles in every direction it commands a view of ground hallowed by the blood of the South's bravest and best. Within a territory extensive enough for a principality there is hardly a square perch of soil which has not been consecrated by suffering and sacrifice and thus become endeared to almost every family south of Mason and Dixon. On the North is the Potomac flowing peacefully to the sea; to the East and South are the Rappahannock and the Rapidan rivers, for ever famous as mute, silent witnesses of great contending forces; to the West the Blue Ridge Mountains, the outlines of which are softened and tempered by distance and on which rests always a veil of violet signifying that here the Queen of Indian Summer holds perpetual Court. It is all a vast, boundless panorama of beauty and grandeur. On the Rapidan a few miles up stream within a mile or so of Orange Court House and almost in view from the highest peak of these mountains is the place where the writer first saw daylight. Countless associations, bonds of birth, boyhood and early manhood as also those of historic import render the sight and even the sound of that stream dear and hallowed to him. From the passage of the ordinance of secession by his native state to the surrender at Appomattox no event of that stirring interval failed to interest him. The sound of battle was almost a daily occurrence and never became monotonous. After the lapse of many years he can recall just what he was doing and where it was when the great battle of Gettysburgh was fought. He with other boys was aiding in harvesting wheat and was following a colored cradler and tying up the sheafs of wheat when that terrific cannonading between two hundred or more guns on each side opened. This was preliminary and preparatory to that brilliant charge of Pickett's Division on Cemetery Ridge. It impressed the writer at the time as being communicated by a quaking or shaking of the earth's crust more than as a sound through the atmosphere.

Returning from this digression of a personal nature to the subject matter, we will observe that nearly a dozen battlefields are within the range of vision from this point. We only propose to speak of salient features of these campaigns of a local, personal or sectional nature and of those only which arouse interest by reason of such nature.

At the base of these mountains the field begins on which were fought the battles of First and Second Manassas. Through this very Gap succour at the crucial moment came to decide both contests. Jackson and Kirby Smith saved the day for the South in the first Manassas and Lee and Longstreet arrived just in time to save Jackson in the second. Jackson once said in speaking of his men: "My men may sometimes fail to carry a position but to hold one never, never." It is a matter of no little doubt if Lee and Longstreet had not reached the field just when they did, whether the great strategist would not have had to change his expression somewhat as Pope on the other side had to do the next day. Pope who had been campaigning in the West was brought East and put in command of the army with which McClellan had tried to crush Lee and capture Richmond down on the Chickahominy. When assuming command of this splendid body of men vice McClellan removed, Pope in a harangue of bombast and bravado, told his men where he had been operating and what he had been doing. He boasted especially of what he alleged to be a fact that he came from a Section where he "had been in the habit of seeing only the backs of his enemies" and he gave his men to understand he expected the same in East. As a matter of fact Lee and Jackson saw nothing of Pope but his back and he was within five minutes of being captured a few nights previous. He succeeded McClellan in command of an army that for numbers was without a peer. There is not a historian but says that he had at least ninety thousand men at his call, while Jackson before Lee and Longstreet reached the field had only seventeen thousand of all arms.

In those days Hood's Texans had a kind of campaign skit which ran as follows:

The race is not to the man
With the longest legs to run
Nor the battle to those people
Who shoot the biggest gun.

For three or more days Jackson had been pursuing and pushing Pope. The latter did not have his entire force with him but they were within easy call. They were landing from transports at Acquia Creek and Alexandria.

After the flight of McClellan and his army to the shelter of the gunboats at Evlington Heights on the James, Lee quietly sent Jackson to Gordonsville and thence on in a line to threaten Washington. Jackson slipped away from Gordonsville and struck Pope's scattered division at Cedar Run. Waiting till he was satisfied that Lee with the rest of the army was within saving distance, Jackson struck out to pass Pope and carry the war into Washington.

