Cloudburst, Hail Devastates Wide Area

Graders Fight Hail Blocking Highways

Around 7:30 p.m. Monday evening, shocked residents of a narrow band bisecting Bailey County from northwest to southeast and into Hockley County, found themselves devastated by a cloudburst and hailstorm.

First reports received in the Bailey County Law Enforcement Center were from the Longview area, where Mrs. Dean Waltrip, who resides with her family just east of the Longview church, reported windows broken out of her home on the east side.

She reported heavy rain and several inches of large hail. By the time officers reached the road to the house, they were unable to get through the deep water near her home.

Other reports started filtering into the Law Enforcement Center and Civil Defense and the Muleshoe Fire Department were mobilized and started moving into the stricken area.

Approximately three miles south of Needmore on Highway 214, they found 10-12 inches of hail on a level path across Highway 214, with a jackknifed truck and stranded cars and other vehicles. In all directions across the diagonal line across the county, devastation was being reported, injured livestock, windows knocked out of homes and out of vehicles.

County graders and State Highway Department maintainers were called out to help clear the deep hailstones off the highways and county roads. Rushing water from the sudden cloudburst quickly deepened, and steam rose, dense enough to cut off all sight.

Graders worked through the night clearing hail off the highways as officers were trying to check the damaged areas.

Tuesday morning, Bailey County Extension Agent Spencer Tanksley, who was caught in the storm between Baileyboro and Needmore on Monday night, went back and checked as much as the damaged areas as he could reach.

He said the storm, which moved from northwest on Kakawate Road across Birdwell Ranch and the Coyote Lake area, to the Longview area, then on across between Needmore and Baileyboro to Needmore Hill north of the Game Refuge, left widespread damage.

However, the county agent said the only crops which had reached any appreciable growth was the wheat crop, which would have been destroyed in the storm.

According to the path the storm took, Tanksley said the major cattle damage would be at the Birdwell Ranch. He said the main damage would be to land ready to be planted during the next two weeks which had washed out in the sudden downpour of rain. Wind would be 'devastating' at this time, he said, as the farmers could not get into their fields to fight the sand, and up to several weeks could be lost.

Lakes abound in the cloudburst area, and Tanksley said the lakes that filled could possibly keep farmers from being able to utilize that land for up to a month, until the moisture evaporates.

'Moisture received by other farms not affected by the hailstorm will be very beneficial,' he added. 'Our big problem at this time is the washed out land and washed out beds that had already been prepared.'

He expects the turbulent weather to keep the farmers out of their fields all of this week. He suggests that farmers wait and not take the chance on losing the seed and efforts to be put into producing a crop.

Some hayfields received some damage, and may not make anything for the first cutting, he added.

Although the hailstones, ranging from marble size to golfball size broke most rain gauges in the affected area, amounts of more than three inches were reported in the path of the storm.

However, just to each side of the storm path, lesser amounts of rain were received, with very light hail. Bud Street, two miles south of Coyote Lake Feedyard reported one inch of rain, and very light hail.

Coyote Lake Feedyard reported numerous injured cattle, and windows knocked out of five houses and the office at the feedlot. They also lost windshields in at least six vehicles.

J.E. Birdwell said he had received more rain faster

Curb Paint Is Approved For Kiwanis

Tuesday morning, following a brief discussion, members of the Muleshoe City Council approved a request by the Muleshoe Kiwanis Club to paint house numbers on curbs throughout the city.

According to the request, the Kiwanis Club, in conjunction with members of the Muleshoe Junior High School band, will paint house numbers for every house in the city, explained City Manager Dave Marr.

They will ask for a voluntary contribution of the home residents after the sign is painted, according to Kiwanian R.A. Bradley. He said the process will facilitate emergency vehicles in locating addresses when necessary.

All proceeds will be used to help purchase uniforms for the junior high school band.

They approved payment of a portion of the cost of drilling a new water well on West Ninth Street and City Manager Marr said the well now pumps about 260 gallons per minute. He said the well is still pumping some sand at this time.

Following a discussion of rentals charged at the Muleshoe Airport for hangars, it was determined to get costs of repairing the hangars and doors and the possibility of prorating rental payments until the repairs are completed.

Council members also discussed the status of planned new lights for the runway and installation of the new lighting system.

with no discussion, the council approved placing two new street lights in West Muleshoe. The street lights will be at the entrance streets on both the east and west side of the Bailey County Exhibition Center and Coliseum. According to a letter mailed to the city manager, parking lot lights will be completed at the coliseum within two weeks.

Marr told councilmen that 114 notices had been mailed to owners of junked or abandoned vehicles, and around 80 vehicles have been moved at this time. An auction will be conducted in the near future to dispose of more than 10 vehicles impounded and in storage.

Council members approved conducting a city council meeting on May 29 in lieu of the first meeting regularly scheduled in June.

CofC Moves Downtown

Tuesday afternoon, the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture moved to new quarters near downtown Muleshoe. They will be located at 104 East Avenue C, across the street south of the Muleshoe City Hall.

Formerly housed at the Muleshoe City Hall, the CofC moved to the Bailey County Exhibition Center and Coliseum when it was opened last September.

