VACF Will Meet Here Thursday Night

An organizational meeting of the Parmer-Bailey County Chapter of the Vietnamese-American Children's Fund, will be held Thursday, (Tonight) March 7, at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the Muleshoe State Bank.

Orphaned children are left in the aftermath of all major natural catastrophes and in the debris of the awful destruction of modern wars. The long, intense conflict in Vietnam and the intimate association of our troops with the Vietnamese left there thousands of orphans of American parentage.

Many veterans brought their children home; others, separated by war and military fiat, have sought their children in vain. Existence of many of the children is unknown to their fathers; some fathers simply care not.

The children remain, orphaned by death, abandoned or with mothers only and no means of survival. From the roads, jungles and the litter of obliterated villages and the trash piles of ruined cities, a pitiful few have been taken into over-crowded orphanages, fostered or joyfully adopted.

The VACF, Inc., is a publically supported, non-profit organization contracted with the Vietnamese Ministry of Social Welfare to gather and to care for these children. The VACF is to feed, medicate, guide and provide them with an education in order that they can become a positive force in the world's future rather than a part of the eternal wreckage of war. For more information on this Children's Fund, attend the meeting Thursday night at the Muleshoe State Bank. Mrs. Leon Smith is chairperson of the Bailey-Parmer County Chapter.

Council Levys New City Tax Increase

An ordinance levying taxes for the use and support of the Municipal Government of Muleshoe was passed Tuesday at the regular meeting of the City Council.

A tax was levied upon all property, real, personal and mixed, of $1.40 on each $100 valuation of property.

Taxes increased from $1.30 per $100 valuation to $1.40 per $100 valuation. The increase is a result of the increased cost of all consumables, equipment, supplies and material; the need for pay increases in order that City employees may be able to more closely meet the increasing cost of living; and because of the requirements being placed on the City of Muleshoe by the State and Federal Government concerning solid waste disposal and water quality standards.

City Manager Jim Rankin reported that if service charges such as water, sewer and sanitation had not been reconstructed to cover actual costs, the tax would have to have been between $1.70 and $2.00 per $100 valuation.

An ordinance approving and adopting the budget for the City of Muleshoe for the fiscal year 1974-75 was passed at the City Council meeting.

The sum of $348,454 was appropriated out of the General Fund for payment of operating expenses and capital outlay.

The sum of $72,193 was appropriated out of the General Debt Service Fund for the purpose of paying the accruing interest and redeeming the serial bonds and warrants as they mature.

The sum of $170,762 was appropriated out of the Water and Sewer Revenue Fund for the payment of operating expenses, capitol outlay and debt services for the Water and Sewer Revenue Fund.

It was reported that expansion of services is primarily limited to the Police Department with a projected complement of the Chief and five patrolmen. One additional vehicle has been budgeted in order that sufficient coverage can be maintained during peak crime periods.

Easter Seal Letters Being Delivered

Easter Seal Appeal letters are being delivered this week in Bailey County according to Jimmie Crawford, the Easter Seal Representative of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas. As Representative, Crawford serves as contact representative for disabled persons needing Easter Seal rehabilitation services and also serves as Treasurer of the Easter Seal Appeal in Bailey County.

The Easter Seal Society offers physical and occupational therapy, speech and hearing programs, and special equipment loans to enable disabled persons to make the best use of their abilities to overcome handicaps. These services are financed by the annual Easter Seal Appeal.

The Society also finances public education programs, provides scholarships for training of professional personnel to staff rehabilitation centers, and helps provide for national research into the causes and cures of crippling conditions.

Crawford pointed out that all these programs are important if Texas is going to continue to provide the best of rehabilitation services for its own disabled citizens.

During 1973, the Texas Easter Seal Society provided treatment and services for 20,570 children and adults who were in need of assistance. Easter Seal services are available to any disabled person who can benefit from help provided by the Easter Seal Society, and who do not qualify for any other assistance, Crawford added. The Easter Seal Campaign will continue through Easter Sunday, April 14.

The experimental predator control program for 44 Texas counties is now in operation. County agents are responsible for setting up training schools in approved counties.