That move caused Lincoln to withdraw every soldier from the James and put them between Jackson and Washington. Then Lee with the rest of his forces hurried to Orange Court House to join Jackson, and carry the war across the Potomac. "On to Maryland" was now the cry. For three days Jackson had been hammering Pope and was being rapidly weakened by the simple process of attrition. Pope had Jackson almost surrounded and had possession of Thoroughfare Gap through which Lee and Longstreet had to come to Jackson's support. They were on their way and hurrying. And just then occurred an incident that might have had disastrous consequences. Lee had started a courier with dispatches to Jackson advising him of success hurrying to his relief. On the route the courier fell in with a man who claimed to be a courier from Jackson. When Lee's courier had his back turned the spy, as he proved to be, shot Lee's courier in the back, took his dispatches and then hurried on to meet the column under Longstreet. Meeting General Jones hurrying on at the head of a division he halted and said: "General Jones, General Jackson directs that you reverse your lines and march back till further orders." Jones did so. All went well, so far. The next one the spy met was a Colonel at the head of a regiment. The spy delivered the same message to him. But the Colonel replied: "I am not in habit of taking orders from General Jackson. Who are you and what regiment do you belong to?" Then he went all to pieces and stammered out something that betrayed him. He confessed he was a spy and on examination Lee's dispatches to Jackson were found on his person.

He confessed to having killed Lee's courier. He was put astride of a mule with a rope around his neck and the other end over a limb. The rest of the act can be imagined. Lee and Longstreet hurried all the more after this event. They are now approaching the entrance to Thoroughfare Gap, in full possession of Pope's forces. A front attack by Jones and a flank movement by Hood and Whiting by a footpath and the way is clear. Lee with thirty thousand infantry is now pouring through. They are in hearing of Jackson's guns. They go through and turn to the right in a crescent line of battle four miles long and out of sight of Pope. Jackson's saying still holds good. His men held their own. Ammunition is running low but his men dart out between attacks and rob the cartridge boxes of the enemy's dead. And in one of the last charges of Pope's squadrons a splendid exhibition of personal courage is displayed. "A federal field officer rides out in front of a column forming to charge for the last time Jackson's impregnable lines. He is riding a splendid horse. He draws his sword and waves it aloft and calls on the lines to follow him." They do so. Front and flank the columns are raked. They press on. The rider and horse are both unhurt. They draw near to the earthworks and the cry runs down Jackson's lines "Don't kill him, Don't kill him!" But as he leaps his horse on the works to go over both fall in a heap across the lines and the rider is pulled in by

Jackson's men. But it was too late. Some one or more had failed to observe the injunction. Perhaps Jackson himself had ordered it. We recall what occurred at the battle of Cross Keys in the Valley. A parallel case had happened and General Ewell had directed his men not to shoot the man on the white horse. Next day Jackson heard of it and sent for Ewell and reprimanded him, advising him not to do so again. "Shoot the brave men and officers and the cowards will all run off." In this battle like all we presume some ludicrous, humorous things occur. In the midst of the strife, confusion, and terror rampant in a great contest like this going on, there appeared on the field an extraordinary character. He was of this type even in civil life. It was Extra-Billy Smith, twice Governor of Virginia and now commanding a regiment. Dressed in the bright uniform of a Colonel he insisted on wearing a chimney-pot hat and carrying a blue calico umbrella in the rain. He was the butt for the witticisms of scores of the boys in the ranks and while death was cantering over the field on every breeze they found time to indulge their notions for merriment. On every side came the cry: "Come out of that umbrel! I see your legs! Come out of that hat; want it to boil beans in!" This is the same Billy Smith who on the invasion of Penn caused a great deal of delay and confusion with Ewell's lines at York, Penn. Ewell's lines were pushing on through Penn. As the crusty general rode up to the town of York, Penn, he found a great mass of soldiers and citizens mixed in orderless confusion. Ewell could not get in commanding proximity of the center of the crowd. He could hear some one talking vehemently and see some one gesticulating wildly. Finally he wedged himself through the mob and got within arms' length of the man causing all the disorder. He reached over and caught him by the collar of his coat and jerked him off the wagon which he had mounted and was making a regular Virginia campaign speech. General Ewell: "General Smith, what do you mean by thus stopping my columns here in this way?" "Nothing at all, General Ewell; it will do no harm to have a little fun as we go along, and no harm done, I thought I would tell these Yanks how glad we were to see them and to pay them a visit. I told them we had come to spend the summer. Our baggage had not come up yet but that it would be on later. No, Sir, General Ewell, no harm is done and none intended. We all feel better from this little stump speech I have made to them, and now we are ready to move on." On this same invasion General Ewell had quite an experience with some of the Penn Dutch Committees: One had called for one purpose and one for another. They sought his permission to do everything: Going to mill, to post office, to church, etc. They even asked Ewell's permission to conclude their prayers by asking for special providence for the President of the United States. In granting it he did so with much unction in his tones, when he remarked "that he thought if any one was in need of special prayers it was Abraham Lincoln."

