City Hosts Sew It With Cotton Event

1975 Bailey County Cotton Crop Week Style Show Set For 7:30 Saturday

Weather Took Toll In Northern Area

A new assessment of the Texas High Plains cotton crop, by the Lubbock Cotton Exchange and the Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., adverse weather in September took a 217,400-bale bite out of the crop this year.

The expected production in the 25-county area, based on October 1 conditions was set at 1,712,600 bales down from last month's forecast of 1,930,000 bales.

Ernest Kerr of the Federal Land Bank in Muleshoe says the "cotton crop south of town looks real good, but the crop north of town is weak and not as good as cotton as we normally have, because of the rains."

"The weather took its toll on cotton north of the Sandhills," Kerr commented. "We were hoping for better," he stated. "There's just not going to be a lot of Santa Clause money in cotton," he said. "The cotton crop in Bailey County is definitely weak this year," Kerr indicated.

The Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., estimates the 1975 cotton crop is well ahead of last year's drought-shortened 1,193,100 bales and would make it the fifth largest crop of the last 10 years, ranking it behind 2,301,100 bales in 1965, 1,721,750 bales in 1970, 2,242,850 bales in 1972 and the all-time high of 1,888,600 bales in 1973.

On the basis of new reports on farmer certifications of acreages, the committee upped its estimated on standing acreage by 44,100 acres from a month earlier. This puts the new total at 2,366,100 with the yield per acre estimated at 347.4 pounds per acre, compared with last month's projection of 399 pounds and the harvested average last year of only 264.

During the month of September, yield prospects were cut 12.9 per cent, due to extreme variations in weather conditions which included a series of record low date temperatures followed after a short interval by a swing to a record high for the date.

Widespread leaf desiccation were produced by the severity of the weather, though the crop subsequently responded to improved weather conditions

COTTON PROMOTION WEEK . . . Mayor Alex Williams of Muleshoe put his pen to a proclamation naming this week as Cotton Promotion Week. Looking on are (l-r) Mrs. Harvey Bass, Tommy Black, John Blackman and Mrs. John Blackman, both of Littlefield.

To climax the week, the Bailey-Lamb County Women's Cotton Promotion Association will stage the Sew It With Cotton Contest and Style Show in Muleshoe Saturday, October 11.

Style Show Set For 7:30 Saturday

For the first time in the history of the Sew It With Cotton Contest and Style Show, sponsored by the Bailey-Lamb County Women's Cotton Promotion Association, the event will be held in Bailey County. The event is slated for Saturday, October 11, at the High School Auditorium in Muleshoe.

The contest will be held at 4 p.m. The public is urged to attend the Style Show which begins at 7:30 p.m. at the auditorium. A number of gifts from merchants in Littlefield and Muleshoe will be given as door prizes to some lucky persons who attend the Style Show.

A special drawing will be held for a brand new sewing machine to be given by Harvey Bass and Appliance. This drawing is limited to persons 16 years old and up.

Prizes of $15, $10 and $5 will be given to first, second and third place winners in each category in the contest. There are eleven different categories.

Following the Style Show, tasting tables will be set up and people are urged to stop by and taste the goodies made from cotton seed flour and the cotton seed itself. Featured will be cookies made from cotton seed flour and candies made from the cotton seed. Also on display will be cotton seed oil which is very high in nutrition and low in cholesterol.

David Stevens Wins Football Contest

David Stevens, Rt. 3, Box 31A, Muleshoe is the winner of the football contest sponsored by the Muleshoe Journal this week. Stevens had a perfect score, missing no games. However, one other person, Joe Gutierrez, also had a perfect score and the winner had to be determined by the tie-breaker. Stevens was only 25 points off the tie-breaker and Butierrez was 39 points off, placing him second.

Third place winner with one "miss" is Terry Fields. Several persons missed only one game, thus the Journal had to resort to the tie-breaker once again to determine the winner. Field was only 9 points off in the tie-breaker.

Stevens now has 10 points in the contest and will receive $5. Gutierrez will receive six points and $3, while Fields will receive four points and a check in the amount of $2.

The majority of those entering the contest this week missed two games.

This contest will continue each week through football season and the winner of the contest will win $50 in cash and two tickets to the Cotton Bowl game Cont. on Page 3, Col. 3.

Muleshoe City Dads met in regular session Tuesday morning, October 7, at city hall and whipped through a light agenda in less than an hour's time.

Following approval of the minutes of the last two city council meetings, they passed a resolution authorizing the appropriation of funds now existing in the Water and Sewer Pro-Rate Fund to reimburse the Water and Sewer Revenue Fund for expenditures of construction.

The resolution transferred $3021.33 from the Water and Sewer Pro Rate Fund to the Water and Sewer Revenue Fund to reimburse the operating account for monies previously spent by it.

Councilmen also approved a list of proposed amendments to the budget for fiscal year 1975-76. The amount involved in the Library Department amendment is just a transfer of funds from regular salaries to the extra help category. With a vacancy in the regular salary category, the city Cont. on Page 3, Col. 1.

Bula-Enochs Residents Help Buy Fire Engine

The Enochs Home Demonstration Club and the women of the Bula community cooperated with each other to hold a garage and bake sale at the old Bula School Cafeteria on Friday and Saturday, October 3-4. The proceeds of the sale were turned over to the Bula-Enochs fire engine fund. Raising funds to purchase a fire engine is a community project that was begun by the Bula-Enochs Lions Club and all the residents of the area have pitched in with pledges and contributions.

The garage and bake sale netted a total of $276.38, which was turned over to the treasurer of the fire engine fund, John Hubbard, and President of the Lions Club, D.J. Cox, by the president of the Enochs Home Demonstration Club, Mrs. Quinton Nichols, and Mrs. Nolan Harlan, Bula chairman.

D.J. Cox and John Hubbard have expressed their thanks to all the people who worked so hard to make the sale a success and want them to know that the money is very much appreciated and will help a great deal on the purchase price of the fire engine.