However, the directors determined they could better serve the public by relocating. Phone numbers for the CofC remain the same, at 272-4248 and Linda Lee is secretary. No manager has been hired as yet to replace Tommy Black, who resigned to become manager of the Exhibition Center and Coliseum.

Mrs. Lee said the P.O. Address of the CofC is P.O. Box 356, Muleshoe, Texas, 79347.

A LAKE BEGINS TO FORM...With ominous black clouds hovering overhead, and white hailstones glistening in the foreground, a lake quickly formed on FM 2487, approximately two miles south of FM 746. Scarcely visible in the darkening evening on Monday, is a white ridge of hailstones lightening the area between the background and sky. Hail piled up to six inches deep in this area. Damage to homes, vehicles and injuries to livestock were reported during the storm.

Stovall, Shanks Win Fighting Heart Award

Winners of the coveted 'Fighting Heart' awards at the Muleshoe High School Athletic Banquet Tuesday night were Jeep Shanks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Shanks and Karen Stovall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Stovall.

They were chosen on the basis of consistency, tenacity, effort and other attributes. Making the presentation at the banquet was Mike Wartes, athletic director for the Muleshoe Schools.

Guest speaker at the banquet, conducted to honor all students in all sports was Coach Burl Huffman, longtime coach at Texas Tech University, Lubbock.

He reminded the athletes, "Bear in mind you have been a student who has had a rare privilege. You have played high school athletics. You have attended a classroom where coaches have taught something that can't be taught anywhere else."

He told the youth they had been taught character, training habits, competitiveness, the will to win and how to compete against adversity.

"Adversity breaks a lot of people," he commented, "but it also causes a lot of people to break records."

Coach Huffman said athletics involves learning what to do and how to do what has to be done.

"I want that boy who will do what he has to do when it has to be done," emphasized the coach, "I don't want that good ole boy who performs the same all the time. I want that ole boy who will bow his neck and defend that line like a mother her young. I want that ole boy who has that unquenchable desire to score, to do what he has to do to win."

He concluded, "Athletics are an integral part of the American educational system. We need athletics run by good Christian athletic people."

Muleshoe High School athletes amassed the following records during the year:

In football, the Mules were AA Bi-District Champions. Receiving All District Honors were Mike Northcutt, Sam Whalin, Brent Burrows, Charles Briscoe, James Atwood, Jeep Shanks, Dickey Sudduth, Doug Cowan and Terry Shafer. Honorable mention All District were Mark Harmon and Zeke Pecina.

All South Plains Honors went to Mike Northcutt, Charles Briscoe, Doug Cowan, Dickey Sudduth, Sam Whalin and Jeep Shanks and honorable mention All South Plains was Brent Burrows.

National Defense Spending Discussed By Sen. Tower Spending

Declaring the Congress as without vision and unwilling to accept its responsibility to respond to the sentiment of the country in maintaining the United States of America "in a No. 1 position in defense capability", Senator John Tower Wednesday night withdrew an amendment he had offered to the Senate's Budget Resolution which would have strengthened the spending for national defense.

"What we respond to in Congress is well organized, highly vocal, well-disciplined pressure groups that have political clout; and their clout, in the aggregate, exceeds that of the general public. So I have no faith, that we are going to respond to the popular will, that we maintain the United States of America in a No. 1 position in national defense capability, because we will not discipline ourselves to establish an order of priorities and make our spending cuts in the lower priority items," Tower said during a late-night Senate session.

Tower's amendment, reflecting the position of the Senate Armed Services Committee, on which he is the ranking Republican member, would have increased the President's budget request by $1.6 billion in new budget authority and by $6 billion in outlays for fiscal year 1980. The amendment would also have restored some $4 billion in new authority and $1.7 billion in outlays deleted from the budget resolution by the Budget Committee.

Texas 'tycoons'

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.) — Seventeen of the nation's major corporations have alumni of The University of Texas at Austin as their chief executive officers, a recent survey shows.

For example, Texas-Exes head Texaco (fifth largest industrial corporation), Gulf Oil (eighth largest), Shell Oil (14th largest) and Tenneco (19th largest).

Other UT-trained executives are at the helms of Texas Instruments, Southwestern Life, Penzoil, Braniff International, Texas Commerce Bancshares, American Petrofina, B.F. Goodrich, Southland, Tesoro Petroleum and Witco Chemical.

Daily frustrations

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.) — Try to drink water from a fountain while seated in a wheelchair and you may get a face full of water. Try to button a sweater with your thumb taped to your fingers.

Those are among special "handicap" exercises being tried out on University of Texas administrators whose jobs involve working with students who have physical disabilities.

Through sensitivity workshops, the UT administrators experience some of the everyday frustrations of the handicapped while gaining new appreciation for the resourceful ways the handicapped adapt other senses and abilities to manage tasks.

"I strongly support the goal of a balanced budget," Tower declared, but added, "...I firmly believe they (the Budget Committee) have erred in their determination that the national defense budget can be decreased below the President's recommendation for fiscal year 1980. If economies are to be made at a time when we are faced with a growing external threat, then they must be made in other non-defense areas. We must not compromise our nation's security as a gesture of fiscal restraint. The American public has indicated time and again that it will not stand for this and will demand we do otherwise."

