

Rehearsals Start For 1979 'Texas'

Rehearsals for "TEXAS" the musical drama of panhandle history which plays in the Palo Duro Canyon, have begun for the fourteenth season. For the first weeks they will take place on the campus of West Texas State University and then they will move to the theatre in the Palo Duro Canyon.

They will be easier this year because the three year building program in the theatre is almost finished. Workmen are putting the last touches on the addition to the men's dressing room which will double the space the men have had. New showers are in, to the delight of those who play the role of Indians. The costume shop is enlarged, and a small electrical building house equipment to increase the power coming to the theatre and facilitate its use, is finished.

The audience will notice a difference too, since the men's rest rooms have been enlarged.

These improvements complete the three year building program which the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation undertook in 1977. It has included permanent installation to two rows of seats in the rear, a new exit from the theatre, new side stage buildings and new sets for their use, a new entrance into the parking lot, a cast building back stage, in addition to the work just being finished. The total cost has been $1,518,897. The work this year was a state project and the bid was $46,650. The rest of the construction was financed through special gifts to the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation -- including the idea for and gift of the entrance by the A.A. Bushes of Amarillo, and through funds from the "TEXAS" ticket sales.

The audience will be able to see the difference in the facilities when "TEXAS" has the Gala Opening on June 20, 1979. As usual the show will open at 8:30 p.m. The barbecue service will start at 6:30, and the season will run through August 25, nightly except Sundays. The extra Fourth of July show will be on July 1.

Although it is well to make reservations in advance, no one has had to be sent home without them except on occasional Saturdays. There have been no gas shortages in the Panhandle.

Engineer Joins SCS For Survey

State Soil Conservation Service Engineer Gene Vittitoe and SCS state office staff Engineer Tom Gray joined local SCS staff engineers at the Lubbock headquarters of the High Plains Undergrround Water Conservation District office Tuesday, May 22, for a project status and evaluation report.

Vittitoe and Gray made the trip to express a lively interest in the joint SCS - District employee irrigation water management training workshops now in full swing on the High Plains. The project was designed to train participants to be proficient not only in conducting efficiency tests, but also in teaching others how to apply a blend of basic economics, plant soil water relationships, sprinkler and furrow application efficiencies and pumping efficiencies for maximum water conservation.

The meeting underscores a growing trend among conservation agencies toward closer working relationships and shared resources to develop the best in water conservation programs. It also marks a shifting SCS emphasis and participation in programs and designs to include water management as well as structures.

SCS Area Engineer, Myron Namken and Mickey Black credited the Water District's contribution of equipment and manhours to the field efficiency irrigation lab as a wise dollar investment, while District Manager Wayne Wyatt expressed assurance of continued agency reassessment and evaluation of the program's activities. Gray commented on the additional benefits of the agency liaison in creating a rapport between the agencies and broadening communication channels between layers of government. That spirit of communication is apparently contagious as word of the workshops spreads. SCS Engineers cited examples of peaked interest in the on-farm irrigation water efficiency tests and training from area electric co-ops and commercial irrigation companies. They have expressed a willingness to participate in the evaluations by drawing on their own specific information and services.

Workshops are scheduled to continue throughout the summer for SCS - District staff at various sites in the District service area.

Lubbock Lake Site Studies Continuing

The seventh annual field study of the Lubbock Lake Site, scene of continuous human habitation for the past 12,000 years, began this week, May 20.

Dr. Eileen Johnson, a pioneer in microscale archeology, the study of ancient cultures in light of their environments, is director and principal investigator. The research project is conducted through The Museum of Texas Tech University.