To be eligible to participate in the program, your county must be approved; then you must attend a training school relating to use of the M-44 sodium cyanide spring ejection device.

Counties in Texas eligible for the program are Cottle, King, Dickens, Borden, Scurry, Mitchell, Taylor, Callahan, Midland, Glasscock, Sterling, Coleman, Crane, Upton, Jeff Davis, Pecos, Presidio, Kinney, Uvalde, Medina, Bexar, McCulloch, San Saba, Mills, Stephens, Erath, Brown, Comanche, Hamilton, Bosque, Coryell, Lampasas, Bell, McLennan, Burnet, Williamson, Hood, Milam, Jim Wells, Nueces, Kieberg, Kenedy, Brooks, and Willacy.

The Texas Department of Agriculture is responsible for the program on a state level. Other agencies cooperating include the Texas Agriculture Experiment Station, and the Texas Rodent and Predator Control Service as well as the Extension Service. The project is in cooperation with the Environmental Protection Agency.

Producers who participate in the experiment must keep records of all results with the M-44. Violation of the regulations can result in loss of eligibility for a county. The program will continue through June, 1975.

Further details may be obtained from the Texas Department of Agriculture or your county agent.

CATTLE feeding in Texas has shown a resumption of increasing numbers, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service notes. In Texas, there were 2,340,000 cattle and calves on feed for slaughter markets as of February 1. This is six per cent above a year ago and six per cent above the number on feed a month ago.

Placements into Texas feedlots during January totaled 467,000 head which is a gain of 44 per cent above January of 1973 and 69 per cent more than the previous month.

However, marketings of fat cattle during January totaled 332,000 head, which is six per cent below a year ago.

Nationwide, the number of cattle on feed in the seven major cattle feeding states- Texas, Arizona, California, Colorado, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas- totaled 9,632,000 head. This is a three per cent increase from a month ago but four per cent less than those on feed a year ago at this time.

SALES for all kinds of livestock at Texas auctions compared to a year ago and a month ago are higher. Cattle and calves marketed through auctions during January were 54 per cent above a year ago and 17 per cent above a month ago.

Sheep sales were 37 per cent above a year ago and 90 per cent above a month ago. Goats sold during January were 25 per cent above both last year and last month.

Hogs sold during January were seven per cent above a year ago and 31 per cent above last month.

JANUARY hatchings of egg-type chickens and broiler chickens are well above totals of a year ago. Egg-type hatchings are up 31 per cent and broiler chicks hatched showed a 10 per cent increase over a year ago.

The heavy breed poultry hatch for January is 18 per cent higher than a year ago.

Egg production in Texas during January was one per cent above a year ago but four per cent below December.

CONGRESSMAN

Bob Price

18th Congressional District

The U.S. Senate voted this past week to extend the energy shortage when it passed legislation designed to force a reduction in the price of crude oil, and the House, at this writing, appeared ready to follow suit this week.

The majority of my colleagues in the Congress seem to be acting out of panic instead of good sense, seeking short-term convenience instead of real solutions. They seem to think they can legislate an end to the energy shortage. Actually, passage of the Emergency Energy Act in the form it passed the Senate would extend the shortage. Over the past years, the Congressional majority has acted unwisely in passing measures which have removed much of the profit incentive from a very high risk business. At the same time, the Congress has refused to pass necessary legislation, like the bills I have repeatedly introduced to provide domestic exploration incentive and to deregulate natural gas pricing, which would have encouraged the increased domestic energy supply which consumers now need.

As a case in point, the Congress voted in 1969 to reduce the oil depletion allowance. This increased the industry taxes between $500 million and $600 million during each of the next two years. Also, the industry spent some $500 million less in 1970, and again in 1971, then it had spent in 1969 on domestic exploration. In other words, the Congressional majority took from the industry the funds which it had been spending in seeking new domestic energy supplies. Now, when those supplies would have been on line, we do not have them.

Apparently, the Congress has still not learned the obvious lesson: we can't force profit incentives down and encourage increased production at the same time.

The Emergency Energy Act, which the House of Representatives was set to consider Monday, would permit a two-year postponement of the auto emission control requirements scheduled for 1975, but other provisions far outweigh this one.

