PREDICTS FALL OF GOVERNMENT

Under New Regime Labor Would Run Whole Nation on Plumb Plan.

Washington, Oct. 20.—While members of the senate labor committee investigating the steel strike that fairly dazed and dumfounded, Jacob Margolis of Pittsburgh, I. W. W. attorney and admitted advocate of social revolution, Monday told them a story of ultra-radical activities which, he said, underlay and were associated with the nationwide strike of steel workers.

Even more remarkable to his hearers was the Pittsburgh attorney's delineation of a partially successful attempt, covering the past two years, to fuse at Pittsburgh for an unstated but vaguely hinted revolutionary purpose, the combined forces of the Industrial Workers of the World, the bolsheviks and Russian Industrial Workers of the World, whose imagination he acknowledged has been caught by the successes of Lenin and Trotzky in Russia. All were trying, he told the committee, "to create a new society within the shell of old." Throughout Margolis' story ran the name of William Z. Foster, secretary of the steel strike committee, to whom Chairman Kenyon of the labor committee forced a frequent recurrence by a cross examination in which dictagraph records of telephone conversations, photographed copies of Margolis' correspondence and similar matter played a large part.

Coolly Classifies Himself.

Margolis coolly classified himself as an "anarchist syndicalist," in which capacity he had worked with and for the I. W. W. organization and a Tolstoian anarchist. Governments, he said, will be of no use "when proper industrial conditions are established," he put it, and these industrial conditions, he predicted, will be established when workers, organized along I. W. W. lines, got ready to "take over and operate industry for themselves, more efficiently than private ownership can."

Secretary Foster came into the testimony not so much as a radical agitator himself but as a seeker for help in conducting the industrial fight in the steel industry. Margolis told of a "Union of Russian Worksmen," existing in and around Pittsburgh, revolutionary in its objects and said at Foster's request, or with his cognizance, he secured the indorsement of the organization for the steel strike. "The Russians had a tri-State meeting at Youngstown in August," Margolis explained, Chairman Kenyon leading and suggesting. "It was a delegate assembly. I went there and made a speech, asking them to indorse the steel strike and give it support. This they agreed to do."

Labor "Too Narrow."

"The I. W. W. and the Russian bolsheviks indorsed and assisted in the strike," Margolis said, after severe questioning by Senator Kenyon. He explained likewise that the American Federation of Labor was "too narrow" and "too lacking in vision" to accomplish real progress for the workers, and thereupon Chairman Kenyon followed up the issue which the committee had previously had to consider.

"Isn't it true that Foster holds opinions exactly similar to you and has gone into the trades unions solely on the theory of 'boring under' and 'boring through' and capturing the movement for syndicalism?" the chairman asked.

Is "Trade Unionist"

"No, I don't think he holds those opinions now," Margolis replied. "He has become an ordinary trades unionist. He believed, I know, that he could retain his integrity as a strike syndicalist, but the position into which he is forced as a strike organized now does not allow that. He has not changed the American Federation of Labor organization; that organization has changed him."

"The Plumb plan for the operation of railroads by the employes and their purchase by the government," he said was the "first step toward the new future," while the soviet government in Russia he classed as the most forward looking creation on the globe, far better than anything in America.

WOULD BARGAIN "INDIVIDUALLY"

Insist on Reservations That Labor Group Turns Down Flat.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Solution of the difficulties seriously threatening the national industrial conference seemed more hopeful than ever Sunday night after the conference's central committee in a three-hour session failed to conciliate the differences between the labor and employer wings.

The tentative agreement reached Saturday on the question of collective bargaining was shattered today when the employers' group insisted on adding to the substitute resolution a clause declaring for the right of "employers and employes to bargain individually." This clause was rejected unqualifiedly by the labor delegates.

Previous to the introduction of the "individual bargaining" clause of an apparent solution to the problem had been reached.

The original Russell-Endicott resolution providing for recognition of the right to collective bargaining and the right of employes to choose their representatives at will, was revamped, divided into four sections and amended to read "the right to organize into trade and labor unions, shop and other industrial institutions."

Deadlock Resumed.

The section granting to labor organizations the right to choose representatives without restrictions was amended to read "by representatives chosen by a majority of their own members."

The compromise measure as amended met with the approval of the labor and public groups and some members of the employers' wing, when brought before the committee. Later, however, the employers insisted on the addition of a fifth section, the individual bargaining clause, which was promptly vetoed by the labor group.

This left the central committee deadlocked just as it was when the conference adjourned Friday.

In outlining the position of the labor group before the central committee today, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor Frank Morrison asserted that the representatives of the workers did not enter the conference with any intention of attempting to obtain concessions but rather in a desire for a better understanding between capital and labor, that the workers had made every concession thus far and that his group could not yield further to indorse the

INDUSTRIAL MEET IN NEW DEADLOCK

Removes Prospects for Reconciliation Over Collective Bargaining.