Acknowledging the importance of social and domestic programs, as well as a balanced budget, Tower, nonetheless, declared that if the Congress continued to achieve budget economies by cutting, "It out of anything and everything and not establishing priorities at all," in ten years the U.S. would be isolated in the world, leaving political and economic, as well as military, dominance to the Soviet Union.

Citing a lack of "vision" on the part of the Congress, the senior Texas senator concluded his remarks with a passage from the Proverbs, "Where there is no vision the people perish."

Pocketsize booklet offers Texas facts

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.) — A new pocketsize booklet from the Bureau of Business Research at The University of Texas distills into 93 pages many of the pertinent facts about Texas.

"Texas Fact Book 1978," through maps and figures, gives a quick reference to many aspects of Texas including its geography, population, income, employment, manufacturing, trade, agriculture and dozens of others.

Among nuggets of data contained in the volume are: The median age of Texas males is 26.6 years; the Killeen-Temple area had the greatest population increase of any other Texas region between 1970 and 1976.

It is mean to do wrong even when we do not mean to do wrong.

Ex-Astronaut Says Public Backs Competition As Inflation Hedge

Former astronaut James Lovell reports he finds a rapidly developing mood in America for the sort of tough, health competition in U.S. business that made the Apollo moon program a huge success.

He credits the tightened economic situation in America and rapid inflation for moving such concepts as "free enterprise" and "tough competition" out of the board room and chambers of commerce and into the living room.

"The public's view is that competition means protection from inflation and some of the other economic pressures bearing down on all of us," he said.

"The public also is becoming increasingly aware that competition must be protected in this modern world, that without safeguards a competitive marketplace that serves their needs can be turned by a few giants into a monopoly market that ultimately will mean rising prices, fewer consumer options and deteriorating service."

Lovell, who made two Apollo trips to the moon before retiring from the Navy, has crisscrossed the nation many times in the past two years sharing not only his experiences as an astronaut, but also his belief that it is "time to get back to basics in our economy."

During his speeches, Lovell says the tough competition of the space program enabled American astronauts to land on the moon first and on schedule. He tells audiences that if one huge contractor has been solely responsible, as some suggested at the start, "we will could still be waiting for the first man to walk on the moon."

Now the president of Fisk Telephone Systems, Inc., which sells telephone systems to business and government, Lovell has become a well-known figure in Washington where he has argued before congressional panels for action to ensure that new competition in U.S. telecommunications is not lost to a new monopoly controlled by telephone carriers.

Lovell is a director of the North American Telephone Association, a Washington-based average American today understands that competition has proven itself over and over as the way to get innovative products in wide selections to the public at reasonable prices," he says. "This is true not only in the communications industry but for most of the rest of the economy. I think Americans distrust market domination by one industrial giant even if the giant's services and products are acceptable."

Currently both houses of Congress are considering legislation that would make permanent the competition Lovell's firm and others have brought in to the telephone industry.

Your outcome in life depends upon what you "go in for".

Beef Import Bill Draws Testimony

Senator Lloyd Bentsen on Monday urged a Congressional panel to give swift approval to the Bentsen Countercyclical Beef Import Bill.

The Bentsen bill, approved by Congress last year but vetoed by the President, would reverse the pro-cyclical formula in the existing, 1964 Meat Imports Act.

"The need for a countercyclical meat import law is obvious. It is good for both producers and consumers. It will help to smooth out the boom and bust swings in the cattle market that are so damaging to everyone," Bentsen said in testimony Monday before the House Ways and Means Subcommittee on Trade.

"My bill was vetoed last year mainly because it restricted the President's now almost unlimited authority to determine meat import quota levels. My new bill, introduced this year, contains less stringent limitations on Presidential discretion than did the vetoed bill."

Under the modified Bentsen bill introduced in the current Congress the President could raise import quotas only in case of a national emergency or natural disaster, at a time when domestic beef supplies are bountiful. The bill would, however, leave the President his existing broad authority when domestic supplies are short and the countercyclical formula is increasing imports.

proach proposed by Bentsen would allow fewer beef imports into this country when domestic supplies are abundant and more imports when domestic supplies dwindle. The pro-cyclical approach in the existing law has the reverse effect, allowing more imports as domestic supplies increase.

"Revision of the Meat Import Act of 1964 is long overdue and the need for it is widely recognized," Bentsen said.

Location predicted of Mexican quake

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.) — A year in advance, University of Texas geophysicists predicted almost exactly the location and severity of a major earthquake that shook Mexico in November 1978.

The quake's epicenter was within 20 miles of the UT prediction.

The geophysicists (from UT Austin's Marine Science Institute in Galveston) for some time had been setting up in Central America one of the world's most advanced seismic networks to gather data on stresses in the earth that may foretell earthquakes and volcanic eruptions. Clues being yielded by the network of above-ground and ocean-bottom instruments can be used to prepare maps showing areas of "seismic risk."

The simplicity of the child and the profundity of the sage must be combined to make a perfect man.

Toll Free Book 'Cuts' Expenses

Despite ever increasing telephone rates, a businessman has come up with a way to save on your telephone bill.

