Tractor Fuel Vital To Feeding Of Nation

Texas Farm Bureau President J. T. (Red) Woodson on May 23 reminded the Texas delegation in Congress that tractor fuel is "absolutely vital" to the feeding of this nation and suggested possible ways of easing the fuel crisis.

Woodson said the Texas Farm Bureau is now surveying county leaders to find out the extent of the fuel problem in Texas.

"We are getting reports from around the state that harvest equipment and farm tractors are being idled due to a shortage of fuel," the state farm leader said in a letter. "This could be a foretaste of a chronic problem in the future."

Woodson told the Texas representatives and senators in Congress that people in agriculture regard the fuel shortage as one of the most urgent problems facing the nation. He added that farmers and ranchers are ready to cooperate in any way "that will enable us to continue supplying food to this nation."

Clayton Introduced 35 Bills In Legislature

State Rep. Bill Clayton of Springlake introduced and passed through the House a record number of 35 bills was a notable achievement.

Approximately 3,000 bills were introduced by the House and Senate, and many problems in the areas of public school finance, redistricting, election code revision, and judicial reform were left unanswered, Clayton noted.

Rep. Clayton stated that the 140-day constitutional limit on sessions makes it impossible to consider all the legislation introduced.

"State government business, which amounts to about four billion a year, is in need of reorganization," Clayton said. Although he considers the session successful in many areas, especially in regard to water bills and other legislation important to this area, Clayton said he believes many changes are needed.

He named the committee system as one area which many felt failed this session. Committees were reduced from 46 to 21 this year, but most of the 21 committees had three standing sub-committees. This ended up with most of the members.

United States Senate COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES

For more than a decade the federal government, mainly through the Manpower Development and Training Act, has been assisting individuals to train themselves for more gainful employment. I have always supported the need for increased training for the disadvantaged so that they might become more productive members of our economy.

The alternative is to leave many of them dependent on welfare as a way of life. While supporting the basic concept of manpower training, it has become evident that programs operated under the Manpower Development and Training Act lack coordination and direction. There are too many narrowly constructed programs with different names that basically have similar objectives. Furthermore, with total federal control of these programs emanating from Washington, local communities have been restricted in establishing training priorities. This year the Manpower Development and Training Act expires. Committees in both the House and the Senate are preparing legislation to replace existing programs with a more coordinated system. One which I have introduced which will be especially beneficial to many Texans is the Bilingual Job Training Act. This bill seeks to provide separate authority for bilingual job training instead of the hodgepodge type of services available under the old programs.

This new training concept, which is being co-sponsored by 18 other Senators, would give a great deal of decision making authority to state and local governments. It also would better recognize the ability of Spanish speaking manpower organizations, such as Operation SER, to provide basic services to bilinguals. Spanish speaking persons make up, by far, the vast majority of bilinguals in the United States. Recent census data place the total number at 10 million, including more than two million in Texas. Unemployment among the Spanish speaking stands at about 8 percent, while the overall figure is around 5 percent. Their median income as a group is about three-quarters that for an average family of four in America. A recent manpower report to the President stated that one out of five Spanish speaking adults persons lack a minimum of five years of education. Yet despite these statistics, many Spanish-speaking Americans have proudly achieved remarkable success as professionals and as well-trained employees in sophisticated occupations. Such successes have convinced me beyond any reasonable doubt that the nation's Spanish speaking population can realize economic independence despite language difficulties in many cases. Government assistance has been slow in coming, and this has been spurred on mainly by the Spanish speaking leadership across the country. During the last fiscal year, nearly 250,000 Spanish speaking Americans were served by Labor Department manpower training programs. Perhaps the greatest difficulty facing many of our Spanish speaking citizens is his limited English speaking ability. This affects his life socially, economically and educationally. In a country where the vast majority of people speak one language, the Mexican-Americans, the Puerto Rican and the Cuban happen to speak another. Rather than viewing this basic fact as undesirable, I feel it is an advantage in the sense that it adds to the cultural diversity that is, in fact, this country's strength. Nevertheless, a limited English speaking background is deleterious to the Spanish speaking person's economic progress in a predominately English speaking society. Thus it is the proper role of the government to provide the bilingual person with the opportunity to compete on an equal footing with his English speaking contemporary. Congress already has acted in part to meet this need through the Bilingual Education Act. This program has been successful in improving the educational skills