Washington, Oct. 20.—In his first pronouncement before the national industrial conference, Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, sitting as a representative of the public, Monday reaffirmed his position that the steel strike "should not be arbitrated or compromised," and objected to action on that issue by the conference.

The steel official also restated without modification his belief in the open shop and the right to determine terms of employment "between employe and employer." This statement brought from Samuel Gompers, leader of the labor group in the conference, the charge that Judge Gary was taking the attitude that "there is no other opinion in the matter."

Referring to the steel corporation's request that the conference take no action in the steel strike, the labor leader declared that if the real issues were to be brushed aside there was no purpose in continuing the conference.

Banishes Hope.

While the clash of the two leaders on the conference floor further removed the hope of an agreement on the dominant issue of collective bargaining, prospects of conciliation were considered still more remote Monday night when it was permitted to become known that the representatives of capital were steadfast in their refusal to accept the Russell-Endicott resolution for recognition of collective bargaining, which has been approved by the public and labor groups. The employers again went into session Monday night but the members of the group privately admitted that reconvening of the conference Tuesday would probably find them still in no mood to yield on the vital point of dealing with labor representatives chosen out of their own plants.

In his statement to the conference, Judge Gary said:

"I desire to make a brief statement in relation to the question under discussion as well as other submitted to this conference. Further legislation of any vote I may register will probably be unnecessary."

Recognizes Public Interest.

"Like other members of the conference, I recognize that the public interest must always be considered as first importance, that all private interests must be subordinated."

"I am heartily in accord with the desire of the president to firmly establish proper and satisfactory relations between all groups of citizens connected with the industry, including, of course, what has been designated as capital and labor."

"I believe in conciliation, cooperation and arbitration, whenever practicable without sacrificing principle."

"I am of the fixed opinion that the pending strike against the steel industry of this country should not be arbitrated or compromised, nor any action taken, by the conference, which bears upon that subject."

"Also that there should be

We are fond of quoting the old saying that "clothes do not make the man," but experience tells us that this is not true. Clothes DO make the man—in the eyes of the other fellow. And it is with "the other fellow" that we all wish to stand well.

Correct Clothes are a Necessity.

It is impossible for a shabbily dressed person to command respectful attention except where he is well known. When you want clothes that are ABSOLUTELY CORRECT we are ready to show them to you. You will want them when you see them. And, better still, you will not complain of the price.

Taking Advantage of Sales Day Crowd.

It is a natural result of the coming together of large numbers of people for the purpose of barter and sale or exchange of commodities that characters of all kinds interested in such matters should be attracted, and this is fully exemplified by the number of professional horse traders with literally hundreds of head of the kind of horses they generally handle in town on the occasion of our live stock sales days.

No one questions the right of these traders to be in town that day with their stock in trade, but we think it necessary to say in this connection that the Commercial Club wishes it distinctly understood that this feature is not a part of the program intended to help the farmers to find profitable sale for such live stock as they may wish to dispose of on these occasions, and that all responsibility for the results that may accrue from dealings with this class of traders is emphatically disclaimed by the managers.

The danger lies in the fact that when the farmers come to town on sales days either to buy or sell, it is easy to connect all animals on exhibition and offered for sale with the genuine program of the day, and unless buyers are careful and know where to draw the line some bad trades will be charged to the Club management.

A safe guide to govern those who may be in doubt is to buy only such animals as are offered by the auctioneer or by people they are personally acquainted with.

Secretary.

VISCOUNT ASTOR IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Son of John Jacob Astor Dies of Heart Disease in London.

London, Oct. 19.—Viscount Astor of Hever Castle died of heart disease on Saturday morning. He had been failing in health a year.

The body of Viscount Astor lies in the residence of his son, Waldorf Astor, member of parliament, in St. James Square.

Through Viscount Astor's wish his body will be cremated and it is understood his ashes will be placed in the private chapel of his one-time country home, Cliveden, at Taplow, Bucks, now occupied by Waldorf Astor.

Mr. Astor's death was entirely unexpected, it was stated at Major Astor's home tonight, although he had been in declining health for months. He walked about outdoors on Friday as usual. Death came while Mr. Astor was in bed Saturday morning, but whether during his sleep or whether the household had warning, those in charge of Major Astor's house positively declined to say.

What arrangements have been made for the funeral have not been announced.

Few men of great wealth in England have been so little known to the public as William Waldorf Astor. It was said that he left America to escape the limelight which newspapers throw upon multimillionaires. If this was true, he was successful.

During the first years of his residence here he established a position in the exclusive social set and entertained that circle in accordance with the most conservative traditions. But he never attempted to become a leader in sport or politics, two fields in which rich Englishmen endeavor to attain publicity and popularity.

