KENW-TV Will Have Special; Mother Corn

Southwest Indian culture and corn get a close-up examination in the half-hour special "Mother corn" on Sunday, May 29 at 5:30 p.m. on PBS.

The program describes the significance of Indian corn as both a staple of the Hopi and Pueblo Indian diet and as a religious symbol of the life plan in the native Indian religion. Modern Hopi women grind corn between stones much as they have done for centuries to make the corn bread that nourishes their people.

KBTU-TV in Provo, Utah produced the show during the summer and fall of 1977.

Producer / Director Brian Capener shot film in Arizona and New Mexico on reservations and Indian communities. He included rain dances and symbolic visits by the Kachina spirits, who symbolize the supernatural in Indian worship. The film includes interior views of closed instructional centers for the Indian religion where fewer and fewer devotees to the native religion learn about the origins of their ancestors who emerged from under the earth, so the legends say, into what is now called the Grand Canyon.

"Mother Corn" features interviews with a scientist about the wild origins of the Indian grain nearly three thousand years ago near Mexico City. A Hopi Indian artist and museum curator talks about the links of the past and present through corn in Indian culture.

Job Corps Offers Unemployed Chance

A second chance is waiting for unemployed, out-of-school young men and women 16-21 who want to learn an occupation that pays. The name of the chance is "Job Corps," says the Texas Employment Commission.

"Openings exist now for young men and women who would like to improve themselves and qualify for jobs in the labor market of today," says Lonnie Merriott in charge of the Texas Employment Commission office at 112

E. Avenue B. Enrollees in this residential training program receive room and board, medical and dental care, work clothing, a nominal allowance, and other benefits, Merriott explains.

"Job Corps strengthens basic educational skills, and offers a wide range of vocational training in job skills which are in demand today," Merriott says. "In addition, personal development is encouraged through sports, music, hobbies, student government and recreation."

The length of training depends on the individual, some completing the training program within a year, and others taking up to two years.

The Texas Employment Commission interviews and screens applicants for Job Corps openings and sends the applications to Job Corps headquarters for selection and assignment. Most enrollees can be assigned to a Co-ed center in Texas, either at Camp Gary at San Marcos, or at McKinney, Texas.

Interested Applicants should contact Texas Employment Office 112 E. Avenue B. Muleshoe, Texas, for more detailed information.

LCC Slates Encounter 78 On June 4-10

"Encounter 78" is scheduled for June 4-10 on the Lubbock Christian College Campus. Camp Director John King expects about 600 students to attend the week long program. "Because of the success in past years we have had to limit the enrollment to students entering the ninth grade up to 19 years old," King related.

Curriculum coordinator for the 1978 program will be John Paul Blankenship, youth minister for Lubbock's Broadway Church of Christ.

The week's activities will include daily classes, devotionals, discussion groups and many opportunities for fun and fellowship with others.

Cost for the camp will be $35 and will cover living in the dorm and eating in the College cafeteria.

Alaska., Year Of Decision

By December 18, Congress must deal with the biggest conservation proposal in this nation's history--to add millions of Federally-owned lands in Alaska to our systems of National Parks, Wildlife Refuges, Wild and Scenic Rivers and National Forests.

The requirement stems from section 17-D-2 of the 1971 Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, giving rise to the designation of these lands as "D-2" lands.

The D-2 issue is a complicated one which goes back 20 years to Alaska Statehood.

Before 1958, Alaska was a vast wilderness dotted with villages, a few small towns, and one small city. Its total population would have fit into the suburbs which surround some of our larger cities.

After 1958, the State government began choosing the 103 million acres of Federal land it is eligible to receive as an economic base under the Statehood Act.

When oil was discovered on the North slope in 1968, Alaska's Native people began to press their aboriginal claims before permitting construction of a trans-Alaska pipeline. Ultimately, these claims were settled by Congress with 44 million acres and nearly $1 billion in cash. The pipeline was completed last year.

These legal events were pivotal in Alaska's history. They set in motion a procedure--which continues today--for resolving the major claims on the vast state; an evolution that began with Statehood.

The D-2 process is aimed at setting aside adequate amounts of land, in the right places and of the right kinds, to protect some of the unique grader that is Alaska. Debated now centers on the question of how much is enough. Some proposals called for up to 122 million acres. Our studies indicate this was too much. We want to set aside the amount necessary to protect entire ecosystems but still leave as much as possible to State, Native and private interests for needed development.

Others have proposed as little as 25 million acres. This is clearly too little if we are to protect selected portions of Alaska's treasure--indeed, America's "Crown Jewels"--of scenic beauty and wildlife for future generations.