The sale was held as a Bicentennial Event under the Horizon Division, and the citizens of the community hope to better the area and leave a rich heritage to their children and their children.

Minimum Or No-Tillage, Less Expense

Today every farmer is faced with rising labor and fuel costs. The average farmer realizes less net income per acre of crop, yet his total overhead continues to rise every year. A large part of these costs is tied to fuel, labor, equipment replacement, and repair.

Farmers have found new farming methods such as minimum or no-tillage operations produce a crop with less expense while also realizing other benefits.

Minimum or no-tillage is a system of farming in which cultural operations are limited to only those essential to crop production. Crops are planted directly into mulch left mostly undisturbed from the previous crop. Competition is controlled with contact, pre-emergence, or post-emergence herbicides. A year-long cover is maintained on the soil surface.

Minimum and no-till farming is being used successfully in Texas on grain and forage sorghums, small grains, soybeans, cotton, corn and other crops. Limited tillage farming is adaptable to dryland or irrigated land on the South Plains.

Double-cropping can benefit from minimum or no-till farming because planting can begin immediately after harvest. The straw from small grains serves as a mulch which conserves soil

Learn Habits Of Rattlers

SAN ANTONIO--A veteran reptile authority here suggests that hunters and others who frequent the outdoors learn to avoid rattlesnakes by knowing their habits.

Joseph Laszlo, head of the San Antonio Zoo's reptile garden, says rattlesnakes have set patterns of activity, which can be anticipated, depending on the weather, time of day and season of the year.

He points out rattlesnakes take to cover during extreme hot and cold weather, but can be expected to be on the move at any time of the day or night when the surface temperature ranges between 70 and 88 degrees.

Laszlo cautions laymen to be especially alert in the early evening when the sun goes down, the rattlesnake's favorite time to search for food.

He warns that even when not moving rattlesnakes still may be encountered, particularly in dry country, lurking under cactus, Mesquite bush or tree, in high weeds or grass, behind a fallen log, in a roadside ditch, fence line, hedgerow or on a rocky ledge.

"Hikers and others who find it necessary to walk in these places should wear stout leather boots, knee-high leggings or snake-proof pants, and should never sit or climb without first checking the area carefully," Laszlo suggests.

He recommends that hunters use a flashlight in going to and from their deer stands in the early morning before daylight and in the evening after dark.

He also notes that where rats, mice and rabbits are plentiful, it is almost certain rattlesnakes will be in abundance, too.

Despite every precaution, a number of unwary laymen become snakebite victims every year. Fortunately, a San Antonio physician and surgeon has pioneered a new technique for first aid in the field, using crushed ice over the wound in place of the more painful "cut and suck" ordeal.

The ice cools the venom, without freezing the injured member, and slows down the poison until the victim can be brought to a proper medical facility.

The new first aid measure, which has been popularized by San Antonio's Emergency Medical Services technicians, has led to the introduction of a new first aid kit, named "Snakebite Freeze", which contains chemical ice packs for use where ice is not always readily available.

The kit, which can be stored in hunting vehicles and camps, now is available at pharmacies, sporting goods stores, farm and ranch outlets or from Amerex Laboratories, 307 Nakoma, San Antonio, Texas 78216.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhill Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm takes a look at the CIA this week, but we aren't sure what he sees.

Dear editor: Since I don't even know what's going on in Muleshoe I couldn't be expected to know what's going on in Portugal, but an item in the paper about that country caught my attention the other day.

According to it, the CIA* after denying it, reluctantly admitted the U.S. contributed about 10 million dollars to Portugal in its struggle against Communism. The CIA said it was against national security to reveal this secret and did so only because Congress demanded to know. At the same time, it said it was justified in contributing the money because Russia had given about as much to the Communist side in Portugal.

I don't know anything about the CIA, but I figure if it knew what Russia was giving, Russia probably knew what the U.S. was giving, and the only group in the dark about the matter was you and me. As the Watergate gang learned, it's hard to undetectedly transfer money from one country to another, say from Mexico to Washington.

I may be wrong about this, but it seems to me in a situation like Portugal or some other countries we've taken a hand in, our furnishing money and arms to the government to keep it from going one way, and Russia's furnishing money and arms to get it to go the other way, is like a basketball team taking money from one side to throw the game its way, and then taking money from another side to throw it the other way.

This is confusing to everybody, especially to the basketball players, unless they get a cut of the bribe money and don't really care who wins. Actually, in this day and time, when trying to keep the secret of something like the atom bomb is like trying to keep the secret of the bicycle or the motor-scooter, nations might be just as well off trying to take care of their own business right out in public.

As for the CIA, I'm sure we need it, but its men seem to be trained for just a few things. For example, it would have been handy to know, and not hard to find out, that Russia had a short grain crop two years ago and again this year, but the CIA simply has nobody in its outfit trained to look out the window and see if Russia needs a rain. Yours faithfully, J. A.

CORNER CATCHER

The only center pivot in the world that hits the corners.

In a typical quarter section where a regular center pivot is irrigating 132 acres, you can now do about 150 acres. But the new Valley Corner System isn't limited to squares. Irrigate both ends of a rectangle. Irrigate odd shaped pieces of land too. It's the answer to getting valuable productive land that's been wasted, back under center pivot irrigation.

For flood irrigators, it's also the answer to automatic water and labor saving center pivot, without wasting valuable acres. No monitoring, no labor problems, no night work. But you have all the advantages of precise irrigation and fertilizer application through the system, that produces higher yields than ever before. It's a simple concept, precise in operation and engineered with quality of all Valley-built Center Pivots. VALLEY

The Police Department amendment is for the purchase of two citizen band radios so as to monitor the informational flow in Muleshoe. Since the communications instrument C.B. is being widely used in Muleshoe, it is felt it would better give the police a feel for what is happening around town.

The amount transferred from the Revenue Sharing Contingency Fund to radios, capital outlay for the Police Department.