Mountain Moonshine Shy In Spite of Plans.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 19.—Despite an unlimited demand, and preparations to make this year's output the largest in decades, the annual crop of pure Kentucky moonshine will be the smallest in history. Secret service and internal revenue department activities did not have this distressing effect on the world's supply of "liberty liquor" as it was renamed by the mountaineers during the war. None other than Jupiter Pluvius, the pest that forced himself on Broadway and the Loop June 30, and whose job it has been to quench the nation's thirst since that date, is responsible.

For more than a week it has rained continuously in the bluegrass and mountain sections of the State, preventing the harvest of a bumper crop of corn. Thousands of bushels are rotting in the fields. And without good corn moonshine manufacture is impossible. The mountaineers had planned to dispose of the entire surplus this year to the outside world, but fears are being entertained that the output will not be large enough for the local consumption.

Besides the damage to corn, rain is ruining many acres of tobacco. The late crop has not been cut and gathered because of the downpour, and much of it is rotting. High prices for the weed is already the rule in the local market, which is the largest loose leaf sales center for tobacco in the world and there is promise of the "makings" and the "rolled" costing more than ever next year.

Be of good cheer, sister. Never allow the other girl's disposition to be sweeter than your own.

AFTER TWO YEARS OF DEMONSTRATION

Unusual Public Interest Has Been Centered in This Latest Model.

Overland 4, the new car of light weight construction for which the public has been waiting since its introduction was first rumored at the automobile shows about two years ago, was placed on exhibition in Crockett this week at the Overland salesrooms of J. E. Towery.

The men and women who inspected the Overland 4 were representative of the visitors to Overland salesrooms in a thousand cities, towns and hamlets of the United States. The company's dealers, from Maine to California and from Washington to Florida, now have on display one or more of the new models described as embodying "the greatest improvement in riding comfort since the introduction of pneumatic tires."

COULD HARDLY STAND ALONE

Terrible Suffering From Headache, Stomach, Backache, and Weakness, Relieved by Cardui, Says This Texas Lady.

Gonzales, Tex.—Mrs. Minnie Philpot, of this place, writes: "Five years ago I was taken with a pain in my left side. It was right under my left rib. It would commence with an aching and extend up into my left shoulder and on down into my back. By that time the pain would be so severe I would have to take to bed, and suffered usually about three days... I suffered this way for three years, and got to be a mere skeleton and was so weak I could hardly stand alone. Was not able to go anywhere and had to let my house work go... I suffered awful with a pain in my back and I had the headache all the time. I just was unable to do a thing. My life was a misery, my stomach got in an awful condition, caused from taking so much medicine. I suffered so much pain. I had just about given up all hopes of our getting anything to help me.

One day a Birthday Almanac was thrown in my yard. After reading the testimonials I decided to try Cardui, and am so thankful that I did, for I began to improve when on the second bottle... I am now a well woman and feeling fine and the cure has been permanent for it has been two years since my awful bad health. I will always praise and recommend Cardui." Try Cardui today. 2 78 springs. Unusually graceful in body design, Overland 4 makes a splendid impression on the visitor. It was this new spring suspension, however, which absorbed motorist attention at the salesrooms. It is a combination of two principles that have been used to greatest advantage in automobile construction: First, that of cantilever springs; second, the flexible three-point construction.

The luxurious riding comfort these springs furnish the car was immediately understood and appreciated. It is this feature which gives to the new Overland car, designed for light weight, that degree of riding comfort and security hitherto possible only in high-priced, heavier cars.

But this is only one of many features in Overland 4 which back the Willys-Overland Company's claim to success in giving the public "a new standard of riding comfort."

The actual creation of Overland 4 began more than two years ago. The last two years have been devoted to testing and perfecting each part of the car. Back of its development stand ten years of successful manufacturing and engineering experience in giving the public good motor cars. For the immediate development and production of Overland 4, John N. Willys has concentrated the vast resources of the Willys-Overland Company. Production will be on a scale which will assure the greatest economies in manufacturing.

Ideals Guide Design.

Guiding the development of this remarkable new car was Mr. Willys' ideal of a motor car which would combine with the economy of light weight all the comfortable riding qualities and the stamina of the heavy and expensive automobiles. He proposed a car of built-in quality which would free the owner from all possible up-keep expenses. This was not possible, the company claims, until the Willys-Overland Company devised this interesting three-point spring suspension, a spring seating radically different from the conventional design of four springs paralleling the chassis frame. New as this spring suspension is, it is interesting to note that the design has been approved by the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Before the final adoption of the new springs, special breaking and bumping machines were rigged up at the factory, and the cars, after that supposedly destructive test, were sent out on trial trips which carried them into every section of the country in all sorts of weather conditions. The cars were driven over the Rocky Mountains, through the desert roads and boulder stretches of the southwest, over the sagebrush and sand of Texas, and through the mud and clay of the Missouri Valley. A two years' test, covering 250,000 miles of travel! The car satisfied the company's engineers that it was right. The war period which held up production was devoted to an exhaustive perfection of car details, refining the quality and economy features.

