Farmers Welcome Additional Rain

Announcement was Monday of the appointment of Jack W. Young of Young And Green, Attorneys at Law, in Muleshoe, as an Action Council Member to the National Federation of Independent Business (NIFB) in San Mateo, Calif. and Washington, D.C.

NFIB President Wilson S. Johnson said Young is an enthusiastic business person and reflects the involvement and interest of the Action Council Members.

A series of alfalfa growers seminars will be held in mid-August for farmers in the Panhandle and North Central Texas areas and Western Oklahoma. The seminar in Muleshoe will be at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, morning. He is recuperating at his home in Muleshoe.

August 15, at the XIT Steakhouse. Bailey County Sheriff Dee Clements was released from West Plains Medical Center, Tuesday

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Bleaker had as their guests, over the weekend, all of their children and grandchildren. They are Mr. and Mrs. Max Horn, Donna, Kathy and Johnny of Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bob Man, Michael and Steven of Friona; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bleaker of Houston; and Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Bleaker of Hurst.

Hurst. They attended the Miller family reunion in Olton, Saturday evening and Sunday. About 65 people were present.

The West Camp Community family night will be Saturday night, August 12, at 8 p.m. in Center. Host and hostesses will be Mr. and Mrs. Bob Byrd and

Mrs. Louise Roark. Each family is asked to bring their favorite dessert for refreshment. The community is still collecting Betty Crocker coupons and plans will be made for the bazaar to be held in November.

* Weekend visitors in the Bob and Virginia Gage home were their children, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Gage of Amarillo, and Billy Gage of San Antonio.

Good Sam Club Gets Charter

For Local Group During a special called meeting of the Muleshoe Area Good Sams Monday night, a longawaited charter was presented. It was reported that 18 families are now members of the local organization, who formed to make recreational trips as a

According to president R.A. Bradley, all members of the Good Sams practice the Good Sam pledge which is to be a good samaritan.

Organized in June 1977, the carter is dated January 1, 1978. Officers include Bradley, president; J.W. Herington, first vicepresident; Owen Jones, second vice-president; Polly Otwell, secretary-treasurer and Jack Lenderson, legislator.

During warm months, trips are made by the group the second week of each month and during the winter the Good Sam's meet the second Monday of each month at the Muleshoe State Bank.

Wood was hospitalized at West Plains Medical Center for treatment of injuries, and Mrs. Wood was transferred to Lubbock for treatment of head and facial injuries.

At the time of the accident, a light rain was falling in the area.

Three Muleshoe girls were taken to West Plains Medical Center by Singleton-Ellis ambulance at mid-morning Tuesday following an accident approximately a mile west of Muleshoe on Highway 84.

Treated for cuts and bruises and released around noon Tuesday were Lynnette Shafer, 15, and Dorinda Shafer, 11, both daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Shafer and Glenda Willoughby, nine, daughter of Mr. Cont'd page 6, Col. 1

Bollworm Threat For Area Cotton

and tobacco budworm. James F. Leser, area Extension entomologist at Lubbock, says there is no sure way of escaping bollworm injury in some of the better cotton because of the large numbers which are due to move out of corn, some earlier-infested cotton fields and weeds.

You can cut off water to cotton during predicted egg-lay periods and make plants unattractive for an egg lay," Leser said. "This would also lower field humidity, increasing the likelyhood of an egg drying up. Rains and cooler weather we normally experience during August could offset some of the benefit derived from irrigation Bollworm and budworm egglaying activity is predicted to increase during the next several days and peak out around Aug. 17. After this, it would be anybody's guess as to what will happen, the entomologist said. Another egg-laying period is projected for the end of August in the corn-producing areas, but egg-lay could be continuous before this time.

Eggs are generally laid on the top surface of newer leaves. growth, but gradually move into larger and larger fruit. The larvae require 14 days to develop and about 14 more days to change from a worm to a moth. Thus, there are 30 days or more egg-laying cycles

"A bollworm can be expected to consume or destroy 6-8 squares, 1 bloom and 1 boll during its lifetime," Leser said. More boll damage can be expected later in the season when squares are in short

In most years, he said, farmers don't consider the bollworm to be any kind of threat. "We are guessing that even in a light year, some irrigated cotton loses up to $40 to bollworm damage." The entomologist said it is now time to start checking fields at least every three days to avoid costly damage from cropping

Bollworm eggs and newlyhatched larvae found in terminals give an early warning of possible outbreaks. Beneficials often give control before any damage occurs. Green square counts usually detect damage caused by 1/4 to 1/3 grown worms up to 3/8 inch long. Larger worms have passed the stage of effective biological control. Insecticides applied promptly as square damage counts indicate will generally hold boll damage below economic levels.