The recommendations we made to Congress call for 92.5 million acres--a big figure, but not excessive considering how much land is needed to support life in the Arctic region. The plan envisions 29 additions and expansions of national parks, wildlife refuges and national forests; and 33 wild and scenic rivers.

The choices were difficult, and followed many years of intensive study as we attempted to balance the nation's need for oil, gas and other minerals with the needs of wildlife and other environmental considerations. We know that in the process, we had a shot at avoiding the many mistakes that characterized settlement of the lower 48 states.

A prime example is California's Redwood National Park, where we now are buying back, for hundreds of millions of dollars, land that once was in the public domain, and which could have been kept for all Americans at no cost.

Some have said that 92.5 million acres are too much, and offhand it does add up to a rather large estate. But keep in mind that it's America's estate. This is land the American people already own.

Remember too that bigness is a relative thing in a land where a single Arctic Grizzly needs about 100 square miles of territory to survive, and where 120,000 animals in the Porcupine caribou herd migrate over millions of acres in their annual travels.

We know that once the caribou herd is broken up by exploration activity, it may never regroup again.

On the other side, geologists and mining engineers want much of this land open to exploitation because "minerals are where you find them."

In urging Congress to act favorably on our recommendations, President Carter and I are saying we have to balance development with protection. A caribou herd, a Mount McKinley, a glacier as big as Rhode Island--these, too, are "where you find them." But, unlike oil or minerals, these are unique in North America--and we know exactly where they are.

ART ASSOCIATION NEW OFFICERS...New officers installed for the 1978-79 year were; Cara Juan Schuster, president; Rheata White, first vice president; Louis Alair, second vice president; Mary Foster, secretary; Barbara Carpenter, treasurer; and Juaree Smallwood, reporter.

Mondale warns Marcos improve human rights.

Cotton Market Steady Through '78

Despite prospects for a much smaller cotton crop than last year, little improvement is seen in the current market price for the 1978 crop.

That's the assessment offered by Dr. Carl Anderson, economist in marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"World supplies of cotton will need to drop substantially below current levels before a bullish market will develop," contends Anderson. "Global stocks on August 1 are expected to be some 20 percent larger than a year earlier."

U.S. cotton in public storage on April 1 was the largest since 1969. Carryover of the 1977-78 crop this August 1 is expected to be near 5.5 million bales, almost double the amount on hand last August 1, notes the economist.

"Although cotton acreage will be down this year, near average yields should boost 1978 production to about 12 million bales. This would be near the expected disappearance of cotton for 1978," says Anderson.

While exports are strong, domestic mill use remains weak. In the first eight months of this season, exports have risen 210,900 bales over the same period a year earlier to a total of 3,085,000. At the same time, domestic mill use has fallen 163,600 bales to a total of 4,289,100. Yet consumption of manmade fibers for this period rose an equivalent of about 250 million bales, or 9 percent.

"Competition between man-made fibers and cotton remains intense," added the economist. "Cotton's share of the growing U.S. fiber market slipped to a record low of 26 percent in 1977, down from 33 percent only five years ago. And in 1960, cotton accounted for 65 percent of the fiber market."

"The U.S. fiber market is equivalent to about 25 million bales.

Partsmobile Will Follow Grain Harvest

The Partsmobile, traveling some 1500 miles from Texas north to near the Canadian border, will provide backup for hundreds of Sperry New Holland dealers, who not only maintain parts inventories but offer the latest service techniques by mechanics trained at company schools. The backup Partsmobile inventory will include parts for both Sperry New Holland conventional combines and the Twin Rotor TM TR 70 combine, as well as headers used with the machines. In addition, the dealers and traveling Partsmobile will be supplemented by a computerized network to locate the nearest available parts at any of the 17 company warehouses and two depots in North America. The Partsmobile will be stationed at nine Sperry New Holland dealer locations during the progress of the harvest. Tentative arrival dates for the Partsmobile at the locations, depending on crop ripening conditions: May 25, Vernon, Texas; June 6, Enid, Oklahoma; June 13, Greensburg, Kansas; June 27, Phillipsburg, Kansas; July 6, Gothenburg, Nebraska; July 16, Fort Pierre, South Dakota; July 25, Aberdeen, South Dakota; August 7, Mandan, North Dakota; and August 21, Minot, North Dakota.

In each of the locations, announcements will be broadcast over local radio stations to keep combine owners and operators informed of the exact Partsmobile schedule. FOR MORE INFORMATION: Dick Anglesstein, Sperry New Holland Telephone: 717-354-1251