Without emphasizing such features as an unusually attractive appearance, the all-steel body with an oven-baked enamel finish and other interesting details, it may be said that motoring interest centers in four new and distinctive features of Overland 4. These features, each worth the motorist's study, are:

Springbase, Not Wheelbase.

First, of course, the three-point cantilever on spring suspension. The springs on Overland 4 extend fifteen inches from a point on the chassis beyond the axles at front and rear, giving a wide diagonal shape to the springs. The car has thus an actual springbase of 130 inches, although the car wheelbase itself is 100 inches. Each spring flexibly responds to its task of keeping the body and passengers riding on a constantly even keel. Bobbing, sideways, and lurching are materially lessened. The result is a roomy, easy-riding car on a new type of springs so designed as to absorb road shocks from the worst of pavements or roads. The Willys-Overland engineers make the unusual claim of having produced a car that rides well on any road.

Second—Economy. The new springs so protect the car from road shock as to make possible much lighter weight and hence a great saving in fuel and tires. Furthermore, the car is so simple and accessible that costs of upkeep and repairs must be greatly reduced. Yet the car's parts have a protected accessibility—a big factor in upkeep. The car is assembled from five units only. The chassis is clear of all involved mechanism. The entire assembly requires only 50 bolts. The engine is a remarkably high-grade, thoroughly up-to-the-minute power plant, compact and simple. The neatness and cleanness of design bespeak the ready accessibility to all parts.

New Quality Standard.

Third—Quality. Specifications indicate that the Overland 4 has been built in each part of the finest quality steels and steel-alloys. The car's parts have been machined within the closest possible limits, permitting a quality of construction equal to that of hand-made product. Inspection starts at the steel mills where the company has stationed expert metallurgists to test every heat of steel, and the inspection ends only with the owner's driving the car away. The stock reaching the factory is thus all first grade through many inspections. This itself is a new feature in automobile construction. The body is all-steel with an oven-baked enamel finish. The construction is simple and the balance of part to part is unusually fine. The car has been designed light weight.

Unusually Complete Equipment.

Fourth—Bountiful and complete equipment. In every detail from demountable rims to Auto-Lite starter, lights and horn, the equipment of Overland 4 appears to have been planned with a single view of comfort, convenience, and long service. All seat cushions, which are detachable like those in a pullman, are upholstered with the luxurious Marshall Divan springs. The windshield is slanting rain vision. The one-man top, curtains and cushions are Duratex. The horn button is in the center of the steering wheel. The controls are all mounted on a keyboard on the cowl in instant and ready reach.

All in all, Overland 4 impresses its visitors as being a motor car value of very distinctive comfort, economy, quality and convenience. It will be marketed in four body styles: A Sedan at $1,375; coupe at $1,325; touring car and roadster at $845, f. o. b. Toledo.

RESERVATIONS NOW THE ISSUE

OPPONENTS CONCEDE THAT NO AMENDMENTS CAN BE ADOPTED.

Washington, Oct. 19.—The long treaty fight in the senate is about to enter its final phase. Leaders hope during the coming week to clear away all proposed amendments and make substantial progress in the framing of a ratification resolution.

Virtually conceding that no amendments will be adopted, the opposition managers are determined to qualify the ratifying resolution with reservations and Senator Lodge, the republican leader, declared Sunday night that a decisive majority would stand for reservations that would be "unequivocal and effective."

Privately the opposition leaders declared Mr. Lodge's claim was backed by an understanding amounting virtually to a complete agreement among the 49 republicans and six democrats to stand together for a reservation program. It was said not all of the details had been agreed upon though on general principles the 55 senators had been brought very close together.

Issue is in Doubt.

How far the remaining 41 senators will go in their opposition to reservation is an uncertain question even in the minds of some of their leaders.

They have stood unswervingly through the long fight for President Wilson's program of a ratification that would not require the treaty's resubmission to the other powers. But it is for the president himself to decide finally whether any reservations adopted do require such resubmission, and his illness has left the administration leaders somewhat in the dark.

There have been intimations that should reservations unacceptable to the administration be put into the ratification resolution, the administration forces would vote "no" on the ratification roll call, but their leaders are not ready to say how they will cross that bridge until they come to it. It would take only 33 votes to prevent ratification.

Will Hold Down Debate.

Senator Lodge Sunday night declared opponents of resolutions would be responsible for any further delay in senate action, indicating that the whip would be applied to hold down debate.

Quick action also is a slogan of the administration forces, but how far the leaders can go in stemming the tide of talk is virtually uncertain. Their hope is to get started Monday on the last of the committee amendment, proposing equalization of voting power in the league of nations, and to dispose of them within a day or two.