Leser advised any farmer planning to treat bollworms with an insecticide should apply the material before worms get larger, especially beyond 1/2 inch. Larger worms also begin entering bolls and are out of reach of insecticides.

"Do not use insecticides against bollworms in cotton before bloom. After bolls are present, begin treatment when 8 to 10 percent of the green squares are damaged," he said. Treatment may be delayed when beneficials are present in heavy numbers. Sometimes the use of one of the microbial insecticides such as Bactur, Dipel, Elcar or Thuracide may Cont'd page 6, Col. 1

Most farmers started turning off irrigation wells as fast moving clouds dropped a sudden downpour in Muleshoe early Tuesday afternoon. Only .4 was measured in town in the first rain, and approximately onefourth inch fell Tuesday night. However, rain measured up to two inches south and east of Muleshoe. At the Clifford Mardis home place south east of Muleshoe, two inches fell with no hail. At their Needmore farm, nearly an inch of moisture fell, with a little damaging hail. In the Pleasant Valley community, Don Bryant reported one and one half inches of rain with a small amount of pea size hail. Peanut Hawkins of the same community reported approximately the same.

Bryant said that west of the Pleasant Valley community very little rain was recorded.

The Coyote Lake Feed Yard said they received from one-half to three quarters of an inch of rain, with no hail and Raymond Gage at Circleback said rain in that community varied from one half to three fourths of an inch with no hail. Gage did say heavy hail had fallen approximately five miles east of Circleback in Lamb County.

At Needmore, Mr. L. H. Davenport said they received .8 of an inch with no hail and Foster Fertilizer at Lazbuddie reported one inch of rain Tuesday night with no hail.

Building Tips Given On Energy-Saver Home

energy can look like other houses, or almost any way you want it to, but it has to be different in several important

Your Own Energy-Saver Home or Upgrade Your Existing Home," by Roy L. Wilson, can help you stay comfortable at a greatly reduced price.

-- Flat ceilings except maybe in family rooms. -- Where heating is the major concern, least amount of walls and windows should face north; These tips, taken from "Build if front faces north, avoid Ushaped. L-shaped and long rambling houses and avoid deep entryways that trap the wind. -- Where cooling is the major concern, least amount of winsouth; shading is needed, especially on the south; consider light colored walls and roof. -- Two story houses are slightly less expensive to heat and cool but need extra awnings and shades. -- House should be zoned for air conditioning, with bedrooms clustered in one area and daytime rooms in another.

-- Hot water tanks should be "zoned," one near the kitchen and service area and one near the bathrooms, to avoid long runs of hot water piping.

-- A crawl space foundation is more energy efficient than a slab foundation (and provides a place for a heat storage tank in case a solar system is ever installed in the house). -- The base of the outer wall must be carefully sealed to the floor. For a cement floor, the base piece can be laid into a freshly spread band of new mortar and the foundation bolts tightened to draw the sill down into the cement. Alternately, a foamed-in plastic caulking material can be used. For a wood floor, the base piece must be laid into a freshly spread bead of long life caulking compound and

-- Double - glazed windows should be used exacept in the mildest climates. In particular, where electric heating is used and on the north or windy side of the house. Storm windows over double-glazed units are recommended for severe winters or summers. Reflective films and screens or tinted glass will keep the warmth of the sun out in the winter as well as the summer and must not be used with double-glazed windows.

-- If it looks like it will leak air, caulk it. Top quality caulking and weather stripping to eliminate drafts should pay for themselves in six months of lower power bills. Frequent changes of air in a house are not necessary. An air filter and an occasional open window will take care of any need for freshening the air. HEATING, COOLING

AND HOT WATER

-- In the south, or where gas is not available, consider a solar water heating system.