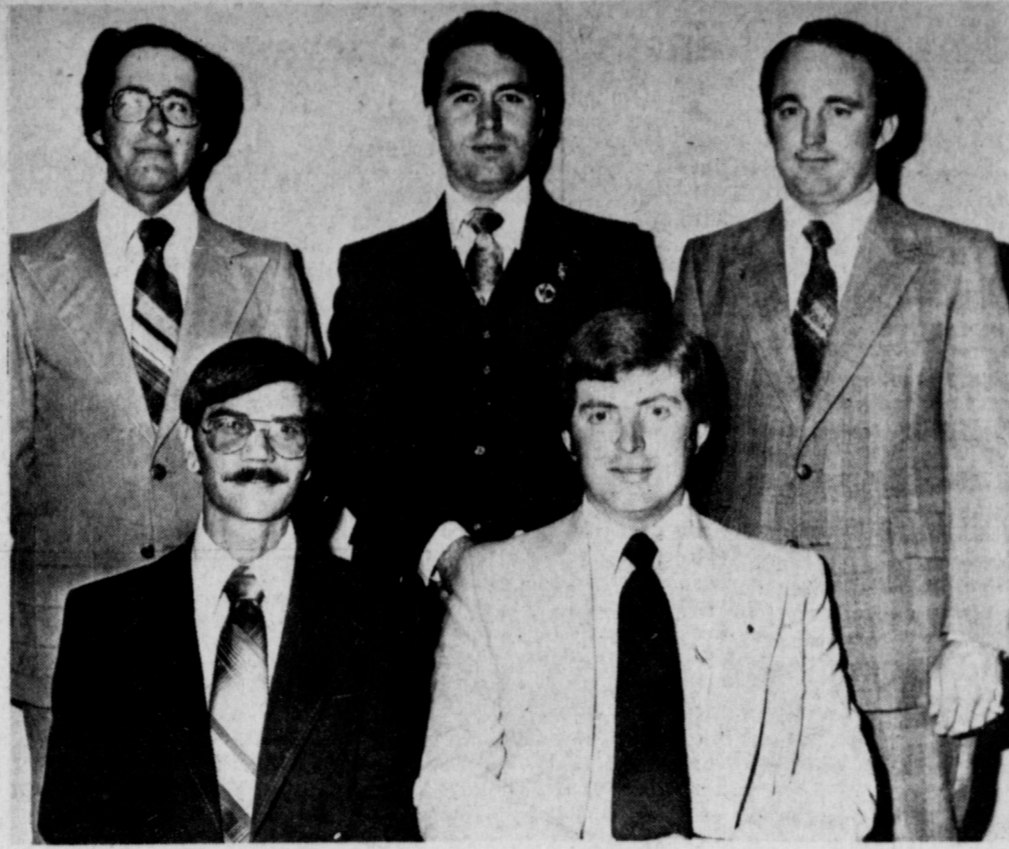

Approximately 20 students arrived in Lubbock Sunday to open the site and begin the dig. They have come from as far away as California and New York, Canada and Puerto Rico. Many use the annual digs to gather data for these and dissertations.

Five students have produced masters' theses as a result of the research. One doctoral dissertation has been completed; another is in progress as are three other masters' theses.

Johnson sees the kind of archeology done at the Lubbock Lake Site a forerunner of future studies.

"In the past," she said, "archeologists have been satisfied to find artifacts or bones, but any culture is developed only as man's adaptation to the environment is understood."

Taking that approach, the studies at the Lubbock Lake Site have become interdisciplinary. They involve geology, zoology, botany and other sciences which help to explain the Nine "safe home" precautions can make vacationing less worrisome.

The following guidelines will help make a home as safe as possible:

- Ask a neighbor or apartment manager to watch your home while you are away.
- Tell the police if you plan to be away several weeks.

Some police departments will patrol homes for vacationers. Tell the police who you expect to be in your home during the vacation and give them departure and return dates.

Leave several low-wattage lights on, or connect them to a time so they are only on for the evening hours.

Also, a radio that is on can be a deterrent.

Stop delivery on mail and newspapers.

Arrange to have the lawn mowed--if the vacation is longer than a week.

Check locks on all outside doors and replace unsafe ones with a dead bolt lock. Ask a locksmith for specific information.

Be careful about telling strangers or casual acquaintances that you will be away.

Inventory your possessions--and have all household valuable engraved with your social security or driver's license number.

Ask the police about borrowing an engraver.

Consider installing a burglar alarm system.

changes was approved by the State Senate Saturday.