Senator Lodge's statement, made public after he had talked over the situation with a number of republican and democratic reservationists, follows:

"A decisive majority of the senate will vote for reservations, attached to the resolution of ratification, which will protect the peace, safety, sovereignty and independence of the United States.

"The one object of these senators is to Americanize the treaty and they believe that by so doing they will also serve the cause of general peace of the world. Whatever delay there may be in final action upon the treaty will be caused by those who are resisting the Americanization of the treaty by proper reservations—reservations at once unequivocal and effective."

Douglas Community.

Editor Courier:

On Sunday morning, October 15, at 2 o'clock, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lowe of the Douglas community and took as its victim little Louise, age 26 months, the only child of the above parents. Her death was a shock to all who knew her, as she was only sick a few short days.

Oh! how we will miss little Louise, for she was such a sweet, lovable child. She was loved by all who knew her and we dare say idolized by her lost of relatives, but she has left us for only a short time to bloom and shed her sweetness in heaven—to make our home going all the brighter.

Funeral services were conducted in the home of the grandfather, Mr. Albert Douglas at 4 o'clock, Rev. Harrison Rosser officiating, after which the little form was laid to rest in the family cemetery beneath a mass of beautiful flowers.

Movie Actress Demands $50,000 Charging Assault.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 11.—Suit for $50,000 damages has been filed against Eugene Walter, a playwright, by Miss Nina Whitmore, 20-year-old motion picture actress, who caused Walter's arrest on a charge of having climbed through the transom of her room and attacked her with his fists. Walter posted $1000 for his appearance in court Friday and declared that the "entire incident is one of profound regret."

But Walter did not appear. In his stead came a lawyer who asked that the time for pleading to Miss Whitmore's charge be postponed until Tuesday morning. Neither Miss Whitmore nor her representative was in court and the continuance was granted.

Walter is the husband of Charlotte Walker, Belasco's leading woman. Miss Whitmore, who was formerly of Ziegfeld's "Follies," came to Los Angeles three weeks ago under contract with a local film company to play leading woman opposite Jack Pickford, with whom Walter accused her of being on the night of their difficulty.

Miss Whitmore charges that the playwright struck her four times with his fist and that one of the blows knocked her unconscious.

"The attack on me was actuated by an insane jealousy," she said. "I have been tacitly engaged to Mr. Walter for more than a year and we were to have been married as soon as he could procure a divorce from his wife. They have been separated more than two years.

"I attended a social affair at the home of a film producer Wednesday evening without consulting Mr. Walter, or permitting him to accompany me.

"Yesterday morning he came to my room and demanded to be allowed to enter. I was not up and I refused to let him. I told him to come back in 15 or 20 minutes, but he climbed to the transom, and shattering the glass, entered.

"He charged me with having received other attentions from other men and then struck me without giving me a chance to explain. He struck me three more times and the last blow knocked me unconscious.

"When I recovered, the hotel manager was ordering Mr. Walter to leave the room, and he was asserting that we were engaged and he had the right to chastise me.

"I was home from the party to which Mr. Walter objected, not later than 11 o'clock and, I am told, during that time Mr. Walter paced the floor with a revolver, threatening to kill me. He was disarmed by a friend."

YESTERYEAR

Deport Times: W. D. Martin showed the Times man Monday two cotton tickets issued him in 1894. They were dated Oct. 15. One bale weighed 550 pounds and was sold for 4.65c, or a total of $25.52 for the bale. The other weighed 545 pounds and he was paid 4 7-8c, totaling $26.47. He sold his seed for $6 per ton. The prevailing price for picking then was 40c per 100 pounds, but Mr. Martin paid 45c to get all his cotton gathered as soon as possible. After paying his debts that year he had less than $30 left for his year's work.

Those were the revered old times of happy memory, when the low cost of living enabled the man with 10c to buy a beefsteak as wide as a windshield. And the farmer, especially the cotton farmer, was so happy he voted the populist ticket, tickled Wall street under the chin and participated merrily in the purchase of President Cleveland's government bonds. But, about two years after the time referred to by Mr. Martin, there came out of Nebraska a new prophet named Willum Jennings Bryan, who introduced a new cult, called free silver. It was affirmed by the new cultist and his disciples that the cost of living was too low and that in order to make everybody happy prices should be raised. This could be done by diluting the great American dollar, and such dilution could be brought about by the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the heaven-born ratio of sixteen to one. Undoubtedly Willum Jennings' theory was correct, and State Press, although not a financier or political economist at that time, was strong for him. But most people said free silver would ruin the country, so they swatted Mr. Bryan. Yet today he is in large part vindicated. The inflation he proposed has been accomplished another way. The cheap dollar he demanded has arrived. His plan had the besetting fault that it would have given the owners of silver mines a special and tremendously valuable privilege. That privilege has been diffused under the plan now in effect. But the general consequence is the same. The dollar has been cheapened, prices have risen, cotton is fetching seven times as much as in 1894, and beefsteak is so dear that two-bits worth can be carried home in a spectacle case. Still we are not happy. We are raising more Cain over high prices than we ever did over low prices. Then the people groaned; now they curse. It's a foolish world.—Galveston News.