Called Toll Free Digest, it is a directory of the "800" toll free telephone numbers that customers can call at no charge for information and service. The cost of the call is charged to the company who rents the number from the phone company.

Paul Montana published the directory that the phone company won't publish, after being frustrated trying to make a hotel reservation to visit his son on Parent's Weekend. Knowing the hotel chain near the campus had an "800" number, but unable to locate it, Montana finally had to make a long-distance call to reserve a room. Montana wondered out loud to his wife why there wasn't a central listing of all of the toll free numbers, and then decided to do something about it.

Three years later, Montana, with the help of his family, sold the first Toll Free Digest. Now is its fourth edition, the book contains over 17,000 listings including categories from Airlines to Wallpaper.

"In addition to making hotel reservations, renting cars and other travel related services, toll free numbers are used by many businesses to sell their products," Montana relates. "One of my sons bought a roll top desk using an "800" number and the other one purchased an exhaust system for his car."

One of the most interesting categories is Public Services, containing listings for many government agencies, health information, colleges, Senior Citizens Hotlines and a number for runaway children.

"As more and more companies become consumer oriented," Montana says, "they are adding toll free numbers for their customers to use if they have a complaint or need product information. These are useful for both the housewife and the company purchasing agent."

The book, of course, is still very useful for anyone who travels, with hotels listed by state and city. In the airline section it does contain some local numbers, but this is because the airlines told Montana they could service customers better this way.

For more information and how to order, write: Toll Free Digest, Box 800, Claverack, N.Y. 12513. As it says on the cover, it is "The book that pays for itself the first time you use it."

Compare the Spray Sickle with the conventional box type...

Just look at the differences!

The Spray Sickle is front mounted - and the Box Type is rear mounted. The Spray Sickle as a broadcast unit may be used for standard row spacings - broadcast crops - narrow or wide row spacings - skip row - forage, hay and pasture crops as well as pre-plant applications. The Box Type may be used for standard row spacing only. These are obvious differences... the less obvious differences make the big difference in performance and results!

The Spray Sickle solves a lot of problems the Box Type can't!

Window shades do powerful "blocking" -- for energy - saving touch-downs.

Opaque, light-colored shades block air flow better than draperies and venetian blinds, saving up to 21 cents on every home-cooling dollar and eight cents on each home-heating dollar.

Since glass in windows conducts heat, window shades save energy by blocking the passage of heat through the glass itself.

Window shades reduce heat gain in a home from the summer sun by 63 percent, and they prevent 24-31 percent heat loss in the winter.

PROPER INSTALLATION
For maximum energy-saving, install window shades inside the window frame about one inch from the glass.

That sets up an effective barrier between the glass and the shade. The one-inch of dead air space acts as insulation.

Be sure the shade "fills" the window space as much as possible, leaving only the narrowest margin possible between the shade and the window frame.

PROPER USE OF SHADES

For the biggest energy savings in the summer, pull shades down during hot, sunny parts of the day.

That will deflect the sun's hot rays and keep their heat from building up inside the house -- and that will save home-cooling energy.

Raise the shades during early morning, evenings and nights -- to allow cooler air inside and reduce the need for air conditioning.

The Marshall ROTC Award was authorized by the Army in 1976 and reflects General Marshall's concern for the quality of our country's reserve office training, added the spokesman. STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — After sometimes petty, sometimes passionate debate, the Texas House this week passed a beefed-up version, at least where salaries are concerned, of a state budget.

The price tag on the House spending plan for 1980-81 is $20.3 billion. Gov. Bill Clements says that's about $600 million too much. House members increased various salaries by almost $200 million. Clements had made it clear long before the House began its work that he was against many of those pay hikes.

It took the House four days and part of a fifth to finish the initial step in the appropriations process that now moves on to the Senate. Afterwards, the budget will probably be hammered out in a conference committee, and then, the governor must approve it.

Acting as if they didn't know Clements had threatened to veto teacher pay hikes that exceeded 5.1 percent, House members voted teachers a 7 percent raise for 1980 and 1981, on top of step increases. That amounts to a 20 percent increase in pay for teachers over the next two years. Teachers say that will just about keep them up with the inflation rate.

The House also approved raises for Department of Public Safety troopers (40 percent, state employees who make less than $20,000-a-year (seven percent), district judges (14.8 percent) and district attorneys (36.7 percent). It must be pointed out that everytime legislators raise district judges salary, they raise the amount of their own retirement pay which is based on a certain percentage of a district judge's yearly salary.

When the House was finished only $530 million in state funds was left unspent. Remember, school finance is still to come.

After several emotional speeches, the tedious work of approving the two-inch thick appropriations bill crept along punctuated by a bomb scare that came at the end of a long day of debate, legislators' giving the "Hook'm Horns" sign and singing the "Eyes of Texas" when discussing teacher salaries at UT.

The Governor

At almost the same moment Gov. Clements was announcing at a press conference that he wouldn't say what he would do if the Legislature passes to his desk a separate presidential primary bill, the House was attaching a rider to the appropriations bill that would prohibit the use of state funds for any primaries other than those in May.