Councilmen were given copies of a letter from HUD and a short descriptive of the Section 8 Housing Assistance Program. The letter noted that HUD is anxious, more or less, for the city to commit as far as whether or not the City of Muleshoe would administer Section 8 monies or not. Mayor Alex Williams asked and received comment from the councilmen as to their desires towards this type of social program and what the City's role should be in such programs.

It was the consensus of opinion that the funds were available and someone would have to administer them. The councilmen felt that the city government should administer the funds and therefore passed a motion to pursue the intent to administer the Section 8 Housing Assistance Program. More information will be available at a later date.

and the damage is not believed as heavy now as had been feared earlier.

In scattered locations throughout the areas, a few bales of cotton are presently being harvested. The micronaire readings have been good on the first receipts with only two of the 13 bales cast outside the most desirable micronaire range of 3.5-4.9. Those two bales have miked 3.4 just outside the premium range, and 5.3. The readings have started off better than 1974, a low-mike year.

However, the early mike readings cannot be an instrument of measurement, since they are drawn from such a small number of bales. Micronaire, which is a measurement of fiber fineness or maturity, does reflect the yield patterns to a degree, since it is associated with the weight of the boll.

Sound Advice
Don't stay away from church because it attracts so many hypocrites; there's always room for one more.

It was noted that several councilmen would attend the Annual Texas Municipal League Meeting to be held in Houston, October 26-28.

The Council learned that the city's share of the concrete replaced along the U.S. 84 reconstruction project came to $3,066.16, versus the previous estimate of $4,884.

The councilmen learned that the Texas Water Development Board has granted its approval of the foundation work for the overhead storage tank.

City Manager Dave Marr met with Marshall Cook and the hospital's architect concerning the relocation of utility lines for the hospital expansion. The architect will meet with Bill McMorris to work out details. It was felt that the city might be able to assist the hospital with some excavation, debris removal and other minor details.

It was noted that Tax Assessor Collector Dessie Berry's resignation would be effective October 15. It is not the intent of the City to seek a replacement for this position until further discussions with the school district have determined whether or not a consolidation of tax offices would be in order.

At the present time, it would appear that projected water sales income will be off about $5,000 for the year from $160,000 budgeted to $155,000 actual. Property taxes on the other hand will be up approximately $7,000 due to an increase in assessed evaluations over the budgeted figure. Expenditures are holding as projected. The council will be given a much more detailed evaluation of the budget as soon as the mid-year, September financial statements are reached.

It was also noted that it would appear that the city can issue bonds for the civic center without a tax increase due to the current surplus in the Interest and Sinking Fund.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned and a slide presentation of repair work on the ground storage reservoir, street reconstruction in the Harvey Addition and progress on the 12" pipe line to the overhead storage tank.

That's the consensus of a group of cotton producers, agricultural chemical scientists and marketers as they met recently in Dallas to learn and share all they know about a new method of chemical weed control for rhizome johnsongrass--a double rate application of Treflan herbicide on cotton fields for two consecutive years.

Bad Weather Damages Cotton, Drives Prices Up

RALEIGH--Bad weather has damaged and delayed much of this year's cotton crop, forcing economists here at Cotton Incorporated to lower their estimate of the 1975 crop size to 8.5 million bales.

The decline, down from a previous estimate of 9.3 million bales, is strengthening prices for producers, says David Cox, Cotton Incorporated vice president for economic research and development.

"Prospects of a smaller than expected crop are currently the biggest single factor behind the recent market price advances," Cox says, although he adds that continuing improvement in domestic demand for cotton has been, and will continue to be, the dominant force in the market.

The Cotton Incorporated crop prediction could change again, says David Jordening, Cotton Incorporated manager of supply economics. "The crop is extremely late in some areas," says Jordening, "so we'll have to keep a close eye on the situation." While production losses have been substantial already, the final outcome from the late crop hinges on the weather, he adds.

Cox notes that the economy is maintaining its gradual recovery and, concurrently, textile mill demand for cotton continues to improve.

However, the overall demand picture is clouded by the export market, where U.S. cotton is priced 10-15 cents above world prices and where foreign demand has been rekindled more slowly than U.S. demand, Cox says.

While Cotton Incorporated is estimating the final U.S. production even lower as a result of weather, the lateness of the crop, and insects,

Production setbacks were quite severe in several producing regions, Jordening says. Expectations for the Texas crop alone have been reduced from about 3 million bales to 2.5-2.6

million bales, primarily because of extreme temperature variations in the high Plains.

The five-state Mississippi Delta region suffered from cool, cloudy weather and heavy insect infestations, while the south-eastern cotton crop was damaged by hurricane Eloise and a week of rain.

Cox encourages producers to tie down a profitable price now for some portion of their current crop.

"While it is true prices may continue to go up, on the other hand, slow foreign demand and the disparity between U.S. and foreign prices could create problems," Cox warns. "Part of the crop sold before harvest, part at harvest, and part next year may be the best course for many producers to follow," he advises.

"This action keeps cotton moving within the industry," Cox explains. "At the same time it provides a hedge for the producer against unforeseen, but still possible, setbacks in domestic cotton prices."

Cox urges producers, when they prepare to sell some of their crop, to track market prices across the cotton belt to ensure that the price they receive in the local market reflects overall price trends.

Cox's advice is in the September "Cotton Summary" published by Cotton Incorporated, the fiber company of U.S. cotton producers.

In the summary, Cotton Incorporated continues to predict that domestic cotton use for the 1975-76 crop year will reach 7 million bales and notes that some observers hold out the possibility of consumption reaching 7.5 million bales. During the recession-plagued 1974-75 crop year, domestic cotton use was 5.8 million bales.

The summary attributes the brightening cotton consumption picture to the gradually improving U.S. economy and to more optimistic consumers who are showing a preference for cotton at the retail level.