-- Do not leave the selection of the heating and cooling system to the contractor. Consider separate bids. In areas with moderate winters, a heat pump may pay for its moderate exatra cost the first winter.

-- Look for someone who has experience building energy efficient homes, is enthusiastic about your ideas and will give you a fair price on the features and materials you select.

-- Most new houses meet FHA Minimum Property Standards. Do not settle for that or a contractor who holds it up as a high standard. Your contract should be very specific about higher standards for insulation, windows, outer doors, attic ventilation, air conditioning system, hot water systems and prevention of air infiltration.

UPGRADING EXISTING HOUSES

-- If your bills are in the $300 a month range, and your house is not too old or rundown, you can cut the bills in half, live more comfortably and increase the resale value by upgrading. If your house needs only moderate upgrading, you can exapect 30 percent savings with the right improvements.

-- You do not have to do it all at once. Find out what you need and then do what you can right

-- One of the easiest jobs, with the greatest immediate savings, is draft elimination. Never buy cheap caulking. It deteriorates to dust in a year or tw.

-- For $10 to $20 of calking material and four to eight hours of low skill work, you can make a big difference around windows, door trims, where the walls sit on the foundation and in cracks or breaks in the outer siding. Inside, seal holes in the floor, wall openings around switches, and baseboard trim.

-- Weatherstrip doors and windows. Consider storm doors and storm windows.

-- Insulation costs more, takes longer and may require a contractor for complicated parts of the job but the sooner you do it, the sooner it will start paying for itself. The insulation in the attics, crawl spaces and outer walls can be improved.

-- To find out if your walls are insulated, you must know before you pump or blow in additional material, open the circuit breaker to remove the power from a wall switch or outlet. Remove the plate and try to see into the wall cavity. Fish around with a wire to try to bring our insulation material. If you are still not sure, drill a small hole through the inner wall and see what the drill brings out. A clean drill means no insulation. -- Hot water tanks, and sometimes, the pipes, can be insulated. Timers can be installed on electric units to turn off the heating elements during long periods of non-use, such as nighttime or work and school

-- Plant fast growing deciduous trees (will not block the sun in the winter). In the south , shade trees should be on the east and west sides of the house. Farther north, put them on the west and

Smith, who has been working with cotton harvesting problems for more than a decade, has tested the program with several farmers and worked out the 'bugs'' in the system. But he is looking for additional farmers who will fill out questionnaires and provide experience with the program. What the print-out tells the cotton farmer is: what type of cottonseed storage system should be used for the lowest cost; what combination of trailers and either module builders or rickers should be used; how many harvesters should be used; how costs are affected by different weather patterns during harvest; and how year-toyear variations in yield and acres harvested affect the optimum equipment selection and

Smith calls the program "HASP" for "Harvesting Analvsis Simulation Program." To learn whether to invest in a module builder at about $18,550 or a ricker at about $2,800, or to decide whether to buy one more trailer at $1,267, the farmer is asked to fill out a fairly detailed questionnaire.

puter includes costs of equipment, labor, taxes, insurance, maintenance and operation, along with fuel consumption rates, equipment salvage estimates, even the number of acres desiccated and weather data. 'Weather data can be provided for the program for good, bad and mediocre years," Smith said. "We also take into account the cotton that drops on the ground and never gets to the gin, the yield loss that comes with moisture loss, the decline in grade depending upon harvest times and conditions.'

Cotton Tarps Superior Preserving Fiber Value

cover their modules with need look no further than their own

Cotton tarps for covering modules provide the better protection for cotton than do plastic tarps, according to a study initiated here at McQueen Smith Farms in collaboration with Cotton Incorporated, the fiber company of American cotton producers.

Cotton tarps preserve the value of the fiber better than plastic, according to the study. The comparison showed cotton covered with a cotton tarp had a loan value of $12.29 per bale more than cotton from the same field kept under a plastic tarp.

"The primary advantage of the cotton tarp is that it allows the seedcotton in the module to breathe, it allows the water vapor to excape," explains Jim Sanford, of Prattville, Ala., who provided the facilities for the comparison test by Cotton Inc. Sanford is president of the McQueen Smith Farms.