Clements, who in effect killed legislation raising home loan interest rates by his announcement that he would veto such a bill, said the issue of a presidential primary was the Legislature's "baby," and that lawmakers should do their duty and vote without waiting to see what he will do if the bill reaches his desk.

From now on, Clements seemed to be saying, lawmakers would no longer have advance notice of how the governor would act regarding certain pieces of legislation. "We are not going to play this game that way," Clements declared.

The way the Senate was playing this week left the governor with little to cheer about. Senators rejected attempts to bring up legislation that would have given Clements budgetary powers. Senators opposing the bill said it would have given the governor the power to almost rewrite the budget. Opposition forces were quick to point out that the Senate also refused to give such powers to Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Wiretap Bill

Wiretap legislation that Clements supports emerged from a Senate subcommittee this week even though the bill's author had pronounced the legislation "dead" only a week before. The bill would legalize electronic surveillance in hard drug cases. Sen. Ed Howard, sponsor of the wiretap legislation, appeared to have the votes necessary to move the measure out of the Jurisprudence Committee and onto the Senate floor.

And, when more than 5,000 union workers descended on the State Capitol this week, chanting "Kill that bill!" in protest against legislation that would repeal the prevailing wage law, Clements, true to his earlier statements, said he had no opinion on the bill. "I do have an opinion about them being a little quieter," Clements said iokingly while tradesmen in hard hats and carrying their lunchpails swarmed over the Capitol Building in one of the largest protests since the days of the Vietnam War.

Short Shorts

Those who had been biting their fingernails over an economy that had grown by 6.9 percent in the final quarter of 1978 breathed a sigh of relief this week when numbers released showed a growth rate of only 0.7 percent in the first quarter of this year. The "overheated" economy that had been roaring along at the end of 1978 was supposedly one of the contributing factors to the ever-increasing inflation rate.

Another economic note—statistics released this week show major corporations with hefty increases in their profits during the first quarter of this year. Texaco's profits were up almost 80 percent in that period, and Exxon's increased by more than 35 percent.

Finally, the Senate version of Rep. Wayne Peveto's tax reform bill, sponsored by Grant Jones of Abilene, slipped out of the Senate Finance Committee this week.

The Jones-Peveto bill would set up single appraisal units for each city, school district and special district in a county. Hopefully, the legislation would create standards and guidelines by which property could be taxed locally and state-wide in an equitable fashion with homeowners and commercial interests paying their fair share of the tax burden.

During the last two legislative sessions, Peveto's bill ended up buried in the Senate Economic Development Committee.

NCC Urges--Stop Paying Witnesses

The National Cotton Council has strongly urged the U.S. Department of Agriculture to drop consideration of a proposal for paying the expenses of witnesses to testify in its hearings.

Macon Edwards, vice president of the Council's Washington operations, told USDA officials at a hearing in DC that such a practice would seriously endanger the democratic system of government.

He said the proposal gives a government agency the power to select and solicit witnesses whose viewpoints coincide with its own, and to deny the payment of expenses for witnesses opposing the agency's view.

"The result would be a stacked hearing record justifying what the agency proposed to do in the first place, thus enabling government to impose its will on the people," Edwards stated. "The very foundation and strength of our democratic society is the people's control of government, not government control of the people."

While saying he did not expect such abuses to occur in USDA, Edwards expressed great concern that the proposal would establish a precedent for other government agencies.

He commended USDA's effort to facilitate input from all those affected by its rulemaking, but said the fact that the Department has offices in virtually every county in the nation allows it to have day-to-day contacts with the people its rules affect.

Edwards also pointed out that the proposal would require additional federal spending at a time when efforts are being made to dampen inflation. As an example, he cited the proposed $3.3 million cut in agricultural research.

"Not by the wildest stretch of the imagination can we see benefits from the proposal before us today even approaching those of a stronger, better-financed research program," he commented. "It's hard to understand how paying witnesses could take priority over research."

The Council official said cotton industry people -- as taxpayers -- strenuously object to having their tax

NATURAL COVER BEST

Any soil disturbed either on purpose or by accident will grow weeds which can fill the food and cover requirements for upland game birds in Texas.

"These weeds are normally very high in protein and for that reason, livestock should be controlled or fenced out if the weed patch is intended for wildlife," said Richard DeArment, extension wildlife biologist.

"Weeds or cover in or near playa lakes in northwest Texas are also very important and they should also be ungrazed, unburned and cultivated to stimulate weed growth," DeArment continued.

If livestock is to graze on land intended for wildlife habitat, it is best to plant a variety of plant that cattle or deer won't eat such as the partridge pea. This plant is drought resistant and will reseed itself each spring.

If you are lucky enough to have a tree shelterbelt on your property, you already are furnishing wildlife with some cover. However, many mature tree rows are being overgrazed and areas should be fenced to keep livestock out. Not only must the shelterbelts have trees but undercover also such as weeds or shrubs.

Cultivated crops such as wheat, sunflowers, maize, corn, or other grains are equally important to game birds. Their use by wildlife will increase many fold if they are planted near natural cover.

Upland birds are establishing their nesting areas now and cultivation of the remnants of cover left after the hard winter should be restricted during this period.