The most controversial part of the bill limits the price of crude oil to an average $5.25 per barrel, which is the price for crude under the price controls imposed last year. The price controls, however, did provide a margin of incentive for getting more crude out of the ground, because the controls contain exemptions for marginal production "stripper" wells and for new producing wells. The bill passed by the Senate, however does not contain these exemptions, and, if passed, I fear that the crude oil price rollback will only deal another blow to domestic exploration incentive which, in turn, will only extend the shortage and cause more difficulties for consumers.

The bill also plays politics with the price provision by allowing the President, if he chooses, to raise the average price of crude as high as $7.09 a barrel. The majority in the Congress feels that the President will be forced to opt for this higher price. Then, they will be able to blame him for the action. This is an old game the Congressional majority has played for too many years: give away power to the Executive Branch and then complain when the President is forced to use the power he has been given.

This nation must make decided and rapid progress toward energy self-sufficiency if we intend to remain a leading world power, not subject to foreign economic blackmail. To attain self-sufficiency by 1980, this country will have to decrease its annual growth rate of consumption from 3.6% to 2%, and, at the same time, increase its annual growth rate of domestic production from 3% to 4.7%. We can't achieve this goal if the Congress continues to discourage domestic production activities.

Let The Sun Shine Through

In an effort to bring to the citizens of Lubbock and the gospel music, "LET THE SUN SHINE THROUGH" will be presented by the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra on March 16 at 8:00 p.m. The second annual Sacred Music Festival with its all new theme and some of the best gospel performers around, has been relocated in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium and will be emceed by Eddy Nicholson.

Audience participation is a major feature of the Festival in its attempt to bring back the old feeling of community found when people sing together. Featured performers will be Dino, gospel pianist, Richard Campbell, and the Oral Roberts University Singers. The Lubbock Symphony Orchestra will accompany the performers and audience sing-along and conducting will be shared by William A. Harrod, conductor of the Symphony, and Tony Catanzariti, Music Director at Oral Roberts University.

Dino, whose last name is impossible to pronounce and consequently seldom used, comes to Lubbock with a reputation established through repeated appearances with Kathrine Kulhman on her T.V. show. He has recorded several sacred albums, including "The Greatest of Miracles," which was awarded as the best religious instrumental album of 1970. A graduate of Julliard, Dino left the field of classical concert performance to concentrate his talent in the gospel area. Along with Dino will be featured the Oral Roberts University Singers, a group of 40 college students who travel around the country singing gospel music. Their youth and vitality will be well reflected in the Ralph Carmichael arrangements planned as part of their repertoire here.

Lubbock and area citizens already know Richard Campbell who has been singing and directing choirs in Lubbock for several years. He appeared in the 1973 Sacred Music Festival and is back by popular demand.

Tickets for the Festival may be ordered by mail through March 9. If ordering by mail, please send check, self-addressed and stamped envelope to Lubbock Symphony office, 1721 Broadway, 79401, being sure to specify number of tickets and price range. All tickets must be paid for before they will be mailed. Ticket prices are $4.00, $3.00 and $2.00 (second tier of the balcony only) with children under 12 one half price. After March 9, tickets may be purchased at the Symphony office. For further information call 762-4707.

TV COMMENTARY

By John Smiley

AN ABC SPECIAL to be aired on March 11 is called "Portrait: A Man from Independence." It's about the late President Harry S. Truman during the time when he was presiding judge of Jackson County, Mo. Various scenes in the picture show characteristics seen later in Truman as President—his loyalty, honesty, guts, great affection for his mother and wife, and great pride in his daughter.

CBS DAYTIME 90 is an attempt to step out of daytime TV's almost total preoccupation with game shows, soap operas and situation comedy reruns. The 90-minute romantic melodramas will emphasize action in contrast to the tear trickling, slow soaps.

IF THE DAYTIME 90 experiment is successful, CBS probably will crank them out regularly next fall, with dramas three days a week, alternating with soap-types two days a week.