'For the test, we made two modules of cotton on the same day, December 1, 1976, from the same field. We covered one module with a 16-ounce treated cotton tarp, and we covered the other with a reinforced plastic tarp. We left the modules on the turnrow for 35 days, until Jan. 5." says Sanford.

During that 35-day period, the modules were exposed to 5.99 inches of rainfall and a 42degree average daily temperature, explains Sanford, Both modules were ginned on Jan. 5 and lint and seed samples were taken for quality measurements. Both modules contained twelve

Cotton producers trying to with a cotton tarp averaged 11.5 decide what kind of fabric to percent moisture after ginning. compared to seed moisture of 13.3 percent for the module covered with the plastic tarp, he says. The seed grades were 108.0 for the cotton-covered module and 103.5 for the plastic-covered module. "Most importantly," says Sanford, "the lint quality showed deterioration when covered with the plastic tarp.'

From the module covered with a cotton tarp, five bales graded in the 50s and seven bales graded in the 40s. From the plastic covered module, nine bales graded in the 50s, two bales in the 40s, and one bale an 83, or below grade.

'We also had more spotted cotton from the module covered with the plastic tarp," says Sanford. "From the plastic covered module, we had one white bale, six light spotted bales, and five spotted bales.

"But from the module covered with cotton tarp, we had two white bales, ten light spotted bales, and no spotted bales." In addition, the cotton from the module covered with a cotton tarp produced longer staple than did the cotton from the module covered with plastic. From the cotton-covered module, there were six males of 1-3/32 and six of 1-1/16, while from the plastic covered module there were only three bales of 1-3/32 and nine of 1-1/16.

"Using 1976-77 loan values. that adds up to a $12.29 difference between the bales from the module covered with cotton and the bales covered with plastic." he points out.

"Considering that the cotton tarp is only about $6 to $7 more expensive than the plastic and is readily available, it is well worth it to cover your modules with cotton," Sanford comments. In addition, the module covered with cotton used 24 percent less natural gas for drying. It took 43 standard cubic feet per bale less natural gas to dry the cotton covered with the cotton

Cotton Keeps 'Em Working

How many people does the cotton industry employ?
Probably a whole lot more than you think, reports the National Cotton Council.

More than 4 million persons depend entirely or in large part on incomes directly earned from cotton. This includes those living on the farm, or ginning, storing, and marketing the crop.

Auto Insurance Down For Discrimination

State Representative Gene Green today released statistics from the State Board of Insurance which show over 36 percent of Harris County motorists and 30 percent of Dallas County motorists are presently uninsured. Statewide the average is 29 percent. At the same time he pointed to automobile insurance companies' use of underwriting guidelines and discriminatory rate classifications as a significant factor in the growing numbers of uninsured motorists in the State. Underwriting guidelines list the types of drivers and vehicles a company will not insure.

Two weeks ago Green released copies of one company's guidelines which lists married couples under 21 years of age, persons legally separated or divorces less than one year, and those engaged in certain occupations such as automobile salesman and professional athlete, as drivers the company will not unsure. Green indicated those guidelines are representative of the ones used throughout the automobile insurance industry. "By refusing to insure the young, the recently divorced. and drivers engaged in certain occupations, the insurance companies are contributing to the uninsured motorist problem, especially in the cities," Green "It is hard enough to because women insisted it is time one of them showed up there. They selected Susan B. Anthony, the woman whose crusade at the turn of the century paved the way for the 1920 adoption of the 19th Amenment giving women the right to

Getting the right to vote is considered by women as a landmark in their struggle for equal rights, and of course it is, just as centuries ago their being allowed to learn to read was another, but the trouble with the Women's Rights movement is that is never seems to go far enough. For example, when they got the right to vote what did they do? They went to the polls and voted just like men. And they still do, as the quality of officeholders we are still getting demonstrates

I will now change the subject. What I would like to see established is a National Sports Committee to comb the entire roster of professional baseball players to see if one single player can be found who is happy with his job. If one player can be found who is satisfied with his million-dollar contract for six months worth of work a year, likes the manager and the owner and the sports writers.

does not want to be traded and thinks he is lucky to be where he is, he ought to be lifted onto the committee's shoulders and carried into the Hall of Fame before he changes his mind.

I will bet if we had women baseball players in the major leagues we would not be having all those squabbles. Yours faithfully, J.A.
