TROOPS WILL LEAVE VERA CRUZ ON TIME

Five Battleships at Mexican Ports and String of Vessels on West Coast Will Protect Americans.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Brigadier General Frederick Funston's infantry and marines, numbering about 6,000 men, tomorrow will haul down the stars and stripes which have been flying over Vera Cruz since last April and evacuate the Mexican port in accord with instructions from President Wilson.

The five battleships at Vera Cruz and Tampico and the string of vessels on the west coast will remain indefinitely. They will continue to afford by their presence protection to Americans and be in readiness to meet emergencies.

It was just seven months ago that the blue jackets and marines, under Rear Admiral Fletcher, seized Vera Cruz by orders of the Washington government as an act of reprisal in retaliation for affronts to the American flag at Tampico where a boat load of American blue jackets were arrested. General Huerta, who controlled the forces at Tampico, had refused to comply with the demands of Admiral Mayo for a salute of twenty-one guns.

District Court Proceedings.

Will Willis, murder; five years in penitentiary.

Crawford Mosely, murder; five years in penitentiary.

Albert Barnett, murder; twenty-five years in penitentiary.

These three negroes were indicted and tried for the murder of Abe Tubbs, a negro living on the Pridgen farm west of Grapeland. They went to his house at night, woke him up and shot him from the doorway as he attempted to get up. Albert Barnett fired the shot that killed Tubbs and got twenty-five years in the penitentiary for it. The other two negroes drew five years each for being with him. Their purpose was not to rob, but to settle a personal grievance.

James Barnett, murder; dismissed on motion of district attorney for want of sufficient evidence to convict.

Jim Robinson, murder; eight years in penitentiary.

Memphis Mack, murder; five years in penitentiary.

These three negroes were under indictment for killing other negroes.

William Randall, theft of cattle; continued for the term. This negro is under indictment for an alleged theft of cattle near Lovelady.

Claude Bayne, murder; on trial

This negro is under indictment with Tom Lagway Jr., another negro, for the murder of Haislip and the wounding of his brother, both white men, on the public road at the fair grounds in Crockett early last spring. The shooting was in front of Lagway's house, where the Haislips had gone in an effort to induce Lagway to keep his promise and move onto Haislip's farm or refund the money Haislip had advanced him. Haislip had evidence that Lagway had been violating the liquor law, and he had threatened Lagway with prosecution if Lagway did not move onto his farm or refund the money which he had paid him to do so. The general theory is that Lagway did not intend to move onto Haislip's farm and that he and Claude Bayne killed one of the Haislips and wounded the other because they had been threatened with prosecution by the Haislips; that it was their intention to kill both of the white men and believed that they had done so. The negro on trial was overtaken at Palestine, having gotten on a train west of there, but the other negro—the star actor in the tragedy—has not yet been caught.

The jury in this case is composed of the following men: R. J. Wills, J. M. Hart, C. F. Cook, J. S. Brimberry, T. E. Skipper, S. L. Gentry, J. B. Lively, W. J. Patton, W. L. Standley, J. D. May, J. R. Cupp, E. P. Bean.

THE GRAND JURY MAKES REPORT.

BROKE THE RECORD IN THE EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES—SEVEN HUNDRED EXAMINED.

Seven Murder Indictments—Jail Well Filled and in Unsanitary Condition.

Some Recommendations Are Made.

To the Hon. John S. Prince, District Judge, 3rd Judicial District:

We, the grand jury, empanelled by your honor on the 12th day of October, A. D. 1914, wish to make the following report:

We have been in session 24 days, and have been empanelled 44 days, and during the entire session the best of feeling has prevailed, and no friction experienced between any member of this body or other officials with whom we came in contact.

We have returned 79 indictments, of which seven have been for murder, 65 for felonies and seven for misdemeanors, and have referred to the county attorney several minor misdemeanor charges for disposition in the lower courts.

We have examined approximately 700 witnesses, and have dispensed with them as rapidly as possible consistent with the best interests of the county, and, because of this fact, no time was lost in dispatching the business in hand; yet our deliberations were not done in haste, but in a conservative manner, always looking to the interests of all concerned.

We have inspected the jail, and find same well occupied, perhaps due to some extent to the efforts of this body, and we regret to report that, at the time we visited it, we found it to be in an unsanitary condition, and the same should be looked after at once by the proper authorities. We talked with a number of the inmates, and they seemed to be fairly well satisfied with their rations, but complained about their beds and cover, and, from what we saw, they were fully warranted in making this complaint, as the hammocks on which they slept were dirty and sunken down in the center to such an extent that, in our opinion, repose could not be obtained on them, and especially with the scanty cover used there on cold nights, and we would recommend that, if these canvas beds be continued, an extra supply be had, so that they may be changed and aired at least once a week, and that an extra supply of cover be had at once, and that the attention of the proper authorities be called to this immediately. The prisoners also complained of the building being insufficiently heated, notwithstanding the splendid heating apparatus in connection, which furnishes a very liberal amount of heat with very little effort and fuel.

We are under many obligations to the court for its courtesies, instructions and assistance, and also to the district attorney and the county attorney for their valuable assistance and counsel, without which we could have accomplished very little, and to them and each of them we extend our thanks and appreciation. We also extend to our corps of riding bailiffs, which was always kept at a minimum, our thanks, for they were always ready, during any kind of weather, to respond to the call of duty, and serve such papers as were placed in their hands for that purpose. We also are indebted to our venerable and faithful door bailiff, Mr. E. L. Simpson, who was always at his post of duty, and who did all possible in rendering valuable services to us.

Now, believing that our mission has been performed, we respectfully ask that we be finally discharged, this the 24th day of November, 1914.

Notice of Bankruptcy.

In the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Texas: In Bankruptcy.

In the matter of F. H. Hill, bankrupt. No. 1807.