Ewell was an original character as well as a great soldier. He had been disappointed in early life in an Affaire du Coeur and he was grouchy and morose as a result. He finally married the girl of his early manhood's love and became quite a different person. A characteristic scene happened at the first Battle of Manassas. Just after the battle had opened, he with other field officers and their staffs were standing in a group near the Henry House. A beautiful slip of a Virginia girl came dashing up and demanded to know where she could see the officer in command of the field. She was referred to General Ewell. She had quite a conversation with him stating what she had heard and seen over near the headquarters of General McDowell. Ewell listened with manifest impatience. After she had left he remarked: "I tell you, gentlemen, women would make fine field officers, commanders in battle. They would make incomparable commanders but for one thing, they would stampede on the first sight of a mouse or a spider."

There are some features and incidents of the Second Manassas we shall have to defer till our next article. We shall close this by remarking that in the fight which followed Lee's and Longstreet's arrival the Fifth Regiment of Hood's command literally annihilated the Fifth New York Zouaves. Colonel Warren and sixteen men were all that were left of that regiment.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving, and
Some Crockett People
Know How to Save It.

Many Crockett people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Crockett citizen's recommendation.

J. F. Leathers, of Crockett, Texas, says: A soreness across my kidneys made me miserable, and when I heard that an acquaintance had been cured of a similar trouble by Doan's Kidney Pills, I began using the remedy. The contents of one box fixed me up in good shape. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured at Sweet's Drug Store, and I take pleasure in giving them my endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo New York, sole agents for the United States.

GREAT CLEARANCE SALE

January 14th to 28th

The above heading in itself implies just what we intend to do. The past year has been a very successful one with us and we wish to thank our many friends and customers who have helped us to make it one. We have made great holes in our stock and have very little left to carry over. That "little" we want to make still smaller, and in order to do so we are going to give you an opportunity to buy what you need now at a big discount. We have figured that it will pay us to do this, and especially so at this time of the year. We have a large and complete stock of spring and summer goods that are almost due to arrive and we want to make room for them. Goods carried over are never worth a hundred cents on the dollar. We realize that and intend to dispose of them at prices that will be an advantage to us and our trade. The interest on money on goods carried over is not to be overlooked, and as there is no time but what dry goods can be replaced with fresher and newer merchandise we feel that it is to our interest to sell at greatly reduced prices for a short time. The following are some of the prices we intend to make during the dates specified:

PANAMA CANAL TOLL BILL

LEGISLATION MAY PASS THIS SESSION OF CONGRESS.

Would Break Grip of Great Transcontinental Railroads and Encourage Fleet of American Vessels.

Washington.—With President Taft pressing for legislation at this session of congress determining the matter of tolls and regulating transportation on the Panama Canal, and with the senate committee on inter-oceanic canals voting to report favorably the Flint-Mann canal bill, it is now regarded as possible that such an act may be issued from this congress in the sixty days of legislation still left.

The Mann canal toll bill was passed by the house, but the measure, on motion of Senator Flint of California, so as to exempt American coastwise vessels from tolls and in return giving the government the right to impress these vessels in time of war to its service. Vessels owned directly or indirectly by railroads or stockholders of a railroad company are denied the exemption of tolls.

Indications are that there will be powerful opposition to the Flint amendment. It is recognized that the amendment would break the grip of the great transcontinental railroads of the country and would bring about real competition between these railroads and the independent steamship lines.

Some of the senators who believe in the Flint amendment unhesitatingly say that if this legislation goes through it will mean that a fleet of hundreds of American vessels will engage in the traffic between the Atlantic and gulf ports on the one hand and the Pacific coast on the other. Now, with the railroads controlling many of the coastwise shipping lines, there is little real competition between the railroads and the steamship lines. But this proposed legislation is expected to enable the independent shipping lines to flourish.

One of the things considered in the committee was the question of how long it would take vessels to go from New York to San Francisco. It is calculated that the trip can be made in three weeks. Fruit from California can go by the steamship route once the canal is opened, and a large share of articles now sent by rail can be shipped by boat.

What this will mean in saving of freight rates can only be estimated. Among other things it is calculated that the use of the canal toll free will be the means of developing greatly the ports all along the gulf and South Atlantic coast, and also ports on the Mississippi. It is pointed out that it will be feasible for freight boats to go from St. Louis to San Francisco via the canal and to give low freight rates.