"I am naturally very pleased that the Senate saw fit to pass this legislation with the changes I offered and thought were needed to make the water importation bill a better piece of legislation. Several counties in the district had asked to be exempt from the Water Import Authority. Now I think the bill will be palatable to all parties involved," commented Senator Price.

Last week, Senator Price tagged the bill in the Natural Resources Committee so a hearing could be held on both the House version of the bill and Senator Price's version of the legislation.

"Some saw fit to criticize the tagging of the bill. They even went so far as to say I was trying to kill the bill. I assure the residents of the 31st Senatorial District that I would never try to kill a bill so important to our common interests. My only intention was to strengthen the bill and change parts of it which had met heavy and reasonable opposition," said the Pampa Senator.

"This state needs to get moving on the importation of water. I think this bill is the beginning of a real, comprehensive water plan for the entire state of Texas, especially the Panhandle and South Plains," explained Senator Price.

lifestyle of the people who have inhabited the site, from Clovis Man, who butchered game along the stream about 12,000 years ago, to modern man who turned the area into a city reservoir in the 1930's and, in so doing, accidentally uncovered the first evidence of the archeological riches there.

"Lubbock Lake Site," Johnson said, "is the third largest project of its kind in the nation, and there are very few other excavations worked on the type of microscale we rely upon. Some others sample all materials removed. We study everything, paying close attention to the environment, animals, geology, soils and plants."

Johnson has addressed several national meetings in support of the Lubbock Lake Site techniques and believes that future archeologists will increasingly endorse them.

"Archeology is just beginning to move into more meticulous scientific studies," she explained. "Students of today and the next generation of students are at the threshold of this new approach to archeology that can yield more and better understanding of past cultures."

Johnson said that after one and a half days of orientation, the 1979 field crews would begin digging in Lubbock Lake Site areas 2 and 6. Area 2 is at the Clovis level and Area 6 is of the late paleoindian period, about 8,000 years ago.

Among the evidence uncovered in the 1978 dig were the first physical signs supporting the historical belief that Apaches inhabited the Llano Estacado until they were pushed out by the Comanche Indians.

Public tours of the site, from 9-11 a.m., will begin Saturday, June 2 and continue on Saturday only through Aug. 4. The exception will be the 4th of July weekend.

Many people are under the false impression that high levels of protein are needed to supply energy for exercise. This is not true. Most Americans already consume more protein than the recommended amount. The most important function of protein is that of tissue building and repair. The average American diet supplies enough protein to meet the muscle building needs of most athletes. Although protein can be used for energy, in excess this energy will be stored as fat -- not muscle. Protein is an inefficient source of energy both in terms of health and economics.

It takes a wise man to be satisfied with what he deserves.

Summer Time For Preserving, Canning

To many, the thought of canning brings back childhood memories. Of baskets of fresh-picked tomatoes, still warm and sweet smelling from the garden sun. Of steaming kettles and rows of shining jars. Of grandmother's garden where everything from asparagus to zucchini grew in abundance. Of canning days sitting in the kitchen peeling, paring, pitting and slicing. Of mother marking the jars with red bordered labels.

For generations, canning season has been a time for relatives to congregate and a time to be thankful for a plentiful harvest. In earlier days, canning was a near necessity. But with all the developments in food technology, processing and distribution, canning is not nearly so necessary as it once was.

Yet, home canning has grown tremendously in popularity in recent seasons. Millions of Americans are returning to a basic pioneer concept -- grow your own food, preserve it for winter, be a little more self-sufficient.

Surveys in widespread sections of the nation tell the same story -- not since the victory gardens of World War II have families gone in so heavily for home preservation of food as they have in the last several years.

These same surveys also suggest that many families are rediscovering that, in addition to economy, there is something basically satisfying and rewarding in preserving food. And canned foods can be enjoyed at a later time when they are needed more. Also, fruits and vegetables can be available all year long, not just when they are in season. And most importantly, the home canner has complete control over which, if any, additives are put in the food -- and home canned foods can be made to meet the specific tastes of the family.

Recognizing the increasing importance of home canning, two well known companies, Imperial Sugar of Sugar Land, Texas and the Ball Corporation, Muncie, Indiana, each with over a hundred years of experience, have joined together in a program this summer intended to encourage more people to try their hand at home canning.