To the creditors of F. H. Hill, bankrupt, of Crockett, in the county of Houston and district aforesaid:

Notice is hereby given that on the 19th day of November, 1914, the said F. H. Hill was duly adjudged and declared a bankrupt, and that the first meeting of creditors in said bankruptcy will be held in my office in Tyler, Texas, on the 1st day of December, 1914, at eleven-thirty in the forenoon, when and where said creditors may attend, prove their claims, examine the bankrupt, elect a trustee, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting. CANDY MAN GOT HIS START BY ADVERTISING

Daring Newspaper Campaign During Panic of 1907 Wins Out for George Loft.

"Some business men believe in shutting down advertising during hard times. I don't. That is the very time to advertise, in my opinion. And that is the very principle I acted upon when the panic of 1907 came along. That year I jumped my advertising appropriation from $55,000 to $80,000, and bought 12 inches of newspaper space where I only used nine before."

Thus George Loft, the New York candy man, whose "penny-a-pound profit" advertising has developed a little candy store into the second largest retail candy business of the country, laid bare one reason for his remarkable success. The first "Loft" store was started back in 1895 with a capital of $550. Like any number of other candy men, Loft hoped to succeed by making pure candy. But unlike the ninety and nine, Loft was a business man as well as a candy-maker. He soon saw that it required more than pure candy to bring the crowds to the store; good candy helped, but you have to tell people you make good candy.

TRINITY WILL REMAIN "DRY."

Pros Won in Local Option Election Saturday by 41 Majority.

Groveton, Texas, Nov. 22.—Complete returns from over Trinity county show the prohibitionists to have won Saturday's local option election by a majority of 41 votes. The vote was: For prohibition 746, against 705. This county has been in the "dry" column for many years.

MISTAKES in putting up doctor's prescriptions may result in death. How do such serious mistakes occur? They may occur thru hurried carelessness of the pharmacist or clerk who fills the prescription. They may occur because he misreads the Latin terms of the prescription. Often doctors write hurriedly under stress or their writing is naturally hard to read, but we are very particular. We check everything.

Foot-and-Mouth Disease.

In view of the recent outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in the Mississippi Valley, the most extensive as yet in the United States, an account, taken from The Journal of the American Medical Association, of the principal features of the disease may be of interest. It is an acute, highly infectious disease, which occurs chiefly in cattle, sheep, goats and swine, though other animals such as the horse and dog, as well as certain wild animals are attacked also, and it may affect human beings. In animals it is characterized especially by an eruption in the mouth and on the feet, in some species more in the mouth, in others more on the feet. In cattle the incubation period averages from three to five days, whereupon a moderate fever with loss of appetite and other general symptoms sets in. In two or three days small blisters appear on the mouth, and now the fever usually subsides. At the same time one or more feet may show tenderness and swelling of the skin, soon blisters form here also, and the animal goes lame. In the mouth the blisters may reach half an inch or more in diameter, but usually they are smaller; the contents, at first clear, become turbid, and as the covering bursts, small painful raw spots are produced which either heal quite promptly or turn into ulcers that heal more slowly. Usually the milk is altered and reduced in quantity; blisters and ulcers may form on the udder. There is marked loss of weight, as the animals do not eat because of the pain. In this, the ordinary form, in which the death-rate is very small except among the young, the symptoms fade away in from ten to twenty days or so, except when local infections delay recovery, but there are also severe forms with extensive infection which frequently end in sudden death. In such severe cases ulcers are found in the stomach and intestines. In sheep and swine, lesions of the feet predominate.

The cause of the disease is present in the contents of the vesicles, the discharge from the ulcers, the saliva, the milk, the urine and feces, but as a rule not after the tenth day. It is stated that animals having had the disease may carry the virus for months. Any susceptible species may infect any other susceptible species. Infection occurs not only through direct contact, but also indirectly, as the virus retains its virulence for some little time, at least outside the body. Contamination of fodder, of stalls, of feeding and drinking troughs, of milk and milk products and of the hands and clothes of drovers serves to spread the disease, which often travels over wide stretches of country with remarkable rapidity, as shown by the present outbreak. As from 25 to 50 per cent. of the cattle exposed to infection may become sick, there results great loss from fall in the production of milk, from reduction of vitality and fecundity, and from deaths as well as on account of the measures adopted to stamp out the disease.

The immunity produced by an attack seems to be feeble, as animals are said to suffer sometimes more than one attack within a short time. So far no practical method of protective inoculation has been developed.

Our knowledge of the cause of foot-and-mouth disease is limited to the fact that it concerns a filterable virus, as yet invisible and incultivable. It was in 1897 that Löffler and Froesch made their classical experiment, showing that the disease is caused by a living virus that passes filters which do not permit bacteria to go through, an experiment that has served as a model for all the subsequent work on the many other forms of filterable virus recognized since then. Foot-and-mouth virus may remain active for months if kept cool and moist, but is destroyed rapidly by drying, by heat at 60 C. (140 F.) and above, by formaldehyd and by carbolic acid. The wide range of virulence of this virus among animal species has been indicated, and as stated, the disease may affect human beings, especially children, being transmitted by milk from diseased cows (experimentally verified) and by butter and cheese made from such milk as well as through wounds and in other ways. While the course usually is favorable, an epidemic described by Siegel had a mortality of 8 per cent. The manifestations are fever, digestive disturbances and eruptions on the lips and sometimes on the skin. Where there is danger of contamination of the milk with the foot-and-mouth virus, thorough pasteurization of all milk and milk products is doubly indicated.

He Stopped His Paper.

An exchange says: "A couple of months ago a cranky sort of an old man came into this office and stopped his paper because something in it did not just suit his fancy. We have frequently met him on the street since that time and it is amusing to note the look of surprise on the old fellow's face that we are still in existence, regardless of the fact that he stopped his paper. Some day—and it won't be long either—that old man will turn up his toes. His heart will be stilled forever. Neighbors and friends will follow his lifeless clay to the silent city and lay it to rest among the silent flowers. An obituary will be published in these columns telling what a kind father, good neighbor and beloved citizen he was—which the recording angel will overlook for charity's sake—and in a very short time he will be forgotten. As he lies out there in the cold, cold graveyard wrapped in the silent slumbers of death, he will never know that the last, kind word spoken of him was by the editor of that paper which in life he so spitefully 'stopped.' Did you ever pause for just a moment and think that your editor, whoever he may be, will write your obituary some day?"