On the theory that the building up of an enormous business in coastwise shipping would tend to rehabilitate the American merchant marine generally, this amendment to make the canal toll free may have an influence broader, than on coastwise shipping alone. Talk already is heard that a great merchant marine can be built up without subsidies, and this amendment will not tend to strengthen the proposed subsidy legislation.

American Ship Construction.

Washington.—There were sixty sail and steam vessels built in the United States during the month of December, according to the bureau of navigation of the department of commerce and labor. The gross tonnage of these vessels was 9,524. The largest steel steam vessel constructed during the last month was the Anne Arbor No. 4 of 2,884 gross tons. For the six months ended Dec. 31, 1910, there was built 589 sail and steam vessels of 147,568 gross tons. This is an increase over the corresponding period of 1909, when 562 vessels of 82,425 gross tons were built in this country.

The Speakership Race.

Austin, Tex.—The situation as to the speakership remains practically unchanged. There have been no withdrawals and no stampedes reported. Both Gilmore and Rayburn claim enough votes to elect on the first ballot, while the Cox forces insist that they have enough votes to wield the balance of power and expect to be in a position to force one or the other to come to him. In brief, it is mixed.

Bonds Approved.

Austin, Tex.—The attorney general approved for registration the following bonds:
City of Longview bridge repair bonds, $1,966, twenty-forties at 5 per cent.
City of Longview waterworks bonds, $7,000, twenty-forties at 5 per cent.
Carthage Independent School District schoolhouse bonds, $21,000, twenty-forties at 5 per cent.

HAD TO HIRE THE WASHING

Mrs. Daniels Tells How She Solved That Problem and Several Others As Well.

Silp, Ky.—"I was so sick for 3 or 4 years," says Mrs. J. F. Daniels, of this place, "that I had to hire my washing done most of the time. I had given up hoping for a cure, but my husband kept begging me to try Cardui, so at last I began to take it, and I hadn't taken half a bottle before I could tell it was helping me. Now I can do my washing, and tend my garden. I am fleshier than I ever was before in my life and Cardui made me so. I believe that I would have been in my grave, if I had not taken Cardui. Your medicine is all right. I can't praise it too much."

Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients are mild herbs, having a gentle tonic effect on the female constitution.

Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy.

Cardui has helped over a million weak, tired, worn-out women, and should certainly benefit you.

ECONOMICAL WIFE.

"Heavens, Marie, I shall be ruined if you buy yourself furs like this!"
"Don't be so silly! Can't you see I've put on the white fur rug out of the drawing-room?"

STUBBORN ECZEMA ON HANDS

"Some nine years ago I noticed small pimples breaking out on the back of my hands. They became very irritating, and gradually became worse, so that I could not sleep at night. I consulted a physician who treated me a long time, but it got worse, and I could not put my hands in water. I was treated at the hospital, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of eczema. Well, I just kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so, and I found after a few applications and by bandaging my hands well up that the burning sensations were disappearing. I could sleep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Cuticura Soap for a wash for them, and I think by using the Soap and Ointment I was much benefited. I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, and thought if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and finding ease from Cuticura Ointment, I thought it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn case. I used the Ointment and Soap for nearly six months, and I am glad to say that I have hands as clear as anyone."
"It is my wish that you publish this letter to all the world, and if anyone doubts it, let them write me and I will give them the name of my physician, also the hospital I was treated at." (Signed) Miss Mary A. Bentley, 93 University St., Montreal, Que., Sept. 14, 1910.

The Pronouns.

"We must economize," said the man of high financial authority.
"Your grammar is at fault," replied the ordinary citizen. "Why do you insist on using the first instead of the second person plural?"

Father of the Man.
Miss Amelia Austin listened with breathless attention to Mrs. Amasa Hunting's radiant account of the doings of James Hunting, her husband's younger brother, who had left Woobrook-in-the-Hills in his youth and had become a millionaire.

"Where is Jim this summer?" Miss Amelia inquired, at the end of the recital.
"He has gone abroad for baths," replied Mrs. Hunting.

"I ain't one mite surprised to hear that," Miss Amelia said. "His mother never could make him wash his neck."—Youth's Companion.

Tutt's Pills

Life is full of ups and downs—but unfortunately most of us are down more of the time than up.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets first put up 40 years ago. They regulate and invigorate, stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated tiny granules.