Here are home canning recipes for peaches, strawberries and sweet corn. They are typical of the more than 250 tested easy to follow recipes in Ball's new 1979 Blue Book.

Strawberry Lime Jam
1 qt. strawberries
1/4 c. lime juice
1 pkg. powdered pectin
7 c. Sugar
Crush fruit; measure 4 1/2 cups into large saucepan. Mix lime juice with strawberries.

Add powdered pectin to the mixture.

Place fruit over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Immediately add Sugar and boil hard for 1 minute, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat and skim off foam. Ladle into hot jars. Leave 1/4 inch head space. Adjust caps.

Process 10 minutes in a boiling water bath. Yield: about nine, 1/2 pints.

Corn With Red Peppers
12 large ears fresh corn
1 sweet red or green pepper, diced

If mankind is to benefit from the mistakes of the past there will have to be a widespread acquaintance with what is popularly referred to as history.

Musical Program Presented To Senior Citizens

Mae Wilterding called the Senior Citizens to order on May 29 in the Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church.

The song, "My Country 'Tis Of Thee" was led by Zed Robison with Eva Ashford at the piano. Mrs. Conrad Byford gave the prayer.

Minutes were read and approved by the Secretary, Eva Ashford. Bill Moore read the names of the deceased members of the group who passed away over the past year. The Lord's Prayer followed.

Mrs. Wilterding gave a report on the 15 Area County Meeting in Lubbock. About 20 from Muleshoe attended.

A plaque was presented to Mrs. Ashford at the Lubbock meeting. She was selected from the Muleshoe Chapter as the Senior Citizen of the year. Mrs. Ashford expressed her appreciation to the group.

Clara Coffman, program chairman, introduced Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Rhodes who presented a program in song and music. Rhodes is music and educational director of the First Baptist Church in Muleshoe. Mrs. Rhodes gave an instrumental on the piano.

The Methodist Guild Ladies served sandwiches, assorted cookies, punch and coffee.

The next meeting will be June 25. Since this is the last meeting before the Fourth of July celebration, everyone is asked to wear pioneer clothing. A luncheon will be served.

bring water to a boil. Process at a gentle but steady boil, quarts 30 minutes, pints 25 min). 8. Store jars in dry, dark, cool place.

Peaches and other fruits tend to darken while being prepared for canning or after they are in the jar. Step 4 will prevent darkening during preparation. To prevent darkening in the jar, sprinkle over the fruit, 1/4 t. ascorbic acid to each quart, just before capping.

STRAWBERRY JAM GETS NEW ACCENT... Everybody's favorite strawberry jam takes on a new taste dimension with the addition of lime juice in a new home canning recipe. Take advantage of fresh strawberries now in season to make a jam that will perk up any family breakfast, and make enough to save a few jars for gift giving in the future.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

I am a working man and I work hard at my job to support my family. I am married and we have three small children. Now this is my problem, when I come home tired, the house is usually in a mess and my wife is feeding the children and there is so much confusion. I know it is not easy for my wife, taking care of the children all day and having the house, meals and clothes to care for but it seems to me that when I furnish the money for rent, clothes and food I have done enough. What do you think about this?

Dad-Mich.

Answer:

When two people have three small children to care for, life is not simple and it takes a lot of love and consideration on the part of both the husband and wife to make a success of marriage. I understand how you feel as I have worked outside the home and know how one feels when they come home at night looking for rest and relaxation.

On the other hand I can sympathize with a wife who has worked hard all day and is probably tired out at the end of the day and thinks that you should help out when you get home.

If you are able to afford some paid help, even for a few hours one day a week that would be a help for both of you.

Also help your wife to make out a schedule of her work so that most of it can be done before you return home. Some men enjoy getting to be with the children before they go to bed and it really helps.

Louisa.

Prepare A Financial 'Checklist' Before Wedding

Plan money and legal affairs before saying "I do", advises a family resource management specialist, Bonnie Piernot. Also, make a spending plan -- to learn how both partners feel about money and to avoid arguments about money problems later, she adds. Mrs. Piernot is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas

A&M University System. A spending plan can help couples determine the most effective way to spend their income -- in a systematic way.