Best Cough Medicine for Children.

"Three years ago when I was living in Pittsburg one of my children had a hard cold and coughed dreadfully. Upon the advice of a druggist I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it benefitted him at once. I find it the best cough medicine for children because it is pleasant to take. They do not object to taking it," writes Mrs. Lafayette Tuck, Homer City, Pa. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. Sold by all dealers.

Remarkable Cure of Croup.

"Last winter when my little boy had croup I got him a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I honestly believe it saved his life," writes Mrs. J. B. Cook, Indiana, Pa. "It cut the phlegm and relieved his coughing spells. I am most grateful for what this remedy has done for him." For sale by all dealers. Adv.

Wasn't a Farmer.

Uncle Josh was rambling along the road one afternoon when a farmer new to the neighborhood called him over to look at some potatoes that he was digging.

"Too soon, young feller! Too soon," said Uncle Josh, negatively shaking his head as he looked at the potatoes. "They ain't ripe."

"Of course they are not," returned the other quickly. "But when I can get $1.50 a bushel for them wouldn't I be a fool to let them stay in the ground and then sell them for 75 cents?"

"Um!" thoughtfully communed Uncle Josh. And then, "Say, young feller, you ain't no farmer; you are a financier." — Philadelphia Telegraph.

Provocation.

"I am sure you have had provocation," said the relative, "or you would not be so determined to leave your husband."

"Provocation!" echoed the indignant woman. "I bought Fido a package of dog cake. This morning I made biscuits for breakfast. Can you believe me when I tell you I found that brute of a man trying to feed Fido my biscuits and coax the dear little pet's perfectly good dog cakes away from him?"—Washington Star.

A Slanderous Tale.

"Briggs is awfully hoarse this morning."

"Yes. You know how damp it was last night? Well, Briggs and his wife stood on the corner waiting for a street car, and Briggs' wife started in to say something, and Briggs stood there for fully a half hour with his mouth open trying to get in a word edgewise. That's where he got his hoarseness."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Rapid Transit.

In response to a growing demand in his home a certain author once went to his father's house, borrowed the family high chair and started taking it home by hand. He had to wait long for his car, and when it finally came its conductor was a humorist.

"Aren't you pretty big for that chair?" that official ventured.

"Yes," admitted Webster wearily. "I grew up while waiting for the car."

Making It Worse.

"I cannot bear actors," a lady at a garden party remarked to her fascinating companion. "They are so conceited."

"But I'm an actor myself," was the rejoinder, "and surely you don't think I'm conceited?"

"Oh, certainly not!" answered the lady in some confusion, "I only meant the really good ones!"

Cunning of the Fox.

Hunters say it is very rare for mother foxes to leave all their young in one place. It is their cunning habit to scatter the family, one and two in widely separated retreats. It is said, too, that foxes will not rob roosts close to their dens, but will go miles away for food and carefully hide their trails.

A Kind Word For All.

An old Scotch woman was famous for speaking kindly. No sheep was so dark but she could discover some white spot to point out to those who could see only its blackness. One day a gossiping neighbor lost patience with her and said angrily:

"Wumman, ye'll hae a guid word to say for the devil himself!"

Instantly came the reply: "Weel, he's a vera industreous body!"—London Tit-Bits.

Hesitated and Was Lost.

"What makes you look so blue, old man?"

"Oh, Edith has sent me back my ring."

"Has she? What's the matter?"

"We've—we've had a quarrel."

"But what about?"

"Why, I hesitated when she asked if I was sure I'd have loved her just the same if we'd never met."

—Exchange.

More Than She Wanted.

"Promise me, Jack, that you will not go to the dogs because I have refused you."

"Certainly not!"

"You horrid thing!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

STOMACH TROUBLE FOR FIVE YEARS

Majority of Friends Thought Mr. Hughes Would Die, But One Helped Him to Recovery.

Pomeroyton, Ky.—In interesting advices from this place, Mr. A. J. Hughes writes as follows: "I was down with stomach trouble for five (5) years, and would have sick headache so bad, at times, that I thought surely I would die. I tried different treatments, but they did not seem to do me any good. I got so bad, I could not eat or sleep, and all my friends, except one, thought I would die. He advised me to try Thiedford's Black-Draught, and quit taking other medicines. I decided to take his advice, although I did not have any confidence in it.

I have now been taking Black-Draught for three months, and it has cured me—haven't had those awful sick headaches since I began using it.

I am so thankful for what Black-Draught has done for me."

Thiedford's Black-Draught has been found a very valuable medicine for derangements of the stomach and liver. It is composed of pure, vegetable herbs, contains no dangerous ingredients, and acts gently, yet surely. It can be freely used by young and old, and should be kept in every family chest.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS
 FOR SACKACHE KIDNEYS AND BLADDER

SOMETIMES AN IMPORTANT BATTLE IS LOST BECAUSE THE ATTACK WAS NOT CONTINUED FOR ONE HOUR LONGER!

In war, obstacles yield to attacks that are persistently maintained—that do not stop just an hour before victory. In advertising, as in war, this holds good. The newspaper advertiser, with something really important in hand, often stops just short of his result—perhaps ONE WEEK short of it.

In war, many operations are instantly successful. Others require that tenacity which only determined people possess. In advertising, results are often quick and "easy" to secure. Other results, perhaps of vital importance to the advertiser, seem slower and more difficult. The man who wants to sell meritorious merchandise can sell it—unless he stops his advertising campaign one week short of this result.

Christmas is just a few weeks distant and it is necessary now to plan the campaign that will make this the biggest holiday season that you have ever had. There has been a certain amount of economy or spending timidity during the last few months, but all indications point to a general loosening of the purse-strings.

PERIL ON A MOUNTAIN PEAK.

Explorer Annie S. Peck's Wild, Slide Down Huascarán.

In "A Search For the Apex of America" Miss Annie S. Peck recounts a dangerous experience which befel her in the Andes in the descent of Mount Huascarán. She wore a pair of vicuna mittens, with two thicknesses of fur, one turned outside and one inside. They became too warm, and she exchanged them for woolen mittens. The fur mittens she handed over to the guide, Rudolf, to put in his rucksack.