OKLAHOMA STATE TECH GRADUATES . . . Texas students who this week were graduated from Oklahoma State Tech, Okmulgee, look at certificates naming them as honor students throughout their course of study. Students compiling between a 3.5 and 4.0 grade point average on a 4.0 scale in all subjects are listed on the Director's Honor Roll; graduates earning between a 3.0 and 3.49 grade point average are listed on the Registrar's Honor Roll. Admiring certificates presented to them May 23 during an honors and awards assembly are (from left): Joe L. Mata, Rt. 2, Muleshoe, Auto Mechanics; DeHarold Thornhill, 14 Dimit St., Phillips, Air Conditioning; Lana J. Bommer, Rt. 3, Muleshoe, Medical Secretarial; Wendel R. Shackle, 2106 W. Houston, Marshall, Numerical Control Machinist; Juan P. Avila, 335 S. 5, Slaton, Diesel Mechanics and Auto Machinist; and Jerry D. Bibby, 4208 Roberts, Greenville, Diesel Mechanics, Upshaw and Avila were named to the Director's Honor Roll.

Dear Editor,
First of all, I'd like to congratulate Muleshoe's 1973 graduating class. It's been a long journey, but you reached the end of the first phase of it. Next, I'd like to say I drove over from Friona to see it. I got a really nice view from the window. My mother was barely admitted in. You see, my brother, the oldest of two, graduated. I think it is a crying shame when the parents of a member of the graduating class aren't permitted in to see their son or daughter graduate.

programs primarily in languages other than English. Persons with limited English ability are penalized when programs in counseling, job referral and institutional training are not offered in their own basic language. A comprehensive bilingual job training program will be an investment in the future of many of our citizens who, through no fault of their own, suffer from a lack of real employment opportunities. At the same time, an effective manpower program directed at the bilingual American will have the effect of reducing welfare dependency and increasing our economic output.

Senior Night

The just-graduated class of '73 was honored Tuesday night with a Senior Night, which, in all three stages, was a big success.

Approximately 130 seniors and their dates, plus approximately 40 parents, chaperones, school board members and class sponsors, attended the festivities.

Special guests who attended with their wives included School Board President, Aubrey Heathington, members, Ernest Ramm, David Stovall, Don Harmon and Louis Wayne Shaffer. Class sponsors attending were Mr. and Mrs. Eric Smith, Mr. and Mrs. George Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Kerry Moore.

"I know You'll Love My Mother" with Patty Duke, attracted nearly 100 movie-goers. Stage 2, at the Wallace Theatre, was held between 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. By 4 a.m. appetites were whetted. The XIT served approximately 110 plates of breakfast, and music and games continued up to 5:30 a.m. Special thanks go to all of the parents who cooperated with each other to make the night a success and fun for their seniors, a spokesman said.

Controlling Cotton Seedling Disease

LUBBOCK -- Cotton seedlings are sturdy little creatures, but wind, hail and disease do take heavy tolls of these young plants before they're able to mature. Weather, of course, is beyond man's control, but steps can be taken to reduce the toll exacted by seedling diseases.

This conclusion comes from Dr. Earl Minton, plant pathologist with the USDA, cooperating with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock. One of the important measures in disease prevention, he says, is the use of fungicides.

"A protectant chemical to control fungi not only evens

(1) Agriculture be given high priority for food production should rationing be necessary.

(2) Work on the Alaskan pipeline begin without delay, with reasonable regard for the environment.

(3) Independent oil companies and their customers be protected from a possible squeeze play by major oil companies.