All chemical spraying, if necessary, should be done as far as possible from the wildlife nesting areas.

More assistance and information on improving your wildlife habitat is available by writing Richard DeArment, Extension Biologist, P&WD, Box 122, Wheeler, Tx. 79096.

GAME WARDENS

ASSIST WITH DISASTER RELIEF

Several Texas game wardens were assigned to Wichita Falls area to assist in curfew patrol and search for potential storm victims following the disastrous tornado that struck there recently.

The Lubbock law enforcement region furnished 13 men over a weeks period as clean-up operations and nightly patrols continue in Wichita Falls.

Although the warden's prime duties are game, fish and water safety enforcement, they are trained in disaster relief wherever it occurs in Texas.

The wardens patrol vehicle and radio equipment were utilized to relay messages between the Wichita Falls police department, county sheriffs' officers and the Alcohol Beverage Commission personnel.

As life following a disaster of this type nears the daily routine of clean-up and rebuilding, the wardens will head back to their assigned districts.

MANAGEMENT AREAS PRODUCE GOBBLERS

The first weekend of a three weekend spring turkey hunt has netted six hunters with gobblers on the Gene Howe and Matador Wildlife management areas in northwest Texas.

Each WMA had three gobblers bagged by permit holders as 17 sportsmen made the hunt on the Matador area and 10 sportsmen arrived for the hunt on the Gene Howe area.

A 20 lb. gobbler was the largest bird bagged according to Vernon Morse, Howe area manager and was harvested by E.B. Telford of Amarillo. One hunter traveled all the way from Point Blank, Texas, located near Conroe for the hunt.

The spring hunts will continue through May 5 for additional permit holders. Only shotguns are allowed for the hunt making it necessary for the hunters to either call or get the wise old gobblers to come within range.

Most of the hunters saw turkeys according to Charles Boyd, Matador area manager, and all enjoyed the first spring turkey hunt ever held in the Panhandle/ South Plains.

AG Decides TCA Wrong In Pricing

The Texas Farm Bureau has been officially notified that the state attorney general's office has decided that the Texas Cotton Association is violating anti-trust laws in requiring its members to charge producers for cotton bales which fail to meet a specified weight requirement, according to Don Petty, assistant commodity director for Texas Farm Bureau.

Texas Farm Bureau has been working with the attorney general's office in an effort to eliminate these cotton bale weight penalties which are presently required under the Texas Cotton Association's trade rules. The TCA is an association of cotton merchants organized to establish trade rules for the cotton industry in Texas.

The board of TCA meets on April 30 to decide whether to comply with the attorney general's decision. If TCA decides to comply, a letter will be sent to all its buyer members stating that the buyers are released from the presently required bale weight penalties.

"We think it is clear that the Texas Cotton Association has been violating the law," said Ridge Pate, staff attorney for Texas Farm Bureau.

Linda Aaker, assistant chief of the state anti-trust division, says that, "the attorney general's office is prepared to sue for court judgment if the TCA board does not comply with the decision."

The controversial penalty schedule was devised and put into effect by the merchants' trade group five years ago, and the odd-weight bale penalty is believed to be costing farmers up to $1 million annually.

Dark Ages In Iran

The loss of oil production, and higher oil prices, are not the worst disaster which has recently engulfed Iran. The greatest tragedy is that this country and people have taken a step backward into the dark ages of religious fanaticism.

The renewal of executions of former government leaders, officials who were loyally obeying the accepted crown and authority in that country at the time, are especially reprehensible. The charges which are producing the sentences handed down by revolutionary courts send a chill down the spine of every thinking individual.

Such crimes as "battling against God" were heard in Europe as late as the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, when men were killing each other in wholesale numbers in the name of God. Catholic-backed armies were burning every man, woman and child who wouldn't renounce Protestantism at the stake in some countries, and awful retaliation was, in return, often meted out by Protestants.

Religious faith is a blessing which has accomplished much good in the world. On the other hand, narrow religious interpretations and religious intolerance have probably cost the western world more lives than any other single cause. The wave of religious fanaticism sweeping Iran today is of an especially dangerous composition, inimicable to the best interests of women and a travesty on justice and human rights.