Coming out at length on a ridge where we were more exposed to the wind, I felt the need of my vicuna mittens and asked for them. Rudolf replied, "I have lost one."

I was angry and alarmed, but it was useless to talk. I hastily put my woolen mittens on my left hand, the vicuna fur on my right. The wind grew stronger, and I suddenly realized that my left hand was insensible and freezing. Twitching off my mittens, I found that the hand was nearly black. Rubbing it vigorously with snow, I soon had it aching badly, which signified that circulation had begun, but it would surely freeze again in the colder hours of the late afternoon.

My overcaution in taking along the poncho now proved my salvation. This heavy blanket, with a slit in the middle, slipped over my head, kept me fairly warm to the end. At the same time it was awkward to wear and was almost the cause of my death on the way down. But for the loss of my fur mitten I should not have been compelled to wear it.

My recollection of the descent is like a horrible nightmare. The poncho would sway in the wind and sometimes conceal the spot where my foot should be placed. Once I missed the step and slipped down on the smooth slope. I expected nothing serious, but to my horror I did not remain where I was. Still sitting, I began to slide down that glassy, ghastly incline. As we were all nearly in the same line I slid at least fifteen feet before coming to a halt, checked by the rope.

The guides called to me to get up, but being all in a heap with the rope tight round my waist I was unable to move. The guides therefore came together just above and hauled me up the slope.

Again and again I slipped. Once when I had slipped I was astonished to see Rudolf dart by me. Gabriel's strong arm alone saved us all from destruction. Had he given way we should all, after sliding some distance, have dropped from the cliff into a terrible abyss thousands of feet deep. At last Gabriel said, "Now we are safe." We had emerged from those perilous declivities and reached the slope above the tent.

Curious Marriage Custom.

A curious marriage custom prevails among the islanders of Jersey. As soon as the ceremony is over, and when the happy couple are entering into occupation of their house the larger granite slab over the porch is inscribed with the initials of the bride and bridegroom, and between the two a rough representation of two hearts is entwined, the whole thus forming a marriage certificate for all the world to see. It is said that should the couple by any chance be one day divorced the hearts are pierced through by an arrow, which is cut into them.—London Globe.

Stage Fright.

"They tell me your husband has become one of the easiest and most graceful after dinner speakers in the city. I understand he has no end of engagements."

"Yes, and I have to sit up and give him a good dinner after every one of them."

"After every banquet?"
"Yes. When he knows they are going to call on him to speak he's always too scared to eat."—New York Journal

Anonymous.

A teacher in one of the public schools asked her pupils to write a sentence which should introduce the word "anonymous," explaining to them that the word meant "without a name." When the papers were handed in this startling sentence met her eye, "On my way to school this morning I saw an anonymous cow."—Judge.

CUNNING OF WOLVES.

Their Keen Scent and Their Cleverness in Avoiding Traps.

Wolves, writes H. Mortimer Batten in the Wide World Magazine, are the most difficult of all animals to trap, and it is usually by working upon their uncontrollable curiosity that they are most easily deceived. The "campfire set" is one of the best. When a man makes camp in the forest the wolves, if there are any near, are sure to note his whereabouts. When he has gone they trot up to investigate the ground, and with due caution pick up any scraps he may have left lying about. The "campfire set" is made by hollowing out an oblong hole in the ground just large enough to take the trap, and perhaps five inches deep. Cover the trap with a sheet of brown paper, and over this fill the hole with some damp earth. Then light a fire on the top of it, and into the fire as it burns low throw a few scraps of raw meat.

Should a wolf come along to investigate the place he is sure to scent the cooked meat and will start scratching in the ashes for it, thus, of course, springing the trap.

One of the greatest difficulties in wolf trapping is to hide the tell-tale scents, so keen is the wolf sense of smell. The traps must never be handled with the naked fingers. Old gloves soaked in oil or fat are used, and it is best to smother the trap over a "smudge" fire before setting it, and then inclose it in a paper bag.

The old wolvers often used to start out on their round dragging a piece of carrion behind their horse or cart by means of a long rope, thus leaving a trail upon which they set their traps at regular intervals. At night time the wolves took the trail up, and whichever way they followed it they were sure to encounter one or more traps.

Wolves are more easily done away with by the use of strychnine than they are by trapping. A trail of bait is laid, the central bait containing poison. Into this bait is stuck a black feather to warn passers-by to keep their dogs out of the danger zone and incidentally to attract the notice of the wolf. Having picked up several of the baits, he has now lost suspicion and gulps down his dose of poison, which kills him almost instantly.

An Impression of the Ocean.

Recently a woman paid her first visit to the ocean, and as she stood along the beach gazing at the great expanse of water a friend happened along.

"They tell me, Mrs. Jones," said the friend, "that you never saw the ocean before. Is that true?"

"Yes," answered Mrs. Jones; "most of my life has been spent in the middle west, you know."

"Think of the wonderful treat you had!" eagerly exclaimed the other. "How did it impress you?"

"Well," thoughtfully answered Mrs. Jones, "when I looked at the amount of water they have down around here it struck me that fish might be a little bit cheaper."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Why Not?

Little Mildred had had a nightmare and was telling the family about it the next morning. "When I woke up," she said, "I was still scared, and my heart was beating a tattoo."

Here her elder sister interrupted. "How could your heart beat a tattoo?" she asked sarcastically.

"I guess it could do it on the drums of my ears, couldn't it?" demanded Mildred indignantly.

Very Like.

"You remind me of a burglar who broke into our house one night and stole my sister's front hair off the bureau," said the balloon to the giant cracker.

"In what respect?" asked the giant cracker.

"Because you always go off with a bang," said the balloon.—Pittsburgh Press.

Imitation.

Mamma—My dear, what are you doing?

Little Daughter—Making a dolly for my little sister.

Mamma—But you haven't any little sister.

Little Daughter—No, not yet, but Sally Stuekup has just got one, and I know we always get everything the Stuekups do.—Exchange.

HIS NOSE WAS SAFE.