"Although it is not a plan to actually increase income and it does not have to be a rigid budget, it will help a couple relieve pressures and build a sense of sharing and togetherness.

"In addition, it will help keep fairness and equality in their relationship," Mrs. Piernot says.

Below is her suggested checklist of items to include in basic planning. Notify the credit union, bank or savings - and - loan association of any name and address change. Consider both joint and separate share - draft or checking accounts. A separate account is helpful in case of death, since it will allow the survivor to continue writing checks.

Joint accounts are often "frozen" immediately following a spouse's death.

In any case, think of the money as "ours" -- rather than "mine" or "yours".

In addition, notify all charge-card companies of address and name changes.

A husband and wife may have separate credit card accounts, in their own names, and that will establish credit for both of them.

Notify the Social Security Administration of your new name, address and marital status.

Inform the Department of Public Safety of any changes on drivers' licenses or car titles.

Allow plenty of time for magazines and newspapers to make name and address changes.

One way to make all magazine changes at once is to send a single letter to Magazine Action Line, Publisher's Clearing House, 382 Channel Drive, Port Washington, New York 11050. List all magazines you subscribe to and include the old and new addresses.

If you want to make a change in your withholding taxes, you may need to check your W-4 form.

Also, consider changing beneficiaries on employee or other life insurance policies.

In addition, study the company health policy. Decide whether to keep single policies or change to family policies. Study them for the better buy and the best coverage.

Review auto insurance.

too. Add your spouse to your policy, or if you have two cars, insure both on one policy.

For apartment renters, be sure you have some type of tenants insurance policy-- to protect personal property.

This policy should cover both partners' possessions, including recreational equipment.

At the same time, make a list of personal property, including furniture, furnishings, jewelry, appliances, sporting and hobby equipment.

Contact a lawyer to have a will drawn up. This will assure both partners that property will be transferred according to each one's wishes, and it may cut down on death taxes.

Update your will as the family and the assets change.

Finally, ask the County Extension Office for information and publications that will assist with financial planning.

argued that the basic purpose of this bill was "to try to add to our dwindling water supply because the High Plains faces a critical water shortage within ten to 20 years". But some argued that the bill "put the cart before the horse" and wanted the Representative to present the House with a specific import plan before passing the bill.

Proponents of the measure indicated Arkansas appears to have surplus water beyond all of their future requirements. These surplus waters appear to be more than adequate to meet the needs of the High Plains, and that water could be transported in canals to Texas through Oklahoma. Simpson told House members there was no definite water import plan as yet, but Arkansas River water imported through Oklahoma was a possibility.

The measure earned its 112 to 28 vote of approval by the House, with Speaker Bill Clayton behind it, but not before opponents of the authority's unlimited power of eminent domain won an amendment to confine, to within the authority's boundaries, its power to condemn and expropriate private land.

In spite of detailed House committee work and debate, the bill's chances of passing this session were still undetermined late last week. A delay tactic stalling a vote by the Senate Natural Resource Committee for 48 hours. In committee testimony, Wyatt and Grubb were joined by Texas Farm Bureau Spokesman Pat Smith, and Bob Heard of the Plains Cotton Growers Association. Heard reminded Senators that the effects of a High Plains water shortage on crop productions would be sorely felt in South Texas where the cotton exports are shipped.

No sooner had House Bill 2205 cleared committee than it was further stung by a "Killer Bees" attack in the Senate which log-jammed many key pieces of legislation during the last week of the session. Senator Short, who is Chairman of the Water Subcommittee of the Senate Natural Resource Committee, rescued the local measure however, with a "favorite bill" status that got it out on the Senate floor for final consideration where it was again amended.

It now required an agreement by the original author or a conference committee. Representative Simpson accepted the amendments without conference; the Senate version of the bill was considered by the House and was accepted.

Highlights of the bill, which has gone to the Governor for signature, include provisions that the authority be created by majority vote of the local areas overlying the Ogallala Formation and confined within the authority's boundaries. That area will be divided into 15 precincts of equal population and each precinct will elect to confirm the authority, elect a director, and authorize the levying, assessing and collecting of ad valorem taxes. The authority could also sell bonds.

