Very few people are on the streets these days. The neighbors in the country are kept at home on account of the dearth of horses and every business in town feels the reaction.

West Virginia has been added to the "White map," state-wide prohibition having been voted in by a good majority in that state a few days since. This makes a total of nine "state-widers."

A County Fair for Graham.

Why not have a Young County Fair in Graham this fall? Have you ever considered the manifold benefits to be realized from a fair? It brings the people together—the farmers, the merchants, the bankers, the livestock men, in fact, all the useful classes—upon a "common plane of sympathy and mutual interest and welds their united interests together in an irresistible force for the general community uplift." It puts on display the fine horses, and the best cattle and hogs and poultry; the finest vegetables and fruits, flowers and farm products; it means an aroused interest in the work of the home canners, the ingenious handiwork and needlecraft; it gives the stagnant citizen an opportunity to realize that he is being outclassed by his thrifter neighbor; it introduces new and improved strains and breeds of animals and fowls and gives the whole community an opportunity to catch a new and broader vision of what may be done by willing hands.

The outlay for the fair need not be expensive. Temporary sheds, tables, platforms, racks, etc., serve for a beginning of what may prove to become an annual fete of consequence if the enthusiasm of the people be fired in the pride of this county organization. The business men of any town realize that agriculture is the bedrock of their success and are usually glad to help an effort of this kind along. We should start this fair movement at once. The farmers, stockmen, canners, orchardists, gardeners, fancy-work devotees, poultrymen, dairymen,—all classes should know for a certainty that the fair is to be held so they can be getting their exhibits ready. How about it?

Speaker Clark assures us that equal suffrage must come. Naturally so, with women now holding prominent positions in almost every line throughout the United States. Representative suffragists from thirty-eight states appeared at the Capitol on June 27 and presented to the National Congress petitions and arguments in favor of woman suffrage. These representatives were received personally by President Wilson, who replied to their inquiries by declaring he considered equal suffrage a state and not a federal question.

It is the advertiser who is always on the job that realizes the far-reaching results of good advertising. Keep your ad before the eyes of the people. Your trade mark, your brand of goods—keep it before them; unconsciously, the reader takes it in. Perhaps unwittingly and unwittingly, but the subconscious mind works incessantly and ere the purchaser is aware, his mind retains the ad that is always before his eyes. Keep it there and watch results. They will come.

Attention has been drawn to the fact that Mr. Ferguson made the following remarks anent his religious views in his opening speech to a large audience announcing his candidacy for the highest gift of the people within the state: "I do not want to convey any wrong impressions. Religiously speaking I am a degenerate son of an illustrious sire. In his day he preached and prayed without pay, while in my time I have neither preached nor prayed and paid but little."

The thermometer is on a rampage these days.

The Saturday Evening Post relates the following story apropos the lovable human side of President Wilson: The President was out for a ride in his motor car one afternoon, when the machine passed a small boy standing beside the road. "Did you notice what that little boy did as we passed him?" the President asked. "No, Mr. President, I did not." "He made a face at both of us." "Is it possible," exclaimed the shocked companion, "I didn't observe him." "He did," said the President, "and did you notice what I did?" "No sir." "Well," answered the President happily, "I made a face right back at him!"

Letter from Oklahoma.

Ardmore, Okla., July 6th.
To The Reporter:

I thought I would write a few lines to The Reporter, as I was subscribing for the paper. It is getting pretty dry up here. Crops are doing fine so far. I don't like here as well as I do old Young county for I sure like the people that live down there. Work is very good here in the harvest but will soon be over with.

Well, I don't know much to write, but I would like to see all of my old friends once more. I will ring off.

Frank Calvert.

Doesn't Believe in Union Sunday Schools.

I see Bono and a few others are having a good deal to say in regard to Union Sunday schools. I am going to take position that denominational Sunday schools are better for the churches than union schools are.

In taking this stand I know I am taking a very unpopular stand with a great many people, but let honest conviction come first if popularity never comes. In the first place, there can be no union unless there is unity, and we all well know that there is not unity of action, practice or doctrine in the different denominations.

All Sunday school men I have ever heard talk on Sunday schools say that Sunday school is the church at work. If this be so, how under heaven's sun can you teach all the different methods and practices of all the churches in one school?

This looks to me to try to do so, would make a duke's mixture indeed. Each different denomination has distinct principles peculiar to themselves, and if they think that principle is good and correct they are in duty bound to teach that principle and stand by it through "thick and thin" like a lean tick to a "nigger's" shin.

I have no patience with a man that has not backbone enough to contend for his earnest convictions on any subject and if there is any one thing one should be firm and earnest in, it is their religious opinions. I admire the man who is loyal to his church, let it be whatever church that may be. I like the man that thinks he is right and then stands four square.

I will now give some practical proof of my contention. Go to the towns where the churches are all well represented and see how many union schools you can find. Not one. Why is this the case? Simply because they know that the scriptural text is true when it says: "A house divided against itself can not stand." I have my first time to see any strife or contention grow out of a church Sunday school and I have never seen a union school run long but what there was some strife sooner or later. Listen, I think I heard some one say, "just such fellows as you bring it about." Well let that be as it may, it comes and how it is brought about has nothing to do with my contention.