Avoid pushing to the front by going back on your friends.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Have You Rheumatism, Kidney, Liver or Bladder Trouble?

Pain or dull ache in the back is evidence of kidney trouble. It is Nature's timely warning to show you that the track of health is not clear.

Danger Signals.

If these danger signals are unheeded more serious results follow; Bright's disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble, may steal upon you.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable curative effect in the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine, you should have the best.

Lame Back.

Lame back is only one of many symptoms of kidney trouble. Other symptoms showing that you need Swamp-Root are, being obliged to pass water often during the day and to get up many times during the night.

Inability to hold urine, smarting in passing, uric acid, headache, dizziness, indigestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, sometimes the heart acts badly, rheumatism, bloating, lack of ambition, may be loss of flesh, sallow complexion.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalence of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who usually content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease constantly undermines the system.

A Trial Will Convince Anyone.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is a gentle healing herbal com-

THAT'S malaria. Malaria is murderous. It kills the vital powers. To cure malaria you must do more than stop the shaking and aching. You must stamp out the last spark of disease and put back into the body the strength and vigor that disease has destroyed.

OXIDINE

—a bottle proves.

does this so quickly and surely that it stands alone among malaria medicines as a perfect cure. It drives out Chills and Fever, and then begins its tonic action, rebuilding and revitalizing the entire system.

The tonic body-building properties of OXIDINE make it the most effectual of all remedies for disorders of Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Bowels when these organs are failing in their functions.

If you want to cure malaria, get OXIDINE. If you are weak, get OXIDINE and be strong.

Sells Restaurant, Keeps Bakery.

Having disposed of my restaurant business to Messrs. Ell Capps and Chas. Manning, I am now better prepared than ever to supply the people of Crockett and Houston County with the best of bakers' bread. The restaurant feature of my former business will be moved to the Page building on the east side of the public square and there conducted by Messrs. Capps and Manning. I cheerfully recommend these young gentlemen as entirely worthy of public confidence, and I trust they will receive the same liberal patronage as was so generously accorded me.

Besides continuing and expanding my bakery business, it is my purpose to add a stock of high-grade confectioneries and fruits, and my patrons can be assured of the best in these lines. With the restaurant feature off my hands, I will be better prepared to supply the public with good and wholesome bread. I am retiring from the restaurant business reluctantly, but am doing so because of the close confinement attributable thereto, and also that I may be able to attend church on Sundays.

In conclusion I wish to thank the people of Crockett and surrounding country for their most liberal patronage in the past and to solicit a continuance of same in the future, at the same time assuring you that I shall always do my utmost to please you.

F. B. Webb.

A Reliable Cough Medicine

Is a valuable family friend. Foley's Honey and Tar fulfills this condition exactly. Mrs. Charles Kline, N. 8th St., Easton, Pa., states: "Several members of my family have been cured of bad coughs and colds by the use of Foley's Honey and Tar and I am never without a bottle in the house. It soothes and relieves the irritation in the throat and loosens up the cold. I have always found it a reliable cough cure." Will McLean.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every-day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by Murchison-Beasley Drug Co.

For either acute or chronic kidney disorders, for annoying and painful urinary irregularities take Foley's Kidney Pills. An honest and effective medicine for kidney and bladder disorders. Will McLean.

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM.

(Written for the Courier.)

The shepherds on Judea's hills
A watchful vigil kept,
The fleecy herds in night's embrace
In Nature's fondness slept.
The watch fires burned upon the hill,
The crackling fagots light
Kept peace with thoughts in nightly robe.

A scene supremely bright,
The watch dog bayed from afar,
The echoes each rebound,
In darkness of the midnight hour
Their solitude is found.

As on the staff the shepherds lean
And watch the hours go by,
Behold! a brilliant star gleam
Lit up the eastern sky.

What does it mean, they cried aloud:
Where does it lead? and then
It shed its most effulgent ray
Direct o'er Bethlehem.

And as they stood in wonder,
The glory to behold,
Heaven's orchestra burst forth
With strains from harps of gold.
A flood of heavenly anthems swept
Mountain side and glen,
And angels sang sweet peace, sweet peace.

On earth good will to men,
All hail the star of Bethlehem,
The King of Kings proclaim:
The symbols sounded praises
For the light in Heaven's name.