The Superstation

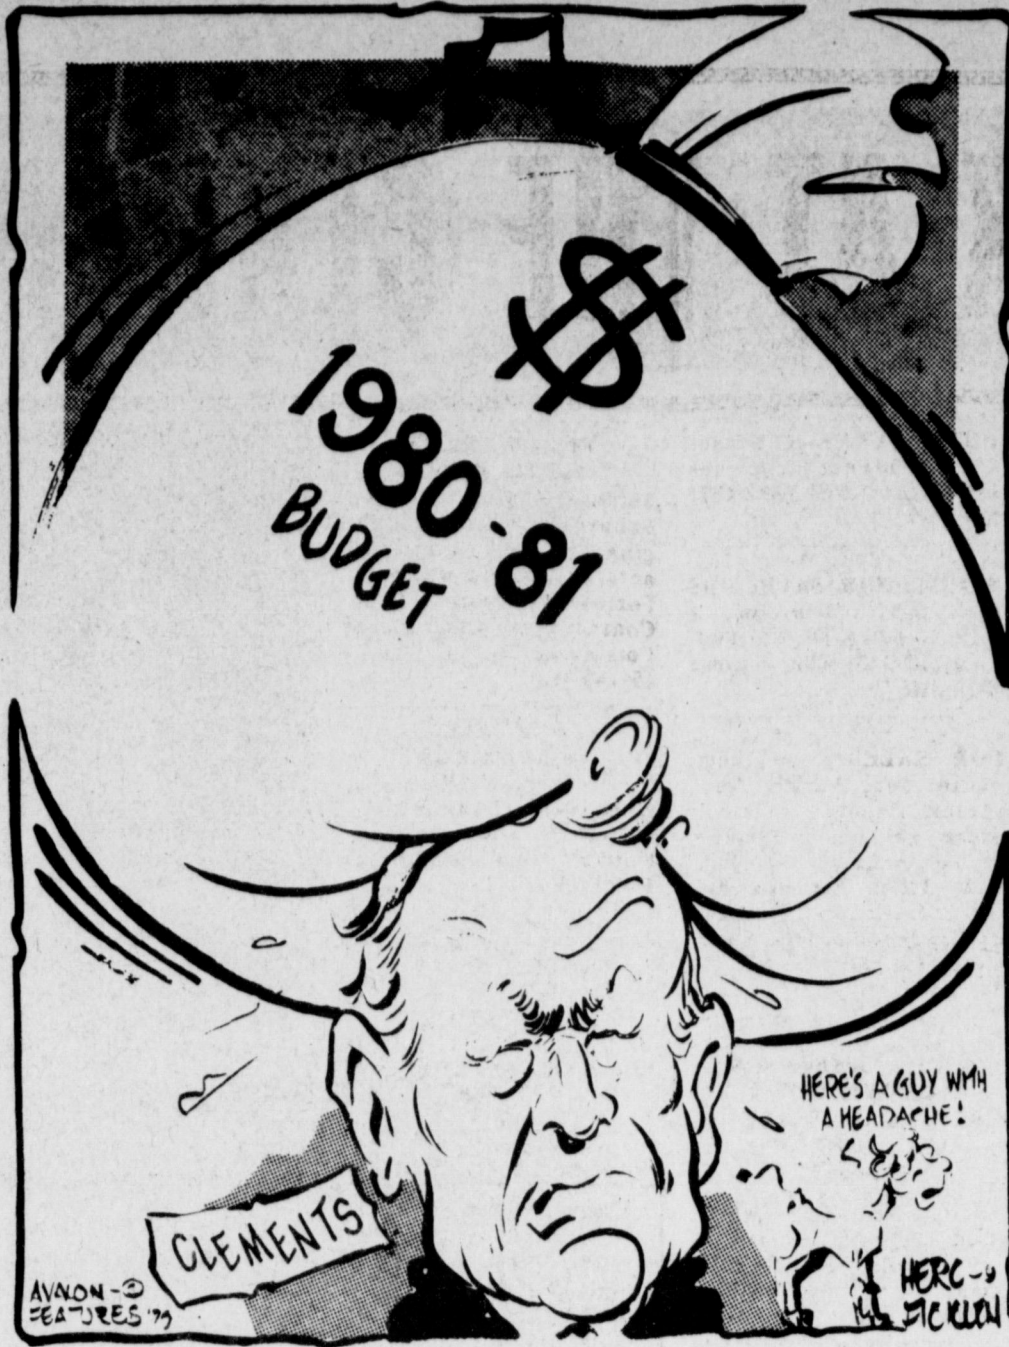

The best hope of breaking the near-monopoly of three commercial television networks may be the superstation. A TV superstation sells its programs, via satellite, to cable TV systems over a wide area. That's where its income comes from, not from the networks.

There are now several superstations--WTCG in Atlanta, KTVU in Oakland, WGN in Chicago, WPIX in New York and WCVB in Boston. Some haven't yet expanded to the degree WTCG has but, if legal arrangements can be made, most of them probably will.

WTCG of Atlanta may soon begin to produce its own evening news program, which would be a blessing for America and a safeguard for the nation. So long as three New York-based networks compile and control content of the three evening news shows a hundred million Americans sometimes see, they have an ominous power over U.S. public opinion. In short, they can make it what they want it to be--to a surprising degree.

There's no such danger in the news print field, for there are so many different newspapers. The "triopoly" of the networks, however, limits VHF programs to those which attract the greatest possible number of morons and ignorant, impressionable people (for sales purposes) and usually bars programs of a higher intellectual appeal which might, for example, attract only a few million educated or cultured viewers. This kind of system, catering to the base element, can never substantially uplift the national standard of culture and education.

Thus the hope of thinking Americans is that the number, success and broad range of programming of the superstations will continue to grow; the policy of the F.C.C. and the Carter Administration should be to see that this is the case.