But His Nerves Went Into a State of Cold Chill Collapse.

"I was sitting on the veranda of a mining town hotel one afternoon a good many years ago," said a veteran engineer, "and was lazily smoking one of the nicest meerschaum pipes you ever saw when out of the tail of my eye I saw that a bad man down at the other end of the veranda had his gun sighted at me. They were a wild lot around there, and I couldn't tell whether he meant to shoot me or the pipe. The chances were in favor of the pipe, however, and it seemed a good chance to test my nerve. I made up my mind to let him shoot and to pretend a careless air, but I'm telling you in the ten or fifteen seconds of waiting the sweat came out at every pore, and my heart pounded my ribs sore. I felt a sort of tick at the bowl of the pipe, heard the crack of the gun and knew that a bullet had passed through the pipe. I got a brace with my hands and feet and waited for a second bullet, and it went through the bowl after the first. I sat there until his fourth bullet had hit the pipe and knocked the bowl off the stem, and then the shooter sauntered up to me and laughingly said: "Excuse me, stranger, but I thought it was imitation."

"Same as you are," I replied.

"My gibe hurt him, but he was man enough to tell everybody about my nerve, and the boys chipped in sufficient nuggets to buy me a new fifty dollar pipe. Say, do you know what happened to me when I made an excuse to go upstairs after my old corn-cob? I had no sooner got into my room than my knees gave out, chills galloped up my spine, and I'll be hanged if I didn't faint away and lie there for ten minutes. It had suddenly occurred to me that the bowl of that pipe was only six inches from my nose while the fellow was doing his shooting, and I have not yet got over touching my nasal organ now and then to see if it is safe."—Exchange.

Bismarck's Strategy.

Bismarck was once out shooting with a friend when the latter slipped into a bog and cried for help.

"I'm afraid I cannot help you unless I also die," said Bismarck, "and that would be no advantage to either of us. But rather than see you suffer a lingering death I will shoot you through the head. Now, keep still, for the love of heaven, or I may miss you."

With this he raised his gun to his shoulder and took steady aim. The sinking man was so horrified that he made one sudden and terrific effort and was free.

"There you are, my boy," said Bismarck. "You see, you could get out alone. To have attempted your rescue would have meant suicide for me."

The Moon.

The moon's mean distance from the earth is 237,000 miles. When it is at the perigee—nearest point—it is 225,000 miles and when at the apogee—farthest point—more than 251,000 miles from the earth. The actual diameter is estimated at 2,153 miles, or a little less than three-elevenths of the earth's diameter. The moon's volume is therefore about one-fourty-ninth that of the earth, and its mass is one-eighty-eighth of the earth; consequently the force of gravity is so much less at its surface than it is at the earth's surface that a body weighing 1,000 pounds here would weigh on the moon only 163 pounds.

Logic of a Tailor.

The tailor's sign in a little inland town was an apple—simply an apple. The people were amazed at it. They came in crowds to the tailor, asking him what on earth the meaning of the sign was. The tailor, with a complacent smile, replied, "If it hadn't been for an apple, where would the clothing business be today?"

Wrong Method.

He breathed his vow, yet still he regarded him with disdain.

"It is from my heart of hearts!" he protested.

"Where did you go to school that you breathe from your heart of hearts rather than from your diaphragm?" she demanded severely.—Puck.

POWER OF A SONG.

Dramatic Scene That Occurred in the House of Representatives.

From a volume by the late Adlai E. Stevenson, "Something of Men I Have Known," is taken this account of an incident which deserves a place in memory:

A touching scene occurred in the house of representatives a number of years ago when an aged member from New Jersey arose and for the first time addressed the speaker. All eyes were turned in his direction as he stood calmly awaiting recognition. He was tall, spare and erect. His venerable appearance and kindly expression, coupled with most courteous manners, at once commanded attention. As in husky tones he again said "Mr. Speaker!" there came from the farthest end of the great hall in a whisper, but distinctly heard by all, the words, "Sweet Alice, Ben Bolt." A moment later and from the floor and gallery many voices blended in the familiar refrain, "Don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt?"

The ovation which immediately followed was such as is rarely witnessed in the great hall. Business was suspended for the moment and the hand of the new member warmly grasped by the chosen representatives of all parties and sections. It was an inspiring tribute, one worthily bestowed. The member was Thomas Dunn English, author of the little poem, sung in palace and cottage, which has found its way into all languages and touched all hearts.

Colors in Poetry.

As to color, Grant Allen maintained in an "Essay on the Color Sense" that only eight colors are recognized by the popular mind—black, white, red, blue, green, yellow, gray and brown. Educated people speak of scarlet, crimson, lilac and purple only under exceptional circumstances. In a prosaic hour Grant Allen went through "Poems and Ballads" on the quest for color and found that Swinburne used the word red 151 times, rosy and crimson once each and sanguine, ruddy and scarlet twice each. Gold is mentioned thirteen times. Blue reaches twenty-five. And the prosaic conclusion is "to adopt the statistical form, we might say, if we chose to reckon the unreckonable, that red is 500 per cent more poetical than blue."

A Peppery Czar.

In his book on the "Court of Russia" E. A. B. Hodgetts gives a strange picture of the czar Alexander III.

"He had only little self control and would fly into paroxysms of rage, when it was not even safe for his wife to approach him. On one occasion he was known to have nearly killed a German nerve specialist whom he had called in to examine his son and with whose medical opinion he was profoundly dissatisfied. He gave him a box on the ear which literally sent him flying out of the room."

A Troubled Man.

"Don't go about looking for trouble," said the chap who gives advice.

"Looking! Looking!" exclaimed the baldheaded man irascibly. "I don't have to look for it. Trouble calls me up over the telephone in the middle of the night, trouble knocks on my door the first thing in the morning, trouble swings to my coattail all day long, and trouble will follow me to the grave when I die!"—St. Louis Republic.

Birds' Nests.

Some Australian birds lay their eggs in black sand, as if aware of its superior power of absorbing heat. Others select the neighborhood of hot volcanic springs, whose warmth plays an important part in the hatching.