Wearily the foot sore traveller
Turned from darkness to light,
The burning sand of the desert
Speedily vanished from sight.
Let all the choirs in Heaven arise
In one accord and sing,
On that celestial Christmas night
Was born the Lord, our King.

Mrs. C. R. Stephenson.

Obituary.

On the 7th day of January, 1911, God looked over his jewels and found one wanting, and sending Death with its cold sting he plucked one of life's fairest flowers, Mrs. Elizabeth Satterwhite. She was born November 16, 1840. She was married to Frank M. Satterwhite in July, 1858. At the age of 17 years she united with the M. E. Church, but after her marriage she became a member of the Baptist Church, of which she has been a devoted member until the end of her long and useful life which was 70 years. In spite of the fact that during the latter part of her life she has been an invalid, she has taxed her strength frequently that she might go and enjoy the services of her Lord's house. This was one of the joys of her life. At 12 o'clock Saturday night, while resting so peacefully at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. B. Hallmark, the death angel guarded her soul over the river of death in the land where there is no suffering, for they who go feel not the pain of parting, it is they who stay behind that suffer. She leaves a husband and nine children to mourn her death.

A Friend.

Foley's Kidney Pills
Are tonic in action, quick in results. A special medicine for all kidney and bladder disorders. Mary C. Abbott, Wolfboro, N. H., says: "I was afflicted with a bad case of rheumatism, due to uric acid that my kidneys failed to clear out of my blood. I was so lame in my feet, joints and back that it was agony for me to step. I used Foley's Kidney Pills three days when I was able to get up and move about and the pains were all gone. This great change in condition I owe to Foley's Kidney Pills and recommend them to any one suffering as I have." Will McLean.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by Murchison-Beasley Drug Co.

The way our friends are rallying to the support of the Courier is very gratifying to the publisher. Not a day that strong, substantial encouragement is not received. Those who stand by the Courier with their friendly encouragement and support will have no reason to regret it.

There is a very ugly and dangerous hole in the brick sidewalk on the south side of the public square that should be fixed at once. It is a very unsightly place and is likely to be the means of some one spraining an ankle or breaking a limb. Just after the last rain a "No Fishing" sign was placed over this hole.

Forty years the pastor of one church is a record not made by many pastors. But such is the record of Rev. S. F. Tenney, the venerable pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city. Crockett is to be congratulated on having a pastor so devoted and Mr. Tenney is to be congratulated on attaining so many years of usefulness.

Quite a number of Courier subscribers are renewing subscriptions by sending a one dollar bank note instead of postoffice money order. This is a perfectly safe way of transmitting a small amount and saves the expense and time of procuring a money order. Those of our subscribers who do not live near a postoffice and wish to renew may avail themselves of this plan without any risk.

Crockett sidewalks are kept clean every day except Sundays. On Sundays they present a most filthy appearance. Merchants should adopt some systematic way of cleaning the sidewalks every Saturday night, and it could be done with very little trouble. A sprinkler, a broom, and a man could clean each store front in ten minutes every Saturday night before closing and the sidewalks would be more presentable Sunday morning.

The prettiest calendar the Courier has seen this year has been received at this office from Mr. J. G. Miller, architect and civil engineer at Beaumont. It is a reproduction of the painting, "A Yuletide Blossom," by J. Fagan. Mr. Miller has the thanks of the Courier for this useful office ornamentation. Other pretty calendars received are from Walter Connally & Co. of Tyler, The Murchison-Beasley Drug Co., M. Satterwhite & Co., I. W. Sweet and C. W. Moore.

The Courier is glad to see the new order of things that is taking place in Houston county. It is glad to see people stepping around and transacting business like they have life in them and are glad they are living instead of dragging around and crying hard times like they did a few years ago. It shows that Houston county people are confident of the future and that they are just waking up to the fact that Houston county is the best place on earth. J. F. Murray says he is proud that he is a citizen of Houston county and F. M. Patton says we are having the best times under the sun.

As little as you may think of it the Courier has contributed in no small measure to the present prosperity of Houston county. Not an issue of the Courier that has not contained a boost for the town and county. Not an issue that has not pushed along some enterprise or pointed out the necessity of other enterprises. The Courier labored early and late for the waterworks and the new depot. It pointed out the necessity of setting back yard fences and has pushed along from the beginning the movement for better streets. And the Courier feels so encouraged over results that it is going to strike harder in the future than ever before, and those who do not put their shoulders to the wheels of the general-improvement bandwagon and push are not going to hear much of the music when the band plays farther up the road that leads to prosperity.