4-H Heritage Saluted During Observance

COLLEGE STATION--The 4-H program has a proud heritage, and the upcoming National 4-H Week observance, Oct. 5-11, provides a good opportunity to reflect on its history, its current status, and the new horizons that lay ahead, says Dr. Don Storrer, state 4-H and youth leader with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

More than 215,000 Texas 4-H boys and girls will join the 7.2 million 4-Hers across the nation in special events and activities keyed to this year's theme, "4-H--'76...Tomorrow."

"But in looking to and planning for tomorrow, 4-Hers are also reflecting on the past, and Texas played a big part in the 4-H heritage," notes Storrer. "For it was in 1908 that a Corn Club was formed in Jack County by part-time county Extension agent T.M. Marks to teach farm boys about corn production because he was having little success reaching the farmers themselves. The club started with 111 boys, and the results that Marks achieved drew nationwide acclaim. This club was a forerunner of 4-H as it is known today."

So 4-H grew out of a need to make education more practical and interesting to farm youth. It provided enriching, real-life learning experiences through the "learning by doing" concept, and today's programs offer similar experiences although the projects and activities have changed.

"By encouraging high standards and setting of meaningful goals, 4-H lays a broad and firm base for a lifetime of personal growth," points out Storrer. "As today's youth grow to adulthood, they will face a world unlike the one most of us grew up in. There will be more people and fewer resources. And there will be vital issues in government that call for wise decision-making."

New Control For Rhizome Johnsongrass Discussed

What's the southwest farmers' "hardest-to-control" weeds? What's the weed that infests more than four of every ten acres in the southwest? It's rhizome johnsongrass, a weed southwestern U.S. farmers have been battling since the mid-1800's.

"Rhizome johnsongrass has to be among the farmers' hardest-to-control weeds," says Dr. Dave Weaver, Texas extension weed specialist. "Because both underground roots or rhizomes and the seedling grass must be killed." Controlling the rhizomes is extremely important, stresses Weaver, because in just one season alone, a moderate infestation of johnsongrass can produce 12 tons of rhizomes an acre.

Farmers trying to combat rhizome johnsongrass by grazing geese, hand hoeing, cultivating, following, and using knockdown herbicides have had to be content with less than satisfactory results. But the days of halfway control measures against rhizome johnsongrass in cotton are gone.

That's the consensus of a group of cotton producers, agricultural chemical scientists and marketers as they met recently in Dallas to learn and share all they know about a new method of chemical weed control for rhizome johnsongrass--a double rate application of Treflan herbicide on cotton fields for two consecutive years.

Cotton producers following the double-rate Treflan program on selected cotton acres, including Rollin Heifrin, Rosser; Myron Townley, Paducah; Ross Cole, Georgetown; and Lynn Wright, Ferris, Texas, in a panel discussion pointed out that they and other cotton producers are posed with big problems in fields heavily infested with rhizome johnsongrass.

The biggest problem reported by the panel is reduced yields due to the terrific competitiveness of rhizome johnsongrass for water, nutrients, and light needed by the growing cotton plants. One cotton farmer, who had pushed a pencil hard over his johnsongrass problem, stated that a 30 percent yield reduction costs him nearly $40 per acre if the field would normally produce 300 pounds of lint per acre at a 23-cent price.

Other major rhizome johnsongrass problems brought out by the producers included extra dockage at the gin for grassy bales and reduced cotton quality, cost of extra labor and equipment to combat moderate to heavy infestation, and, finally, how it dictates what the farmer can grow on the land, if any crop at all.

Citing field tests conducted in heavily infested johnsongrass fields, Dr. Weaver reported that Treflan applied at double the normal rate (not to exceed four pints per acre) combined with proper tillage practices will provide commercially acceptable control of rhizome johnsongrass in cotton in just two years.

The double-rate Treflan program on cotton was approved for registration by the Environmental Protection Agency in early 1974. Treflan, marketed by Elanco Products Company, Indianapolis, Indiana, is a product of Eli Lilly and Company research.

Dr. Jerry Walker, a Lilly plant science field research manager in the southwest, and Texas weed specialist Weaver pointed out that the rhizome johnsongrass control is essentially a hand-in-hand program of both proper application of the herbicide, and adequate land preparation. Dr. Walker recommends that chisel plowing and disking at least twice in different directions should precede application of the double-rate Treflan. This brings the rhizomes to the surface and chops them into short pieces.

The application of the double rate of Treflan, made either in the fall or spring from October up to and including the date of planting, should be followed with two diskings. The disk should be set to cut four to six inches deep and operated in two different directions at four to six miles an hour for satisfactory incorporation.

According to Dr. Walker, research and field experience have indicated that cultivation of weakened johnsongrass strays appearing in cotton rows the first year will contribute to greater control the following year. He recommended cotton producers try to delay planting of double-rate treated fields to avoid adverse cool, wet weather conditions early in the season. Dr. Walker added that only crops for which Treflan has been registered as a pre-plant treatment should be planted in the fields following double-rate treatments.

Dr. Walker also indicated that Treflan applied at double the normal rate does not injure cotton when used as directed.

Arthritis Cure Diets' Won't Cure

COLLEGE STATION--Trying "arthritis cure diets" won't help the arthritis sufferer feel any better, Mrs. Mary K. Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist, says.

No special diet or specific food will cure arthritis--because no food causes it, she said.

Mrs. Sweeten is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Arthritis is a chronic inflammatory process of unknown origin which causes discomfort and pain of the joints.

"And extensive research has failed to show that the absence or presence of any food or vitamin will either cause or cure any form of arthritis," she explained.

Trying to alleviate the pain, many arthritics fall victim to food faddists or self-appointed "arthritis experts" who advocate bizarre diet plans for quick, miraculous cures, she said.

"And even though medical authorities say these diets are ineffective, one survey revealed that almost 2.5 million people have tried some special diet or miracle food to relieve their pain.

"Estimates show that Americans spend over $250 million each year on quick remedies for arthritis."

Mentioning specific so-called "arthritis cures," Mrs. Sweeten said that one claim has been "you can eat your way into arthritis and then eat your way out again." She said this is as absurd as saying that by eating oysters a person can increase his sexual potency.

