JOHN D. McCALL is a candidate for governor and announces that he is neither a Hogg or a Clark democrat.

THE DALLAS NEWS continues to pour hot shot into Senator David Hill of New York. The senator will get awful mad we fear.

WE hope it will not take anything like 18 years for our esteemed friend the Call, to learn that it is contrary to the usages of polite journalism to personate a rival editor.

MAYOR W. C. BONNOR of Dallas, resigned last week and the city council ordered a special election for mayor.

OLLIE Bowles, who was sent to the penitentiary for three years, from Fort Worth for assault with intent to murder Charley Vincent, was pardoned by Gov. Hogg last week through the petitions of influential friends.

Sugar, coal and iron ore go on the free list. A strong effort was made in the House last week to impose a duty on each of those articles but the free trade spirit prevailed and they go free.

There are cliques and clans and wheels within wheels, at work to defeat the Wilson bill or so amend it as to change its purpose altogether.

THE protective democrat is still in congress. He is almost as strong as he was in the days of Sam Randall. He is a curious anomaly in American politics.

It is hardly in good taste for an absolutely nonpolitical, and wholly independent paper, to give publications to the most ridiculous caricatures of some of the best men in the state—ex-governor, O. M. Roberts for instance.

THE tariff question is one on which there seems to be no middle ground, no happy medium, which the wisdom of the national legislatures can discover.

Without exception the opinion is given that 1894 will be a year of prosperity. The causes of the panic of 1893 are said to have been abnormal—a condition coming without the usual warning symptoms.

Nothing but the idea of protection sustains the tariff at this great day. It would go in a holy minute if supported only by the necessity of a tariff to raise revenue.

As we said at the outset we fall to see any middle ground. If protection is a good thing we can have too much of it but if it is a bad thing it ought to be swept from the statute books of the country.

The Populist time.

The unorthodox and eloquent populists of Texas are feeling their imagination upon the prospect of two full democratic tickets in the coming election.

We think their hope is founded upon the merits. The shipping staples of Lewelling of Kansas and Penney of Oregon are before the Texas people and they are by no means ready to turn over their interests to the keeping of a Texas Lewelling or Penney.

Another card the populists of Texas are playing is the free silver argument to catch those democrats who favor the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

There is an unfortunate disagreement in the ranks of the democracy on the financial question. We of the South and West favor bimetalism in its broadest and truest sense, the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver—those of the north and east do not seem to agree with us—so a party question is presented, one which we believe can and should be settled in the bosom of the party, without resorting to any other party or any party division to do so.

While we may not be entirely satisfied with the present administration, and though we may widely differ in opinion from those in the highest authority, yet we see in all this no reason why a good democrat should abandon his faith and follow the ignis fatuus of populism with its socialistic dogmas and un-democratic beliefs.

The old saying, "jumping from the frying pan into the fire" would certainly apply to the democrats who would take such a step. Let no one jump to the conclusion that the democratic party is utterly disorganized.

There are yet true prophets in Israel, those who have not bent the knee to Baal nor worshipped at his shrine—such men as Morgan, Harris, Vest, Cole, Vance and Daniel—true soldiers of the people—who still hold the banner of democracy aloft and defy the onslaught of enemies without and the mutiny of those within.

The Wilson bill, as agreed upon by the Democratic members of the committee continued the McKinley bounty on sugar, though providing for a reduction of one-fourth of a cent a pound each year until the bounty should cease entirely.

The Louisiana Democrats demanded that a duty be put on sugar, and joined with the Republican members for obtaining protection to sugar. Upon an issue made on this point, congress not only refused to agree to the demand of the sugar Democratic members and the Republicans for a protective tariff, but went further than the Wilson committee had thought of going, and put sugar on the free list without a bounty.

The Wilson bill put wool on the free list, beginning with next October. The wool men fought it, and congress promptly put wool on the free list as soon as the bill should be passed.

Hogg on Harmony.