(4) That price controls on petroleum products be lifted where they have discouraged exploration and production.

(5) Lifting of oil import quotas be continued and fees that discourage imports be ended.

(6) Action be taken to prevent labor tie-ups and strikes that threaten fuel production and delivery.

(7) Research be started on ways to safely ease pollution controls that could save fuel and permit production of more fuel supplies.

(8) The Federal government help pay costs of researching new ways to find, extract and use oil, gas and coal.

bers serving on six committees, which resulted in committees meeting at the same time, and members running frantically from one group to another. Too often there were no available meeting rooms, and often committee quorums could not be reached because of the conflicts, Clayton said.

Although the session has ended in Austin, Rep. Clayton's duties will extend through the summer as he works with interim committees. However, he said he would be back in his district often, and would be meeting with local citizens and groups to learn of their needs and wishes.

The schedule for meeting calls for discussion and evaluation of specific constitutional issues.

South Plains citizens are invited to contact the chairman or vice-chairman if they have suggestions concerning the constitution, by writing to Mrs. John A. Anderson, Texas Tech University Law School, Lubbock, Texas 79409 or Judge Glenn Toombs, Box 156, Gall, Texas 79738.

The recommendations from the local advisory committee will be sent to the Texas Constitutional Revision Commission and to the South Plains legislators. The 181 members of the Legislature will become members of the constitutional convention when it convenes January 1974.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Fudge 127 Muleshoe May 30 for their home in Lampasas. Two youngest grandsons, Roger and Clifford accompanied them. The boys will do some fishing and help their grandfather on the ranch. The boys parents Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Fudge will join them later in the summer.

The senior Babe Ruth team has now won three and lost none for the season.

The next game will be Friday night when they will play Sudan-Amherst at Sudan beginning at 8 p.m.

On Saturday, June 2, the team will play Littlefield in Muleshoe at 8 p.m.

the odds a bit against diseases, but it also helps the seedling's performance," Minton reports.

He says that through studies conducted at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock, experiment station scientists and specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service annually prepare a list of fungicides for seedling disease prevention. These are revised each year, based on data gathered not only from the studies but from regional observations and supplementary seed treatment tests as well.

"Only those treatments which caused the seed to perform better and which were specifically registered for use on cotton seed are included in the list of fungicides," Minton adds. "Some of them are Busan 72, Busan 72 plus Demosan, Captan, PCNB plus Dexon, Phenyl mercury acetate, Terracoat L21, Vitavax plus Captan, and Vitavax plus Fthiram.

"A protectant fungicide is particularly important this year," he emphasizes, "because of the unusual amount of reduced quality cotton seed. Although it will not compensate for the reduced quality, a fungicide will help protect the young seedlings from attack by disease producing pathogens found in both soil and the seed."

According to the research plant pathologist, best results are usually obtained if the seed treatment chemical contains a systemic fungicidal agent which will protect the entire plant from disease by moving upward in the plant stem as it continues to grow.

"Systemic chemicals such as Demosan, Vitavax and Terracoat L21 are probably the most effective protectant fungicides for the Oklahoma and Texas areas," he points out. "Demosan and Vitavax should be used as an overcoat with other fungicides."

"Planting at the right time is another important step to be taken toward protecting the young seedlings. Producers should be aware of the proper soil temperature necessary for seed germination before planting," explains Minton.

"Soil temperature taken at 8 a.m. daily at the eight-inch depth should average 60 degrees or higher for seven to ten days after planting. This results in rapid seed germination and seedling emergence, and increases survival chances since seedlings are more susceptible to disease during cool weather because of their inability to grow."

Concludes the pathologist, "Crop rotations are also recommended as a protective measure especially for cotton and grain crops. By rotating crops every year or two, the seedling diseases which are already in the soil will not have the chance to continually grow with each successive planting, and will eventually break down."

There are any number of people who will do great things if they can do them without exertion.

A guilty conscience feels continual fear.