JOHN ADAMS IN WASHINGTON

The Tax Payer-IRS Advice-Tax Payer's Peril-
By John Hanly Adams
WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Senator John A. Durkin, Democrat of New Hampshire, has come up with a lovely idea that isn't going anywhere, probably. Briefly, the Senator wants Congress to compel the Internal Revenue Service to "follow elemental principles of fair play" and honor any commitments made by an agent advising a taxpayer. The Senator makes his case this way when introducing his plan:

"It is true that any one of us can call up an IRS hotline and ask for tax advice . . . and usually the agents are helpful and courteous. Unfortunately the good news ends there. For the same question asked of several IRS agents often elicits diametrically opposite answers. "Some of the answers may be right, some may be wrong. But the average taxpayer believes that the IRS ought to know what it is talking about, and naturally will rely on what the IRS officer tells him. Often he relies on this information to his cost. For the IRS feels no compunction in sheltering behind the ancient legal shibboleth that the Government is not bound by the actions of its officials. And so the unfortunate taxpayer finds himself saddled with penalties and interest charges and perhaps other types of liability, all because he was foolish enough to listen to a representative of his Government."

"It is difficult to imagine a more pernicious practice. It is past time for this practice to end. Therefore I am introducing today a measure to require the IRS to stand behind the representations of its agents . . . Under the bill, if an Internal Revenue Service employe acting in his or her official capacity answers a question from a taxpayer about his liability, the answer is binding upon the Service. The taxpayer is entitled to rely upon the answer and the Service is estopped from assessing any deficiency, penalty or interest attributable to wrong advice."

"This estoppel applies to all erroneous advice given in writing. It also applies to all oral advice with respect to more than $100 in tax liability. In order to prevent confusion and possible misrepresentations, the bill requires that whenever an IRS employe gives oral advice involving more than $100 in possible tax liability, the employe is required to make a contemporaneous record of the advice."

Senator Durkin's office said he got the idea after calls from constituents irate about wrongful IRS advice. The IRS refused to comment, but a spokesman pointed out that it would be impossible to prove exactly what a taxpayer asked, and what he was told, without voluminous written records that would be vastly expensive. Tape recordings might be an answer, but would raise privacy fears. The IRS noted that a 1976 law for the first time authorized IRS to "forgive" interest penalties where the IRS itself makes out a return, and errs. That's only when the return is stamped "IRS prepared." When an agent just "advises," you rely on his word at your peril.

The Speaker Reports
by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN--Various bills have been filed in the Texas Legislature that propose to reduce government red tape on gasohol production permits and will possibly lower cost of production. I have been working and will continue to work with private industry, farmers and State government to make gasohol a reality in Texas not just an idea.

Last week I obtained 20 gallons and tried it in my personal automobile; the car never ran better.

As a farmer you can take your present food and feed energy production system into the production of other forms of energy. The alcohols, ethanol, methanol, methane and solid cellulose fuels, are your other energy products.

When agriculture is properly identified as an "energy production system," producing food energy, feed energy, and that its present excess capacity is available for fuel energies, then you see the need for 100% production of all forms of farm energies.

"Agriculture" is the only energy production system that produces 1 pound of food energy with each 1 pound of alcohol fuel energy produced. The fossil fuel merchants can't make that claim.

The surplus energy production capacity of agriculture is presently being shut down by the "set aside acres" program. These "set aside acres" should be re-identified as "energy acres" with the excess starch and sugar converted to alcohol fuel additives/chemicals for industry.

duction capacity of agriculture is presently being shut down by the "set aside acres" program. These "set aside acres" should be re-identified as "energy acres" with the excess starch and sugar converted to alcohol fuel additives/chemicals for industry.

The tools of conversion (alcohol plants) are the only thing that hold the farmer out of these energy markets. Just as the farmer owns tractor, combines, elevators and feed mills, he now needs "alcohol plants" to complete his line of machinery.

Alcohol plants should be sized from on the farm size to local elevator size to large commercial size. All of them should be matched to the available supply of raw material to best serve the food, feed and fuel processing system.

The Arabs have raised the price of fossil energy to industrialize their nations while their supplies last. The alcohol fuels from the American farms can be produced as long as the sun shines and the rain falls. The development of the alcohol fuels program is the guarantee to America of both food and fuels.

Gasohol is the start -- total renewable fuel supply is the end product.

The MJHS Student Council held their annual movie on Friday, April 27. This year the movie was "Three On A Couch." There was laugh-loaded action with Jerry Lewis starring as an artist engaged to Janet Leigh, a psychiatrist who will not marry him until she has cured three beautiful patients of their man-hating neuroses. Since he has just won a trip to Paris for two, Jerry is anxious to hasten his own wedding and therefore undertakes simultaneously to "woo" each of the girls.
The movie was for the student body only and the admission was 50 cents.

Letters To The Editor

Editor of The Muleshoe Journal
Muleshoe, Tx., 76347

Dear Sir:
Being a former resident of Muleshoe and also a subscriber to your paper, my husband and I want to thank you and your staff for your concern for the people of Wichita Falls who suffered losses to the recent tornado which struck here. We also want to thank Gil Lamb, with KMUL, and their staff for their efforts.
I am enclosing a copy of the company that my husband, Dennis, works for's newspaper. We bought this home on March 1, 1979 and had been living in it only about 30 days when it was almost completely destroyed.
We feel fortunate to have survived this unhrut and also for the many friends and neighbors who have helped as you all have.
Sincerely,
Tootsie Carlson