Last Saturday Hon. J. S. Hogg, governor of Texas, made a speech in the auditorium of the city hall at Dallas, in the interest of democratic peace and harmony.

He showed that the issues upon which the party split at Houston have now been settled by legislation and he proposed that the party reorganize on the basis of representation of 1890, ignoring all that has passed since then.

He announced that he is now completely out of politics and would not accept a seat in the senate if it were tendered him.

His speech was listened by a large and representative audience, among whom were all of the politicians of the state. Nearly all who heard it were well pleased—only a few of the ultra Clark men said it was not fair to all.

It is now safe to assert that the party will get together and have as harmonious a convention as it ever had in Texas. The disturbing elements will all be out and there will be no reason why the party may not thoroughly amalgamate and gain next fall, one of its old-time victories. So mote it be.

Congress Means Business. It is clearly apparent that the Democratic sentiment of the country in favor of tariff reform is far in advance of the courage of the party's representatives in congress and it is apparent that the congressional representation is in advance of the committee on ways and means that had in charge the preparation of a tariff bill.

The Wilson bill, as agreed upon by the Democratic members of the committee continued the McKinley bounty on sugar, though providing for a reduction of one-fourth of a cent a pound each year until the bounty should cease entirely.

The Louisiana Democrats demanded that a duty be put on sugar, and joined with the Republican members for obtaining protection to sugar. A Bitter Pill.

Fate only exacted just retribution from cross-grained Senator Hoar when he compelled him to present a petition to the senate from labor organizations in his state, asking that body to pass the Wilson bill.

He performed the duty in a very ungracious manner, and his palpable annoyance was one of the most enjoyable features of the affair. This is the first time that Mr. Hoar has ever done any practical service for the working men.

"During the epidemic of a grippe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy took the lead here and was much better liked than other cough medicines." H. M. Bangs, druggist, Chatsworth, Ill. Advices from China announce the complete annihilation by an earthquake of the town of Kutchan. Twelve thousand persons were killed in the awful disaster. Ten thousand bodies have been recovered. The enormous cost of a great encyclopedia can hardly be conceived by ordinary readers who is unfamiliar with such subjects, even publishers stand amazed when the cost of such a work as the Encyclopedia Britannica is under consideration.

In its preparation $3,000,000 were expended, as much as $10,000 having been paid for a single article, some of the world's greatest and most profound scholars being engaged in the preparation of the articles, among whom were more than 600 American authors, engaged upon American subjects and institutions, thereby giving to this great work a distinctive American character, and fitting it for American use as no other encyclopedia is equipped.

Ten cents is an insignificant sum, barely the cost of a cigar or so, or a couple of papers of pins, yet for this small sum laid away each day, any person may become the owner of the entire set of 28 volumes of the Encyclopedia Britannica, and thus have an ever-present help to the accumulation of knowledge, and an invaluable reference source. Any reader of this may become the owner of this wonderful work through the liberality of the well known and reliable old Texas Farm and Ranch, of Dallas, Texas.

A postal card asking for information will bring you, by return mail, full instructions how to get the entire set of 28 volumes while their introductory offer lasts, as it is offered on the ten cent plan for only a limited time.

The Wilson bill reduced the tariff on steel rails, and Congressman Johnson, a radical tariff reformer, proposed an amendment putting them on the free list. His amendment was defeated by a vote of 100 to 79, but it had a majority of the Democratic voting, and was overcome by Republican votes.

The spirit of the Democratic party is for a tariff for revenue only, and does not palter with words. Democratic congressmen who visited their homes at the holiday recess half-hearted revenue reformers went back to Washington City, after consultation with their constituents, determined to go the full length of the party demands. The party was and is in advance of them. They are in advance of their committee that framed the tariff bill. There will be no other changes made in it in the direction of making it purely a tariff-for-revenue-only bill. No half-hearted measures are going to be tolerated, and milkops are out of place in this fight.—Gazette.