Grapeland people are going to vote on the question of a bond issue for good roads. Thus Grapeland takes the lead in the matter of public road improvement. Let Crockett, Lovelady, Kennard, Ratcliff and the other communities of Houston county organize themselves into road districts and thus declare themselves in favor of improving their public roads. Let no section of Houston county, progressive in educational, religious and social matters, lag in this or any other respect. Improved roads mean much to the material progress of any country. If any man opposes the improvement of the highways—the roads that lead to the churches, the school houses, the court house, the postoffice and the towns—he is arraying himself in direct opposition to the moral, intellectual and physical advancement of his immediate section. Experience of other counties teaches that the bond issue route—the same route adopted in securing school community improvements—is the best route to public road improvement. We have never had a bond issue for roads and we have never had good public roads.

A Pastorate of Forty Years.

Mr. Editor:—It may be of some interest to some of my friends to know that with the close of December I completed forty years as Pastor of the Crockett Presbyterian Church. During that period I have seen Crockett grow from a village of less than a thousand population to a prosperous city of about 4,000 people. When I came to Crockett, in the beginning of 1871, we had no railroad, but the old fashioned stage coach and mail three times a week. The merchants hauled their goods in wagons from Navasota, the nearest railroad station, or sometimes received them by small steamboats on Trinity River at Hall's Bluff. There was no brick business house in town, and only one small brick building, a residence. Our school was small with an inferior house, and we had an inferior Court House and Church buildings. Then there was no sign of building or improvements. Now, how changed, when we have so many handsome residences being built, and when we already have such substantial brick business houses, Court House, school buildings, and elegant churches, and when we have all the modern conveniences of railroad, telegraph, telephone, electric lights, oil mill, gins, etc.

During my ministry in Crockett I have received into the Crockett Presbyterian Church 465 members besides many received at other places where I have held meetings. I have officiated at 476 baptisms, 157 marriages, and 288 funerals at Crockett and other places during these forty years.

With good wishes and a prayer for God's blessing upon your paper and the citizens of Crockett.

Very respectfully yours,
S. F. Tenney.

acres tract to the place of beginning containing five hundred and eighty three and one-third acres of land.

Plaintiffs allege that they are the owners in fee simple and seized and possessed of the above described land holding the same and claiming title thereto under a chain of title which is fully set out in plaintiff's original petition.

Plaintiffs allege that in their chain of title is a deed from E. Currie, administrator de bonis non of the estate of Joseph C. Teague, deceased, to W. F. Wall, executed on or about the day of June 1884, conveying 1050 acres of land in Houston County, Texas, out of the N. E. corner of the Joseph C. Teague league and which 1,050 acres of land includes the land in controversy in this suit, a full description of which appears in plaintiff's original petition, and in said chain of title is an order of the county court of Houston County, Texas, made on or about the day of June 1884 confirming the sale of said 1,050 acres of land to said W. F. Wall, which deed and orders of court are lost or destroyed and defendants are hereby notified that plaintiffs will offer secondary evidence of their contents on the trial of this cause.

Plaintiffs also allege that in their chain of title is a deed from Daniel Dailey to George F. Moore, of date February 7, 1876, conveying an undivided one-half interest in and to the above mentioned 1,050 acres of land out of the N. E. corner of the Joseph C. Teague league which includes the land in controversy in this suit, and which deed is lost or destroyed and the defendants are hereby notified that secondary evidence of its contents will be offered by the plaintiffs on the trial of this suit.

Plaintiffs also allege that they claim title to said land under and by virtue of the statutes of limitation of three years, the statutes of limitation of five years and the statutes of limitation of ten years.

Plaintiffs further allege that the loss of said deeds and orders of court and the absence of a full chain of title of record and the fact that the defendants are setting up and asserting some kind of pretended claim of title to the said land, the nature of which is unknown to plaintiffs creates a cloud upon plaintiffs title thereto which they desire to have removed by this suit.

You are further commanded to serve this citation by publishing the same once in each week for eight successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in a newspaper published in your county; but if no newspaper is published in said county, then in the nearest county where a newspaper is published.

Herein fail not, but have you before said court on the said first day of the next term thereof, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same. Witness J. B. Stanton, Clerk of the District Court of Houston County. Given under my hand and the seal of said court in Crockett on this 7th day of January A. D. 1911. J. B.