The mound builders collect heaps of earth and leaves as much as eighteen feet high and thirty feet in diameter, and in this hotbed their eggs are hatched.

Considerate.

Muggins is not handsome, and he knows it. When his first baby was born he asked, "Does it look like me?"

Of course they replied in the affirmative.

"Well," said he, with a sigh, "break it to my wife gently."—London Tit-Bits.

Saw It in a Dream.

For many years ivory manufacturers were trying to devise a machine for turning out a billiard ball as nearly perfect as possible and at the same time avoiding waste. Among those who strove to perfect such a machine was Mr. John Carter of the firm of John Carter & Son, ivory manufacturers. One night, after Mr. Carter had been striving to solve the problem for some time, he suddenly awoke his wife by shouting out, "I have got it," and rushed downstairs into his study, where he made a drawing of the last knife for the want of which he had been so long waiting in order to complete his machine. It appears that he had fallen asleep and dreamed about the machine, and in the dream the solution of the difficulty was revealed to him.—London Answers.

No Telling.

It was visiting day at the prison, and an old lady was being shown round by the governor. While at one cell she ventured to ask what the man was being punished for.

"For stealing a piano," the governor told her.

"And did you steal it?" asked the old lady, turning to the prisoner sympathetically.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the man, thinking she might be a person of influence who would interest herself in his behalf, "I'm sorry to say I did; but in a moment of weakness, lady."

"A moment of weakness!" gasped the old lady. "Goodness gracious! What could you have done in a moment of strength?"

Used to it.

A German clergyman, while traveling, stopped at a hotel much frequented by wags and jokers. During dinner these worthies opened fire on the clergyman, who, however, stood their gibes and sneers with a calm indifference. At length a fellow diner said to him: "Well, I wonder at your patience. Have you not heard all that has been said to you?"

"Oh, yes, but I am used to it," replied the clergyman. "I am chaplain of a lunatic asylum; such remarks have no effect upon me."—Boston Transcript.

His Good Reason.

"You admit," said the magistrate, "that you entered the house of the prosecuting witness by the rear door at 2 in the morning?"

"Yes, your honor," replied the prisoner.

"What business did you have here at that time of the night?"

"I thought it was my own house."

"Then why did you, when this lady approached, leap through the window, jump into the cistern and hide yourself?"

"Your honor, I thought it was my wife."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Ancient Dancing.

In the earlier ages dancing was advocated as a cure for sickness. Lycurgus brought back from India and Egypt to Lacedaemonia notions of medico-religious dances and enacted that the Spartan youth should be brought up gracefully and symmetrically. In Greece Socrates commended dancing with a view of educating the mind and body, for he looked on it as a health giving device.

King Cotton.

According to the common understanding, the expression "king cotton," or "cotton is king," was first used by the Hon. James H. Hammond in the year 1858. Hammond was from the state of South Carolina, the chief product of which commonwealth was cotton. Mr. Hammond's idea was that cotton, being the great commercial export of this country and the chief article of manufacture in Great Britain, was "king" and that no politics was allowable that crossed the grain of the "king's" interests.

Proper Length of the Foot.

A perfectly formed foot should, according to anatomists, be as long as that bone in the forearm which extends from the elbow to the joint of the wrist. This seems to be abnormally long in a tall person, but is the measurement taken by artists. Of course arms are sometimes out of proportion, being far too short for the general height, but it is rare that an arm is too long for the stature of the person.

Millinery and Everything Else You Wear

A Daring Rider Comes to Grief, But Pluckily Resumes Her Work

♦♦ FLORENCE CRAWFORD'S TERRIFIC FALL ♦♦
in "THE HIDDEN MESSAGE," new Reliance-Mutual photoplay

In a vivid story whose scenes are laid along the Mexican border Florence Crawford plays the role of May, a wealthy rancher's daughter. She is kidnaped by Mexican bandits, who write her father that unless a huge ransom is forthcoming she will be killed. May is forced to write this ransom begging letter. But she manages to slip a message over on them in very clever fashion and thus tells her father where she is being held.

That much is the basic story of "The Hidden Message." But there occurred one scene in the staging of this Reliance-Mutual photo drama that wasn't according to Hoyle. The script called for May's capture by the bandits when she leaned over a water pool to get a drink, her horse's reins through her arm.

While she was galloping at full speed across the prairie, coming into camera action, the horse's near fore leg landed on some soft shale that protected a gully. Instantly the shale gave way and precipitated both rider and animal into the gully. The camera posted near by got the terrific fall.

Miss Crawford and her horse were stunned for a long time, but the plucky girl, after recovering her senses, insisted on going through the scene as it was originally planned. And now the director is wondering whether to use the scene that was written or the scene that occurred, having Miss Crawford's capture effected while she is unconscious.

PROHIBITION EDICT MAKES NATION SOBER.

Empire of 150,000,000 Persons Can Not Obtain One Drop of Intoxicants.

Petrograd, Nov. 18.—There is a prohibition in Russia today, prohibition which means that not a drop of vodka, whisky, brandy, gin or any other strong liquor is obtainable from one end to the other of a territory populated by 150,000,000 people and covering one-sixth of the habitable globe.

The story of how strong drink has been utterly banished from the Russian empire was related to the Associated Press by Michael Demitrovitch Tchelisheff, the man directly responsible for putting an end to Russia's great vice, the vodka habit.

It should be said in the beginning that the word prohibition in Russian must be taken literally. Its use does not imply a partially successful attempt to curtail the consumption of liquor resulting in drinking in secret places, the abuse of medical licenses and general evasion and subterfuge. It does mean that a vast population who consumed $1,000,000,000 worth of vodka a year, whose ordinary condition has been described by Russians themselves as ranging from a slight degree of stimulation upward, has been lifted almost in one day from a drunken inertia to sobriety. The nation has been compelled, virtually overnight, to abandon its enormous daily consumption of vodka, a liquor that is almost pure alcohol, and become abstemious to the extent of letting no liquor pass its lips.

On that day when the mobilization of the Russian army began special policemen visited every public place where vodka is sold, locked up the supply of the liquor and placed on the shop the imperial seal. Since the manufacture and sale of vodka is a government monopoly in Russia, it is not a difficult thing to enforce prohibition.