ALICE MITCHELL'S LIFE. The 11-year-old Freda Ward a Hard Worker in a Tennessee Asylum. It is said by one of Alice Mitchell's attendants in the insane asylum at Bolivar, Tenn., that she is one of the most useful women in the asylum; that she works harder than any attendant in the wards. She scrubs the floors, washes the dishes and assists in every way in keeping things in order; that she shows the greatest interest in the patients, especially the old women, to whom she is tenderly kind. She has never been heard to call Freda Ward's name or speak of that horrible murder, which from its cold-bloodedness has caused the whole world to re-sigh her name. She occupies a cell just exactly like those of other patients, without one comfort more, but she is allowed to eat at the attendants' table, where every delicacy is provided for her by her family. She is a good musician, and when she is not at work passes her time by singing and playing. Her father and mother visit her very often, and always take her out driving. Each time she appears on the streets of Bolivar the people seem eager to catch a glimpse of her. She has never shown any symptoms of insanity except in fits of anger, which are very seldom, but said the attendant, there is no mistaking that wild gleam of insanity at those times. She is one of the most violent-tempered women in the world, and the attendants consider her dangerous outside of the asylum. When asked how often she had seen her in these moods, the attendant replied that "only once." The attendant appeared to be very fond of her, and says she does not believe she remembers anything about the killing of Freda Ward.

IT WAS ON CHICAGO. A Pleasant and Festive Joke Made in a Railroad Conversation. They had traveled together for about an hour in silence. But the conversation watch chain finally succeeded in getting a conversation under way. His neighbor was a little man with wobbly eye-glasses, and in response to an abrupt question as to whether he was not a literary man replied mildly: "I have written things." "I take an interest in literature. I come from Chicago, and I like to know that combine art and common sense. First she went ahead and made her business reputation, didn't she?" "And now she's made her literary reputation. Don't you agree with me?" "It must be admitted that some things about Chicago remind me of literature. For instance, she is undoubtedly one of the greatest penholders in the world." "And then his glasses almost wobbled off as he expatiated that he was from New York and must be excused if he had said anything that sounded spiteful.

PICKPOCKET'S HATS. The Queer Freddy, Head of a Frenchman at Head-Post. A Frenchman in Buda-Pesth recently bought a hat of peculiar shape and color. He was rolled about the platform of the station a few minutes waiting for a train, when he was astonished to find in one pocket a purse full of money and in another a gold watch. He went to the station master and found him listening to the complaints of a man who had just lost a purse. The purse was the one which the Frenchman was returning, but when it had been examined it contained only a few francs, and now it held a large sum. The mystery was soon explained. A policeman came to the station master and reported the arrest of a pickpocket. He was brought in and confessed to the theft of the purse, into which had been put the proceeds of previous robberies. He had put the purse and watch into the Frenchman's pocket because of his hat. He explained that hats of that pattern, which are made by only one firm, are the badge of a large international gang of pickpockets, and he had taken the Frenchman for a confederate.

CONFUSED INFERNO. In confining his characters Thackeray was perhaps more unfortunate than most writers of his kind, and he himself has borne testimony to this on a number of occasions. His short-comings "As sure as I read a page of my own composition I find a fault or two—a half dozen. Jones is called Brown. Brown, who is dead, is brought to life. Agave and another are different in my mind's eye as Lord Palmerston and Mr. Disraeli, let us say." In one place he revised Lady New after having buried her. The older Newman on one page designated major, on another colonel. Jack Belton at one time is designated Charles, and Mrs. Raymond Gray, in one place Emily, becomes in another Fanny.

THE DRUG STORES. When Harriet told Fanny Cary that the skeleton man at farm women were married, she replied: "I suppose they loved through their teeth." Looking at the various bits in the museum, she began to feel that she was watching large animals that she walked with the top-stair of a flight and fell. Mr. Barrow was just in time to catch her and save her from a severe bruising. "If an more lucky than the first woman who fell through the influence of the serpent," said Phoebe.