Other claims advocated using cod liver oil with orange juice and honey with vinegar.

"Careful examination of people claiming arthritis cures by fat diet reveals that they were only self-diagnosed arthritics who never had the disease to cure," the specialist said.

An arthritis sufferer can save himself much disappointment and frustration if he will accept the basic nutritional fact that no special diet or vitamin will cure arthritis.

"It is true that patients with arthritis, particularly the rheumatoid type, often do have decreased plasma levels of vitamins--as do patients with many other chronic diseases. And vitamin supplements will correct this deficiency, but this has no effect on the disease itself.

"Many experiments relating vitamin levels with arthritis--especially Vitamins A, C, B-complex, D and E--have been performed. All show that no anti-rheumatic vitamin is necessary for the arthritic patient, because a nutritionally-balanced diet provides all the essential nutrients and energy any person needs," she said.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., with an eye on maintaining and increasing the High Plains share of the mushrooming market for cotton in the world's open-end spinning mills, will be cooperating September 10 and 11 with the National Cotton Council in the sponsorship of an open-end spinning seminar at Lubbock's Hilton Inn.

The seminar will bring to Lubbock a large number of the world's most knowledgeable and experienced technicians in the field of open-end spinning machinery and its use, says PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson, "and we think it will be a definite help to PCG's two-pronged push toward increasing demand for this area's cotton and attracting other open-end spinning operations to join the five such mills now in operation or announced for the High Plains area."

For example, Johnson points out, "Our research and that of many others has shown that acceptable and even superior yarns, other things being equal, can be produced on the open-end system from low micronaire cotton, which is normally in abundant supply on the Plains. And the more mill people who come to accept that fact, the more people will become interested in buying High Plains cotton and/or locating a mill in the Plains area."

In addition to airing the present favorable characteristics of High Plains cotton, Johnson continues, the interplay of ideas during the seminar may help to point PCG's agricultural research in directions that will lead to varieties, cultural practices and ginning procedures that will make High Plains cotton even more desirable for open-end spinning.

Joining the NCC and PCG in producing the seminar is the International Institute for Cotton (IIC), Texas Tech University, Cotton Incorporated, the American Textile Manufacturers Institute, U.S. Department of Agriculture, and land-grant universities across the Cotton Belt.

Noted open-end technicians are on the two-day program from England, West Germany, Japan and the U.S.

Foreign speakers will be S. Allen Heap, International Institute for Cotton, Manchester, England; H. Landwehrkamp, Schubert & Salzer Company, Ingolstadt, W. Germany; H. Hergeth, Hergeth Company, Dulmen, W. Germany; and T. Konishi, Daiwa Spinning Company, Osaka, Japan.

U.S. participants include Jack Towery of Texas Tech's Textile Research Center, Lubbock; Clifford W. Palm, Omintex, Charlotte, N.C.; Peter Lord, North Carolina State University; Edward A. Vaughn, Clemson University; Dwight Carlisle, Russell Corporation, Alexander City, Alabama; and Carl Feaster of USDA's Cotton Research Center, Phoenix, Arizona.

Omintex, Russell Corporation, Hergeth, and Schubert and Salzer are companies involved in the manufacture and sales of open-end spinning machinery. Daiwa is one of the largest textile firms in Japan, has several open-end spinning mills there and has broken ground for the construction of an open-end plant at Levelland.

Don Anderson of Slaton, cotton producer delegate to the NCC, past president of PCG and author of the NCC Board resolution which made the seminar possible, will give the welcome and opening statement for the seminar at 8:30 a.m., September 10.

An industry reaction and discussion panel of farmers, cotton breeders, merchants, machinery manufacturers and researchers will conclude the program.

Plainview Museum Progresses

PLAINVIEW* TEXAS* SPECIAL: Plainview's own Llano Estacado Museum - its exterior walls up as of last week - now being built as a joint project of Wayland Baptist College and the Hale County Historical Society, will be completed sometime in May, 1976. Formal dedication is planned for July 4th.

Dr. Gwin Morris, executive director of the museum, says, "This museum will tell the story of the people of this area from early 'Plainview Man' 8,000 years ago through the Indian era, the removal of the Indians, the coming of the settlers, and finally to the formation of political units, the counties. We'll cover homes, families, schools, churches, businesses - the whole aspect of life through these times."

Indian artifacts from digs at Quitaque and around Lubbock will be on exhibit along with private collections that have been donated. Most of the museum's contents are now housed in Matador Hall, an old unused girl's dormitory.

Long-range plans include expanding the rear of the new building into a "living museum." An old "Dugout" house will be moved in, then a "box and strip" building, and finally examples of the lumber and brick structures to be found in West Texas prior to 1930. A church and a schoolhouse will be brought in, to enhance the illusion of a typical High Plains town in the 1900's.

In keeping with the idea of recreating pioneer days, Matador Hall will be converted into a Pioneer Arts and Crafts Building. Blacksmithing, quilting, soap-making, and cooking will be demonstrated and eventually taught as short courses. Estimated completion date for this phase is 1978.

Morris also anticipates a program in museum science developing to a point that Wayland will award a Bachelor of Science degree to museum science majors. The Llano Estacado Museum will also provide jobs for 10 to 15 work-study students.

TOWER TALKS

by U.S. Senator for Texas JOHN TOWER

Farmers Market

WASHINGTON—Small farmers and consumers can help each other beat the high cost of living.

I have proposed a bill which could boost the income of small farmers, and at the same time reduce the prices consumers have to pay for fresh fruits, vegetables, and other produce.

The goal of the Farmers Market Act is to reduce indirect costs. Marketing costs now total 60 per cent of every food dollar. That means that 60 cents of every dollar spent by the consumer does not go to the farmer.

The men and women in the wholesale and retail food industry are not to blame for that. They have strived mightily to keep down the costs of transporting, processing, and packaging food. Profit margins in the food industry are among the lowest for all industry. The indirect costs are justified. But they continue to mount. The Farmers Market Act would provide a means of reducing some of them.