SHORTAGE OF PAPER.

The newsprint paper situation would be very materially relieved, in the opinion of U. G. Baker, editor and publisher of the Evening Transcript, Susquehanna, Pa., if some of the big daily papers of the country would cut out some of the comic supplements and foolish features that, he believes, few readers care for. This is the way he comments on the matter in a recent editorial:

"There is a shortage of print paper, such as newspapers use in publishing their regular editions. There is a possibility that many newspapers will have to suspend publication for want of newsprint. The price at present is as high as during the war, and is increasing steadily. It is indeed precarious times for newspapers."

"The big city papers are in no danger as they maintain their own paper mills. They use enough paper for colored supplements and dampfoolishness every Sunday to supply the small newspapers with newsprint. Large editions, just volume regardless of quality, seems to be the aim of some publishers."

"It is these big publications which waste so much newsprint that are howling against the postal zone law. They want the small papers to help them repeal the law which makes it necessary for them to pay postage on their inflated publications."

"The newspapers of the country, by cutting down their publications, improving the quality at the expense of quantity, can do much toward bringing down prices. Let the big papers chop off the pages now used in each issue to tell about the heart-throbs of some hand painted woman, or the foolishness of some nincompoop, reducing the price in proportion, and they will set a good example for other lines of endeavor."

SERMONETTE OF TODAY.

Today I will turn a new page in the routine of life. I will do that which only too few men in this world of ours consider necessary in the general scheme of human existence.

I have tried to be good to my wife, in my more or less negligent manner, but today I will endeavor to be even better than I have been in the past.

I will remember that when she gave her young self to me she entered a life which was new to her, of which she possessed no adequate knowledge, a life which she expected to be one of joy, but one which might even be fraught with a succession of infinite sorrows and sadness.

I will remember that she came to me in her purity and innocence, trusting in my pledge at the altar to love, cherish and protect her as long as life may last.

I will redeem that pledge—not because it was a pledge but because she is MY WIFE, the one person on earth who should be and is dearer to me than all else in life.

I will be good and kind to her, thoughtful and considerate, gentle and loving, because HER FUTURE can be only what I MAKE IT.

Without her there would be no sunshine in my home, no brightness in my life, no joy in my contemplation of the future.

I think with inexpressible regret of the things which I might have done for her in the past—things which would have brought brightness to her eye and joy to her heart—those little things which were so easy to do and yet were not done.

But while life lasts it is never too late to bury the dark page and turn over a new one.

That I will do!
I will begin today—TODAY—because TOMORROW NEVER COMES!

POLITICAL PARTIES.

Political parties are essential to the health and vigor of this Republic. We should never become alarmed at the discussion of principles, old or new, so long as the great body of the people are moved by patriotic motives. There will arise from time to time men who will aspire to public office on platforms of doubtful regard for the best interests of the people. It is for the voters, at last, to decide, after an intelligent study of men and measures, as to what is best. We never need fear any great harm from agitation as long as intelligence and patriotism shall reign. Majorities will be just and minorities will have their rights so long as the Constitution is the guide. Do not forget the Constitution. It is greater, wiser, and better than any man or set of men. It is our fundamental law. It is the foundation upon which our entire governmental structure rests. It is our safe-guard against despots on the one hand and anarchy on the other. Mr. Gladstone, the greatest of English statesmen, declared that the American Constitution is the "most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man." Mr. Bryce, the author of the American Commonwealth, the wisest commentary ever written on American institutions said of our government created by the Constitution that it is "the first true Federal State founded on a complete and scientific basis."

The whole world regards the government of America as the wisest and best ever created by man. Let us preserve it. Let us teach our children what it rests upon, and persuade them to revere it as the most sacred of all earthly things.—R. T. Milner in Rusk County News.

The young man who learns to depend first upon himself will seldom have to appeal to others.

Clerks Desired in Government Service.

For the purpose of taking the 14th census, the government will employ approximately two hundred and seventy-five enumerators in this congressional district. This work begins January 2, 1920, but in order to secure a position as enumerator, it is necessary to make application at once. The work is neither hard nor unpleasant, and in so far as is possible, those who receive appointments will be placed at work in their own neighborhood and community. The compensation will average approximately six dollars per day for the period of employment. The qualifications are: good moral character, a legible hand, and ability to read and interpret the rules and regulations given. Political affiliations will have no weight or bearing on appointments, and the only preference that will be given will be to honorably discharged soldiers and sailors of the recent war.

The enumeration is restricted to population, agriculture, manufactures, forestry and mines, and in view of the fact that upon this enumeration will be based many governmental acts for the next ten years to come, the public organizations, commercial clubs and citizens interested in the welfare of their county and community should assist in every way possible to secure competent and worthy citizens of their communities to fill the positions as enumerators. All persons, male or female, between the ages of 18 and 70 years who are not physically disqualified, are eligible for the position.