The bill does not create the authority, but provides for elections on the High Plains if and when water is shown to be available for contract to the area and evidence is presented by the Texas Water Development Board to demonstrate the economic, environmental and human benefit to result within each county where water would be imported.

The authority will have the power to contract, store, manage, treat, and sell imported water and to create and enforce rules for its conservation, preservation and protection.

This enabling act establishes the procedures by which local citizens can bring into being an agency with all the legal powers needed to contract for, finance and deliver imported water to the area. It is a giant step in solving the "High Plains water problem."

Gasohol Legislation Approved With Full House Vote

The Texas Senate passed legislation by a vote of 28-0 legislation legalizing the production of alcohol in Texas for fuels. House Bill 1986 authored by State Representative Bill Keese (D-Somerville) and sponsored in the Texas Senate by Valley State Senator Raul Longoria is legislation vital to the development of alcohol fuel facilities, such as gasohol, in Texas.

able. Therefore the Commissioner's Court has informally decided to continue the operation substantially as it is. And to make it as efficient as possible. We sincerely hope that the joint operation can and will continue for it is in the best interest of all concerned that we work together. And in connection therewith we have written the City Manager the following letter: Mr. Dave Marr, Manager City of Muleshoe, Texas

Dear Dave:

In accordance with our recent conversations, I have discussed the dispatching situation with the Commissioner's Court, and with other County personnel, but it does not appear that a change of control can be successfully implemented at this time. It seems that at the present time there is splendid cooperation between all the officers, and the Court does not believe this situation should be disturbed.

After long and careful consideration it is the informal judgment of the Court that:

1. A fair, satisfactory, and workable division of office space in the Law Enforcement Center cannot now be achieved.

2. An orderly and peaceful transition of control with any reasonable hope of success cannot now be had.

3. The dispatchers have substantially complied with all requests for improved services, and are rendering good service.

new permit in the Alcoholic Beverage Code allowing for the production of gasohol. Currently, the alcohol portion of gasohol has been prohibited in the State for more than forty years. Under a changing energy situation, the law presents a barrier to the development of gasohol in Texas. Already shortages are being experienced in some parts of the nation. Texas is currently experiencing some diesel fuel shortages.

The legislation was one of two bills by Keese to remove existing institutional barriers to gasohol. House Bill 2068 which would allow the construction of large-scale gasohol facilities in Texas met strong opposition from the Liquor Lobby in the State Capitol. Current Texas law requires that a holder of a liquor permit be a Texas citizen or if a corporation, that the corporation be 51% Texas owned. Holders of beer permits are exempted from this provision.

"The Liquor Lobby just did not realize that they were standing squarely in front of gasohol's future in Texas", Keese related.

"They learned the error of their ways though. We had almost every agricultural commodity association and farm organization in the State behind this bill."

Keese stated that the Lobby relented upon a strong showing and counter-lobbying by the agricultural community.

The Texas Senate amended House Bill 1986 to include the very important elements in Keese's other legislation, House Bill 2068.

"I must say that no one person or group was responsible for passage of this gasohol legislation. It was a real community effort."

Agricultural Commissioner Reagan Brown had previously endorsed both pieces of legislation and worked behind the scenes for passage of the legislation, as did Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale.

"Had we not been able to amend HB 1986 to include HB 2068," Keese stated, "we would have lost a $15 million federal loan guarantee for a pilot gasohol facility in the Rio Grande Valley." The Valley gasohol pilot plant is expected to generate 470 jobs in the community of Santa Rosa, Texas, $330,000 in State and local taxes, and $26.5 million to the local economy, according to data supplied by the Texas Industrial Commission.

The Commission's director, Gerald Brown, further reports that should ten percent of the total motor fuels market in Texas become gasohol, the impact on Texas would amount to 6,000 workers employed directly in gasohol and would require 79 additional gasohol facilities the same size as the Valley plant.