The prime beneficiaries of the Farmers Market Act would be the 72 per cent of all farm families who earn less than $15,000 a year.

But urban consumers who are willing to forego the conveniences of supermarket shopping in order to save on their food budget would also benefit. The price of produce sold at farmers' markets averages one-third below supermarket price, and sometimes as much as 40 to 50 per cent less.

The Farmers Market Act would authorize marketing experts from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to study means of operating markets ranging from roadside stands to large marketplaces in urban centers. The information would be provided to farmers on request.

The USDA experts also would be empowered to develop innovative farmer to consumer marketing arrangements in which groups of consumers could buy unprocessed food in bulk directly from farmers.

The Secretary of Agriculture would be given three years from the date of enactment of the Farmers Market Act to test at least five distinctly different innovative marketing schemes in various regions of the country. The cost of the innovative projects would be about $5 million over the three-year period.

The sum is insignificant in comparison with the number of Americans who could benefit from passage of this bill. The Farmers Market Act helps people to help themselves to a higher standard of living. It is a step in the right direction.

goods and services are lumped into one single price that varies only with the cost of the basket chosen. The FTC believes that the unit pricing formula is misleading because the customer thinks he is getting more service for the higher price, when really all he is getting is a more expensive basket. The FTC wants the funeral home to specifically price 10 key items making up the funeral. The buyer of a $2,500 funeral instead of a $600 might get a casket costing $400 more but he is paying $1,900 more and the same range of services is offered to the less expensive funeral, argues the FTC. Funeral directors counter with the claim that unit pricing enables them to give a nicer funeral to poor families by letting the wealthy in effect subsidize low cost funerals with unit pricing. The industry expects the new regulations to increase the costs of operations and eventually drive the small, independent funeral home out of business or into one of the chains

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

I write this in response to the lady who encourages others to prepare cakes and sandwiches in their homes for profit.

All food sold to the public must be prepared in an establishment which has a public health license. In order to obtain this license you must meet certain requirements.

There are very few homes which could meet these requirements and obtain such a license. This law is set up for our protection and health preservation.

Please advise your readers of these health regulations; purchasing cakes, sandwiches, etc., from a licensed business assures us of the conditions under which it is prepared.

M.C.—Oklahoma

Answer:

I understand from a city attorney that the law varies in cities and states. Any business which advertises or does this kind of thing on a large scale is supposed to have a city license but I doubt if such a law would apply or would be enforced on someone in a small community who made cakes or party food for friends or acquaintances.

Louisa.

Steelers Slip By Cowboys 8-0

By Brad Poyner
On Wednesday, October 1, the Steelers slipped by the Cowboys by a score of 8-0. To begin the game, Marvin Lewis kicked off for the Steelers. The Cowboys moved the ball gradually down to goal line. They couldn't score so they gave the ball to the Steelers. They ran a few plays; but, the half ended with no score. In the second half, the Steelers had the ball and moved the ball downfield. Marvin Lewis scored from about 20 yards out. Albert Lopez made the pat on a pass reception. The Cowboys couldn't score; so, the game ended up the Steelers 6 the Cowboys 0.

the ball. The Vikings had a good drive going; but, Robby Haney, one of the Vikings running backs, fumbled. The Bills moved the ball to about the 5 yard line, where Clifford Watson ran up the middle for the touchdown. Charles Walker ran up the middle for the extra points. The Vikings couldn't score and the game ended: the Bills 8 and the Vikings 0.

DECA Sells

At Jr. High

During the last two weeks, Mr. Gist and his students from the high school DECA (Distributive Educational Clubs of America) came over to Jr. high. They were selling spirit buttons and iron-on transfers of the Mule. The buttons were 75c each and the iron-on transfers were $1.50 each. Many of the Jr. high students bought these and are proudly wearing them to show their school spirit.

The money they earn goes to the club. DECA uses their money for school activities and projects such as meetings and conventions etc. Thank you DECA for including the Jr. high students in your project.

'B' Team Loses

To Gattis Cubs

The Mules played Gattis at Muleshoe on October 2, at 6:00 p.m.

During the first quarter no one scored; but, both teams played good defense. At the beginning of the second quarter, Jimmy Villa ran a 60 yard touchdown around the left side of the field; but, it was called back unfortunately for a clipping penalty. Soon after this play, Gattis received the ball on about the 20 yard line and successfully completed a touchdown pass and two extra points, making the score 8 to 0 in favor of the Gattis Cubs.

In the second half, the Mules were unable to score, because of many fumbles. But the 'B' team did play a very good defense preventing Gattis from making any more points. The game ended with a final score of 8 to 0 in favor of Gattis.

Commercial were created from the advertisements found in the newspapers.

During the first of October, the Speech II class will give short stories for different age groups of children in Richland Hills. The speech classes are designed to give the students practical experience in speaking before people in all of the different areas of speech. Mrs. Pat Watson is the Speech II teacher.

Agriculturists To Meet In Corpus Christi

CORPUS CHRISTI--Corpus Christi will be host city for the 1975 annual conference of the Professional Agricultural Workers of Texas (PAWT) on Nov. 5, 6 and 7.

"Food from Fish" will be the conference theme, according to Howard S. Mitchell of Bryan, president.

Membership of PAWT, Mitchell emphasized, is composed of professional agriculturists with state or federal agencies, agribusiness or educational fields.

Conference headquarters will be the Sheraton Marina Inn or North Shoreline Boulevard, overlooking Corpus Christi Bay. Tours are planned on Nov. 5, with deep sea and bay fishing offered along with an evening boat cruise of the Corpus Christi harbor area.

Registration is slated the morning of Nov. 6. The conference will open at 1:15 p.m. with a discussion of the shrimp industry by Johnny Mitchell of Aransas Pass, president of the Texas Shrimpers Association.