APPROXIMATELY 55 of pro-football's top players will compete in an "All-Pro Olympiad" in the Orange Bowl on CBS March 17. The game will consist of ten events, including a blocking sled race.

IRWIN ALLEN ("The Poseidon Adventure") is embarking on a TV-movie project called "International World Premiere" for NBC. In keeping with the trend of TV programming, he plans to make crisis movies. For example, the world will blow up, or California will sink into the Pacific, or the North Pole will melt and drown us all in 200 feet of water.

The Odd Fellows had a fish fry Thursday evening. All members of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs and guests were invited. A social hour was attended by 27 members present.

Market Report

COLLEGE STATION--Poultry products may highlight grocery choices this week, according to one observer.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, reported economical prices on fryer chickens, turkeys (whole bird and parts), and eggs.

Other meat values will include bone-in hams, ham portions and picnics. Also, Boston butt roasts and steaks, end-cut loin roasts and chops.

"Best values will appear on arm and blade pot roasts and steaks, chuck roasts and steaks, ground beef and boneless stew meat."

Turning to fruit counters, the specialist listed items in good supply with "pleasing" prices as grapefruit, Temple oranges, bananas, apples and pineapples. Also, strawberries, tangelos and tangerines.

"By-the-bag is the most economical way to buy the citrus fruits, if that amount can be used satisfactorily."

"Fresh vegetables are in more generous supply this winter than a year ago because of increased acreage planted," Mrs. Clyatt said.

"No serious shortages of the important fresh vegetable crops have shown up thus far, but onion and potato supplies aren't as large now as they are in most other seasons."

Among the most economical items are cabbage, carrots, broccoli, cooking greens, celery, bulk turnips and rutabagas, she said, adding that fresh asparagus is available at first-of-the-season prices.

CONSUMER WATCHWORDS: Saving a few pennies on each item makes many dollars every year.

If food prices seem too high, it pays to watch pennies, shop for advertised specials and change buying habits.

The meeting marks the 70th Annual Convention of the nation-wide general farm organization. About 50 Texans are expected to be in attendance.

The theme for the National Farmers Union Convention is, "1974: Turning Point For Family Agriculture." The issues that will be emphasized during the four-day meeting include the economy and international trade, energy and the environment, and national land and food policy. Some of the state and national figures who will be addressing the convention include, Wisconsin Governor Patrick Lucey; Dr. Barry Commoner, Director for the Center for the Biology of Natural Systems at Washington University in St. Lewis; White House trade specialist Harold B. He said that the Milwaukee Convention has a serious note that will enable Farmers Union members to "equip themselves to do a better job for agriculture."

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,
I have one daughter who was married a year ago and there are things I would like to tell her but I know it would be a waste of time as young people now-a-days feel that they know all of the answers. One of these things is that a wife can be too independent. It is man's nature to feel that he is the protector and provider for the family and he will really have a much better opinion of himself if he knows this is expected of him. The woman who competes with him will find that what she does financially for the family is not appreciated but taken for granted. What do you think about this? Do you agree with me?

Experienced--Ky.
Answer:
There are times when some men need a helping hand in providing for the family but circumstances should govern the time a woman spends outside of the home. A woman with small children, whose husband can provide for his family, will find it much more profitable to devote herself to guiding those children lives and making a happy, secure home life for the family than having the extra dollars to be acquired by outside work. This doesn't mean that she shouldn't have help or should spend all of her time with children. This could be very frustrating. Where the children grow to be school age, a part time job can be rewarding.

Couples without children need outside work unless the wife is very domestically inclined or the couple does a great deal of entertaining in a business way.

For the couple who needs the extra money a wife can earn in order to make ends meet—that is a different situation. The best plan she can devise is to see that the children are left with a capable, kind person and hope her husband will not resent having his role as a family provider diminished.

Louisa.

Many Texas Drivers Refusing To Obey New Speed Limits

Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said today he is disturbed by many complaints by Texas motorists about drivers refusing to obey the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, and has directed DPS troopers to intensify their enforcement efforts.

"When the new law went into effect January 20 of this year," he said, "our surveys indicated a high degree of voluntary compliance on the part of Texas drivers."