All Sunday school workers know that to interest all in the Sunday school you must have Sunday school literature and the question might arise, What literature shall we use? Some one will suggest the use of union literature. All right let's try that out and see if it is good and proper. Should there be a grave error taught in the lesson who is responsible for it. No one nor nothing. On the other hand if you use strictly denominational literature some church is responsible for that error. If I honestly believe a thing absolutely correct I teach my children that and every other father and mother does the same thing. I want to use Plow Boy for an illustration, as he is a great writer against the Pope and their doctrine. He believes in union Sunday schools and takes his children and goes, and it happens a Catholic is his child's teacher, and he teaches that child that Saint Peter was the first Pope and the line has been kept up down to the present time, and that the Pope now has power to forgive sins. Oh, my, watch Plow Boy go after that teacher. Or take a good Methodist brother who believes in sprinkling for baptism and that salvation is by the powers of the Holy Ghost, being taught that baptism by immersion was necessary for the salvation of his boy or girl. Don't you know he would almost fall from grace right now? Or take some good Baptist's child being taught that after he was born of God and a child of God that he could fall and be forever lost. That good Baptist would say heresy of the rankest sort and God dishonoring. These are cold, stubborn facts and not fiction, and I for one believe that if a church has not life enough to have a good Sunday school, it had better go out of business.

Some will say if they are all good people and are striving for the same end why not work together. Well the Masons are a good order and the Odd Fellows are a good order, and both doing many good works, and the aim of both are good; why don't they meet and work together? The Masons won't even let any other lodge use their hall much less work with them. Now why don't some one call them narrow, kickers and so on.

I also notice Bono says that if the farmers would all turn out and vote that Ferguson would carry Young county. Now, that is another time I think he "reckoned without his host." I would be sad indeed to think Young county will ever be dominated by such men as James Ferguson. I think that Ferguson will be so badly snowed under that he will try to forget he ever ran for governor of the great State of Texas. If one will only take time to make an investigation of the bunch that is running him they will certainly get a surprise, unless he is already wise to the gang. When Ferguson made the statement that he would swat any liquor legislation that might be brought up during his administration he proved himself not to be a true democrat. Just a boss of the bosses. If he were a true democrat and believed in majority rule he would be willing to sign any law the majority of the voters might demand. If he should be elected governor he should be governor for both pro and anti. But let's not worry about impossibilities.

I see a great deal of dope sent out over the signatures of Radford and Lewis, the Farmers Union president and ex-president. I feel sure this slime and dirt makes every good Union man sick at the stomach. When leaders of an organization like the Farmers Union try to lead the good substantial farmers into the camp of such a political boss as Jas. Ferguson it is high time to sit up and take notice. It does look to me that men with one eye and half sense would know that the farmers of Texas are not the class of men to be led around like so many cattle. The farmers of Texas have iron in their blood and brains in their heads and will resent this move in no uncertain tones.

I believe that this move on the part of the Ferguson gang and Radford and Lewis will prove a boomerang in their own lives that will spell DEFEAT in box car letters. But it won't make much difference to Radford and Lewis, for they will have their nests well feathered by the time this campaign is over. I see they are receiving checks from $500 to $1000 per month out of the Ferguson-Busch slush fund.

Community Co-Operation

COPYRIGHTED FARM AND RANCH-HOLLAND'S MAGAZINE

This town is a good town. This community is a good community. However, there is room for growth and improvement, and in the hands of we people who live in it, rest the destinies of this community as a whole, and of we individuals as units.

We want this town and its trade territory to prosper and grow, and we want you to join us in working to this end. You will come in for your full share of whatever success we attain.

Let's undertake to make this community so attractive that people contemplating moving to this part of the state will be irresistably drawn to it.

Let's start this good work with a firm resolve "not to send, or take, a dollar away from home that we can spend to good advantage here." If we take our money away it won't come back, if we keep it here it will surely circulate among us locally in a way that will benefit each and every one of us.

Our merchants can serve us to as good or better advantage than those at a distance and they will reciprocate our patronage by patronizing us, and by co-operating with us in any movement undertaken for the upbuilding of this immediate section.

On the other hand, the mail order houses and distant city stores have no interest in this community beyond securing our trade, and cannot return our patronage.

Our local merchants desire and deserve our trade and it's up to us as good, loyal citizens to give it to them. They are heart and soul with us in the upbuilding of this locality, and they are our neighbors—get better acquainted with them and patronize them every time you can.

Here's to the serene optimist, the booster, the laugher, the cheery soul who has faith that all things are well. He has a push and a lift for his town, his county, his state, his friends; he radiates good cheer and happiness. The "lemon squeezers" of society are those who predict evil, extinguish hope, see only the dark side—the world to them is dreary, barren, ugly, dull, and superficial. Look for the good and the good will come to you.

It is stated reliably that the turkey trot, grizzly bear, bunny hug and other barbaric dances of the day are now forever "passe" and the world's dancers welcome the "innovation"—the newest modern dance. This is said to be as stately and decorous as the old-fashioned minuet. Paragraphers, get busy.

The said land is described by metes and bounds as:

Beginning at the southwest corner of a survey of 320 acres in the name of E. D.