The Facts.

The Enterprise is not inclined to boost any certain firm's business, for we are anxious to see every business concern in Livingston do well, but the last few weeks there have been some business men who have been wearing a face about as long as a German siege gun and an expression on their faces as though they had been forced to eat five pounds of Limburger or Roquefort cheese. These men have not done much business, they have driven the trade away from their places by talking hard times. There have been two mercantile firms in town who have been optimistic, and have advertised their goods, letting the people know they have bargains to offer. They have not been spasmodic advertisers, for every issue of the paper has carried their ads, and this is the kind that pays. We have heard not only one but dozens of people mention the business of these two firms. One of these firms sold in cash last Saturday a week ago $426 in groceries, and last Saturday their cash sales in groceries were over $500. They have had a good cash business every day in the week and they are still doing business. Other firms here have bargains to offer, but in this day and time you have to reach the people by advertising—not one week, but every week in the year. Our advice is to stop the hard times talk and go after the business.—Livingston Enterprise.

Despondency Due to Indigestion.

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa. "For years my digestion was so poor that I could only eat the lightest foods. I tried everything that I heard of to get relief, but not until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them my digestion is fine." For sale by all dealers. Adv.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

The first national proclamation of a Thanksgiving Day was written by George Washington, who designated Feb. 19, 1795, to be devoted to thanksgiving for national peace. But this day was not like the New England Thanksgiving feast day, either in season or in character, and the New Englanders, who, of course, observed the day set apart by President Washington, held their November feast as well. It was not until 1863 that Thanksgiving Day in November acquired full national character, but from that year continuously the last Thursday in this month has been proclaimed by the president and by the states' governors, and has been observed in all the American states, in Cuba, in the Hawaiian and Pacific Islands owned by the United States, in the Philippines, and in Alaska.

The first Thanksgiving Day was proclaimed by Governor Bradford, of the Massachusetts colony, in 1621. The Pilgrims had arrived from England in the Mayflower the preceding year, on Nov. 21, landing on Plymouth Rock shortly afterward.

The 102 persons on board the Mayflower were met by a tribe of friendly Indians under the leadership of Chief Massasoit, a venerable warrior. The Indians assisted the Pilgrims in making their homes in this then strange land in many ways, one of which was in teaching them how to grow corn—how to plant and fertilize it. The bones of fish, many heaps of which lay upon the shore, were used as fertilizer—probably the first fertilizer ever used by white people in the whole Western Hemisphere.

The Pilgrims' corn made a good crop. When harvest time came it was near the end of their first year in their new home. The Pilgrims were overjoyed by their success, and Governor Bradford deemed the time ripe for a celebration of his followers' prosperity. This would, of course, serve the purpose as well of cementing the friendship of the Indians. So he sent four men with guns to bag wild turkeys, which were plentiful in those days, and other wild game; and, learning of the feast in prospect, Chief Massasoit of the Indians sent out his dusky warriors to bring in deer.

At last the appointed day arrived and the Pilgrims and their Indian friends gathered near the settlement, where prayers of Thanksgiving were made.

Then came the feast and the fun. There were Massasoit with his ninety warriors, and Miles Standish with his twenty well-drilled soldiers. Standish, be it remembered, was the little, busy, bustling soldier of the Pilgrims who so foolishly and vainly got John Alden to woo for him the dainty maid, Priscilla. Priscilla, too, was there, and as she was a great cook, took a very prominent part, indeed, in the proceedings.

After the feast Indians and Pilgrims contested with bows and arrows and in racing and wrestling and other sports until the day was done.

This was the beginning of Thanksgiving Day in the United States. But the idea is as old as history. Thousands of years ago special thanksgiving days were known to the Israelites and are mentioned throughout the Bible, and in ancient times in every country there were religious feasts at harvest time in the autumn.

The first Thanksgiving service ever held in North America was conducted by an English minister named Wolfall in 1578 on the shores of Newfoundland. He accompanied the expedition under Frobisher, who brought the first colonists from England.

King Cotton to Be Dethroned.

Mr. George H. Grounds of Chicago, in renewing his subscription, writes to the Courier as follows: "Herewith check to cover bill rendered. Thanks for the Courier, which comes each week and has for more than twenty years. It's the one sure way I have of checking up the progress you and your county are making. It's the same 'best county paper' now that it was twenty years ago—always unbiased, free to hear both sides and to pull hard for Houston county. That constitutes success. In this connection keep on with your campaign for diversified crops. 'All the eggs in one basket' is good logic when applied to some things, but I do not believe it was meant to include cotton to the exclusion of all other farm products. The farmer who plants only cotton will invariably buy his living from the other fellow and be at the mercy of pests, weather and market uncertainties. Diversified farming is the one and sure solution of the south's present predicament. The European war, with its ghastly effects, may yet prove a double blessing—namely, the breaking up of the antiquated system of kings and kingdoms and the introduction of diversified farming for the south."

Released Under Bonds.

H. M. Gary, indicted by the grand jury Monday for assault to murder on J. B. Stanton, was released under bonds Tuesday morning. His bail was fixed by District Judge John S. Prince at $500 for his appearance at the next term of the district court and $2500 as a peace bond. The bonds were signed by George H. Burnett, H. J. Arledge, S. G. Burnett and C. L. Edmiston. Mr. Gary and his family will move to south Texas pending his trial for assault to murder at the next term of the district court. The main prosecuting witness, J. B. Stanton, was unable to appear in court at this term, being confined to his room on the advice of his physician, and this being the last week of the district court for this term.

J. B. Stanton Wounded.

As the outgrowth of a business transaction, J. B. Stanton was shot and wounded by H. M. Gary Friday morning. The shooting occurred at the northeast corner of the public square and a revolver was used. Stanton, who is well known as a former district clerk, was sitting in his buggy talking to former Postmaster Dawes when Gary, one of the county's oldest citizens, approached and shot him. It is said that Gary had previously threatened Stanton. The bullet struck the skull a glancing blow, producing only a scalp wound. Gary delivered himself to the officers and was locked in the county jail. Monday the grand jury returned an indictment against him, charging assault to murder.