"But since that time, we have noticed that motorists, or at least many of them, have been gradually 'inching' up their speeds on Texas highways. Consequently, our troopers have been increasing their volume of speeding citations, and will have to continue to intensify their efforts until a more reasonable degree of voluntary compliance is achieved."

Speir said he has received numerous reports by motorists who are complying with the new law who are frightened and angered by others who pass them at speeds dangerously above the legal limit, and still others who "tailgate" them when they can't pass for one reason or another. "We commend those drivers who are cooperating in the state and national effort to reduce accidents, save lives, and at the same time conserve fuel by driving within the legal limits," Speir said. "And we solicit the cooperation of those who would forget or ignore the dangers posed to themselves and others by dangerous and illegal speeds on the highways of our state. "We would remind everyone that consistently through the years, excessive speed is involved in more fatal accidents than any other single factor."

Short term interest rates have tumbled sharply in the past 60 days. The prime rate, which was at 10% has dropped to 8 3/4% and some experts believe that it will drop to the 6-7% level before climbing again. Much of the decline has been the result of Federal Reserve monetary policy which has been used to ease the availability of money in order to prevent a recession in 1974 and to get the economy moving upward once more.

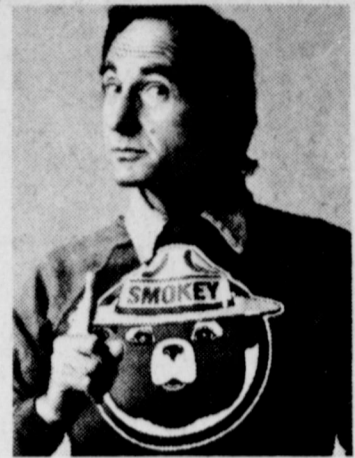

Economists who study the figures are saying that this is only a temporary dip in interest rates and that the long term trend is just like the price of every other commodity which we use in our economy—up.

There are several powerful forces behind the continuing rise in interest rates. One of the strongest forces is inflation. Our economy has had a built in inflation factor ever since the end of World War II. Lenders, in an effort to offset the wash-out of the value of their dollars which they lend out for 20 or 30 years, add an "inflation factor" to the interest rate they charge. This helps protect them from the loss in purchasing power of the dollar which they will get back when the loan comes due 20 or 30 years from now.

Another primary factor in higher interest rates is that the money supply has not grown fast enough to provide the dollars which the economy needs. And, on top of that, the demand for capital to finance U.S. industry has grown faster than the retained earnings which industry plows back into plant and equipment and the individual savings that supply the funds to meet this need. So, the money lenders are in a sellers market because there is so much competition for funds. All of the major U.S. industries, such as railroads, steel, chemical, oils and utilities must raise massive sums of money during the next 10 years. These demands have come from many sources: businesses expanding capacity, anti-pollution controls for industry, military expenditures, government financing of highways, hospitals and schools. Meanwhile, the supply of funds has not expanded anything like the expansion in industry and the growth in business expenditures. Personal savings still run 6% to 7% of personal income, about where they were in the early 1950s.

The combination of continual boom in capital spending by U.S. industry and a sluggish rate of personal savings has kept constant upward pressure on interest rates. Higher interest rates guarantee, to some extent at least, that funds go first to the investments that offer the highest return. Whatever the outcome of the arguments among economists, all the factors point in the same direction: continued higher interest rates.

When someone spends thirty years reminding people to be careful with fire, and he does it for no other reason than to save our forests, he makes a lot of friends. Even if he's just a bear.

The Consumer Alert

By John L. Hill Attorney General

AUSTIN -- Every consumer has seen or heard advertisements that say something like "regularly $10, now only $8.99" or "Two for the price of one."

These are types of price comparison, a widely used and effective method of advertising. In price comparison advertising, the merchant compares his current prices for goods or services with past or future prices or the prices offered by others in order to show cost savings to consumers.

Accurately used price comparisons can assist consumers in making purchasing decisions, since they show exactly how much can be saved on a particular item during a special period. Most merchants use price comparisons to advertise legitimate cost reductions. A few, though, may base their price comparison advertising on inflated or arbitrary prices, which is misleading to the consumer.