Address all communications and applications to J. H. Painter, supervisor 7th district of Texas, Crockett, Texas.

I wish to thank each and every one of my patrons for their patronage during my residence of over fifteen years in Crockett. And to those friends who have assisted me financially when I needed their help and their influence in my behalf, when at times I have needed it most, I cannot find words to fully express my gratitude. I assure you that I shall always be grateful of past favors.

I wish to recommend to you, one and all, Mr. Tindall, one of my successors. He comes here well recommended. He is a man of family and worthy of your patronage and glad hand.

Will English doesn't need any introduction. He is a Houston county boy. Everybody knows Will English. He is a live wire in everything he goes into.

Give Tindall and English a trial and you will be satisfied. Respectfully,
It. John D. Friend.

We Keep Growing

Our increase in daily sales and a large number of new customers are enough evidence to show that we are growing day by day.

Despite the unprecedented conditions this year our daily sales are growing larger every day, in fact they are over thirty per cent more than they were a year ago this time.

Where the secret lies: It is in our method of doing business which satisfies the public, keeps our old customers from departing from us, and brings new ones to stay with us.

FOREIGNERS—GOOD AND BAD.

In this country we have millions of foreigners—English, French, German, Austrian, Italian, Belgian, Swedish, Norwegian, Greek, Turkish, Japanese, Chinese, and of every other nationality. The great majority of these foreigners are conscientious and law abiding citizens.

They work. There is also in this country another class of foreigners. They constitute the minority. They are not law abiding, and they are not citizens.

THEY AGITATE. And because of the wild eyed bolshevistic vaperings of these anarchistic wind jammers and destroyers our country of late has been in a constant state of turmoil.

This continual unrest and uncertainty are curtailing production, undermining efficiency and alienating the loyalty of many good men.

It must cease. Labor and capital must get together on a sane and reasonable working basis, where the division of profits will be fair to both sides.

But this will never be accomplished by allowing a braying minority to usurp the authority which belongs to a sane majority.

Men of intelligence and integrity do not care to take orders from illiterate and irresponsible foreigners whose only claims to leadership are a misguided conscience and a pair of leather lungs.

Brains, not noise, must prevail if we are to live in peace and plenty in this country.

GOOD WORDS AND BAD.

Often a good reputation is seriously impaired by a careless word or two said in jest and repeated in thoughtlessness. It is the same in this community as in all others.

Men and women can not guard too well their tongues in this respect. It is not good that our citizens be constantly exposed to the impairment of their good names because some other person, in a moment of thoughtlessness or in a spirit of vindictiveness, makes questionable allusions to them without the facts to substantiate such derogatory statements.

We are all interested in this town and the surrounding territory. We want to see it grow, and thrive, and blossom with prosperity. We want to see it a model community.

But it will never be other than just what we of the community make it.

If we insist on constantly hammering each other, we can only expect a battered wreck as the result.

But if we remember that in all people there is some good, and look to and speak of the best in life rather than the worst, it will have a wonderfully beneficial result.

If each of us will search out his own faults, and correct them, we will be doing quite as much as the Lord expects of us individually.

If a stone must be cast, withhold your arm. Let the constituted officials handle the case. It is better than an indiscriminate shower of missiles, whether they be verbal or otherwise. This is OUR town. Let us BOOST, and not shove.

LET PROSPERITY BEGIN AT HOME.

Community prosperity is, or is not, as we of the community make it.

Much money will be spent around here during the coming Christmas holidays. It is right that it should be so, for every normal person likes to partake of the joys of the yule time.

But where will that money go?

Will the profits remain here, and continue to circulate in our midst, and enrich our local community? Or will they go to foreign houses, and be forever lost to us who have produced them by our energy and our thrift?

The answer is in our own hands.

Our local merchants will be well equipped for supplying our demands.

The goods will be on their counters, where we can see them, judge as to their quality, and know what we get. And the name of a local dealer stands as a guarantee for everything he sells.

But if we buy abroad we lose from our midst both the dealer's cost price and his profits. We never see them again.

And our community is the poorer to the extent of the profits on every article not purchased at home.

Which shall it be? A constructive Christmas, or a destructive one? Prosperity should begin at home.

LET'S USE OUR BRAINS.

The world today is upside down, and America is not the least of the countries floundering in the throes of internal disturbances.

Each day sees an increase in the discord and unrest which prevails, but we of this community should not be drawn into the maelstrom.

We should take no step in this direction without due and careful consideration. Above all, we should never permit a boisterous minority to stampe the sane and sensible majority. We should preserve our American institutions in the true American manner.