Brown further stated that although "there is no short term solution to the current energy problem, the development of an in-state alcohol plant and a gasohol program would help diversify the Texas industrial economy, create stable employment for the state farm community and provide a domestic source of clean energy". "Furthermore, substantial benefits would accrue to the State and Nation in terms of reduced reliance on imported crude and reduced balance of payments on the foreign trade account."

Rabies Epidemics Spreads In Texas

Texas may have trouble handling a rabies epidemic that is getting steadily worse and spreading to many parts of the state, the Texas Medical Association (TMA) says.

This year rabies cases in animals are about twice as high as the first few months of 1978, which itself was a record-breaking year.

A growing skunk population living increasingly closer to humans, large numbers of unvaccinated pets and budget problems have medical officials worried.

TMA and the Texas Department of Health urge people to take precautions because the skunk population is increasing in size and is expanding its territory. John Bradlev, M.D., regional health department director in El Paso, says skunk statewide are moving nearer to where people live.

When skunks move closer, pets, especially dogs, and people have a greater chance of getting rabies from them. Since about 2/3 to 1/2 of all domestic dogs have not had rabies vaccine, many humans must take rabies vaccine as a precaution after they or their pets come in contact with a rabid animal.

Last year there were no human rabies cases but almost 400 people had to take shots within the last six months of 1978.

Precautions private citizens can take include vaccinating pet dogs and cats, helping control stray animals, and avoiding any animal that looks ill or acts strangely. For instance, if you see a skunk in daylight, there is a good chance it is rabid.

Someone bitten by any animal should get medical attention immediately. If safely possible, the attacking animal should be kept, dead or alive, to determine if it may have rabies. If the animal is not available, the person might have to take a long series of injections as a precaution against getting the deadly disease.

TMA and TDH also have promoted rabies protection through legislation. The organizations asked the Texas Legislature to provide adequate money for rabies vaccine and to pass legislation requiring increased immunization of pets.

HS COORDINATORS ATTEND CONFERENCE

The annual conference for hunter safety coordinators from the United States and Canada was held in San Antonio last week with a variety of subjects presented from the Alaska Wilderness Proclamation to hunter education.

"There were 38 states and five Canadian provinces represented at the North American Association of Hunter Safety Coordinators meeting," said T.D. Carroll, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department hunter safety coordinator and immediate past president of the association.

"The conference heard many reports from various factions of the hunter and hunter safety community with most of the reports being presented by the various state representatives," Carroll continued.

The meeting was cosponsored by the National Rifle Association and many of their programs were updated such as a report on the training and success of the United States rifle team and a report from the legal branch of the NRA concerning recent legislative proposals in Washington.

Two hunting films produced for the NAAHSC by Madison Films, Inc. of New York City have won outstanding awards from two different film festivals during the past year.

The conference was told that one film, "Shoot - Don't Shoot" won a Gold award from the Virgin Islands International Film Festival and a Silver award from the International Film Festival of New York.

This film deals with hunting/shooting situations where hunters must decide when to shoot or not to shoot.

A Silver award was also presented to the NAAHSC for the film "The Sportsman" by the Virgin Islands International Film Festival. This film discusses hunter ethics.

The HS coordinators association is planning additional films for hunter safety instructors during the next 15 months.

WHITE RIVER GETS SMALLMOUTHS
Over 15,000 smallmouth bass were stocked into White River lake near Crosbyton last week by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"These fish were about one inch in length and came from the P&WD hatchery at San Angelo," said Joe Kraai, fishery biologist. "These smallmouths are from the Tennessee strain which seem to grow bigger in a shorter length of time which should furnish South Plains anglers with a small mouth fishery in five to six years," Kraai continued.

Smallmouths, such as are being stocked into White River lake, occupy different regions of the lake and do not normally compete with largemouth bass which are already established in the lake.

This stocking program is scheduled to continue for two more years as the P&WD fish stocking projects spread across Texas.

PANHANDLE LAKE NEEDS FISHERMEN

The recent draining operations at Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge near Umbarger is still underway and it is hoped that area anglers will take advantage of the plentiful supply of fish in the lake.

Most of the largemouth bass are not large but are of the legal size and many anglers are finding these fish excellent eating. Anglers are being asked to keep these fish since the lake is scheduled to be completely drained by late summer.