For example, an ad may say "Lawn mowers reduced from $129.95, this is an accurate and helpful use of price comparison to advertise a sale. However, if the lawn mowers always sell at $99.95, this is misleading and illegal, according to lawyers in my Consumer Protection Division.

It is also misleading and illegal if the retailer boosted his price to $129.95 for just a few days prior to the sale, because the former price at which an item is advertised must have been in effect for a reasonable time on a regular basis before the sale. It may be deceptive if the merchandise advertised at the "lower" current price differs from the merchandise previously sold at the indicated "regular" price.

Some retailers advertise a "manufacturer's" or "distributor's list price" or "suggested retail price" and compare it with their own lower price. But before a retailer uses such a comparison in an ad, he should find out if the list price is really the price regularly charged by the majority of retail stores in his community.

His ad could be deceptive if he uses a list price that appreciably exceeds the highest price at which most sales are made in his community.

It is also misleading to use a statement such as "reduced to $11.99" if the regular price was about $12, because most consumers would think a "reduced" price indicated a more substantial reduction.

The Texas Deceptive Trade Practices - Consumer Protection Act categorizes false or misleading statements of fact about the reasons for, existence of, or amount of price reductions as a deceptive and illegal trade practice.

Consumers or advertisers who may be in doubt as to whether a particular price comparison is misleading or deceptive should consult attorneys in our Consumer Protection Division or talk with their county or district attorney or a private attorney.

Major appliances for the home can be major strains on the family budget when replacement time rolls around.

Since many consumers now are even more cost-conscious than in past years, it pays to know what to look for in order to get the best appliance value for your money and your needs.

Attorneys in my Consumer Protection Division say that alert, informed consumers who comparison shop for both goods and financing before buying, and who read and understand the contract and warranty before problems later with unsatisfactory products or service.

They advise consumers to try the following before purchasing a major appliance:

The range is a good example of one such appliance where many recent developments have resulted in a profusion of special features.

Ranges can now be gas or electric, freestanding units or cooktops and wall ovens. Cooktops can be traditional burner types or heat-resistant smooth glass ones.

Ovens may have one of two kinds of self-cleaning capabilities: They can be pyrolytic ones, which remove soil at high temperatures over 500 degrees, or catalytic ones, which remove soil at regular cooking temperatures.

Other features you may encounter in ranges are automatic timers, thermostatically controlled cooktops or burners, infra-red boilers, over rotisseries, warming trays, griddles, microwave ovens, and automatic food probes that turn off the oven or hold food warm when it reaches a preset temperature.

So you can see that an accurate analysis of your family's food preferences and living habits is necessary to help you decide if such features are desirable.

Perhaps you can get by nicely without many of the extras on more expensive models, thereby saving money. Then again, if you need those features and don't have them, you may expend far more time and effort to make do with a range that is under-equipped for your needs.

If you have difficulties after a sale with a product, a contract, or a warranty, first try to iron out the problem with the management of the store where you bought the item. Most likely, every effort will be made to come to a mutually satisfactory agreement.

Cotton Yields Down From 1972

Cotton yields in the 1973 High Plains Research Foundation's cotton variety tests in regular 40-inch rows ranged from 846 pounds per acre to 518 pounds and averaged 647 pounds per acre, Douglas Owen, senior agronomist, has announced.

This is slightly lower than our 1972 test yields, Dr. Owen pointed out. "Overall, considering that we had more varieties this year, the cotton variety test yields were more uniform this year, than in 1972," he said.

The test was irrigated once on June 22 on alternate rows, Dr. Owen said that it should have received one more irrigation in August because by the end of that month, it was showing moisture stress and probably would have responded to another alternate row irrigation.

Of the 49 varieties in the test, Dr. Owen said there was no significant difference in yields of the top 24 varieties. "Several experimental lines of various seed companies performed well and we'll probably be seeing these varieties released in the near future," he said.

The Foundation's double-row cotton variety test was the most successful of the past three years, Dr. Owen said. "We've profited from the previous years' experience and the weather was much better last year," he noted.