ON OIL PRICES

Assistant Treasury Secretary Gerald Parsky has indicated that the organization of Oil Exporting Countries will probably raise petroleum prices 10 to 15 per cent on Oct. 1.

Jodie Phillips, researcher with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Corpus Christi, will speak on fish research.

A bus tour of the Aransas Pass - Port Aransas areas will follow from 3 to 5:30 p.m., Mitchell said.

The association's annual banquet will be at 7:30 p.m. Highlights will include a talk by Joe Surovik, county Extension marine agent at Port Lavaca, and the annual business meeting.

On Nov. 7, a tour is planned to the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Corpus Christi, where Dr. Jack Parker, Extension mariculture specialist, will speak on shrimp production.

The tour will continue to shrimp demonstration ponds near the Laguna Madre, where Bruce Miller of Central Power and Light Co. will discuss project work that his company has with the Extension Service and the Ralston Purina Co.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Auto insurance rates almost certainly are going up—and rather steeply.

The State Insurance Board staff recommended an average statewide increase of 17 per cent at an October 1 hearing on proposed new rates.

Even that didn't satisfy insurance industry spokesmen who asked a 24.9 per cent overall increase.

Figures proposed by Board staff actuaries would increase company revenues $112.8 million a year. The companies sought a $165.4 million hike.

New rates outlined by the Board staff would raise premiums of so-called typical or average motorists over 25 years of age driving late-model medium-priced cars to work in the range of $8 to $43 a year.

Smallest increase would be in the Sherman-Denison area and the largest in Houston.

Figures refer to standard liability, $100 deductible collision and full coverage comprehensive.

Young drivers in Houston may face a $130 increase, to $746 a year, for their regular coverage, while older drivers in that city pay about $296 for the same insurance.

The Board will make its decision by October 15, Chairman Joe Christie indicated. New rates would take effect January 1. A raise of 8.8 per cent was ordered last year.

Spending At Record
State government spending hit an all-time monthly high of $962,154,535 last May, Treasurer Jesse James has reported.

James' report for the fiscal year ending August 31 said average monthly spending totaled $712,750,000 during the period.

The Treasurer said the state earned more than $78.9 million during the last fiscal year of $1.33 billion worth of time account deposits in 1,240 Texas banks. He said cigarette tax collections totaled $247.6 million, interest and dividends on investments held by the treasury bond division $315 million and escheat and other taxes collected by treasury $2.97 million.

Commission Gets Case

its first case last week—a controversy over telephone equipment rates.

Its authority to act before January 1 is expected to be challenged, since the law creating the agency gave it regulatory duties starting next year.

Fisk Telephone Systems Inc. of Houston accused Southwestern Bell Telephone Company of offering "fictitious" low prices on special PBX telephone equipment in an effort to drive out competitors.

The case was accepted by the Commission for filing and turned over to the attorney general's office for where-do-we-go-from-here advice.

Courts Speak
A federal district court jury convicted District Judge O.P. Carrillo on income tax charges. Duval County Commissioner Ramiro Carrillo was also found guilty.

Increases in assessed property values for more than 500 Fayette County owners of rural land without individual written notice were invalidated by the Third Court of Civil Appeals.

A divided Supreme Court held Lo-Vaca Gathering Company must pay $7,244 to an Erath County couple due to damage of their fishing lake in laying a pipeline.

The Third Court of Civil Appeals, in an Austin case, said mechanics who repaired a car later abandoned had first claim on it, over a bank which held a larger note on the vehicle.

Appointments
Former Harris County Judge Bill Elliot was named by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to the Fourth Court of Domestic Relations in Houston.

Fred Wulf of Brady was reappointed by Briscoe to the School Land Board.

The Governor appointed Peter S. Solito of Houston 208th district judge.

He named Gene H. Bishop of Dallas, J. Frank Holt III of Dallas and John P. Thompson to the Texas Turnpike Authority board of directors. (Holt and Thompson are reappointees.)

AG Opinions
A school district can't charge for supplies, lab fees and band uniforms without legislative authority, Atty. Gen. John Hill said in an opinion.

Hill concluded the Texas Open Records Act on confidentiality of personnel records does not keep Alvin Independent School District from disclosing employment applications to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Hill also found hospital districts liable for medical care of indigent prisoners.

Firms specializing in fitting executive-level personnel into jobs are still private employment agencies for regulatory purposes if a significant portion of their activity involves providing employees for employers Hill said.

The Attorney General said a state employee who exhausts accrued sick leave becomes eligible for workmen's compensation benefits.

He classified crew leaders, day labor contractors and operators of temporary labor pools as "labor agents."

Bullock Balks
Comptroller Bob Bullock turned down a University of Texas request to pay an architectural firm for UT law school building remodeling plans.

Bullock, reviving a long-standing controversy, said the law school project had not been approved by the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, and the Governor had vetoed appropriations.

National Spotlight On Texas-Oklahoma

More big questions will get some answers this Saturday: just how strong are the two major powers in Oklahoma? What about the two powers in Texas? In Michigan, the Big Two clash head-on to establish state supremacy. All in all, there are five outstanding college football games including a meeting of #1 and #2 in the East.

The national spotlight has to be on the Texas-Oklahoma game in Dallas. This is the 70th meeting between the two with Texas leading the series, 42 to 25. Since the Sooners barely escaped with their lives against both Miami and Colorado, they're only slight favorites . . . one point is the difference.

That intra-state rivalry between the two Michigans in the Big Ten would mean a little more if their won-loss (and tie) records were a little different. However, Michigan's win over Notre Dame coupled with Michigan's victory over Missouri gives this game an added plus. We're picking Michigan to win it by 5 points.

Big Eight rivals Oklahoma State and once-beaten Missouri battle head-to-head in Columbia. The Cowboys' biggest win to date was the 20-13 victory over Arkansas while Mizou's upset of Alabama in the season opener was their big one. In what just might be a free scoring game, Oklahoma State will be our favorite by three.