Blue Bird Club Organized.

A number of enterprising married ladies and young ladies of Crockett met last Tuesday afternoon at three-thirty with Miss Etta Hail, the uppermost idea being that of a "Blue Bird" club, meaning to give happiness to others. Many things were brought up and discussed at length, in which each member felt at liberty to express her views.

Officers were elected with much enthusiasm. Mrs. Jack Beasley was made president and Mrs. Benton Roberts secretary and treasurer.

The day of meeting for the "Blue Bird Club" was placed for every Thursday afternoon at two-thirty.

There were twelve members present—Mesdames Jim Valentine, D. P. Craddock, George McLean, Jack Beasley, Benton Roberts; Misses Louise Jewel, Etta Hail, Mary McLean, Hallie Aldrich, Emma Craddock, Lena Bromberg, Miss Cary.

The club had for their guest Miss Gladys Walling of Houston.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Jack Beasley on Friday afternoon at 2:30. Secretary.

Noted Painter Here.

Boris Gordon of Houston, the portrait painter, was here Monday. Mr. Gordon will be remembered as having made last year a portrait of Senator Bailey which displaced one of General Sam Houston in the state capitol at Austin, which latter portrait he had also made. The senator's portrait was paid for, but the painter had received no pay for the general's portrait. A few years ago Mr. Gordon made a portrait of Mrs. D. A. Nunn of this city, which he was employed to do by the local chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy.

The Courier is indeed gratified at the way its subscribers are paying up and renewing for another year. It makes us want to go ahead with renewed effort to give them a better paper than ever before. And we are going to do it if close attention and hard work will bring that result.

Mr. J. F. Leathers, a former citizen of this section, but now engaged in business at Christine, likes to keep up with things, so he writes the Courier as follows: "Enclosed please find check to pay my subscription to the Crockett Courier. I could hardly get along without the paper, for I always like to hear from Houston county and east Texas."

T. D. Craddock says that, while he is not doing any extensive advertising and sending out two and four-page circulars all over the country, he wants the public to know that he is still sawing wood at the old stand and ready to more than meet the advertised prices of the various merchants and go them one better, from the fact that you get a nice premium with every $5.00 you spend with him. 2t.

Tomato Growers to Organize.

Following the meeting of the peanut growers' association in the court house Saturday afternoon, those interested in growing tomatoes for the market next year will organize a tomato growers' association. Tomato growers around Jacksonville realized a sum approximating $70,000 for their tomatoes this year.

Reads Every Line.

Mr. Carroll Downes of Philadelphia, Pa., in renewing his subscription to the Courier, has this to say: "Find enclosed my check in payment of subscription to the Crockett Courier. I read every line of the paper with a great deal of interest, and when I find that I have covered all the news, I slip over into the patent medicine department and become very much enthused over the many wonderful and miraculous cures. I spent sometime in Crockett seventeen or eighteen years ago, that I remember with a great deal of pleasure the delightful friends that I met there."

Cotton Crop Short.

The last ginners' report, issued by the national government, of cotton ginned by counties in Texas from the crops of 1914 and 1913, prior to November 1, gives Houston county 17,434 bales in 1914 and 22,655 bales in 1913. The report shows a falling off of more than 5000 bales of this year's crop up to November 1. But the figures for the state show an increase. On November 1, 1913, Texas had ginned 2,650,444 bales while on November 1, 1914, Texas had ginned 3,170,601 bales. The large increase is in north and west Texas, where there have been better seasons this year than last.

Lost Mules.

Strayed or stolen from range near my place, 9 miles southeast of Crockett, two young mules described as follows: One brown horse mule about four years old, branded B D on left shoulder, has light nose; one black mare mule about three years old, branded B D on left shoulder, also light nose; old wire cut in front of left hind knee. When these mules left home they had not been sheared since last spring. Will pay $5.00 reward for each mule. First mule strayed off between two and three months ago; second mule about four weeks ago.

Still in the Laundry Business.

I take this opportunity of notifying my friends and patrons that I am still in the laundry business and will make a specialty of dyeing and all kind of fancy cleaning, hat work, or anything that can be done at a first class laundry. I will have a basket going to Houston, leaving here every Tuesday morning. I also represent the Crockett Steam Laundry and will be able to give customers a choice of having their laundry done here if they prefer. I will not be on the laundry wagon, but will call as usual Monday and Tuesday, or any time you ring me at Arledge Tailor shop, telephone 159. Your friend, J. W. Arledge. tf.

A Busy Grand Jury.

The grand jury that adjourned Tuesday was a busy one from start to finish. In its report it estimates that it examined 700 witnesses during the twenty-four days that it was in session or about thirty witnesses a day. Seven murder indictments were found and seventy-two for minor offenses, making a total of seventy-nine indictments by this grand jury, or an average of more than three indictments a day. This grand jury found that more than one murder a month had occurred in Houston county since the adjournment of the spring term of the grand jury. It is believed that this jury has established a record in the number of witnesses examined and indictments returned.

A GREAT BIG DOLL

A BOY SCOUT AIR-RIFLE

That's what these TWO PRESENTS are. A great big doll, with natural hair, eyebrows and eyelashes, for the girl, and a Boy Scout air-rifle that works just like a 22 repeating rifle for the boys. "I want the doll," "the air-rifle is mine"—that's what the girls and boys said when they saw them, and SOMEBODY WILL BE THE WINNER. GET BUSY! Each cent's purchase is worth a VOTE, and VOTES are what you want. We'll give you 1000 votes to begin with. Ask everybody to "buy it at Decuir-Bishop's" and save the votes for you. If you'll do that you'll WIN. We're going to put your name in the window each week and the number of votes you have. Watch it and BE ON TOP every time. Give us your name and begin getting votes now. It takes nickels to make dollars, you know, and JUST FIVE VOTES might win for you. If you haven't seen the doll and air-rifle, do so without delay—they're in the front window—and then JOIN THE MERRY THROG. Remember your motto is: "GET VOTES."