In the narrow row tests, the cotton varieties were planted two rows on a regular 40-inch bed. Compared were 36 varieties or experimental strains. The varieties averaged 589 pounds per acre with the top of 761 pounds to a low of 470 pounds.

The narrow row cotton also stressed for moisture in late August. "Also high plant populations contributed to moisture stress and a nitrogen deficiency was becoming evident before harvesting," Dr. Owen said.

He also noted that some of the varieties yielded higher in narrow rows than in regular single row tests.

Complete cotton variety test results will be reported in the 1973 annual High Plains Research Foundation report to be released in March.

"Big Textile Push in Texas" is the title of an article in the February issue of America's Textiles Reporter-Bulletin "which ties in perfectly with the theme of our upcoming annual meeting," notes Donald A. Johnson, Executive Vice President of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

The "big push" is exactly what we have in mind on the High Plains, Johnson said, "and while the move is already underway we expect it to gain additional momentum with the full airing of the area's textile potential at our annual meeting on March 19." The meeting is to be held at Van's Catering Service just East of Lubbock on the Slaton Highway. The program is built around the creation of new markets for High Plains cotton, primarily in open-end spinning mills both on the High Plains and elsewhere.

The Reporter-Bulletin article points out "... an influx of textile mills, to locate cheek by jowl with the sprawling cotton fields, would provide encouragement and solidity to the cotton growing community as well as some very real advantages to the mills themselves." It goes on to say that Texas growers, particularly in the High Plains area around Lubbock, have been most anxious to develop additional end uses for the particular type cotton that flourishes in the High Plains.

Recent research information has found that High Plains low micronaire cottons produce a stronger more uniform yarn when processed by open-end spinning than when processed by conventional ring spinning, and the yarn from High Plains cotton is said to be especially suitable in denim production.

In agreement with what PCG has been saying all along, the textile magazine article stated "Confirmation of these findings could open the door to huge new markets for High Plains cotton in coming years."

Market demand for denim fabric for use in jeans is expected to continue strong both in the U.S. and abroad for some time to come. Textile analysts have projected there will be a 42 percent growth in the sales of jeans and jeans-cut trousers between 1971 and 1977.

One textile mill using open-end machinery, Southwest Textiles, is already in operation at Abernathy, and two other such mills are in advanced planning stages.

The Reporter-Bulletin article singled out labor availability, proximity of suitable raw materials, availability of less expensive natural gas, the Texas Right to Work Law, and nominally priced real estate and tax concessions from local governmental authorities as a few of the assets which will attract additional textile industry to the High Plains.

"PCG hopes to exploit all of these advantages plus the advantages of our kind of cotton in open-end spinning mills," Johnson said, "to the end that within not too many years a significant volume of textile production will be located on the Texas High Plains."

The meeting will begin at 2:00 p.m. with adjournment contemplated at about 5:30.

Hightower, Sherman Named As Chairmen

AUSTIN -- Northwest Texas got two chairmanships out of only 13 available when officials of the 1974 Constitutional Convention were announced by Convention President Price Daniel, Jr., and Vice-President A.M. Alkin, Jr.

Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo was named chairman of the Committee on Style and Drafting, and Sen. Jack Hightower of Vernon was selected to head the Convention Administration Committee.

In addition, Sherman will serve on the Executive Branch Committee while Hightower was appointed to the Education Committee.

Delegates to the convention are the 181 members of the Texas Legislature. With the exception of Sen. Tati Santiesteban of El Paso, Sherman and Hightower were the only West Texans named to play key roles in the convention.

The Committee on Style and Drafting, which Sherman will chair, is charged with the responsibility of putting the language of the proposed Constitution in final form, and will perhaps be one of the hardest working panels during the convention.

Hightower, a member of the Board of Regents at Baylor University and former Regent of Midwestern University, was chosen for the Education Committee because of his expertise in the field of education. Sherman said his assignment as chairman for style and drafting "is one of the greatest challenges a public official can have, because the language of the Constitution will have much to do with its acceptance by the people as a lasting document."

Hightower commented that "because of the critical situation facing funding of public school education in Texas, I am especially pleased to have been assigned to help author the proposed new Constitution's language on education."