We want production and prosperity, but we can expect neither unless right and justice prevail. And this we will have only when opposing interests come together in a calm and dispassionate manner for a fair and reasonable discussion of their differences.

The Lord gave us brains with the expectation that we would use them in the proper manner. He gave us understanding, that we might employ it in determining the good from the bad, the wise from the foolish.

Let's use the brains God gave us.

MAKE YOURSELF COMFORTABLE.

Statistics have proved that by economy and industry—exercised continually, not sporadically—any wage earner or salaried man can make himself financially independent long before he is old.

But how many of us do? The reason why we don't is that "a man only lives once." We have only one chance to be young, and if we don't get all of the fun out of life in our youth, our appetites may be dulled by the lapse of time before we are able to indulge them at leisure.

So we don't control our appetites. We refuse to blend our industry with consistent econ-

WOULD BARGAIN "INDIVIDUALLY"

Employers Take Stand.

Herbert E. Perkins of Chicago, acting as spokesman for the employers, said that the employers could not grant the right of collective bargaining with representatives not chosen from among their own employes.

Two resolutions on collective bargaining were before the conference when adjournment was taken Friday, and unless a compromise is reached before the conference is called to order tomorrow, which is improbable, each will be brought up for a vote.

The first proposition in order will be the Wheeler resolution, sponsored by the employers' group, recognizing the right to collective bargaining by employes but reserving to the employer the right "to deal or not to deal with men or groups of men who are not his employes and chosen by and from among them."

The labor delegates insist such a resolution would mean nothing if adopted since it would give the employers unrestricted choice of representatives to deal with workmen on industrial issues while limiting the employes to their own ranks, thus eliminating the officials of the national and subordinate labor organizations.

All elements of the conference are agreed that the labor wing will defeat the Wheeler measure if it comes to a vote.

No Hope of Agreement.

The Russell-Endicott measure will then be next in order. The resolution would pledge the conference to recognize the right of the employes to bargain collectively and to select their representatives without restriction.

The employers have repeatedly voiced emphatic opposition to this proposal which has the support of the public and labor delegates. Since an adverse vote of any one group would defeat, again there is practically no hope of the Russell-Endicott measure being adopted.

An air of pessimism was evident when the committee adjourned its meeting Sunday. The differences between the employers and labor groups, in the opinion of many of the delegates, seem fairly irreconcilable.

Suggestions that the conference adopt the new tactics and eliminate collective bargaining from consideration temporarily, have met decided opposition.

my. We go the pace in our youth, and feel the lack of affluence in the decline of life.

If we could make the two virtues—industry and economy—inherent, permanent and universal in this town, we as a community would then indeed set a pace—a different pace—a pace of prosperity and happiness which would shed the radiance of peace and joy from the beginning to the end of life.

And such a thing is possible right in this community—in this town—among ourselves.

Truly great persons are often insignificant in their own estimation. But no so with the pewee who apes the giant.

When you want a thing and haven't got it, the obvious thing is to go out and get it. It will not come to you.

If you would serve as an example to others, you must see that no one forges ahead of the example.

The wise man permits others to judge as to his worth. The fool appraises his own.

Good resolutions are all right, provided the resoluter resolves as he resolves.

"I am opposed to a policy or practice which unnecessarily limits productions, increases costs, deprives the workmen from receiving the highest wages, resulting from voluntary and reasonable effort, hinders production or advancement, in accordance with merit, or otherwise interferes with the freedom of individual action.

"As unorganized labor, which embraces the vast majority of working people, has no special representation in this conference, I deem it appropriate to say that all labor should receive due consideration and that it is the obligation and ought to be the pleasure of employers at all times and in every respect, to treat justly and liberally, all employes, whether unorganized or organized."

Stirman-Lundy.

The following mention of the marriage of a north Texas girl to a prominent Crockett young man is taken from a Wichita Falls paper:

An exceptionally pretty home wedding took place Saturday evening, October 18, at the home of the bride's parents when Miss Geneva Stirman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. McCleskey of Iowa Park, became the bride of G. Brinson Lundy, Rev. R. C. Foster reading the beautiful ring ceremony. The bride and her attendants were gowned in autumn modes of rich, dark colors, while the groom and his groomsmen wore the conventional black. The Mendelssohn wedding march was used for the professional.

The wedding was followed by an informal reception at the McCleskey home, after which Mr. and Mrs. Lundy left for a short visit with the groom's parents. On their return to the city they will be at home at 1916 Ninth street.

Saturday's wedding is of unusual interest locally, both the bride and the bridegroom being prominently connected in this city and very popular in their circle of friends.

The bride is the only daughter of Mrs. Margaret Stirman-McCleskey, a long time resident of Wichita Falls. She is a graduate from the local high school and an ex-student of Fairmont seminary.

The groom is connected with the firm of Baum & Gardner and is considered one of the most promising young business men of the city. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Lundy of Crockett.

A large number of friends are united in congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Lundy.