Staying stride for stride with Texas in the Southwest Conference are the Texas A&M Aggies. Undefeated and running up impressive win margins, A&M meets tough Texas Tech Saturday. The Aggies are 14 point favorites to win #4, but the Red Raiders almost clipped Oklahoma State last week.

A quick look-in at our batting average shows that we've crept ahead a couple of notches. The totals through Saturday, September 27th, are 504 right, 168 wrong, and 19 ties, for an average of an even .750.

And finally, in the East, there's the struggle between the early leader in the race for the Lambert Trophy, undefeated West Virginia, and Penn State. We think the Nittany Lions are going to be gunned down by some fancy shooting Mountaineers . . . West Virginia by a single point.

Grain Hike Causes Food Rise

COLLEGE STATION--Food prices should increase only 3.5 to 4.5 per cent this year compared to the 14 per cent increase of last year. This is less than a one per cent increase in the Consumer Price Index, of which food accounts for just under 20 per cent.

And only a small portion of this increase in food costs is due to increased grain prices for farmers, points out an economist in marketing for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The fact is, due to a time lag, the boost in grain prices that has occurred in recent months has not yet affected retail food prices," says Dr. Russell McDonald. "Despite the fact that corn has increased 45 cents per bushel since June and wheat has gone up $1.40 and soybeans, $1.25, three to twelve months must pass before changes in grain prices show up at the retail level."

This lag varies with the production cycle of various products and with the complexity of the processing and marketing channel, explains the Texas A&M University System economist. Furthermore, the addition of services to foodstuffs in the market channel adds on the average about 60 per cent to the final retail price.

"Increased grain prices have their greatest effect on the prices of livestock products," points out McDonald, "since these products account for about half of all consumer food expenditures. Analysts with the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago estimate that a $1 per bushel increase in corn prices may boost per capita food expenditures by about 2.5 to 3.5 per cent. On the other hand, the same increase in wheat or soybean prices might increase per capita food expenditures by less than one-half per cent."

According to the economist, the increase in grain prices will cause some increase in food prices next year, but any recent food price increases are due mainly to increased processing and marketing costs. "Upward price pressures have occurred in such areas as labor, packaging and transportation in the past few years, and these will continue to push retail food costs up along with any increases in the cost of the raw food products," notes McDonald.

The Lieutenant Governor's Report

By Bill Hobby

AUSTIN—Last week's report included excerpts from a speech by John Hill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Administration, who spoke to a meeting of the nation's lieutenant governors at Point Clear, Alabama.

This week, I would like to continue with more excerpts from his speech. I believe it provides valuable insight into the thinking of President Ford's administration on the energy crisis.

"The mechanism of energy production, delivery and consumption does not involve just gasoline, or oil, or nuclear power or coal. It involves all of them and more. It is an intricate network of systems and subsystems that supplement, complement and interact with each other. You can't tamper with one without tinkering with another. And that means there is no way to replace imported oil with domestic energy unless all our resources make major contributions.

State Hay Show Offers Program

AUSTIN—For a look at some top quality hay along with new hay making equipment and exotic breeds of beef cattle, farmers and ranchers will want to attend the 1975 State Hay Show, Oct. 14, near Austin.

The show will be held at the Harold Green Farm east of Austin on Farm Road 973, with registration beginning at 9 a.m., announces Dr. Neal Pratt, forage specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Verlin Callahan of Austin is chairman of the State Hay Show Committee.

Judging of hay entries will begin at 10 a.m. along with a hay judging contest open to all attending. A special highlight of the day's activities will be an address by State Senator W.M. "Bill" Patman of Ganado on "Agriculture and Your State Government." This will follow a noon barbecue. Cambodian Premier names new Government.

"So far I have talked about balance and perceiving the problem and balance in developing solutions. But balance is also required if we are to strike the necessary equilibrium between competing or conflicting values and goals - social, economic and environmental.

"Those conflicts appear in all issues of public policy, particularly over energy issues, but they have to be resolved. For instance, one of the major apparent conflicts is between our urgent need for more domestic energy and our air quality goals.

It is at least as important as gasoline prices but receives far less attention. "Nowhere in the political arena is the need for balance more manifest or more emotionally demonstrated than in consideration of the Clean Air Act.

"Too often private citizens and public officials, wedded to one point of view or cause, see efforts to amend that act as a step backward. A request to re-examine some of the effects of the Clean Air Act is, too often, perceived as advocacy of dirty air. And that inaccurate perception becomes propoganda in the service of the cause, portraying reasonable men as reckless polluters. "The whole question of amending the Clean Air Act revolves around maintaining the gains that have so far been made and balancing the immediate need for further, marginal improvements in air quality with the needs for immediate improvement in our energy situation -- both in regard to national supplies and consumer costs.

"As we all know, the goal of reducing our oil imports depends to a very significant degree upon our ability and willingness to mine and burn coal. With this in mind, the administration submitted a number of amendments to the Clean Air Act.

"Remember that the primary goal of the Clean Air Act, as it now stands, is the protection of public health -- a goal to which the Administration is thoroughly committed. "But the Administration, in addition, is committed to greater use of coal, to an improved economic climate for that use, and to the ultimate benefits that can accrue to the American consumer because of that

use. "As the Act stands now, continuous control of sulfur dioxide would be required as soon as feasible - controls that could cost nearly $7.5 billion nationwide by 1980. "On the other hand, if the Act is amended to allow intermittent

For Rent
You're doing without a Zimmatic center pivot. Saving your hard-earned capital for other improvements. Don't want to borrow right now. But it's costing you money every year you wait. Two ways. First, you're losing the extra crop production you get under irrigation. Second, inflation is at work. Boosting prices, dropping the value of your dollars.
Why not rent a Zimmatic under our new lease plan? Let the system pay for itself and put some extra money in the bank for you at the same time. Our rates are reasonable. You can include freight, installation, pump... other "above ground" items in one flexible package, tailored to your needs. Why wait to irrigate? It's just costing you money. Call us today for details on our new lease plan.
